The shredded limb, the splintered bone,
The unstiffened corpse, now block the way '
Who now can hear the dying groan?
The trumpet of the judgment-day,
Had it pealed forth its mighty tone,
We should not then have heard, — to say
Would be rank sin; but this I tell,
That could alone our madness quell.

Upon the forecastle I fought
As captain of the for'ad gun.
A scattering shot the carriage caught!
What mother then had known her son

Of those who stood around?—distraught, And smeared with gore, about they run, Then fall, and writhe, and howling die! But one escaped,—that one was I!

Night darkened round, and the storm pealed;
To windward of us lay the foe.
As he to leeward over keeled,
He could not fight his guns below;
So just was going to strike, — when reeled
Our vessel, as if some vast blow
From an Almighty hand had rent
The huge ship from her element.

Then howled the thunder Tumult then
Had stunned herself to silence. Round
Were scattered lightning-blasted men!
Our mainnast went. All stifled, drowned,
Arose the Frenchman's shout. Again
The bolt burst on us, and we found
Our masts all gone, — our decks all riven!
Man's war mocks family that of heaven!

Just then, — nay, messmates, laugh not now, —
As I, amazed, one minute stood Amidst that rout, — I know not how. —
"T was silence all, — the raving flood,
The guns that pealed from stem to bow,
And God's own thunder, — nothing could
I then of all that tumult hear,
Or see aught of that scene of fear, —

My aged mother at her door
Sat mildly o'er her humming wheel;
The cottage, orchard, and the moor, —
I saw them plannly all. I'll kneel,
And swear I saw them! O, they wore
A look all peace! Could I but feel Again that bliss that then I felt,
That made my heart, like childhood's, melt!

The blessed tear was on my check,

She smiled with that old smile I know:
"Turn to me, mother, turn and speak,"

Was on my quivering hps, — when lo!

All vanished, and a dark, red streak

Glared wild and vivid from the foe,
That flashed upon the blood-stained water, —
For fore and aft the flames had caught her.

She struck and hailed us. On us fast
All burning, helplessly, she came, — Near, and more near; and not a mast
Had we to help us from that flame.
'T was then the bravest stood aghast, —
'T was then the wicked on the name
(With danger and with guilt appalled)
Of God, too long neglected, called.

The eddying flames with ravening tongue
Now on our ship's dark bulwarks dash, —
We almost touched, — when ocean rung
Down to its depths with one loud crash!
In heaven's top vault one instant hung
The vast, intense, and blinding flash!
Then all was darkness, stillness, dread, —
The wave moaned o'er the valiant dead.

She's gone! blown up! that gallant foe!
And though she left us in a plight,
We floated still; long were, I know,
And hard, the labors of that night
To clear the wreck. At length in tow
A frigate took us, when 't was light;
And soon an English port we gained, —
A hulk all battered and blood-stained.

So many slain, — so many drowned!

I like not of that fight to tell.

Come, let the cheerful grog go round!

Messmates, I've done. A spell, ho! spell, —
Though a pressed man, I'll still be found
To do a scaman's duty well.

I wish our brother landsmen knew
One half we jolly tars go through.

CASABIANCA.

[Young Casabianca, a boy about thirteen years old, son of the Admiral of the Orient, remained at his post (in the Battle of the Nile) after the ship had taken fire and all the guns had been abundoned, and perished in the explosion of the vessel, when the fluncs had reached the powder [

THE boy stood on the burning deck,
Whence all but him had fled;
The flame that lit the battle's wreck
Shone round him o'er the dead.

Yet beautiful and bright he stood,
As born to rule the storm;
A creature of heroic blood,
A proud though childlike form.

The flames rolled on; he would not go Without his father's word;
That father, faint in death below,
His voice no longer heard.

He called aloud, "Say, father, say, If yet my task be done!"
He knew not that the chieftain lay Unconscious of his son.

"Speak, father!" once again he cried,
"If I may yet be gone!"
And but the booming shots replied,
And fast the flames rolled on.

Upon his brow he felt their breath,
And in his waving hair,
And looked from that lone post of death
In still yet brave despair;

And shouted but once more aloud,
"My father! must I stay?"
While o'er him fast, through sail and shroud,
The wreathing fires made way.

They wrapt the ship in splendor wild, They caught the flag on high, And streamed above the gallant child, Like banners in the sky.

There came a burst of thunder sound;
The boy, — Oh! where was he?
Ask of the winds, that far around
With fragments strewed the sea, —

With shroud and mast and pennon fair,
That well had borne their part,—
But the noblest thing that perished there
Was that young, faithful heart

TELECIA HUMANS

THE MARINER'S DREAM.

In slumbers of undnight the sailor-boy lay,

His hammock swung loose at the sport of the wind.

But watch-worn and weary, his cares flew away, And visions of happiness danced o'er his mind.

He dreamt of his home, of his dear native bowers,

And pleasures that waited on life's merry

While Memory stood sideways, half covered with flowers.

And restored every rose, but secreted its thorn.

Then Fancy her magical pinions spread wide, And bade the young dreamer in ecstasy use; Now fai, far behind him the green waters glide, And the cot of his forefathers blesses his eyes.

The jessamme clambers in flowers o'er the thatch, And the swallow chirps sweet from her nest in the wall;

All trembling with transport he raises the latch, And the voices of loved ones reply to his call.

A father bends o'er him with looks of delight;
His cheek is impearled with a mother's warm
tear;

And the lips of the boy in a love-kiss unite
With the lips of the maid whom his bosom holds dear.

The heart of the sleeper beats high in his breast; | Of thy fair yellow locks threads of amber be Joy quickens his pulse, all his hardships seem o'er:

And a murmur of happiness steals through his

"() God! thou hast blest me, -1 ask for no more."

Ah ' whence is that flame which now bursts on

Ah! what is that sound which now larums his ear ?

"I is the lightning's red glare, painting hell on the sky!

'T is the crash of the thunder, the groan of the spliere!

He springs from his hammock, he flies to the Amazement confronts him with images dire, Wild winds and mad waves drive the vessel a

The masts fly in splinters, the shrouds are on

Like mountains the billows tremendously swell, ! In vain the lost wretch calls on mercy to save, Unseen hands of spirits are ringing his knell,

And the death-angel flaps his broad wing o'er the wave !

() sailor-boy, wee to thy dream of delight! In darkness dissolves the gay frost-work of bliss.

Where now is the picture that Fancy touched bright, -

Thy parents' fond pressure, and love's honeyed kiss?

· O sailor-boy! sailor-boy! never again

Shall home, love, or kindred thy wishes repay; Unblessed and unhonored, down deep in the Full many a fathom, thy frame shall decay.

No tomb shall e'er plead to remembrance for

Or redeem form or fame from the merciless

But the white foam of waves shall thy windingsheet be.

And winds in the midnight of winter thy dirge!

On a bed of green sea-flowers thy limbs shall be Around thy white bones the red coral shall grow;

made.

And every part suit to thy mansion below.

Days, months, years, and ages shall circle away, And still the vast waters above thee shall roll; Earth loses thy pattern forever and ave. --

O sailor-boy! sailor-boy! peace to thy soul! WILLIAM DIMOND.

POOR JACK.

Go, patter to lubbers and swabs, do ye see, Bout danger, and fear, and the like;

A tight-water boat and good sea-room give me, And it a'n't to a little I'll strike.

Though the tempest topgallant-masts smack smooth should smite,

And shiver each splinter of wood,

Clear the deck, stow the yards, and bouse everything tight,

And under rected foresail we'll scud: Avast ' nor don't think me a milksop so soft To be taken for trifles aback;

For they say there 's a Providence sits up aloft, To keep watch for the life of poor Jack!

I heard our good chaplan palaver one day About souls, heaven, mercy, and such;

And, my timbers ' what lingo he 'd coil and belay; Why, 't was just all as one as High Dutch;

For he said how a spairow can't founder, d'ye see, Without orders that come down below;

And a many fine things that proved clearly to me That Providence takes us in tow:

"For," says he, do you mind me, "let storms e'er so oft Take the topsails of sailors aback, There's a sweet little cherub that sits up aloft, To keep watch for the life of poor Jack '"

I said to our Poll, - for, d'ye see, she would cry, -

When last we weighed anchor for sea, "What argufies snivelling and piping your eye? Why, what a blamed fool you must be !

Can't you see, the world's wide, and there's room for us all.

Both for seamen and lubbers ashore?

And if to old Davy I should go, friend Poll, You never will hear of me more.

What then ! All's a hazard : come, don't be so soft.

Perhaps I may laughing come back; For, d'ye see, there 's a cherub sits smiling aloft, To keep watch for the life of poor Jack !"

D' ye mind me, a sailor should be every inch All as one as a piece of the ship,

And with her brave the world, not offering to flinch
From the moment the anchor's a-trip.

At two me, in all most have all times sides and

As for me, in all weathers, all times, sides, and ends,

Naught's a trouble from duty that springs, For my heart is my Poll's, and my rhino's my friend's,

And as for my will, 't is the king's.

Even when my time comes, ne'er believe me so soft

As for grief to be taken aback;

For the same little cherub that sits up aloft

Will look out a good berth for poor Jack!

CHARLES DIBDIN

NAPOLEON AND THE BRITISH SAILOR.

I LOVE contemplating — apart
From all his homicidal glory —
The traits that soften to our heart
Napoleon's glory!

"T was when his banners at Boulogne Armed in our island every treeman, His navy chanced to capture one Poor British seaman.

They suffered him — I know not how — Unprisoned on the shore to roam;
And aye was bent his longing brow
On England's home.

His eye, methinks! pursued the flight Of birds to Britain half-way over; With envy they could reach the white Dear cliffs of Dover.

A stormy midnight watch, he thought,
Than this sojourn would have been dearer,
If but the storm his vessel brought To England nearer.

At last, when care had banished sleep,
He saw one morning, dreaming, doting,
An empty hogshead from the deep
Come shoreward floating;

He hid it in a cave, and wrought
The livelong day laborious; lurking Until he launched a tiny boat
By mighty working

Heaven help us! 't was a thing beyond Description wretched; such a wherry Perhaps ne'er ventured on a pond, Or crossed a ferry. For, ploughing in the salt-sea field,
It would have made the boldest shudder;
Untarred, uncompassed, and unkeeled, —
No sail, no rudder.

From neighboring woods he interlaced
His sorry skiff with wattled willows,
And thus equipped he would have passed
The foaming billows,—

But Frenchmen caught him on the beach,
His little Argo sorely jeering;
Till tidings of him chanced to reach Napoleon's hearing.

With folded arms Napoleon stood, Serene alike in peace and danger; And, in his wonted attitude, Addressed the stranger.—

"Rash man, that wouldst you Channel pass
On twigs and staves so rudely tashioned,
Thy heart with one sweet British lass Must be impassioned."

"I have no sweetheart," said the lad,

"But—absent long from one another—
Great was the longing that I had
To see my mother."

"And so thou shalt," Napoleon said,
"Ye've both my favor farrly won;
A noble mother must have bred
So brave a son."

He gave the tar a piece of gold,
And, with a flag of truce, commanded
He should be shipped to England Old,
And safely landed.

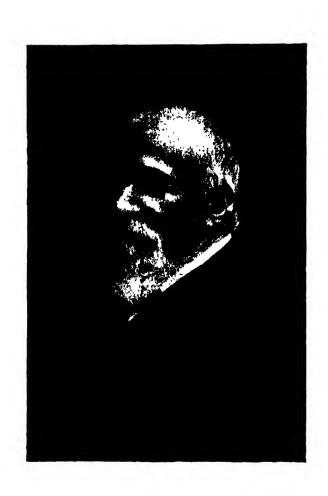

Our sailor oft could scarcely shift
To find a dinner, plain and hearty,
But never changed the coin and gift
Of Bonapartè.
THOMAS CAMPBELL

HOW'S MY BOY?

"Ho, sailor of the sea! How's my boy — my boy?" "What's your boy's name, good wife, And m what ship sailed he?"

"My boy John —
He that went to see —
What care I for the ship, sailor?
My boy's my boy to me

			•
			,
	ř.
٠.		·

Bobest. Browning,

"You come back from sea,
And not know my John?
I might as well have asked some landsman,
Yonder down in the town.
There's not an ass in all the parish
But he knows my John.

"How's my boy — my boy?
And unless you let me know,
I'll swear you are no sailor,
Blue jacket or no,
Brass buttons or no, sailor,
Anchor and crown or no!
Sure his ship was the 'Jolly Briton'" —
"Speak low, woman, speak low!"

"And why should I speak low, sailor, About my own boy John? If I was lond as I am proud I'd sing him over the town! Why should I speak low, sailor?" "That good ship went down."

"How's my boy — my boy?
What care I for the ship, sailor?
I was never aboard her.
Be she affoat or be she aground,
Sinking or swimming, I'll be bound
Her owners can afford her!
I say, how's my John!"
"Every man on board went down,
Every man aboard her."

"How's my boy — my boy?
What care I for the men, sailor?
I'm not their mother —
How's my boy — my boy?
Tell me of him and no other!
How's my boy — my boy?"

SYDNEY DOBELL.

HERVÉ RIEL.

On the sea and at the Hogue, sixteen hundred ninety-two,

Did the English fight the French, — woe to

And, the thirty-first of May, helter-skelter through the blue,

Like a crowd of frightened porpoises a shoal of sharks pursue,

Came crowding ship on ship to St. Malo on the Rance,

With the English fleet in view.

'T was the squadron that escaped, with the victor in full chase,

First and foremost of the drove, in his great ship, Damfreville;

Close on him fled, great and small,

Twenty-two good ships in all;

And they signalled to the place,

"Help the winners of a race!

Get us gnidance, give us harbor, take us quick,
— or, quicker still,

Here's the English can and will!"

Then the pilots of the place put out brisk and leaped on board.

"Why, what hope or chance have ships like these to pass?" laughed they;

"Rocks to starboard, rocks to port, all the passage scarred and scored,

Shall the Formidable here, with her twelve and eighty guns,

Think to make the river-mouth by the single narrow way,

Trust to enter where 't is ticklish for a craft of twenty tons,

And with flow at full beside?

Now 't is slackest ebb of tide.

Reach the mooring? Rather say,

While rock stands or water runs,

Not a ship will leave the bay!"

Then was called a council straight;

Brief and bitter the debate:

"Here's the English at our heels; would you have them take in tow

All that's left us of the fleet, linked together stem and bow,

For a prize to Plymouth Sound?

Better run the ships aground !"

(Ended Damfreville his speech.)

"Not a minute more to wait!

Let the captains all and each

Shove ashore, then blow up, burn the vessels on the beach!

France must undergo her fate."

"Give the word!" But no such word Was ever spoke or heard;

For up stood, for out stepped, for in struck amid all these,

A captain? A lieutenant? A mate, — first, second, third?

No such man of mark, and meet

With his betters to compete!

But a simple Breton sailor pressed by Tourville for the fleet, —

A poor coasting-pilot he, Hervé Riel the Croisickese. And "What mockery or malice have we here?" cries Hervé Riel;

"Are you mad, you Malouins? Are you cowards, fools, or rogues?

Talk to me of rocks and shoals, me who took the soundings, tell

On my fingers every bank, every shallow, every swell

Twixt the offing here and Greve, where the river disembogues?

Are you bought by English gold? Is it love the lying's for?

Morn and eve, night and day,

Have I piloted your bay,

Entered free and anchored fast at the foot of Solidor.

Burn the fleet, and ruin France? That were worse than fifty Hogues!

Sirs, they know I speak the truth! Sirs, believe me, there's a way!

Only let me lead the line,

Have the biggest ship to steer,

Get this Formidable clear,

Make the others follow mine.

And I lead them most and least by a passage I know well,

Right to Solidor, past Greve,

And there lay them safe and sound;

And if one ship misbehave, -Keel so much as grate the ground, -

Why, I've nothing but my life; here's my head '" cries Hervé Riel.

Not a minute more to wait.

"Steer us in, then, small and great!

Take the helm, lead the line, save the squadron '" cried its chief.

Captains, give the sailor place '

He is Admiral, in brief. Still the north-wind, by God's grace.

See the noble fellow's face

As the big ship, with a bound,

Clears the entry like a hound,

Keeps the passage as its inch of way were the wide sea's profound!

See, safe through shoal and rock,

How they follow in a flock.

Not a ship that misbehaves, not a keel that grates the ground,

Not a spar that comes to grief!

The peril, see, is past,

All are harbored to the last;

And just as Hervé Riel halloos "Anchor!" sure as fate.

Up the English come, too late.

So the storm subsides to calm;

They see the green trees wave

On the heights o'erlooking Greve:

Hearts that bled are stanched with balm.

"Just our rapture to enhance,

Let the English rake the bay, Gnash their teeth and glare askance

As they cannonade away!

'Neath rampired Solidor p'easant riding on the Rance!"

How hope succeeds despan on each captain's countenance!

Outburst all with one accord,

"This is Paradise for Hell!

Let France, let France's King

Thank the man that did the thing!"

What a shout, and all one word, "Hervé Riel,"

As he stepped in front once more,

Not a symptom of surprise

In the frank blue Breton eyes,

Just the same man as before.

Then said Damfreville, "My friend,

I must speak out at the end,

Though I find the speaking hard:

Praise is deeper than the lips;

You have saved the king his ships,

You must name your own reward. Faith, our sun was near eclipse!

Demand whate'er you will,

France remains your debtor still.

Ask to heart's content, and have! or my name 's not Damfreville."

Then a beam of tun outbroke

On the bearded mouth that spoke,

As the honest heart laughed through

Those frank eyes of Breton blue:

"Since I needs must say my say,

Since on board the duty's done,

And from Malo Roads to Croisic Point, what is it but a run?

Since 't is ask and have I may, -

Since the others go ashore, -

Come! A good whole holiday!

Leave to go and see my wife, whom 1 call the Belle Aurore!"

That heasked, and that he got, — nothing more.

Name and deed alike are lost;

Not a pillar nor a post

In his Croisic keeps alive the feat as it befell,

Not a head in white and black

On a single fishing-smack

In memory of the man but for whom had gone to wrack All that France saved from the fight whence

Go to Paris; rank on rank

England bore the bell. Search the heroes flung pell-mell On the Louvre, face and flank;
You shall look long enough ere you come to Hervé Riel.

So, for better and for worse,
Hervé Riel, accept my verse!
In my verse, Hervé Riel, do thou once more Save the squadron, honor France, love thy wife
the Belle Aurore.

ROBERT BROWNING.

TACKING SHIP OFF SHORE.

THE weather leach of the topsail shivers,
The bowlines strain and the lee shrouds slacken,
The braces are taut and the lithe boom quivers,
And the waves with the coming squall-cloud blacken

Open one point on the weather bow
Is the light-house tall on Fne Island Head;
There's a shade of doubt on the captam's brow,
And the pilot watches the heaving lead.

1 stand at the wheel and with eager eye
To sea and to sky and to shore I gaze,
Till the muttered order of "Full and by!"
Is suddenly changed to "Full for Sfays!"

The ship bends lower before the breeze,
As her broadside fan to the blast she lays,
And she swifter springs to the rising seas
As the pilot calls, "Stand by for stays."

It is silence all, as each in his place,
With the gathered coils in his hardened hands,
By tack and bowline, by sheet and brace,
Waiting the watchword impatient stands.

And the light on Fire Island Head draws near,
As, trumpet-winged, the pilot's shout
From his post on the bowsprit's heel I hear,
With the welcome call of "READY! ABOUT!"

No time to spare ' it is touch and go,
And the captain growls, "Down HELM! HARD
DOWN!"

As my weight on the whirling spokes I throw, While heaven grows black with the stormcloud's frown.

High o'er the knight-heads flies the spray,
As we meet the shock of the plunging sea;
And my shoulder stiff to the wheel I lay,
As I answer, "AY, AY, SIR! HARD A LEE!"

With the swerving leap of a startled steed.

The ship flies fast in the eye of the wind,

The dangerous shoals on the lee recede,

And the headland white we have left behind.

The topsails flutter, the jibs collapse
And belly and tug at the groaning cleats;
The spanker slaps and the mainsail flaps,
And thunders the order, "TACKNAND SHEETS!"

Mid the rathe of blocks and the tramp of the Hisses the rain of the rushing squall;

The sails are aback from clew to clew,
And now is the moment for "MAINSAIL, HAUL!"

And the heavy yards like a baby's toy
By fifty strong arms are swiftly swung;
She holds her way, and I look with joy
For the first white spray o'er the bulwarks flung.

"LET GO, AND HAUL!" 't is the last command, And the head-sails fill to the blast once more, Astern and to leeward hes the land, With its breakers white on the shingly shore.

What matters the reef, or the rain, or the squall? I steady the helm for the open sea;
The first-mate clamors, "Belay there, all!"
And the captain's breath once more comes free.

And so off shore let the good ship fly,
Little care I how the gusts may blow,
In my fo'castle-bunk in a jacket dry, —
Eight bells have struck, and my watch is below.

WALTER F. MITCHELL.

THE TREASURES OF THE DEEP.

What hid'st thou in thy treasure-caves and cells?

Thou hollow-sounding and mysterious main '—
Pale glistening pearls and rainbow-colored shells, Bright things which gleam unrecked of and in vain '—

Keep, keep thy riches, melancholy sea! We ask not such from thee.

Yet more, the depths have more! — what wealth untold,

Far down, and shining through their stillness lies!

Thou hast the starry gems, the burning gold,
Won from ten thousand royal argosies!—
Sweep o'er thy spoils, thou wild and wrathful main!

Earth claims not these again.

Yet more, the depths have more! — thy waves have rolled

Above the cities of a world gone by !
Sand hath filled up the palaces of old,
Sea-weed o'ergrown the halls of revelry.
Dash o'er them, Ocean, in thy scornful play!
Man yields them to decay.

Yet more, the billows and the depths have more!

High hearts and brave are gathered to thy breast!

They hear not now the booming waters roar,

The battle-thunders will not break their rest. —

Keep thy red gold and gems, thou stormy grave!

Give back the true and brave!

Give back the lost and lovely! — those for whom The place was kept at board and hearth so long! The prayer went up through midnight's breathless gloom,

And the vain yearning woke midst festal song!

Hold fast thy buried isles, thy towers o'elthrown, —

But all is not thme own.

To thee the love of woman hath gone down,

Dark flow thy tides o'er manhood's noble head,
O'er youth's bright locks, and beauty's flowery

crown:

Yet must thou heat a voice, — Restore the dead!

Earth shall reclaim her precious things from thee!—

Restore the dead, thou sea!

"OLD IRONSIDES."

(Written with reference to the proposed breaking up of the famous U. S. frigate "Constitution]

Av, tear her tattered ensign down '
Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That banner in the sky;
Beneath it rung the battle-shout,
And burst the cannon's roar:
The meteor of the ocean air Shall sweep the clouds no more '

Her deck, once red with heroes' blood,
Where knelt the vanquished foe,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood
And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victor's tread,
Or know the conquered knee:
The harpies of the shore shall plack
The eagle of the sea!

O better that her shattered hulk
Should sink beneath the wave!
Her thunders shook the mighty deep,
And there should be her grave:
Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale!
OTHER WINDELL HOLMES.

THE INCHCAPE ROCK.

No stir in the an, no stir in the sea, — The ship was as still as she could be; Her sails from heaven received no motion; Her keel was steady in the ocean.

Without either sign or sound of their shock, The waves flowed over the Inchcape rock, So little they rose, so little they fell, They did not move the Incheape bell.

The holy Abbot of Aberbrothok Had placed that bell on the Incheape rock; On a buoy in the storm it floated and swung, And over the waves its warning ring

When the rock was hid by the singes' swell, The mainiers heard the waining bell., And then they knew the perilous rock, And blessed the Abbot of Aberbrothok.

The sun in heaven was shining gay, — All things were joyful on that day, The sea-birds screamed as they wheeled around, And there was joyance in their sound.

The buoy of the Inchcape bell was seen, A darker speck on the ocean green, Sir Ralph, the rover, walked his deck, And he fixed his eye on the darker speck.

He felt the cheering power of spring, — It made him whistle, it made him sing; His heart was murthful to excess; But the rover's mirth was wickedness.

His eye was on the bell and float: Quoth he, "My men, put out the boat; And row me to the Inchcape rock, And I'll plague the priest of Aberbrothok."

The boat is lowered, the boatmen row, And to the Inchcape rock they go; Sir Ralph bent over from the boat, And cut the warning bell from the float Down sank the bell with a gurgling sound; The bubbles rose, and burst around. Quoth Sir Ralph, "The next who comes to the rock

Will not bless the Abbot of Aberbrothok."

Sir Ralph, the lover, sailed away, -He scouled the seas for many a day; And now, grown rich with plundered store, He steers his course to Scotland's shore.

So thick a haze o'erspreads the sky They cannot see the sun on high; The wind hath blown a gale all day; At evening it hath died away.

On the deck the lover takes his stand; So dark it is they see no land. Quoth Sir Ralph, "It will be lighter soon, For there is the dawn of the rising moon.'

"Canst hear," said one, "the breakers roar! For yonder, methinks, should be the shore. Now where we are I cannot tell, But I wish we could hear the Inchcape bell."

They hear no sound; the swell is strong; Though the wind hath fallen, they drift along; Till the vessel strikes with a shivering shock, O Christ! it is the Incheape rock!

Sn Ralph, the rover, tore his hair; He cursed hunself in his despair. The waves rush in on every side; The ship is sinking beneath the tide.

But ever in his dying fear One dreadful sound he seemed to hear, -A sound as it with the Inchcape bell The Devil below was ringing his knell.

ROBERT SOUTHEY

THE THREE FISHERS.

THREE fishers went sailing out into the west, — Out into the west as the sun went down; Each thought of the woman who loved him the

And the children stood watching them out of the town,

For men must work, and women must weep; And there's little to earn, and many to keep, Though the harbor bar be moaning.

Three wives sat up in the light-house tower, And trimmed the lamps as the sun went down; And they looked at the squall, and they looked at the shower,

And the rack it came rolling up, ragged and brown.

But men must work, and women must weep, Though storms be sudden, and waters deep, And the harbor bar be meaning.

Three corpses lay out on the shining sands In the morning gleam as the tide went down, And the women are watching and wringing their hands,

For those who will never come back to the town:

For men must work, and women must weep, -And the sooner it 's over, the sooner to sleep, -And good-by to the bar and its moaning. CHARLLS KINGSLEY.

THE SANDS O' DEE.

"O MARY, go and call the cattle home, And call the cattle home, And call the cattle home, Across the sands o' Dee!" The western wind was wild and dank wi' foam,

And all alone went she. The creeping tide came up along the sand,

And o'er and o'er the sand, And round and round the sand, As far as eye could see ; The blinding mist came down and hid the land:

And never home came she

"O, is it weed, or fish, or floating hair, -A tress o' golden hair, O' drownèd maiden's hair, -Above the nets at sea? Was never salmon yet that shone so fair, Among the stakes on Dec."

They rowed her in across the rolling foam, — The cruel, crawling foam, The cruel, hungry foam, -To her grave beside the sea; But still the boatmen hear her call the cattle home Across the sands o' Dee.

CHARLES KINGSLLY

FLOTSAM, AND JETSAM.

THE sea crashed over the grim gray rocks, It thundered beneath the height, It swept by reef and sandy dune, It glittered beneath the harvest moon, That bathed it in yellow light.

Shell, and sea-weed, and sparkling stone, It flung on the golden sand. Strange relics torn from its deepest caves, Sad trophies of wild victorious waves, It scattered upon the strand.

Spars that had looked so strong and true, At many a gallant launch, Shattered and broken, flung to the shore, While the tide in its wild triumphant roar Rang a dirge for the vessel stanch.

Petty trifles that lovers had brought
From many a foreign clime,
Snatched by the storm from the clinging clasp
Of hands that the lonely will never grasp,
While the world yet measures time.

Back, back to its depths went the ebbing tide, Leaving its stores to rest, Unsought and unseen in the silent bay, To be gathered again, ere close of day, To the ocean's mighty breast.

Kinder than man art thou, O sea,
Frankly we give our best,
Truth, and hope, and love, and faith,
Devotion that challenges tune and death
Its sterling worth to test.

We fling them down at our darling's feet, Indifference leaves them there. The careless footstep turns aside, Weariness, changefulness, scorn, or pride, Bring little of thought or care

No tide of human feeling turns;
Once ebbed, love never flows;
The pitiful wreckage of time and strife,
The flotsam and jetsam of human life,
No saving reflux knows.

ANONYMOUS

SEA WEED.

When descends on the Atlantic
The gigantic
Storm-wind of the equinox,
Landward in his wrath he scourges
The toiling surges,
Laden with sea-weed from the rocks:

From Bermuda's reefs; from edges Of sunken ledges, In some far-off, bright Azore; From Bahama, and the dashing, Silver-flashing Surges of San Salvador;

From the tumbling surf, that buries
The Orkneyan skerries,
Answering the hoarse Hebrides;
And from wrecks of ships, and drifting
Spars, uplifting
On the desolate, rainy seas;—

Ever drifting, drifting, drifting
On the shifting
Currents of the restless main;
Till in sheltered coves, and reaches
Of sandy beaches,
All have found repose again.

So when storms of wild emotion Strike the ocean Of the poet's soul, erclong, From each cave and rocky fastness In its vastness, Floats some fragment of a song:

From the far-off isles enchanted
Heaven has planted
With the golden fruit of Truth;
From the flashing surf, whose vision
Gleams Elysian
In the tropic clime of Youth;

From the strong Will, and the Endeavor
That forever
Wrestles with the tides of Fate;
From the wreck of Hopes far-scattered,
Tempest-shattered,
Floating waste and desolate;—

Ever drifting, drifting
On the shifting
Currents of the restless heart;
Till at length in books recorded,
They, like hoarded
Household words, no more depart.
HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

GULF-WEED.

A WEARY weed, tossed to and fro,
Dreartly drenched in the ocean brine,
Soaring high and sinking low,
Lashed along without will of mine;
Sport of the spinne of the surging sea;
Flung on the foam, afar and anear,
Mark my manifold mystery,—
Growth and grace in their place appear.

I bear round berries, gray and red,
Rootless and lover though I be;
My spangled leaves, when nicely spread,
Alboresce as a trunkless tree;
Corals curions coat me o'er,
White and hard in apt array;
Mid the wild waves' rude uproar
Gracefully grow I, night and day.

Hearts there are on the sounding shore,
Something whispers soft to me,
Restless and roaming forevermore,
Like this weary weed of the sea;
Bear they yet on each beating breast
The eternal type of the wondrous whole,
Growth unfolding amidst unrest,
Grace informing with silent soul.

CORNELIUS GEORGE FENNER.

SEA LIFE.

FROM " 1HL PELICAN ISLAND."

LIGHT as a flake of foam upon the wind Keel-upward from the deep emerged a shell, Shaped like the moon ere half her horn is filled; Fraught with young life, it righted as it rose, And moved at will along the yielding water. The native pilot of this little back Put out a tier of oars on either side, Spread to the wafting breeze a twofold sail, And mounted up and glided down the billow In happy freedom, pleased to feel the air, And wander in the luxury of light. Worth all the dead creation, in that hour, To me appeared this lonely Nautilus, My fellow-being, hke myself, alive. Entranced in contemplation, vague yet sweet, I watched its vagrant course and rippling wake, Till I forgot the sun amidst the heavens.

It closed, sunk, dwindled to a point, then nothing,

While the last bubble crowned the dimpling eddy,

Through which mine eyes still giddily pursued it, A joyous creature vaulted through the air, — The aspiring fish that fain would be a bird, On long, light wings, that flung a diamondshower

Of dew-drops round its evanescent form,
Sprang into light, and instantly descended.
Ere I could greet the stranger as a friend,
Or mount his quick departure on the surge,
A shoal of dolphins tumbling in wild glee,
Glowed with such orient tints, they might have

The rainbow's offspring, when it met the ocean In that resplendent vision I had seen.
While yet in cestasy I hung o'er these,
With every motion pouring out fresh beautics,
As though the conscious colors came and went
At pleasure, glorying in their subtle changes,— Enormous o'er the flood, Leviathan
Looked forth, and from his roaring nostrils sent
Two fountains to the sky, then plunged amain
In headlong pastime through the closing gulf.

These were but preludes to the revelry
That reigned at sunset: then the deep let loose
Its blithe adventurers to sport at large,
As kindly instinct taught them; buoyant shells,
On stormless voyages, in fleets or single,
Wherried their tiny mariners; aloof,
On wing-like fins, in bow-and-arrow figures,
The flying-fishes darted to and fro;
While spouting whales projected watery columns,

That turned to arches at their height, and seemed The skeletons of crystal palaces
Built on the blue expanse, then perishing, Frail as the element which they were made of;
Dolphins, in gambols, lent the lucid brine
Hues richer than the canopy of eve,
That overhung the scene with goigeous clouds,
Decaying into gloom more beautiful
Than the sun's golden liveries which they lost
Till light that hides, and darkness that reveals
The stars.— exchanging guard, like sentinels
Of day and night,— transformed the face of nature:

Above was wakefulness, silence around, Beneath, repose, — repose that reached even me. Power, will, sensation, memory, failed in turn; My very essence seemed to pass away, Like a thin cloud that melts across the moon. Lost in the blue immensity of heaven.

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

THE CORAL INSECT.

Toll on! toil on! ye ephemeral train,
Who build in the tossing and treacherous main;
Toil on! for the wisdom of man ye mock,
With your sand-based structures and domes of rock,

Your columns the fathomless fountains' cave, And your arches spring up to the created wave; Ye're a puny race thus to boldly rear A fabric so vast in a realm so drear.

Ye bind the deep with your secret zone, —
The ocean is scaled, and the surge a stone;
Fresh wreaths from the coral pavement spring,
Like the terraced pride of Assyria's king;
The turf looks green where the breakers rolled;
O'er the whirlpool ripens the rind of gold;
The sea-snatched isle is the home of men,
And mountains exult where the wave hath been.

But why do ye plant, 'neath the billows dark, The wrecking reef for the gallant bark? There are snares enough on the tented field, Mid the blossomed sweets that the valleys yield; There are serpents to coil ere the flowers are up, There's a poison drop in man's purest cup. There are foes that watch for his cradle breath, And why need ye sow the floods with death?

With mouldering bones the deeps are white, From the ice-clad pole to the tropics bright; The mermaid hath twisted her fingers cold With the mesh of the sea-boy's curls of gold, And the gods of the ocean have frowned to see The mariner's bed in their halls of glec; Hath earth no graves, that ye thus must spread The boundless sea for the thronging dead '

Ye build — ye build — but ye enter not in, Lake the tribes whom the desert devoured in their sin;

From the land of promise ye fade and die Ere its verdure gleams forth on your weary eye As the kings of the cloud-crowned pyramid, Their noiseless bones in oblivion hid, Ye slumber unmarked mid the devolate main, While the wonder and pride of your works re-

LYDIA HUNTLIY SIGOURNEY.

EVERY one,

THE CORAL REEF.

FROM "THE PELICAN ISLAND."

By instinct taught, performed its little task, — To build its dwelling and its sepulchie, From its own essence exquisitely modelled; There breed, and die, and leave a progeny, Still multiplied beyond the reach of numbers, To frame new cells and tombs, then breed and die As all their ancestors had done, — and rest, Hermetically sealed, each in its shrine, A statue in this temple of oblivion!

A statue in this temple of oblivion!
Millions of millions thus, from age to age,
With simplest skill and toll unweariable,
No moment and no movement unimproved,
Laid line on line, on terrace terrace spread,
To swell the heightening, brightening, gradual

To swell the heightening, brightening, gradual mound, By marvellous structure climbing towards the day.

A point at first It peered above those waves; a point so small I just perceived it, fixed where all was floating; And when a bubble crossed it, the blue film Expanded like a sky above the speck;

That speck became a hand-breadth, day and night

It spread, accumulated, and crelong
Presented to my view a dazzling plain,
White as the moon amid the sapphire sea;
Bare at low water, and as still as death,
But when the tide came gurgling o'er the surface
"T was like a resurrection of the dead:

From graves innumerable, punctures fine In the close coral, capillary swarms Of reptiles, horrent as Medusa's snakes, Covered the bald-pate reef, Erelong the reef o'ertopt the spring-flood's height, And mocked the billows when they leapt upon it, Unable to maintain then slippery hold, And falling down in foam-wreaths round its verge.

Steep were the flanks, with precipies sharp, Descending to their base in ocean gloom. Chasins few and narrow and irregular Formed harbors, safe at once and perilous, — Safe for defence, but perilous to enter. A sea-lake shone anidst the fossil isle, Reflecting in a ring its cliffs and caverns, With heaven itself seen like a lake below.

JAMES MONIGOMERY

THE CORAL GROVE.

DEEP in the wave is a coral grove, Where the purple mullet and gold-fish rove; Where the sea-flower spreads its leaves of blue That never are wet with folling dew, But in bright and changeful beauty some Far down in the green and glassy brune. The floor is of sand, like the mountain duft, And the pearl-shells spangle the flinty snow; From coral rocks the sea-plants lift Then boughs, where the tides and ballows flow: The water is calm and still below, For the winds and waves are absent there, And the sands are bright as the stars that glow In the motionless fields of upper an There, with its waving blade of given, The sea-flag streams through the silent water, And the crimson leaf of the dulse is seen To blush, like a banner bathed in slaughter. There, with a light and easy motion, The fan-coral sweeps through the clear deep sea; And the yellow and scarlet tufts of ocean Are bending like corn on the upland lea: And life, in rare and beautiful forms, Is sporting amid those bowers of stone, And is safe when the wrathful Spirit of storms Has made the top of the wave his own And when the ship from his fury flies, Where the myriad voices of Ocean roar; When the wind-god frowns in the murky skies, And demons are waiting the wreck on shore; Then, far below, in the peaceful sea, The purple mullet and gold-fish rove, Where the waters murmur tranquilly, Through the bending twigs of the coral grove. JAMES GATI'S PERCIVAL

THE CHAMBERED NAUTILUS.

This is the ship of pearl, which, poets feign,
Sails the unshadowed main,—
The venturous bark that flings
On the sweet summer wind its purpled wings
In gulfs enchanted, where the Siren sings,
And coral reefs lie bare,
Where the cold sca-maids rise to sun their streaming hair.

Its webs of living gauze no more unfurl;
Wrecked is the ship of pearl!
And every chambered cell,

Where its dim dreaming life was wont to dwell, As the frail tenant shaped his growing shell, Before thee lies revealed, -

Its irrsed ceiling rent, its sunless crypt unsealed!

Year after year beheld the silent toil
That spread his lustrons coil,
Still, as the spiral grew,
He left the past year's dwelling for the new,
Stole with soft step its shining archway through,
Built up its idle door,
Stietched in his last-found home, and knew the

Thanks for the heavenly message brought by thee, ('hild of the wandering sea,

Cast from her lap, forlorn '
From thy dead lips a clearer note is born
Than ever Triton blew from wreathed horn ' old no more.

While on mine ear it rings,
Through the deep caves of thought I hear a voice that sings —

Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul, As the swift seasons roll ' Leave thy low-vaulted past '

Let each new temple, nobler than the last, Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast, Till thou at length art free,

Leaving thme outgrown shell by life's unresting

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

THE SEA.

The sea! the sea! the open sea!
The blue, the fresh, the ever free!
Without a mark, without a bound,
It runneth the earth's wide regions round;
It plays with the clouds; it mocks the skies;
Or like a cradled creature lies.

I'm on the sea! I'm on the sea!
I am where I would ever be;
With the blue above, and the blue below,
And silence wheresoe'er I go;
If a storm should come and awake the deep,
What matter? I shall inde and sleep.

I love, O, how I love to ride
On the fierce, foaming, bursting tide,
When every mad wave drowns the moon,
Or whistles aloft his tempest tune,
And tells how goeth the world below,
And why the sou west blasts do blow.

I never was on the dull, tame shore, But I loved the great sea more and more, And backwards flew to her billowy breast, Like a bird that seeketh its mother's nest; And a mother she was, and is, to me, For I was born on the open sea!

The waves were white, and red the morn, In the noisy hour when I was born; And the whale it whistled, the porpoise rolled, And the dolphins bared their backs of gold, And never was heard such an outery wild As welcomed to life the ocean-child!

I 've lived since then, in calm and strife,
Full fifty summers, a sailor's life,
With wealth to spend and a power to range,
But never have sought nor sighed for change;
And Death, whenever he comes to me,
Shall come on the wild, unbounded sea!

BRYAN WALLER PROCIER (Farry Cornwall).

SONG OF THE EMIGRANTS IN BERMUDA

WHERE the remote Bermudas ride In the ocean's bosom unespied, From a small boat that rowed along The listening winds received this song: "What should we do but sing His praise That led us through the watery maze Where he the huge sea monsters wracks, That lift the deep upon their backs, Unto an isle so long unknown, And yet far kinder than our own? He lands us on a grassy stage, Safe from the storms, and prelate's rage; He gave us this eternal spring Which here enamels everything, And sends the fowls to us in care On daily visits through the air. He hangs in shades the orange bright Like golden lamps in a green night.

And does in the pomegranates close Jewels more rich than Ormus shows: He makes the figs our mouths to meet, And throws the melons at our feet; But apples, plants of such a price, No tree could ever bear them twice. With cedars chosen by his hand From Lebanon he stores the land; And makes the hollow seas that roar Proclaim the ambergris on shore. He cast (of which we rather boast) The gospel's pearl upon our coast : And in these rocks for us did frame A temple where to sound his name. O, let our voice his praise exalt Till it arrive at heaven's vault, Which then perhaps rebounding may Echo beyond the Mexique bay '"--Thus sung they in the English boat A holy and a cheerful note; And all the way, to guide their chime, With falling oars they kept the time.

ANDREW MARVELL

A WET SHEET AND A FLOWING SEA.

A wer sheet and a flowing sea, —
A wind that follows fast,
And fills the white and rustling sail,
And bends the gallant mast, —
And bends the gallant mast, my boys,
While, like the cagle free,
Away the good ship flies, and leaves
Old England on the lee.

O for a soft and gentle wind!

I heard a fair one cry;
But give to me the snoring breeze
And white waves heaving high, —
And white waves heaving high, my boys,
The good ship tight and free;
The world of waters is our home,
And merry men are we.

There's tempest in you horned moon,
And lightning in you cloud;
And hark the music, mariners!
The wind is piping loud, —
The wind is piping loud, my boys,
The lightning flashing free;
While the hollow oak our palace is,
Our heritage the sea.

ALLAN CUNNINGHAM.

SONG OF THE ROVER.

FROM "THE CORSAIR,' CANTO I.

O'ER the glad waters of the dark blue sea,
Our thoughts as boundless and our souls as free,
Far as the breeze can bear, the billows foam,
Survey our empire, and behold our home!
These are our realms, no limits to their sway,—
Our flag the sceptre all who meet obey.
Ours the wild life in tumult still to range
From toil to rest, and joy in every change.
O, who can tell? not thou, luxirious slave!
Whose soul would sicken o'er the heaving wave;
Not thou, vain lord of wantonness and ease!
Whom slumber soothes not,— pleasure cannot please,—

O, who can tell save he whose heart hath tried,
And danced in triumph o'er the waters wide,
The exulting sense, the pulse's maddening play,
That thrills the wanderer of that trackless way '
That for itself can woo the approaching fight,
And turn what some deem danger to delight;
That seeks what cravens shun with more than zeal.

And where the feebler faint can only feel—
Feel to the rising boson's inmost core,
Its hope awaken and its spirit soar!
No dread of death—if with us die our foes—
Save that it seems even duller than repose.
Come when it will—we snatch the life of life—
When lost—what recks it—by disease or strife?
Let him who crawls enanored of decay,
Cling to his couch and sicken years away;
Heave his thick breath, and shake his palsied head:

Ours — the fresh turf, and not the feverish bed While gasp by gasp he falters forth his soul, Ours with one pang — one bound — escapes control.

His corse may boast its urn and narrow cave,
And they who loathed his life may gild his grave:
Ours are the tears, though few, sincerely shed,
When Ocean shrouds and sepulchres our dead.
For us, even banquets fond regrets supply
In the red cup that crowns our memory;
And the brief epitaph in danger's day,
When those who win at length divide the prey,
And cry, Remembrance saddening o'er each brow,
How had the brave who fell exulted now!

LORD BYRON

MY BRIGANTINE.

FROM "THE WATER WITCH."

Just in thy mould and beauteous in thy form, Gentle in roll and buoyant on the surge, Light as the sea-fowl rocking in the storm, In breeze and gale thy onward course we urge, My water-queen! Lady of mine,

More light and swift than thou none thread the

With surer keel or steadier on its path, We brave each waste of ocean-mystery And laugh to hear the howling tempest's wrath,

For we are thine. My brigantine!

Trust to the mystic power that points thy way, Trust to the eye that pierces from afar; Trust the red meteors that around thee play, And, fearless, trust the Sea-Green Lady's star, Thou bark divine!

IAMES FENIMORE COOPER.

THE HEAVING OF THE LEAD.

For England when with favoring gale Our gallant ship up channel steered, And, scudding under easy sail, The high blue western land appeared; To heave the lead the scaman sprung, And to the pilot cheerly sung, "By the deep - nine!"

And bearing up to gain the port, Some well-known object kept in view, — An abbey-tower, a harbor-fort, Or beacon to the vessel true: While oft the lead the scaman flung, And to the pilot cheerly sung, "By the mark - seven!"

And as the much-loved shore we near, With transport we behold the roof Where dwelt a friend or partner dear, Of faith and love a matchless proof. The lead once more the seaman flung, And to the watchful pilot sung, "Quarter less - five!"

Now to her beith the ship draws nigh: We shorten sail, -- she feels the tide, --"Stand clear the cable" is the cry, --The anchor's gone; we safely ride. The watch is set, and through the night We hear the seamen with delight

> Proclaim, -- "All's well !" CHARLES DIBDIN

ALL'S WELL

FROM "THE BRITISH FIFET."

DESERTED by the waning moon, When skies proclaim night's cheerless noon, On tower, or fort, or tented ground The sentry walks his lonely round;

And should a footstep haply stray Where caution marks the guarded way, "Who goes there 'Stranger, quickly tell!"
"A friend!" "The word?" "Good-night;" all's well.

Or, sailing on the midnight deep, When weary messmates soundly sleep, The careful watch patrols the deck, To guard the ship from foes or wreck; And while his thoughts oft homewards veer, Some friendly voice salutes his ear, -"What cheer? Brother, quickly tell; Above, - below." Good-night; all 's well. THOMAS DIBDIN.

THE TEMPEST.

WE were crowded in the cabin, Not a soul would dare to sleep, -It was midnight on the waters And a storm was on the deep.

'T is a fearful thing in winter To be shattered by the blast, And to hear the rattling trumpet Thunder, "Cut away the mast '"

So we shuddered there in silence, -For the stoutest held his breath, While the hungry sea was roaring, And the breakers talked with Death.

As thus we sat in darkness, Each one busy in his prayers, "We are lost!" the captain shouted As he staggered down the stairs.

But his little daughter whispered, As she took his icy hand, "Is n't God upon the ocean Just the same as on the land?"

Then we kissed the little maiden, And we spoke in better cheer, And we anchored safe in harbor When the morn was shining clear. JAMES THOMAS FIELDS

THE MINUTE-GUN.

WHEN in the storm on Albion's coast, The night-watch guards his weary post, From thoughts of danger free, He marks some vessel's dusky form, And hears, amid the howling storm, The minute-gun at sea.

Swift on the shore a hardy few
The life-boat man with a gallant crew
And dare the dangerous wave;
Through the wild surf they cleave their way,
Lost in the foam, nor know dismay,
For they go the crew to save.

But O, what rapture fills each breast
Of the hopeless crew of the ship distressed!
Then, landed safe, what joy to tell
Of all the dangers that befell!
Then is heard no more,
By the watch on shore,
The minute-gun at sca.

R. S SHARPE.

THE BAY OF BISCAY

Loud roared the dreadful thunder,
The rain a deluge showers,
The clouds were rent asunder
By lightning's vivid powers;
The night both drear and dark,
Our poor devoted bark,
Till next day, there she lay,
In the Bay of Biscay, O:

Now dashed upon the billow,
Her opening timbers creak,
Each fears a watery pillow,
None stops the dreadful leak;
To cling to shippery shrouds
Each breathless seaman crowds,
As she lay, till the day,
In the Bay of Biscay, O!

At length the wished-for morrow
Broke through the hazy sky, Absorbed in silent sorrow,
Each heaved a bitter sigh;
The dismal wreck to view
Struck horror to the crew,
As she lay, on that day,
In the Bay of Biscay, O!

Her yielding timbers sever,
Her pitchy seams are rent,
When Heaven, all bounteous ever,
Its boundless mercy sent,

A sail in sight appears!
We hail her with three cheers;
Now we sail, with the gale,
From the Bay of Biscay, O!

ANDREW CHERRY.

THE STORM.

CEASE, rude Boreas, blustering railer!
List, ye landsmen all, to me;
Messmates, hear a brother sailor
Sing the dangers of the sea;

From bounding billows, first in motion,
When the distant whillwinds rise,
To the tempest-troubled ocean,
Where the seas contend with skies.

Hark! the boat-wain hoarsely bawling,
By top-sail-sheets and haulyards stand!
Down top-gallants quick be hauling!
Down your stay-sails, - hand, boys, hand!

Now it freshens, set the braces, Quick the topsail sheets let go; Luff, boys, luff 'don't make wry faces, Up your topsails nimbly clew.

Round us roars the tempest louder,
Think what fear our minds inthralls!
Harder yet it blows, still harder,
Now again the boatswain calls.

The topsail-yard point to the wind, boys, See all clear to reef each course; Let the foresheet go, — don't mind, boys, Though the weather should be worse.

Fore and aft the spit-sail-yard get, Reef the mizzen, see all clear, Hand up, each preventer-brace set! Man the foreyards,—cheer, lads, cheer!

Now the dreadful thunder's roaring, Peal on peal contending clash, On our heads herce rain falls pouring, In our eyes blue lightnings flash.

One wide water all around us, All above us one black sky; Different deaths at once surround us: Hark! what means that dreadful cry?

The foremast's gone! cries every tongue out,
O'er the lee twelve feet 'bove deck;
A leak beneath the chest-tree's sprung out,
Call all hands to clear the wreck.

Quick the lanyards cut to pieces;
Come, my hearts, be stout and bold,
Plumb the well,—the leak increases,
Four feet water in the hold!

While o'er the ship wild waves are beating, We our wives and children mourn; Alas! from hence there's no retreating, Alas! to them there's no return!

Still the leak is gaining on us!

Both chain-pumps are choked below:
Heaven have mercy here upon us!

For only that can save us now.

O'er the lee-beam is the land, boys, Let the guns o'erboard be thrown; To the pumps call every hand, boys, See! our mizzen-mast is gone.

The leak we've found, it cannot pour fast;
We've lightened her a foot or more,
Up and rig a jury foremest,
She rights' she rights, boys' we're off shore.
GHORGE ALL NANDER STEVENS.

YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND.

YE marmers of England †
That guard our native seas;
Whose flag has braved, a thousand years,
The battle and the breeze!
Your glorious standard launch again
To match another foe!
And sweep through the deep,
While the stormy winds do blow;
While the battle rages loud and long,
And the stormy winds do blow.

The spirits of your fathers
Shall start from every wave!—
For the deck it was their field of fame,
And ocean was their grave
Where Blake and mighty Nelson fell,
Your manly hearts shall glow,
As ye sweep through the deep,
While the stormy winds do blow;
While the battle rages loud and long,
And the stormy winds do blow.

Britannia needs no bulwarks,
No towers along the steep,
Her march is o'er the mountain-waves,
Her home is on the deep.
With thunders from her native oak,
She quells the floods below,—
As they roar on the shore,
When the stormy winds do blow;
When the battle rages loud and long
And the stormy winds do blow.

The meteor flag of England
Shall yet terrific burn;
Till danger's troubled night depart,
And the star of peace return.
Then, then, ye ocean warriors!
Our song and feast shall flow
To the fame of your name,
When the storm has ceased to blow;
When the fiery light is heard no more,
And the storm has ceased to blow.

I HOMAS CAMPBELL

TOM BOWLING.

HERE, a sheer hulk, lies poor Tom Bowling,
The dailing of our crew;
No more he'll hear the tempest howling,
For death has broached him to
His form was of the manliest beauty,
His heart was kind and soft;
Faithful, below, he did his duty;
But now he's gone aloft.

Tom never from his word departed,
His virtues were so ince,
His friends were many and true-hearted,
His Poll was kind and fair:
And then he'd sing, so blithe and jolly,
Ah, many's the time and oft'
But mirth is turned to melancholy,
For Tom is gone aloft.

Yet shall poor Tom find pleasant weather,
When He who all commands
Shall give, to call life's crew together,
The word to "pipe all hands."
Thus Death, who kings and tars despatches,
In vain Tom's life has doffed;
For though his body 's under hatches,
His soul has gone aloft.

CHARLES DIBDIN.

THE WHITE SQUALL.

THE sea was bright, and the bark rode well;
The breeze bore the tone of the vesper bell;
"I was a gallant bark with a crew as brave
As ever lannehed on the heaving wave.
She shone in the light of declining day,
And each sail was set, and each heart was gay.

They neared the land where in beauty smiles The sunny shore of the Grecian Isles; All thought of home, of that welcome dear Which soon should greet each wanderer's ear; And in fancy joined the social throng In the festive dance and the joyous song. A white cloud glides through the azure sky, — What means that wild despairing cry? Farewell the visioned scenes of home! That cry is "Help," where no help can come; For the White Squall rides on the surging wave, And the bark is 'gulfed in an ocean grave

BRYAN WALLER PROCTER (Barry Cornwall).

OUR BOAT TO THE WAVES.

OUR boat to the waves go free,

By the bending tide, where the curled wave breaks,

Like the track of the wind on the white snowflakes:

Away, away! 'T is a path o'er the sea.

Biasts may rave, — spread the sail,

For our spirits can wrest the power from the wind,

And the gray clouds yield to the sunny mind, Fear not we the whirl of the gale.

WILLIAM ELLERY CHANNING.

TO SEA!

To sea! to sea! the calm is o'cr,

The wanton water leaps in sport,

And rattles down the pebbly shore,

The dolphin wheels, the sea-cows snort,

And unseen mermaid's pearly song

Comes bubbling up, the weeds among.

Fling broad the sail, dip deep the oar.

To sea! to sea! the calm is o'er.

To sea! to sea! our white-winged bark
Shall billowing cleave its watery way,
And with its shadow, fleet and dark,
Break the caved Triton's azure day,
Like mountain eagle soaring light
O'er antelopes on Alpine height.
The anchor heaves! The ship swings free!
Our sails swell full! To sea! to sea!
THOMAS LOYFIL BI DDOIS

THE SAILOR'S CONSOLATION.

One night came on a hurricane,
The sea was mountains rolling,
When Barney Buntline turned his quid,
And said to Billy Bowling.
"A strong nor'wester's blowing, Bill;
Hark! don't ye hear it roar now?
Lord help'em, how I pities them
Unhappy folks on shore now!

"Foolhardy chaps who live in towns, What danger they are all in,
And now he quaking in their beds,
For fear the roof shall fall in.
Poor creatures ' how they envies us,
And wishes, I 've a notion,
For our good luck, in such a storm,
To be upon the ocean'

"And as for them who re out all day
On business from their houses,
And late at night are coming home,
To cheer their babes and spouses,
While you and I, Bill, on the deck
Are comfortably lying,
My eyes! what tiles and chimney-pots
About their heads are flying!

"And very often have we heard
How men are killed and undone
By overturns of carriages,
By threves and fires in London.
We know what risks all landsmen run,
From noblemen to tailors;
Then, Bill, let us thank Providence
That you and I are sailors."

WILLIAM PILT

A LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE.

A LIFE on the ocean wave,
A home on the rolling deep;
Where the scattered waters rave,
And the winds their revels keep!
Like an eagle caged I pine
On this dull, unchanging shore:
O, give me the flashing brine,
The spray and the tempest's roar!

Once more on the deck I stand,
Of my own swift-gliding craft:
Set sail ' farewell to the land;
The gale follows fair abaft
We shoot through the sparkling foam,
Like an ocean-bird set free,—
Like the ocean-bird, our home
We'll find far out on the sea.

The land is no longer in view,

The clouds have begun to frown;

But with a stout vessel and ciew,

We'll say, Let the storm come down!

And the song of our hearts shall be,

While the winds and the waters rave,

A home on the rolling sea!

A life on the ocean wave!

EPES SARGENT.

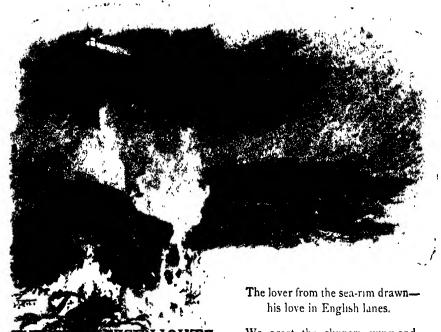

After an Etching by G C Walters

TO ALL IN HAVEN.

All ye who have gained the haven of safe days. And rest at ease, your wanderings being done, Except the last, inevitable one,
Be well content, I say, and hear men's praise:
Yet in the quiet of your sheltered bays,—
Bland waters shining in an equal sun,—
Forget not that the awful storm-tides run
In far, unsheltered, and tempestuous ways:

Remember near what rocks, and through what shoals,
Worn, desperate mariners strain with all their might:
They may not come to your sweet restful goals,
Your waters placid in the level light:—
Their graves wait in that sea no moon controls,
That is in dreadful fellowship with Night.

Our brows are wreathed with spindrift and the weed is on our knees;

Our loins are battered 'neath us by the swinging, smoking seas.

From reef and rock and skerry—over headland, ness and voe—

The Coastwise Lights of England watch the ships of England go!

Through the endless summer evenings, on the lineless, level floors;

Through the yelling Channel tempest when the syren hoots and roars—

By day the dipping house-flag and by night the rocket's trail—

As the sheep that graze behind us so we know them where they hail.

We.bridge across the dark, and bid the helmsman have a care,

The flash that wheeling inland wakes his sleeping wife to prayer;

From our vexed eyries, head to gale, we bind in burning chains

We greet the clippers wing-andwing that race the Southern wool;

We warn the crawling cargo-tanks of Bremen, Leith and Hull;

To each and all our equal lamp at peril of the sea—

The white wall-sided warships or the whalers of Dundee!

Come up, come in from Eastward, from the guard-ports of the Morn!

Beat up, beat in from Southerly, O gipsies of the Horn!

Swift shuttles of an Empire's loom that weave us main to main,

The Coastwise Lights of England give you welcome back again!

Go, get you gone up-Channel with the sea-crust on your plates;

Go, get you into London with the burden of your freights!

Haste, for they talk of Empire there, and say, if any seek,

The Lights of England sent you, and by silence shall ye speak.

RUDYARD KIPLING.

Copyright, in 1896, by Rudyard Kipling.

THE OCEAN.

The Ocean at the bidding of the moon
Forever changes with his restless tide:
Flung shoreward now, to be regathered soon
With kingly pauses of reluctant pride,
And semblance of return. Anon from home
He issues forth anew, high ridged and free,—
The gentlest murmir of his secthing foam
Like armies whispering where great echoes be.
O, leave me here upon this beach to rove,
Mute listener to that sound so grand and lone!
A glorious sound, deep drawn, and strongly thrown,

And reaching those on mountain heights above, To British ears (as who shall scorn to own') A tutelar fond voice, a savior tone of love.

CHARLES TURNER.

FRAGMENTS

THE SEA-SHORE.

I have seen

A curious child, who dwelt upon a tract Of inland ground, applying to his ear The convolutions of a smooth-hpped shell, To which, in silence hushed, his very soul Listened intensely, and his countenance soon Brightened with joy, for from within were heard Murmanings, whereby the monitor expressed Mysterious union with its native sea. Even such a shell the universe itself Is to the ear of Faith; and there are times, I doubt not, when to you it doth impart Authentic tidings of myssible things, Of ebb and flow, and ever-during power; And central peace, subsisting at the heart Of endless agitation.

Ine I zew sion, Book iv

WORDSWORTH.

And there, where the smooth, wet pebbles be, The waters gurgle longingly, As if they fain would seek the shore, To be at rest from the ceaseless roar, To be at lest forevermore.

The Strens.

J. R. LOWELL

I am as a weed, Flung from the rock, on Ocean's foam, to sail Where'er the sauge may sweep, the tempest's breath prevail.

Don Juan, Cant. iii Byron.

PEACE ON THE SEA.

Calm and unruffled as a summer sea,
When not a breath of wind flies o'er its surface.

ADDISON.

WINDS AND WAVES.

Watching the waves with all their white crests dancing

Come, like thick-plumed squadrons, to the shore Gallantly bounding Julian.

SIR A. HUNT.

I have seen tempests when the scolding winds Have rived the knotty oaks; and I have seen The ambitious ocean swell, and rage, and foam, To be exalted with the threat'ning clouds.

Julius Cæsar, Act L Sc. 3.

SHAKFSPFARE

But chief at sea, whose every flexile wave Obeys the blast, the aerial tumult swells. In the dread Ocean undulating wide, Beneath the radiant line that girts the globe. The Seasons Summer THOMSON

Once more upon the waters ' yet once more ' And the waves bound beneath me as a steed That knows his rider.

Don Juan, Cant m

RVEON

Strongly it bears us along in swelling and limitless billows

Nothing before and nothing behind but the sky and the ocean.

The Homeric Hexamiles In of COLLRIDGE

SCHILI ER

SHIPS

Build me straight, O worthy Master!
Stanch and strong, a goodly vessel,
That shall laugh at all disaster
And with wave and whirlwind wrestle.
The Building of the Ship.
LONGFELLOW.

Behold the threaden sails, Borne with the invisible and creeping wind, Draw the nuge bottoms through the furrowed sea, Breasting the lofty surge.

King Henry V. Ict m. Chorus

SHAKESPEARE,

Sailing

Like a stately ship
Of Tarsus, bound for the isles
Of Javan or Gadire,
With all her bravery on, and tackle trim,
Sails filled, and streamers waving,
Courted by all the winds that hold them play,
An amber seent of odorous perfume
Her harbinger.

Samson Agonistes,

MILTON.

Hearts of oak are our ships, Hearts of oak are our men.

t. D. GARRICK.

STORMS AND SHIPWRECK.

Ye gentlemen of England
That live at home at ease,
Ah' little do you think upon
The dangers of the seas.
Ye Gentlemen of England:

M. PARKER.

O pilot! 't is a fearful night,
There 's danger on the deep.

T. H BAYLY.

God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants his footsteps in the sea
And rides upon the storm.
Light shining out of Darkness.

COWPER.

Seas

Rough with black winds, and storms Unwonted.

Book 1. Ode 5. Translation of MILTON

HORACE

Her deck is crowded with despairing souls, And in the hollow pauses of the storm We hear their piercing cries.

Bertram

C MATURIN.

Fierce o'er the wreck the whelming waters passed,

The helpless crew sunk in the roaring main the Mariner.

MRS. ANNE RADCLIFFF

A solitary shrick, the bubbling cry
Of some strong swimmer in his agony.

Don Juan, Caul 11.

BYRON.

Dangerous rocks,
Which touching but my gentle vessel's side,
Would scatter all her spices on the stream,
Eurobe the roaring waters with my silks,
And, in a word, but even now worth this,
And now worth nothing.

Merchant of Venuce, Act 1 Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE

As rich . . .

As is the ooze and bottom of the sea With sunken wreck and sumless treasuries. King Henry V., Act i. Sc 2 Shakespeare.

No, here's to the pilot that weathered the storm.

The Pilot that weathered the Storm G. CANNING

THE LOW COUNTRIES.

To men of other minds my fancy flies, Embosomed in the deep where Holland lies. Methinks her patient sons before me stand, Where the broad Ocean leans against the land, And, sedulous to stop the coming tide, Lift the tall rampire's artificial pride. Onward methinks, and diligently slow, The firm connected bulwark seems to grow, Spreads its long arms amidst the watery roar, Scoops out an empire, and usurps the shore While the pent Ocean, rising o'er the pile, Sees an amphibious world beneath him smile; The slow canal, the yellow-blossomed vale, The willow-tufted bank, the gliding sail, The crowded mart, the cultivated plain, A new creation rescued from his reign. The Traveller. GOLDSMITH.

As when the sea breaks o'er its bounds,
And overflows the level grounds,
Those banks and dams that like a screen
Did keep it out, now keep it in.
Hudderas. Dr. S. Butler.

ENGLAND.

Broad-based upon her people's will, And compassed by the inviolate sea.

To the Queen Tennyson.

POEMS OF ADVENTURE AND RURAL SPORTS

O Victor Emmanuel The King,
the swood be for thee and the seed;
And nought for the alien, next spring,
hought for Hapsburg and Bourbort agreed;
But for us, a great staly freed,
with a dero to head us, .. run King
Elizabeth Barrett Browning,

The Wants of Mann

Man wants but little have below:

"Nor wants that little long:

Tis not with me exactly so:

But tis so, in the gong.

Mould muster marry a forme: And ware each wish a mint of gold

I The should long for more

John Quincy Adams.

Washington 21. August 1846

POEMS OF ADVENTURE AND RURAL SPORTS.

ADVENTURE.

CHEVY-CHASE.

[Percy Earl of Northumberland, had vowed to hunt for three days in the Scottsh border, without condescending to ask leave from Farl Douglas, who was either lord of the soil or lord warden of the Marches. This provoked the conflict which was celebrated in the old ballad of the "Hunting o the Cheviot". The circum stances of the battle of Otterbourne (A. D. 1388) are woven into the ballad, and the aflairs of the two events are confounded. The ballad preserved in the Percy Reliques is probably as old a $157. The one following is a modernized form, of the time of Jaines I.]

Gon prosper long our noble king, Our lives and safeties all, A woful hunting once there did In Chevy-Chase befall.

To drive the deer with hound and horn Earl Percy took his way, The child may rue that is unborn The hunting of that day.

The stout Earl of Northumberland A vow to God did make, His pleasure in the Scottish woods Three summer days to take, —

The chiefest harts in Chevy-Chase
To kill and bear away
These tidings to Earl Douglas came,
In Scotland where he lay,

Who sent Earl Percy present word He would prevent his sport. The English earl, not fearing that, Did to the woods resort,

With fifteen hundred bowmen bold, All chosen men of might, Who knew full well in time of need To aim their shafts aright.

The gallant greyhounds swittly ran To chase the fallow deer, On Monday they began to hunt, When daylight did appear; And long before high noon they had A hundred fat bucks slain; Then, having dined, the diovers went To rouse the deer again.

The bowmen mustered on the hills, Well able to endure; And all their rear, with special care, That day was guarded sure.

The hounds ran swiftly through the woods
The nimble deer to take,
That with their cries the hills and dales
An echo shrill did make.

Lord Percy to the quarry went, To view the slaughtered deer, Quoth he, "Earl Douglas promisèd This day to meet me here;

"But if I thought he would not come,
No longer would I stay;"
With that a brave young gentleman
Thus to the earl did say:—

"Lo, yonder doth Earl Douglas come, — His men in armor bright; Full twenty hundred Scottish spears All marching in our sight;

"All men of pleasant Teviotdale, Fast by the river Tweed;"
"Then cease your sports," Earl Percy said,
"And take your bows with speed;

"And now with me, my countrymen, Your courage forth advance; For never was there champion yet, In Scotland or in France,

"That ever did on horseback come, But if my hap it were, I durst encounter man for man, With him to break a spear." Earl Douglas on his milk-white steed, Most like a baron bold, Rode foremost of his company, Whose armor shone like gold.

"Show me," said he, "whose men you be,
That hunt so boldly here,
That, without my consent, do chase
And kill my fallow-deer."

The first man that did answer make, Was noble Percy, he — Who said, "We list not to declare, Nor show whose men we be:

- "Yet will we spend our dearest blood Thy chiefest harts to slay." Then Douglas swore a solemn oath, And thus in rage did say.—
- "Ere thus I will out-braved be, One of us two shall die; I know thee well, an earl thou art,— Lord Percy, so am I.
- "But trust me, Percy, pity it were, And great offence, to kill Any of these our guiltless men, For they have done no ill.
- "Let you and me the battle try, And set our men aside."
 "Accursed be he," Earl Percy said,
 "By whom this is denied."

Then stepped a gallant squire forth, Witherington was his name, Who said, "I would not have it told To Henry, our king, for shame,

"That e'er my captain fought on foot, And I stood looking on. You two be earls," said Witherington, "And I a squire alone;

"I'll do the best that do I may,
While I have power to stand;
While I have power to wield my sword
I'll fight with heart and hand."

Our English archers bent their bows,—
Their hearts were good and true;
At the first flight of arrows sent,
Full fourscore Scots they slew.

Yet stays Earl Douglas on the bent, As chieftain stout and good; As valiant captain, all unmoved, The shock he firmly stood. His host he parted had in three, As leader ware and tried; And soon his spearmen on their foes Bore down on every side.

Throughout the English archery
They dealt full many a wound;
But still our valuant Englishmen
All firmly kept their ground.

And throwing straight their bows away,
They grasped their swords so bright;
And now sharp blows, a heavy shower,
On shields and helmets light.

They closed full fast on every side, — No slackness there was found; And many a gallant gentleman Lay gasping on the ground.

In truth, it was a grief to see
How each one chose his spear,
And how the blood out of their breasts
Did gush like water clear.

At last these two stout earls did meet;
Like captains of great might,
Like lions wode, they laid on lode,
And made a cruel fight.

They fought until they both did sweat,
With swords of tempered steel,
Until the blood, like drops of rain,
They trickling down did feel.

"Yield thee, Lord Percy," Douglas said, "In faith I will thee bring Where thou shalt high advanced be By James, our Scottish king.

"Thy ranson I will freely give,
And thus report of thee, —
Thou art the most courageous knight
That ever I did see."

"No, Douglas," saith Earl Percy then, "Thy proffer I do scorn;
I will not yield to any Scot
That ever yet was born."

With that there came an arrow keen
Out of an English bow,
Which struck Earl Douglas to the heart,—
A deep and deadly blow,

Who never spake more words than these:
"Fight on, my merry men all;
For why, my life is at an end;
Lord Percy sees my fall."

Then leaving life, Earl Percy took
The dead man by the hand;
And said, "Earl Douglas, for thy life
Would I had lost my land.

"In truth, my very heart doth bleed With sorrow for thy sake; For sure a more redoubted knight Mischance did never take."

A knight amongst the Scots there was Who saw Earl Douglas die, Who straight in wrath did vow avenge Upon the Earl Percy.

Sir Hugh Mountgomery was he called, Who, with a spear full bright, Well mounted on a gallant steed, Ran fiercely through the fight,

And past the English archers all,
Without a dread or fear;
And through Earl Percy's body then
He thrust his hateful spear.

With such vehement force and might
He did his body gore,
The staff ran through the other side
A large cloth-yard and more.

So thus did both these nobles die, Whose courage none could stam. An English archer then perceived The noble earl was slain.

He had a bow bent in his hand, Made of a trusty tree; An arrow of a cloth-yard long To the hard head haled he.

Against Sir Hugh Mountgomery
So right the shaft he set,
The gray goose wing that was thereon
In his heart's blood was wet.

This fight did last from break of day Till setting of the sun; For when they rung the evening-bell The battle scarce was done.

With stout Earl Percy there were slain Sir John of Egerton, Sir Robert Ratcliff, and Sir John, Sir James, that bold baron.

And with Sir George and stout Sir James, Both knights of good account, Good Sir Ralph Raby there was slain, Whose prowess did surmount. For Witherington my heart is woe That ever he slain should be, For when his legs were hewn in two, He knelt and fought on his knee.

And with Earl Douglas there were slain Sir Hugh Mountgomery, Sir Charles Murray, that from the field One foot would never flee;

Sir Charles Murray of Ratcliff, too, —
His sister's son was he;
Sir David Lamb, so well esteemed,
But saved he could not be.

And the Lord Maxwell in like case Did with Earl Douglas die . Of twenty hundred Scottish spears, Scarce fitty-five did fly.

Of fifteen hundred Englishmen, Went home but fifty-three; The rest in Chevy-Chase were slain, Under the greenwood tree

Next day did many widows come,
Their husbands to bewail,
They washed their wounds in brinish tears
But all would not prevail.

Their bodies, bathed in purple blood,
They bore with them away;
They kissed them dead a thousand times,
Ere they were clad in clay.

The news was brought to Edinburgh, Where Scotland's king did reign, That brave Earl Douglas suddenly Was with an arrow slain:

"O heavy news," King James did say;
"Scotland can witness be
I have not any captain more
Of such account as he."

Like tidings to King Henry came Within as short a space, That Percy of Northumberland Was slain in Chevy-Chase

"Now God be with him," said our King
"Since 't will no better be;
I trust I have within my realin
Five hundred as good as he

"Yet shall not Scots or Scotland say But I will vengeance take; I'll be revenged on them all For brave Earl Percy's sake." This vow full well the king performed After at Humbledown; In one day fifty knights were slain With lords of high renown;

And of the rest, of small account,
Did many hundreds die:
Thus endeth the hunting of Chevy-Chase,
Made by the Earl Percy.

God save the king, and bless this land, With plenty, joy, and peace; And grant, henceforth, that foul debate 'Twixt noblemen may cease.

RICHARD SHEALE

LAMENT OF THE BORDER WIDOW.

[Sir Walter Scott says: "This ballad relates to the execution of Cockburne of Henderland, a border freebooter, hanged over the gate of his own tower by James V. in his famous expedition, in 1529, against the marauders of the border. In a deserted burnal-place near the ruins of the castle, the monument of Cockburne and his lady is still shown. The following inscription is still legible, though defaced:—

""HERE LYES PERYS OF COKBURNE AND HIS WYFE MARIORY |

My love he built me a bonnie bower, And clad it a' wi' lily flower; A brawer bower ye ne'er did see, Than my true-love he built for me.

There came a man, by middle day, He spied his sport, and went away; And brought the king that very night, Who brake my bower, and slew my knight.

He slew my knight, to me sae dear; He slew my knight, and poin'd his gear: My servants all for life did flee, And left me in extremitie.

I sewed his sheet, making my mane; I watched the corpse mysell alane; I watched his body night and day; No living creature came that way.

I took his body on my back, And whiles I gaed, and whiles I sat; I digged a grave, and laid him in, And happed him with the sod sae green.

But think nae ye my heart was sair, When I laid the moul' on his yellow hair? O, think nae ye my heart was wae, When I turned about, away to gae?

Nae living man I'll love again, Since that my lively knight is slain; Wi' ae lock o' his yellow hair I'll chain my heart forevermair.

ANONYMOUS

ROBIN HOOD AND ALLEN-A-DALE.

[Of Robin Hood, the famous outlaw of Sherwood Forest, and his merry men, there are many ballads, but the limits of this volume forbid our giving more than a single selection Various periods, ranging from the time of Richard I to the end of the regin of Edward II, have been assigned as the age in which Robin Hood lived. He is insually described as a yeoman, abiding in Sherwood Forest, in Nottinghamshire. His most noted followers, generally michioned in the hallads, are Little John, Firaf Fuck, his chaplain, and his maid Marian. Nearly all the legends extol his courage, his generosity, his humainty, and his skill as an archer He robbed the rich only, who could afford to lose, and gave freely to the poor. He protected the needly, was a champion of the fair sex, and took great dehight in plundering prelates. The following ballad exhibits the outlaw in one of his most attractive aspects,—affording assistance to a distressed lower.]

COME, listen to me, you gallants so free, All you that love murth for to hear, And I will tell you of a bold outlaw, That lived in Nottinghamshire.

As Robin Hood in the forest stood, All under the greenwood tree, There he was aware of a brave young man, As fine as fine might be

The youngster was clad in scarlet 1ed, In scallet fine and gay; And he did frisk it over the plain, And chanted a roundelay.

As Robin Hood next morning stood
Amongst the leaves so gay,
There did he espy the same young man
Come drooping along the way.

The scarlet he wore the day before It was clean cast away; And at every step he fetched a sigh, "Alack and well-a-day!"

Then stepped forth brave Little John,
And Midge, the miller's son;
Which made the young man bend his bow,
Whenas he see them come.

"Stand off! stand off!" the young man said, "What is your will with me!"

"You must come before our master straight, Under you greenwood tree."

And when he came bold Robin before, Robin asked him courteously,

"O, hast thou any money to spure, For my merry men and me?"

"I have no money," the voung man said,
"But five shillings and a ring;
And that I have kept these seven long years,
To have at my wedding.

- "Yesterday I should have married a maid, But she was from me ta'en, And chosen to be an old knight's delight, Whereby my poor heart is slain."
- "What is thy name?" then said Robin Hood, "Come tell me without any fail."
- "By the faith of my body," then said the young man,
 - "My name it is Allen-a-Dale."
- "What wilt thou give me," said Robin Hood, "In ready gold or fee,
- To help thee to thy true-love again, And deliver her unto thee?"
- "I have no money," then quoth the young man,
 "No ready gold nor fee,
 But I will swear upon a book
- But I will swear upon a book
 Thy true servant for to be."
- "How many miles is it to thy true-love?
 Come tell me without guile."
- "By the faith of my body," then said the young man,
 - "It is but five little mile."

Then Robin he hasted over the plant,
He did neither stint nor lin,*
Until he came unto the church
Where Allen should keep his wedding

- "What hast thou here?" the bishop then said, "I pathee now tell unto me."
- "I am a bold harper," quoth Robin Hood, "And the best in the north country."
- "O, welcome, O, welcome," the bishop he said, "That music best pleaseth me."
- "You shall have no music," quoth Robin Hood,
 "Till the bride and budegroom I see"

With that came in a wealthy knight,
Which was both grave and old;
And after him a finikin lass,
Did shine like the glistering gold.

"This is not a fit match," quoth Robin Hood,
"That you do seem to make here;
For since we are come into the church,
The bride shall chuse her own dear."

Then Robin Hood put his horn to his mouth,
And blew blasts two and three;
When four-and-twenty yeomen bold
Came leaping over the lea.

* Stop nor stay.

And when they came into the churchyard, Marching all in a row, The very first man was Allen-a-Dale, To give bold Robin his bow.

"This is thy true-love," Robin he said,
"Young Allen, as I hear say;
And you shall be mairied at this same time,
Before we depart away."

"That shall not be," the bishop he cried,
"For thy word shall not stand;
They shall be three times asked in the church,
As the law is of our land."

Robin Hood pulled off the bishop's coat, And put it upon Little John;

"By the faith of my body," then Robin said, "This cloth doth make thee a man."

When Little John went into the quire,
The people began to laugh;
He asked them seven times in the church
Lest three times should not be enough.

"Who gives me this maid!" said Little John, Quoth Robin Hood, "That do I, And he that takes her from Allen-a-Dale, Full dearly he shall her buy."

And then, having ended this merry wedding, The bride looked like a queen; And so they returned to the merry greenwood, Amongst the leaves so green.

ANONYMOUS.

JOCK JOHNSTONE, THE TINKLER.

"O, CAME ye ower by the Yoke-burn Ford, Or down the King's Road of the cleuch? Or saw ye a knight and a lady bright, Wha ha'e gane the gate they batth shall rue?'

"I saw a kuight and a lady bright
Ride up the cleuch at the break of day;
The knight upon a coal-black steed,
And the dame on one of a silver-gray.

"And the lady's palfrey flew the first,
With many a clang of silver bell:
Swift as the raven's morning flight
The two went scouring ower the fell.

"By this time they are man and wife, And standing in St. Mary's fane; And the lady in the grass-green silk A maid you will never see again."

- "But I can tell thee, saucy wight, —
 And that the runaway shall prove, — Revenge to a Douglas is as sweet
 As maiden charms or maiden's love."
- "Since thou say'st that, my Lord Douglas, Good faith some clinking there will be; Beshrew my heart but and my sword, If I winna turn and ride with thee!"
- They whipped out ower the Shepherd Cleuch,
 And doun the links o' the Corsecleuch Burn;
 And aye the Douglas swore by his sword
 To win his love, or ne'er return.
- "First fight your rival, Lord Douglas, And then brag after, if you may; For the Earl of Ross is as brave a lord As ever gave good weapon sway.
- "But I for ae poor siller merk,
 Or thirteen pennies and a bawbee,
 Will tak in hand to fight you baith,
 Or beat the winner, whiche er it be"

The Douglas turned him on his steed,
And I wat a loud laughter leuch he
Of a' the fools I have ever met,
Man, I ha'e never met ane like thee.

"Art thou akin to lord or kinght,
Or courtly squire or warner leal '"
"I am a tinkler," quo' the wight,
"But I like croun-cracking unco weel."

When they came to St. Mary's kirk,
The chaplam shook for very fear;
And aye he kissed the cross, and said,
"What deevil has sent that Douglas here!

- "He neither values book nor ban, But curses all without demur; And cares nae mair for a holy man Than I do for a worthless cur."
- "Come here, thou bland and brittle priest,
 And tell to me without delay
 Where you have hid the lord of Ross
 And the lady that came at the break of day."
- "No knight or lady, good Lord Douglas, Have I beheld since break of morn; And I never saw the lord of Ross Since the woful day that I was born."

Lord Douglas turned him round about, And looked the Tinkler in the face; Where he beheld a lurking smile, And a deevil of a dour grimace.

- "How's this, how's this, thou Tinkler loun?

 Hast thou presumed to lie on me?"

 "Faith that I have!" the Tinkler said,

 "And a right good turn I have done to thee;
- "For the lord of Ross and thy own true-love, The beauteous Harriet of Thirlestane, Rade west away, ere the break of day; And you'll never see the dear maid again;
- "So I thought it best to bring you here, On a wrang scent, of my own accord; For had you met the Johnstone clan, They wad ha'e made mince-meat of a lord."
- At this the Douglas was so wroth

 He wist not what to say or do;

 But he strak the Tinkler o'er the croun,

 Till the blood came dreeping ower his brow.
- "Beshrew my heart," quo' the Tinkler lad,
 "Thou bear'st thee most ungallantlye!
 If these are the manners of a lord,
 They are manners that winna gang down wi'me."
- "Hold up thy hand," the Douglas cried,
 "And keep thy distance, Tinkler loun!"
 "That will I not," the Tinkler said,
 "Though I and my mare should both go
- "Though I and my mare should both go
- "I have aimor on," cried the Lord Douglas,
 "Curass and helm, as you may see."
 "The deil me care!" quo' the Tinkler lad;
 "I shall have a skelp at them and thee."
- "You are not horsed," quo' the Lord Douglas,
 "And no remorse this weapon brooks."
- "Mine's a right good yaud," quo' the Tinklerlad,
 "And a great deal better nor she looks.
- "So stand to thy weapons, thou haughty lord, What I have taken I needs must give; Thou shalt never strike a tinkler again, For the langest day thou hast to live."

Then to it they fell, both sharp and snell,
Till the fire from both their weapons flew;
But the very first shock that they met with,
The Douglas his rashness 'gan to rue.

For though he had on a sark of mail, And a cuirass on his breast wore he, With a good steel bounet on his head, Yet the blood ran trickling to his knee.

The Douglas sat upright and firm,
Aye as together their horses ran;
But the Tinkler laid on like a very deil,— Siccan strokes were never laid on by man.

- "Hold up thy hand, thou Tinkler loun," Cried the poor priest, with whiming din;
 "If thou hurt the brave Lord James Douglas,
 A curse be on thee and all thy kin!"
- "I care no more for Lord James Douglas
 Than Lord James Douglas cares for me;
 But I want to let his proud heart know
 That a tinkler's a man as well as he"
- So they fought on, and they fought on, Till good Lord Douglas' breath was gone; And the Tinkler bore him to the ground, With rush, with rattle, and with groan.
- "O hon! O hon!" cried the proud Douglas,
 "That I this day should have lived to see!
 For sure my honor I have lost,
 And a leader again I can never be!
- "But tell me of thy kith and kin, And where was bred thy weapon hand? For thou art the wale of tinkler louns That ever was born in fair Scotland"
- "My name's Jock Johnstone," quo' the wight;
 "I winna keep in my name face thee,
 And here, tak thou thy sword again,
 And better friends we two shall be."
- But the Douglas swore a solemn oath,
 That was a debt he could never owe;
 He would rather die at the back of the dike
 Than owe his sword to a man so low.
- "But if thou wilt ride under my banner, And bear my livery and my name, My right-hand warrier thou shalt be And I'll knight thee on the field of fame."
- "Woe worth thy wit, good Lord Douglas, To think I'd change my trade for thme; Far better and wiser would you be, To live a journeyman of mine,
- "To mend a kettle or a casque,
 Ot clout a goodwife's yettlin' pan, -Upon my life, good Lord Douglas,
 You'd make a noble tinkler-man'
- "I would give you a drammock twice a day, And sunkets on a Sunday morn, And you should be a rare adept In steel and copper, brass and horn!
- "I'll fight you every day you rise, Till you can act the hero's part; Therefore, I pray you, think of this, And lay it seriously to heart."

- The Douglas writhed beneath the lash,
 Answering with an inward curse, -Like salmon wriggling on a spear,
 That makes his deadly wound the worse.
- But up there came two squires renowned; In search of Lord Douglas they came; And when they saw their master down, Their spirits mounted in a flame.
- And they flew upon the Tinkler wight, Like perfect tigers on their prey: But the Tinkler heaved his trusty sword, And made him ready for the fray.
- "Come one to one, ye coward knaves,—
 Come hand to hand, and steed to steed;
 I would that ye were better men,
 For this is glorious work indeed!"
- Before you could have counted twelve, The Tinkler's wondrous chivalitye Had both the squires upon the sward, And then horses galloping o'er the lea.
- The Tinkler tied them neck and heel,
 And mony a biting jest gave he.
 "O fie, for shame!" said the Tinkler lad,
 "Siecan fighters I did never see!"
- He slit one of their bidde reins, —
 O, what disgrace the conquered feels! —
 And he skelpit the squires with that good tawse,
 Till the blood ian off at bath their heels.
- The Douglas he was forced to laugh
 Till down his cheek the salt tean ian:
 "I think the deevil be come here
 In the likeness of a tinklen man!"
- Then he has to Lord Douglas gone,
 And he naised him kindly by the hand,
 And he set him on his gallant steed,
 And bore him away to Henderland
- "Be not cast down, my Lord Douglas,
 Nor writhe beneath a broken bane;
 For the leech's art will mend the part,
 And your honor lost will spring again.
- "T is true, Jock Johnstone is my name; I'm a right good tinkler, as you see; For I can crack a casque betimes, Or clout one, as my need may be.
- "Jock Johnstone is my name, 't is true, -But noble hearts are allied to me; For I am the lord of Annandale, And a knight and earl as well as thee."

- Then Douglas strained the hero's hand, And took from it his sword again "Since thou art the lord of Annandale, Thou hast eased my heart of meikle pain.
- "I might have known thy noble form In that disguise thou'rt p'eased to wear; All Scotland knows thy matchless arm, And England by experience dear.
- "We have been foes as well as friends, And jealous of each other's sway; But little can I comprehend Thy motive for these pranks to-day."
- "Sooth, my good lord, the truth to tell, "T was I that stole your love away, And gave her to the lord of Ross An hour before the break of day;
- "For the lord of Ross is my brother, By all the laws of chivalitye; And I brought with me a thousand men To guard him to my ain countrye.
- "But I thought meet to stay behind, And try your lordship to waylay, Resolved to breed some noble sport, By leading you so far astray.
- "Judging it better some lives to spare, —
 Which fancy takes me now and then, —
 And settle our quarrel hand to hand,
 Than each with our ten thousand men.
- "God send you soon, my Lord Douglas, To Border foray sound and haill! But never strike a tinkler again, If he be a Johnstone of Annandale."

IAMES HOGG.

MORT D'ARTHUR.

So all da, long the noise of battle rolled Among the mountains by the winter sea; Until King Arthur's Table, man by man, Had fallen in Lyoness about their lord, King Arthur: then, because his wound was deep, The bold Sir Bedivere uplifted him, Sir Bedivere, the last of all his Knight, And bore him to a chapel nigh the field, A broken chancel with a broken cross, That stood on a dark strait of barren land. On one side lay the Ocean, and on one Lay a great water, and the moon was full.

Then spake King Arthur to Sir Bedivere: "The sequel of to-day unsolders all

The goodliest fellowship of tamous knights Whereof this world holds record. Such a sleep They sleep — the men I loved. I think that we Shall nevermore, at any future time, Delight om souls with talk of knightly deeds, Walking about the gardens and the halls Of Camelot, as in the days that were. I perish by this people which I made, -Though Merlin sware that I should come again To rule once more, but let what will be, be. I am so deeply smitten through the helm That without help I cannot last till morn. Thou therefore take my brand Excalibur, Which was my pride: for thou rememberest how how

In those old days, one summer noon, an arm
Rose up from out the bosom of the lake,
Clothed in white samite, mystic, wonderful,
Holding the sword — and how I rowed across
And took it, and have worn it, like a king;
And, wheresoever I am sung or told
In after-time, this also shall be known:
But now delay not: take Excalibur,
And fling him fai into the middle mere:
Watch what thou seest, and lightly bring ma
word.

To him replied the bold Sir Bedivere: "It is not meet, Sir King, to leave thee thus, Aidless, alone, and smitten through the helm. A little thing may harm a wounded man, Yet I thy hest will all perform at full, Watch what I see, and lightly bring thee word."

So saying, from the ruined shrine he stept
And in the moon athwart the place of tombs,
Where lay the mighty bones of ancient men,
Old knights, and over them the sea-wind sang Shrill, chill, with flakes of foam. He, stepping down

By zigzag paths, and juts of pointed rock, Came on the shining levels of the lake.

There drew he forth the brand Excalibur, And o'er him, drawing it, the winter moon, Brightening the skirts of a long cloud, ran forth Aud sparkled keen with frost against the hilt: For all the haft twinkled with diamond studs, Myriads of topaz-lights, and jacinth-work Of subtlest jewelry. He gazed so long That both his eyes were dazzled as he stood, This way and that dividing the swift mind, In act to throw: but at the last it seemed Better to leave Excalibur concealed There in the many-knotted water-flags, That whistled stiff and dry about the imarge. So strode he back slow to the wounded King.

Then spake King Arthur to Sir Bedivere:
"Hast thou performed my mission which I gave?

What is it thou hast seen? or what hast heard?"

And answer made the bold Sir Bedivere "I heard the ripple washing in the reeds, And the wild water lapping on the crag."

To whom replied King Arthur, faint and pale: "Thou hast betrayed thy nature and thy name, Not rendering true answer, as beseemed Thy fealty, nor like a noble kinght.

For surer sign had followed, either hand, Or voice, or else a motion of the mere.

This is a shameful thing for men to he.

Yet now, I charge thee, quickly go again, As thou art lief and dear, and do the thing I bade thee, watch, and lightly bring me word."

Then went Sir Bedivere the second time Across the ridge, and paced beside the mere, Counting the dewy pebbles, fixed in thought; But when he saw the wonder of the hilt, How curiously and strangely chased, he smote His palms together, and he cried aloud .—

" And if indeed I cast the brand away, Surely a precious thing, one worthy note, Should thus be lost forever from the earth, Which might have pleased the eyes of many men. What good should follow this, if this were done? What harm, undone? deep harm to disobey, Seeing obedience is the bond of rule Were it well to obey then, if a king demand An act unprofitable, against himself ! The King is sick, and knows not what he does. What record, or what relic of my lord Should be to after-time, but empty breath And rumors of a doubt? but were this kept, Stored in some treasure-house of mighty kings, Some one might show it at a joust of arms, Saying, 'King Arthur's sword, Excalibur, Wrought by the lonely maiden of the Lake. Nine years she wrought it, sitting in the deeps Upon the hidden bases of the hills ' So might some old man speak in the after-time To all the people, winning reverence. But now much honor and much fame were lost."

So spake he, clouded with his own conceit, And hid Excalibur the second time, And so strode back slow to the wounded King.

Then spoke King Arthur, breathing heavily: "What is it thou hast seen ? or what hast heard?"

And answer made the bold Sir Bedivere. "I heard the water lapping on the crag, And the long ripple washing in the reeds."

To whom replied King Arthur, much in wrath:

"Ah, miserable and unkind, untrue,
Unknightly, traitor-hearted! Woe is me!
Authority forgets a dying king,
Laid widowed of the power in his eye
That bowed the will I see thee what thou art,
For thou, the latest-left of all my knights
In whom should meet the offices of all,
Thou wouldst betray me for the precious hilt;
Either from lust of gold, or like a girl
Valuing the giddy pleasure of the eyes.
Yet, for a man may fail in duty twice,
And the third time may prosper, get thee hence:
But, if thou spare to fling Excalibur,
I will arise and slay thee with my hands."

Then quickly rose Sir Bedivere, and ran,
And, leaping down the ridges lightly, plunged
Among the bulrush-beds, and clutched the sword,
And strongly wheeled and threw it. The great brand

Made lightnings in the splendor of the moon, And flashing round and round, and whitled in an arch.

Shot like a streamer of the northern morn,
Seen where the moving isles of winter shock
By night, with noises of the northern sea.
So flashed and fell the brand Excalibur:
But ere he dipt the surface, rose an arm
Clothed in white samite, mystic, wonderful,
And caught him by the hilt, and brandished him
Three times, and drew him under in the mere.
And lightly went the other to the King.

Then spoke King Arthur, drawing thicker breath.

"Now see I by thine eyes that this is done. Speak out: what is it thou hast heard, or seen?"

And answer made the bold Sir Bedivere:

"Sir King, I closed mine eyelids, lest the gems Should blind my purpose, for I never saw,
Nor shall see, here or elsewhere, till I die,
Not though I live three lives of mortal men,
So great a miracle as youder hilt.
Then with both hands I flung him, wheeling
him;

But when I looked again, behold an arm, Clothed in white samite, mystic, wonderful, That caught him by the hilt, and brandished him Three times, and drew him under in the mere."

And answer made King Arthur, breathing hard:

"My end draws nigh; 't is time that I were gone. Make broad thy shoulders to receive my weight, And bear me to the margin; yet I fear My wound hath taken cold, and I shall die." *So saying, from the pavement he half rose, Slowly, with pain, reclining on his arm, And looking wistfully with wide blue eyes As in a picture. Him Sir Bedivere Remorsefully regarded through his tears, And would have spoken, but he found not words; Then took with care, and kneeling on one knee, O'er both his shoulders drew the languid hands, And rising bore him through the place of tombs.

But, as he walked, King Arthur panted hard, Like one that feels a nightmare on his bed When all the house is mute. So sighed the King, Muttering and murmuring at his ear "Quick, quick!

I fear it is too late, and I shall die "
But the other swiftly strode from rudge to ridge, Clothed with his breath, and looking, as he walked,

Larger than human on the frozen hills.

He heard the deep behind him, and a cry
Before. His own thought drove him like a goad.

Dry clashed his harness in the icy caves

And barren chasins, and all to left and right

The bare black chill clanged round him, as he

His feet on juts of shippery crag that rang Sharp-smitten with the duit of aimed heels— And on a sudden, lo' the level lake, And the long glories of the winter moon.

Then saw they how there hove a dusky barge, Dark as a funeral scarf from stem to stern, Beneath them; and descending they were ware That all the decks were dense with stately forms, Black-stoled, black-hooded, like a dream, — by these

Three Queens with crowns of gold, — and from them rose

A cry that shivered to the tingling stars, And, as it were one voice, an agony Of lamentation, like a wind that shrills All night in a waste land, where no one comes, Or hath come, since the making of the world.

Then murmured Arthur, "Place me in the barge;"

So to the barge they came. There those three Put forth their hands, and took the King, and went.

But she that rose the tallest of them all,
And fairest, laid his head upon her lap,
And loosed the shattered casque, and chafed his hands.

And called him by his name, complaining loud, | To the island-valley of Avilion;

And dropping bitter tears against his brow Striped with dark blood: for all his face was white

And colorless, and like the withered moon
Smote by the fresh beam of the springing east;
And all his greaves and cuisses dashed with drops
Of onset, and the light and lustrous curls—
That made his forchead like a rising sun High from the dais-throne—were parched with dust:

Or, clotted into points and hanging loose, Mixed with the knightly growth that fringed his hos.

So like a shattered column lay the King; Not like that Arthur, who, with lance in rest, From spur to plume a star of tournament, Shot through the lists at Camelot, and charged Before the eyes of ladies and of kings.

Then loudly cried the bold Sir Bedivere:

"Ah! my Loid Arthur, whither shall I go?
Where shall I hide my forehead and my eyes?
For now I see the true old times are dead,
When every morning brought a noble chance,
And every chance brought out a noble knight.
Such times have been not since the light that led
The holy Elders with the gift of myrth
But now the whole Round Table is dissolved
Which was an image of the mighty world,
And I, the last, go forth companionless,
And the days darken round me, and the years,
Among new men, strange faces, other minds"

And slowly answered Arthur from the barge "The old order changeth, yielding place to new, And God fulfils himself in many ways, Lest one good custom should corrupt the world. Comfort thyself: what comfort is in me! I have hived my life, and that which I have done May He within himself make pure! but thou, If thou shouldst never see my face again, Pray for my soul. More things are wrought by prayer

Than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice

Rise like a fountain for me night and day.

For what are men better than sheep or goats

That nourish a blind life within the brain,

If, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer

Both for themselves and those who call them friend '

For so the whole round earth is every way Bound by gold chains about the feet of God. But now larewell. I am going a long way With these thou seest,—if indeed I go (For all my mind is clouded with a doubt)—To the island-valley of Avilion;

Where falls not hail, or rain, or any snow, Nor ever wind blows loudly; but it lies Deep-meadowed, happy, fair with orchard-lawns And bowery hollows crowned with summer sea, Where I will heal me of my grievous wound."

So said he, and the barge with oar and sail Moved from the brink, like some full-breasted swan,

That, fluting a wild carol ere her death, Ruffles her pure cold plume, and takes the flood With swarthy webs. Long stood Sir Bedivere Revolving many memories, till the hull Looked one black dot against the verge of dawn, And on the mere the wailing died away.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

ALFRED THE HARPER.

DARK fell the night, the watch was set, The host was idly spread, The Danes around their watchfires met, Caroused, and fiercely fed

The chiefs beneath a tent of leaves,
And Guthrum, king of all,
Devoured the flesh of England's beeves,
And laughed at England's fall.
Each warrior proud, each Danish carl,
In mail and wolf-skin clad,
Their bracelets white with plundered pearl,
Their eyes with triumph mad.

From Humber-land to Severn-land,
And on to Tamar stream,
Where Thames makes green the towery strand,
Where Medway's waters gleam, —
With hands of steel and mouths of flame
They raged the kingdom through;
And where the Noiseman sickle came,
No crop but hunger grew.

They loaded many an English horse
With wealth of cities fair;
They dragged from many a father's corse
The daughter by her hair.
And English slaves, and gems and gold,
Were gathered round the feast;
Till midnight in their woodland hold,
O, never that riot ceased.

In stalked a warrior tall and rude Before the strong sea-kings; "Ye Lords and Earls of Odin's brood, Without a harper sings. He seems a simple man and poor, But well he sounds the lay; And well, ye Norseman chiefs, be suic, Will ye the song repay"

In trod the bard with keen cold look,
And glanced along the board,
That with the shout and war-cry shook
Of many a Danish loid.
But thirty brows, inflamed and stern,
Soon bent on him their gaze,
While calm he gazed, as if to learn
Who chief deserved his praise.

Loud Guthrum spake, — "Nay, gaze not thus,
Thou Harper weak and poor!
By Thor! who bandy looks with us
Must worse than looks endure.
Sing high the praise of Denmark's host,
High praise each dauntless Earl;
The brave who stun this English coast
With war's unceasing whirl."

The Harper slowly bent his head,
And touched aloud the string,
Then raised his face, and boldly said,
"Hear thou my lay, O King!
High praise from every mouth of man
To all who boldly strive,
Who fall where first the fight began,
And ne'er go back alive.

"Fill high your cups, and swell the shout, At famous Regnar's name! Who sank his host in bloody rout, When he to Humber came. His men were chased, his sons were slain, And he was left alone They bound him in an iron chain Upon a dangeon stone

"With iron links they bound him fast, With snakes they filled the hole, That made his flesh their long repast, And bit into his soul

"Great chiefs, why sink in gloom your eyes? Why champ your teeth in pain? Still lives the song though Regnar dies! Fill high your cups again! Ye too, perchance, O Norseman lords! Who fought and swayed so long, Shall soon but live in minstrel words, And owe your names to song.

"This land has graves by thousands more Than that where Regnar lies. When conquests fade, and rule is o'er, The sod must close your eyes, How soon, who knows? Not chief, nor bard; And yet to me 't is given, To see your foreheads deeply scarred, And guess the doom of Heaven.

"I may not read or when or how,
But, Earls and Kings, be sure
I see a blade o'er every brow,
Where pride now sits secure.
Fill high the cups, raise loud the strain!
When chief and monarch fall,
Their names in song shall breathe again,
And thrill the feastful hall."

Grim sat the chiefs; one heaved a groan, And one grew pale with dread, His iron mace was grasped by one, By one his wine was shed.

And Guthrum cried, "Nay, bard, no more We hear thy boding lay;

Make drunk the song with spoil and gore!

Light up the joyous fray!"

"Quick throbs my brain,"— so burst the song, "To hear the strife once more.

The mace, the axe, they rest too long;
Earth cries, My thirst is sore.

More blithely twang the strings of bows
Than strings of harps in glee;
Red wounds are lovelier than the rose
Or rosy lips to me.

"O, fairer than a field of flowers,
When flowers in England grew,
Would be the battle's marshalled powers,
The plain of carnage new.
With all its deaths before my soul
The vision rises fair;
Raise loud the song, and drain the bowl '
I would that I were there!"

Loud rang the harp, the minstrel's eye Rolled fiercely round the throng; It seemed two crashing hosts were nigh, Whose shock aroused the song.

A golden cup King Guthrum gave To him who strongly played;

And said, "I won it from the slave Who once o'er England swayed."

King Guthrum cried, "'T was Alfred's own; Thy song befits the brave:
The King who cannot guard his throne
Nor wine nor song shall have."
The minstrel took the goblet bright,
Aud said, "I drink the wine
To him who owns by justest right
The cup thou bid'st be mine.

"To him, your Lord, O shout ye all! His meed be deathless praise! The King who dares not nobly fall, Dies basely all his days."

"The praise thou speakest," Guthrum said,
"With sweetness fills mine ear;
For Alfred swift before me fled,
And left me monarch here.
The royal coward never dared
Beneath mine eye to stand.
O, would that now this feast he shared,
And saw me rule his land!"

Then stern the minstrel rose, and spake, And gazed upon the King, —
"Not now the golden cup I take,
Nor more to thee I sing.
Another day, a happner hour,
Shall bring me here again.
The cup shall stay in Guthrum's power,
Thll I demand it then."

The Harper turned and left the shed,
Nor bent to Guthrum's crown;
And one who marked his visage said
It wore a ghastly frown.
The Danes ne'er saw that Harper more,
For soon as morning rose,
Upon their camp King Alfred bore,
And slew ten thousand foes.

JOHN STERLING.

THE EARL O' QUARTERDECK.

A NEW OLD BALLAD

THE wind it blew, and the ship it flew;
And it was "Hey for hame!
And ho for hame!" But the skipper cried,
"Haud her oot o'er the saut sea faem."

Then up and spoke the King himsel':
"Haud on for Dumferline!"
Quo the skipper, "Ye're king upo' the land —
I'm king upo' the brine."

And he took the helm intil his hand, And he steered the ship sae free; Wi' the wind astarn, he crowded sail, And stood right out to sea.

Quo the king, "There's treason in this, I vow;
This is something underhand!
'Bout ship!" Quo the skipper, "Yer grace forgets Ye are king but o' the land!"

And still he held to the open sea;
And the east-wind sank behind;
And the west had a bitter word to say,
Wi' a white-sea roarin' wind.

And he turned her head into the north.

Said the king. "Gar fling him o'er."

Quo the fearless skipper. "It's a' ye're worth!

Ye'll ne'er see Scotland more."

The king crept down the cabin-stair, To drink the gude French wine. And up she came, his daughter fair, And luikit ower the brine.

She turned her face to the drivin' hail,

To the hail but and the weet;

Her snood it brak, and, as lang's hersel',

Her hair drave out i' the sleet.

She turned her face that the drivin' win' —
"What's that ahead!" quo she
The skipper he threw himsel' frac the win',
And he drove the helm a-lee.

"Put to yer hand, my lady fair!
Put to yer hand," quo he;
"Un she dinna face the win' the man,
It's the wain for you and me."

For the skipper kenned that strength is strength, Whether woman's or man's at last. To the tiller the lady she laid her han', And the ship laid her cheek to the blast.

For that slender body was full o' soul,
And the will is mair than shape;
As the skipper saw when they cleared the berg,
And he heard her quarter scrape.

Quo the skipper: "Ye are a lady fair,
And a princess grand to see;
But ye sie a woman, and a man wad sail
To hell in yer company."

She liftit a pale and queenly face;
Her een flashed, and syne they swim.
"And what for no to heaven?" she says,
And she turned awa' frae him.

But she took na her han' fine the good ship's helm, Until the day did daw; And the skipper he spak, but what he said It was said atween them twa.

And then the good ship she lay to,
With the land far on the lee;
And up came the king upo' the deck,
Wi' wan face and bluidshot ee.

The skipper he louted to the king:
"Gae wa', gae wa'," said the king.
Said the king, like a prince, "I was a' wrang,
Put on this ruby ring."

And the wind blew lowne, and the stars cam' oot, And the ship turned to the shole, And, afore the sun was up again, They saw Scotland ance more.

That day the ship hung at the pier-head, And the king he stept on the land "Skipper, kneel down," the king he said, "Hoo daur ye afore me stand?"

The skipper he louted on his knee,
The king his blade he drew.
Said the king, "How daired ye contre me?
I'm abourd my ain ship noo.

"I canna mak ye a king," said he,
"For the Lord alone can do that,
And besides ye took it intil yer ain han'
And crooned yersel' sae pat!

"But wi' what ye will I redeem my ring;
For ance I am at your beek.
And first, as ye loutit Skipper o' Doon,
Rise up Yerl o' Quarterdeck."

The skipper he rose and looked at the king In his een for all his croon; Said the skipper, "Here is yer grace's ring, And yer daughter is my boon"

The reid blude sprang into the king's face,—
A wrathful man to see:
"The rascal loon abuses our grace;
Gae hang him upon you tree."

But the skipper he sprang aboard his ship, And he drew his biting blade; And he struck the chain that held her fast, But the iron was over weel made.

And the king he blew a whistle loud; And tramp, tramp, down the pier, Cam' twenty riders on twenty steeds, Clankin' wi' spur and spear.

"He saved your life!" cried the lady fair; "His life ye daurna spill!"

"Will ye come atween me and my hate?"
Quo the lady, "And that I will!"

And on cam' the knights wi' spur and spear,
For they heard the iron ring.
"Gin ye care na for yer father's grace, Mind ye that I am the king."

"I kneel to my father for his grace,
Right lowly on my knee;
But I stand and look the king in the face,
For the skipper is king o' me."

She turned and she sprang upo' the deck, And the cable splashed in the sea. The good ship spread her wings sae white, And away with the skipper goes she.

Now was not this a king's daughter, And a brave lady beside? And a woman with whom a man might sail Into the heaven wi' pride?

GLORGE MACDONALD.

MARMION AND DOUGLAS.

FROM "MARMION," CANTO VI.

Nor far advanced was morning day, When Marmion did his troop array To Surrey's camp to ride, He had safe-conduct for his band, Beneath the royal scal and hand,

And Douglas gave a guide

The ancient Earl, with stately grace, Would Clara on her palfrey place, And whispered in an undertone, "Let the hawk stoop, his prey is flown." The train from out the castle drew, But Marmion stopped to bid adieu:—
"Though something I might plain," he said, "Of cold respect to stranger guest,

"Of cold respect to stranger guest, Sent luther by your king's behest, While in Tantallon's towers I stayed, Part we in friendship from your land, And, noble Earl, receive my hand."—

But Douglas round lum drew his cloak, Folded his arms, and thus he spoke:—
"My manors, halls, and bowers shall still Be open, at my sovereign's will,
To each one whom he lists, howe'er Unmeet to be the owner's peer.
My castles are my king's alone,
From turret to foundation-stone,—
The hand of Douglas is his own;
And never shall in friendly grasp
The hand of such as Marmion clasp."—

Burned Marmion's swarthy cheek like fire, And shook his very frame for ire,

And — "This to me!" he said, —
"An 't were not for thy hoary beard,
Such hand as Marmion's had not spared

To cleave the Douglas' head! And, first, I tell thee, haughty Peer, He who does England's message here, Although the meanest in her state, May well, proud Angus, be thy mate:
And, Douglas, more I tell thee here,
Even in thy pitch of pride,
Here in thy hold, thy vassals near,
(Nay, never look upon your lord,
And lay your hands upon your sword,)

I tell thee, thou 'rt defied '
And if thou sad'st I am not peer
To any loid in Scotland here,
Lowland or Highland, fat or near,

Lord Angus, thou hast lied '"—
On the Earl's check the flush of rage
O'ercame the ashen hue of age:
Fierce he bloke forth, — "And dar'st thou then
To beard the lion in his den,

The Douglas in his hall?
And hop'st thou hence unscathed to go?
No, by St. Bride of Bothwell, no!
Up drawbridge, grooms, — what, Warder, ho!

Let the potcullis fall." —
Lord Marmion turned, — well was his need! —
And dashed the rowels in his steed;
Like arrow through the archway sprung;
The ponderous grate behind him rung:
To pass there was such scanty room,
The bars, descending, razed his plume.

The steed along the drawbridge flies,
Just as it trembled on the rise;
Not lighter does the swallow skim
Along the smooth lake's level brim;
And when Lord Marmion reached his band,
He halts, and turns with clenched hand,
And shout of loud defiance pours,
And shook his gauntlet at the towers.

"Horse! horse!" the Douglas cried, "and chase!"

But soon he reined his fury's pace.
"A royal messenger he came,
Though most unworthy of the name

St. Mary, mend my fiery mood 'Old age ne'er cools the Douglas blood, I thought to slay him where he stood. 'T is pity of him too,' he cried; "Bold can he speak, and fairly ride: I warrant him a warrior tried." With this his mandate he recalls, And slowly seeks his castle halls.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

JAMES FITZ-JAMES AND ELLEN.

FROM "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," CANTO VI.

A FOOTSTEP struck her ear, And Snowdoun's graceful Knight was near. She turned the hastier, lest again The prisoner should renew his strain.

"O welcome, brave Fitz-James!" she said : "How may an almost orphan maid l'ay the deep debt" -- "O, say not so! To me no gratitude you owe. Not mine, alas! the boon to give. And bid thy noble father live; I can but be thy guide, sweet maid, With Scotland's King thy suit to aid. No tyrant he, though ire and pride May lead his better mood aside. Come, Ellen, come; 't is more than time, He holds his court at morning prime." With beating heart and bosom wrung, As to a brother's arm she clung. Gently he dried the falling tear, And gently whispered hope and cheer; Her faltering steps half led, half stayed, Through gallery fair and high arcade, Till, at his touch, its wings of pride A portal arch unfolded wide.

Within 't was brilliant all and light, A thronging scene of figures bright; It glowed on Ellen's dazzled sight, As when the setting sun has given Ten thousand hues to summer even, And from their tissue fancy frames Aerial knights and fairy dames. Still by Fitz-James her footing stayed; A few faint steps she forward made, Then slow her drooping head she raised, And fearful round the presence gazed: For him she sought who owned this state, The dreaded prince whose will was fate! She gazed on many a princely port Might well have ruled a royal court; On many a splendid garb she gazed, -Then turned bewildered and amazed, For all stood bare; and in the room Fitz-James alone wore cap and plume. To him each lady's look was lent, On him each courtier's eve was bent. Midst furs and silks and jewels sheen He stood, in simple Lincoln green, The centre of the glittering ring, -And Snowdoun's Knight is Scotland's King!

As wreath of snow, on mountain breast, Slides from the rock that gave it rest, Poor Ellen glided from her stay, And at the Monarch's feet she lay; No word her choking voice commands: She showed the ring, she clasped her hands. O, not a moment could he brook, The generous prince, that suppliant look! Gently he raised her, and the while Checked with a glance the circle's smile; Graceful, but grave, her brow he kissed,

And bade her terrors be dismissed : -"Yes, fair; the wandering poor Fitz-James The fealty of Scotland claims. To him thy woes, thy wishes bring; He will redeem his signet-ring. Ask naught for Douglas; yester even His prince and he have much forgiven : Wrong hath he had from slanderous tongue. I, from his rebel kinsmen, wrong. We would not to the vulgar crowd Yield what they craved with clamor loud : Calmly we heard and judged his cause. Our council aided and our laws. I stanched thy father's death-feud stern, With stout De Vaux and gray Glencairn ; And Bothwell's Lord henceforth we own The friend and bulwark of our Throne. But, lovely infidel, how now? What clouds thy misbelieving brow? Lord James of Douglas, lend thine aid; Thou must confirm this doubting maid."

Then forth the noble Douglas sprung, And on his neck his daughter hung. The Monarch drank, that happy hour, The sweetest, holiest draught of Power. -When it can say, the godlike voice, Arise, sad Virtue, and rejoice Yet would not James the general eye On nature's raptures long should pry He stepped between - "Nay, Douglas, nay, Steal not my proselyte away! The riddle 't is my right to read, That brought this happy chance to speed. Yes, Ellen, when disguised I stray In life's more low but happier way, 'T is under name which veils my power, Nor falsely veils, - for Stirling's tower Of yore the name of Snowdoun claims, And Normans call me James Fitz-James. Thus watch I o'er insulted laws. Thus learn to right the injured cause." Then, in a tone apart and low, "Ah, little trait'ress! none must know What idle dream, what lighter thought, What vanity full dearly bought, Joined to thine eye's dark witchcraft, drew My spell-bound steps to Benvenue, In dangerous hour, and all but gave Thy Monarch's life to mountain glaive!" Aloud he spoke, - "Thou still dost hold That little talisman of gold, Pledge of my faith, Fitz-James's ring; What seeks fair Ellen of the King!'

Full well the conscious maiden guessed, He probed the weakness of her breast;

But with that consciousness there came A lightening of her fears for Græme, And more she deemed the monarch's ire Kindled 'gainst him, who, for her sire, Rebellious broadsword boldly drew; And, to her generous feeling true, She craved the grace of Roderick Dhu. "Forbear thy suit; the King of kings Alone can stay life's parting wings. I know his heart, I know his hand, Have shared his cheer, and proved his brand. My fairest earldom would I give To bid Clan-Alpine's Chieftain live! -Hast thou no other boon to crave? No other captive friend to save ?" Blushing, she turned her from the King, And to the Douglas gave the ring, As if she wished her sire to speak The suit that stained her glowing cheek. " Nay, then, my pledge has lost its force, And stubborn justice holds her course. Malcolm, come forth !" - And, at the word, Down knelt the Græme to Scotland's Lord. "For thee, rash youth, no suppliant sues, From thee may Vengeance claim her dues. Who, nurtured underneath our smile, Hast paid our care by treacherous wile, And sought, amid thy faithful clan, A refuge for an outlawed man, Dishonoring thus thy loyal name, -Fetters and warder for the Græme!" His chain of gold the King unstrung, The links o'er Malcolm's neck he flung, Then gently drew the glittering band, And laid the clasp on Ellen's hand.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

NORVAL.

FROM THE TRAGEDY OF "DOUGLAS," ACT II. SC. 1.

LADY RANDOLPH. How fares my lord? LORD RANDOLPH. That it fares well, thanks to this gallant youth,

Whose valor saved me from a wretched death. As down the winding dale I walked alone, At the cross way four armed men attacked me, Rovers, I judge, from the licentious camp, Who would have quickly laid Lord Randolph low, Had not this brave and generous stranger come, Like my good angel, in the hour of fate, And, mocking danger, made my foes his own. They turned upon him: but his active arm Struck to the ground, from whence they rose no

The fiercest two; the others fled amain, And left him master of the bloody field. Speak. Lady Randolph; upon beauty's tongue Dwell accents pleasing to the brave and bold, Speak, noble dame, and thank him for thy lord. LADY RAN. My lord, I cannot speak what now I feel.

My heart o'erflows with gratitude to Heaven,
And to this noble youth, who, all unknown
To you and yours, deliberated not,
Nor paused at peril, but, humanely brave,
Fought on your side against such fearful odds.
Have you yet learnt of him whom we should thank,

Whom call the savior of Lord Randolph's life?

LORD RAN. I asked that question, and he answered not;

But I must know who my deliverer is. (To the Stranger)

NORVAL. A low-born man, of parentage obscure.

Who naught can boast but his desire to be A soldier, and to gain a name in arms.

LORD RAN. Whoe'er thou art, thy spirit is ennobled

By the great King of kings: thou art ordained And stamped a hero by the sovereign hand Of nature! Blush not, flower of modesty As well as valor, to declare thy birth.

Nonv. My name is Norval: on the Grampian hills

My father feeds his flocks, — a frugal swain,
Whose constant cares were to increase his store,
And keep his only son, myself, at home.
For I had heard of battles, and I longed
To follow to the field some warlike lord:
And Heaven soon granted what my sire denied.
This moon which rose last night, round as my shield,

Had not yet filled her horns, when, by her light,
A band of fierce barbarians from the hills
Rushed like a torrent down upon the vale, Sweeping our flocks and herds. The shepherds fled

For safety and for succor. I alone,
With bended bow, and quiver full of arrows,
Hovered about the enemy, and marked
The road he took; then hasted to my friends,
Whom, with a troop of fifty chosen men,
I met advancing. The pursuit I led,
Till we o'ertook the spoil-encumbered foe.
We fought and conquered. Ere a sword was drawn

An arrow from my bow had pierced their chief, Who wore that day the arms which now I wear. Returning home in triumph, I disdained The shepherd's slothful life; and having heard That our good king had summoned his bold peers To lead their warriors to the Carron side, I left my father's house, and took with me

A chosen servant to conduct my steps, — You trembling coward, who forsook his master. Journeying with this intent, I passed these towers,

And, Heaven-directed, came this day to do
The happy deed that gilds my humble name.
LORD RAN. He is as wise as brave . was ever tale

With such a gallant modesty rehearsed?

My brave deliverer! thou shalt enter now
A nobler list; and, in a monarch's sight,
Contend with princes for the prize of fame.

I will present thee to our Scottish king,
Whose valiant spirit ever valor loved.

Ha! my Matilda! wherefore starts that tear?

LADY RAN. I cannot say; for various affec-

And strangely mingled, in my bosom swell
Yet each of them may well command a tear.
I joy that thou art safe; and I admire Him and his fortunes, who hath wrought thy safety;

Yea, as my mind predicts, with thine his own. Obscure and friendless, he the army sought; Bent upon peril, in the range of death Resolved to hunt for fame, and with his sword To gain distinction which his birth denied. In this attempt unknown he might have perished, And gained with all his valor but oblivion. Now graced by thee, his virtue serves no more Beneath despair. The soldier now of hope, He stands conspicuous. faine and great renown Are brought within the compass of his sword. On this my mind reflected, whilst you spoke, And blessed the wonder-working hand of Heaven.

LORD RAN. Pious and grateful ever are thy thoughts!

My deeds shall follow where thou point'st the way. Next to myself, and equal to Glenalvon, In honor and command shall Norval be.

Norv. I know not how to thank you: rude I am

In speech and manners; never till this hour Stood I in such a presence; yet, my loid, There's something in my breast which makes me bold

To say that Norval ne'er will shame thy favor.

JOHN HOME.

JORASSE.

FROM "HALY."

JORASSE was in his three-and-twentieth year; Graceful and active as a stag just roused; Gentle withal, and pleasant in his speech, Yet seldom seen to smile. He had grown up Among the hunters of the Higher Alps; Had caught their starts and fits of thoughtfulness,

Their haggard looks, and strange soliloquies.

Arising (so say they that dwell below)

From frequent dealings with the MountainSpirits.

But other ways had taught him better things;
And now he numbered, matching by my side,
The great, the learned, that with him had crossed
The frozen tract, — with him fauntharly
Through the rough day and rougher night conversed

In many a chalet round the Peak of Terror, Round Tacul, Tour, Well-horn, and Rosenlau, And her whose throne is inaccessible, Who sits, withdrawn in virgin majesty, Nor oft unveils. Anon an avalanche Rolled its long thunder; and a sudden crash, Sharp and metallic, to the startled ear Told that far down a continent of ice Had burst in twain. But he had now begun; And with what transport he recalled the hour When, to deserve, to win his blooming bride, Madelaine of Annecy, to his feet he bound The iron crampons, and, ascending, trod The upper realins of frost; then, by a cord Let half-way down, entered a grot star-bright. And gathered from above, below, around, The pointed crystals '- Once, nor long before (Thus did his tongue run on, fast as his feet, And with an eloquence that Nature gives To all her children, — breaking off by starts Into the harsh and rude, oft as the mule Drew his displeasure), - once, not long before, Alone at daybreak on the Mettenberg, He slipped, he fell; and, through a tearful cleft Gliding from ledge to ledge, from deep to deeper, Went to the under-world! Long while he lay Upon his rugged bed, - then waked like one Wishing to sleep again and sleep forever ' For, looking round, he saw, or thought he saw, Innumerable branches of a cave, Winding beneath that solid crust of ice; With here and there a rent that showed the stars! What then, alas! was left him but to die? What else in those immeasurable chambers, Strewn with the bones of miserable men. Lost like himself? Yet must be wander on, Till cold and hunger set his spirit free! And, rising, he began his dreary round; When hark! the noise as of some mighty river Working its way to light! Back he withdrew, But soon returned, and, fearless from despair, Dashed down the dismal channel; and all day, If day could be where utter darkness was, Travelled incessantly; the craggy roof Just overhead, and the impetuous waves,

Nor broad nor deep, yet with a giant's strength,
Lashing him on. At last, as in a pool,
The water slept; a pool sullen, profound,
Where if a billow chanced to heave and swell
it broke not; and the roof, that long
Had threatened, suddenly descending, lay Flat on the surface. Statue-like he stood,
His journey ended, when a ray divine
Shot through his soul. Breathing a prayer to her Whose cars are never shut, the Blessed Virgin,
He plunged, he swam, — and in an instant rose,
The barrier passed, in sunshine! Through a vale,
Such as in Arcady, where many a thatch Gleams through the trees, half seen and half embowered,

Glittering the river ran; and on the bank
The young were dancing ('t was a festival-day)
All in their best attire. There first he saw His Madelaine. In the crowd she stood to hear,
When all drew round, inquiring; and her face,
Seen behind all, and varying, as he spoke,
With hope and fear and generous sympathy,
Subdued him. From that very hour he loved.

SAMUFI ROGERS.

THE GLOVE AND THE LIONS

KING FRANCIS was a hearty king, and loved a royal sport,

And one day, as his lions fought, sat looking on the court.

The nobles filled the benches, with the ladies in their pride,

And 'mongst them sat the Count de Lorge, with one for whom he sighed .

And truly 't was a gallant thing to see that crowning show,

Valor and love, and a king above, and the royal beasts below.

Ramped and roared the hons, with horrid laughing jaws;

They bit, they glared, gave blows like beams, a wind went with their paws;

With wallowing might and stifled roar they rolled on one another,

Till all the pit with sand and mane was in a thunderous smother;

The bloody foun above the bars came whisking

through the air;
Said Francis then, "Faith, gentlemen, we're better here than there."

De Lorge's love o'erheard the King, a beauteous lively dame,

With smiling lips and sharp bright eyes, which always seemed the same;

She thought, the Count, my lover, is brave as brave can be;

He surely would do wondrous things to show his love of me;

King, ladies, lovers, all look on; the occasion is divine;

I'll drop my glove, to prove his love; great glory will be mine.

She dropped her glove, to prove his love, then looked at him and smiled;

He bowed, and in a moment leaped among the hons wild:

The leap was quick, return was quick, he has regained his place,

Then threw the glove, but not with love, right in the lady's face.

"By Heaven," said Francis, "rightly done!" and he rose from where he sat;

"No love," quoth he, "but vanity, sets love a task like that."

LEIGH HUNG.

PRINCE ADEB.

In Sana, O, in Sana, God, the Lord, Was very kind and merciful to me ' Forth from the Desert in my rags I came, Weary and sore of foot. I saw the spires And swelling bubbles of the golden domes Rise through the trees of Sana, and my heart Grew great within me with the strength of God And I cried out, "Now shall I right myself, -I, Adeb the despised, - for God is just '" There he who wronged my father dwelt in peace,— My warlike father, who, when gray hairs crept Around his forehead, as on Lebanon The whitening snows of winter, was betrayed To the sly Imam, and his tented wealth Swept from him, 'twixt the roosting of the cock And his first crowing, — in a single night: And I, poor Adeb, sole of all my race, Smeared with my father's and my kinsmen's blood Fled through the Desert, till one day a tribe Of hungry Bedouins found me in the sand, Half mad with famme, and they took me up, And made a slave of me, - of me, a prince ! All was fulfilled at last. I fled from them, In rags and sorrow. Nothing but my heart, Like a strong swimmer, bore me up against The howling sea of my adversity. At length o'er Sana, in the act to swoop, I stood like a young eagle on a crag. The traveller passed me with suspicious fear: I asked for nothing; I was not a thief. The lean dogs snuffed around me : my lank bones, Fed on the berries and the crusted pools, Called me a little from the common path, And gave me figs and barley in a bag. I paid her with a kiss, with nothing more, And she looked glad; for I was beautiful, And virgin as a fountain, and as cold. I stretched her bounty, pecking like a bird Her figs and barley, till my strength returned. So when rich Sana lay beneath my eyes, My foot was as the leopard's, and my hand As heavy as the lion's brandished paw; And underneath my burnished skin the veins And stretching muscles played, at every step, In wondrous motion. I was very strong. I looked upon my body, as a bird That bills his feathers ere he takes to flight, -Then I prayed; I. watching over Sana And on a soft stone, wetted in the brook, Ground my long kmfe; and then I prayed again. God heard my voice, preparing all for me, As, softly stepping down the hills, I saw The Imam's summer-palace all ablaze In the last flash of sunset. Every fount Was spouting fire, and all the orange-trees Bore blazing coals, and from the marble walls And gilded spires and columns, strangely wrought, Glared the red light, until my eyes were pamed With the fierce splendor. Till the night grew thick.

I lay within the bushes, next the door, Still as a serpent, as invisible. The guard hung round the portal. Man by man They dropped away, save one lone sentinel, And on his eyes God's finger lightly fell; He slept half standing. Like a summer wind That threads the grove, yet never turns a leaf, I stole from shadow unto shadow forth; Crossed all the marble court-yard, swung the door, Like a soft gust, a little way ajar, — My body's narrow width, no more, - and stood Beneath the cresset in the painted hall. I marvelled at the riches of my foe; I marvelled at God's ways with wicked men. Then I reached forth, and took God's waiting hand:

And so he led me over mossy floors,
Flowered with the silken summer of Shiraz,
Straight to the Imam's chamber. At the door
Stretched a brawn cunuch, blacker than my eyes:
His woolly head lay like the Kaba-stone
In Mecca's mosque, as silent and as huge.
I stepped across it, with my pointed knife
Just missing a full vein along his neck,
And, pushing by the curtains, there I was,
I, Adeb the despised, — upon the spot
That, next to heaven, I longed for most of all.
I could have shouted for the joy in me.

Were a scant morsel. Once a brown-skinned girl Fierce pangs and flashes of bewildering light Called me a little from the common path,

And gave me figs and barley in a bag.

So loud my heart beat, that I feared its sound Would wake the sleeper; and the bubbling blood Choked in my throat till, weaker than a child, I reeled against a column, and there hung In a blind stupor. Then I prayed again: And, sense by sense, I was made whole once more. I touched myself; I was the same; I knew Myself to be lone Adeb, young and strong, With nothing but a stride of empty air Between me and God's justice. In a sleep, Thick with the fumes of the accursed grape, Sprawled the false Imam On his shaggy breast, Like a white hily heaving on the tide Of some foul stream, the fairest woman slept These roving eyes have ever looked upon. Almost a child, her bosom barely showed The change beyond her girlhood. All her charms Were budding, but half opened; for I saw Not only beauty wondrous in itself, But possibility of more to be In the full process of her blooming days. I gazed upon her, and my heart grew soft, As a parched pasture with the dew of heaven. While thus I gazed she smiled, and slowly raised The long curve of her lashes; and we looked Each upon each in wonder, not alarm, -Not eye to eye, but soul to soul, we held Each other for a moment. All her life Seemed centred in the circle of her eyes. She stirred no limb; her long-drawn, equal breath Swelled out and ebbed away beneath her breast, In calm unbroken. Not a sign of fear Touched the faint color on her oval cheek, Or pinched the arches of her tender mouth. She took me for a vision, and she lay With her sleep's smile unaltered, as in doubt Whether real life had stolen into her dreams. Or dreaming stretched into her outer life. I was not graceless to a woman's eyes. The girls of Damar paused to see me pass, I walking in my rags, yet beautiful. One maiden said, "He has a prince's air!" I am a prince; the air was all my own. So thought the lily on the Imam's breast: And lightly as a summer mist, that lifts Before the morning, so she floated up, Without a sound or rustle of a robe, From her coarse pillow, and before me stood With asking eyes. The Imam never moved. A stride and blow were all my need, and they Were wholly in my power. I took her hand, I held a warning finger to my lips, And whispered in her small, expectant ear, "Adeb, the son of Akem!" She replied

In a low murmur whose bewildering sound Almost lulled wakeful me to sleep, and sealed The sleeper's lids in tenfold slumber, "Prince, Lord of the Imam's life and of my heart, Take all thou seest, - it is thy right, I know, -But spare the Imam for thy own soul's sake!" Then I arrayed me in a robe of state, Shining with gold and jewels; and I bound In my long turban gems that might have bought The lands 'twixt Babelmandeb and Sahan. I girt about me, with a blazing belt. A scimitar o'er which the sweating smiths In far Damascus hammered for long years, Whose hilt and scabbard shot a trembling light From diamonds and rubies. And she smiled, As piece by piece I put the treasures on, To see me look so fair, - in pride she smiled. I hung long purses at my side. I scooped, From off a table, figs and dates and rice, And bound them to my girdle in a sack. Then over all I flung a snowy cloak, And beckoned to the maiden. So she stole Forth like my shadow, past the sleeping wolf Who wronged my father, o'er the woolly head Of the swart eunuch, down the painted court, And by the sentinel who standing slept. Strongly against the portal, through my rags, -My old base rags, - and through the maiden's veil, I pressed my knife, - upon the wooden hilt Was "Adeb, son of Akem," carved by me In my long slavehood, -as a passing sign To wait the Imain's waking. Shadows cast From two high-sailing clouds upon the sand Passed not more noiseless than we two, as one, Glided beneath the moonlight, till I smelt The fragrance of the stables. As I slid The wide doors open, with a sudden bound Uprose the startled horses: but they stood Still as the man who in a foreign land Hears his strange language, when my Desert call, As low and plaintive as the nested dove's, Fell on their listening ears. From stall to stall, Feeling the horses with my groping hands, I crept in darkness; and at length I came Upon two sister mares whose rounded sides, Fine muzzles, and small heads, and pointed ears, And foreheads spreading twixt their eyelids wide, Long slender tails, thin manes, and coats of silk, Told me, that, of the hundred steeds there stalled, My hand was on the treasures. O'er and o'er I felt their bony joints, and down their legs To the cool hoofs; — no blemish anywhere: These I led forth and saddled. Upon one I set the lily, gathered now for me, -My own, henceforth, forever. So we rode Across the grass, beside the stony path, Until we gained the highway that is lost,

Leading from Sana, in the eastern sands : When, with a cry that both the desert-born Knew without hint from whip or goading spur, We dashed into a gallop. Far behind In sparks and smoke the dusty highway rose; And ever on the maiden's face I saw, When the moon flashed upon it, the strange smile It wore on waking. Once I kissed her mouth, When she grew weary, and her strength returned. All through the night we scoured between the hills. The moon went down behind us, and the stars Dropped after her; but long before I saw A planet blazing straight against our eyes, The road had softened, and the shadowy hills Had flattened out, and I could hear the hiss Of sand spurned backward by the flying marcs. Glory to God! I was at home again! The sun rose on us ; far and near I saw The level Desert; sky met sand all round. We paused at midday by a palm-crowned well, And ate and slumbered. Somewhat, too, was said. The words have slipped my memory. That same eve

We rode sedately through a Hamoum camp, — I, Adeb, prince amongst them, and my bride. And ever since amongst them I have ridden, A head and shoulders taller than the best; And ever since my days have been of gold, My nights have been of silver, — God is just!

GLORGE HENRY BOKER

HELVELLYN.

[In the spring of 1805, a young gentleman of talents, and of a most annable disposition, perished by losing his way on the mountain Hehelijn. His remains were not discovered till three months afterwards, when they were found guarded by a faithful terrier, his constant attendant during frequent softiary rambles through the wilds of Cumberland and Westmoreland.]

I CLIMBED the dark brow of the mighty Helvellyn,

Lakes and mountains beneath me gleamed misty and wide:

All was still, save, by fits, when the eagle was yelling,

And starting around me the echoes replied.

On the right, Striden Edge round the Red Tarn was bending,

And Catchedicam its left verge was defending, One huge nameless rock in the front was ascending.

When I marked the sad spot where the wanderer had died.

Dark green was that spot mid the brown mountain heather,

Where the Pilgrim of Nature lay stretched in decay,

Like the corpse of an outcast abandoned to I come with banner, brand, and bow, weather,

As leader seeks his mortal foe.

Till the mountain winds wasted the tenantless clay:

Not yet quite deserted, though lonely extended, For, faithful in death, his mute favorite attended, The much-loved remains of her master defended, And chased the hill-fox and the raven away.

How long didst thou think that his silence was slumber?

When the wind waved his garment, how oft didst thou start?

How many long days and long nights didst thou number

Ere he faded before thee, the friend of thy heart?

And, O, was it meet that — no requiem read o'er him,

No mother to weep, and no friend to deplore him, And thou, little guardian, alone stretched before him —

Unhonored the Pilgrim from life should depart?

When a prince to the fate of the peasant has yielded,

The tapestry waves dark round the dimlighted hall,

With 'scutcheons of silver the coffin is shielded,
And pages stand mute by the canopiea pail:
Through the courts, at deep midnight, the torches are gleaming;

In the proudly arched chapel the banners are beaming;

Far adown the long aisle sacred music is streaming,

Lamenting a Chief of the People should fall.

But meeter for thee, gentle lover of nature, To lay down thy head like the meek mountain lamb,

When, wildered, he drops from some cliff huge in stature,

And draws his last sob by the side of his dam And more stately thy couch by this desert lake lying,

Thy obsequies sung by the gray plover flying, With one faithful friend but to witness thy dying, In the arms of Helvellyn and Catchedicam.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

FITZ-JAMES AND RODERICK DHU

FROM "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," CANTO V.

"I AM by promise tied To match me with this man of pride: Twice have I sought Clan-Alpine's glen In peace; but when I come again, I come with banner, brand, and bow, As leader seeks his mortal foe. For lovelorn swain, in lady's bower, Ne'er panted for the appointed hour, As I, until before me stand This rebel Chieftain and his band."

" Have, then, thy wish!"— He whistled shrill, And he was answered from the hill; Wild as the scream of the curlew. From crag to crag the signal flew Instant, through copse and heath, arose Bonnets and spears and bended bows; On right, on left, above, below, Sprung up at once the lurking foe; From shingles gray their lances start, The bracken bush sends forth the dart. The rushes and the willow-wand Are bristling into axe and brand, And every tuft of broom gives life To plaided warrior armed for strife. That whistle garrisoned the glen At once with full five hundred men, As if the yawning hill to heaven A subterranean host had given. Watching their leader's beck and will, All silent there they stood, and still. Like the loose crags whose threatening mass Lay tottering o'er the hollow pass, As if an infant's touch could uige Then headlong passage down the verge, With step and weapon forward flung, Upon the mountain-side they hung. The Mountaineer cast glance of pride Along Benledi's living side, Then fixed his eye and sable brow Full on Fitz-James: "How say'st thou now? These are Clan-Alpine's warriors true; And, Saxon, - I am Roderick Dhu!"

Fitz-James was brave; - though to his heart The life-blood thrilled with sudden start, He manned himself with dauntless air, Returned the Chief his haughty stare, His back against a rock he bore, And firmly placed his foot before: -"Come one, come all! this rock shall fly From its firm base as soon as I." Sir Roderick marked, — and in his eyes Respect was mingled with surprise, And the stern joy which warriors feel In foemen worthy of their steel. Short space he stood, - then waved his hand : Down sunk the disappearing band; Each warrior vanished where he stood. In broom or bracken, heath or wood: Sunk brand and spear, and bended bow. In osiers pale and copses low:

It seemed as if their mother Earth
Had swallowed up her warlike birth.
The wind's last breath had tossed in air
Pennon and plaid and plumage fair,—
The next but swept a lone hillside,
Where heath and fern were waving wide;
The sun's last glance was glinted back,
From spear and glaive, from targe and jack,—
The next, all unreflected, shone
On bracken green, and cold gray stone.

Fitz-James looked round, - yet scarce believed The witness that his sight received; Such apparition well might seem Delusion of a dreadful dream. Sir Roderick in suspense he eyed, And to his look the Chief replied . "Fear naught - nay, that I need not say -But - doubt not aught from mine array. Thou art my guest ; - I pledged my word As far as Coilantogle ford: Nor would I call a clansman's brand For aid against one valiant hand, Though on our strife lay every vale Rent by the Saxon from the Gael. So move we on; - I only meant To show the reed on which you leant, Deeming this path you might pursue Without a pass from Roderick Dhu." They moved ; - I said Fitz-James was brave, As ever knight that belted glaive; Yet dare not say that now his blood Kept on its wont and tempered flood, As, following Roderick's stride, he drew That seeming lonesome pathway through, Which yet, by fearful proof, was rife With lances, that, to take his life, Waited but signal from a guide, So late dishonored and defied. Ever, by stealth, his eye sought round The vanished guardians of the ground, And still, from copse and heather deep, Fancy saw spear and broadsword peep, And in the plover's shrilly strain The signal whistle heard again. Nor breathed he free till far behind The pass was left; for then they wind Along a wide and level green, Where neither tree nor tuft was seen. Nor rush nor bush of broom was near, To hide a bonnet or a spear.

The Chief in silence strode before,
And reached that torrent's sounding shore,
Which, daughter of three mighty lakes,
From Vennachar in silver breaks,
Sweeps through the plain, and ceaseless mines
On Bochastle the mouldering lines,

Where Rome, the Empress of the world, Of yore her eagle wings unfurled. And here his course the Chieftain stayed, Threw down his target and his plaid, And to the Lowland warrior said: "Bold Saxou! to his promise just, Vich-Alpine has discharged his trust. This murderous Chief, this ruthless man, This head of a rebellious clan, Hath led thee safe through watch and ward, Far past Clan-Alpine's outmost guard. Now, man to man, and steel to steel, A Chieftain's vengeance thou shalt feel. See, here, all vantageless I stand, Armed, like thyself, with single brand; For this is Collantogle ford, And thou must keep thee with thy sword."

The Saxon paused . "I ne'er delayed, When forman bade me draw my blade; Nay more, brave Chief, I vowed thy death : Yet sure thy fair and generous faith, And my deep debt for life preserved, A better meed have well deserved: Can naught but blood our feud atone? Are there no means ?" "No, Stranger, none And hear, - to fire thy flagging zeal, -The Saxon cause rests on thy steel; For thus spoke Fate, by prophet bred Between the living and the dead: 'Who spills the foremost foeman's life, His party conquers in the strife." "Then, by my word," the Saxon said, "The riddle is already read. Seek vonder brake beneath the cliff. -There lies Red Murdoch, stark and stiff. Thus Fate hath solved her prophecy, Then yield to Fate, and not to me. To James, at Stirling, let us go, When, if thou wilt be still his foe, Or if the King shall not agree To grant thee grace and favor free, I plight mine honor, oath, and word, That, to thy native strengths restored, With each advantage shalt thou stand, That aids thee now to guard thy land."

Dark lightning flashed from Roderick's eye. "Soars thy presumption, then, so high, Because a wretched kern ye slew, Homage to name to Roderick Dhu? He yields not, he, to man nor fate! Thou add'st but fuel to my hate:—
My clansman's blood demands revenge.
Not yet prepared?— By Heaven, I change My thought, and hold thy valor light As that of some vain carpet knight,

Who ill deserved my courteous care, And whose best boast is but to wear A braid of his fair lady's hair." "I thank thee, Roderick, for the word! It nerves my heart, it steels my sword; For I have sworn this braid to stain In the best blood that warms thy vein. Now, truce, farewell! and ruth, begone!-Yet think not that by thee alone, Proud Chief! can courtesy be shown; Though not from copse, or heath, or carn, Start at my whistle clansmen stern, Of this small horn one feeble blast Would fearful odds against thee cast. But fear not -- doubt not -- which thou wilt --We try this quarrel hilt to hilt." Then each at once his falchion drew, Each on the ground his scabbard thiew, Each looked to sun and stream and plam, As what they ne'er might see again, Then, foot and point and eye opposed, In dubious strife they darkly closed Ill fared it then with Roderick Dhu, That on the field his targe he threw, Whose brazen studs and tough bull-hide Had death so often dashed aside, For, trained abroad his arms to wield, Fitz-James's blade was sword and shield. He practised every pass and ward, To thrust, to strike, to feint, to guard; While less expert, though stronger far, The Gael maintained unequal wai. Three times in closing strife they stood, And thrice the Saxon blade drank blood . No stinted diaught, no scanty tide, The gushing floods the tartans dyed Sierce Roderick felt the fatal drain, And showered his blows like wintry rain; And, as firm rock or castle-roof Against the winter shower is proof, The foe, invulnerable still, Foiled his wild rage by steady skill; Till, at advantage ta'en, his brand Forced Roderick's weapon from his hand, And, backwards borne upon the lea, Brought the proud Chieftain to his knee. "Now yield thee, or, by Him who made The world, thy heart's blood dyes my blade!" "Thy threats, thy mercy, I defy! Let recreant yield, who fears to die." Like adder darting from his coil, Like wolf that dashes through the toil, Like mountain-cat who guards her young, Full at Fitz-James's throat he sprung; Received, but recked not of a wound, And locked his arms his foeman round. Now, gallant Saxon, hold thine own!

No maiden's hand is round thee thrown! That desperate grasp thy frame might feel Through bars of brass and triple steel! They tug, they strain! down, down they go. The Gael above, Fitz-James below. The chieftain's gripe his throat compressed, His knee was planted in his breast; His clotted locks he backward threw, Across his brow his hand he drew. From blood and mist to clear his sight, Then gleamed aloft his dagger bright! But hate and fury ill supplied The stream of life's exhausted tide, And all too late the advantage came. To turn the odds of deadly game: For, while the dagger gleamed on high, Reeled soul and sense, reeled brain and eye. Down came the blow ! but in the heath The erring blade found bloodless sheath. The struggling toe may now unclasp The fainting Chief's relaxing grasp, Unwounded from the dreadful close, But breathless all, Fitz-James arose.

He faltered thanks to Heaven for life, Redeemed, unhoped, from desperate strife; Next on his foe his look he cast, Whose every gasp appeared his last; In Roderick's gore he dipped the braid, — "Poor Blanche! thy wrongs are dearly paid: Yet with thy foe must die, or live, The praise that faith and valor give." With that he blew a bugle note, Unded the collar from his throat, Unbonneted, and by the wave Sat down his brow and hands to lave. Then faint afar are heard the feet Of rushing steeds in gallop fleet; The sounds increase, and now are seen Four mounted squires in Lincoln green; Two who bear lance, and two who lead, By loosened rein, a saddled steed; Each onward held his headlong course, And by Fitz-James remed up his horse, — With wonder viewed the bloody spot. -"Exclaim not, gallants | question not, -You, Herbert and Luffness, alight, And bind the wounds of yonder knight; Let the gray palfrey bear his weight, We destined for a fairer freight, And bring him on to Stirling straight; I will before at better speed, To seek fresh horse and fitting weed. The sun rides high; - I must be boune To see the archer-game at noon; But lightly Bayard clears the lea. De Vaux and Herries, follow me."

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

RURAL SPORTS.

WAKEN, LORDS AND LADIES GAY.

Waken, lords and ladies gay,
On the mountain dawns the day;
All the jolly chase is here,
With hawk and horse and hunting-spear!
Hounds are in their couples yelling,
Hawks are whistling, horns are knelling,
Merrily, merrily mingle they,
"Waken, lords and ladies gay."

Waken, lords and ladies gay,
The mist has left the mountain gray,
Springlets in the dawn are steaming,
Diamonds on the brake are gleaming,
And foresters have busy been
To track the buck in thicket green;
Now we come to chant our lay,
"Waken, lords and ladies gay."

Waken, lords and ladies gay,
To the greenwood haste away;
We can show you where he lies,
Fleet of foot and tall of size;
We can show the marks he made
When 'gainst the oak his autlers frayed;
You shall see him brought to bay;
Waken, lords and ladies gay.

Louder, louder chant the lay,
Waken, lords and ladies gay!
Tell them, youth and mirth and glee
Run a course as well as we;
Time, stern huntsman, who can balk,
Stanch as hound and fleet as hawk?
Think of this, and rise with day,
Gentle lords and ladies gay!
SIR WALTER SCOTT.

THE STAG HUNT.

FROM "THE LADY OF THE LAKE," (ANTO I.

THE stag at eve had drunk his fill,
Where danced the moon on Monan's rill,
And deep his midnight lair had made
In lone Glenartney's hazel shade;
But, when the sun his beacon red
Had kindled on Benvoirlich's head,
The deep-mouthed bloodhound's heavy bay
Resounded up the rocky way,
And faint, from farther distance borne,
Were heard the clanging hoof and horn.

As Chief who hears his warder call, " To arms! the foemen storm the wall," The antlered monarch of the waste Sprung from his heathery couch in haste. But, ere his fleet career he took, The dew-drops from his flanks he shook; Lake crested leader proud and high Tossed his beamed frontlet to the sky; A moment gazed adown the dale, A moment snuffed the tainted gale, A moment listened to the cry. That thickened as the chase drew nigh; Then, as the headmost foes appeared, With one brave bound the copse he cleared. And, stretching forward free and far, Sought the wild heaths of Uam-Var.

Yelled on the view the opening pack; Rock, glen, and cavern paid them back; To many a mingled sound at once The awakened mountain gave response. A hundred dogs bayed deep and strong, Clattered a hundred steeds along, Then peal the merry horns rung out, A hundred voices joined the shout; With hark and whoop and wild halloo, No rest Benvoirlich's echoes knew. Far from the tunult fled the roe: Close in her covert cowered the doe; The falcon, from her cairn on high, Cast on the rout a wondering eye, Till far beyond her piercing ken The hurricane had swept the glen. Faint, and more faint, its failing din Returned from cavern, cliff, and linn, And silence settled, wide and still, On the lone wood and mighty hill.

Twere long to tell what steeds gave o'er, As swept the hunt through Cambus-more; What reins were tightened in despair, When rose Benledi's ridge in air; Who flagged upon Bochastle's heath, Who shunned to stem the flooded Teith, — For twice that day, from shore to shore, The gallant stag swam stoutly o'er. Few were the stragglers, following far That reached the lake of Vennachar; And when the Brigg of Turk was won, The headmost horseman rode alone. Alone, but with unbated zeal, That horseman plied the scourge and steel

For, jaded now, and spent with toil, Embossed with foam, and dark with soil, While every gasp with sobs he drew, The laboring stag strained full in view. Two dogs of black St. Hubert's breed, Unnatched for courage, breath, and speed, Fast on his flying traces came, And all but won that desperate game; For, scarce a spear's length from his haunch, Vindictive toiled the bloodhounds stanch; Nor nearer might the dogs attain, Nor farther might the quarry strain. Thus up the margin of the lake, Between the precipice and brake, O'er stock and rock their race they take.

The hunter marked that mountain high, The lone lake's western boundary. And deemed the stag must turn to bay, Where that huge rampart barred the way ; Already glorying in the prize, Measured his antlers with his eyes : For the death-wound and death-halloo Mustered his breath, his whinyard drew; But thundering as he came prepared, With ready arm and weapon bared, · The wily quarry shunned the shock, And turned him from the opposing rock : Then, dashing down a darksome glen, Soon lost to hound and hunter's ken, In the deep Trosachs' wildest nook His solitary refuge took. There while, close couched, the thicket shed Cold dews and wild-flowers on his head, He heard the baffled dogs in vain Rave through the hollow pass amain, Chiding the rocks that yelled again.

Close on the hounds the hunter came, To cheer them on the vanished game; But, stumbling in the rugged dell, The gallant horse exhausted fell. The impatient rider strove in vain To rouse him with the spur and rein, For the good steed, his labors o'er, Stretched his stiff limbs, to rise no more; Then, touched with pity and remorse, He sorrowed o'er the expiring horse: "I little thought, when first thy rein I slacked upon the banks of Seine, That Highland eagle e'er should feed On thy fleet limbs, my matchless steed! Woe worth the chase, woe worth the day, That costs thy life, my gallant gray!"

Then through the dell his horn resounds, From vain pursuit to call the hounds. Back limped, with slow and crippled pace,
The sulky leaders of the chase;
Close to their master's side they pressed,
With drooping tail and humbled crest;
But still the dingle's hollow throat
Prolonged the swelling bugle-note.
The owlets started from their dream,
The eagles answered with their scream,
Round and around the sounds were cast,
Till echo seemed an answering blast;
And on the hunter hied his way,
To join some comrades of the day;
Yet often paused, so strange the road,
So wondrous were the scenes it showed.

SIR WALTER SCOTT

MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS.

My heart's in the Highlands, my heart is not here:

My heart's in the Highlands a-chasing the deer; Chasing the wild deer, and following the roe, My heart's in the Highlands wherever I go. Farewell to the Highlands, farewell to the North, The birthplace of valor, the country of worth; Wherever I wander, wherever I rove, The hills of the Highlands forever I love.

Farewell to the mountains high covered with snow;

Farewell to the straths and green valleys below;
Farewell to the forests and wild-hanging woods;
Farewell to the torrents and loud-pouring floods.
My heart 's in the Highlands, my heart is not here:

My heart's in the Highlands a-chasing the deer Chasing the wild deer, and following the toe, My heart's in the Highlands wherever I go.

ROBERT BURNS.

THE STAG HUNT.

FROM "THE SEASONS: AUTUMN."

The stag too, singled from the herd where long He ranged, the branching monarch of the shades, Before the tempest drives. At first, in speed He, sprightly, puts his faith; and, roused by fear, Gives all his swift aerial soul to flight.

Against the breeze he darts, that way the more
To leave the lessening murderous cry behind:
Deception short! though fleeter than the winds
Blown o'er the keen-aired mountain by the north,
He bursts the thickets, glances through the glades.

And plunges deep into the wildest wood, -

If slow, yet sure, adhesive to the track Hot-steaming, up behind him come again The inhuman rout, and from the shady depth Expel him, circling through his every shift. He sweeps the forest oft; and sobbing sees The glades, mild opening to the golden day, Where, in kind contest, with his butting friends He wont to struggle, or his loves enjoy. Oft in the full-descending flood he tries To lose the scent, and lave his burning sides; Oft seeks the herd: the watchful herd, alarmed, With selfish care avoid a brother's woe. What shall he do? His once so vivid nerves. So full of buoyant spirit, now no more Inspire the course; but fainting breathless toil, Sick, seizes on his heart: he stands at bay; And puts his last weak refuge in despair. The big round tears run down his dappled face; He groans in anguish; while the growling pack, Blood-happy, hang at his fair jutting chest, And mark his beauteous checkered sides with gore. JAMES THOMSON.

HART-LEAP WELL

"Hart-Leap Well is a small spring of water about five miles from Richmond in Yorkshire, and near the side of the road that leads from Richmond to Askrigg. Its name is derived from a remarkable chase, the memory of which is preserved by the monuments spoken of in the second part of the following poem, which monuments do now exist [1800] as I have there described them — THE AUTHOR

PART FIRST.

THE knight had ridden down from Wensley

With the slow motion of a summer's cloud, And now, as he approached a vassal's door, "Bring forth another horse!" he creed aloud.

"Another horse!"—That shout the vassal heard, And saddled his best steed, a comely gray; Sir Walter mounted him; he was the third Which he had mounted on that glorious day.

Joy sparkled in the prancing courser's eyes; The horse and horseman are a happy pair; But, though Sir Walter like a falcon flies, There is a doleful silence in the air.

A rout this morning left Sir Walter's hall, That as they galloped made the echoes noar; But horse and man are vanished, one and all; Such race, I think, was never seen before.

Sir Walter, restless as the veering wind, Calls to the few tired dogs that yet remain: Blanche, Swift, and Music, noblest of their kind, Follow, and up the weary mountain strain. The knight hallooed, he cheered and chid them on With suppliant gestures and upbraidings stern; But breath and cyesight fail; and, one by one, The dogs are stretched among the mountain fern.

Where is the throng, the tunult of the race?
The bugles that so joyfully were blown?
— This chase it looks not like an earthly chase;
Sir Walter and the hart are left alone.

The poor hart toils along the mountain-side; I will not stop to tell how far he fled, Nor will I mention by what death he died; But now the knight beholds him lying dead.

Dismounting, then, he leaned against a thorn; He had no follower, dog, nor man, nor boy: He neither cracked his whip, nor blew his horn, But guzed upon the spoil with silent joy.

Close to the thorn on which Sir Walter leaned Stood his dumb partner in this glorious feat; Weak as a lamb the hour that it is yeaned, And white with foam as if with cleaving sleet

Upon his side the hait was lying stietched.

His nostril touched a spring beneath a hill,

And with the last deep groan his breath had fetched

The waters of the spring were trembling still.

And now, too happy for repose or rest,
(Never had hving man such joyful lot!)
Sir Walter walked all round, north, south, and west,

And gazed and gazed upon that durling spot.

And climbing up the hill (it was at least Four roods of sheer ascent), Sir Walter found Three several hoof-marks which the hunted beast Had left imprinted on the grassy ground.

Sir Walter wiped his face, and cried, "Till now Such sight was never seen by human eyes. Three leaps have borne him from this lofty brow, Down to the very fountain where he lies.

- "I'll build a pleasure-house upon this spot, And a small aibor, made for rural joy; "T will be the traveller's shed, the pilgrim's cot, A place of love for damsels that are coy.
- "A cunning artist will I have to frame A basin for that fountain in the dell' And they who do make mention of the same, From this day forth, shall call it Hart-Leap Well,
- "And, gallant stag! to make thy praises known, Another monument shall here be raised:

Three several pillars, each a rough-hewn stone, And planted where thy hoofs the turf have grazed.

"And in the summer-time, when days are long, I will come hither with my paramour; And with the dancers and the minstrel's song We will make merry in that pleasant bowes.

"Till the foundations of the mountains fail My mansion with its arbor shall endure; — The joy of them who till the fields of Swale, And them who dwell among the woods of Ure!"

Then home he went, and left the hart, stone-dead, With breathless nostrils stretched above the spring

Soon did the knight perform what he had said,
 And far and wide the fame thereof did ring.

Ere thrice the moon into her port had steered, A cup of stone received the living well; Three pillars of rude stone Sir Walter reared, And built a house of pleasure in the dell

And near the fountain, flowers of stature tall With trailing plants and trees were intertwined, – Which soon composed a little sylvan hall, A leafy shelter from the sun and wind

And thither, when the summer days were long, Sir Walter led his wondering paramour; And with the dancers and the ministrel's song Made meriment within that pleasant bower.

The knight, Su Walter, died in course of time, And his bones he in his paternal vale. — But there is matter for a second thyme, And I to this would add another tale.

PART SECOND.

THE moving accident is not my trade; To freeze the blood I have no ready arts: 'T is my delight, alone in summer shade, To pipe a simple song for thinking hearts.

As I from Hawes to Richmond did repair, It chanced that I saw standing in a dell Three aspens at three corners of a square; And one, not four yards distant, near a well

What this imported I could ill divine. And, pulling now the rein my horse to stop, I saw three pillars standing in a line, —
The last stone pillar on a dark hill-top.

The trees were gray, with neither arms nor head; Half wasted the square mound of tawny green; So that you just might say, as then I said, "Here in old time the hand of man hath been."

I looked upon the hill both far and near, — More doleful place did never eye survey; It seemed as if the spring-time came not here, And nature here were willing to decay.

I stood in various thoughts and fancies lost, When one, who was in shepherd's garb attired, Came up the hollow; — him did I accost, And what this place might be I then inquired.

The shepherd stopped, and that same story told Which in my former rhyme I have rehearsed. "A jolly place," said he, "in times of old! But something ails it now; the spot is curst.

- "You see these lifeless stumps of aspen-wood, Some say that they are beeches, others clins, These were the bower; and here a mansion stood, The innest palace of a hundred realms!
- "The arbor does its own condition tell; You see the stones, the fountain, and the stream; But as to the great lodge! you might as well Hunt half a day for a forgotten dream.
- "There's neither dog not heifer, horse not sheep, Will wet his lips within that cup of stone, And oftentimes, when all are fast asleep, This water doth send forth a dolorous groan.
- "Some say that here a murder has been done, And blood cues out for blood; but, for my part, I've guessed, when I've been sitting in the sun, That it was all for that unhappy hart.
- "What thoughts must through the creature's brain have past!

 Even from the topmost stone, upon the steep,

 Are but three bounds, and look, sir, at this last!

 O master! it has been a cruel leap.
- "For thirteen hours he ran a desperate race;
 And in my simple mind we cannot tell
 What cause the hart might have to love this place,
 And come and make his death-bed near the well.
- "Here on the grass perhaps asleep ne sank, Lulled by the fountain in the summer-tide; This water was perhaps the first he drank When he had wandered from his mother's side.
- " In April here beneath the flowering thorn He heard the birds their morning carols sing, And he, perhaps, for aught we know, was born Not half a furlong from that self-same spring
- "Now, here is neither grass nor pleasant shade, The sun on drearier hollow never shone; So will it be, as I have often said, Till trees, and stones, and fountain, all are gone."

"Gray-headed shepherd, thou hast spoken well; Small difference lies between thy creed and mine: This beast not unobserved by nature fell; His death was mourned by sympathy divine.

"The Being, that is in the clouds and air, That is in the green leaves among the groves, Maintains a deep and reverential care For the unoffending creatures whom he loves.

"The pleasure-house is dust: — behind, before, This is no common waste, no common gloom; But Nature, in due course of time, once more Shall here put on her beauty and her bloom.

"She leaves these objects to a slow decay,
That what we are, and have been, may be known;
But at the coming of the milder day
These monuments shall all be overgrown.

"One lesson, shepherd, let us two divide, Taught both by what she shows and what conceals;

Never to blend our pleasure or our pride
With sorrow of the meanest thing that feels."
WILLIAM WORDSWORTH

BETH GÊLERT.

THE spearmen heard the bugle sound, And cheerily smiled the morn; And many a brach, and many a hound, Obeyed Llewellyn's houn.

And still he blew a louder blast,
And gave a lustier cheer,
"Come, Gêlert, come, wert never last Llewellyn's horn to hear.

"O, where does faithful Gêlert roam, The flower of all his race; So true, so brave, — a lamb at home, A lion in the chase?"

In sooth, he was a peerless hound, The gift of royal John; But now no Gêlert could be found, And all the chase rode on.

That day Llewellyn little loved
The chase of hart and hare;
And scant and small the booty proved,
For Gêlert was not there.

Unpleased, Llewellyn homeward hied, When, near the portal seat, His truant Gêlert he espied, Bounding his lord to greet. But, when he gained his castle-door,
Aghast the chieftain stood;
The hound all o'er was smeared with gore.
His lips, his fangs, ran blood.

Llewellyn gazed with fierce surprise; Unused such looks to meet, His favorite checked his joyful guise, And crouched, and licked his feet.

Onward, in haste, Llewellyn passed, And on went Gêlert too; And still, where'er his eyes he cast, Fresh blood-gouts shocked his view.

O'erturned his infant's bed he found, With blood-stained covert rent; And all around the walls and ground With recent blood bespient.

He called his child, — no voice replied, —
He searched with terror wild;
Blood, blood he found on every side,
But nowhere found his child.

"Hell-hound 'my child's by thee devoured,"
The frantic father cried;
And to the hilt his vengeful sword
He plunged in Gêlert's side.

Aroused by Gêlert's dying yell, Some slumberer wakened nigh: What words the parent's joy could tell To hear his infant's cry!

Concealed beneath a tumbled heap His hurried search had missed, All glowing from his rosy sleep, The cherub boy he kissed.

Nor scathe had he, nor harm, nor dread, But, the same couch beneath, Lay a gaunt wolf, all torn and dead, Tremendous still in death.

Ah, what was then Llewellyn's pain!
For now the truth was clear;
His gallant hound the wolf had slain
To save Llewellyn's heir.

WILLAN ROBERT SPENCER

A HUNTING WE WILL GO.

THE dusky night rides down the sky,
And ushers in the morn:
The hounds all join in glorious cry,
The huntsman winds his horn,
And a hunting we will go.

The wife around her husband throws

Her arms to make him stay;
"My dear, it rains, it hails, it blows;

You cannot hunt to-day."

Vet a hunting we will a

Yet a hunting we will go.

Away they fly to 'scape the rout,

Their steeds they soundly switch;

Some are thrown in, and some thrown out,

And some thrown in the ditch.

Yet a hunting we will go.

Sly Reynard now like lightning flies,
And sweeps across the vale;
And when the hounds too near he spies,
He drops his bushy tail.
Then a hunting we will go.

Fond Echo seems to like the sport,
And join the jovial cry;
The woods, the hills, the sound retort,
And music fills the sky,
When a hunting we do go.

At last his strength to faintness worn,
Poor Reynard ceases flight;
Then hungry, homeward we return,
To feast away the night,
And a drinking we do go

Ye jovial hunters, in the morn
Prepare then for the chase;
Rise at the sounding of the horn
And health with sport embrace,
When a hunting we do go.
HUNRY FIELDING.

LIFE IN THE AUTUMN WOODS.

[VIRGINIA.]

SUMMER has gone,
And fruitful Autumn has advanced so far
That there is warmth, not heat, in the broad sun,
And you may look, with naked eye, upon
The ardors of his car;

The stealthy frosts, whom his spent looks em-

Are making the green leaves golden.

What a brave splendor
Is in the October ain! how rich, and clear,
And bracing, and all-joyous! We must render Love to the Spring-time, with its sproutings tender,

As to a child quite dear;
But Autumn is a thing of perfect glory,
A manhood not yet hoary.

I love the woods,
In this good season of the liberal year;
I love to seek their leafy solutudes,
And give myself to melancholy moods,
With no intruder near,
And find strange lessons, as I sit and ponder,
In every natural wonder.

But not alone,
As Shakespeare's melancholy courtier loved Ardonnes.

Love I the browning forest; and I own
I would not oft have mused, as he, but flown
To hunt with Amnens —

And little thought, as up the bold deer bounded,
Of the sad creature wounded.

A brave and good,
But world-worn knight — soul-wearied with his part
In this vexed life — gave man for solitude,
And built a lodge, and lived in Wantley wood,

To hear the belling hart.

It was a gentle taste, but its sweet sadness
Yields to the hunter's madness.

What passionate

And keen delight is in the proud swift chase 'Go out what time the lark at heaven sired gite Soars joyously singing — quite infuriate

With the high pride of his place;
What time the unrisen sun arrays the morning
In its first bright adorning.

Hark! the quick horn—
As sweet to hear as any clarion—
Piercing with silver call the ear of morn;
And mark the steeds, stout Curtal and Topthorne,
And Greysteil and the Don—
Each one of them his fiery mood displaying
With pawing and with neighing.

Urge your swift horse
After the crying hounds in this fresh hour;
Vanquish high hills, stem perilous streams perforce,

On the free plain give free wings to your course.

And you will know the power

Of the brave chase, — and how of griefs the sorest

A cure is in the forest.

Or stalk the deer;
The same red lip of dawn has kissed the hills,
The gladdest sounds are crowding on your ear,
There is a life in all the atmosphere:

Your very nature fills

With the fresh hour, as up the hills aspiring
You climb with limbs untiring.

It is a fair

And goodly sight to see the autlered stag
With the long sweep of his swift walk repair
To join his brothers; or the plethoric bear
Lying in some high crag,

With pinky eyes half closed, but broad head shaking,

As gadflies keep him waking.

And these you see, And, seeing them, you travel to their death

With a slow, stealthy step, from tree to tree, Noting the wind, however faint it be.

The hunter draws a breath
In times like these, which, he will say, repays him
For all care that waylays him.

A strong joy fills

(A joy beyond the tongue's expressive power)
My heart in Autumn weather — fills and thrills!
And I would rather stalk the breezy hills

Descending to my bower

Nightly, by the sweet spirit of Peace attended, Than pine where life is splendid.

PHILIP PENDLETON COOKE.

THE ARAB TO HIS FAVORITE STEED.

My beautiful! my beautiful! that standest meekly by,

With thy proudly arched and glossy neck, and dark and fiery eye,

Fret not to roam the desert now, with all thy winged speed;

I may not mount on thee again, — thou 'rt sold, my Arab steed '

First not with that impatient hoof, — snuff not the breezy wind, —

The farther that thou thest now, so far am I behind;

The stranger hath thy bridle-rein, — thy master hath his gold, —

Fleet-limbed and beautiful, farewell; thou'rt sold, my steed, thou'rt sold.

Farewell! those free, untired limbs full many a mile must roam,

To reach the chill and wintry sky which clouds the stranger's home;

Some other hand, less fond, must now thy corn and bed prepare,

Thy silky mane, I braided once, must be another's

The morning sun shall dawn again, but nevermore with thee Shall I gallop through the desert paths, where we were wont to be;

Evening shall darken on the earth, and o'er the sandy plain

Some other steed, with slower step, shall bear me home again.

Yes, thou must go ' the wild, free breeze, the brilliant sun and sky,

Thy master's house, - from all of these my exiled one must fly;

Thy proud dark eye will grow less proud, thy step become less fleet,

And vainly shalt thou arch thy neck, thy master's hand to meet.

Only in sleep shall I behold that dark eye, glancing bright; -

Only in sleep shall hear again that step so firm and light;

And when I raise my dieaming arm to check or cheer thy speed,

Then must 1, starting, wake to feel, — thou'it sold, my Arab steed !

Ah! rudely then, unseen by me, some cruel hand may chide,

Till foam-wreaths lie, like crested waves, along thy panting side:

And the rich blood that's in thee swells, in thy indignant pain,

Till careless eyes, which rest on thee, may count each starting vein.

Will they ill-use thee? If I thought — but no, it cannot be, —

Thou art so swift, yet easy curbed; so gentle, yet so free:

And yet, if haply, when thou 'rt gone, my lonely heart should yearn, --

Can the hand which casts thee from it now command thee to return?

Return! alas! my Arab steed! what shall thy master do.

When thou, who wast his all of joy, hast vanished from his view?

When the dim distance cheats mine eye, and through the gathering tears

Thy bright form, for a moment, like the false mirage appears;

Slow and unmounted shall I roam, with weary step alone,

Where, with fleet step and joyous bound, thou oft hast borne me on;

And sitting down by that green well, I'll pause and sadly think,

"It was here he bowed his glossy neck when last
I saw him drink!"

When last I saw thec drink ! - Away! the fevered | Now a glen dark as midnight - what matter? dream is o'er, -

I could not live a day, and know that we should meet no more !

They tempted me, my beautiful ! - for hunger's power is strong, -

They tempted me, my beautiful! but I have loved too long.

Who said that I had given thee up? who said that thou wast sold?

"I is false, - 't is false, my Arab steed! I fling them back their gold '

Thus, thus, I leap upon thy back, and scour the distant plains:

Away who overtakes us now shall claim thee for his pains!

CAROLINE LLIZABI IN SARAH NORION.

THE HORSEBACK RIDE.

WHEN troubled in spirit, when weary of life, When I faint 'neath its burdens, and shrink from its strife,

When its fruits, turned to ashes, are mocking my

And its fairest scene seems but a desolate waste, Then come ye not near me, my sad heart to cheer

With friendship's soft accents or sympathy's tear. No pity I ask, and no counsel I need,

But bring me, O, bring me my gallant young steed,

With his high arched neck, and his nostril spread wide,

His eye full of fire, and his step full of pride! As I spring to his back, as I seize the strong rein,

The strength to my spirit returneth again! The bonds are all broken that fettered my mind, And my cares borne away on the wings of the wind:

My pride lifts its head, for a season bowed down, And the queen in my nature now puts on her crown!

Now we're off - like the winds to the plains whence they came;

And the rapture of motion is thrilling my frame! On, on speeds my courser, scarce printing the sod, Scarce crushing a daisy to mark where he trod! On, on like a deer, when the hound's early bay Awakes the wild echoes, away, and away! Still faster, still farther, he leaps at my cheer, Till the rush of the startled air whirs in my ear! Now 'long a clear rivulet lieth his track, --See his glancing hoofs tossing the white pebbles back!

we'll down.

Though shadows are round us, and rocks o'er us

The thick branches shake as we're hurrying through,

And deck us with spangles of silvery dew!

What a wild thought of triumph, that this girlish

Such a steed in the might of his strength may command!

What a glorious creature ' Ah ' glance at him now,

As I check him a while on this green hillock's brow;

How he tosses his mane, with a shall joyous neigh,

And paws the firm earth in his proud, stately

Hurrah ' off again, dashing on as in ire, Till the long, flinty pathway is flashing with fire ' Ho' a ditch' - Shall we pause? No; the bo'd leap we dare,

Like a swift-winged arrow we rush through the air' O, not all the pleasures that poets may praise, Not the 'wildering waltz in the ball-room's blaze, Nor the chivalrous joust, nor the daring race, Not the swift regatta, nor merry chase, Not the sail, high heaving waters o'er, Not the rural dance on the moonlight shore, Can the wild and thrilling joy exceed Of a fearless leap on a fiery steed !

SARA JANE LIPPINCOIT (Grace Greenwood).

A CANADIAN BOAT-SONG.

FAINTLY as tolls the evening chime, Our voices keep tune, and our oars keep time. Soon as the woods on shore look dim, We'll sing at St. Ann's our parting hymn. Row, brothers, row ' the stream runs fast, The rapids are near, and the daylight's past!

Why should we yet our sail unfurl ?-There is not a breath the blue wave to curl. But when the wind blows off the shore, O, sweetly we'll rest our weary oar! Blow, breezes, blow! the stream runs fast, The rapids are near, and the daylight's past!

Utawa's tide! this trembling moon Shall see us float over thy surges soon. Saint of this green isle, hear our prayers, -O, grant us cool heavens and favoring airs! Blow, breezes, blow! the stream runs fast, The rapids are near, and the daylight's past! THOMAS MOORE.

THE SNOWS.*

Over the Snows
Buoyantly goes
The lumberers' bark canoe:
Lightly they sweep,
Wilder each leap,
Rending the white-caps through.
Away! Away!
With the speed of a startled deer,
While the steersman true
And his laughing crew
Sing of their wild career:

"Mariners glide
Far o'er the tide
In ships that are stanch and strong Safely as they Speed we away,
Waking the woods with song."
Away! Away!
With the speed of a startled deer,
While the laughing crew
Of the swift canoe
Sing of the raftsmen's cheer:

"Through forest and brake,
O'er rapid and lake,
We're sport for the sun and rain;
Free as the child
Of the Arab wild,
Hardened to toil and pain.
Away! Away!
With the speed of a startled deer,
While our buoyant flight
And the rapid's might Heighten our swift career."

Over the Snows
Buoyantly goes
The lumberers' bark canoe:
Lightly they sweep,
Wilder each leap,
Tearing the white-caps through.
Away! Away!
With the speed of a startled deer.
There 's a fearless crew
In each light canoe
To sing of the raftsmen's cheer.

CHARLES SANGSTER.

THE PLEASURE-BOAT.

COME, hoist the sail, the fast let go!
They're seated side by side;
Wave chases wave in pleasant flow;
The bay is fair and wide.

The ripples lightly tap the boat;
Loose! Give her to the wind!
She shoots ahead; they're all afloat,
The strand is far behind.

No danger reach so fair a crew!
Thou goddess of the foam,
I'll ever pay thee worship due,
It thou wilt bring them home.

Fair ladies, fairer than the spray
The prow is dashing wide,
Soft breezes take you on your way,
Soft flow the blessed tide.

O, might I like those breezes be, And touch that arching brow, I'd dwell forever on the sea Where ye are floating now.

The boat goes tilting on the waves,
The waves go tilting by;
There dips the duck,—her back she laves;
O'erhead the sca-gulls fly.

Now. like the gulls that dart for prey, The little vessel stoops; Now, rising, shoots along her way, Like them, in easy swoops.

The sunlight falling on her sheet,
It glitters like the drift,
Sparkling, in scorn of summer's heat,
High up some mountain rift.

The winds are fresh; she's driving fast Upon the bending tide; The crinkling sail, and crinkling mast, Go with her side by side.

Why dies the breeze away so soon?
Why hangs the pennant down?
The sea is glass; the sun at noon.
Nay, lady, do not frown;

For, see, the winged fisher's plume Is painted on the sea; Below, a check of lovely bloom. Whose eyes look up to thee?

She similes; thou need'st must smile on her And see, beside her face, A rich, white cloud that doth not stir: What beauty, and what grace!

And pictured beach of yellow sand, And peaked rock and hill, Change the smooth sea to fairy-land; How lovely and how still!

^{*} The name given to a foaming rapid on the Upper Ottawa River,

From that far isle the thresher's flail Strikes close upon the ear; The leaping fish, the swinging sail Of yonder sloop, sound near.

The parting sun sends out a glow
Across the placid bay,
Touching with glory all the show. —
A breeze! Up helm! Away!

Cereening to the wind, they reach,
With laugh and call, the shore.
"hey've left their footprints on the beach,
But them I hear no more.

RICHARD HENRY DANA.

THE ANGLER'S TRYSTING-TREE.

Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing!
Meet the morn upon the lea;
Are the emeralds of the spring
On the angler's trysting-tree?
Tell, sweet thrushes, tell to me!
Are there buds on our willow-tree?
Buds and birds on our trysting-tree?

Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing!
Have you met the honey-bee,
Circling upon rapid wing,
Round the angler's trysting-tree?
Up, sweet thrushes, up and see!
Are there bees at our willow-tree?
Birds and bees at the trysting-tree?

Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing?
Are the fountains gushing free?
Is the south-wind wandering
Through the angler's trysting-tree?
Up, sweet thrushes, tell to me!
Is there wind up our willow-tree?
Wind or calm at our trysting-tree?

Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing!
Wile us with a merry glee
To the flowery haunts of spring, —
To the angler's trysting-tree.
Tell, sweet thrushes, tell to me!
Are there flowers 'neath our willow-tree
Spring and flowers at the trysting-tree?
THOMAS TOD STODDARD.

IN PRAISE OF ANGLING.

QUIVERING fears, heart-tearing cares, Anxious sighs, untimely tears, Fly, fly to courts, Fly to fond worldlings' sports, Where strained sardonic smiles are glozing still,
And grief is forced to laugh against her will,
Where mirth's but mummery,
And sorrows only real be,

Fly from our country pastimes, fly,
Sad troops of human misery;
Come, serene looks,
Clear as the crystal brooks,
Or the pure azured heaven that smiles to see
The rich attendance on our poverty;
Peace and a secure mind,
Which all men seek, we only find.

Abusèd mortals! did you know
Where joy, heart's ease, and comforts grow,
You'd scorn proud towers
And seek them in these bowers,
Where winds, sometimes, our woods perhaps may shake,

But blustering care could never tempest make;
Nor murmurs e'er come nigh us,
Saving of fountains that glide by us.

Here's no fantastic mask or dance,
But of our kids that frisk and prance;
Nor wars are seen,
Unless upon the green
Two harmless lambs are butting one the other,
Which done, both bleating run, each to his mother;
And wounds are never found,
Save what the ploughshare gives the ground.

Here are no entrapping baits
To hasten to, too hasty fates;
Unless it be
The fond credulity
Of silly fish, which (worldling like) still look Upon the bait, but never on the hook;
Nor envy, 'less among
The birds, for price of their sweet song.

Go, let the diving negro seek

For gems, hid in some forlorn creek:

We all pearls scorn
Save what the dewy morn

Congeals upon each little spire of grass,

Which careless shepherds beat down as they pass;

And gold ne'er here appears,

Save what the yellow Ceres bears.

Blest silent groves, O, may you be, Forever, mirth's best nursery! May pure contents Forever pitch their tents Upon these downs, these meads, these rocks, these mountains '

And poace still slumber by these purling fountains,

Which we may every year Meet, when we come a-fishing here.

SIR HENRY WOTTON.

THE ANGLER.

O THE gallant fisher's life,
It is the best of any!
'T is full of pleasure, void of strife,
And 't is beloved by many;

Other joys
Are but toys;

Only this Lawful is;

For our skill

Breeds no ill,

But content and pleasure.

In a morning, up we rise,
Ere Aurora's peeping;
Drink a cup to wash our eyes,
Leave the sluggard sleeping;

Then we go
To and fro,
With our knacks
At our backs,
To such streams
As the Thumes,
If we have the leisure.

When we please to walk abroad For our recreation, In the fields is our abode,

Full of delectation,
Where, in a brook,
With a hook, —
Or a lake, —
Fish we take;

There we sit,

For a bit, Till we fish entangle.

We have gentles in a horn,
We have paste and worms too;
We can watch both night and morn,
Suffer rain and storms too,

None do here
Use to swear:
Oaths do fray
Fish away;
We sit still,
Watch our quill:
Fishers must not wrangle,

If the sun's excessive heat
Make our bodies swelter,
To an osier hedge we get,
For a friendly shelter;
Where, in a dike,
Perch or pike,
Roach or dace,
We do chase,
Bleak or gudgeon,
Without grudging;

Or we sometimes pass an hour Under a green willow, That defends us from a shower, Making earth our pillow; Where we may

We are still contented.

Where we may Think and pray,
Before death
Stops our breath;
Other joys
Are but toys,
And to be lamented.

IOHN CHALKHILL

THE ANGLER'S WISH.

I in these flowery meads would be,
These crystal streams should solace me;
To whose hairmonious bubbling noise
I, with my angle, would rejoice,
Sit here, and see the turtle-dove
Court his chaste mate to acts of love;

Or, on that bank, feel the west-wind Breathe health and plenty; please my mind, To see sweet dew-drops kiss these flowers, And then washed off by April showers;

Here, hear my Kenna * sing a song: There, see a blackbird feed her young,

Or a laverock build her nest;
Here, give my weary spirits rest,
And raise my low-pitched thoughts above
Earth, or what poor mortals love.
Thus, free from lawsuits, and the noise

Thus, free from lawsuits, and the noise Of princes' courts, I would rejoice;

Or, with my Bryan and a book, Loiter long days near Shawford brook; There sit by him, and cat my meat; There see the sun both rise and set; There bid good morning to next day; There meditate my time away;

And angle on; and beg to have
A quiet passage to a welcome grave.

IZAAK WALTON.

* "Kenna," the name of his supposed mistress, seems to have been formed from the name of his wife, which was Ken.

ANGLING.

FROM "THE SEASONS: SPRING."

Just in the dubious point, where with the pool Is mixed the trembling stream, or where it boils Around the stone, or from the hollowed bank Reverted plays in undulating flow, There throw, nice-judging, the delusive fly, And, as you lead it round in artful curve, With eye attentive mark the springing game. Straight as above the surface of the flood They wanton rise, or urged by hunger leap, Then fix, with gentle twitch, the barbed hook; Some lightly tossing to the grassy bank, And to the shelving shore slow dragging some, With various hand proportioned to then force. If yet too young, and easily deceived, A worthless prey scarce bends your plant rod, Hun, pitcous of his youth, and the short space He has enjoyed the vital light of heaven, Soft disengage, and back into the stream The speckled infant throw. But should you lure From his dark haunt, beneath the tangled roots Of pendent trees, the monarch of the brook, Behooves you then to ply your finest art Long time he, following cautious, scaus the fly, And oft attempts to seize it, but as oft The dimpled water speaks his jealous fear At last, while haply o'er the shaded sun Passes a cloud, he desperate takes the death, With sullen plunge. At once he darts along, Deep-struck, and runs out all the lengthened line; Then seeks the farthest ooze, the sheltering weed, The caverned bank, his old secure abode, And flies aloft, and flounces round the pool, Indignant of the guile. With yielding hand, That feels him still, yet to his furious course Gives way, you, now retuing, following now Across the stream, exhaust his idle rage, Till, floating broad upon his breathless side, And to his fate abandoned, to the shore You gayly drag your unresisting prize.

JAMLS THOMSON.

THE ANGLER.

Bur look! o'er the fall see the angler stand, Swinging his rod with skillul hand; The fly at the end of his gossamer line

Swims through the sun like a summer moth, Till, dropt with a careful precision fine,

It touches the pool beyond the froth. A-sudden, the speckled hawk of the brook Darts from his covert and seizes the hook. Swift spins the reel; with easy slip The line pays out, and the rod, like a whip, Lithe and arrowy, tapering, slim, Is bent to a bow o'er the brooklet's brim, Till the trout leaps up in the sun, and flings The spray from the flash of his finny wings; Then falls on his side, and, drunken with fright,

Is towed to the shore like a staggering barge, Till beached at last on the sandy marge, Where he dies with the hues of the morning light, While his sides with a cluster of stars are bright. The angler in his basket lays

The constellation, and goes his ways.

THOMAS B' CHANAN READ.

SWIMMING

FROM "THE IWO FOSCARI"

How many a time have I Cloven, with arm still lustice, breast more daring, The wave all roughened; with a swimmer's stroke Flinging the billows back from my dienched hair, And laughing from my lip the audacious brine, Which kissed it like a wine-cup, rising o'er The waves as they arose, and prouder still The loftier they uplifted me, and oft, In wantonness of spirit, plunging down Into their green and glassy gults, and making My way to shells and sea-weed, all unseen By those above, till they waxed fearful; then Returning with my grasp full of such tokens As showed that I had searched the deep, exult-

With a far-dashing stroke, and drawing deep The long-suspended breath, again I spurned The foam which broke around me, and pursued My track like a sea-bird - I was a boy then.

LORD BYRON

BATHING.

I ROM "THE SLASONS . SUMMER"

THE sprightly youtn Speeds to the well-known pool, whose crystal depth A sandy bottom shows. A while he stands Gazing th' inverted landscape, half afraid To meditate the blue profound below;

Then plunges headlong down the circling flood. His ebon tresses and his rosy cheek Instant emerge; and through the obedient wave, At each short breathing by his lip repelled, With arms and legs according well, he makes, As humor leads, an easy-winding path; While from his polished sides a dewy light Effuses on the pleased spectators round.

This is the purest exercise of health,
The kind refresher of the summer-heats;
Nor, when cold winter keens the brightening flood,

Would I weak-shivering linger on the brink. Thus life redoubles, and is oft preserved, By the bold swimmer, in the swift elapse Of accident disastrous. Hence the limbs Knit into force; and the same Roman arm, That rose victorious o'er the conquered earth, First learned, while tender, to subdue the wave. Even from the body's purity, the mind Receives a secret sympathetic aid.

JAMES THOMSON

OUR SKATER BELLE.

ALONG the frozen lake she comes
In linking crescents, light and fleet;
The ice-imprisoned Undine hums
A welcome to her little feet.

I see the jaunty hat, the plume Swerve birdlike in the joyous gale, — The cheeks lit up to burning bloom, The young eyes sparkling through the veil.

The quick breath parts her laughing lips,
The white neck shines through tossing curls;
Her vesture gently sways and dips,
As on she speeds in shell-like whirls.

Men stop and smile to see her go;
They gaze, they smile in pleased surprise;
They ask her name; they long to show
Some silent friendship in their eyes.

She glances not; she passes on;
Her steely footfall quicker rings;
She guesses not the benison
Which follows her on noiseless wings.

Smooth be her ways, secure her tread
Along the devious lines of hie,
From grace to grace successive led,
A noble maiden, nobler wife!

ANONYMOUS

SLEIGH SONG.

JINGLE, jingle, clear the way,
"T is the merry, merry sleigh!
As it swiftly scuds along,
Hear the burst of happy song;
See the gleam of glances bright,
Flashing o'er the pathway white!
Jingle, jingle, past it flies,
Sending shafts from hooded eyes,—

Roguish archers, I'll be bound, Little heeding whom they wound; See them, with capricious pranks, Ploughing now the drifted banks; Jingle, jingle, mid the glee Who among them cares for me? Jingle, jingle, on they go, Capes and bonnets white with snow, Not a single robe they fold To protect them from the cold; Jingle, jingle, mid the storm, Fun and frohe keep them warm; Jingle, jingle, down the hills, O'er the meadows, past the mills, Now 't is slow, and now 't is fast; Winter will not always last. Jingle, jingle, clear the way! 'T is the merry, merry sleigh.

G. W. PETTER.

FRAGMENTS.

THE SOUL OF ADVENTURE.

Fierce warres, and faithfull loves shall moralize my song.

Laèrie Queene, Rook i , Proem.

SPENSER

Send danger from the east unto the west, So honor cross it from the north to south, And let them grapple \cdot O' the blood more stirs To rouse a lion than to start a hare!

By Heaven, methinks, it were an easy leap, To pluck bright honor from the pale-faced moon, Or dive into the bottom of the deep, Where fathom-line could never touch the ground. And pluck up drowned honor by the locks.

King Henry IV., Part I. Act 1 Sc. 3. SHAKESPEARB

ADVENTUROUS DARING.

On his bold visage middle age
Had slightly pressed his signet sage,
Yet had not quenched the open truth,
And fiery vehemence of youth;
Forward and frolic glee was there,
The will to do, the soul to dare,
The sparkling glance, soon blown to fire
Of hasty love or headlong ire.

The Lady of the Lake, Cant i

SCOTT

Dar'st thou, Cassius, now Leap in with me into this angry flood, And swim to yonder point?— Upon the word, Accoutred as I was, I plungèd in, And bade him follow.

Julius Casar, Act l. Sc. &

SHAKESPEARE.

Through thick and thin, both over bank and bush, In hope her to attain by hook or crook.

Faèrie Queene, Book ni, Cant. 1 SPRNSER.

The intent and not the deed Is in our power; and therefore who dares greatly Does greatly.

Barbarossa

J. BROWN

Out of this nettle, danger, we pluck this flower, King Henry IV. Part I. Act il Sc 3. SHAKESPEARE.

"You fool! I tell you no one means you harm." "So much the better," Juan said, "for them." Don Juan. BYRON.

Horsemanship.

I saw young Harry, with his beaver on, His cuisses on his thighs, gallantly armed, Rise from the ground like feathered Mercury, And vaulted with such ease into his seat, As if an angel dropped down from the clouds, To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus, And witch the world with noble horsemanship. King Henry IV., Part I Act IV. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE

"Stand, Bayard, stand!" The steed obeyed, With arching neck and bended head, And glancing eye, and quivering ear, As if he loved his lord to hear. No foot Fitz-James in stirrup staid, No grasp upon the saddle laid, But wreathed his left hand in the mane, And lightly bounded from the plain, Turned on the horse his armed heel, And stirred his courage with the steel. Bounded the fiery steed in air, The rider sate erect and fair. Then, like a bolt from steel cross-bow Forth launched, along the plain they go. The Lady of the Lake, Cant v. SCOTT.

After many strains and heaves, He got up to the saddle eaves, From whence he vanlted into th' seat With so much vigor, strength, and heat, That he had almost tumbled over With his own weight, but did recover, By laying hold of tail and mane, Which oft he used instead of rein.

DR. S. BUTLER. Hudibras.

HUNTING.

Better to hunt in fields for health unbought, Than fee the doctor for a nauseous draught. The wise for cure on exercise depend; God never made his work for man to mend.

Cymon and lphigenia.

DRYDEN.

Hunting is the noblest exercise, Makes men laborious, active, wise, Brings health, and doth the spirits delight, It helps the hearing and the sight; It teacheth arts that never slip The memory, good horsemanship, Search, sharpness, courage and defence, And chaseth all ill habits hence. Masones.

BILN JONSON

My hoarse-sounding horn Invites thee to the chase, the sport of kings; Image of war without its guilt. The Chase W. SOMERVILLE.

Contusion hazarding of neck or spine, Which rural gentlemen call sport divine. Needless Alarm. COWPER.

My hawk is tired of perch and hood, My idle greyhound loathes his food My horse is weary of his stall, And I am sick of captive thrall. I wish I were as I have been Hunting the hart in forests green, With bended bow and bloodhound free, For that 's the life is meet for me! Lay of the Imprisoned Huntsman The Lady of the Lake,

The healthy huntsman, with a cheerful horn, Summons the dogs and greets the dappled morn. Rural Sports J. GAY

Why, let the strucken deer go weep, The hart ungalled play; For some must watch, while some must sleep; Thus runs the world away. Hamlet, Act m. Sc 2. SHAKESPEARE

SHOOTING

See from the brake the whirring pheasant springs, And mounts exulting on triumphant wings; Short is his joy; he feels the hery wound, Flutters in blood, and panting beats the ground. Windsor Forest.

But as some muskets so contrive it, As oft to miss the mark they drive at, And though well aimed at duck or plover, Bear wide, and kick their owners over. McFingal, Cant. J. TRUMBULL

SWIMMING.

The torrent roared; and we did buffet it With lusty sinews, throwing it aside, And stemming it with hearts of controversy. Julius Casar, Act L Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE. I saw him beat the surges under him, And ride upon their backs; he trod the water, Whose enmity he flung aside, and breasted The surge most swoln that met him.

The Tempest, Act ii. Sc. z.

SHAKESPEARE.

Angling.

All's fish they get That cometh to net.

Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry.

T. TUSSER

In genial spring, beneath the quivering shade, Where cooling vapors breathe along the mead, The patient fisher takes his silent stand, Intent, his angle trembling in his hand; With looks unmoved, he hopes the scaly breed, And eyes the dancing cork, and bending reed. Windsor Forest

Now is the time. While yet the dark-brown water aids the guile, To tempt the trout, The well-dissembled fly, The rod fine tapering with elastic spring, Snatched from the hoary steed the floating line, And all thy slender wat'ry stores prepare.

The Seasons Spring

THOMSON.

His angle-rod made of a sturdy oak; His line a cable which in storms ne'er broke; His hook he baited with a dragon's tail. And sat upon a rock, and bobbed for whale.

Upon a Grant's Angling.

W KING

SKATING.

All shod with steel, We hissed along the polished ice, in games Confederate, imitative of the chase And woodland pleasures, - the resounding horn, The pack loud-chiming, and the hunted hare. So through the darkness and the cold we flew, And not a voice was idle; with the din Smitten, the precipices rang aloud; The leafless trees and every icy ciag Trukled like iron.

Influence of Natural Objects

WORDSWORTH.

RURAL LIFE

Rustic mirth goes round; The simple joke that takes the shepherd's heart, Easily pleased; the long loud laugh sincere; The kiss snatched hasty from the sidelong maid, On purpose guardless, or pretending sleep; The leap, the slap, the haul; and, shook to notes Of native music, the respondent dance. Thus jocund fleets with them the winter night. The Scasons Winter LHOMSON

God made the country, and man made the town; What wonder then, that health and virtue, gifts That can alone make sweet the bitter draught That life holds out to all, should most abound And least be threatened in the fields and groves. The Task, Brok 1 . The Sofa. COMPER.

EMERSON

CONCORD

"FARTHER horizons every year."
O tossing pines, which surge and wave
Above the poet's just made grave,
And waken for his sleeping ear
The music that he loved to hear,
Through summer's sun and winter's chill,

With purpose staunch and dauntless will.

Sped by a noble discontent
You climb toward the blue firmament:
Climb as the winds climb, mounting high
The viewless ladders of the sky;
Spurning our lower atmosphere,
Heavy with sighs and dense with night,
And urging upward, year by year,
To ampler air, diviner light.

"Farther horizons every year."
Beneath you pass the tribes of men;
Your gracious boughs o'ershadow them.
You hear, but do not seem to heed,
Their jarring speech, their faulty creed.
Your roots are firmly set in soil
Won from their humming paths of toil;
Content their lives to watch and share,
To serve them, shelter, and upbear,
Yet but to win an upward way
And larger gift of heaven than they,
Benignant view and attitude,
Close knowledge of celestial sign;
Still working for all earthly good,
While pressing on to the Divine.

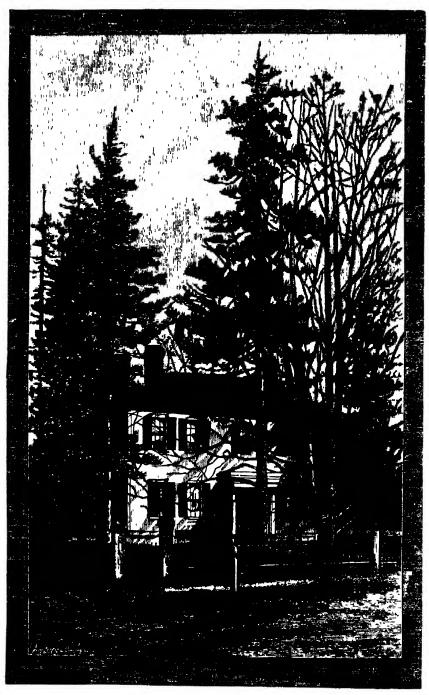

"Farther horizons every year."
So he, by reverent hands just laid
Beneath your layers of waving shade,
Climbed as you climb the upward way,
Knowing not boundary nor stay.
His eyes surcharged with heavenly lights,

His senses steeped in heavenly sights,
His soul attuned to heavenly keys,
How should he pause for rest or ease,
Or turn his winged feet again
To share the common feasts of men?
He blessed them with his word and smile

But, still above their fickle moods, Wooing, constraining him, the while Beckoned the shining altitudes.

"Farther horizons every year."
To what immeasurable height,
What clear irradiance of light,
What far and all-transcendent goal,
Hast thou now risen, O steadfast soul!
We may not follow with our eyes
To where the further pathway lies;
Nor guess what vision, vast and free,
God keeps in store for souls like thee.
But still the sentry pines, which wave
Their boughs above thy honored grave,
Shall be thy emblems brave and fit,
Firm rooted in the stalwart sod;
Blessing the earth, while spurning it,
Content with nothing short of God.

SUSAN COOLIDGE

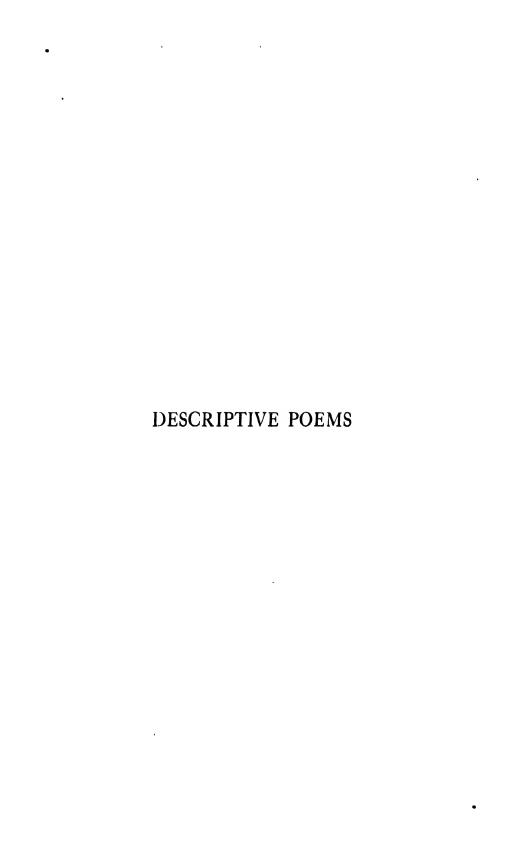

EMERSON'S HOME AT CONCORD.

—— dell and crag,

Hollow and lake, hillside and pine-arcade,

Are touched with genius.

But perhaps I those had than & hums the apare We shall walk we know though the Joshen plain Ve More had, to how in the brus of the soin With the gases bents c'express, be that stains no how by the Letting main both the dark wash obrine c'erbeas. blue the last familles rais When the lea guer up her dead

DESCRIPTIVE POEMS.

A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER.

FROM "ENDYMION," BOOK I.

A THING of beauty is a joy forever:
Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness; but still will keep
A bower quiet for us, and a sleep
Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breathing.

Therefore, on every morrow, are we wreathing A flowery band to bind us to the earth, Spite of despondence, of the inhuman dearth Of noble natures, of the gloomy days, Of all the unhealthy and o'er-darkened ways Made for our searching : yes, in spite of all, Some shape of beauty moves away the pall From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon, Trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon For simple sheep; and such are daffodils With the green world they live in; and clear rills That for themselves a cooling covert make 'Gainst the hot season; the mid-forest brake, Rich with a sprinkling of fair musk-rose blooms: And such too is the grandeur of the dooms We have imagined for the mighty dead; All lovely tales that we have heard or read: An endless fountain of immortal drink, Pouring unto us from the heaven's brink. JOHN KEATS.

MELROSE ABBEY.

FROM "THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL," CANTO II

If thou wouldst view fair Melrose aright, 30 visit it by the pale moonlight;
For the gay beams of lightsome day
Gild, but to flout, the ruins gray.
When the broken arches are black in night,
And each shafted oriel glimmers white;
When the cold light's uncertain shower
Streams on the ruined central tower;
When buttress and buttress, alternately,
Seem framed of ebon and ivory;

When silver edges the imagery,
And the scrolls that teach thee to live and die;
When distant Tweed is heard to rave,
And the owlet to hoot o'er the dead man's grave,
Then go, — but go alone the while, —
Then view St. David's ruined pile;
And, home returning, soothly swear,
Was never scene so sad and fair!

The pillared arches were over their head, And beneath their feet were the bones of the dead.

Spreading herbs and flowerets bright Glistened with the dew of night; Nor herb nor floweret glistened there, But was carved in the cloister-arches as fair. The monk gazed long on the lovely moon, Then into the night he looked forth;

And red and bright the streamers light Were dancing in the glowing north. So had he seen, in fair Castile, The youth in glittering squadrons start,

Sudden the flying jennet wheel,

And hurl the unexpected dart.

He knew, by the streamers that shot so brigh.,

That spirits were riding the northern light.

By a steel-clenched postern door,
They entered now the chancel tall;
The darkened roof rose high aloof
On pillars lofty and light and small;
The keystone, that locked each ribbed aisle,
Was a fleur-de-lys, or a quatre-feuille:
The corbells were carved grotesque and grim;
And the pillars, with clustered shafts so trim,
With base and with capital flourished around,
Seemed bundles of lances which garlands had bound.

Full many a scutcheon and banner, riven, Shook to the cold night-wind of heaven, Around the screened altar's pale; And there the dying lamps did burn, Before thy low and lonely urn, O gallant Chief of Otterburne!

And thine, dark Knight of Liddesdale!

O fading honors of the dead! O high ambition, lowly laid!

The moon on the east oriel shone Through slender shafts of shapely stone,

By foliaged tracery combined; Thou wouldst have thought some fairy's hand 'Twixt poplars straight the osier wand

In many a freakish knot had twined;
Then framed a spell, when the work was done,
And changed the willow wreaths to stone.
The silver light, so pale and faint,
Showed many a prophet, and many a saint,

Whose image on the glass was dyed; Full in the midst, his Cross of Red Triumphant Michael brandished,

And trampled the Apostate's pride.
The moonbeam kissed the holy pane,
And threw on the pavement a bloody stain.
SIR WALTER SCOTT.

NORHAM CASTLE.

PROM "MARMION," CANTO I.

[The ruinous castle of Norham (anciently called Ubbanford) is situated on the southern bank of the Tweed, about six nulses above Berwick, and where that river is still the boundary between England and Scotland. The extent of its ruins, as well as its historical importance, shows it to have been a place of magnificance as well as strength. Edward I, resided there when he was created umpire of the dispute concerning the Scotlan succession. It was repeatedly taken and retaken during the wars between England and Scotland, and, indeed, scarce any happened in which it had not a principal share. Norham Castle is situated on a steep bank which overhangs the river. The ruins of the castle are at present considerable, as well as picturesque. They consist of a large shattered tower, with many vaults, and fragiments of other edifices enclosed within an outward wall of great circuit.

DAY set on Norham's castled steep,
And Tweed's fair river, broad and deep,
And Cheviot's mountains lone:
The battled towers, the donjon keep,
The loop-hole grates where captives weep,
The flanking walls that round it sweep,
In yellow lustre shone.
The warriors on the turrets high,
Moving athwart the evening sky,
Seemed forms of giant height;
Their armor, as it caught the rays,
Flashed back again the western blaze
In lines of dazzling light.

St. George's banner, broad and gay,
Now faded, as the fading ray
Less bright, and less, was flung;
The evening gale had scarce the power
To wave it on the donjon tower,
So heavily it hung.

The scouts had parted on their search,
The castle gates were barred;
Above the gloomy portal arch,
Timing his footsteps to a march,

The warder kept his guard; Low humming, as he paced along, Some ancient Border-gathering song.

A distant trampling sound he hears; He looks abroad, and soon appears, O'er Horneliff hill, a plump of spears, Beneath a pennon gay; A horseman, darting from the crowd, Like lightning from a summer cloud, Spurs on his mettled courser proud Defore the dark array.

Beneath the sable palisade,
That closed the castle barricade,

His bugle-horn he blew; The warder hasted from the wall, And warned the captain in the hall, For well the blast he knew;

And joyfully that knight did call To sewer, squire, and seneschal.

"Now broach ye a pipe of Malvoisie, Bring pasties of the doc, And quickly make the entrance free, And bid my heralds ready be, And every minstrel sound his glee,

And all our trumpets blow; And, from the platform, space ye not To fire a noble salvo-shot:

Lord Marmion waits below."
Then to the castle's lower ward
Sped forty yeomen tall,
The iron-studded gates unbarred,
Raised the portcullis' ponderous guard,
The lofty palisade unsparred,
And let the drawbridge fall.

Along the bridge Lord Marmion rode, Proudly his red-roan charger trode, His helm hung at the saddle-bow; Well by his visage you might know He was a stalworth knight, and keen, And had in many a battle been. The scar on his brown cheek revealed A token true of Bosworth field; His cyebrow dark, and eye of fire, Showed spirit proud, and prompt to ire; Yet lines of thought upon his cheek Did deep design and counsel speak. His forehead, by his casque worn bare, His thick mustache, and curly hair, Coal-black, and grizzled here and there, But more through toil than age;

His square-turned joints, and strength of limb, Showed him no carpet-knight so trim, But in close fight a champion grim,
In camps a leader sage.

Well was he armed from head to heel,
In mail and plate of Milan steel;
But his strong helm, of mighty cost,
Was all with burnished gold embossed;
Amid the plumage of the crest,
A falcon hovered on her nest,
With wings outspread, and forward breast;
E'en such a falcon, on his shield,
Soared sable in an azure field:
The golden legend bore aright,
TAho therks at me to beath is bight.
Blue was the changer's broidered rein;
Blue ribbons decked his arching mane;
The knightly housing's ample fold
Was velvet blue, and trapped with gold.

Behind him rode two gallant squires
Of noble name and knightly sires;
They burned the gilded spurs to claim;
For well could each a war-horse tame,
Could draw the bow, the sword could sway,
And lightly bear the ring away;
Nor less with courteous precepts stored,
Could dance in hall, and carve at board,
And frame love-ditties passing rare,
And sing them to a lady fair.

Four men-at-arms came at their backs, With halbert, bill, and battle-axe; They bore Lord Marmion's lance so strong, And led his sumpter-mules along, And ambling palfrey, when at need Him listed case his battle-steed. The last and trustiest of the four On high his forky pennon bore; Like swallow's tail, in shape and hue, Fluttered the streamer glossy blue, Where, blazoned sable, as before, The towering falcon seemed to soar. Last, twenty yeomen, two and two, In hosen black, and jerkins blue, With falcons broidered on each breast, Attended on their lord's behest: Each, chosen for an archer good, Knew hunting craft by lake or wood; Each one a six-foot bow could bend, And far a cloth-yard shaft could send; Each held a boar-spear tough and strong, And at their belts their quivers rung. Their dusty palfreys and array Showed they had marched a weary way.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

ALNWICK CASTLE.

Home of the Percy's high-born race,
Home of their beautiful and brave,
Alike their birth and burial place,
Their cradle and their grave!
Still sternly o'er the castle gate
Their house's Lion stands in state,
As in his proud departed hours;
And warriors frown in stone on high,
And feudal banners "flout the sky"
Above his princely towers.

A gentle hill its side inclines,
Lovely in England's fadeless green,
To meet the quiet stream which winds
Through this romantic scene
As silently and sweetly still
As when, at evening, on that hill,
While summer's wind blew soft and low,
Seated by gallant Hotspur's side,
His Katherine was a happy bride,
A thousand years ago.

I wandered through the lofty halls
Trod by the Percys of old fame,
And traced upon the chapel walls
Each high, heroic name,
From him who once his standard set
Where now, o'er mosque and minaret,
Glitter the Sultan's crescent moons,
To him who, when a younger son,
Fought for King George at Lexington,
A major of diagoons.

That last half-stanza, — it has dashed
From my warm hp the sparkling cup;
The light that o'er my eyebeam flashed,
The power that bore my spirit up
Above this bank-note world, is gone;
And Alnwick 's but a market town,
And this, alas! its market day,
And beasts and borderers throng the way;
Oxon and bleating lambs in lots,
Northumbrian boors and plaided Scots
Men in the coal and cattle line;
From Teviot's bard and hero land,
From royal Berwick's beach of sand,
From Wooller, Morpeth, Hexham, and Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

These are not the romantic times
So beautiful in Spenser's rhymes,
So dazzling to the dreaming boy;
Ours are the days of fact, not fable,
Of knights, but not of the round table,
Of Bailie Jarvie, not Rob Roy;
"Tis what "Our President," Monroe,

Has called "the era of good feeling;"
The Highlander, the bitterest foe
To modern laws, has felt their blow,
Consented to be taxed, and vote,
And put on pantaloons and coat,
And leave off cattle-stealing:

And leave off cattle-stealing: Lord Stafford mines for coal and salt, The Duke of Norfolk deals in malt,

The Douglas in red herrings;
And noble name and cultured land,
Pulace, and park, and vassal band,
Are powerless to the notes of hand
Of Rothschild or the Barings.

The age of bargaining, said Burke,
Has come: to-day the turbaned Turk (Sleep, Richard of the lion heart!
Sleep on, nor from your cerements start
Is England's friend and fast ally;
The Moslem tramples on the Greek,
And on the Cross and altar-stone,
And Christendom looks tamely on,
And hears the Christian maiden shriek,
And sees the Christian father due;
And not a sabre-blow is given
For Greece and fame, for faith and heaven,
By Europe's craven chivalry.

You'll ask if yet the Percy lives
In the armed pomp of feudal state.
The present representatives
Of Hotspur and his "gentle Kate,"

Are some half-dozen serving-men
In the drab coat of William Penn;

A chambermaid, whose lip and eye, And cheek, and brown hair, bright and curling, Spoke nature's aristocracy; And one, half groom, half seneschal,

Who bowed me through court, bower, and hall, From donjon keep to turret wall,

For ten-and-sixpence sterling.

FITZ-GREENE HALLECK.

SONNET.

COMPOSED UPON WESTMINSTER BRIDGE, LONDON, 1802.

EARTH has not anything to show more fair; Dull would he be of soul who could pass by A sight so touching in its majesty:
This city now doth, like a garment, wear The beauty of the morning; silent, bare, Ships, towers, domes, theatres, and temples lie Open unto the fields, and to the sky, All bright and glittering in the smokeless air. Never did sun more beautifully steep In his first splendor valley, rock, or hill;

Ne'er saw I, never felt, a calm so deep!
The river glideth at his own sweet will:
Dear God! the very houses seem asleep;
And all that mighty heart is lying still!
WILLIAM WORDSWORTH

NUREMBERG.

In the valley of the Pegnitz, where across broad meadow-lands

Rise the blue Franconian mountains, Nuremberg, the ancient, stands.

Quaint old town of toil and traffic, quaint old town of art and song,

Memories haunt thy pointed gables like the rooks that round them throng:

Memories of the Middle Ages, when the emperors rough and bold

Had their dwellings in thy castle, time-defying, centuries old;

And thy brave and thrifty burghers boasted, in their uncouth rhyme,

That their great, imperial city stretched its hand to every clime.

In the court-yard of the castle, bound with many an iron band.

Stands the mighty linden planted by Queen Cunigunde's hand;

On the square, the oriel window, where in old heroic days

Sat the poet Melchior, singing Kaiser Maximilian's praise.

Everywhere I see around me rise the wondrous world of art;

Fountains wrought with richest sculpture standing in the common mart;

And above cathedral doorways saints and bishops carved in stone,

By a former age commissioned as apostles to our own.

In the church of sainted Sebald sleeps enshrined his holy dust,

And in bronze the Twelve Apostles guard from age to age their trust:

In the church of sainted Lawrence stands a pix of sculpture rare,

Like the foamy sheaf of fountains, rising through the painted air. Here, when art was still religion, with a simple | Vanished is the ancient splendor, and before my reverent heart.

Lived and labored Albrecht Durer, the Evangelist of Art;

Hence in silence and in sorrow, toiling still with busy hand.

Like an emigrant he wandered, seeking for the Better Land.

Emigravit is the inscription on the tombstone where he lies,

Dead he is not - but departed - for the artist never dies:

Fairer seems the ancient city, and the sunshine scens more fair

That he once has trod its pavement, that he once has breathed its air.

Through these streets so broad and stately, these obscure and dismal lanes,

Walked of yore the Mastersingers, chanting rude poetic strains;

From remote and sunless suburbs came they to the friendly guild,

Building nests in Fame's great temple, as in spouts the swallows build.

As the weaver plied the shuttle, wove he too the mystic thyme,

And the smith his iron measures hammered to the anvil's chime.

Thanking God, whose boundless wisdom makes the flowers of poesy bloom

In the forge's dust and cinders, in the tissues of the loom.

Here Hans Sachs, the cobbler-poet, laureate of the gentle craft, Wisest of the Twelve Wise Masters, in huge folios sang and laughed.

But his house is now an alchouse, with a nicely sanded floor.

And a garland in the window, and his face above the door,

Painted by some humble artist, as in Adam Puschman's song,

As the old man gray and dovelike, with his great beard white and long.

And at night the swart mechanic comes to drown his cark and care.

Quaffing ale from pewter tankards, in the master's antique chair.

dreamy eye

Wave these mingling shapes and figures, like a faded tapestry.

Not thy Councils, not thy Kaisers, win for thee the world's regard,

But thy painter, Albrecht Durer, and Hans Sachs, thy cobbler-bard.

Thus, O Nuremberg, a wanderer from a region

As he paced thy streets and court-yards, sang in thought his careless lay;

Gathering from the pavement's crevice, as a floweret of the soil,

The nobility of labor, — the long pedigree of toil. HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

ITALY.

FROM "ITALY."

O ITALY, how beautiful thou art! Yet I could weep, - for thou art lying, alas! Low in the dust; and they who come admire

As we admire the beautiful in death. Thine was a dangerous gift, the gift of beauty. Would thou hadst less, or wert as once thou wast, Inspiring awe in those who now enslave thee! But why despair? Twice hast thou lived already, Twice shone among the nations of the world, As the sun shines among the lesser lights Of heaven; and shalt again. The hour shall

When they who think to bind the ethereal spirit, Who, like the eagle cowering o'er his prey, Watch with quick eye, and strike and strike again If but a sinew vibrate, shall confess Their wisdom folly.

SAMUEL ROCKES.

VENICE.

FROM "ITALY."

THERE is a glorious City in the Sea. The Sea is in the broad, the narrow streets, Ebbing and flowing; and the salt sea-weed Clings to the marble of her palaces. No track of men, no footsteps to and fro, Lead to her gates. The path lies o'er the Sea, Invisible; and from the land we went, As to a floating City, - steering in, And gliding up her streets as in a dream, So smoothly, silently, - by many a dome

Mosque-like, and many a stately portico,
The statues ranged along an azure sky;
By many a pile in more than Eastern splendor,
Of old the residence of merchant kings;
The fronts of some, though Time had shattered
them,

Still glowing with the richest hues of art, As though the wealth within them had run o'er.

A few in fear.

Flying away from him whose boast it was That the grass grow not where his horse had tool,

Gave birth to Venico. Like the waterfowl,
They built their nests among the ocean waves;
And where the sands were shifting, as the wind Blew from the north, the south; where they that came

Had to make sure the ground they stood upon, Rose, like an exhalation, from the deep, A vast Metropolis, with glittering spires, With theatres, basilicas adorned; A scene of light and glory, a dominion, That has endured the longest among men.

And whence the talisman by which she rose Towering? 'T was found there in the barren sea. Want led to Enterprise; and, far or near, Who met not the Venetian? - now in Cairo; Ere yet the Califa came, listening to hear Its bells approaching from the Red Sca coast; Now on the Euxine, on the Sea of Azoph, In converse with the Persian, with the Russ, The Tartar; on his lowly deck receiving Pearls from the gulf of Ormus, gems from Bagdad, Eyes brighter yet, that shed the light of love From Georgia, from Circassia. Wandering round, When in the rich bazaar he saw, displayed, Treasures from unknown climes, away he went, And, travelling slowly upward, drew crelong From the well-head supplying all below; Making the Imperial City of the East Herself his tributary.

Thus did Venice rise,
Thus flourish, till the unwelcome tidings came,
That in the Tagus had arrived a fleet
From India, from the region of the Sun,
Fragrant with spices,—that a way was found,
A channel opened, and the golden stream
Turned to enrich another. Then she felt
Her strength departing, and at last she fell,
Fell in an instant, blotted out and razed;
She who had stood yet longer than the longest
Of the Four Kingdoms,—who, as in an Ark,
Had floated down amid a thousand wrecks,
Uninjured, from the Old World to the New.

SAMUEL ROGERS.

ROME.

FROM "ITALY."

I Am in Rome! Oft as the morning ray
Visits these eyes, waking at once I cry, Whence this excess of joy? What hus befallen me?

And from within a thrilling voice replies, Thou art in Rome! A thousand busy thoughts Rush on my mind, a thousand images; And I spring up as girt to run a race!

Thou art in Rome! the City that so long Reigned absolute, the mistress of the world; The mighty vision that the prophets saw, And trembled; that from nothing, from the least,

The lowliest village (what but here and there A reed-roofed cabin by a river-side?)
Grew into everything; and, year by year,
Patiently, fearlessly working her way
O'er brook and field, o'er continent and sea,
Not like the merchant with his merchandise,
Or traveller with staff and scrip exploring,
But hand to hand and foot to foot through hosts,
Through nations numberless in battle array,
Each behind each, each, when the other fell,
Up and in arms, at length subdued them all.

SAMUEL ROGERS.

COLISEUM BY MOONLIGHT.

FROM "MANFRLD," ACT III, SC. 4.

THE stars are forth, the moon above the tops Of the snow-shining mountains. — Beautiful! I linger yet with Nature, for the night Hath been to me a more familiar face Than that of man; and in her starry shade Of dim and solitary loveliness I learned the language of another world. I do remember me, that in my youth, When I was wandering, - upon such a night I stood within the Coliseum's wall, Midst the chief relics of almighty Rome. The trees which grew along the broken arches Waved dark in the blue midnight, and the stars Shone through the rents of ruin; from afar The watch-dog bayed beyond the Tiber; and More near, from out the Cæsars' palace came The owl's long cry, and, interruptedly, Of distant sentincls the fitful song Begun and died upon the gentle wind. Some cypresses beyond the time-worn breach Appeared to skirt the horizon, yet they stood Within a bowshot, - where the Cassars dwelt, And dwell the tuneless birds of night, amidst

A grove which springs through levelled battlements,

And twines its roots with the imperial hearths. Ivy usurps the laurel's place of growth ;-But the gladiators' bloody Circus stands, A noble wreck in ruinous perfection, While Cæsar's chambers and the Augustan halls Grovel on earth in indistinct decay. -And thou didst shine, thou rolling moon, upon All this, and cast a wide and tender light, Which softened down the hoar austerity Of rugged desolation, and filled up, As 't were anew, the gaps of centuries, Leaving that beautiful which still was so, And making that which was not, till the place Became religion, and the heart ran o'er With silent worship of the great of old !-The dead, but sceptred sovereigns, who still rule Our spirits from their urns.

LORD BYRON.

THE COLISEUM.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO IV.

ARCHES on arches! as it were that Rome, Collecting the chief trophies of her line, Would build up all her triumphs in one dome, Her Coliseum stands; the moonbeams shine As 't were its natural torches, for divine Should be the light which streams here, to illume

This long-explored, but still exhaustless, mine Of contemplation; and the azure gloom Of an Italian night, where the deep skies assume Hues which have words, and speak to ye of heaven.

Floats o'er this vast and wondrous monument, And shadows forth its glory. There is given Unto the things of earth, which Time hath bent, A spirit's feeling, and where he hath leant His hand, but broke his scythe, there is a power And magic in the ruined battlement,

For which the palace of the present hour

Must yield its pomp, and wait till ages are its dower.

And here the buzz of eager nations ran,
In murmured pity, or loud-roared applause,
As man was slaughtered by his fellow-man.
And wherefore slaughtered? wherefore, but because

Such were the bloody Circus' genial laws,
And the imperial pleasure. — Wherefore not?
What matters where we fall to fill the maws
Of worms, — on battle-plains or listed spot?
Both are but theatres where the chief actors rot.

I see before me the Gladiator he;
He leans upon his hand, — his manly brow
Consents to death, but conquers agony,
And his drooped head sinks gradually low, —
And through his side the last drops, ebbing slow
From the red gash, fall heavy, one by one,
Like the first of a thunder-shower; and now
The arena swims around him, — he is gone, Ere ceased the inhuman shout which hailed the wretch who won.

He heard it, but he heeded not, — his eyes Were with his heart, and that was far away. He recked not of the life he lost nor prize, But where his rude hut by the Danube lay, There were his young barbarians all at play, There was their Dacan mother, — he, their sire, Butchered to make a Roman holiday!— All this rushed with his blood. — Shall he expire,

And unavenged? Arise, ye Goths, and glut your ire!

But here, where Murder breathed her bloody steam,

And here, where buzzing nations choked the ways,

And roared or murmured like a mountain stream
Dashing or winding as its torrent strays;
Here, where the Roman millions' blame or praise
Was death or life, the playthings of a crowd,
My voice sounds much, — and fall the stars'
faint rays

On the arena void, seats crushed, walls bowed, And galleries, where my steps seem echoes strangely loud.

A ruin, — yet what ruin! from its mass
Walls, palaces, half-cities, have been reared;
Yet oft the enormous skeleton ye pass,
And marvel where the spoil could have appeared.
Hath it indeed been plundered, or but cleared?
Alas! developed, opens the decay,
When the colossal fabric's form is neared;
It will not bear the brightness of the day,
Which streams too much on all years, man, have reft away.

But when the rising moon begins to climb Its topmost arch, and gently pauses there; When the stars twinkle through the loops of time,

And the low night-breeze waves along the air The garland-forest, which the gray walls wear, Like laurels on the bald first Cæsar's head; When the light shines serene, but doth not glare,—

Then in this magic circle raise the dead; Heroes have trod this spot, — 't is on their dust ye tread. "While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall stand; When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall; And when Rome falls — the World." From our own land

Thus spake the pilgrims o'er this mighty wall In Saxon times, which we are wont to call Ancient; and these three mortal things are still On their foundations, and unaltered all; Rome and her Ruin past Redemption's skill, Rome and her Ruin past Redemption's skill, The World, the same wide den — of thieves, or what ye will.

LORD BYRON.

THE PANTHEON.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO IV.

SIMPLE, erect, severe, austere, sublime, —
Shrine of all saints and temple of all gods,
From Jove to Jesus, — spared and blest by time;
Looking tranquillity, while falls or nods
Arch, empire, each thing round thee, and man plods

His way through thorns to ashes, — glorious done!

Shalt thou not last? Time's scythe and tyrants' rods

Shiver upon thee, — sanctuary and home Of art and piety, — Pantheon! — pride of Rome!

Relic of nobler days and noblest arts!

Despoiled yet perfect, with thy circle spreads
A holiness appealing to all hearts.

To art a model; and to him who treads
Rome for the sake of ages, Glory sheds
Her light through thy sole aperture; to those Who worship, here are altars for their beads;
And they who feel for genius may repose
Their eyes on honored forms, whose busts around them close.

LORD BYRON

A DAY IN THE PAMFILI DORIA,

NEAR ROME.

Though the hills are cold and snowy, And the wind drives chill to-day, My heart goes back to a spring-time, Far, far in the past away.

And I see a quaint old city,
Weary and worn and brown,
Where the spring and the birds are so early,
And the sun in such light goes down.

I remember that old-time villa
Where our afternoons went by,
Where the suns of March flushed warmly,
And spring was in earth and sky.

Out of the mouldering city, —
Mouldering, old, and gray, —
We sped, with a lightsome heart-thrill,
For a sunny, gladsome day, —

For a revel of fresh spring verdure, For a race mid springing flowers, For a vision of plashing fountains, Of birds and blossoming bowers.

There were violet banks in the shadows,
Violets white and blue;
And a world of bright anemones,
That over the terrace grew,—

Blue and orange and purple,
Rosy and yellow and white,
Rising in rainbow bubbles,
Streaking the lawns with light.

And down from the old stone-pine trees,
Those far-off islands of air,
The birds are flinging the tidings
Of a joyful revel up there.

And now for the grand old fountains,
Tossing their silvery spray;
Those fountains, so quaint and so many,
That are leaping and singing all day;

Those fountains of strange weird sculpture,
With hichens and moss o'ergrown, —
Are they marble greening in moss-wreaths,
Or moss-wreaths whitening to stone?

Down many a wild, dim pathway
We ramble from morning till moon;
We linger, unheeding the hours,
Till evening comes all too soon.

And from out the ilex alleys,
Where lengthening shadows play,
We look on the dreamy Campagna,
All glowing with setting day,—

All melting in bands of purple, In swathings and foldings of gold, In ribbons of azure and lilac, Like a princely banner unrolled.

And the smoke of each distant cottage, And the flash of each villa white, Shines out with an opal glimmer, Like gems in a casket of light.

And the dome of old St. Peter's
With a strange translucence glows,
Like a mighty bubble of amethyst
Floating in waves of rose.

In a trance of dreamy vagueness,
We, gazing and yearning, behold
That city beheld by the prophet,
Whose walls were transparent gold.

And, dropping all solemn and slowly, To hallow the softening spell, There falls on the dying twilight The Ave Maria bell.

With a mournful, motherly softness,
With a weird and weary care,
That strange and ancient city
Seems calling the nations to prayer.

And the words that of old the angel
To the mother of Jesus brought Rise like a new evangel,
To hallow the trance of our thought.

With the smoke of the evening incense Our thoughts are ascending then To Mary, the mother of Jesus, To Jesus, the Master of men.

O city of prophets and martyrs!
O shrines of the sainted dead!
When, when shall the living day-spring
Once more on your towers be spread?

When He who is meek and lowly Shall rule in those lordly halls, And shall stand and feed as a shepherd The flock which his mercy calls,—

O, then to those noble churches,
To picture and statue and gem,
To the pageant of solemn worship,
Shall the meaning come back again.

And this strange and ancient city, In that reign of his truth and love, Shall be what it seems in the twilight, The type of that City above.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE.

A VIEW ACROSS THE ROMAN CAMPAGNA.

186

Over the dumb campagna-sea,
Out in the offing through mist and rain,
St. Peter's Church heaves silently
Like a mighty ship in pain,
Facing the tempest with struggle and strain.

Motionless waifs of ruined towers,
Soundless breakers of desolate land!

The sullen surf of the mist devours
That mountain-range upon either haud,
Eaten away from its outline grand.

And over the dumb campagna-sen
Where the ship of the Church heaves on to wreck,

Alone and silent as God must be The Christ walks!—Ay, but Peter's neck Is stiff to turn on the foundering deck.

Peter, Peter, if such be thy name,

Now leave the ship for another to steer,

And proving thy faith evermore the same

Come forth, tread out through the dark and drear,

Since He who walks on the sea is here!

Peter, Peter!—he does not speak,—
He is not as rash as in old Galilec.
Safer a ship, though it toss and leak,
Than a reeling foot on a rolling sea!
—And he's got to be round in the girth, thinks he.

Peter, Peter!—he does not stir,—
His nets are heavy with silver fish:
He reckons his gains, and is keen to infer,
"The broil on the shore, if the Lord should wish,—
But the sturgeon goes to the Cæsar's dish."

Peter, Peter, thou fisher of men,
Fisher of fish wouldst thou live instead, —
Haggling for pence with the other Ten,
Cheating the market at so much a head,
Griping the bag of the traitor dead?

At the triple crow of the Gallic cock

Thou weep'st not, thou, though thine eyes be dazed:

What bird comes next in the tempest shock?
Vultures! See, — as when Romulus gazed,
To inaugurate Rome for a world amazed!

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

NAPLES.

FROM "ITALY."

This region, surely, is not of the earth.
Was it not dropt from heaven? Not a grove,
Citron or pine or cedar, not a grot
Sca-worn and mantled with the gadding vine,
But breathes enchantment. Not a cliff but flings
On the clear wave some image of delight,
Some cabin-roof glowing with crimson flowers,
Some ruined temple or fallen monument,

To muse on as the bark is gliding by,
And be it mine to muse there, mine to glide,
From daybreak, when the mountain pales his fire
Yet more and more, and from the mountain-top,
Till then invisible, a smoke ascends,
Solemn and slow, as erst from Ararat,
When he, the Patriarch, who escaped the Flood,
Was with his household sacrificing there,—
From daybreak to that hour, the last and best,
When, one by one, the fishing-boats come forth,
Each with its glimmering lantern at the prow,
And, when the nets are thrown, the evening hymn
Steals o'er the trembling waters.

Everywhere

Fable and Truth have shed, in rivalry,
Each her peculiar influence. Fable came,
And laughed and sung, arraying Truth in flowers,
Like a young child her grandam. Fable came,
Earth, sea, and sky reflecting, as she flew,
A thousand, thousand colors not their own:
And at her bidding, lo! a dark descent
To Tartarus, and those thrice happy fields,
Those fields with ether pure and purple light
Ever invested, scenes by him described
Who here was wont to wander and record
What they revealed, and on the western shore
Sleeps in a silent grove, o'erlooking thee, Beloved Parthenope.

Yet here, methinks,
Truth wants no ornament, in her own shape
Filling the mind by turns with awe and love,
By turns inclining to wild ecstasy
And soberest meditation.

SAMUEL ROCERS

DRIFTING.

My soul to-day
Is far away,
Sailing the Vesuvian Bay;
My wingèd boat,
A bird afloat,
Swims round the purple peaks remote:

Round purple peaks
It sails, and seeks
Blue inlets and their crystal creeks,
Where high rocks throw,
Through deeps below,
A duplicated golden glow.

Far, vague, and dim
The mountains swim;
While, on Vesuvius' misty brim,
With outstretched hands,
The gray smoke stands
O'erlooking the volcanic lands.

Here Ischia smiles
O'er liquid miles;
And yonder, bluest of the isles,
Calm Capri waits,
Her sapphire gates
Beguiling to her bright estates.

I heed not, if
My rippling skiff
Float swift or slow from cliff to cliff;
With dreamful eyes
My spirit lies
Under the walls of Paradise.

Under the walls
Where swells and falls
The Bay's deep breast at intervals,
At peace I lie,
Blown softly by,
A cloud upon this liquid sky.

The day, so mild,
Is Heaven's own child,
With Earth and Ocean reconciled; —
The airs I feel
Around me steal
Are murmuring to the murmuring keel.

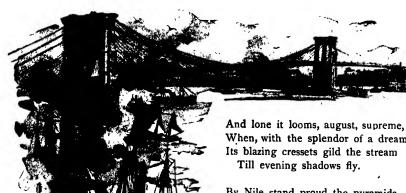

Over the rail
My hand I trail
Within the shadow of the sail;
A joy intense,
The cooling sense
Glides down my drowsy indolence.

With dreamful eyes
My spirit lies
Where Summer sings and never dies, —
O'crveiled with vines,
She glows and shines
Among her future oil and wines.

Her children, hid
The cliffs amid,
Are gambolling with the gambolling kid;
Or down the walls,
With tipsy calls,
Laugh on the rocks like waterfalls.

The fisher's child,
With tresses wild,
Unto the smooth, bright sand beguiled,
With glowing lips
Sings as she skips,
Or gazes at the far-off ships.

Yon deep bark goes Where Traffic blows, From lands of sun to lands of snows;—

Drawn by E. J. Meeker

THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

A granite cliff on either shore: A highway poised in air; Above, the wheels of traffic roar; Below, the fleets sail fair; -And in and out, forever more, The surging tides of ocean pour, And past the towers the white gulls soar, And winds the sea-clouds bear.

O peerless this majestic street, This road that leaps the brine! Upon its heights twin cities meet, And throng its grand incline,-To east, to west, with swiftest feet, Though ice may crash and billows beat, Though blinding fogs the wave may greet Or golden summer shine.

Sail up the Bay with morning's beam, Or rocky Hellgate by,-Its columns rise, its cables gleam, Great tents athwart the sky!

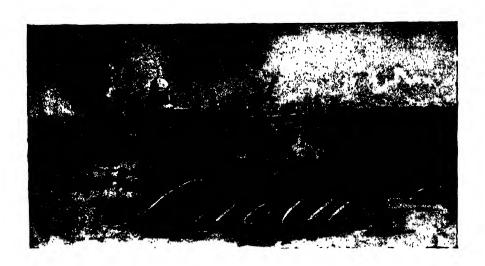

When, with the splendor of a dream, Its blazing cressets gild the stream Till evening shadows fly.

By Nile stand proud the pyramids, But they were for the dead; The awful gloom that joy forbids, The mourners' silent tread, The crypt, the coffin's stony lids,-Sad as a soul the maze that thrids Of dark Amenti, ere it rids Its way of judgment dread.

This glorious arch, these climbing towers, Are all for life and cheer! Part of the New World's nobler dowers; Hint of millennial year That comes apace, though evil lowers,-When loftier aims and larger powers Will mould and deck this earth of ours, And heaven at length bring near!

Unmoved its cliffs shall crown the shore: Its arch the chasm dare; Its network hang the blue before, As gossamer in air; While in and out, forever more, The surging tides of ocean pour, And past its towers the white gulls soar And winds the sea-clouds bear!

EDNA DEAN PROCTOR

Athwart the sky a lowly sigh
From west to east the sweet wind carried;
The sun stood still on Primrose Hill;
His light in all the city tarried:
The clouds on viewless columns bloomed
Like smouldering lilies unconsumed.

"O sweetheart, see! how shadowy,
Of some occult magician's rearing,
Or swung in space of heaven's grace
Dissolving, dimly reappearing,
Afloat upon ethereal tides
St. Paul's above the city rides!"

A rumor broke through the thin smoke Enwreathing abbey, tower, and palace, The parks, the squares, the thoroughfares, The million-peopled lanes and alleys, An ever-muttering prisoned storm, The heart of London beating warm.

JOHN DAVIDSON

This happier one, Its course is run From lands of snow to lands of sun.

O happy ship,
To rise and dip,
With the blue crystal at your lip!
O happy crew,
My heart with you
Sails, and sails, and sings anew!

No more, no more
The worldly shore
Upbraids me with its loud uproar!
With dreamful eyes
My spirit lies
Under the walls of Paradise!

In lofty lines,
Mid palms and pines,
And olives, alocs, elms, and vines,
Sorrento swings
On sunset wings,
Where Tasso's spirit soars and sings.*
THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

WEEHAWKEN AND THE NEW YORK BAY.

FROM "FANNY.

WEEHAWKEN! In thy mountain scenery yet, All we adore of Nature in her wild And frolic hour of infancy is met; And never has a summer's morning smiled Upon a lovelier scene than the full eye Of the enthusiast revels on, — when high

Annd thy forest solitudes he climbs
O'er crags that proudly tower above the deep,
And knows that sense of danger which sublimes
The breathless moment, — when his daring step

Is on the verge of the cliff, and he can hear The low dash of the wave with startled ear,

Like the death-music of his coming doom,

And clings to the green turf with desperate force.

As the heart clings to life; and when resume
The currents in his veins their wonted course,
There lingers a deep feeling,—like the moan
Of wearied ocean when the storm is gone.

• 'he last stanza was written just before the author's death, and published shortly after in the Cincinnati Gazette. In such an hour he turns, and on his view
Ocean and earth and heaven burst before him;
Clouds slumbering at his feet, and the clear blue
Of summer's sky in beauty bending o'er him, —
The city bright below; and far away,
Sparkling in golden light, his own romantic bay.

Tall spire, and glittering roof, and battlement,
And banners floating in the sunny air;
And white sails o'er the calm blue waters bent,
Green isle, and circling shore, are blended
there
In wild reality. When life is old,
And many a scene forgot, the heart will hold

Its memory of this; nor lives there one Whose infant breath was drawn, or boyhood's days

Of happiness were passed beneath that sun,
That in his manhood's prime can calmly gaze
Upon that bay, or on that mountain stand,
Nor feel the prouder of his native land.

FITZ-GREENE HALLECK

CALM AND STORM ON LAKE LEMAN.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO III.

CLEAR, placid Leman ' thy contrasted lake,
With the wild world I dwelt in, is a thing
Which warns me, with its stillness, to forsake
Earth's troubled waters for a purer spring.
This quiet sail is as a noiseless wing
To waft me from distraction; once I loved
Torn ocean's roar, but thy soft murmuring
Sounds sweet as if a sister's voice reproved,
That I with stern delights should e'er have been so moved.

It is the hush of night, and all between Thy margin and the mountains, dusk, yet clear,

Mellowed and mingling, yet distinctly seen, Save darkened Jura, whose capt heights appear Precipitously steep; and drawing near, There breathes a living fragrance from the shore.

Of flowers yet fresh with childhood; on the ear Drops the light drip of the suspended oar, Or chirps the grasshopper one good-night carol more:

He is an evening reveller, who makes His life an infancy, and sings his fill; At intervals, some bird from out the brakes Starts into voice a moment, then is still. There seems a floating whisper on the hill, But that is fancy; for the starlight dews All silently their tears of love instil, Weeping themselves away, till they infuse Weeping themselves away, till they infuse Deep into Nature's breast the spirit of her hues.

The sky is changed!—and such a change!
O night,

And storm, and darkness, ye are wondrous strong,

Yet lovely in your strength, as is the light Of a dark eye in woman! Far along, From peak to peak, the rattling crags among Leaps the live thunder! Not from one lone cloud,

But every mountain now hath found a tongue, And Jura answers, through her misty shroud, Back to the joyous Alps, who call to her aloud!

And this is in the night: — most glorious night!

Thou wert not sent for slumber! let me be
A sharer in thy fierce and far delight, —
A portion of the tempest and of thee!
How the lit lake shines, a phosphoric sea,
And the big rain comes dancing to the earth!
And now again 't is black, — and now, the glee
Of the loud hills shakes with its mountainmirth,

As if they did rejoice o'er a young earthquake's birth.

LORD BYRON.

THE HURRICANE.

Lord of the winds! I feel thee nigh, I know thy breath in the burning sky! And I wait, with a thrill in every vein, For the coming of the hurricane!

And lo! on the wing of the heavy gales,
Through the boundless arch of heaven he sails.
Silent and slow, and terribly strong,
The mighty shadow is borne along,
Like the dark eternity to come;
While the world below, dismayed and dumb,
Through the calm of the thick hot atmosphere
Looks up at its gloomy folds with fear.

They darken fast; and the golden blaze
Of the sun is quenched in the lurid haze,
And he sends through the shade a funeral ray—
A glare that is neither night nor day,
A beam that touches, with hues of death,
The clouds above and the earth beneath.
To its covert glides the silent bird,
While the hurricane's distant voice is heard
Uplifted among the mountains round,
And the forests hear and answer the sound.

He is come! he is come! do ye not behold His ample robes on the wind unrolled? Giant of air! we bid thee hail!— How his gray skirts toss in the whirling gale; How his huge and writhing arms are bent To clasp the zone of the firmament, And fold at length, in their dark embrace, From mountain to mountain the visible space!

Darker, — still darker! the whirlwinds bear The dust of the plains to the middle air; And hark to the crashing, long and loud, Of the chariot of God in the thunder-cloud! You may trace its path by the flashes that start From the rapid wheels where'er they dart, As the fire-bolts leap to the world below, And flood the skies with a lurid glow.

What roar is that?—'t is the rain that breaks In torrents away from the airy lakes, Heavily poured on the shuddering ground, And shedding a nameless horror round.

Ah! well-known woods, and mountains, and skies, With the very clouds!—ye are lost to my eyes. I seek ye vainly, and see in your place
The shadowy tempest that sweeps through space, A whirling ocean that fills the wall
Of the crystal heaven, and buries all.

And I, cut off from the world, remain Alone with the terrible hurricane.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

THE DESERTED VILLAGE.

SWEET Auburn'! loveliest village of the plain,
Where health and plenty cheered the laboring swain,

Where smiling spring its earliest visit paid,
And parting summer's lingering blooms delayed.
Dear lovely bowers of innocence and ease,
Seats of my youth, when every sport could please,
How often have I loitered o'er thy green,
Where humble happiness endeared each scene!
How often have I paused on every charm,
The sheltered cot, the cultivated farm,
The never-failing brook, the busy mill,
The decent church that topped the neighboring hill,

The hawthorn-bush, with seats beneath the shade.

For talking age and whispering lovers made! How often have I blessed the coming day, When toil remitting lent its turn to play, And all the village train, from labor free, Led up their sports beneath the spreading tree, While many a pastime circled in the shade, The young contending as the old surveyed; And many a gambol frolicked o'er the ground, And sleights of art and feats of strength went round;

And still, as each repeated pleasure tired,
Succeeding sports the mirthful band inspired;
The dancing pair that simply sought renown,
By holding out, to tire each other down;
The swain mistrustless of his amutted face,
While secret laughter tittered round the place;
The bashful virgin's sidelong looks of love,
The matron's glance that would those looks reprove,—

These were thy charms, sweet village! sports like these.

With sweet succession, taught e'en toil to please; These round thy bowers their cheerful influence shed.

These were thy charms, — but all these charms are fied!

Sweet smiling village, loveliest of the lawn, Thy sports are fled, and all thy charms withdrawn:

Amidst thy bowers the tyrant's hand is seen, And desolation saddens all thy green; One only master grasps the whole domain, And half a tillage stints thy smiling plain; No more thy glassy brook reflects the day, But, choked with sedges, works its weedy way; Along thy glades, a solitary guest, The hollow-sounding bittern guards its nest; Amidst thy desert walks the lapwing flies, And tires their echoes with unvaried cries. Sunk are thy bowers in shapeless ruin all, And the long grass o'ertops the mouldering wall, And, trembling, shrinking from the spoiler's hand, Far, far away thy children leave the land.

Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey, Where wealth accumulates and men decay: Princes and lords may flourish, or may fade; A breath can make them, as a breath has made; But a bold peasantry, their country's pride, When once destroyed, can never be supplied.

A time there was, ere England's griess began, When every rood of ground maintained its man; For him light Labor spread her wholesome store, Just gave what life required, but gave no more; His best companions, innocence and health; And his best riches, ignorance of wealth.

But times are altered; trade's unfeeling train Usurp the land and dispossess the swain; Along the lawn, where scattered hamlets rose, Unwieldy wealth and cumbrous pomp repose, And every want to luxury allied, ... And every pang that folly pays to pride.

Those gentle hours that plenty bade to bloom,
Those calm desires that asked but little room,
Those healthful sports that graced the peaceful scene.

Lived in each look, and brightened all the green, --

These, far departing, seek a kinder shore, And rural mirth and manners are no more.

Sweet Auburn! parent of the blissful hour,
Thy glades forlorn confess the tyrant's power.
Here, as I take my solitary rounds,
Amidst thy tangling walks and ruined grounds,
And, many a year elapsed, return to view
Where once the cottage stood, the hawthorn grew,
Remembrance wakes, with all her busy train,
Swells at my breast, and turns the past to pain.

In all my wanderings round this world of care, In all my griefs — and God has given my share — I still had hopes my latest hours to crown, Amidst these humble bowers to lay me down; To husband out life's taper at the close, And keep the flame from wasting by repose; I still had hopes — for pride attends us still — Amidst the swains to show my book-learned skill, Around my fire an evening group to draw, And tell of all I felt and all I saw; And, as a hare, whom hounds and horns pursue, Pants to the place from whence at first she flew, I still had hopes, my long vexations past, Here to return, — and die at home at last.

O blest retirement ! friend to life's decline, Retreats from care, that never must be mine, How blest is he who crowns in shades like these A youth of labor with an age of ease; Who quits a world where strong temptations try, And, since 't is har'l to combat, learns to fly ' For him no wretches, born to work and weep, Explore the mine, or tempt the dangerous deep; No surly porter stands in guilty state, To spurn imploring famine from the gate: But on he moves to meet his latter end, Angels around befriending virtue's friend; Sinks to the grave with unperceived decay, While resignation gently slopes the way; And, all his prospects brightening to the last, His heaven commences ere the world be past.

Sweet was the sound, when oft, at evening's close,

Up yonder hill the village murmur rose; There, as I passed with careless steps and slow, The mingling notes came softened from below; The swain responsive as the milkmaid sung, The sober herd that lowed to meet their young; The noisy geese that gabbled o'er the pool,
The playful children just let loose from school;
The watch-dog's voice that bayed the whispering
wind.

And the loud laugh that spoke the vacant mind,—
These all in sweet confusion sought the shade,
And filled each pause the nightingale had made.
But now the sounds of population fail,
No cheerful murmurs fluctuate in the gale,
No busy steps the grass-grown foot-way tread,
But allathe bloomy flush of life is fled.
All but yon widowed, solitary thing,
That feebly bends beside the plashy spring;
She, wretched matron, forced in age, for bread,
To strip the brook with mantling cresses spread,
To pick her wintry fagot from the thorn,
To seek her nightly shed, and weep till morn;
She only left of all the harmless train,
The sad historian of the pensive plain.

Near yonder copse, where once the garden smiled.

And still where many a garden-flower grows wild;
There, where a few torn shrubs the place disclose,
The village preacher's modest mansion rose.
A man he was to all the country dear,
And passing rich with forty pounds a year;
Remote from towns he ran his godly race,
Nor e'er had changed, nor wished to change, his place;

Unskilful he to fawn, or seek for power,
By doctrines fashioned to the varying hour;
Far other aims his heart had learned to prize,
More bent to raise the wretched than to rise.
His house was known to all the vagrant train.
He chid their wanderings, but relieved their pain;
The long-remembered beggar was his guest,
Whose beard descending swept his aged breast.
The ruined spendthrift, now no longer proud,
Claimed kindred there, and had his claims allowed;

The broken soldier, kindly bade to stay,
Sate by his fire, and talked the night away;
Wept o'er his wounds, or tales of sorrow done,
Shouldered his crutch, and showed how fields were won.

Pleased with his guests, the good man learned to glow.

And quite forgot their vices in their wee; Careless their merits or their faults to scan, His pity gave ere charity began.

Thus to relieve the wretched was his pride, And e'en his failings leaned to Virtue's side; But in his duty prompt at every call, He watched and wept, he prayed and felt for all; And, as a bird each fond endearment tries, To tempt its new-fledged offspring to the skies, He tried each art, reproved each dull delay, Allured to brighter worlds, and led the way.

Beside the bed where parting life was laid, And sorrow, guilt, and pain by turns dismayed, The reverend champion stood. At his control, Despair and anguish fled the struggling soul; Comfort came down the trembling wretch to raise, And his last faltering accents whispered praise.

At church, with meek and unaffected grace, His looks adorned the venerable place; Truth from his lips prevailed with double sway, And fools, who came to scoff, remained to pray. The service past, around the pious man, With steady zeal, each honest rustic ran; E'en children followed with endearing wile, And plucked his gown, to share the good man's smile.

His ready smile a parent's warrith expressed, Their welfare pleased him, and their cares distressed;

To them his heart, his love, his griefs were given, But all his serious thoughts had rest in heaven. As some tall cliff, that lifts its awful form, Swells from the vale, and midway leaves the storm, Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread,

Eternal sunshine settles on its head.

Beside you straggling fence that skirts the way, With blossomed furze unprofitably gay, There, in his noisy mansion, skilled to rule, The village master taught his little school; A man severe he was, and stern to view, I knew him well, and every truant knew; Well had the boding tremblers learned to trace The day's disasters in his morning face ; Full well they laughed with counterfeited glee At all his jokes, for many a joke had he; Full well the busy whisper circling round Conveyed the dismal tidings when he frowned; Yet he was kind, or, if severe in aught, The love he bore to learning was in fault. The village all declared how much he knew. 'T was certain he could write, and cipher too; Lands he could measure, times and tides presage, And e'en the story ran that he could gauge; In arguing too, the parson owned his skill, For, e'en though vanquished, he could argue still, While words of learned length and thundering Amazed the gazing rustics ranged around; And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew That one small head could carry all he knew.

But past is all his fame. The very spot Where many a time he triumphed is forgot, - Near yonder thorn, that lifts its head on high, Where once the sign-post caught the passing eye, Low lies that house where nut-brown draughts inspired.

Where graybeard mirth and smiling toil retired, Where village statesmen talked with looks profound,

And news much older than their ale went round. Imagination fondly stoops to trace
The parlor splendors of that festive place, —
The whitewashed wall; the nicely sanded floor;
The varnished clock that ticked behind the door;
The chest, contrived a double debt to pay,
A bed by night, a chest of drawers by day;
The pictures placed for ornament and use;
The twelve good rules; the royal game of goose;
The hearth, except when winter chilled the day,
With aspen boughs and flowers and fennel gay;
While broken teacups, wisely kept for show,
Ranged o'er the chimney, glistened in a row.

Vain, transitory splendor! could not all Reprieve the tottering mansion from its fall? Obscure it sinks, nor shall it more impart An hour's importance to the poor man's heart; Thither no more the peasant shall repair To sweet oblivion of his daily care; No more the farmer's news, the barber's tale, No more the woodman's ballad shall prevail; No more the smith his dusky brow shall clear, Relax his ponderous strength, and lean to hear; The host himself no longer shall be found Careful to see the mantling bliss go round; Nor the coy maid, half willing to be prest, Shall kiss the cup to pass it to the rest.

Yes! let the rich deride, the proud disdain, These simple blessings of the lowly train; To me more dear, congenial to my heart, One native charm, than all the gloss of art. Spontaneous joys, where nature has its play, The soul adopts, and owns their first-born sway; Lightly they frolic o'er the vacant mind, Unenvied, unmolested, unconfined:
But the long pomp, the midnight masquerade, With all the freaks of wanton wealth arrayed, — In these, ere triflers half their wish obtain, The toiling pleasure sickens into pain; And, e'en while fashion's brightest arts decoy, The heart, distrusting, asks if this be joy.

Ye friends to truth, ye statesmen, who survey The rich man's joys increase, the poor's decay, T is yours to judge, how wide the limits stand Between a splendid and a happy land. Proud swells the tide with loads of freighted ore, And shouting Folly hails them from her shore; Hoards e'en beyond the miser's wish abound,
And rich men flock from all the world around.
Yet count our gains. This wealth is but a name
That leaves our useful products still the same.
Not so the loss. The man of wealth and pride
Takes up a space that many poor supplied;
Space for his lake, his park's extended bounds,
Space for his horses, equipage, and hounds:
The robe that wraps his limbs in silken sloth
Has robbed the neighboring fields of half their growth;

His seat, where solitary sports are seen, Indignant spurns the cottage from the green; Around the world each needful product flies, For all the luxuries the world supplies: While thus the land, adorned for pleasure all, In barren splendor feebly waits the fall.

As some fair female unadorned and plain,
Secure to please while youth confirms her reign,
Slights every borrowed charm that dress supplies,
Nor shares with art the triumph of her eyes,
But when those charms are past, — for charms are frail, —

When time advances, and when lovers fail,
She then shines forth, solicitous to bless,
In all the glaring impotence of dress;
Thus fares the land by luxury betrayed,
In nature's simplest charms at first arrayed,
But verging to decline, its splendors rise,
Its vistas strike, its palaces surprise;
While, scourged by famine from the smiling land,
The mournful peasant leads his humble band;
And while he sinks, without one arm to save,
The country blooms, — a garden and a grave.

Where then, ah! where shall poverty reside, To 'scape the pressure of contiguous pride? If to some common's fenceless limits strayed He drives his flock to pick the scanty blade, Those fenceless fields the sons of wealth divide, And e'en the bare-worn common is denied. If to the city sped, - what waits him there? To see profusion that he must not share; To see ten thousand baneful arts combined To pamper luxury and thin mankind; To see each joy the sons of pleasure know Extorted from his fellow-creature's woe. Here while the courtier glitters in brocade, There the pale artist plies the sickly trade; Here while the proud their long-drawn pomps display,

There the black gibbet glooms beside the way.

The dome where Pleasure holds her midnight reign,

Here, richly decked, admits the gorgeous train; Tumultuous grandeur crowds the blazing square, The rattling chariots clash, the torches glare, Sure scenes like these no troubles e'er annoy!
Sure these denote one universal joy!
Are these thy serious thoughts?—Ah, turn thine eyes

Where the poor houseless shivering female lies. She once, perhaps, in village plenty blest, IIas wept at tales of innocence distrest; Her modest looks the cottage might adorn, Sweet as the primrose peeps beneath the thorn; Now lost to all: her friends, her virtue fled, Near her betrayer's door she lays her head, And, pinched with cold, and shrinking from the

With heavy heart deplores that luckless hour, When idly first, ambitious of the town, She left her wheel and robes of country brown.

Do thine, sweet Auburn, thine, the loveliest train,

Do thy fair tribes participate her pain? E'en now, perhaps, by cold and hunger led, At proud men's doors they ask a little bread!

Ah, no! To distant climes, a dreary scene, Where half the convex world intrudes between, Through torrid tracks with fainting steps they go, Where wild Altama murnurs to their woe. Far different there from all that charmed before, The various terrors of that horrid shore, — Those blazing suns that dart a downward ray. And fiercely shed intolerable day; Those matted woods where birds forget to sing, But silent bats in drowsy clusters cling; Those poisonous fields with rank luxuriance crowned.

Where the dark scorpion gathers death around; Where at each step the stranger fears to wake The rattling terrors of the vengeful snake; Where crouching tigers wait their hapless prey, And savage men more murderous still than they; While oft in whills the mad tornado flies, Mingling the ravaged landscape with the skies. Far different these from every former scene, The cooling brook, the grassy vested green, The breezy covert of the warbling grove, That only sheltered thefts of harmless love.

Good Heaven! what sorrows gloomed that parting day

That called them from their native walks away; When the poor exiles, every pleasure past, Hung round the bowers, and fondly looked their last.

And took a long farewell, and wished in vain For seats like these beyond the western main; And shuddering still to face the distant deep, Returned and wept, and still returned to weep. The good old sire the first prepared to go
To new-found worlds, and wept for others' woe;
But for himself in conscious virtue brave,
He only wished for worlds beyond the grave.
His lovely daughter, lovelier in her tears,
The fond companion of his helpless years,
Silent went next, neglectful of her charms,
And left a lover's for her father's arms.
With louder plaints the mother spoke her woes,
And blessed the cot where every pleasure rose;
And kissed herthoughtless babes with manya tear,
And clasped them close, in sorrow doubly dear;
Whilst her fond husband strove to lend relief
In all the silent manliness of grief.

O Luxury! thou curst by Heaven's decree,
How ill exchanged are things like these for thee!
How do thy potions, with insidious joy,
Diffuse their pleasures only to destroy!
Kingdoms by thee, to sickly greatness grown,
Boast of a florid vigor not their own.
At every draught more large and large they grow,
A bloated mass of rank, unwieldy woe;
Till, sapped their strength, and every part un
sound,

Down, down they sink, and spread a ruin round.

Even now the devastation is begun, And half the business of destruction done; Even now, methinks, as pondering here I stand, I see the rural virtues leave the land. Down where you anchoring vessel spreads the sail That idly waiting flaps with every gale, Downward they move, a melancholy band, Pass from the shore, and darken all the strand. Contented toil, and hospitable care, And kind connubial tenderness, are there; And piety with wishes placed above. And steady loyalty, and faithful love. And thou, sweet Poetry, thou leveliest maid, Still first to fly where sensual joys invade; Unfit, in these degenerate times of shame, To catch the heart, or strike for nonest fame; Dear charming nymph, neglected and decried, My shame in crowds, my solitary pride; Thou source of all my bliss and all my woe, That found'st me poor at first, and keep'st me so; Thou guide, by which the nobler arts excel, Thou nurse of every virtue, fare thee well! Farewell; and O, where'er thy voice be tried, On Torno's cliffs, or Pambamarca's side, Whether where equinoctial fervors glow, Or winter wraps the polar world in snow, Still let thy voice, prevailing over time, Redress the rigors of the inclement clime: Aid slighted truth with thy persuasive strain; Teach erring man to spurn the rage of gain;

Teach him, that states of native strength possest, Though very poor, may still be very blest; That trade's proud empire hastes to swift decay, As ocean sweeps the labored mole away; While self-dependent power can time defy, As rocks resist the billows and the sky.

OLIVER GOLDSMITH.

THE FISHER'S COTTAGE.

WE sat by the fisher's cottage, And looked at the stormy tide; The evening mist came rising, And floating far and wide.

One by one in the light-house
The lamps shone out on high;
And far on the drn horizon
A ship went sailing by.

We spoke of storm and shipwreck, —
Of sailors, and how they live;
Of journeys 'twixt sky and water,
And the sorrows and joys they give,

We spoke of distant countries, In regions strange and fair, And of the wondrous beings And curious customs there:

Of perfumed lamps on the Ganges,
Which are launched in the twilight hour;
And the dark and silent Brahmins,
Who worship the lotos flower.

Of the wretched dwarfs of Lapland,— Broad-headed, wide-mouthed, and small,— Who crouch round their oil-fires, cooking, And chatter and scream and bawl.

And the maidens earnestly listened,
Till at last we spoke no more;
The ship like a shadow had vanished,
And darkness fell deep on the shore.
From the German of HINRICH HEINE. Translation of CHARLES G. LELAND.

THE ISLAND.

FROM "THE BUCCANEER."

The island lies nine leagues away.

Along its solitary shore,
Of craggy rock and sandy bay,
No sound but ocean's roar,
Save where the bold, wild sea-bird makes her home,
Her shrill cry coming through the sparkling foam.

But when the light winds lie at rest,
And on the glassy, heaving sea
The black duck, with her glossy breast,
Sits swinging silently,
How beautiful! no ripples break the reach,
And silvery waves go noiseless up the beach

And inland rests the green, warm dell;
The brook comes tinkling down its side;
From out the trees the Sabbath bell
Rings cheerful, far and wide,
Mingling its sound with bleatings of the flocks,
That feed about the vale among the rocks.

Nor holy bell, nor pastoral bleat,
In former days within the vale;
Flapped in the bay the pirate's sheet;
Curses were on the gale;
Rich goods lay on the sand, and murdered men;
Pirate and wrecker kept their revels then.

But calm, low voices, words of grace,
Now slowly fall upon the ear;
A quiet look is in each face,
Subdued and holy fear:
Each motion 's gentle; all is kindly done;—
Come, listen how from crime this isle was won.
RICHARD HENRY DANA.

SMOKE.

LIGHT-WINGED Smoke! Icarian bird, Melting thy pinions in thy upward flight; Lark without song, and messenger of dawn, Circling above the hamlets as thy nest; Or else, departing dream, and shadowy form Of midnight vision, gathering up thy skirts;

By night star-veiling, and by day
Darkening the light and blotting out the sun;
Go thou, my incense, upward from this hearth,
And ask the gods to pardon this clear flame.

HENRY DAVID THOREAU.

MIST.

Low-Anchored cloud,
Newfoundland air,
Fountain-head and source of rivers,
Dew-cloth, dream-drapery,
And napkin spread by fays;
Drifting meadow of the air,
Where bloom the daisied banks and violets,
And in whose fenny labyrinth
The bittern booms and heron wades;
Spirit of lakes and seas and rivers,—
Bear only perfumes and the scent
Of healing herbs to just men's fields.

HENRY DAVID THOREAU.

THE EVENING CLOUD.

A cloup lay cradled near the setting sun,
A gleam of crimson tinged its braided snow;
Long had I watched the glory moving on O'er the still radiance of the lake below.
Tranquil its spirit seemed, and floated slow!
Even in its very motion there was rest;
While every breath of eve that chanced to blow
Wafted the traveller to the beauteous west.
Emblem, methought, of the departed soul!
To whose white robe the gleam of bliss is given,
And by the breath of mercy made to roll
Right onwards to the golden gates of heaven,

And tells to man his glorious destinies.

John Wilson (Christopher North).

NEWPORT BEACH.

Where to the eye of faith it peaceful lies,

WAVE after wave successively rolls on And dies along the shore, until more loud One billow with concentrate force is heard To swell prophetic, and exultant rears A lucent form above its pioneers, And rushes past them to the farthest goal. Thus our unutered feelings rise and fall, And thought will follow thought in equal waves, Until reflection nerves design to will, Or sentiment o'er chance emotion reigns, And all its wayward undulations blends In one o'erwhelming surge!

HENRY THEODORE TUCKERMAN.

A STILL DAY IN AUTUMN.

I LOVE to wander through the woodlands hoary In the soft light of an autumnal day, When Summer gathers up her robes of glory, And like a dream of beauty glides away.

How through each loved, familiar path she lingers, Serenely smiling through the golden mist, Tinting the wild grape with her dewy fingers Till the cool emerald turns to amethyst;

Kindling the faint stars of the hazel, shining
To light the gloom of Autumn's mouldering halls,

With hoary plumes the clematis entwining Where o'er the rock her withered garland falls.

Warm lights are on the sleepy uplands waning Beneath soft clouds along the horizon rolled, Till the slant sunbeams through their fringes raining

Bathe all the hills in melancholy gold.

The moist winds breathe of crisped leaves and flowers

In the damp hollows of the woodland sown, Mingling the freshness of autumnal showers With spicy airs from cedarn alleys blown.

Beside the brook and on the umbered meadow,
Where yellow fern-tufts fleck the faded ground,
With folded lids beneath their palmy shadow
The gentian nods, in dewy slumbers bound.

Upon those soft, fringed lids the bee sits brooding, Like a fond lover loath to say farewell, Or with shut wings, through silken folds intruding.

Creeps near her heart his drowsy tale to tell.

The little birds upon the hillside lonely
Flit noiselessly along from spray to spray,
Silent as a sweet wandering thought that only
Shows its bright wings and softly glides away.

SARAH HELEN WHITMAN.

THE BIRCH STREAM.

At noon, within the dusty town,
Where the wild river rushes down,
And thunders hoarsely all day long,
I think of thee, my hermit stream,
Low singing in thy summer dream
Thine idle, sweet, old, tranquil song.

Northward, Katahdin's chasmed pile Looms through thy low, long, leafy aisle; Eastward, Olamon's summit shines; And I upon thy grassy shore, The dreamful, happy child of yore, "Vorship before mine olden shrines.

Again the sultry noontide hush
Is sweetly broken by the thrush,
Whose clear bell rings and dies away
Beside thy banks, in coverts deep,
Where nodding buds of orchis sleep
In dusk, and dream not it is day.

Again the wild cow-lily floats
Her golden-freighted, tented boats
In thy cool coves of softened gloom,
O'ershadowed by the whispering reed,
And purple plumes of pickerel-weed,
And meadow-sweet in tangled bloom,

The startled minnows dart in flocks
Beneath thy glimmering amber rocks,
If but a zephyr stirs the brake;
The silent swallow swoops, a flash
Of light, and leaves, with dainty plash,
A ring of ripples in her wake.

Without, the land is hot and dim; The level fields in languor swim, Their stubble-grasses brown as dust; And all along the upland lanes, Where shadeless noon oppressive reigns. Dead roses wear their crowns of rust.

Within, is neither blight nor death; The fierce sun wooes with ardent breath. But cannot win thy sylvan heart. Only the child who loves thee long, With faithful worship pure and strong, Can know how dear and sweet thou art.

So loved I thee in days gone by, So love I yet, though leagues may lie Between us, and the years divide; A breath of coolness, dawn, and dew, A joy forever fresh and true, Thy memory doth with me abide. ANNA BOYNTON AVERILL.

THE BLACKBIRD.

How sweet the harmonies of afternoon! The Blackbird sings along the sunny breeze His ancient song of leaves, and summer boon; Rich breath of hayfields streams through whispering trees;

And birds of morning trim their bustling wings, And listen fondly — while the Blackbird sings.

How soft the lovelight of the west reposes On this green valley's cheery solitude, On the trim cottage with its screen of roses, On the gray belfry with its ivy hood, And murmuring mill-race, and the wheel that flings

Its bubbling freshness - while the Blackbird sings.

The very dial on the village church Seems as 't were dreaming in a dozy rest; The scribbled benches underneath the porch Bask in the kindly welcome of the west: But the broad casements of the old Three Kings Blaze like a furnace — while the Blackbird sings.

And there beneath the immemorial elm Three rosy revellers round a table sit, And through gray clouds give laws unto the realm, Curse good and great, but worship their own wit, And roar of fights, and fairs, and junketings, sings.

Before her home, in her accustomed seat, The tidy grandam spins beneath the shade Of the old honeysuckle, at her feet The dreaming pug and purring tabby laid;

To her low chair a little maiden clings. And spells in silence — while the Blackbird sings.

Sometimes the shadow of a lazy cloud Breathes o'er the hamlet with its gardens green, While the far fields with sunlight overflowed Like golden shores of Fairyland are seen; Again the sunshine on the shadow springs, And fires the thicket - where the Blackbird sings.

The woods, the lawn, the peaked manor-house, With its peach-covered walls, and rookery loud, The trim, quaint garden-alleys, screened with boughs,

The lion-headed gates, so grim and proud, The mossy fountain with its murmurings, Lie in warm sunshine - while the Blackbird sings.

The ring of silver voices, and the sheen Of festal garments, — and my lady streams With her gay court across the garden green; Some laugh and dance, some whisper their love-dreams;

And one calls for a little page: he strings Her lute beside her - while the Blackbird sings.

A little while, — and lo! the charm is heard: A youth, whose life has been all summer, steals Forth from the noisy guests around the board, Creeps by her softly, at her footstool kneels, And, when she pauses, murmurs tender things Into her fond ear - while the Blackbird sings.

The smoke-wreaths from the chimneys curl up higher.

And dizzy things of eve begin to float Upon the light; the breeze begins to tire. Half-way to sunset with a drowsy note The ancient clock from out the valley swings; The grandam nods - and still the Blackbird sings.

Far shouts and laughter from the farm-stead peal, Where the great stack is piling in the sun; Through narrow gates o'erladen wagons reel, And barking curs into the tumult run: While the inconstant wind bears off, and brings The merry tempest — and the Blackbird sings.

On the high wold the last look of the sun Burns, like a beacon, over dale and stream; Corn, colts, and curs — the while the Blackbird | The shouts have ceased, the laughter and the fun; The grandam sleeps, and peaceful be her dream; Only a hammer on an anvil rings; The day is dying—still the Blackbird sings.

Now the good vicar passes from his gate, Serene, with long white hair; and in his eye Burns the clear spirit that hath conquered Fate, And felt the wings of immortality;

His heart is thronged with great imaginings
And tender mercies — while the Blackbird sings.

Down by the brook he bends his steps, and through

A lowly wicket; and at last he stands Awful beside the bed of one who grew

From boyhood with him, — who with lifted hands

And eyes seems listening to far welcomings And sweeter music — than the Blackbird sings.

Two golden stars, like tokens from the blest, Strike on his dim orbs from the setting sun; His sinking hands seem pointing to the west; He smiles as though he said, "Thy will be done!"

His eyes they see not those illuminings;
His ears they hear not—what the Blackbird sings.
FREDERICK TENNYSON.

THE PHILOSOPHER TOAD.

Down deep in a hollow, so damp and so cold, Where oaks are by ivy o'ergrown,

The gray moss and lichen croep over the mould, Lying loose on a ponderous stone.

Now within this huge stone, like a king on his throne,

A toad has been sitting more years than is known;

And, strange as it seems, yet he constantly deems

The world standing still while he's dreaming his dreams.—

Does this wonderful toad, in his cheerful abode In the innermost heart of that flinty old stone, By the gray-haired moss and the lichen o'ergrown.

Down deep in the hollow, from morning till night.

Dun shadows glide over the ground, Where a watercourse once, as it sparkled with Turned a ruined old mill-wheel around:

Long years have passed by since its bed became dry.

And the trees grow so close, scarce a glimpse of the sky Is seen in the hollow, so dark and so damp, Where the glow-worm at noonday is trimming his lamp,

And hardly a sound from the thicket around, Where the rabbit and squirrel leap over the ground,

Is heard by the toad in his spacious abode
In the innermost heart of that ponderous stone,
By the gray-haired moss and the lichen o'ergrown.

Down deep in that hollow the bees never come, The shade is too black for a flower;

And jewel-winged birds, with their musical hum.

Never flash in the night of that bower; But the cold-blooded snake, in the edge of the brake,

Lies amid the rank grass, half asleep, half awaka;

And the ashen-white snail, with the slime in its trail,

Moves wearily on like a life's tedious tale, Yet disturbs not the toad in his spacious abode, In the innermost heart of that flinty old stone, By the gray-haired moss and the lichen o'ergrown.

Down deep in a hollow some wiseacres sit, Like a toad in his cell in the stone;

Around them in daylight the blind owlets flit,
And their creeds are with ivy o'ergrown;
Their streams may go dry, and the wheels
cease to ply,

And their glumpses be few of the sun and the sky,

Still they hug to their breast every timehonored guest,

And slumber and doze in inglorious rest;

For no progress they find in the wide sphere of mind,

And the world 's standing still with all of their kind;

Contented to dwell deep down in the well, Or move like the snail in the crust of his shell, Or live like the toad in his narrow abode,

With their souls closely wedged in a thick wall of stone,

By the gray woods of prejudice rankly o'ergrown.

REBECCA S NICHOLS.

THE MUSICAL DUEL

FROM "THE LOVER'S MELANCHOLY."

MENAPHON. Passing from Italy to Greece the tales

Which poets of an elder time have feigned To glorify their Tempe, bred in me Desire of visiting that paradise. To Thessaly I came; and, living private,
Without acquaintance of more sweet companions
Than the old inmates to my love, my thoughts,
I day by day frequented silent groves
And solitary walks. One morning early
This accident encountered me: I heard
The sweetest and most ravishing contention
That art and nature ever were at strife in.

AMETHUS. I cannot yet conceive what you infer

By art and nature.

MEN. I shall soon resolve you. A sound of music touched mine ears, or rather, Indeed, entranced my soul. As I stole nearer, Invited by the melancholy, I saw
This youth, this fair-faced youth, upon his lute, With strains of strange variety and harmony, Proclaiming, as it seemed, so bold a challenge To the clear choristers of the woods, the birds, That, as they flocked about him, all stood silent, Wondering at what they heard. I wondered too. Am. And so do I; good!—On!

MEN. A nightingale,
Nature's best skilled musician, undertakes
The challenge, and, for every several strain
The well-shaped youth could touch, she sung her own;

He could not run division with more art Upon his quaking instrument than she, The nightingale, did with her various notes Reply to; for a voice, and for a sound, Amethus, 't is much easier to believe That such they were than hope to hear again.

AM. How did the rivals part?

Min. You term them rightly;

For they were rivals, and their mistress, Harmony —

Some time thus spent, the young man grew at last
Into a pretty anger, that a bird

Whom art had never taught clefs, moods, or notes.

Should vie with him for mastery, whose study Had busied many hours to perfect practice:
To end the controversy, in a rapture
Upon his instrument he plays so swiftly,
So many voluntaries, and so quick,
That there was curiosity and cunning,
Concord in discord, lines of differing method
Meeting in one full centre of delight.

AM. Now for the bird.

MEN. The bird, ordained to be Music's first martyr, strove to imitate These several sounds; which, when her warbling threat

Failed in, for grief, down dropped she on his lute, And broke her heart! It was the quaintest sadTo see the conqueror upon her hearse To weep a funeral elegy of tears;

That, trust me, my Amethus, I could chide Mine own unmanly weakness, that made me A fellow-mourner with him.

AM. I believe thee.

MEN. He looked upon the trophies of his art,
Then sighed, then wiped his eyes, then sighed,
and cried,

"Alas, poor creature! I will soon revenge
This cruelty upon the author of it;
Henceforth this lute, guilty of innocent blood,
Shall nevermore betray a harmless peace
To an untimely end;" and in that sorrow,
As he was pashinguit against a tree,
I suddenly stept in.

JOHN FORD

THE CANTERBURY PILGRIMS.

FROM "THE CANTERBURY TALES: PROLOGUE."

WHAN that Aprille with hise shoures soote 1 The droghte of March hath perced to the roote, And bathèd every veyne in swich 2 licour, Of which vertue engendred is the flour; Whan Zephirus eek with his swete breeth Inspired hath in every holt and heeth The tendre croppes, and the yonge sonne Hath in the Ram his halfe cours y-ronne. And smalè fowelès maken melodye That slepen al the nyght with open eye, -So priketh hem nature in hir corages, --Thanne longen folk to goon on pilgrimages, And palmeres for to seken straunge strondes, To ferne halwes, kowthe in sondry londes: And specially, from every shirès ende Of Engelond, to Caunterbury they wende The hooly blisful martir for to seke, That hem hath holpen whan that they were seeke

Bifil that, in that seson on a day, In Southwerk at the Tabard as I lay, Redy to wenden on my pilgrymage To Caunterbury with ful devout corage, At nyght were come in-to that hostelrye Wel nyne-and-twenty in a compaignye,

I sweet. 2 such. 3 wood.
4 their hearts 5 ancient saints 6 renowned.
7 Thomas à Becket.

* The following passages from the Prologue to The Canterbury Takes give excellent specumens of Chaucer's close observation of nature, men, and manners, and of his clear, graphic, descriptive style. The text followed is that of the "Riverside Edition," edited by Mr. Arthur Gilman, which is based chiefly on that of the manuscript in possession of Lord Ellesmere, published by the Chaucer Society of London That edition, however, is not responsible for the explanatory notes, nor for the addition of the grave accent, used to indicate syllables which the rhythm requires to be pronounced, in order to simplify the reading for those unaccustomed to the old-time frequiarities of spelling.

Of sondry folk, by aventure y-falle In felaweshipe, and pilgrymes were thei alle, That toward Caunterbury wolden ryde.

A KNYGHT ther was, and that a worthy man. That fro the tyme that he first bigan To riden out, he loved chivalrie, Trouthe and honour, fredom and curteisie. Ful worthy was he in his lordès werre, And therto hadde he riden, noman ferre,1 As wel in cristendom as in hethenesse, And evere honoured for his worthynesse.

And though that he were worthy, he was wys. And of his port as meeke as is a mayde. He nevere yet no vileynye 2 ne sayde In al his lyf unto no maner wight. He was a verray parfit, gentil knyght.

With hym ther was his sone, a yong SQUIER, A lovvere and a lusty bacheler, With lokkes crulle 8 as they were leyd in presse. Of twenty yeer of age he was I gesse. Of his stature he was of evene lengthe, And wonderly delyvere,4 and of greet strengthe. And he hadde ben somtyme in chyvachie, 5 In Flaundres, in Artoys, and Pycardie, And born hym weel, as of so litel space. In hope to stonden in his lady grace. Embrouded 6 was he, as it were a meede Al ful of fresshe floures whyte and reede. Syngynge he was, or floytynge,7 al the day; He was as fressh as is the monthe of May. Short was his gowne, with sleves longe and wyde. Wel cowde he sitte on hors, and faire ryde. He koude songes make and wel endite, Juste and eek daunce, and weel purtreye 8 and

So hoote he lovede, that by nyghtertale 9 He sleep nomore than dooth a nyghtyngale; Curteis he was, lowely and servysable, And carf 10 biforn his fader at the table.

Ther was also a Nonne, a PRIORESSE, That of hire smylyng was ful symple and coy; Hire gretteste ooth ne was but by seint Loy; 11 And she was cleped madame Eglentyne. Ful weel she soonge the service dyvyne, Entuned in hir nose ful semeely; And Frenssh she spak ful faire and fetisly.12 After the scole of Stratford-atte-Bowe. For Frenssh of Parys was to hire unknowe.

1 farther. 3 curled. 5 a military expedition 7 playing on a flute

4 active. 6 embroidered. 8 portray -- draw.

o night-time. 11 probably St. Louis 12 featly - neatly.

2 nothing unmannerly.

1 meat - table 3 morsel 5 surely.

6 took pains. 7 cake (gasteau) bread

8 rod. o straight. 10 The pandies were the larger beads. zz uppermost short cloak. 12 fiddle. 13 psaitery.

s pleasure.

4 reached.

At metè 1 wel ytaught was she with alle. She leet no morsel from hir lippes falle. Ne wette hire fyngres in hire sauce deepe. Wel koude she carie a morsel and wel kepe, That no dropè ne fille up-on hire breste; In curteisie was set ful muchel hir leste.2 Hire over-lippe wyped she so clene, That in hir coppe ther was no ferthyng sene Of grece, whan she dronken hadde hir draughte. Ful semely after hir mete she raughte,4 And sikerly 5 she was of greet disport, And ful plesaunt, and amyable of port, And pevnèd hir 6 to countrefeté cheere Of Court, and to ben establish of manere, And to ben holden digne of reverence: But for to speken of hire conscience, She was so charitable and so pitous, She wolde were if that she saugh a mous Kaught in a trappe, if it were deed or bledde. Of smale houndes hadde she, that she fedde With rosted flessh, or mylk and wastel-breed;7 But soore wepte she if any of hem were deed, Or if men smoot it with a verde smerte: And al was conscience and tendre herte.

Ful semely hire wympul pynched was; Hire nose tretys,9 hire eyèn greye as glas, Hir mouth ful smal, and ther to softe and reed But sikerly she hadde a fair forheed; It was almoost a spannè brood, I trowe, For hardily she was nat undergrowe. Ful fetys was hir cloke, as I was war; Of smal coral aboute hire arm she bar A peire of bedes gauded 10 al with grene; And ther-on heng a broch of gold ful schene, On which ther was first write a crowned A. And after, Amor vincit omnia.

Another Nonne with hire hadde she, That was hire Chapeleyne, and Preestès thre.

A CLERK ther was of Oxenford also That un-to logyk haddè longe ygo. And leene was his hors as is a rake, And he nas nat right fat, I undertake, But looked holwe, and ther to sobrely; Ful thredbare was his overeste courtepy,11 For he hadde geten hym yet no benefice, Ne was so worldly to have office; For hym was levere have at his beddes heed Twenty bookes, clad in blak or reed, Of Aristotle and his philosophie, Than robès riche, or fithele,12 or gay sautrie.18 But al be that he was a philosophre, Yet haddè he but litel gold in cofre;

But al that he mighte of his freendes hente,¹ On bookes and his lernynge he it spente, And bisily gan for the soules preye Of hem that gaf him wher with to scoleye,² Of studie took he moost cure and moost heede, Noght o word spak he moore than was neede, And that was seyd in forme and reverence And short and quyk and ful of hy sentence. Sownynge in ⁸ moral vertu was his speche And gladly wolde he lerne, and gladly teche.

A SERGEANT OF THE LAWE, war 4 and wys, That often hadde ben at the Parvys, 5
Ther was also ful riche of excellence.
Discreet he was and of greet reverence;
He semed swich, hise wordes weren so wise.
Justice he was ful often in Assise,
By patente, and by pleyn cominissioun,
For his science and for his heigh renoun.
Of fees and robes hadde he many oon;
So gret a purchasour 6 was nowher noon.
Al was fee symple to hym in effect,
His purchasyng myghte nat ben infect.
Nowher so bisy a man as he ther nas, 8
And yet he semed bisier than he was.

A good man was ther of religioun, And was a Povre Persoun 9 of A Toun: But riche he was of hooly thoght and werk; He was also a lerned man, a clerk That Cristès Gospel trewely wolde preche, Hise parisshens devoutly wolde he teche. Benygne he was, and wonder diligent, And in adversitee ful pacient; And such he was y-preved ofte sithes. 10 Ful looth were hym to curse for his tythes, But rather wolde he geven,11 out of doute. Un-to his poviè parisshens aboute, Of his offryng and eek of his substaunce. He koude in litel thyng have suffisaunce. Wyd was his parisshe, and houses fer a-sonder, But he ne lafte 12 nat for reyn ne thouder, In siknesse nor in meschief to visite The ferreste 18 in his parisshe muche and lite 14 Up-on his feet, and in his hand a staf. This noble ensample to his sheepe he gaf,15 That firste he wroghte, and afterward he taughte.

A bettre preest, I trowe, that nowher noon is · He waiteth after no pompe and reverence, Ne makèd hun a spicèd conscience,

z get. a study
3 tending toward. 4 wary — prudent.
5 portice of St. Paul's, where lawyers met.
6 prosecutor 7 tamted
6 ne was — was not. 9 Poor Parson, zo times. 21 give.
22 ceased. 23 farthest.
24 great and small. 25 gave.

But Cristès loore, and his Apostles twelve, He taughte, but first he folwed it hym selve.

Now have I toold you shortly in a clause
The staat, tharray, the nombre, and eek the cause
Why that assembled was this compaignye
In Southwerk at this gentil hostelrye,
That highte the Tabard, faste by the Belle.
But now is tyme to yow for to telle
How that we baren us that ilke 1 nyght,
Whan we were in that hostelne alyght,
And after wol I telle of our viage,
And al the remenaunt of oure pilgninage.

But first, I pray yow of your curtersye, That ye narette it nat my vileinye,2 Thogh that I pleynly speke in this mateere, To telle yow hir wordes and hir cheere; Ne thogh I speke hir wordes proprely. For this ye knowen al so wel as I, Whoso shal telle a tale after a man, He moote reherce, as ny as evere he kan Everich a word, if it be in his charge, Al speke he never so rudèliche? or large ;4 Or ellis he moot telle his tale untrewe, Or f yne thyng, or fynde wordes newe. He may nat spare al thogh he were his brother, He moot as wel seve o word as another. Crist spak hym self ful brode in hooly writ And wel ye woot no vileynye is it. Eek Plato seith, who so can hym rede, "The wordes moote be cosyn 5 to the dede."

Also I prey yow to forgeve it me, Al have I nat set folk in hir degree Heere in this tale, as that they scholde stonde; My wit is short, ye may wel understonde.

Greet chiere made oure host us everichon, And to the soper sette he us anon And served us with vitaille at the beste. Strong was the wyn and wel to drynke us leste.

A seniely man Oure Hoost he was withalle For to han been a marchal in an halle; A large man he was with eyen stepe, A fairer burgeys was ther noon in Chepe: Boold of his speche, and wys and wel ytaught, And of manhod hym lakkede right naught. Eek therto he was right a myrie 7 man, And after soper pleyen he bygan, And spak of myrthe amonges othere thinges, Whan that we hadde maad our rekenynges; And seyde thus: "Lo, lordynges, trewely Ye ben to me right welcome hertely: For by my trouthe, if that I shal nat lye, I saugh nat this yeer so myrie a compaignye Atones in this herberwes as is now.

```
z same. 2 that ye ascribe it not to my ill breeding.
3 rudely 4 free.
5 germane, 6 pleased. 7 merry, 8 harborage—ma
```

Fayn wolde I doon 1 yow myrthe, wiste I how. And of a myrthe I am right now bythoght, To doon you ese, and it shal coste noght.

Ye goon to Canterbury, God you speede,
The blisful martir quite yow youre meede!²
And wel I woot as ye goon by the weye
Ye shapen yow ³ to talen ⁴ and to pleye;
For trewely confort ne myrthe is noon
To ride by the weye doumb as the stoon;
And therefore wol I maken you disport,
As I seyde erst, and doon you som confort.

That ech of yow to shorte with oure weye, In this viage shal telle tales tweye,5 -To Caunterburyward, I mean it so, And homward he shal tellen othere two. — Of aventures that whilom han bifalle. And which of yow that bereth hym best of alle, That is to seyn, that telleth in this caas Talès of best sentence,6 and most solaas,7 Shal have a soper at oure aller cost, Heere in this place, syttynge by this post, Whan that we come agayn fro Caunterbury. And, for to make you the moore mury, I wol my-selfe gladly with yow ryde, Right at myn owene cost, and be youre gyde. And who so wole my juggèment withseye 8 Shal paye al that we spenden by the weye. And if ye vouchè-sauf that it be so, Tel me anon, with-outen wordes mo, And I wol erly shape 9 me therfore.

This thyng was graunted, and oure othes swore With ful glad herte, and preyden hym also That he would vouche-sauf for to do so, And that he wolde been oure governour, And of oure tales juge and reportour, And sette a soper at a certeyn pris And we wol reuled been 10 at his devys In heigh and lough; and thus by oon assent We been accorded to his juggement. And ther-up-on the wyn was fet anon; We dronken and to reste wente echon With-outen any lenger taryinge.

GEOFFREY CHAUCER.

CHRISTMAS IN THE OLDEN TIME.

FROM "MARMION," INTROD TO CANTO VI.

HEAP on more wood!—the wind is chill; But, let it whistle as it will, We'll keep our Christmas merry still. Each age has deemed the new-born year

1 make. 2 reward.
3 purpose. 4 tell tales.
5 two. 6 sense 9 sainsay
9 shape my afairs—prepare. 10 be ruied.

The fittest time for festal cheer: Even, heathen yet, the savage Dane At Iol more deep the mead did drain; High on the beach his galleys drew, And feasted all his pirate crew; Then in his low and pine-built hall. Where shields and axes decked the wall. They gorged upon the half-dressed steer: Caroused in seas of sable beer; While round, in brutal jest, were thrown The half-gnawed rib and marrow-bone; Or listened all, in grim delight, While scalds yelled out the joys of fight. Then forth in frenzy would they hie, While wildly loose their red locks fly: And, dancing round the blazing pile, They make such barbarous murth the while. As best might to the mind recall The boisterous joys of Odin's hall.

And well our Christian sires of old Loved when the year its course had rolled And brought blithe Christmas back again With all his hospitable train. Domestic and religious rite Gave honor to the holy night: On Christmas eve the bells were rung: On Christmas eve the mass was sung; That only night, in all the year, Saw the stoled priest the chalice rear. The damsel donned her kirtle sheen; The hall was dressed with holly green; Forth to the wood did merry-men go. To gather in the mistletoe. Then opened wide the baron's hall To vassal, tenant, serf, and all; Power laid his rod of rule aside, And Ceremony doffed her pride. The heir, with roses in his shoes. That night might village partner choose; The lord, underogating, share The vulgar game of "post and pair." All hailed, with uncontrolled delight, And general voice, the happy night That to the cottage, as the crown, Brought tidings of salvation down.

The fire, with well-dried logs supplied,
Went roaring up the chimney wide;
The huge hall-table's caken face,
Scrubbed till it shone, the day to grace,
Bore then upon its massive board
No mark to part the squire and lord.
Then was brought in the lusty brawn,
By old blue-coated serving-man;
Then the grim boar's-head frowned on high.
Crested with bays and rosemary.
Well can the green-garbed ranger tell
How, when, and where the monster fell;

What dogs before his death he tore, And all the baiting of the boar. The wassail round, in good brown bowls, Garnished with ribbons, blithely trowls. There the huge sirloin reeked; hard by Plum-porridge stood, and Christmas pie; Nor failed old Scotland to produce, At such high-tide, her savory goose. Then came the merry maskers in, And carols roared with blithesome din; If unmelodious was the song, It was a hearty note, and strong. Who lists may in their mumming see Traces of ancient mystery; White skirts supplied the masquerade, And smutted checks the visors made: But, O, what maskers richly dight Can boast of bosoms half so light! England was merry England, when Old Christmas brought his sports again. T was Christmas broached the mightiest ale; 'T was Christmas told the merriest tale. A Christmas gambol oft could cheer The poor man's heart through half the year. SIR WALTER SCOTT.

O, THE PLEASANT DAYS OF OLD!

- O, THE pleasant days of old, which so often people praise!
- True, they wanted all the luxuries that grace our modern days
- Bare floors were strewed with rushes, the walls let in the cold;
- O, how they must have shivered in those pleasant days of old!
- O, those ancient lords of old, how magnificent they were '
- They threw down and imprisoned kings, -- to thwart them who might dare?
- They ruled their serfs right sternly; they took from Jews their gold, —
- Above both law and equity were those great lords of old!
- O, the gallant knights of old, for their valor so renowned!
- With sword and lance and armor strong they scoured the country round;
- And whenever aught to tempt them they met by wood or wold,
- By right of sword they seized the prize, those gallant knights of old!

- O, the gentle dames of old! who, quite free from fear or pain,
- Could gaze on joust and tournament, and see their champions slain;
- They lived on good beefsteaks and ale, which made them strong and bold, —
- O, more like men than women were those gentle dames of old!
- O, those mighty towers of old! with their turrets, moat, and keep,
- Their battlements and bastions, their dungeons dark and deep.
- Full many a baron held his court within the castle hold;
- And many a captive languished there, in those strong towers of old.
- O, the troubadours of old! with the gentle minstrelsie
- Of hope and joy, or deep despair, whiche'er their lot might be;
- For years they served their ladye-loves ere they their passions told, —
- O, wondrous patience must have had those tronbadours of old!
- O, those blessèd times of old, with their chivalry and state!
- I love to read their chronicles, which such brave deeds relate;
- I love to sing their ancient rhymes, to near their legends told, —
- But, Heaven be thanked! I live not in those blessed times of old!

[In Eastern history are two Iskanders, or Alexanders, who are sometimes confounded, and both of whom are called Doolkarnem, or the Two-Horned, in allusion to their subjugation of East and West, horns being an Oriental symbol of power

THE TRUMPETS OF DOOLKARNEIN.

One of these heroes is Alexander of Macedon, the other a conqueror of more ancient times, who built the marvellous series of ramparts on Mount Caucasus, known in fable as the wall of Gog and Magog, that is to say, of the people of the North. It reached from the Euxine Sea to the Caspian, where its flanks originated the subsequent appellation of the Caspian Gates.]

With awful walls, far glooming, that possessed

The passes 'twixt the snow-fed Caspian fountains,

Doolkarnein, the dread lord of East and West, Shut up the northern nations in their mountains:

And upon platforms where the oak-trees grew,

Trumpets he set, huge beyond dreams of wonder,

Craftily purposed, when his arms withdrew,
To make hun thought still housed there, like the thunder:

And it so fell; for when the winds blew right, They woke these trumpets to their calls of might.

Unseen, but heard, their calls the trumpets blew, Ringing the granite rocks, their only bearers, Till the long fear into religion grew,

And nevermore those heights had human darers.

Dreadful Doolkarnein was an earthly god;
His walls but shadowed forth his mightier
frowning;

Armies of giants at his bidding trod

From realm to realm, king after king discrowning.

When thunder spoke, or when the earthquake stirred,

Then, muttering in accord, his host was heard.

But when the winters marred the mountain shelves,

And softer changes came with vernal mornings, Something had touched the trumpets' lofty selves, And less and less rang forth their sovereign warnings;

Fewer and feebler; as when silence spreads In plague-struck tents, where haughty chiefs, left dying,

Fail by degrees upon their angry beds,

Till, one by one, ceases the last stern sighing.

One by one, thus, their breath the trumpets drew,

Till now no more the imperious music blew.

Is he then dead? Can great Doolkarnein die?
Or can his endless hosts elsewhere be needed?
Were the great breaths that blew his minstrelsy
Phantoms, that faded as himself receded?
Or is he angered? Surely he still comes;
This silence ushers the dread visitation;
Sudden will burst the torrent of his drums,
And then will follow bloody desolation.
So did fear dream; though now, with not a sound

Then gathered in a band, with lifted eyes,

The neighbors, and those silent heights ascended.

To scare good hope, summer had twice crept round.

Giant, nor aught blasting their bold emprise, They met, though twice they halted, breath suspended:

Once, at a coming like a god's in rage
With thunderous leaps, — but 't was the piled snow, falling;

And once, when in the woods an oak, for age, Fell dead, the silence with its groan appalling.

At last they came where still, in dread array, As though they still might speak, the trumpets lay.

Unhurt they lay, like caverns above ground,

The rifted rocks, for hands, about them clinging,

Their tubes as straight, their mighty mouths as round

And firm as when the rocks were first set ringing.

Fresh from their unimaginable mould

They might have seemed, save that the storms had stained them

With a rich rust, that now, with gloomy gold
In the bright sunshme, beauteously ingrained them.

Breathless the gazers looked, nigh faint for awe, Then leaped, then laughed. What was it now they saw?

Myriads of birds. Myriads of birds, that filled
The trumpets all with nests and nestling voices!

The great, huge, stormy music had been stilled

By the soft needs that nursed those small, sweet noises!

O thou Doolkarnein, where is now thy wall?
Where now thy voice divine and all thy forces f
Great was thy cunning, but its wit was small Compared with nature's least and gentlest

Fears and false creeds may fright the realms awhile;

But heaven and earth abide their time, and smile.

Leigh Hunt.

MAHMOUD.

THERE came a man, making his hasty moan
Before the Sultan Mahmoud on his throne,
And crying out, "My sorrow is my right,
And I will see the Sultan, and to-night."
"Sorrow," said Mahmoud, "is a reverend thing:
I recognize its right, as king with king;
Speak on." "A fiend has got into my house," Exclaimed the staring man, "and tortures us,—
One of thme officers; he comes, the abhorred,
And takes possession of my house, my board,
My bed;—I have two daughters and a wife,
And the wild villain comes and makes me mad with life."

"Is he there now?" said Mahmoud. "No; he left

The house when I did, of my wits bereft,
And laughed me down the street, because I vowed I'd bring the prince himself to lay him in his shroud.

١

I 'm mad with want, I 'm mad with misery,
And, O thou Sultan Mahmoud, God cries out for thee!"

The Sultan comforted the man, and said,
"Go home, and I will send thee wine and bread"
(For he was poor) "and other comforts. Go;
And should the wretch return, let Sultan Mahmoud know."

In three days' time, with haggard eyes and beard, And shaken voice, the surtor reappeared, And said, "He's come." Mahmoud said not a word,

But 10se and took four slaves, each with a sword, And went with the vexed man. They reach the piace,

And hear a voice, and see a woman's face, That to the window fluttered in affright: "Go in," said Mahmoud, "and put out the light; But tell the females first to leave the room; And when the drunkard follows them, we come."

The man went in. There was a cry, and hark!
A table falls, the window is struck dark.
Forth rush the breathless women, and behind
With curses comes the fiend in desperate mind.
In vain—the sabies soon cut short the strife,
And chop the shricking wietch, and drink his bloody life.

"Now light the light," the Sultan cried aloud:
"T was done: he took it in his hand and bowed
Over the corpse, and looked upon the face;
Then turned and knelt, and to the throne of grace
Put up a prayer, and from his hips there crept
Some gentle words of pleasure, and he wept.
In reverent silence the beholders wait,
Then bring him at his call both wine and meat;
And when he had refreshed his noble heart,
He bade his host be blest, and rose up to depart.

The man amazed, all mildness now and tears, Fell at the Sultan's feet with many prayers, And begged him to vouchsafe to tell his slave The reason first of that command he gave About the light; then, when he saw the face, Why he knelt down; and lastly, how it was That fare so poor as his detained him in the place.

The Sultan said, with a benignant eve,
"Since first I saw thee come, and heard thy cry,
I could not rid me of a dread, that one
By whom such daring villanies were done,
Must be some lord of mine, — ay, e'en perhaps a som.

For this I had the light put out: but when I saw the face, and found a stranger slain,

I knelt and thanked the sovereign Arbiter, Whose work I had performed through pain and fear;

And then I rose and was refreshed with food,
The first time since thy voice had marred my solitude."

LEIGH HUNT

THE LEPER.

"Room for the leper 'room '" And as he came The cry passed on, —"Room for the leper 'room'"

And aside they stood,
Matron, and child, and pitiless manhood, — all
Who met him on his way, — and let him pass.
And onward through the open gate he came
A leper with the ashes on his brow,
Sackcloth about his loins, and on his lip
A covering, stepping painfully and slow,
And with a difficult utterance, like one
Whose heart is with an iron nerve put down,
Crying, "Unclean! unclean!"

Day was breaking
When at the altar of the temple stood
The holy priest of God. The incense-lamp
Burned with a struggling light, and a low chant
Swelled through the hollow arches of the roof,
Like an articulate wail, and there, alone,
Wasted to ghastly thinness, Helon knelt.
The echoes of the melancholy stiain
Died in the distant aisles, and he rose up, Struggling with weakness, and bowed down his head

Unto the sprinkled ashes, and put off
His costly raiment for the leper's garb,
And with the sackcloth round him, and his lip
Hid in a loathsome covering, stood still,
Waiting to hear his doom.—

"Depart! depart, O child
Of Israel, from the temple of thy God,
For he has smote thee with his chastening rod,
And to the desert wild
From all thou lov'st away thy feet must flee,
That from thy plague his people may be free.

"Depart! and come not near
The busy mart, the crowded city, more;
Nor set thy foot a human threshold o'er;
And stay thou not to hear
Voices that call thee in the way; and fly
From all who in the wilderness pass by.

"Wet not thy burning lip
In streams that to a human dwelling glide;
Nor rest thee where the covert fountains hide,
Nor kneel thee down to dip

The water where the pilgrim bends to drink, By desert well, or river's grassy brink.

"And pass not thou between
The weary traveller and the cooling breeze,
And lie not down to sleep beneath the trees
Where human tracks are seen;
Nor milk the goat that browseth on the plain,
Nor pluck the standing corn or yellow grain.

"And now depart! and when
Thy heart is heavy, and thine eyes are dim,
Lift up thy prayer beseechingly to Him
Who, from the tribes of men,
Selected theo to feel his chastening rod.
Depart! O leper! and forget not God!"

And he went forth—alone 'not one of all
The many whom he loved, nor she whose name
Was woven in the fibres of the heart
Breaking within him now, to come and speak
Comfort unto him. Yea, he went his way,
Sick and heart-broken and alone,—to die!
For God had cursed the leper!

It was noon.

And Helon knelt beside a stagnant pool
In the lone wilderness, and bathed his brow,
Hot with the burning leprosy, and touched
The loathsome water to his fevered lips,
Praying that he might be so blest,—to die!
Footsteps approached, and with no strength to flee,

He drew the covering closer on his lip,
Crying, "Unclean! unclean!" and in the folds
Of the coarse sackcloth shrouding up his face,
He fell upon the earth till they should pass.
Nearer the stranger came, and, bending o'er
The leper's prostrate form, pronounced his name.

— "Helon!"—the voice was like the mastertone

Of a rich instrument, — most strangely sweet; And the dull pulses of disease awoke, And for a moment beat beneath the hot And leprous scales with a restoring thrill. "Helon! arise!" and he forgot his curse, And rose and stood before him.

Love and awe

Mingled in the regard of Helon's eye
As he beheld the stranger. He was not
In costly raiment clad, nor on his brow
The symbol of a princely lineage wore;
No followers at his back, nor in his hand
Buckler or sword or spear, —yet in his mien
Command sat throned serene, and if he smiled,
A kingly condescension graced his lips
The lion would have crouched to in his lair.
His garb was simple, and his sandals worn;

His stature modelled with a perfect grace; His countenance, the impress of a God, Touched with the open innocence of a child; His eye was blue and calm, as is the sky In the screnest noon; his hair unshorn Fell to his shoulders; and his curling beard The fulness of perfected manhood bore. He looked on Helon carnestly awhile, As if his heart was moved, and, stooping down, He took a little water in his hand And laid it on his brow, and said, "Be clean!" And lo! the scales fell from him, and his blood Coursed with delicious coolness through his veins, And his dry palms grew moist, and on his brow The dewy softness of an infant's stole. His leprosy was cleansed, and he fell down Prostrate at Jesus' feet, and worshipped him. NATHANIEL PARKER WILLIS.

GODIVA.

Nor only we, the latest seed of Time,
New men, that in the flying of a wheel
Cry down the past; not only we, that prate
Of rights and wrongs, have loved the people well,
And loathed to see them overtaxed; but she Did more, and underwent, and overcame,
The woman of a thousand summers back,
Godiva, wife to that grim Earl who ruled
In Coventry: for when he laid a tax
Upon his town, and all the methers brought Their children, clamoring, "If we pay, we starve!"

She sought her lord, and found him, where he strode

About the hall, among his dogs, alone,
His beard a foot before him, and his hair
A yard behind. She told him of their tears,
And prayed him, "If they pay this tax, they starve."

Whereat he stared, replying, half amazed, "You would not let your little finger ache For such as these?" "But I would die," said she. He laughed, and swore by Peter and by Paul: Then filliped at the diamond in her ear; "O, ay, ay, you talk!" "Alas!" she said, "But prove me what it is I would not do." And from a heart as rough as Esau's hand, He answered, "Ride you naked through the town, And I repeal it;" and nodding, as in scorn, He parted, with great strides among his dogs.

So left alone, the passions of her mind,
As winds from all the compass shift and blow,
Made war upon each other for an hour,
Till pity won. She sent a herald forth,

And bade him cry, with sound of trumpet, all The hard condition; but that she would loose The people: therefore, as they loved her well, From then till noon no foot should pace the street, No eye look down, she passing; but that all Should keep within, door shut and window barred.

Then fied she to her inmost bower, and there Unclasped the wedded eagles of her belt,
The grim Earl's gift; but ever at a breath
She lingered, looking like a summer moon
Half dipt in cloud: anon she shook her head,
And showered the rippled ringlets to her knee;
Unclad herself in haste; adown the stair
Stole on; and, like a creeping sunbeam, shd
From pillar unto pillar, until she reached
The gateway; there she found her palfrey trapt
In purple blazoned with armornal gold.

Then she rode forth, clothed on with chastity. The deep air listened round her as she rode, And all the low wind hardly breathed for fear. The little wide-mouthed heads upon the spout Had cunning eyes to see: the banking cur Made her cheek flame: her palfrey's footfall shot Light horrors through her pulses: the blind walls Were full of chinks and holes; and overhead Fantastic gables, crowding, stared: but she Not less through all bore up, till, last, she saw The white-flowered elder-thicket from the field Gleam through the Gothic archways in the wall.

Then she rode back, clothed on with chastity. And one low churl, compact of thankless earth, The fatal byword of all years to come, Boring a little auger-hole in fear, Peeped — but his eyes, before they had their will, Were shrivelled into darkness in his head, And dropt before him. So the Powers, who wait On noble deeds, cancelled a sense misused; And she, that knew not, passed: and all at once, With twelve great shocks of sound, the shameless

Was clashed and hammered from a hundred towers, One after one: but even then she gained Her bower; whence reissuing, robed and crowned, To meet her lord, she took the tax away, And built herself an everlasting name.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

THE PRISONER OF CHILLON.

ETERNAL spirit of the chainless mind!
Brightest in dungeons, Liberty! thou art,
For there thy habitation is the heart, —
The heart which love of thee alone can bind;
And when thy sons to fetters are consigned, —
To fetters, and the damp vault's dayless gloom,—
Their country conquers with their martyrdom,
And Freedom's fame finds wings on every wind.
Chillon! thy prison is a holy place,
And thy sad floor an altar, — for 't was trod,

| Until his very steps have left a trace | Worn, as if thy cold pavement were a sod, | By Bonnivard! — May none those marks efface! | For they appeal from tyranny to God.

My hair is gray, but not with years,
Nor grew it white
In a single night,
As men's have grown from sudden fears:
My limbs are bowed, though not with toil,
But rusted with a vile repose,

For they have been a dungeon's spoil,
And mine has been the fate of those
To whom the goodly earth and air
Are banned, and barred, — forbidden fare;
But this was for my father's faith
I suffered chains and courted death;
That father perished at the stake
For tenets he would not forsake;
And for the same his lineal race
In darkness found a dwelling-place;
We were seven, — who now are one,
Six in youth, and one in age.

Finished as they had begun,
Proud of Persecution's rage;
One in fire, and two in field,
Their belief with blood have sealed!
Dying as their father died,
For the God their foes denied;
Three were in a dungeon cast,
Of whom this wreck is left the last.

There are seven pillars of Gothic mould In Chillon's dungeons deep and old, There are seven columns, massy and gray, Dim with a dull imprisoned ray, — A sunbeam which hath lost its way, And through the crevice and the cleft Of the thick wall is fallen and left, Creeping o'er the floor so damp, Like a marsh's meteor lamp, — And in each pillar there is a ring,

And in each ring there is a chain; That iron is a cankering thing,

For in these limbs its teeth remain With marks that will not wear away, Till I have done with this new day, Which now is painful to these eyes, Which have not seen the sun to rise For years, — I cannot count them o'er, I lost their long and heavy score When my last brother drooped and died, And I lay living by his side.

They chained us each to a column stone, And we were three, yet each alone; We could not move a single pace,

We could not see each other's face. But with that pale and livid light That made us strangers in our sight; And thus together, yet apart, Fettered in hand, but pined in heart; T was still some solace, in the dearth Of the pure elements of earth, To hearken to each other's speech, And each turn comforter to each With some new hope, or legend old, Or song heroically bold; But even these at length grew cold. Our voices took a dreary tone, An echo of the dungeon-stone, A grating sound, - not full and free As they of yore were wont to be; It might be fancy, - but to me They never sounded like our own.

I was the eldest of the three, And to uphold and cheer the rest I ought to do - and did - my best, And each did well in his degree. The youngest, whom my father loved, Because our mother's brow was given To him, with eyes as blue as heaven, -For him my soul was sorely moved; And truly might it be distrest To see such bird in such a nest; For he was beautiful as day (When day was beautiful to me As to young eagles, being free), -A polar day, which will not see A sunset till its summer's gone, Its sleepless summer of long light, The snow-clad offspring of the sun; And thus he was as pure and bright, And in his natural spirit gay, With tears for naught but others' ills, And then they flowed like mountain rills, Unless he could assuage the woe Which he abhorred to view below.

But formed to combat with his kind;
Strong in his frame, and of a mood
Which 'gainst the world in war had stood,
And perished in the foremost rank
With joy; — but not in chains to pine;
His spirit withered with their clank,
I saw it silently decline, —
And so perchance in sooth did mine;
But yet I forced it on to cheer
Those relics of a home so dear.
He was a hunter of the hills,
Had followed there the deer and wolf;
To him this dungeon was a gulf
And fettered feet the worst of ills.

The other was as pure of mind,

Lake Leman lies by Chillon's walls: A thousand feet in depth below Its massy waters meet and flow: Thus much the fathom-line was sent From Chillon's snow-white buttlement. Which round about the wave inthralls: A double dungeon wall and wave Have made, - and like a living grave. Below the surface of the lake The dark vault lies wherein we lay. We heard it ripple night and day; Sounding o'er our heads it knocked; And I have felt the winter's spray Wash through the bars when winds were high And wanton in the happy sky; And then the very rock hath rocked,

And then the very rock hath rocked, And I have felt it shake, unshocked, Because I could have smiled to see The death that would have set me free.

I said my nearer brother pined, I said his mighty heart declined. He loathed and put away his food; It was not that 't was coarse and rude. For we were used to hunter's fare, And for the like had little care; The milk drawn from the mountain goat Was changed for water from the moat. Our bread was such as captives' tears Have moistened many a thousand years, Since man first pent his fellow-men Like brutes within an iron den: But what were these to us or him? These wasted not his heart or limb: My brother's soul was of that mould Which in a palace had grown cold. Had his free breathing been denied The range of the steep mountain's side; But why delay the truth 1 - he died. I saw, and could not hold his head. Nor reach his dying hand, - nor dead, -Though hard I strove, but strove in vain. To rend and gnash my bonds in twain. He died, - and they unlocked his chain, And scooped for him a shallow grave Even from the cold earth of our cave. I begged them, as a boon, to lay His corse in dust whereon the day Might shine, - it was a foolish thought, But then within my brain it wrought, That even in death his free-born breast In such a dungeon could not rest. I might have spared my idle prayer, -They coldly laughed, and laid him there. The flat and turfless earth above The being we so much did love: His empty chain above it leant. Such murder's fitting monument !

But he, the favorite and the flower, Most cherished since his natal hour. His mother's image in fair face, The infant love of all his race. His martyred father's dearest thought, My latest care, for whom I sought To heard my life, that his might be Less wretched now, and one day free: He, too, who yet had held untired A spirit natural or inspired, — He, too, was struck, and day by day Was withered on the stalk away. O God! it is a fearful thing To see the human soul take wing In any shape, in any mood : -I've seen it rushing forth in blood, I've seen it on the breaking ocean Strive with a swoln convulsive motion, I've seen the sick and ghastly bed Of Sin delirious with its dread: But these were horrors, - this was woe Unmixed with such, —but sure and slow: He faded, and so calm and meek, So softly worn, so sweetly weak, So tearless, yet so tender, - kind, And grieved for those he left behind: With all the while a cheek whose bloo Was as a mockery of the tomb. Whose tints as gently sunk away As a departing rambow's ray, -An eye of most transparent light, That almost made the dungeon bright, And not a word of murmur, - not A grean o'er his untimely lot, -A little talk of better days, A little hope my own to raise, For I was sunk in silence, -lost In this last loss, of all the most; And then the sighs he would suppress Of fainting nature's feebleness, More slowly drawn, grew less and less: I listened, but I could not hear, -I called, for I was wild with fear; I knew't was hopeless, but my dread Would not be thus admonished: I called, and thought I heard a sound, -I burst my chain with one strong bound, And rushed to him :- I found him not, I only stirred in this black spot, I only lived, -I only drew The accursed breath of dungeon-dew; The last — the sole — the dearest link Between me and the eternal brink, Which bound me to my failing race, Was broken in this fatal place. One on the earth, and one beneath, — My brothers — both had ceased to breathe.

I took that hand which lay so still, Alas! my own was full as chill; I had not strength to stir or strive, But felt that I was still alive,— A frantic feeling when we know That what we love shall ne'er be so.

I know not why
I could not die,
I had no earthly hope — but faith,
And that forbade a selfish death.

What next befell me then and there I know not well - I never knew. First came the loss of light and air, And then of darkness too; I had no thought, no feeling - none: Among the stones I stood a stone, And was, scarce conscious what I wist, As shrubless crags within the mist; For all was blank and bleak and gray; It was not night, - it was not day; It was not even the dungeon-light, So hateful to my heavy sight; But vacancy absorbing space, And fixedness, without a place : There were no stars—no earth—no time— No check - no change - no good - no crime; But silence, and a stirless breath Which neither was of life nor death : -A sea of stagnant idleness, Blind, boundless, mute, and motionless

A light broke in upon my brain, — It was the carol of a bird: It ceased, and then it came again, -The sweetest song ear ever heard. And mine was thankful till my eyes Ran over with the glad surprise, And they that moment could not see I was the mate of misery: But then by dull degrees came back My senses to their wonted track, I saw the dungeon walls and floor Close slowly round me as before, I saw the glimmer of the sun Creeping as it before had done. But through the crevice where it came That bird was perched, as fond and tam And tamer than upon the tree; A lovely bird, with azure wings, And song that said a thousand things, And seemed to say them all for me.

I never saw its like before,
I ne'er shall see its likeness more.
It seemed, like me, to want a mate,
But was not half so desolate,
And it was come to love me when

We could not see each other's face, But with that pale and livid light That made us strangers in our sight; And thus together, yet apart, Fettered in hand, but pined in heart; T was still some solace, in the dearth Of the pure elements of earth, To hearken to each other's speech, And each turn comforter to each With some new hope, or legend old, Or song heroically bold; But even these at length grew cold. Our voices took a dreary tone, An echo of the dungeon-stone,

A grating sound, - not full and free As they of yore were wont to be; It might be fancy, - but to me They never sounded like our own.

I was the eldest of the three, And to uphold and cheer the rest I ought to do - and did - my best, And each did well in his degree. The youngest, whom my father loved, Because our mother's brow was given To him, with eyes as blue as heaven, -For him my soul was sorely moved; And truly might it be distrest To see such bird in such a nest; For he was beautiful as day (When day was beautiful to me As to young cagles, being free), -A polar day, which will not see A sunset till its summer's gone, Its sleepless summer of long light, The snow-clad offspring of the sun;

And thus he was as pure and bright, And in his natural spirit gay, With tears for naught but others' ills, And then they flowed like mountain rills. Unless he could assuage the woe Which he abhorred to view below.

The other was as pure of mind, But formed to combat with his kind; Strong in his frame, and of a mood Which 'gainst the world in war had stood, And perished in the foremost rank With joy : — but not in chains to pine ; His spirit withered with their clank, I saw it silently decline, -And so perchance in sooth did mine; But yet I forced it on to cheer Those relies of a home so dear. He was a hunter of the hills, Had followed there the deer and wolf; To him this dungeon was a gulf And fettered feet the worst of ills.

Lake Leman lies by Chillon's walls: A thousand feet in depth below Its massy waters meet and flow; Thus much the fathom-line was sent From Chillon's snow-white buttlement. Which round about the wave inthralls: A double dungeon wall and wave Have made, — and like a living grave.

Below the surface of the lake The dark vault lies wherein we lay, We heard it ripple night and day;

Sounding o'er our heads it knocked; And I have felt the winter's spray Wash through the bars when winds were high And wanton in the happy sky;

And then the very rock hath rocked, And I have felt it shake, unshocked, Because I could have smiled to see The death that would have set me free.

I said my nearer brother pined, I said his mighty heart declined, He loathed and put away his food; It was not that 't was coarse and rude. For we were used to hunter's fare, And for the like had little care : The milk drawn from the mountain goat Was changed for water from the moat. Our bread was such as captives' tears Have moistened many a thousand years, Since man first pent his fellow-men Like brutes within an iron den: But what were these to us or him? These wasted not his heart or limb: My brother's soul was of that mould Which in a palace had grown cold. Had his free breathing been denied The range of the steep mountain's side: But why delay the truth '- he died. I saw, and could not hold his head, Nor reach his dying hand, - nor dead, -Though hard I strove, but strove in vain, To rend and gnash my bonds in twain. He died, - and they unlocked his chain. And scooped for him a shallow grave Even from the cold earth of our cave. I begged them, as a boon, to lay His corse in dust whereon the day Might shine, - it was a foolish thought, But then within my brain it wrought. That even in death his free-born breast In such a dungeon could not rest. I might have spared my idle prayer, -They coldly laughed, and laid him there. The flat and turfless earth above The being we so much did love: His empty chain above it leant. Such murder's fitting monument!

But he, the favorite and the flower, Most cherished since his natal hour, His mother's image in fair face, The infant love of all his race, His martyred father's dearest thought, My latest care, for whom I sought To hoard my life, that his might be Less wretched now, and one day free; He, too, who yet had held untired A spirit natural or inspired, — He, too, was struck, and day by day Was withered on the stalk away. O God! it is a fearful thing To see the human soul take wing In any shape, in any mood ·-I've seen it rushing forth in blood, I've seen it on the breaking ocean Strive with a swoln convulsive motion, I've seen the sick and ghastly bed Of Sin dehiious with its dread: But these were horrors, - this was woe Unmixed with such, — but sure and slow: He faded, and so calm and meek, So softly worn, so sweetly weak, So tearless, yet so tender, - kind, And grieved for those he left behind: With all the while a cheek whose bloo Was as a mockery of the tomb, Whose tints as gently sunk away As a departing rambow's ray, -An eye of most transparent light, That almost made the dungeon bright, And not a word of murmur, - not A groan o'er his untimely lot, — A little talk of better days, A little hope my own to raise, For I was sunk in silence, -lost In this last loss, of all the most: And then the sighs he would suppress Of fainting nature's feebleness, More slowly drawn, grew less and less: I listened, but I could not hear, -I called, for I was wild with fear; I knew't was hopeless, but my dread Would not be thus admonished: I called, and thought I heard a sound, -I burst my chain with one strong bound, And rushed to him :- I found him not, I only stirred in this black spot, I only lived, — I only drew The accursed breath of dungeon-dew; The last — the sole — the dearest link Between me and the eternal brink, Which bound me to my failing race, Was broken in this fatal place. One on the earth, and one beneath, — My brothers - both had ceased to breathe. I took that hand which lay so still, Alas! my own was full as chill; I had not strength to stir or strive, But felt that I was still alive,— A frantic feeling when we know That what we love shall ne'er be so.

I know not why
I could not die,
I had no earthly hope — but faith,
And that forbade a selfish death.

What next befell me then and there I know not well - I never knew. First came the loss of light and air, And then of darkness too; I had no thought, no feeling - none: Among the stones I stood a stone, And was, scarce conscious what I wist, As shrubless crags within the mist; For all was blank and bleak and gray; It was not night, - it was not day; It was not even the dungeon-light, So hateful to my heavy sight; But vacancy absorbing space, And fixedness, without a place : There were no stars-no earth-no time-No check - no change - no good - no crime; But silence, and a stirless breath Which neither was of life nor death : -A sea of stagnant idleness. Blind, boundless, mute, and motionless

A light broke in upon my brain, — It was the carol of a bird: It ceased, and then it came again, -The sweetest song ear ever heard. And mine was thankful till my eyes Ran over with the glad surprise, And they that moment could not see I was the mate of misery: But then by dull degrees came back My senses to their wonted track, I saw the dungeon walls and floor Close slowly round me as before, I saw the glimmer of the sun Creeping as it before had done. But through the crevice where it came That bird was perched, as fond and tam And tamer than upon the tree;

A lovely bird, with azure wings,
And song that said a thousand things,
And seemed to say them all for me.
I never saw its like before,
I ne'er shall see its likeness more.

It seemed, like me, to want a mate, But was not half so desolate, And it was come to love me when None lived to love me so again, And cheering from my dungeon's brink, Had brought me back to feel and think. I know not if it late were free,

Or broke its cage to perch on mine, But knowing well captivity,

Sweet bird! I could not wish for thine!
Or if it were, in winged guise,
A visitant from Paradise:
For — Heaven forgive that thought! the while
Which made me both to weep and smile —
I sometimes deemed that it might be
My brother's soul come down to me;
But then at last away it flew,
And then 't was mortal, — well I knew,
For he would never thus have flown,
And left me twice so doubly lone, —
Lone — as the corse within its shroud,
Lone — as a solitary cloud,

A single cloud on a sunny day,
While all the rest of heaven is clear,
A frown upon the atmosphere,
That hath no business to appear
When skies are blue and earth is gay.

A kind of change came in my fate, My keepers grew compassionate; I know not what had made them so, They were inured to sights of woe, But so it was : - my broken chain With links unfastened did remain. And it was liberty to stride Along my cell from side to side, And up and down, and then athwart, And tread it over every part; And round the pillars one by one, Returning where my walk begun. Avoiding only, as I trod, My brothers' graves without a sod; For if I thought with heedless tread My step profaned their lowly bed, My breath came gaspingly and thick, And my crushed heart fell blind and sick.

I made a footing in the wall,
It was not therefrom to escape,
For I had buried one and all
Who loved me in a human shape:
And the whole earth would henceforth be
A wider prison unto me:
No child, — no sire, — no kin had I,
No partner in my misery;
I thought of this and I was glad,
For thought of them had made me mad;
But I was curious to ascend
To my barred windows, and to bend
Once more, upon the mountains high,
The quiet of a loving eye.

I saw them, — and they were the same,
They were not changed like me in frame;
I saw their thousand years of snow
On high, — their wide long lake below,
And the blue Rhone in fullest flow;
I heard the torrents leap and gush
O'er channelled rock and broken bush;
I saw the white-walled distant town,
And whiter sails go skimming down;
And then there was a little isle,
Which in my very face did smile,

The only one in view;
A small green isle, it seemed no more,
Scarce broader than my dungeon floor,
But in it there were three tall trees,
And o'er it blew the mountain breeze,
And by it there were waters flowing,
And on it there were young flowers growing,

Of gentle breath and hue. The fish swam by the castle wall, And they seemed joyous each and all; The eagle rode the rising blast, Methought he never flew so fast As then to me he seemed to fly, And then new tears came in my eye, And I felt troubled, - and would fain I had not left my recent chain; And when I did descend again, The darkness of my dim abode Fell on me as a heavy load; It was as in a new-dug grave Closing o'er one we sought to save, And yet my glance, too much oppressed, Had almost need of such a rest.

It might be months, or years, or days,
I kept no count, — I took no note,
I had no hope my eyes to raise,
And clear them of their dreary mote;
At last men came to set me free,

I asked not why and recked not where, It was at length the same to me, Fettered or fetterless to be,

I learned to love despair.

And thus when they appeared at last,
And all my bonds aside were cast,
These heavy walls to me had grown
A hermitage, and all my own!
And half I felt as they were come
To tear me from a second home;
With spiders I had friendship made,
And watched them in their sullen trade,
Had seen the mice by moonlight play,
And why should I feel less than they?
We were all immates of one place,
And I, the monarch of each race,
Had power to kill, — yet, strange to tell!
In quiet we had learned to dwell, —

My very chains and I grew friends, So much a long communion tends To make us what we are: — even I Regained my freedom with a sigh.

LORD BYRON.

DIVINA COMMEDIA.

OFT have I seen, at some cathedral door,
A laborer, pausing in the dust and heat,
Lay down his burden, and with reverent feet
Enter, and cross himself, and on the floor
Kneel to repeat his paternoster o'er;
Far off the noises of the world retreat;
The loud vociferations of the street
Become an undistinguishable roar.
So, as I enter here from day to day,
And leave my burden at this minster gate,
Kneeling in prayer, and not ashamed to pray,
The tumult of the time disconsolate
To inarticulate murmurs dies away,
While the eternal ages watch and wait.

How strange the sculptures that adorn these towers!

This crowd of statues, in whose folded sleeves Birds build their nests; while canopied with leaves

Parvis and portal bloom like trellised bowers,
And the vast minster seems a cross of flowers!
But fiends and dragons on the gargoyled caves
Watch the dead Christ between the living thieves.

And, underneath, the traitor Judas lowers!

Ah! from what agonies of heart and brain,

What exultations trampling on despair,

What tenderness, what tears, what hate of

What passionate outcry of a soul in pain, Uprose this poem of the earth and air, This mediaval miracle of song!

I enter, and I see thee in the gloom
Of the long aisles, O poet saturnine!
And strive to make my steps keep pace with thine.

The air is filled with some unknown perfume;
The congregation of the dead make room
For thee to pass; the votive tapers shine;
Like rooks that haunt Ravenna's groves of pine
The hovering echoes fly from tomb to tomb.

From the confessionals I hear arise
Rehearsals of forgotten tragedies,
And lamentations from the crypts below;
And then a voice celestial, that begins
With the pathetic words, "Although your sins

With the pathetic words, "Although your sins As scarlet be," and ends with "as the snow." With snow-white veil and garments as of flame, She stands before thee, who so long ago Filled thy young heart with passion and the woe From which thy song and all its splendors came; And while with stern rebuke she speaks thy name, The ice about thy heart melts as the snow On mountain heights, and in swift overflow Comes gushing from thy lips in sobs of shame. Thou makest full confession; and a gleam, As if the dawn on some dark forest cast, Seems on thy lifted forehead to increase; Lethè and Eunoe — the remembered dream And the forgotten sorrow — bring at last That perfect pardon which is perfect peace.

I lift mine eyes, and all the windows blaze
With forms of saints and holy men who died,
Here martyred and hereafter glorified;
And the great Rose upon its leaves displays
Christ's Triumph, and the angelic roundelays,
With splendor upon splendor multiplied;
And Beatrice again at Dante's side
No more rebukes, but smiles her words of praise.
And then the organ sounds, and unseen choirs
Sing the old Latin hymns of peace and love,
And benedictions of the Holy Ghost;
And the melodious bells among the spires O'er all the house-tops and through heaven
above

Proclaim the elevation of the Host!

O star of morning and of liberty!
O bringer of the light, whose splendor shines
Above the darkness of the Apennines,
Forerunner of the day that is to be!
The voices of the city and the sea,
The voices of the mountains and the pines,
Repeat thy song, till the familiar lines
Are footpaths for the thought of Italy!
Thy fame is blown abroad from all the heights,
Through all the nations, and a sound is heard,
As of a mighty wind, and men devout,
Strangers of Rome, and the new proselytes,
In their own language hear thy wondrous word,
And many are amazed and many doubt.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

THE VILLAGE SCHOOLMISTRESS.

FROM "THE SCHOOLMISTRESS"

In every village marked with little spire,
Embowered in trees, and hardly known to fame,
There dwells, in lowly shed and mean attire,
A matron old, whom we Schoolmistress name;
Who boasts unruly brats with birch to tame:
They grieven sore, in piteous durance pent,
Awed by the power of this relentless dame;

And ofttimes, on vagaries idly bent, For unkempt hair, or task unconned, are sorely shent.

Her cap, far whiter than the driven snow,
Emblem right meet of decency does yield:
Her apron dyed in grain, as blue, I trowe,
As is the harebell that adorns the field:
And in her hand, for sceptre, she does wield
Tway birchen sprays; with anxious fear entwined,

With dark distrust, and sad repentance filled; And steadfast hate, and sharp affliction joined, And fury uncontrolled, and chastisement unkind.

A russet stole was o'er her shoulders thrown;
A russet kirtle fenced the nipping air:
"T was simple russet, but it was her own;
"T was her own country bred the flock so fair,
"T was her own labor did the fleece prepare;
And, sooth to say, her pupils, ranged around,
Through pious awe, did term it passing rare;
For they in gaping wonderment abound,
And think, no doubt, she been the greatest wight on ground.

Albeit ne flattery did corrupt her truth,
Ne pompous title did debauch her ear;
Goody, good-woman, gossip, n'aunt forsooth,
Or dame, the sole additions she did hear;
Yet these she challenged, these she held right
dear:

Ne would esteem him act as mought behove, Who should not honor eld with these revere; For never title yet so mean could prove, But there was eke a mind which did that title love.

In elbow-chair (like that of Scottish stem,
By the sharp tooth of cankering eld defaced,
In which, when he receives his diadem,
Our sovereign prince and liefest liege is placed)
The matron sat; and some with rank she graced,
(The source of children's and of courtiers' pride') Redressed affronts, — for vile affronts there passed;

And warned them not the fretful to deride, But love each other dear, whatever them betide.

Right well she knew each temper to descry,
To thwart the proud, and the submiss to raise;
Some with vile copper-prize exalt on high,
And some entice with pittance small of praise;
And other some with baleful sprig she 'frays:
Even absent, she the reins of power doth hold, While with quaint arts the giddy crowd she sways;

Forewarned, if little bird their pranks behold, Twill whisper in her ear, and all the scene unfold. Lo! now with state she utters her command; Eftsoons the urchins to their tasks repair, Their books of stature small they take in hand, Which with pellucid horn secured are, To save from finger wet the letters fair: The work so gay, that on their back is seen, St. George's high achievements does declare; On which thilk wight that has y-gazing been, Kens the forthcoming rod,—unpleasing sight, I ween!

But now Dan Phæbus gains the middle sky, And Liberty unbars her prison door; And like a rushing torrent out they fly; And now the grassy cirque han covered o'er With boisterous revel rout and wild uproar; A thousand ways in wanton rings they run. Heaven shield their short-lived pastines, I implore:

For well may freedom erst so dearly won Appear to British elf more gladsome than the sun. WILLIAM SHENSTONE.

THE JOLLY OLD PEDAGOGUE.

'T was a jolly old pedagogue, long ago,
Tall and slender, and sallow and dry;
His form was bent and his gait was slow,
His long thin hair was as white as snow,
But a wonderful twinkle shone in his eye;
And he sang every night as he went to hed,
"Let us be happy down here below;
The living should live, though the dead be dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He taught his scholars the rule of three,
Writing, and reading, and history too;
He took the little ones up on his knee,
For a kind old heart in his breast had he,
And the wants of the littlest child he knew:
"Learn while you 're young," he often said,
"There's much to enjoy down here below;
Life for the living and rest for the dead!"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

With the stupidest boys he was kind and cool, Speaking only in gentlest tones;
The rod was hardly known in his school, —
Whipping, to him, was a barbarous rule,
And too hard work for his poor old bones;
"Besides, it is painful," he sometimes said;
"We should make life pleasant down here below,

The living need charity more than the dead," Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He lived in the house by the hawthorn lane,
With roses and woodbine over the door;
His rooms were quiet and neat and plain,
But a spirit of comfort there held reign,
And made him forget he was old and poor;
"I need so little," he often said;
"And my friends and relatives here below
Won't litigate over me when I am dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

But the pleasantest times that he had, of all,
Were the sociable hours he used to pass,
With his chair tipped back to a neighbor's wall,
Making an unceremonious call,
Over a pipe and friendly glass:

This was the finest pleasure, he said,
Of the many he tasted here below;
"Who has no cronies had better be dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

Then the jolly old pedagogue's wrinkled face
Melted all over in sunshing smiles;
He stirred his glass with an old-school grace,
Chuckled, and sipped, and prattled apace,
Till the house grew merry, from cellar to tiles.
"I'm a pictty old man," he gently said,
"I have lingered a long while here below;
But my heart is fresh, if my youth is fled,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He smoked his pipe in the balmy air
Every night when the sun went down,
While the soft wind played in his silvery hair,
Leaving his tenderest kisses there,
On the jolly old pedagogue's jolly old crown;
And feeling the kisses, he smiled, and said,
"T was a glorious world, down here below;
"Why wait for happiness till we are dead?"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He sat at his door, one midsummer night,
After the sun had sunk in the west,
And the lingering beams of golden light
Made his kindly old face look warm and bright,
While the odorous night-wind whispered,
"'Rest!"

Gently, gently, he bowed his head, —
There were angels waiting for him, I know;
He was sure of happiness, living or dead, —
This jolly old pedagogue, long ago!
GEORGE ARNOLD.

THE SETTLER.

His echoing axe the settler swung
Amid the sea-like solitude,
And, rushing, thundering, down were flung
The Titans of the wood;

Loud shrieked the eagle, as he dashed From out his mossy nest, which crashed With its supporting bough, And the first sunlight, leaping, flashed On the wolf's haunt below.

Rude was the garb and strong the frame
Of him who plied his ceaseless toil:
To form that garb the wildwood game
Contributed their spoil;
The soul that warmed that frame disdained
The tinsel, gaud, and glare that reigned
Where men their crowds collect;
The simple fur, untrimmed, unstained,
This forest-tamer decked.

The paths which wound mid gorgeous trees,

The stream whose bright lips kissed their flowers,

The winds that swelled their harmonies
Through those sun-hiding bowers,
The temple vast, the green arcade,
The nestling vale, the grassy glade,
Dark cave, and swampy lair;
These scenes and sounds majestic made
His world, his pleasures, there.

His roof adorned a pleasant spot;
Mid the black logs green glowed the grain,
And herbs and plants the woods knew not
Throve in the sun and rain.
The smoke-wreath cuiling o'er the dell,
The low, the bleat, the tinkling bell,
All made a landscape strange,
Which was the living chronicle
Of deeds that wrought the change.

The violet sprung at spring's first tinge,
The rose of summer spread its glow,
The maize hung out its autumn fringe,
Rude winter brought his snow;
And still the lone one labored there,
His shout and whistle broke the air,
As cheerily he plied
His garden-spade, or drove his share
Along the hillock's side.

He marked the fire-storm's blazing flood
Roaring and crackling on its path,
And scorching earth, and melting wood,
Beneath its greedy wrath;
He marked the rapid whirlwind shoot,
Trampling the pine-tree with its foot,
And darkening thick the day
With streaming bouch and severed rast,
Hurled whizzing on its way.

His gaunt hound yelled, his rifle flashed,
The grim bear hushed his savage growl;
In blood and foam the panther gnashed
His fangs, with dying howl;
The fleet deer ceased its flying bound,
Its snarling wolf-foe bit the ground,
And, with its moaning cry,
The beaver sank beneath the wound
Its pond-built Venice by.

Humble the lot, yet his the race,
When Liberty sent forth her cry,
Who thronged in conflict's deadliest place,
To fight, — to bleed, — to die!
Who cumbered Bunker's height of red,
By hope through weary years were led,
And witnessed Yorktown's sun
Blaze on a nation's banner spread,
A nation's freedom won.

ALFRED B. STREET.

THE CLOSING SCENE.

WITHIN the sober realm of leafless trees,
The russet year inhaled the dreamy air;
Like some tanned reaper, in his hour of ease,
When all the fields are lying brown and bare.

The gray barns looking from their hazy hills, O'er the dun waters widening in the vales, Sent down the air a greeting to the mills On the dull thunder of alternate flails.

All sights were mellowed and all sounds subdued,

The hills seemed further and the stream sang low.

As in a dream the distant woodman hewed His winter log with many a muffled blow.

The embattled forests, erewhile armed with gold,
Their banners bright with every martial hue,
Now stood like some sad, beaten host of old,
Withdrawn afar in Time's remotest blue.

On slumb'rous wings the vulture held his flight; The dove scarce heard its sighing mate's complaint:

And, like a star slow drowning in the light,
The village church-vane seemed to pale and

The sentinel-cock upon the hillside crew, —
Crew thrice, — and all was stiller than before;
Silent, till some replying warden blew
His alien horn, and then was heard no more.

Where erst the jay, within the elm's tall crest,
Made garrulous trouble round her unfiedged
young:

And where the oriole hung her swaying nest,
By every light wind like a censer swung; —

Where sang the noisy martens of the eaves,
The busy swallows circling ever near,— Foreboding, as the rustic mind believes,
An early harvest and a plenteous year;—

Where every bird which charmed the vernal feast Shook the sweet slumber from its wings at morn.

To warn the reaper of the rosy east: — All now was sunless, empty, and forlorn.

Alone from out the stubble piped the quail, And croaked the crow through all the dreamy gloom;

Alone the pheasant, drumming in the vale, Made echo to the distant cottage-loom.

There was no bud, no bloom upon the bowers;

The spiders moved their thin shrouds night by night.

The thistle-down, the only ghost of flowers,
Sailed slowly by, — passed noiseless out of sight.

Amid all this — in this most cheerless air,
And where the woodbine shed upon the porch
Its crimson leaves, as if the Year stood there Firing the floor with his inverted torch, —

Amid all this, the centre of the scene,

The white-haired matron with monotonous

treed

Plied the swift wheel, and with her joyless mien Sat, like a fate, and watched the flying thread.

She had known Sorrow, - he had walked with her.

Oft supped, and broke the bitter ashen crust; And in the dead leaves still she heard the stir Of his black mantle trailing in the dust.

While yet her cheek was bright with summer bloom,

Her country summoned and she gave her all; And twice War bowed to her his sable plume,— Re-gave the swords to rust upon the wall.

Re-gave the swords, but not the hand that drew And struck for Liberty the dying blow; Nor him who, to his sire and country true, Fell mid the ranks of the invading foe. Long, but not loud, the droning wheel went on, | Like the low murmur of a hive at noon; Long, but not loud, the memory of the gone Breathed through her lips a sad and tremulous tune.

At last the thread was snapped; her head was Life dropt the distaff through his hands se-

And loving neighbors smoothed her careful shroud.

While Death and Winter closed the autumn scene.

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

SEVEN AGES OF MAN.

FROM "AS YOU LIKE IT," ACT II SC. 7

ALL the world 's a stage,

And all the men and women merely players They have their exits and their entrances; And one man in his time plays many parts, His Acts being seven ages. At first the Infant, Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms. Then the whining School-boy, with his satchel And shiming morning face, creeping like snail Unwillingly to school. And then the Lover, Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad Made to his mistress' eyebrow. Then a Soldier, Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard; Jealous in honor, sudden and quick in quarrel, Seeking the bubble reputation

Even in the cannon's mouth. And then the Justice.

In fair round belly with good capon lined, With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut, Full of wise saws and modern instances, -And so he plays his part. The sixth age shifts Into the lean and slippered Pantaloon, With spectacles on nose, and pouch on side ; His youthful hose, well saved, a world too wide For his shrunk shank; and his big manly voice, Turning again toward childish treble, pipes And whistles in his sound. Last scene of all, That ends this strange eventful history, Is second childishness, and mere oblivion, Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything. SHAKESPEARE.

GIRLHOOD.

An exquisite incompleteness, blossom foreshadowing fruit;

future worth;

A plant with some leaves unfolded, and the rest asleep at its root.

To deck with their future sweetness the fairest thing on the earth.

Womanhood, wifehood, motherhood — each a possible thing,

Dimly seen through the silence that lies between then and now;

Something of each and all has woven a magic

Linking the three together in glory on girlhood's brow.

SONG.

How near to good is what is fair, Which we no sooner see, But with the lines and outward air Our senses taken be. We wish to see it still, and prove What ways we may deserve; We court, we praise, we more than love, We are not grieved to serve. BEN JONSON.

ADAM AND EVE.

FROM "PARADISE LOST, BOOK IV.

Two of far nobler shape, erect and tall, Godlike erect, with native honor clad In naked majesty, seemed lords of all: And worthy seemed; for in their looks divine The image of their glorious Maker shone, Truth, wisdom, sanctitude severe and pure, (Severe, but in true filial freedom placed,) Whence true authority in men; though both Not equal, as their sex not equal seemed; For contemplation he and valor formed; For softness she and sweet attractive grace; He for God only, she for God in him: His fair large front and eye sublime declared Absolute rule; and hyacinthine locks Round from his parted forelock manly hung Clustering, but not beneath his shoulders broad; She, as a veil, down to the slender waist Her unadornèd golden tresses wore Dishevelled, but in wanton ringlets waved, As the vine curls her tendrils, which implied Subjection, but required with gentle sway, And by her yielded, by him best received, Yielded with coy submission, modest pride, And sweet, reluctant, amorous delay.

A sketch faint in its beauty, with promise of | So passed they naked on, nor shunned the sight Of God or angel; for they thought no ill:

So hand in hand they passed, the loveliest pair, That ever since in love's embraces met: Adam the goodliest man of men since born His sons, the fairest of her daughters Eve. Under a tuft of shade that on a green Stood whispering soft, by a fresh fountain side They sat them down: and, after no more toil Of their sweet gardening labor than sufficed To recommend cool Zephyr, and made ease More easy, wholesome thirst and appetite More grateful, to their supper-fruits they fell, Nectarine fruits which the compliant boughs Yielded them, sidelong as they sat recline On the soft downy bank damasked with flowers: The savory pulp they chew, and in the rind, Still as they thirsted, scoop the brimming stream; Nor gentle purpose, nor endearing smiles Wanted, nor youthful dalliance, as beseems Fair couple, linked in happy nuptial league, Alone as they. About them frisking played All beasts of the Earth, since wild, and of all chase In wood or wilderness, forest or den; Sporting the lion ramped, and in his paw Dandled the kid; bears, tigers, ounces, pards, Gambolled before them; the unwieldy elephant, To make them mirth, used all his might, and wreathed

His little proboscis; close the serpent sly. Insinuating, wove with Gordian twine His braided train, and of his fatal guile Gave proof unheeded; others on the grass Couched, and now filled with pasture gazing sat, Or bedward ruminating; for the Sun, Declined, was hastening now with prone career To the ocean isles, and in the ascending scale Of Heaven the stars that usher evening rose.

MILTON.

CLEOPATRA.

FROM "ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA," ACT II. SC. 2.

ENOBARBUS. The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne.

Burned on the water: the poop was beaten gold; Purple the sails, and so perfumed that The winds were lovesick with them; the oars were silver.

Which to the tune of flutes kept stroke, and made The water, which they beat, to follow faster, As amorous of their strokes. For her own person, It beggared all description: she did lie In her pavilion (cloth-of-gold of tissue), O'erpicturing that Venus, where we see The fancy outwork nature; on each side her Stood pretty dimpled boys, like smiling Cupids, With divers-colored fans, whose wind did seem

To glow the delicate cheeks which they did cool, And what they unded, did.

AGRIPPA. O, rure for Antony! Eno. Her gentlewomen, like the Nereides. So many mermaids, tended her i' the eyes, And made their bends adornings : at the helm A seeming mermaid steers: the silken tackle Swell with the touches of those flower-soft hands. That yarely frame the office. From the barge A strange invisible perfume hits the sense Of the adjacent wharfs. The city cast Her people out upon her; and Antony, Enthronèd in the market-place, did sit alone, Whistling to the air; which, but for vacancy, Had gone to gaze on Cleopatra too,

And made a gap in nature. Rare Egyptian! ENO. Upon her landing, Antony sent to her, Invited her to supper: she replied, It should be better he became her guest; Which she entreated. Our courteous Antony. Whom ne'er the word of "No" woman heard

Being barbered ten times o'er, goes to the feast; And, for his ordinary, pays his heart For what his eyes eat only.

Royal wench ! AGR. MECENAS. Now Antony must leave her utterly. Eno. Never; he will not: Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale

Her infinite variety: other women cloy The appetites they feed, but she makes hungry Where most she satisfies. For vilest things Become themselves in her; that the holy priests Bless her when she is riggish.

SHAKESPEARL.

THE VANITY OF THE BEAUTIFUL.

THEY course the glass, and let it take no rest; They pass and spy who gazeth on their face; They darkly ask whose beauty seemeth best; They hark and mark who marketh most their grace;

They stay their steps, and stalk a stately pace; They jealous are of every sight they see; They strive to seem, but never care to be.

What grudge and grief our joys may then sup-

To see our hairs, which yellow were as gold, Now gray as glass; to feel and find them less; To scrape the bald skull which was wont to hold Our lovely locks with curling sticks controul'd; To look in glass, and spy Sir Wrinkle's chair Set fast on fronts which erst were sleek and fair

GEORGE CASCOIGNE.

THE TOILET.

FROM "THE RAPE OF THE LOCK," CANTO L

AND now, unveiled, the toilet stands displayed, Each silver vase in mystic order laid. First, robed in white, the nymph intent adores, With head uncovered, the cosmetic powers. A heavenly image in the glass appears, To that she bends, to that her eyes she rears; The inferior priestess, at her altar's side, Trembling begins the sacred rites of pride. Unnumbered treasures ope at once, and here The various offerings of the world appear; From each she nicely culls with curious toil, And decks the goddess with the glittering spoil. This casket India's glowing gems unlocks, And all Arabia breathes from yonder box. The tortoise here and elephant unite, Transformed to combs, the speckled and the white. Here files of pins extend their shining rows, Puffs, powders, patches, bibles, billets-doux. Now awaul beauty puts on all its arms; The fair each moment rises in her charms, Repairs her smiles, awakens every grace, And calls forth all the wonders of her face; Sees by degrees a purer blush arise. And keener lightnings quicken in her eyes. The busy sylphs surround their darling care, These set the head, and those divide the hair, Some fold the sleeve, while others plait the gown, And Betty's praised for labors not her own. ALEXANDER POPL

FREEDOM IN DRESS.

FROM "EPICITNE, OR, THE SILENT WOMAN," ACT 1. SC 1.

STILL to be neat, still to be drest,
As you were going to a feast;
Still to be powdered, still perfumed, —
Lady, it is to be presumed,
Though art's hid causes are not found,
All is not sweet, all is not sound.

Give me a look, give me a face,
That makes simplicity a grace;
Robes loosely flowing, hair as free,—
Such sweet neglect more taketh me
Than all the adulteries of art:
They strike mine eyes, but not my heart.
Ben Jonson.

DELIGHT IN DISORDER.

A sweet disorder in the dress Kindles in clothes a wantonness; A lawn about the shoulders thrown Into s fine distraction; An erring lace, which here and there Inthralls the crimson stomacher;
A cuff neglectful, and thereby
Ribbons to flow confusedly;
A winning wave, deserving note,
In the tempestuous petticoat;
A careless shoestring, in whose tie
I see a wild civility;
Do more bewitch me than when art
Is too precise in every part.

ROBERT HERRICK.

SILLY FAIR.

WHEN Lesbia first I saw, so heavenly fair,
With eyes so bright and with that awful air,
I thought my heart which durst so high aspire
As bold as his who snatched celestial fire.
But soon as e'er the beauteous idiot spoke,
Forth from her coral lips such folly broke,
Like balin the trickling nonsense healed my wound,

And what her eyes inthralled her tongue unbound.

WILLIAM CONGREVE

CONSTANCY.

One eve of beauty, when the sun
Was on the streams of Guadalquiver,
To gold converting, one by one,
The ripples of the mighty river,
Beside me on the bank was seated
A Seville girl, with auburn hair,
And eyes that might the world have cheated,
A wild, bright, wicked, diamond pun!

She stooped, and wrote upon the sand,
Just as the loving sun was going,
With such a soft, small, shinning hand,
I could have sworn 't was silver flowing.
Her words were three, and not one more,
What could Diana's motto be?
The siren wrote upon the shore,—
"Death, not inconstancy!"

And then her two large languid eyes
So turned on mine, that, devil take me!
I set the air on fire with sighs,
And was the fool she chose to make me!
Saint Francis would have been deceived
With such an eye and such a hand;
But one week more, and I believed
As much the woman as the sand.

ANONYMOUS.

TO IANTHE, SLEEPING.

FROM "QUEEN MAB": I.

How wonderful is Death! Death and his brother Sleep! One, pale as yonder waning moon, With lips of lurid blue; The other, rosy as the morn When, throned on ocean's wave, It blushes o'er the world: Yet both so passing wonderful!

Hath then the gloomy Power, Whose reign is in the tainted sepulchres, Seized on her sinless soul? Must then that peerless form Which love and admiration cannot view Without a beating heart, those azure veins Which steal like streams along a field of snow, That lovely outline, which is fair As breathing marble, perish? Must putrefaction's breath Leave nothing of this heavenly sight But loathsomeness and ruin ? Spare nothing but a gloomy theme, On which the lightest heart might moralize? Or is it only a sweet slumber Stealing o'er sensation. Which the breath of roseate morning Chaseth into darkness? Will lanthe wake again, And give that faithful bosom joy, Whose sleepless spirit waits to catch Light, life, and rapture from her smile? Yes! she will wake again, Although her glowing limbs are motionless, And silent those sweet lips, Once breathing eloquence That might have soothed a tiger's rage, Or thawed the cold heart of a conqueror. Her dewy eyes are closed, And on their lids, whose texture fine Scarce hides the dark blue orbs beneath,

The baby Sleep is pillowed: Her golden tresses shade The bosom's stainless pride. Curling like tendrils of the parasite Around a marble column.

A gentle start convulsed Ianthe's frame: Her veiny eyelids quietly unclosed; Moveless awhile the dark blue orbs remained. She looked around in wonder, and beheld Henry, who kneeled in silence by her couch, Watching her sleep with looks of speechless love, And the bright-heaming stars That through the casement shone.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

THE BELLS.

HEAR the sledges with the bells -Silver bells!

What a world of merriment their melody foretells! How they tinkle, tinkle, tinkle, In the icy air of night!

While the stars that oversprinkle All the heavens seem to twinkle With a crystalline delight, -

Keeping time, time, time, In a sort of Runic rhyme.

To the tintinnabulation that so musically wells From the bells, bells, bells, bells,

Bells, bells, bells, -From the jingling and the tinkling of the bells.

Hear the mellow wedding bells --Golden bells!

What a world of happiness their harmony foretells!

Through the balmy air of night How they ring out their delight !

From the molten-golden notes, And all in tune,

What a liquid ditty floats To the turtle-dove that listens, while she gloats On the moon!

O, from out the sounding cells, What a gush of euphony voluminously wells!

How it swells! How it dwells On the Future! how it tells Of the rapture that impels

To the swinging and the ringing Of the bells, bells, bells, Of the bells, bells, bells, bells, Bells, bells, bells, ---To the rhyming and the chiming of the bells.

Hear the loud alarum bells -Brazen bells!

What a tale of terror, now, their turbulency tells! In the startled ear of night

How they scream out their affright !

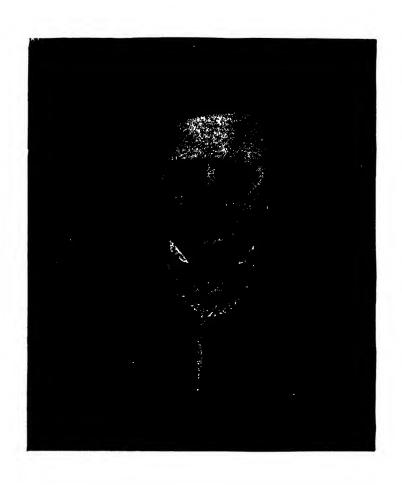

Too much horrified to speak, They can only shrick, shrick, Out of tune.

In the clamorous appealing to the mercy of the fire, In a mad expostulation with the deaf and frantic

> Leaping higher, higher, higher, With a desperate desire,

And a resolute endeavor, Now - now to sit, or never, By the side of the pale-faced moon. O the bells, bells, bells,

What a tale their terror tells Edgard .

Of despair!

How they clang and clash and roar!
What a horror they outpour
On the bosom of the palpitating air!
Yet the arm it fully known.

Yet the ear it fully knows,

By the twanging, And the clanging,

How the danger ebbs and flows;

Yet the car distinctly tells,

In the jangling, And the wrangling,

How the danger sinks and swells,
By the sinking or the swelling in the anger of
the bells,—

Of the bells, -

Of the bells, bells, bells, bells,

Bells, bells, bells, -

In the clamor and the clangor of the bells!

Hear the tolling of the bells — Iron bells!

What a world of solemn thought their monody compels!

In the silence of the night, How we shiver with affright

At the melancholy menace of their tone! For every sound that floats

From the rust within their throats

Is a groan.

And the people — ah, the people —
They that dwell up in the steeple,

All alone,

And who tolling, tolling, tolling,

In that muffled monotone, Feel a glory in so rolling

On the human heart a stone, —
They are neither man nor woman, —
They are neither brute nor human, —

They are ghouls:
And their king it is who tolls;
And he rolls, rolls, rolls,

Rolls,

A pean from the bells!
And his merry bosom swells
With the pean of the bells!
And he dances and he yells;
Keeping time, time, time,
In a sort of Runic rhyme,

To the pæan of the bells, -

Of the bells:
Keeping time, time, time,

In a sort of Runic rhyme,

To the throbbing of the bells, —

Of the bells, bells, bells, —

To the sobbing of the bells; Keeping time, time, time,

As he knells, knells, knells,

In a happy Runic rhyme,
To the rolling of the bells, —
Of the bells, bells, bells, —
To the tolling of the bells,
Of the bells, bells, bells, bells, —
Bells, bells, bells, —

To the moaning and the groaning of the bells.

EDGAR ALLAN POB.

THE BELLS OF SHANDON.

Sabbata pango, Funera plango, Solemnia clango.

INSCRIPTION ON AN OLD BELL

With deep affection
And recollection
I often think of
Those Shandon bells,
Whose sounds so wild would,
In the days of childhood,
Fling round my cradle
Their magic spells.

On this I ponder
Where'er I wander,
And thus grow fonder,
Sweet Cork, of thee,—
With thy bells of Shandon,
That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

I 've heard bells chiming
Full many a clime in,
Tolling sublime in Cathedral shrine,
While at a glib rate
Brass tongues would vibrate;
But all their music
Spoke naught like thine.

For memory, dwelling
On each proud swelling
Of thy belfry, knelling
Its bold notes free,
Made the bells of Shandon
Sound far more grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

I 've heard bells tolling
"Old Adrian's Mole" in,
Their thunder rolling
From the Vatican, —
And cymbals glorious
Swinging uproarious
In the gorgeous turrets
Of Notre Dame:

But thy sounds were sweeter
Than the dome of Peter Flings o'er the Tiber,
Pealing solemnly.
O, the bells of Shandon
Sound far more grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

There's a bell in Moscow;
While on tower and kioske
In St. Sophia
The Turkman gets,
And loud in air
Calls men to prayer,
From the tapering summit
Of tall minarets.

Such empty phantom
I freely grant them;
But there's an anthem
More dear to me,—
'T is the bells of Shandon,
That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

FRANCIS MAHONY (Father Prout).

CITY BELLS.

FROM "THE LAY OF ST. ALOY'S."

LOUD and clear

From the St. Nicholas tower, on the listening ear,

With solemn swell, The deep-toned bell

Flings to the gale a funeral knell; And hark!—at its sound, As a cunning old hound,

When he opens, at once causes all the young whelps

Of the cry to put in their less dignified yelps, So the little bells all,

No matter how small,

From the steeples both inside and outside the wall

With bell-metal throat Respond to the note,

And join the lament that a prelate so pious is Forced thus to leave his disconsolate diocese,

Or, as Blois' Lord May'r Is heard to declare,

"Should leave this here world for to go to that there."

RICHARD HARRIS BARHAM.

THOSE EVENING BELLS.

Those evening bells! those evening bells! How many a tale their music tells Of youth, and home, and that sweet time When last I heard their soothing chime!

Those joyous hours are passed away; And many a heart that then was gay Within the tomb now darkly dwells, And hears no more those evening bells.

And so 't will be when I am gone, —
That tuneful peal will still ring on;
While other bards shall walk these dells,
And sing your praise, sweet evening bells.

THOMAS MOORE

CARILLON.

In the ancient town of Bruges,
In the quaint old Flemish city,
As the evening shades descended,
Low and loud and sweetly blended,
Low at times and loud at times,
And changing like a poet's rhymes,
Rang the beautiful wild chimes
From the Belfry in the market
Of the ancient town of Bruges,

Then, with deep sonorous clangor Calmly answering their sweet anger, When the wrangling bells had ended, Slowly struck the clock eleven, And, from out the silent heaven, Silence on the town descended. Silence, silence everywhere, On the earth and in the air, Save that footsteps here and there Of some burgher home returning, By the street lamps faintly burning, For a moment woke the echoes Of the ancient town of Bruges.

But amid my broken slumbers
Still I heard those magic numbers,
As they loud proclaimed the flight
And stolen marches of the night;
Till their chimes in sweet collision
Mingled with each wandering vision,
Mingled with the fortune-telling
Gypsy-bands of dreams and fancies,
Which amid the waste expanses
Of the silent land of trances
Have their solitary dwelling.
All else seemed asleep in Bruges,
In the quaint old Flemish city.

And I thought how like these chimes Are the poet's airy rhymes, All his rhymes and roundelays, His conceits, and songs, and ditties, From the belfry of his brain, Scattered downward, though in vain, On the roofs and stones of cities! For by night the drowsy ear Under its curtains cannot hear, And by day men go their ways, Hearing the music as they pass, But deeming it no more, alas! Than the hollow sound of brass.

Yet perchance a sleepless wight,
Lodging at some humble inn
In the narrow lanes of life,
When the dusk and hush of night
Shut out the incessant din
Of daylight and its toil and strife,
May listen with a calm delight
To the poet's inclodies,
Till he hears, or dreams he hears,
Intermingled with the song,
Thoughts that he has cherished long;
Hears amid the chime and singing
The bells of his own village ringing,
And wakes, and finds his slumberous eyes
Wet with most delicious tears.

Thus dreamed I, as by night I lay
In Bruges, at the Fleur-de-Blé,
Listening with a wild delight
To the chimes that, through the night,
Rang their changes from the Belfry
Of that quaint old Flemish city.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

THE CUCKOO CLOCK.

FROM "THE BIRTHDAY."

But chief — surpassing all — a cuckoo clock!

That crowning wonder! miracle of art!

How have I stood entranced uncounted minutes,
With held-in breath, and eyes intently fixed
On that small magic door, that when complete
The expiring hour — the irreversible —
Flew open with a startling suddenness
That, though expected, sent the rushing blood
In mantling flushes o'er my upturned face;
And as the bird, (that more than mortal fowl!)
With perfect mimicry of natural tone,
Note after note exact Time's message told,
How my heart's pulse kept time with the charmed voice!

And when it ceased made simultaneous pause

As the small door clapt to, and all was still.

CAROLINE BOWLES (MRS. SOUTHEY).

OZYMANDIAS OF EGYPT.

I MET a traveller from an antique land
Who said: Two vast and trunkless legs of stone
Stand in the desert. Near them on the sand,
Half sunk, a shattered visage lies, whose frown
And wrinkled lip and sneer of cold command
Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
Which yet survive, stamped on these lifeless things,

The hand that mocked them and the heart that fed; And on the pedestal these words appear: "My name is Ozymandias, king of kings: Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair!" Nothing beside remains. Round the decay Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare, The lone and level sands stretch far away.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

ADDRESS TO THE MUMMY AT BEL-ZONI'S EXHIBITION.

AND thou hast walked about (how strange a story!)

In Thebes's streets three thousand years ago,
When the Memnonium was in all its glory,
And time had not begun to overthrow
Those temples, palaces, and piles stupendous,
Of which the very ruins are tremendous.

Speak! for thou long enough hast acted dummy; Thou hast a tongue,—come, let us hear its tune;

Thou 'rt standing on thy legs, above ground, mummy!

Revisiting the glimpses of the moon, —
Not like thin ghosts or disembodied creatures,
But with thy bones and flesh and limbs and features.

Tell us — for doubtless thou canst recollect —
To whom should we assign the Sphinx's fame?
Was Cheops or Cephrenes architect
Of either pyramid that bears his name?
Is Pompey's Pillar really a misnomer?
Had Thebes a hundred gates, as sung by Homer?

Perhaps thou wert a Mason, and forbidden
By oath to tell the secrets of thy trade, —
Then say what secret melody was hidden
In Memnon's statue, which at sunrise played?
Perhaps thou wert a priest, — if so, my struggles

Are vain, for priestcraft never owns its juggles.

Perhaps that very hand, now pinioned flat, Has hob-a-nobbed with Pharaoh, glass to glass: Or dropped a halfpenny in Homer's hat; Or doffed thine own to let Queen Dido pass; Or held, by Solomon's own invitation, A torch at the great temple's dedication.

I need not ask thee if that hand, when armed,
Has any Roman soldier mauled and knuckled;
For thou wert dead and buried and embalmed
Ere Romulus and Remus had been suckled:
Antiquity appears to have begun
Long after thy primeval race was run.

Thou couldst develop — if that withered tongue Might tell us what those sightless orbs have seen—

How the world looked when it was fresh and young, And the great deluge still had left it green; Or was it then so old that history's pages Contained no record of its early ages?

Still silent! incommunicative elf!

Art sworn to secrecy? then keep thy vows;

But prithee tell us something of thyself,

Reveal the secrets of thy prison-house;

Since in the world of spirits thou hast slumbered,

What hast thou seen, what strange adventures numbered?

Since first thy form was in this box extended
We have, above ground, seen some strange mutations:

The Roman empire has begun and ended,

New worlds have risen, we have lost old nations:

And countless kings have into dust been humbled, While not a fragment of thy flesh has crumbled.

Didst thou not hear the pother o'er thy head,
When the great Persian conqueror, Cambyses, Marched armies o'er thy tomb with thundering tread.—

O'erthrew Osiris, Orus, Apis, Isis; And shook the pyramids with fear and wonde., When the gigantic Memnon fell asunder?

If the tomb's secrets may not be confessed,
The nature of thy private life unfold:
Aheart has throbbed beneath that leathern breast,
And tears adown that dusty cheek have rolled;
Have children climbed those knees, and kissed that face?
What was thy name and station, age and race?

Statue of flesh, — immortal of the dead!
Imperishable type of evanescence!
Posthumous man, — who quit'st thy narrow bed,
And standest undecayed within our presence!
Thou wilt hearnothing till the judgment morning,
When the great trump shall thrill thee with its warning.

Why should this worthless tegument endure,
If its undying guest be lost forever?
O, let us keep the soul embalmed and pure
In living virtue, that when both must sever,
Although corruption may our frame consume,
The immortal spirit in the skies may bloom!
HORACL SMITH.

ODE ON A GRECIAN URN.

Thou still unravished bride of quietness!
Thou foster-child of Silence and slow Time,
Sylvan historian, who canst thus express

A flowery tale more sweetly than our rhyme: What leaf-fringed legend haunts about thy shape Of deities or mortals, or of both,

In Tempe or the dales of Arcady?
What men or gods are these? What maidens loath?

What mad pursuit? What struggles to escape? What pipes and timbrels? What wild ecstasy?

Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard
Are sweeter; therefore, ye soft pipes, play on;
Not to the sensual ear, but, more endeared,
Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone.

Fair youth beneath the trees, thou canst not leave

Thy song, nor ever can those trees be bute.

Bold lover, never, never caust thou kiss,
Though winning near the goal, — yet do not grieve:

She cannot fade, though thou hast not thy bliss;

Forever wilt thou love, and she be fair!

Ah, happy, happy boughs! that cannot shed Your leaves, nor ever bid the spring adieu; And happy melodist, unwearied,

Forever piping songs forever new; More happy love! more happy, happy love! Forever warm and still to be enjoyed,

Forever panting and forever young;
All breathing human passion far above,
That leaves a heart high-sorrowful and cloyed,
A burning forehead, and a parching tongue.

Who are these coming to the sacrifice?

To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
Lead'st thou that heifer lowing at the skies,
And all her silken flanks with garlands drest?

What little town by river or sea-shore,
Or mountain-built with peaceful citadel,
Is emptied of its folk, this pious man?

And, little town, thy streets forevermore...

Will silent be, and not a soul to tell.....

Why thou art desolate can e'er return.

O Attic shape! Fair attitude! with brede Of marble men and maidens overwrought, With forest branches and the trodden weed; Thou, silent form! dost tease us out of thought As doth eternity. Cold Pastoral!

When old age shall this generation waste,
Thou shalt remain, in midst of other wo
Than ours, a friend to man, to whom thou say'st,

"Beauty is truth, truth beauty,"—that is all Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.

FRAGMENTS.

THE KING OF DAY.

O thou that, with surpassing glory crowned, Look'st from thy sole dominion like the God Of this new world, at whose sight all the stars Hide their diminished heads . . .

O Sun '

Paradise Lost, Book 1v.

MILTON.

Fires the proud tops of the eastern pines.

King Richard II., Act in. Sc 2 Shakespeare.

The lessening cloud,
The kindling azure, and the mountain's brow,
Illumed with fluid gold, his near approach
Betoken glad. Lo' now, apparent all
Aslant the dew-bright earth, and colored air,
He looks in boundless majesty abroad;
And sheds the shining day, that burnished plays
On rocks, and hills, and towers, and wand'ring streams,

High gleaming from afar.

The Seasons Summer

THOMSON.

SUNSET IN THE MOUNTAINS.

The western waves of ebbing day
Rolled o'er the glen their level way;
Each purple peak, each flinty spire,
Was bathed in floods of living fire.
But not a setting beam could glow
Within the dark ravines below,
Where twined the path in shadow hid,
Round many a rocky pyramid,
Shooting abruptly from the dell
Its thunder-splintered pinnacle;
Round many an insulated mass,
The native bulwarks of the pass,

Their rocky summits, split and rent, Formed turret, dome, or battlement, Or seemed fantastically set
With cupola or minaret,
Wild crests as pagod ever decked,
Or mosque of Eastern architect.
Nor were these earth-born castles bare,
Nor lacked they many a banner fair;
For, from their shivered brows displayed,
Far o'er the unfathomable glade,
All twinkling with the dew-drops' sheen,
The brier-rose fell in streamers green,
And creeping shrubs, of thousand dyes,
Waved in the west-wind's summer sighs.
The Lady of the Lake, Cant i.

INDIAN SUMMER.

From gold to gray
Our mild sweet day
Of Indian summer fades too soon;
But tenderly
Above the sea
Hangs, white and calm, the hunter's moon.
The Eve of Election.

J. G. WHITTIER.

THE POET'S RETIREMENT.

Fair Quiet, have I found thee here, And Innocence, thy sister dear? Mistaken long, I sought you then In busy companies of men. Your sacred plants, if here below, Only among the plants will grow; Society is all but rude To this delicious solitude.

Here at the fountain's sliding foot,
Or at some fruit-tree's mossy root,
Casting the body's vest aside,
My soul into the boughs does glide:
There, like a bird, it sits and sings,
Then whets and claps its silver wings,
And, till prepared for longer flight,
Waves in its plumes the various light.

The Garden (Translated).

A MARVELL.

EDEN.

Yea, more, A heaven on earth: for blissful paradise Of God the garden was, by him in the east Of Eden planted.

Paradise Lost, Book iv.

MILTON.

ATHENS.

On the Ægean shore a city stand:, Built nobly, pure the air, and light the soil, Athens, the eye of Greece, mother of arts And eloquence, native to famous wits,

Or hospitable, in her sweet recess, City or suburban, studious walks and shades; See there the olive grove of Academe, Plato's retirement, where the Attic bird Trills her thick-warbled notes the summer long. Paradise Regained, Book lv. MILTON.

ROME.

O Rome! my country! city of the soul! The orphans of the heart must turn to thee. Lone mother of dead empires !

The Niobe of nations! there she stands. Childless and crownless, in her voiceless woe; An empty urn within her withered hands, Whose holy dust was scattered long ago. Childe Harold, Cant. iv. BYRON.

TEMPLE OF THE CLITUMNUS.

But thou, Clitumnus ' in thy sweetest wave Of the most living crystal that was e'er The haunt of river nymph, to gaze and lave Her limbs where nothing hid them, thou dost

Thy grassy banks. . . .

And on thy happy shore a temple still, Of small and delicate proportion, keeps, Upon a mild declivity of hall, Its memory of thee; beneath it sweeps Thy current's calmness; oft from out it leaps The finny darter with the glittering scales, Who dwells and revels in thy glassy deeps; While, chance, some scattered water-lily sails Down where the shallower wave still tells its bubbling tales.

Childe Harold, Cant. IV.

BYRON,

THE FALL OF TERNI.

The roar of waters ! - from the headleng height Velino cleaves the wave-worn precipice; The fall of waters! rapid as the light The flashing mass foams shaking the abyss; The hell of waters! where they howl and hiss. And boil in endless torture.

Childe Harold, Cant. lv.

BYRON

VENICE.

I stood in Venice, on the Bridge of Sighs; A palace and a prison on each hand : I saw from out the wave her structures rise As from the stroke of the enchanter's wand : A thousand years their cloudy wings expand Around me, and a dying glory smiles O'er the far times, when many a subject land Looked to the winged Lion's marble piles, Where Venice sate in state, throned on her hundred isles !

Childe Harold, Cant. iv.

BYRON.

AN ITALIAN RAVINE.

Beneath this crag. Huge as despair, as if in weariness, The melancholy mountain yawns; below, You hear but see not an impetuous torrent Raging among the caverns, and a bridge Crosses the chasm; and high above there grow. With intersecting trunks, from crag to crag. Cedars and yews and pines, whose tangled hair Is matted into one solid roof of shade By the dark ivy's twine. At noonday here 'T is twilight, and at sunset blackest night. The Cencu SHELLEY.

THE RIVER THAMES.

My eye descending from the Hill, surveys Where Thames among the wanton valleys strays. Thames! the most loved of all the Ocean's sons.

Though with those streams he no resemblance hold.

Whose foam is amber, and their gravel gold: His genuine and less guilty wealth to explore, Search not his bottom, but survey his shore, O'er which he kindly spreads his spacious wing And hatches plenty for the ensuing spring.

No unexpected inundations spoil The mower's hopes, nor mock the ploughman's

But godlike his unwearied bounty flows: First loves to do, then loves the good he does. Cooper's Hill SIR J. DENHAM.

MACBLTH'S CASTLE.

DUNCAN. This castle bath a pleasant seat: the Nimbly and sweetly recommends itself Unto our gentle senses.

BANQUO. . . . The heaven's breath Smells wooingly here: no jutty, frieze, Buttress, nor coigne of vantage, but this bird Hath made his pendent bed and procreant cradle: Where they most breed and haunt, I have observed.

The air is delicate.

Macbeth, Act i. Sc. 6

SHAKESPEARF.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE.

Who hath not proved how feelly words essey To fix one spark of Beauty's heavenly ray? Who doth not feel, until his failing sight Faints into dimness with its own delight. His changing cheek, his sinking heart confess The might — the majesty of Loveliness? The Bride of Abydes, Cant. 1 BYROK Framed in the prodigality of nature. King Richard III., Act 1. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

First likes the whole, then separates what he sees; On several parts a several praise bestows, The ruby lips, the well-proportioned nose, The snowy skin, and raven-glossy hair, The dimpled cheek, and forehead rising fair, And e'en in sleep itself, a smiling air. From thence his eyes descending viewed the rest, Her plump round arms, white hands, and heaving breast.

Cymon and Iphigenia.

DRYDEN.

That whiter skin of hers than snow, And smooth as monumental alabaster. Othello, Act v. Sc 2 SHAKESPEARE

There she sees a damsel bright, Drest in a silken robe of white, That shadowy in the moonlight shone: The neck that made that white robe wan, Her stately neck, and arms were bare: Her blue-veined feet unsandalled were, And wildly glittered here and there The gems entangled in her hair. I guess, 't was frightful there to see A lady so richly clad as she, -Beautiful exceedingly!

Christabel S T. COLERIDGE

Rich and rare were the gems she wore, And a bright gold ring on her wand she bore. Ruh and Rare. MOORE.

Her beauty hangs upon the cheek of night

Like a rich jewel in an Ethiop's ear. Romeo and Julut, Act i. Sc 5 SHAKESPEARE.

Alas! how little can a moment show Of an eye where feeling plays In ten thousand dewy rays; A face o'er which a thousand shadows go. The Triad WORDSWORTH.

Stabbed with a white wench's black eye. Romeo and Juliet, Act 11 Sc 4. SHAKESPEARE.

The fringed curtains of thine eye advance. The Tempest, Act i. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Heart on her lips, and soul within her eyes, Soft as her clime, and sunny as her skies. BYRON.

As she fled fast through sun and shade, The happy winds upon her played, Blowing the ringlets from the braid.

Ser Launcelot and Queen Gurnevere

TENNYSON.

And ne'er did Grecian chisel trace A Nymph, a Naiad, or a Grace, Of finer form, or lovelier face.

What though no rule of courtly grace To measured mood had trained her pace — A foot more light, a step more true, Ne'er from the heath-flower dashed the dew.

The Lady of the Lake, Cant 1.

SCOTT

Her pretty feet Like snailes did creep A little out, and then, As if they played at bo-peep, Did soon draw in agen.

Upon her Feet.

R. HERRICK.

No longer shall thy bodice, aptly laced, From thy full bosom to thy slender waist, That air and harmony of shape express, Fine by degrees, and beautifully less. Henry and Emma. M PRIOR.

A rosebud set with little wilful thorns. And sweet as English air could make her, she. The Princess. TENNYSON.

It was a lovely sight to see The Lady Christabel, when she Was praying at the old oak-tree. Amid the jagged shadows Of mossy leafless boughs, Kneeling in the moonlight, To make her gentle vows; Her slender palms together prest, Heaving sometimes on her breast; Her face resigned to bliss or bale, -Her face, O, call it fair, not pale. Christabel. S T. COLERIDGE

Look here, upon this picture, and on this; The counterfeit presentment of two brothers. See, what a grace was seated on this brow: Hyperion's curls; the front of Jove himself; An eye like Mars, to threaten and command; A station like the herald Mercury, New-lighted on a heaven-kissing hill; A combination, and a form, indeed, Where every god did seem to set his seal, To give the world assurance of a man. Hamlet, Act iii. Sc. 4 SHAKESPRARE

Hor. I saw him once: he was a goodly king. HAM. He was a man, take him for all in all, I shall not look upon his like again.

Hamlet, Act i. Sc 2.

SHAKESPEARE

Ay, every inch a king. King Lear, Act iv. Sc. 6.

SHAKESPEARE.

The glass of fashion, and the mould of form, The observed of all observers!

Hamlet, Act ni. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

The wealthy curled darlings of our nation. Othello, Act i. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

We'll have a swashing and a martial outside. As You Like It. Act L Sc & SHAKESPEARE.

Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy, But not expressed in fancy; rich, not gaudy: For the apparel oft proclaims the man.

Hamlet, Act i. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

They brought one Pinch, a hungry lean-faced

A mere anatomy, a mountebank,

A threadbare juggler, and a fortune-teller,

A needy, hollow-eyed, sharp-looking wretch. A living-dead man.

Comedy of Errors, Act v Sc 1

SHAKESPEARE.

Mislike me not for my complexion, The shadowed livery of the burnished sun, To whom I am a neighbor, and near bred. Bring me the fairest creature northward born, Where Phœbus' fire scarce thaws the icicles, And let us make incision for your love. To prove whose blood is reddest, his or mine. Merchant of Venuce, Act u Sc 1. SHAKESPEARE.

Falstaff sweats to death. And lards the lean earth as he walks along. Were't not for laughing, I should pity him. King Henry IV., Part I. Act is. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARL.

Yond' Cassius has a lean and hungry look; He thinks too much: such men are dangerous. Julius Cæsar, Act 1. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARL.

The ornament of beauty is suspect, A crow that flies in heaven's sweetest air. Sonnet LXX.

My tables, my tables, - meet it is, I set it down, That one may smile, and smile, and be a villain. Hamlet, Act l. Sc. 5. SHAKESPEARE.

CONDITIONS OF LIFE.

My nature is subdued To what it works in, like the dyer's hand. Sonnet CXI.

I saw a smith stand with his hammer, thus, The whilst his iron did on the anvil cool. With open mouth swallowing a tailor's news; Who, with his shears and measure in his hand, Standing on slippers (which his nimble haste Had falsely thrust upon contrary feet), Told of a many thousand warlike French That were embettailed and ranked in Kent:

Another lean, unwashed artificer Cuts off his tale and talks of Arthur's death. King John, Act iv. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Mechanic slaves

With greasy aprons, rules, and hammers. Antony and Cleopatra, Act v Sc. 2, SHAKESPEARE.

The charge is prepared, the lawyers are met, The judges all ranged; a terrible show! The Beggar's Opera, Act III. Sc 2. I. GAY

The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling, Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to

Midsummer Night's Dream, Act v Sc 1. SHAKESPEARE

O, now, forever

Farewell the tranquil mind! farewell content! Farewell the plumed troop, and the big wars, That make ambition virtue! O, farewell! Farewell the neighing steed, and the shrill trump, The spirit-stirring drum, the ear-piercing fife, The royal banner, and all quality, Pride, pomp, and circumstance of glorious war! And, O you mortal engines, whose rude throats The immortal Jove's dread clamors counterfeit, Farewell! Othello's occupation 's gone! Othello, Act us. Sc 3. SHAKESPEARE.

Lives like a drunken sailor on a mast Ready with every nod to tumble down. King Richard III , Act in. Sc 4. SHAKESPEARE

Not all the water in the rough rude sea Can wash the balm from an anointed king. King Richard II., Act u., Sc 2 SHAKHSPLARE

There's such divinity doth hedge a king, That treason can but peep to what it would, Acts little of his will.

Hamlet, Act IV. Sc 5.

SHAKESPEARR.

Besides, the king's name is a tower of strength. King Ruhard III , Act v. Sc. 3. SHAKESPEARE.

High on a throne of royal state, which far Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind. Or where the gorgeous East with richest hand Showers on her kings barbaric pearl and gold, Satan exalted sat, by merit raised To that bad eminence.

Paradise Lost, Book ii.

MILTON.

Personal Characteristics - Women.

That paragons description and wild fame; One that excels the quirks of blazoning pens And in th' essential vesture of creation Does bear all excellency.

Othello, Act II, Sc. 2.

SHAKESPRARE

I have marked

A thousand blushing apparitions

To start into her face, a thousand innocent shames.

In angel whiteness, beat away those blushes.

Much Ado about Nothing, Act IV. Sc. I SHAKESPEARE

Ladies like variegated tulips show,
'T is to their changes half their charms we owe.
Fine by defect, and delicately weak,
Their happy spots the nice admirer take.

Moral Escays, Part II.

POPE

Or ere those shoes were old
With which she followed my poor father's body,
Like Niobe, all tears; — why she, even she (O God! a beast that wants discourse of reason Would have mourned longer) married with my uncle,

My father's brother.

Hamlet, Act 1. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

I have no other but a woman's reason;
I think him so because I think him so.
Two Gentlemen of Verona, Act 1. Sc 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Had she been true,
If heaven would make me such another world
Of one entire and perfect chrysolite,
I'd not have sold her for it.

Othello, Act v. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

IAGO. Come on, come on; you are pictures out of doors,

Bells in your parlors, wild-cats in your kitchens, Saints in your injuries, devils being offended.

For I am nothing, if not critical.

Desdemona. . . . But what praise couldst thou bestow on a deserving woman indeed? . . . IAGO. She that was ever fair and never proud, Had tongue at will and yet was never loud, Never lacked gold and yet went never gay, Fled from her wish, and yet said, — "Now I may;"

She that being angered, her revenge being nigh, Bade her wrong stay and her displeasure fly; She that in wisdom never was so frail To change the cod's head for the salmon's tail; She that could think and ne'er disclose her mind, See suitors following and not look behind; She was a wight, — if ever such wight were, —

DES. To do what?

IAGO. To suckle fools and chronicle small beer.

DES. O, most lame and impotent conclusion!

Her voice was ever soft,

Gentle, and low, — an excellent thing in woman.

King Laar, Act v. Sc. 3. Shakespeare.

Not stepping o'er the bounds of modesty.

Romeo and Juliet, Act 14. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE

Shalt show us how divine a thing A woman may be made.

To a Young Lady.

Wordsworth.

Earth's noblest thing, a woman perfected.

Irend. J R LOWELL.

Personal Characteristics - Men.

Patience, my lord! why, 't is the soul of peace; Of all the virtues 't is nearest kin to heaven; It makes men look like gods. The best of men That e'er wore earth about him was a sufferer, A soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit, The first true gentleman that ever breathed.

The Honsti Where, Part 1, Act 1, Sc. 12.

T. DEKKER

O, could I flow like thee,* and make thy stream My great example, as it is my theme! Though deep yet clear, though gentle yet not dull;

Strong without rage, without o'erflowing full.

Cooper's Hill. SIR J. DENHAM.

He was a scholar, and a ripe and good one; Exceeding wise, fair-spoken, and persuading: Lofty, and sour to them that loved him not; But to those men that sought him sweet as summer.

King Henry VIII., Act w Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

Delivers in such apt and gracious words, That aged ears play truant at his tales, And younger hearings are quite ravished, So sweet and voluble is his discourse.

Love s Labor Lost, Act is. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARE,

Frank, haughty, rash, — the Rupert of debate.

The New Timon, Part I.

E. BULWER-LYTTON.

For though I am not splenetive and rash,
Yet have I in me something dangerous.

Hamlet, Act v. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

Turn him to any cause of policy,
The Gordian knot of it he will unloose,
Familiar as his garter: that, when he speaks.
The air, a chartered libertine, is still.

Kung Henry V., Act. St. Shakespeare.

A Daniel come to judgment! . . .

O wise young judge!

Merchant of Venuce, Act iv. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

A merrier man. Within the limit of becoming mirth, I never spent an hour's talk withal.

Love's Labor Lost, Act is. Sc 1

SHAKESPEARE

As merry as the day is long. Much Ado about Nothing, Act ii. Sc 1 SHAKESPEARE.

In all thy humors, whether grave or mellow, Thou'rt such a touchy, testy, pleasant fellow; Hast so much wit and mirth and spleen about

There is no living with thee, nor without thee. Spectator, No. 68 J. ADDISON

Who the silent man can prize, If a fool he be or wise? Yet, though lonely seem the wood, Therein may lurk the beast of blood; Often bashful looks conceal Tongue of fire and heart of steel: And deem not thou in forest gray, Every dappled skin thy prey, Lest thou rouse, with luckless spear, The tiger for the fallow-deer! The Guissian.

BISHOP HEBER.

A shallow brain behind a senior's mask. An oracle within an empty cask, The solemn fop; significant and budge; A fool with judges, amongst fools a judge. Conversation

A snapper-up of unconsidered trifles. Winter's Tale, Act IV Sc 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Dubious is such a scrupulous good man -Yes - you may catch him tripping if you can, He would not, with a peremptory tone, Assert the nose upon his face his own: With hesitation admirably slow, He humbly hopes - presumes - it may be so.

Seemed washing his hands with invisible soap In imperceptible water.

Miss Kilmansegg.

T. HOOD.

In a bondman's key, With 'bated breath, and whisp'ring humbleness. Merchant of Venice, Act 1. Sc 3. SHAKESPEARE.

I am the very pink of courtesy. Romeo and Juliet, Act il. Sc. 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep, And in his simple show he harbors treason. The fox barks not, when he would steal the lamb. King Henry VI., Part II. Act in Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

All was false and hollow; though his tongue Dropped manna, and could make the worse

The better reason, to perplex and dash Maturest counsels; for his thoughts were low; To vice industrious, but to nobler deeds Timorous and slothful: yet he pleased the ear, And with persuasive accent thus began.

Paradise Lost, Book ii.

MILTON.

A little more than kin, and less than kind. Hamlet, Act 1 Sc 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Yet do I fear thy nature: It is too full o' the milk of human kindness. Macbeth, Act 1 Sc 5

Of manners gentle, of affections mild; In wit a man, simplicity a child.

A safe companion and an easy friend Unblamed through life, lamented in thy end. Epstaph on Gay POPE.

Here lies David Garrick, describe me who can, An abridgment of all that was pleasant in man. GOLDSMITH. Retaliation.

He hath a tear for pity, and a hand Open as day for melting charity. King Henry IV., Part II. Act IV. Sc. 4. SHAKESPEARE.

He was the mildest mannered man That ever scuttled ship or cut a throat. Don Juan, Cant 111 By RON.

An idler is a watch that wants both hands; As useless if it goes as if it stands.

Retirement.

COWPER.

A lazy lolling sort, Unseen at church, at senate, or at court, Of ever-listless idlers, that attend No cause, no trust, no duty, and no friend. There too, my Paridell! she marked thee there, Stretched on the rack of a too easy chair. And heard thy everlasting yawn confess The pains and penalties of idleness. The Dunciad, Book iv. POPE.

I pray you, in your letters, When you shall these unlucky deeds relate, Speak of me as I am; nothing extenuate, Nor set down aught in malice: then, must you

Of one that loved, not wisely, but too well; Of one not easily jealous, but, being wrought, Perplexed in the extreme; of one, whose hand, Like the base Indian, threw a pearl away.

Richer than all his tribe; of one, whose subdued eyes,

Albeit unused to the melting mood, Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees Their medicinal gum. Set you down this. SHAKESPEARE. Othello, Act v. Sc. 2.

Moons.

Unpack my heart with words, And fall a cursing, like a very drab. A scullion!

Fie upon 't! Foh! Hamlet, Act is Sc 2.

SHAKESPEARE

I am very sorry, good Horatio, That to Laertes I forgot myself,

But, sure, the bravery of his grief did put me Into a towering passion.

Hamlet, Act v Sc. 2

SHAKESPEARE

A woman moved is like a fountain troubled, Muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty. SHAKESPEARE. Taming of the Shrew, Act v. Sc. 2

Had it pleased Heaven To try me with affliction; had he rained All kinds of sores and shames on my bare head, Steeped me in poverty to the very lips, Given to captivity me and my utmost hopes, — I should have found in some part of my soul A drop of patience · but, alas, to make me A fixed figure, for the time of scorn To point his slow unmoving finger at! SHAKESPEARF Othello, Act w. Sc 2.

But that I am forbid To tell the secrets of my prison-house, I could a tale unfold, whose lightest word Would harrow up thy soul, freeze thy young

Make thy two eyes, like stars, start from their

Thy knotted and combined locks to part, And each particular hair to stand on end, Like quills upon the fretful porcupine: But this eternal blazon must not be To ears of flesh and blood.

Hamlet, Act L Sc 5.

SHAKESPEARF.

I feel my sinews slacken with the fright, And a cold sweat thrills down o'er all my limbs, As if I were dissolving into water.

The Tempest

DRYDEN.

Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind: The thief doth fear each bush an officer. SHAKESPEARE. King Richard II., Act v. Sc. 6

I cannot speak, tears so obstruct my words, And choke me with unutterable joy. Carus Marrus.

T. OTWAY.

Men met each other with erected look, The steps were higher that they took, Friends to congratulate their friends made haste: And long-inveterate foes saluted as they passed. Threnodia Augustalis DRYDEN.

There is a mood (I sing not to the vacant and the young), There is a kindly mood of melancholy. That wings the soul and points her to the skies. Ruins of Rome.

BATTLE.

By Heaven! it is a splendid sight to see (For one who hath no friend, no brother there) Their rival scarfs of mixed embroidery. Their various arms that glitter in the air! What gallant war-hounds rouse them from their lair.

And gnash their fangs, loud yelling for the prey! All join the chase, but few the triumph share : The grave shall bear the chiefest prize away, And havoc scarce for joy can number their array. Childe Harold, Cant i.

From the glittering staff unfurled Th' imperial ensign, which, full high advanced, Shone like a meteor, streaming to the wind, With gems and golden lustre rich imblazed, Seraphic arms and trophies; all the while Sonorous metal blowing martial sounds: At which the universal host up sent A shout that tore hell's concave, and beyond Frighted the reign of Chaos and old Night. Paradise Lost, Book L. MILTON.

PANIC.

Such a numerous host Fled not in silence through the frighted deep, With ruin upon ruin, rout on rout, Confusion worse confounded.

Paradise Lost, Book u

MILTON,

DISTANCE.

How he fell From heaven they fabled, thrown by angry Jove Sheer o'er the crystal battlements; from morn To noon he fell, from noon to dewy eve, A summer's day; and with the setting sun Dropt from the zenith like a falling star. Paradise Lost, Book 1. MILTON.

What! will the line stretch out to the crack of Macbeth, Act IV. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE.

ST. PETER'S AT ROME.

Vastness which grows, but grows to harmonize, All musical in its immensities;

Rich marbles, richer painting, shrines where flame

The lamps of gold, and haughty dome which vies

In air with earth's chief structures, though their frame

Sits on the firm-set ground, — and this the cloud must claim.

Here condense thy soul
To more immediate objects, and control
Thy thoughts until thy mind hath got by heart
Its eloquent proportions, and unroll
In mighty graduations, part by part,
The glory which at once upon thee did not dart.
Childe Harold, Cant. iv. BYRON.

THE APOLLO BELVIDERE.

Or view the lord of the unerring bow,
The god of life, and poesy, and light, —
The sun in human limbs arrayed, and brow
All radiant from his triumph in the fight;
The shaft hath just been shot, — the arrow
bright

With an immortal's vengeance; in his eye And nostril beautiful disdain, and might And majesty, flash their full lightnings by, Developing in that one glance the Deity.

But in his delicate form — a dream of love,
Shaped by some solitary nymph, whose breast
Longed for a deathless lover from above,
And maddened in that vision — are exprest
All that ideal beauty ever blessed
The mind with in its most unearthly mood,
When each conception was a heavenly guest,
A ray of immortality, and stood,
Starlike, around, until they gathered to a god!
Childe Harold, Cant. iv.

EYEON.

A LADY'S CHAMBER.

The moon shines dim in the open air,
And not a moonbeam enters here.
But they without its light can see
The chamber carved so curiously,
Carved with figures strange and sweet,
All made out of the carver's brain,
For a lady's chamber meet:
The lamp with twofold silver chain
Is fastened to an angel's feet.
The silver lamp burns dead and dim;
But Christabel the lamp will trim.
She trimmed the lamp, and made it bright,
And left it swinging to and fro,
While Geraldine, in wretched plight,
Sank down upon the floor below.

, Christabel.

S T COLERIDGE,

Music.

Can any mortal mixture of earth's mould Breathe such divine enchanting ravishment? Sure something holy lodges in that breast, And with these raptures moves the vocal air To testify his hidden residence. How sweetly did they float upon the wings Of silence, through the empty-vaulted night, At every fall smoothing the raven down Of darkness till it smiled.

Comus.

MILTON.

Perfection.

To gild refined gold, to paint the lily,
To throw a perfume on the violet,
To smooth the ice, or add another hue
Unto the rainbow, or with taper-light
To seek the beauteous eye of heaven to garnish,
Is wasteful and ridiculous excess.

King John, Act w. Sc 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

ANTHOLOGY.

Infinite riches in a little room.

The Yew of Malla, Act L.

C. MARLOWE.

POEMS OF SENTIMENT AND REFLECTION

Death alone could sens with malignant from of The, of Jack toped to dust,

POEMS OF SENTIMENT AND REFLECTION.

GOOD LIFE, LONG LIFE.

It is not growing like a tree
In bulk, doth make man better be;
Or standing long an oak, three hundred year,
To fall a log at last, dry, bald, and sear:

A lily of a day
Is fairer far in May,
Although it fall and die that night, —
It was the plant and flower of Light.
In small proportions we just beauties see,
And in short measures life may perfect be.
Ben Jonson.

MY MINDE TO ME A KINGDOM IS.

My minde to me a kingdom is;
Such perfect joy therein I finde
As farre exceeds all earthly blisse
That God or nature hath assignde;
Though much I want that most would have,
Yet still my minde forbids to crave.

Content I live; this is my stay,—
I seek no more than may suffice.
I presse to beare no haughtie sway;
Look, what I lack my mind supplies.
Loe, thus I triumph like a king,
Content with that my mind doth bring

I see how plentic surfets oft,
And hastic clymbers soonest fall;
I see that such as sit aloft
Mishap doth threaten most of all.
These get with toile, and keepe with feare;
Such cares my mind could never beare.

No princely pompe nor welthne store, No force to win the victoric, No wylie wit to salve a sore, No shape to winne a lover's eye, — 'To none of these I yeeld as thrall; For why, my mind despiseth all. Some have too much, yet still they crave;
I little have, yet seek no more.
They are but poore, though much they have,
And I am rich with little store.
They poor, I rich; they beg, I give;
They lacke, I lend; they pine, I live.

I laugh not at another's losse,
I grudge not at another's gaine;
No worldly wave my mind can tosse;
I brooke that is another's bane
I feare no foe, I fawne no friend,
I lothe not life, nor dread mine end,

I joy not in no earthly blisse;
I weigh not Cresus' wealth a straw;
For care, I care not what it is;
I feare not fortune's fatal law;
My mind is such as may not move
For beautic bright, or force of love.

I wish but what I have at will;
I wander not to seeke for more;
I hke the plaine, I clime no hill;
In greatest stormes I sitte on shore,
And laugh at them that toile in vaine
To get what must be lost againe.

I kisse not where I wish to kill;
I feigne not love where most I hate:
I breake no sleepe to winne my will;
I wayte not at the mightie's gate.
I scorne no poore, I feare no rich;
I feele no want. nor have too much

The court ne cart I like ne loath, —
Extreames are counted worst of all;
The golden meane betwixt them both
Doth surest sit, and feares no fall;
This is my choyce; for why, I finde
No wealth is like a quiet minde.

My wealth is health and perfect ease; My conscience clere my chiefe defence; I neither seeke by bribes to please, Nor by desert to breed offence. Thus do I live; thus will I die; Would all did so as well as I!

SIR FOWARD DYER.

TO THE HON. CHARLES MONTAGUE.

Our hopes, like towering falcons, aim At objects in an airy height; But all the pleasure of the game Is afar off to view the flight.

The worthless prey but only shows The joy consisted in the strife; Whate'er we take, as soon we lose In Homer's riddle and in life.

So, whilst in feverish sleeps we think We taste what waking we desire, The dream is better than the drink, Which only feeds the sickly fire.

To the mind's eye things well appear, At distance through an artful glass; Bring but the flattering objects near, They're all a senseless gloomy mass.

Seeing aright, we see our woes: Then what avails it to have eyes? From ignorance our comfort flows. The only wretched are the wise.

MATTHEW PRIOR.

OF MYSELF.

This only grant me, that my means may lie Too low for envy, for contempt too high. Some honor I would have,

Not from great deeds, but good alone; The unknown are better than ill known:

Rumor can ope the grave. Acquaintance I would have, but when 't depends Not on the number, but the choice, of friends.

Books should, not business, entertain the light, And sleep, as undisturbed as death, the night.

My house a cottage more Than palace; and should fitting be For all my use, no luxury.

My garden painted o'er With Nature's hand, not Art's; and pleasures yield, Horace might envy in his Sabine field.

Thus would I double my life's fading space: For he that runs it well twice runs his race. And in this true delight, These unbought sports, this happy state, I would not fear, nor wish, my fate;

But boldly say each night, To-morrow let my sun his beams display, Or in clouds hide them; I have lived to-day.

ABRAHAM COWLEY.

BEAUTY.

'T is much immortal beauty to admire, But more immortal beauty to withstand; The perfect soul can overcome desire, If beauty with divine delight be scanned. For what is beauty but the blooming child Of fair Olympus, that in night must end, And be forever from that bliss exiled, If admiration stand too much its friend? The wind may be enamored of a flower, The ocean of the green and laughing shore, The silver lightning of a lofty tower, -But must not with too near a love adore. Or flower and margin and cloud-capped tower Love and delight shall with delight devour!

LORD EDWARD THURLOW.

BEAUTY.

FROM "HYMN IN HONOR OF BLAUTY."

So every spirit, as it is most pure, And hath in it the more of heavenly light. So it the fairer body doth procure To habit in, and it more fairly dight With cheerful grace and amiable sight; For of the soul the body form doth take: For soul is form, and doth the body make.

Therefore wherever that thou dost behold A comely corpse, with beauty fair endued, Know this for certain, that the same doth hold A beauteous soul, with fair conditions thewed. Fit to receive the seed of virtue strewed; For all that fair is, is by nature good; That is a sign to know the gentle blood.

Yet oft it falls that many a gentle mind Dwells in' deformed tabernacle drowned, Either by chance, against the course of kind, Or through unaptnesse in the substance found, Which it assumed of some stubborne ground, That will not yield unto her form's direction, But is performed with some foul imperfection.

^{*} This is frequently attributed to William Byrd. Bartlett, however, gives it to Sir Edward Dyer, referring to Hannah's Courtly Poets as authority, so, also, Ward, in his English Poets, Vol. I , 1880.

A FANCY FROM FONTENELLE.

"De mémoires de Roses on n'a point vu mourir le Jardinier."

THE Rose in the garden slipped her bud, And she laughed in the pride of her youthful blood, As she thought of the Gardener standing by—
"He is old—so old! And he soon must die!"

The full Rose waxed in the warm June air,
And she spread and spread till her heart lay bare:
And she laughed once more as she heard his tread—
"He is older now! He will soon be dead!"

But the breeze of the morning blew, and found That the leaves of the blown Rose strewed the ground; And he came at noon, that Gardener old, And he raked them gently under the mould.

And I wove the thing to a random rhyme: For the Rose is Beauty; the Gardener, Time.

THE WILD RIDE.

I hear in my heart, I hear in its ominous pulses,
All day, the commotion of sinewy, mane-tossing horses;
All night, from their cells, the importunate tramping and neighing.

Drawn by Edwin Forbes

Cowards and laggards fall back; but alert to the saddle, Straight, grim, and abreast, vault our weather-worn, galloping legion, With stirrup-cup each to the one gracious woman that loves him.

The road is through dolor and dread, over crags and morasses; There are shapes by the way, there are things that appal or entice us: What odds? We are knights, and our souls are but bent on the riding!

Thought's self is a vanishing wing, and joy is a cobweb, And friendship a flower in the dust, and glory a sunbeam: Not here is our prize, nor, alas! after these our pursuing.

A dipping of plumes, a tear, a shake of the bridle, A passing salute to this world, and her pitiful beauty! We hurry with never a word in the track of our fathers.

I hear in my heart, I hear in its ominous pulses, All day, the commotion of sinewy mane-tossing horses, All night, from their cells, the importunate tramping and neighing.

We spur to a land of no name, outracing the storm-wind; We leap to the infinite dark, like the sparks from the anvil. Thou leadest, O God! All's well with Thy troopers that follow!

LOUISE IMOGEN GUINEY.

And oft it falls (aye me, the more to rue!)
That goodly beauty, albeit heavenly born,
Is foul abused, and that celestial hue,
Which doth the world with her delight adorn,
Made but the bait of sin, and sinners' scorn,
Whilst every one doth seek and sue to have it,
But every one doth seek but to deprave it.

Yet nathemore is that faire beauty's blame, But theirs that do abuse it unto ill. Nothing so good, but that through guilty shame May be corrupt, and wrested unto will: Natheless the soule is fair and beauteous still, However fleshe's fault it filthy make; For things immortal no corruption take.

LIDWARD SPENSER.

THOUGHT.

THOUGHT is deeper than all speech, Feeling deeper than all thought; Souls to souls can never teach What unto themselves was taught.

We are spirits clad in veils;
Man by man was never seen;
All our deep communing fails
To remove the shadowy screen.

Heart to heart was never known;
Mind with mind did never meet;
We are columns left alone
Of a temple once complete.

Like the stars that gem the sky,
Far apart, though seeming near,
In our light we scattered lie;
All is thus but starlight here.

What is social company
But a babbling summer stream?
What our wise philosophy
But the glancing of a dream?

Only when the sun of love
Melts the scattered stars of thought,
Only when we live above
What the dim-eyed world hath taught,

Only when our souls are fed

By the fount which gave them birth,
And by inspiration led

Which they never drew from earth,

We, like parted drops of rain,
Swelling till they meet and run,
Shall be all absorbed again,
Melting, flowing into one.

CHRISTOPHER PEARSE CRANCH-

CONTENTMENT.

I WEIGH not fortune's frown or smile;
I joy not much in earthly joys;
I seek not state, I reck not style;
I am not fond of fancy's toys:
I rest so pleased with what I have,
I wish no more, no more I crave.

I quake not at the thunder's crack;
I tremble not at news of war;
I swound not at the news of wrack;
I shrink not at a blazing star;
I fear not loss, I hope not gain,
I envy none, I none disdain.

I see ambition never pleased;
I see some Tantals starved in store;
I see gold's dropsy seldom eased;
I see even Midas gape for more;
I neither want nor yet abound, —
Enough's a feast, content is crowned.

I feign not friendship where I hate;
I fawn not on the great (in show);
I prize, I praise a mean estate,—
Neither too lofty nor too low:
This, this is all my choice, my cheer,—
A mind content, a conscience clear.

JOSHUA SYLVESTER.

CONTENT.

FROM " FAREWELL TO FOLLIE," 1617.

Sweet are the thoughts that savor of content;
The quiet mind is richer than a crown;
Sweet are the nights in careless slumber spent, —
The poor estate scorns Fortune's angry frown:
Such sweet content, such minds, such sleep, such bliss,

Beggars enjoy, when princes oft do miss.

The homely house that harbors quiet rest,
The cottage that affords no pride or care,
The mean, that 'grees with country music best,
The sweet consort of mirth's and music's fare.
Obscured life sets down a type of bliss;
A mind content both crown and kingdom is.

ROBERT GREENE.

IN PRISON.

BEAT on, proud billows; Boreas, blow; Swell, curled waves, high as Jove's roof; Your incivility doth show That innocence is tempest proof; Though surly Nereus frown, my thoughts are calm; Then strike, Affliction, for thy wounds are belm. That which the world miscalls a jail
A private closet is to me;
Whilst a good conscience is my bail,
And innocence my liberty:
Locks, bars, and solitude together met,
Make me no prisoner, but an anchoret.

I, whilst I wisht to be retired,
Into this private room was turned;
As if their wisdoms had conspired
The salamander should be burned;
Or like those sophists, that would drown a fish,
I am constrained to suffer what I wish.

The eynic loves his poverty;
The pelican her wilderness;
And 't is the Indian's pride to be
Naked on frozen Caucasus;
Contentment cannot smart; stoics we see
Make torments easier to their apathy.

These manacles upon my arm
I as my mistress' favors wear;
And for to keep my ankles warm
I have some iron shackles there:
These walls are but my garrison; this cell,
Which men call jail, doth prove my citadel.

I'm in the cabinet lockt up,
Like some high-prized margarite,
Or, like the Great Mogul or Pope,
Am cloistered up from public sight:
Retiredness is a piece of majesty,
And thus, proud Sultau, I'm as great as thee.
SIR ROCER L'ESTRANGE.

CLEON AND I.

CLEON hath a million acres, me'er a one have I; Cleon dwelleth in a palace, in a cottage I; Cleon hath a dozen fortunes, not a penny I; Yet the poorer of the twain is Cleon, and not I.

Cleon, true, possesseth acres, but the landscape I; Half the charms to me it yieldeth money cannot buy.

Cleon harbors sloth and dulness, freshening vigor I;

He in velvet, I in fustian, richer man am I.

Cleon is a slave to grandeur, free as thought am I; Cleon fees a score of doctors, need of none have I; Wealth-surrounded, care-environed, Cleon fears to die:

Death may come, he 'll find me ready, — happier man am I,

Cleon sees no charms in nature, in a daisy I; Cleon hears no anthems ringing in the sea and sky;

Nature sings to me forever, earnest listener I; State for state, with all attendants, who would change? Not I.

CHARLLS MACKAY.

THE WANTS OF MAN.

"Man wants but little here below,
Nor wants that little long."
"It is not with me exactly so;
But 't is so in the song.
My wants are many and, if told,
Would muster many a score;
And were each wish a mint of gold,
I still should long for more.

What first I want is daily bread —
And canvas-backs — and wine —
And all the realms of nature spread
Before me, when I dine.
Four courses scarcely can provide
My appetite to quell;
With four choice cooks from France beside,
To dress my dinner well.

What next I want, at princely cost,
Is elegant attire:
Black sable furs for winter's frost,
And silks for summer's fire,
And Cashmere shawls, and Brussels lace
My bosom's front to deck,—
And diamond rings my hands to grace,
And rubies for my neck.

I want (who does not want ?) a wife, —
Affectionate and fair;
To solace all the woes of life,
And all its joys to share.
Of temper sweet, of yielding will,
Of firm, yet placid mind, —
With all my faults to love me still
With sentiment refined.

And as Time's car incessant runs,
And Fortune fills my store,
I want of daughters and of sons
From eight to half a score.
I want (alas! can mortal dare
Such bliss on earth to crave?)
That all the girls be chaste and fair,
The boys all wise and brave.

I want a warm and faithful friend, To cheer the adverse hour; Who ne'er to flatter will descend,
Nor bend the knee to power,—
A friend to chide me when I 'm wrong,
My inmost soul to see;
And that my friendship prove as strong
For him as his for me.

I want the seals of power and place,
The ensigns of command;
Charged by the People's unbought grace
To rule my native land.
Nor crown nor sceptre would I ask
But from my country's will,
By day, by night, to ply the task
Her cup of bliss to fill.

I want the voice of honest praise
To follow me behind,
And to be thought in future days
The friend of human kind,
That after ages, as they rise,
Exulting may proclaim
In choral union to the skies
Their blessings on my name.

These are the Wants of mortal Man, —
I cannot want them long,
For life itself is but a span,
And earthly bliss — a song.
My last great Want — absorbing all —
Is, when beneath the sod,
And summoned to my final call,
The Mercy of my God

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

CONTENTMENT.

" Man wants but little here below."

LITTLE I ask; my wants are few;
I only wish a hut of stone,
(A very plain brown stone will do,)
That I may call my own;
And close at hand is such a one,
In yonder street that fronts the sun.

Plain food is quite enough for me;
Three courses are as good as ten;
If nature can subsist on three,
Thank Heaven for three. Amen!
I always thought cold victual nice;
My choice would be vanilla-ice.

I care not much for gold or land; —
Give me a mortgage here and there, —
Some good bank-stock, — some note of hand,
Or trifling railroad share, —
I only ask that Fortune send
A Wille more than I shall spend.

Honors are silly toys, I know,
And titles are but empty names;
I would, perhaps, be Plenipo,—
But only near St. James;
I'm very sure I should not care
To fill our Gubernator's chair.

Jewels are baubles; 't is a sin

To care for such unfruitful things; —
One good-sized diamond in a pin, —
Some, not so large, in rings, —
A ruby, and a pearl or so,
Will do for me; — I laugh at show.

My dame should dress in cheap attire; (Good heavy silks are never dear;)—
I own perhaps 1 might desire
Some shawls of true Cashmere,—
Some marrowy crapes of China silk,
Like winkled skins on scalded milk.

I would not have the horse I drive
So fast that folks must stop and stare;
An easy gait — two, forty-five —
Suits me; I do not care, —
Perhaps, for just a single spurt,
Some seconds less would do no hurt.

Of pictures, I should like to own
Titians and Raphaels three or four —
I love so much their style and tone —
One Turner, and no more,
(A landscape — foreground golden dirt —
The sunshine painted with a squirt)

Of books but few, — some fifty score
For darly use, and bound for wear;
The rest upon an upper floor; —
Some little luxury there
Of red morocco's gilded gleam,
And vellum rich as country cream.

Busts, cameos, gems, — such things as these,
Which others often show for pride,
I value for their power to please,
And selfish churls dende;
One Stradivarius, I confess,
Two meerschaums, I would fain possess.

Wealth's wasteful tricks I will not learn,
Nor ape the glittering upstart fool;
Shall not carved tables serve my turn,
But all must be of buhl?
Give grasping pomp its double share,—
I ask but one recumbent chair.

Thus humble let me live and die, Nor long for Midas' golden touch; If Heaven more generous gifts deny,

I shall not miss them much,—

Too grateful for the blessing lent

Of simple tastes and mind content!

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

CONTENTATION.

DIRECTED TO MY DLAR FATHER, AND MOST WORTHY FRIEND, MR. ISAAK WALTON

HEAVEN, what an age is this! what race Of giants are sprung up, that dare Thus fly in the Almighty's face, And with his providence make war!

I can go nowhere but I meet
With malcontents and mutineers,
As if in life was nothing sweet,
And we must blessings reap in tears.

O senseless man! that murmurs still
For happiness, and does not know,
Even though he might enjoy his will,
What he would have to make him so.

Is it true happiness to be
By undiscerning Fortune placed
In the most eminent degree,
Where few arrive, and none stand fast?

Titles and wealth are Fortune's toils,
Wherewith the vain themselves insnare:
The great are proud of borrowed spoils,
The miser's plenty breeds his care.

The one supinely yawns at rest,
The other eternally doth toil;
Each of them equally a beast,
A pampered horse, a laboring moil:

The titulado 's oft disgraced
By public hate or private frown,
And ne whose hand the creature raised
Has yet a foot to kick him down.

The drudge who would all get, all save,
Like a brute beast, both feeds and lies;
Prone to the earth, he digs his grave,
And in the very labor dies.

Excess of ill-got, ill-kept pelf
Does only death and danger breed;
Whilst one rich worldling starves himself
With what would thousand others feed.

By which we see that wealth and power,
Although they make men rich and great,
The sweets of life do often sour,
And gull ambition with a cheat.

Nor is he happier than these, Who, in a moderate estate, Where he might safely live at ease, Has lusts that are immoderate.

For he, by those desires misled, Quits his own vine's securing shade, To expose his naked, empty head To all the storms man's peace invade.

Nor is he happy who is trim,
Tricked up in favors of the fair,
Mirrors, with every breath made dim,
Birds, caught in every wanton snare.

Woman, man's greatest woe or bliss,
Does oftener far than serve, enslave,
And with the magic of a kiss
Destroys whom she was made to save.

O fruitful grief, the world's disease!
And vainer man, to make it so,
Who gives his miseries increase
By cultivating his own woe!

There are no ills but what we make
By giving shapes and names to things,—
Which is the dangerous mistake
That causes all our sufferings.

We call that sickness which is health,
That persecution which is grace,
That poverty which is true wealth,
And that dishonor which is praise.

Alas! our time is here so short

That in what state soe'er 't is spent,
Of joy or woe, does not import,
Provided it be innocent.

But we may make it pleasant too,
If we will take our measures right,
And not what Heaven has done undo
By an unruly appetite.

The world is full of beaten roads,
But yet so slippery withal,
That where one walks secure 't is odds
A hundred and a hundred fall.

Untrodden paths are then the best,
Where the frequented are unsure;
And he comes soonest to his rest
Whose journey has been most secure.

It is content alone that makes
Our pilgrimage a pleasure here;
And who buys sorrow cheapest takes
An ill commodity too dear.
CHARLES COTTON

THE TOUCHSTONE.

A MAN there came, whence none could tell, Bearing a Touchstone in his hand, And tested all things in the land By its unerring spell.

A thousand transformations rose From fair to foul, from foul to fair: The golden crown he did not spare. Nor scorn the beggar's clothes.

Of heirloom jewels, prized so much, Were many changed to chips and clods: And even statues of the Gods Crumbled beneath its touch.

Then angrily the people cried, "The loss outweighs the profit far: Our goods suffice us as they are : We will not have them tried."

And, since they could not so avail To check his unrelenting quest, They seized him, saying, "Let him test How real is our jail!"

But though they slew him with the sword, And in a fire his Touchstone burned. Its doings could not be o'erturned, Its undoings restored.

And when, to stop all future harm. They strewed its ashes on the breeze, They little guessed each grain of these Conveyed the perfect charm.

WILLIAM ALLINGHAM.

ON HIS OWN BLINDNESS.

TO CYRIACK SKINNER

CYRIACK, this three years' day, these eyes, though clear,

To outward view, of blemish or of spot, Bereft of light, their seeing have forgot: Nor to their idle orbs doth sight appear Of sun, or moon, or star, throughout the year, Or man or woman, yet I argue not Against Heaven's hand or will, nor bate a jot Of heart or hope; but still bear up and steer Right onward. What supports me, dost thou ask? The conscience, friend, to have lost them overplied In Liberty's defence, my noble task, Of which all Europe rings from side to side. This thought might lead me through the world's vain mask, Content, though blind, had I no better guide.

MILTON

THE HAPPY MAN.

FROM "THE WINTER WALK AT NOON:" "THE TASK," BOOK VI.

HE is the happy man whose life even now Shows somewhat of that happier life to come; Who, doomed to an obscure but tranquil state, Is pleased with it, and, were he free to choose, Would make his fate his choice; whom peace, the fruit

Of virtue, and whom virtue, fruit of faith. Prepare for happiness; bespeak him one Content indeed to sojourn while he must Below the skies, but having there his home. The world o'erlooks him in her busy search Of objects, more illustrious in her view; And, occupied as earnestly as she, Though more sublimely, he o'erlooks the world. She scorns his pleasures, for she knows them not;

He seeks not hers, for he has proved them vain, He cannot skim the ground like summer birds Pursuing gilded flies; and such he deems Her honors, her emoluments, her joys. Therefore in contemplation is his bliss, Whose power is such that whom she lifts from earth

She makes familiar with a heaven unseen, And shows him glories yet to be revealed. Not slothful he, though seeming unemployed, And censured oft as useless. Stillest streams Oft water fairest meadows, and the bird That flutters least is longest on the wing.

WILLIAM COWPER.

THE PROBLEM.

I LIKE a church; I like a cowl; I love a prophet of the soul; And on my heart monastic aisles Fall like sweet strains or pensive smiles; Yet not for all his faith can see Would I that cowled churchman be. Why should the vest on him allure, Which I could not on me endure?

Not from a vain or shallow thought His awful Jove young Phidias brought; Never from lips of cunning fell The thrilling Delphic oracle: Out from the heart of nature rolled The burdens of the Bible old: The litanies of nations came, Like the volcano's tongue of flame, Up from the burning core below, -The canticles of love and woe.

The hand that rounded Peter's dome, And groined the aisles of Christian Rome, Wrought in a sad sincerity; Himself from God he could not free; He builded better than he knew;— The conscious stone to beauty grew.

Know'st thou what wove yon woodbird's nest Of leaves, and feathers from her breast? Or how the fish outbuilt her shell, Painting with morn each annual cell ? Or how the sacred pine-tree adds To her old leaves new myriads? Such and so grew these holy piles, Whilst love and terror laid the tiles. Earth proudly wears the Parthenon, As the best gem upon her zone; And Morning opes with haste her lids, To gaze upon the Pyramids; O'er England's abbeys bends the sky, As on its friends, with kindred eye; For, out of Thought's interior sphere, These wonders rose to upper air; And Nature gladly gave them place, Adopted them into her race, And granted them an equal date With Andes and with Ararat.

These temples grew as grows the grass; Art might obey, but not surpass. The passive Master lent his hand To the vast Soul that o'er him planned: And the same power that reared the shrine Bestrode the tribes that knelt within. Ever the fiery Pentecost Girds with one flame the countless host, Trances the heart through chanting choirs, And through the priest the mind inspires. The word unto the prophet spoken Was writ on tables yet unbroken; The word by seers or sibyls told, In groves of oak, or fanes of gold, Still floats upon the morning wind, Still whispers to the willing mind. One accent of the Holy Ghost The heedless world hath never lost. I know what say the fathers wise. -The Book itself before me lies, --Old Chrysostom, best Augustine, And he who blent both in his line, The younger Golden Lips or mines, Taylor, the Shakespeare of divines. His words are music in my ear, I see his cowled portrait dear; And yet, for all his faith could see, I would not the good bishop be.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

HAPPINESS.

FROM "AN ESSAY ON MAN," EPISTLE IV.

O Happiness! our being's end and aim! Good, Pleasure, Ease, Content! whate'er thy . name:

That something still which prompts the eternal sigh.

For which we bear to live or dare to die,
Which still so near us, yet beyond us lies,
O'erlooked, seen double, by the fool, and wise.
Plant of celestial seed! if dropped below,
Say, in what mortal soil thou deign'st to grow?
Fair opening to some court's propitious shine,
Or deep with diamonds in the flaming mine?
Twined with the wreaths Parnassian laurels yield,
Or reaped in iron harvests of the field!
Where grows?— where grows it not? If vain
our toil,

We ought to blame the culture, not the soil
Fixed to no spot is happiness sincere;
'T is nowhere to be found, or everywhere:
'T is never to be bought, but always free,
And, fled from monarchs, St. John! dwells with

Ask of the learned the way? The learned are blind;

This bids to serve, and that to shun, mankind; Some place the bliss in action, some in ease, Those call it pleasure, and contentment these; Some, sunk to beasts, find pleasure end in pain; Some, swelled to gods, confess even virtue vain; Or, indolent, to each extreme they fall,—

To trust in everything, or doubt of all.

Who thus define it, say they more or less Than this, that happiness is happiness '

Take Nature's path, and mad Opinion's leave, All states can reach it, and all heads conceive; Obvious her goods, in no extreme they dwell; There needs but thinking right, and meaning well:

And, mourn our various portions as we please, Equal is common sense and common ease.

THE CHARACTER OF A HAPPY LIFE.

How happy is he born and taught That serveth not another's will; Whose armor is his honest thought, And simple truth his utnost skill!

Whose passions not his masters are; Whose soul is still prepared for death, Not tied unto the world with care Of public fame or private breath; Who envies none that chance doth raise, Or vice; who never understood How deepest wounds are given by praise, Nor rules of state, but rules of good;

Who hath his life from rumors freed;
Whose conscience is his strong retreat;
Whose state can neither flatterers feed,
Nor ruin make accusers great;

Who God doth late and early pray
More of his grace than gifts to lend,
And entertains the harmless day
With a well-chosen book or friend,—

This man is freed from servile bands
Of hope to rise, or fear to fall;
Lord of himself, though not of lands;
And, having nothing, yet hath all.
SIR HENRY WOTTON.

THE HERMIT.

At the close of the day, when the hamlet is still,
And mortals the sweets of forgetfulness prove,
When naught but the torrent is heard on the hill,
And naught butthenightingale's song in the grove,
'T was thus, by the cave of the mountain afar,
While his harp rung symphonious, a hermit began;

No more with himself or with nature at war, He thought as a sage, though he felt as a man:

"Ah! why, all abandoned to darkness and woe, Why, lone Philomela, that languishing fall? For spring shall return, and a lover bestow, And sorrow no longer thy bosom inthrall. But, if pity inspire thee, renew the sad lay, — Mourn, sweetest complainer, man calls thee to mourn!

O, scothe him whose pleasures like thine pass away;

Full quickly they pass, - but they never return.

"Now, gliding remote on the verge of the sky, The moon, half extinguished, her crescent displays:

But lately I marked when majestic on high She shone, and the planets were lost in her blaze. Roll on, thou fair orb, and with gladness pursue The path that conducts thee to splendor again! But man's faded glory what change shall renew? Ah, fool! to exult in a glory so vain!

"'T is night, and the landscape is lovely no more. I mourn, — but, ye woodlands, I mourn not for you; For morn is approaching your charms to restore, Perfumed with fresh fragrance, and glittering with dew.

Nor yet for the ravage of winter I mourn, — Kind nature the embryo blossom will save; But when shall spring visit the mouldering urn? O, when shall day dawn on the night of the grave?

""Twas thus, by the glare of false science betrayed,
That leads to bewilder, and dazzles to blind,
My thoughts wont to roam from shade onward to shade,

Destruction before me, and sorrow behind.
'O pity, great Father of light,' then I cried,
'Thy creature, who fain would not wander from thee!

Lo, humbled in dust, I relinquish my pride; From doubt and from darkness thou only canst free'

"And darkness and doubt are now flying away;
No longer I roam in conjecture forlorn.
So breaks on the traveller, faint and astray,
The bright and the balmy effulgence of morn.
See truth, love, and mercy in triumph descending,
And nature all glowing in Eden's first bloom!
On the cold cheek of death smiles and roses are blending,

And beauty immortal awakes from the tomb."

JAMES BFAITIE.

THE RETIREMENT.

FAREWELL, thou busy world, and may
We never meet again;
Here I can eat and sleep and pray,
And do more good in one short day
Than he who his whole age outwears
Upon the most conspicuous theatres,
Where naught but vanity and vice appears

Good God! how sweet are all things here! How beautiful the fields appear!

How cleanly do we feed and lie! Lord! what good hours do we keep! How quietly we sleep!

What peace, what unanimity ' How innocent from the lewd fashion Is all our business, all our recreation!

O, how happy here's our leisure!
O, how innocent our pleasure!
O ye valleys! O ye mountains!
O ye groves and crystal fountains!
How I love, at liberty,
By turns to come and visit ye!

Dear solitude, the soul's best friend,
That man acquainted with himself dost make,
And all his Maker's wonders to intend,
With thee I here converse at will,
And would be glad to do so still,
For it is thou alone that keep'st the soul awake.

How calm and quiet a delight
Is it, alone,
To read and meditate and write,

By none offended, and offending none!

To walk, ride, sit, or sleep at one's own ease;

And, pleasing a man's self, none other to displease.

O my beloved nymph, fair Dove,
Princess of rivers, how I love
Upon thy flowery banks to lie,
And view thy silver stream,
When gilded by a summer's beam!
And in it all thy wanton fry
Playing at liberty,
And with my angle upon them
The all of treachery
I ever learned, industriously to try!

Such streams Rome's yellow Tiber cannot show, The Iberian Tagus, or Ligurian Po; The Maese, the Danube, and the Rhine, Are puddle-water, all, compared with thine; And Loire's pure streams yet too polluted are With thine, much purer, to compare; The rapid Garonne and the winding Seine

Are both too mean, Beloved Dove, with thee To vie priority;

Nay, Tame and Isis, when conjoined, submit, And lay their trophies at thy silver feet.

O my beloved rocks, that rise
To awe the earth and brave the skies!
From some aspiring mountain's crown
How dearly do I love,
Giddy with pleasure to look down,
And from the vales to view the noble heights
above!

O my beloved caves! from dog-star's heat, And all anxieties, my safe retreat; What safety, privacy, what true delight,

In the artificial night
Your gloomy entrails make,
Have I taken, do I take '
How oft, when grief has made me fly,
To hide me from society
E'en of my dearest friends, have I,
In your recesses' friendly shade,
All my sorrows open laid,

And my most secret woes intrusted to your privacy!

Lord! would men let me alone,
What an over-happy one Should I think myself to be, —
Might I in this desert place
(Which most men in discourse disgrace)
Live but undisturbed and free!

Here in this despised recess,

Would I, maugre winter's cold

And the summer's worst excess.

Try to live out to sixty full years old;
And, all the while,

Without an envious eye
On any thriving under Fortune's smile,
Contented live, and then contented die.

CHARLLS COTTON.

VERSES

SUPPOSED TO BE WRITTEN BY ALEXANDER SELKIRK DURING HIS SOLITARY ABODE IN THE ISLAND OF JUAN FLENANDEZ.

I AM monarch of all I survey,—
My right there is none to dispute;
From the centre all round to the sea,
I am lord of the fowl and the brute.
O Solitude! where are the charms
That sages have seen in thy face?
Better dwell in the midst of alarms
Than reign in this horrible place,

I am out of humanity's reach;
I must finish my journey alone,
Never hear the sweet music of speech,—
I start at the sound of my own.
The beasts that roam over the plain
My form with indifference see;
They are so unacquainted with man,
Their tameness is shocking to me,

Society, friendship, and love,
Divinely bestowed upon man!
O, had I the wings of a dove,
How soon would I taste you again!
My sorrows I then might assuage
In the ways of religion and truth,
Might learn from the wisdom of age,
And be cheered by the sallies of youth,

Religion! what treasure untold
Resides in that heavenly word!—
More precious than silver and gold,
Or all that this earth can afford;
But the sound of the church-going bell
These valleys and rocks never heard,
Never sighed at the sound of a knell,
Or smiled when a Sabbath appeared.

Ye winds that have made me your sport,
Convey to this desolate shore
Some cordial, endearing report
Of a land I shall visit no more!
My friends, — do they now and then send
A wish or a thought after me?
O, tell me I yet have a friend,
Though a friend I am never to see.

How fleet is a glance of the mind!
Compared with the speed of its flight,
The tempest itself lags behind,
And the swift-winged arrows of light.
When I think of my own native land,
In a moment I seem to be there,
But, alas! recollection at hand
Soon hurries me back to despair.

But the sea-fowl is gone to her nest,
The beast is laid down in his lair;
Even here is a season of rest,
And I to my cabin repair.
There's mercy in every place,
And mercy — encouraging thought!—
Gives even affliction a grace,
And reconciles man to his lot.

WILLIAM COWPER

THE GOOD GREAT MAN.

How seldom, friend, a good great man inherits
Honor and wealth, with all his worth and pains!
It seems a story from the world of spirits
When any man obtains that which he merits,
Or any merits that which he obtains.

For shame, my friend ' renounce this idle strain ' What wouldst thou have a good great man obtain? Wealth, title, dignity, a golden chain, Or heap of corses which his sword hath slain? Goodness and greatness are not means, but ends. Hath he not always treasures, always friends, — The good great man? Three treasures, — love, and light,

And calm thoughts, equable as infant's breath, And three fast friends, more sure than day or night,—

Himself, his Maker, and the angel Death.

SAMULL TAYLOR COLERIDGE.

EXAMPLE.

WE scatter seeds with careless hand,
And dream we ne'er shall see them more;
But for a thousand years
Their fruit appears,
In weeds that mar the land,
Or healthful store.

The deeds we do, the words we say, —
Into still air they seem to fleet,
We count them ever past;
But they shall last, —
In the dread judgment they
And we shall meet.

I charge thee by the years gone by,

For the love's sake of brethren dear,

Keep thou the one true way,

In work and play,

Lest in that world their cry
Of woe thou hear.

JOHN KEBLE

LIVING WATERS.

THERE are some hearts like wells, green-mossed and deep

As ever Summer saw;

And cool their water is, — yea, cool and sweet; — But you must come to draw.

They heard not, yet they rest in calm content, And not unsought will give;

They can be quiet with their wealth unspent, So self-contained they live.

And there are some like springs, that bubbling burst

To follow dusty ways,
And run with offered cup to quench his thirst
Where the tired traveller strays;

That never ask the meadows if they want What is their joy to give :--

Unasked, their lives to other life they grant, So self-bestowed they live '

And One is like the ocean, deep and wide, Wherein all waters fall;

That girdles the broad earth, and draws the tide, Feeding and bearing all,

That broods the mists, that sends the clouds abroad,

That takes, again to give ,-Even the great and loving heart of God,
Whereby all love doth live.

CAROLINE S. SPENCER.

THE SEASIDE WELL.

"Waters flowed over my head, then I said, I am cut off "-Lamentations, m. 54.

One day I wandered where the salt sea-tide Backward had drawn its wave, And found a spring as sweet as e'er hillside To wild-flowers gave. Freshly it sparkled in the sun's bright look, And mid its pebbles strayed, As if it thought to join a happy brook

In some green glade.

But soon the heavy sea's resistless swell Came rolling in once more, Spreading its bitter o'er the clear sweet well And pebbled shore.

Like a fair star thick buried in a cloud, Or life in the grave's gloom,

The well, enwrapped in a deep watery shroud, Sunk to its tomb.

As one who by the beach roams far and wide, Remnant of wreck to save,

Again I wandered when the salt sea-tide Withdrew its wave;

And there, unchanged, no taint in all its sweet, No anger in its tone,

Still as it thought some happy brook to meet, The spring flowed on.

While waves of bitterness rolled o'er its head, Its heart had folded deep Within itself, and quiet fancies led, As in a sleep;

Till, when the ocean loosed his heavy chain, And gave it back to day,

Calmly it turned to its own life again And gentle way.

Happy, I thought, that which can draw its life Deep from the nether springs, Safe 'neath the pressure, tranquil mid the strife, Of surface things.

Safe - for the sources of the nether springs Up in the far hills lie;

Calm — for the life its power and freshness brings Down from the sky.

So, should temptations threaten, and should sin Roll in its whelming flood,

Make strong the fountain of thy grace within My soul, O God !

If bitter scorn, and looks, once kind, grown strange,

With crushing chillness fall,

From secret wells let sweetness rise, nor change My heart to gall !

When sore thy hand doth press, and waves of thine

Afflict me like a sea, -

Deep calling deep, -- infuse from source divine Thy peace in me!

And when death's tide, as with a brimful cup, Over my soul doth pour,

Let hope survive, — a well that springeth up Forevermore!

Above my head the waves may come and go, Long brood the deluge dire, But life lies hidden in the depths below

Till death, that reigns with overflowing flood, At length withdraw its sway,

Till waves retire, -

And life rise sparkling in the sight of God An endless day.

A NONY MOUS

THE MEN OF OLD.

I know not that the men of old Were better than men now, Of heart more kind, of hand more bold, Of more ingenuous brow, I heed not those who pine for force A ghost of time to raise, As if they thus could check the course Of these appointed days

Still it is true, and over-true, That I delight to close This book of life self-wise and new, And let my thoughts repose On all that humble happiness The world has since foregone, -The daylight of contentedness That on those faces shone!

With rights, though not too closely scanned, Enjoyed as far as known, With will by no reverse unmanned, With pulse of even tone, They from to-day, and from to-night, Expected nothing more Than yesterday and yesternight Had proffered them before.

To them was life a simple art Of duties to be done, A game where each man took his part, A race where all must run; A battle whose great scheme and scope They little cared to know, Content, as men-at-arms, to cope Each with his fronting foe.

Man now his virtue's diadem Puts on, and proudly wears . -Great thoughts, great feelings, came to them, Like instincts unawares; Blending their souls' sublimest needs With tasks of every day They went about their gravest deeds As noble boys at play.

And what if Nature's fearful wound
They did not probe and bare,
For that their spirits never swooned
To watch the misery there,—
For that their love but flowed more fast,
Their charities more free,
Not conscious what mere drops they cast
Into the evil sea.

A man's best things are nearest him,
Lie close about his feet;
It is the distant and the dim
That we are sick to greet;
For flowers that grow our hands beneath
We struggle and aspire, —
Our hearts must die, except they breathe
The air of fresh desire

Yet, brothers, who up reason's hill Advance with hopeful cheer, —
Oh, loiter not, those heights are chill,
As chill as they are clear,
And still restrain your haughty gaze
The loftier that ye go,
Remembering distance leaves a haze
On all that hes below.
RIGHARD MONGATON MILNES, LORD HOUGHTON.

HISTORY OF A LIFE.

DAY dawned; — within a curtained room, Filled to faintness with perfume, A lady lay at point of doom.

Day closed; — a Child had seen the light: But, for the lady fair and bright, She rested in undreaming night

Spring rose; — the lady's grave was green; And near it, oftentimes, was seen A gentle Boy with thoughtful mien.

Years fled; — he wore a manly face, And struggled in the world's rough race, And won at last a lofty place.

And then he died! Behold hefore ye Humanity's poor sum and story;
Life, — Death, — and all that is of Glory.

BRYAN WALLER PROCIER (Barry Cornwall).

THE ROSE-BUSH.

A CHILD sleeps under a rose-bush fair,
The buds swell out in the soft May air;
Sweetly it rests, and on dream-wings flies
To play with the angels in Paradise.
And the years glide by.

A Maiden stands by the rose-bush fair,
The dewy blossoms perfume the air;
She presses her hand to her throbbing breast,
With love's first wonderful rapture blest.
And the years glide by.

A Mother kneels by the rose-bush fair, Soft sigh the leaves in the evening air, Sorrowing thoughts of the past arms, And tears of anguish bedim her eyes. And the years glide by.

Naked and lone stands the rose-bush fair, Whirled are the leaves in the autumn air, Withered and dead they fall to the ground, And silently cover a new-made mound.

And the years glide by,
I rom the German, by WII LIAM W. CALDWELL.

LIFE.

I MADE a posie, while the day ran by:

"Here will I smell my remnant out, and tie
My life within this band."

But Time did beckon to the flowers, and they
By noon most cunningly did steal away,

And withered in my hand.

My hand was next to them, and then my heart;
I took, without more thinking, in good part
Time's gentle admonition;
Who did so sweetly death's sad taste convey,
Making my minde to smell my fatall day,
Yet sug'ring the suspicion.

Farewell, dear flowers! sweetly your time ye spent,

Fit, while ye lived, for smell or ornament,

And after death for cures.

I follow straight without complaints or grief; Since, if my scent be good, I care not if It be as short as yours.

GEORGE HERBERT

THE RIVER OF LIFE.

THE more we live, more brief appear Our life's succeeding stages; A day to childhood seems a year, And years like passing ages.

The gladsome current of our youth, Ere passion yet disorders, Steals lingering like a river smooth Along its grassy bonders. But, as the careworn cheek grows wan, And sorrow's shafts fly thicker, Ye stars, that measure life to man, Why seem your courses quicker?

When joys have lost their bloom and breath, And life itself is vapid, Why, as we near the Falls of Death, Feel we its tide more rapid?

It may be strange, — yet who would change Time's course to slower speeding, When one by one our friends have gone, And left our bosoms bleeding?

Heaven gives our years of fading strength Indemnifying fleetness; And those of youth, a seeming length, Proportioned to their sweetness.

THOMAS CAMPBELL.

THE VOYAGE OF LIFE.

FROM "THE SPLEEN."

THUS, then, I steer my bark, and sail On even keel with gentle gale; At helm I make my reason sit, My crew of passions all submit. If dark and blustering prove some nights, Philosophy puts forth her lights; Experience holds the cautious glass, To shun the breakers, as I pass, And frequent throws the wary lead, To see what dangers may be hid; And once in seven years I'm seen At Bath or Tunbridge to careen Though pleased to see the dolphins play, I mind my compass and my way. With store sufficient for belief, And wisely still prepared to reef, Nor wanting the dispersive bowl Of cloudy weather in the soul, I make (may Heaven propitious send Such wind and weather to the end). Neither becalmed nor overblown, Life's voyage to the world unknown.

MATTHEW GREEN

THE ROSARY OF MY TEARS.

Some reckon their age by years,
Some measure their life by art;
But some tell their days by the flow of their tears,
And their lives by the moans of their heart.

The dials of earth may show

The length, not the depth of years, —

Few or many they come, few or many they go, — But time is best measured by tears.

Ah ' not by the silver gray
That creeps through the sunny hair,
And not by the scenes that we pass on our way,
And not by the furrows the fingers of care

On forehead and face have made, —
Not so do we count our years;
Not by the sun of the earth, but the shade
Of our souls, and the fall of our tears.

For the young are ofttimes old,
Though their brows be bright and fair;
While their blood beats warm, their hearts are cold —

O'er them the spring - but winter is there.

And the old are ofttimes young
When their hair is thin and white;
And they sing in age, as in youth they sung,
And they laugh, for their cross was light.

But, bead by bead, I tell

The Rosary of my years;

From a cross—to a cross they lead; 't is well,

And they're blest with a blessing of tears.

Better a day of strife

Than a century of sleep;
Give me instead of a long stream of life

The tempests and tears of the deep.

A thousand joys may foam
On the billows of all the years,
But never the foam brings the lone back home,
He reaches the haven through tears.

ABRAM J. RYAN

THE AIM OF LIFE

FROM "FFSIUS"

Wε live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;

In feelings, not in figures on a dual We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives.

Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.

And he whose heart beats quickest lives the longest:

Lives in one hour more than in years do some Whose fat blood sleeps as it slips along their veins.

Life is but a means unto an end; that end, Beginning, mean, and end to all things, — God. The dead have all the glory of the world.

PHILIP JAMI 5 BAILEY.

LIFE.

My life is like the summer rose,
That opens to the morning sky,
But, ere the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground — to die!
Yet on the rose's humble bed
The sweetest dews of night are shed,
As if she wept the waste to see, —
But none shall weep a tear for me!

My life is like the autumn leaf
That trembles in the moon's pale ray;
Its hold is frail, — its date is brief,
Restless, and soon to pass away!
Yet, ere that leaf shall fall and fade,
The parent tree will mourn its shade,
The winds bewail the leafless tree, —
But none shall breathe a sigh for me!

My life is like the prints which feet
Have left on Tampa's desert strand;
Soon as the rising tide shall beat,
All trace will vanish from the sand;
Yet, as if grieving to efface
All vestige of the human race,
On that lone shore loud moans the sea,—
But none, alas! shall mourn for me!
RICHARD HERRY WILDE

BY THE SEA.

Upon the lonely shore I lie;
The wind is faint, the tide is low.
Someway there seems a human sigh
In the great waves that inward flow,—

As if all love, and loss, and pain,
That ever swept their shining track,
Had met within the caverned main,
And, rising, moaningly come back.

Upon the lonely shore I lie,
And gaze along its level sands.
Still from the sea steals out the cry
I left afar in crowded lands.

Upon the sea-beach, cool and still,
I press my cheek; and yet I hear
The jar of earth, and catch the thrill
Of human effort, hot and near.

Come, Peace of nature! Lone I lie Within the calm Midsummer noon. All human want I fain would fly, Sing, Summer sea, in silvery croon ! In Noon's great gladness hush thy moan,
In vast possession unbereft;
No music, haunting all thy tone,
Can make me want the world I've left.
MARY CLEMMER.

HOPE.

FROM "THE PLEASURES OF HOPE."*

Unfading Hope! when life's last embers burn, When soul to soul, and dust to dust return! Heaven to thy charge resigns the awful hour! O, then thy kingdom comes! Immortal Power! What though each spark of earth-boin napture fly The quivering lip, pale cheek, and closing eye! Bright to the soul thy seraph hands convey The morning dream of life's eternal day, — Then, then, the triumph and the trance begin, And all the phoenix spirit burns within!

Daughter of Faith, awake, arise, illume The dread unknown, the chaos of the tomb; Melt, and dispel, ye spectre-doubts, that roll Cimmerian darkness o'er the parting soul! Fly, like the moon-eyed herald of Dismay, Chased on his night-steed by the star of day The strife is o'er, — the pangs of Nature close, And life's last rapture triumphs o'er her woes. Hark! as the spirit eyes, with eagle gaze, The noon of Heaven undazzled by the blaze, On heavenly winds that waft her to the sky, Float the sweet tones of star-born melody; Wild as that hallowed anthem sent to hall Bethlehem's shepherds in the lonely vale, When Jordan hushed his waves, and midnight still Watched on the holy towers of Zion hill!

Eternal Hope! when yonder spheres sublime Pealed their first notes to sound the march of Time, Thy joyous youth began, — but not to fade. When all the sister planets have decayed; When wrapt in hre the realms of ether glow, And Heaven's last thunder shakes the world below;

Thou, undismayed, shalt o'er the ruins smile, And light thy torch at Nature's funeral pile.

THOMAS CAMPBELL.

THE VANITY OF THE WORLD.

FALSE world, thou ly'st: thou canst not lend
The least delight:
Thy favors cannot gain a friend,
They are so slight:

 This poem was written when the author was but twenty-one years of ago. Thy morning pleasures make an end To please at night:

Poor are the wants that thou supply'st,
And yet thou vaunt'st, and yet thou vy'st
With heaven: fond earth, thou boasts; false world, thou ly'st.

Thy babbling tongue tells golden tales Of endless treasure;

Thy bounty offers easy sales
Of lasting pleasure;

Thou ask'st the conscience what she ails,

And swear'st to ease her;
There's none can want where thou supply'st;
There's none can give where thou deny'st.

Alas! fond world, thou boasts; false world, thou ly'st.

What well-advised ear regards
What earth can say?
Thy words are gold, but thy rewards
Are painted clay:
Thy cunning can but pack the cards,
Thou canst not play:
Thy game at weakest, still thou vy'st;
If seen, and then revy'd, deny'st:
Thou art not what thou seem'st; false world,

Of new-coined treasure;
A paradise, that has no stint,
No change, no measure;
A painted cask, but nothing in 't,
Nor wealth, nor pleasure:
Vain earth! that falsely thus comply'st
With man; vain man! that thou rely'st
On earth; vain man, thou dot'st; vain earth,
thou ly'st.

thou ly'st.

Thy tinsel bosom seems a mint

What mean dull souls, in this high measure, To haberdash

In earth's base wares, whose greatest treasure Is dross and trash?

The height of whose enchanting pleasure Is but a flash '

Are these the goods that thou supply'st
Us mortals with? Are these the high'st?
Can these bring cordial peace? false world, thou ly'st.

FRANCES QUARLES.

GOOD BY.

Good by, proud world, I'm going home:
Thou art not my friend, and I'm not thine.
Long through thy weary crowds I roam;
A river-ark on the ocean brine,
Long I've been tossed like the driven foam,
But now, proud world, I'm going home.

Good by to Flattery's fawming face;
To Grandeur with his wise grimace;
To upstart Wealth's averted eye;
To supple Office, low and high;
To crowded halls, to court and street;
To frozen hearts and hasting feet;
To those who go, and those who come;
Good by, proud world! I'm going home.

I'm going to my own hearth-stone, Bosomed in you green hills alone, — A secret nook in a pleasant land, Whose groves the frolic fairies planned; Where arches green, the livelong day, Echo the blackbird's roundelay, And vulgar feet have never trod A spot that is sacred to thought and God.

O, when I am safe in my sylvan home,
I tread on the pride of Greece and Rome;
And when I am stretched beneath the pines,
Where the evening star so holy shines,
I laugh at the lore and the pride of man,
At the sophist schools, and the learned clan;
For what are they all, in their high conceit,
When man in the bush with God may meet?

RALPH WALDO FMERSON.

THE NEVERMORE.

LOOK in my face; my name is Might-have-been; I am also called No-more, Too-late, Farewell, Unto thine ear I hold the dead-sea shell Cast up thy Life's foam-fretted feet between; Unto thine eyes the glass where that is seen Which had Life's form and Love's, but by my spell

Is now a shaken shadow intolerable, Of ultimate things unuttered the frail screen.

Mark me, how still I am! But should there dart One moment through my soul the soft surprise Of that winged Peace which lulls the breath of sighs, --

Then shalt thou see me smile, and turn apart
Thy visage to mine ambush at thy heart
Sleepless with cold commemorative eyes.

DANTE GABRIEI ROSSETTE.

THE GENIUS OF DEATH.

What is death? 'T is to be free, No more to love or hope or fear, To join the great equality; All, all alike are humbled there. The mighty grave
Wraps lord and slave;
Nor pride nor poverty dares come
Within that refuge-house, — the tomb.

Spirit with the drooping wing
And the ever-weeping eye,
Thou of all earth's kings art king;
Empires at thy footstool lie;
Beneath thee strewed,
Their multitude
Sink like waves upon the shore;
Storms shall never raise them more.

What's the grandeur of the earth
To the grandeur round thy throne?
Riches, glory, beauty, birth,
To thy kingdom all have gone.
Before thee stand
The wondrous band, —
Bards, heroes, sages, side by side,
Who darkened nations when they died.

Earth has hosts, but thou canst show
Many a million for her one;
Through thy gates the mortal flow
Hath for countless years rolled on Back from the tomb
No step has come,
There fixed till the last thunder's sound
Shall bid thy prisoners be unbound.

George Croly

LINES

RHIEN BY ONE IN THE TOWER, BEING YOUNG AND CONDEMNED TO DIE.

My prime of youth is but a frost of cares;
My feast of joy is but a dish of pain;
My crop of corn is but a field of tares;
And all my good is but vain hope of gain:
The day is [fled], and yet I saw no sun;
And now I live, and now my life is done!

The spring is past, and yet it hath not spring;
The fruit is dead, and yet the leaves are green;
My youth is gone, and yet I am but young;
I saw the world, and yet I was not seen:
My thread is cut, and yet it is not spun;

And now I live, and now my life is done!

I sought my death, and found it in my womb;
I looked for life, and saw it was a shade;
I trod the earth, and knew it was my tomb;
And now I die, and now I am but made:
The glass is full, and now my glass is run;
And now I live, and now my life is done!
CHIDIOCK TYCHBORN.

LINES

FOUND IN HIS BIBLE IN THE GALE-HOUSE AT WESTMINSTER

E'en such is time, that takes in trust
Our youth, our joys, our all we have,
And pays us but with earth and dust;
Who in the dark and silent grave,
When we have wandered all our ways,
Shuts up the story of our days:
But from this earth, this grave, this dust,
My God shall raise me up, I trust.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH.

THE SOUL'S ERRAND.

Go, soul, the body's guest,
Upon a thankless arrant '
Fear not to touch the best,
The truth shall be thy warrant:
Go, since I needs must die,
And give the world the lie.

Go, tell the court it glows
And shines like rotten wood;
Go, tell the church it shows
What's good, and doth no good.
If church and court reply,
Then give them both the lie.

Tell potentates they live
Acting by others' action,
Not loved unless they give,
Not strong but by a faction:
If potentates reply,
Give potentates the lie.

Tell men of high condition
That manage the estate,
Their purpose is ambition,
Their practice only hate:
And if they once reply,
Then give them all the he.

Tell them that brave it most,
They beg for more by spending,
Who, in their greatest cost,
Seck nothing but commending:
And if they make reply,
Then give them all the he.

Tell zeal it wants devotion,
Tell love it is but lust;
Tell time it is but motion;
Tell flesh it is but dust.
And wish them not reply,
For thou must give the lie.

Tell age it daily wasteth;
Tell honor how it alters;
Tell beauty how she blasteth;
Tell favor how it falters:
And as they shall reply,
Give every one the lie.

Tell wit how much it wrangles
In tickle points of niceness;
Tell wisdom she entangles
Herself in over-wiseness:
And when they do reply,
Straight give them both the lie.

Tell physic of her boldness;
Tell skıll it is pretension;
Tell charity of coldness;
Tell law it is contention:
And as they do reply,
So give them still the lie.

Tell fortune of her blindness;
Tell nature of decay;
Tell friendship of unkindness;
Tell justice of delay:
And if they will reply,
Then give them all the he.

Tell arts they have no soundness,
But vary by esteeming;
Tell schools they want profoundness,
And stand too much on seeming:
If arts and schools reply,
Give arts and schools the lie.

Tell faith it's fled the city;
Tell how the country erreth;
Tell, manhood shakes off pity;
Tell, virtue least preferreth:
And if they do reply,
Spare not to give the lie.

So when thou hast, as I Commanded thee, done blabbing, —
Although to give the lie
Deserves no less than stabbing, —
Yet, stab at thee that will,
No stab the soul can kill.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH.

LETTERS.

EVERY day brings a ship,
Every ship brings a word;
Well for those who have no fear,
Looking seaward well assured
That the word the vessel brings
Is the word they wish to hear.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

BRAHMA.

If the red slayer think he slays,
Or if the slain think he is slain,
They know not well the subtle ways
I keep, and pass, and turn again.

Far or forgot to me is near;
Shadow and sunlight are the same;
The vanished gods to me appear;
And one to me are shame and fame.

They reckon ill who leave me out;
When me they fly, I am the wings;
I am the doubter and the doubt,
And I the hymn the Brahmin sings.

The strong gods pine for my abode,
And pine in vain the sacred Seven;
But thou, meek lover of the good!
Find me, and turn thy back on heaven.
RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

BRAHMA'S ANSWER.

Once, when the days were ages,
And the old Earth was young,
The high gods and the sages
From Nature's golden pages
Her open secrets wrung.
Each questioned each to know
Whence came the Heavens above, and whence the Earth below.

Indra, the endless giver
Of every gracious thing
The gods to him deliver,
Whose bounty is the river
Of which they are the spring —
Indra, with anxious heart,
Ventures with Vivochunu where Brahma is a part.

"Brahma! Supremest Being!
By whom the worlds are made,
Where we are blind, all-seeing,
Stable, where we are fleeing,
Of Life and Death afraid,
Instruct us, for mankind,

What is the body, Brahma? O Brahma! what the mind?"

Hearing as though he heard not
So perfect was his rest,
So vast the soul that erred not,
So wise the lips that stirred not —
His hand upon his breast
He laid, whereat his face
Was mirrored in the river that girt that holy place.

They questioned each the other
What Brahma's answer meant.
Said Vivochunu, "Brother,
Through Brahma the great Mother
Hath spoken her intent:
Man ends as he began, —
The shadow on the water is all there is of man!"

"The earth with woe is cumbered,
And no man understands;
They see their days are numbered
By one that never slumbered
Nor stayed his dreadful hands.
I see with Brahma's eyes —
The body is the shadow that on the water lies:"

Thus Indra, looking deeper,
With Brahma's self possessed.
So dry thine eyes, thou weeper!
And rise again, thou sleeper!
The hand on Brahma's breast
Is his divine assent,
Covering the soul that dies not. This is what Brahma meant.

RICHARD HENRY STODDARD.

RETRIBUTION.

"Οψὶ θεῶν ἀλέουσι μύλοι, ἀλέουσι δὶ λεπτά. ("The mills of the gods grind late, but they grind fine.") GREEK POET.

THOUGH the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small;

Though with patience he stands waiting, with exactness grinds he all.

From the German of F. Von Logau. Translation of H W Longfellow.

TIME.

FROM 'NIGHT THOUGHTS." NIGHT 1.

The bell strikes one we take no note of time, But from its loss. To give it, then, a tongue, Is wise in man. As if an angel spoke, I feel the solemn sound. If heard aright, It is the knell of my departed hours: Where are they? With the years beyond the flood. It is the signal that demands despatch; How much is to be done! my hopes and fears Start up alarmed, and o'er life's narrow verge Look down—on what? a fathomless abyss; A dread eternity; how surely mine! And can eternity belong to me, Poor pensioner on the bounties of an hour?

Time the supreme! — Time is eternity; Pregnant with all eternity can give; Pregnant with all that makes archangels smile. Who murders time, he crushes in the birth A power ethereal, only not adored.

Ah! how unjust to Nature and himself,
Is thoughtless, thankless, inconsistent man!
Like children babbling nonsense in their sports,
We censure Nature for a span too short:
That span too short, we tax as tedious too;
Torture invention, all expedients tire,
To lash the lingering moments into speed,
And whirl us (happy riddance!) from ourselves.
Art, brainless Art! our furious charioteer (For Nature's voice, unstifled, would recall),
Drives headlong towards the precipice of death!
Death, most our dread; death, thus more dreadful made:

O, what a riddle of absurdity! Leisure is pain; takes off our chariot wheels: How heavily we drag the load of life ! Blest leisure is our curse : like that of Cain. It makes us wander; wander earth around To fly that tyrant, Thought. As Atlas groaned The world beneath, we groan beneath an hour. We cry for mercy to the next amusement : The next amusement mortgages our fields; Slight inconvenience! prisons hardly frown, From hateful Time if prisons set us free. Yet when Death kindly tenders us relief, We call him cruel; years to moments shrink, Ages to years. The telescope is turned. To man's false optics (from his folly false) Time, in advance, behind him hides his wings, And seems to creep, decrepit with his age, Behold him when past by; what then is seen But his broad pinions, swifter than the winds? And all mankind, in contradiction strong, Rueful, aghast, cry out on his career.

Ye well arrayed! ye lilies of our land! Ye lilies male! who neither toil nor spin (As sister-lilies might) if not so wise As Solomon, more sumptuous to the sight! Ye delicate! who nothing can support, Yourselves most insupportable! for whom The winter rose must blow, the sun put on A brighter beam in Leo; silky-soft Favonius, breathe still softer, or be chid; And other worlds send odors, sauce, and song, And robes, and notions, framed in foreign looms! O ye Lorenzos of our age ! who deem One moment unamused a misery Not made for feeble man! who call aloud For every bawble drivelled o'er by sense; For rattles, and conceits of every cast, For change of follies and relays of joy,

To drag you patient through the tedious length Of a short winter's day, — say, sages! say, Wit's oracles! say, dreamers of gay dreams! How will you weather an eternal night, Where such expedients fail?

DR. EDWARD YOUNG.

PROCRASTINATION.

FROM "NIGHT THOUGHTS," NIGHT I.

BE wise to-day; 't is madness to defer; Next day the fatal precedent will plead; Thus on, till wisdom is pushed out of life. Procrastination is the thief of time; Year after year it steals, till all are fled, And to the mercies of a moment leaves The vast concerns of an eternal scene. If not so frequent, would not this be strange? That 't is so frequent, this is stranger still.

Of man's miraculous mistakes this bears The palm, "That all men are about to live," Forever on the brink of being born. All pay themselves the compliment to think They one day shall not drivel: and then pride On this reversion takes up ready praise, At least, their own ; their future selves applaud : How excellent that life they ne'er will lead ! Time lodged in their own hands is folly's veils; That lodged in Fate's, to wisdom they consign; The thing they can't but purpose, they postpone. "I is not in folly not to scorn a fool, And scarce in human wisdom to do more. All promise is poor dilatory man, And that through every stage. When young, indeed,

In full content we sometimes nobly rest,
Unanxious for ourselves, and only wish,
As duteous sons, our fathers were more wise.
At thirty, man suspects himself a fool:
Knows it at forty, and reforms his plan;
At fifty, chides his infamous delay,
Pushes his prudent purpose to resolve;
In all the magnanimity of thought,
Resolves, and re-resolves; then dies the same.

And why? Because he thinks himself immortal.

All men think all men mortal but themselves;

Themselves, when some alarming shock of fate

Strikes through their wounded hearts the sudden dread;

But their hearts wounded, like the wounded air, Soon close; where passed the shaft, no trace is found.

As from the wing no scar the sky retains,
The parted wave no furrow from the keel,
So dies in human hearts the thought of death:
Even with the tender tears which Nature sheds
O'er those we love, we drop it in their grave.

DR. EDWARD YOUNG.

WHAT IS TIME?

I ASKED an aged man, with hoary hairs. Wrinkled and curved with worldly cares: "Time is the warp of life," said he; "O, tell The young, the fair, the gay, to weave it well!' I asked the ancient, venerable dead, Sages who wrote, and warriors who bled : From the cold grave a hollow murmur flowed, "Time sowed the seed we reap in this abode!" I asked a dying sinner, ere the ide Of life had left his veins: "Time!" he replied; "I've lost it! ah, the treasure!" and he died. I asked the golden sun and silver spheres, Those bright chronometers of days and years: They answered, "Time is but a meteor glare," And bade me for eternity prepare. I asked the Seasons, in their annual round, Which beautify or desolate the ground; And they replied (no oracle more wise). "'Tis Folly's blank, and Wisdom's highest prize!"

I asked a spirit lost, - but O the shriek That pierced my soul! I shudder while I speak It cried, "A particle | a speck | a mite Of endless years, duration infinite!" Of things manimate my dial I Consulted, and it made me this reply, — "Time is the season fair of living well, The path of glory or the path of hell." I asked my Bible, and methinks it said, "Time is the present hour, the past has fled; Lave! live to-day! to-morrow never vet On any human being rose or set." I asked old Father Time himself at last; But in a moment he flew swiftly past: His chariot was a cloud, the viewless wind His noiseless steeds, which left no trace behind. I asked the mighty angel who shall stand One foot on sea and one on solid land: "Mortal!" he cried, "the mystery now is o'er: Time was, Time is, but Time shall be no more!" WHITIAM MARSDEN.

THE JESTER'S SERMON.

THE Jester shook his hood and bells, and leaped upon a chair;

The pages laughed, the women screamed, and tossed their scented hair;

The falcon whistled, staghounds bayed, the lapdog barked without,

The scullion dropped the pitcher brown, the cook railed at the lout;

The steward, counting out his gold, let pouch and money fall, —

And why? because the Jester rose to say grace in the hall!

The page played with the heron's plume, the Then loud they laughed; the fat cook's tears ran steward with his chain:

The butler drummed upon the board, and laughed with might and main;

The grooms beat on their metal cans, and roared till they were red, ---

But still the Jester shut his eyes and rolled his witty head,

And when they grew a little still, read half a vard of text.

And, waving hand, struck on the desk, then frowned like one perplexed.

"Dear sunners all," the fool began, "man's life is but a jest.

A dream, a shadow, bubble, air, a vapor at the

In a thousand pounds of law I find not a single ounce of love;

A blind man killed the parson's cow in shooting at the dove :

The fool that eats till he is sick must fast till he is well:

The wooer who can flatter most will bear away the belle.

"Let no man halloo he is safe till he is through the wood,

He who will not when he may, must tarry when he should.

He who laughs at crooked men should need walk very straight;

(), he who once has won a name may he abed till eight;

Make haste to purchase house and land, be very slow to wed;

True coral needs no painter's brush, nor need be daubed with red.

"The fuar, preaching, cursed the thief (the pudding in his sleeve);

To fish for sprats with golden hooks is foolish, by your leave,

To travel well, - an ass's ears, hog's mouth, and ostrich legs,

He does not care a pin for thieves who limps about and begs :

Be always first man at a feast and last man at a

The short way round, in spite of all, is still the longest way;

When the hungry curate licks the knife, there's not much for the clerk;

When the pilot, turning pale and sick, looks up - the storm grows dark."

down into the pan;

The steward shook, that he was forced to drop the brimming can;

And then again the women screamed, and every staghound bayed, -

And why? because the motley fool so wise a sermon made.

GEORGE WALLER THORNBURY.

ON AN INTAGLIO HEAD OF MINERVA.

THE cunning hand that carved this face, A little helmeted Minerva, -The hand, I say, ere Phidias wrought, Had lost its subtile skill and fervor.

Who was he? Was he glad or sad, Who knew to carve in such a fashion? Perchance he shaped this dainty head For some brown girl that scorned his passion

But he is dust . we may not know His happy or unhappy story. Nameless, and dead these thousand years. His work outlives him, - there's his glory!

Both man and jewel lay in earth Beneath a lava-buried city; The thousand summers came and went, With neither haste nor hate nor pity.

The years wiped out the man, but left The jewel fresh as any blossom, Till some Visconti dug it up, -To rise and fall on Mabel's bosom!

O Roman brother ' see how Time Your gracious handswork has guarded, See how your loving, patient art Has come, at last, to be rewarded!

Who would not suffer slights of men, And pange of hopeless passion also, To have his carven agate-stone

On such a bosom rise and fall so ! THOMAS BALLEY ALDRICH

ON A FAN

THAT BELONGED TO THE MARQUISE DE POMF "OUR.

(BALLADE)

CHICKEN-SKIN, delicate, white, Painted by Carlo Vanloo, Loves in a riot of light,

Roses and vaporous blue;
Hark to the dainty frou-frou!
Picture above, if you can,
Eyes that could melt as the dew, —
This was the Pompadour's fan!

See how they rise at the sight,
Thronging the Œil de Bœuf through,
Courtiers as butterflies bright,
Beauties that Fragonard drew,
Talon-rouge, falaba, queue,
Cardinal, duke, — to a man,
Eager to sigh or to sue, —
This was the Pompadour's fan!

Ah, but things more than polite
Hung on this toy, royez-vous'
Matters of state and of might,
Things that great ministers do,
Things that, maybe, overthrew
Those in whose brains they began;—
Here was the sign and the cue,—
This was the Pompadour's fan!

ENVOY.

Where are the secrets it knew?

Weavings of plot and of plan?

— But where is the Pompadour, too?

This was the Pompadour's fan!

AUSTIN DOBSON

THE FLOOD OF YEARS

A MIGHTY Hand, from an exhaustless urn, Pours forth the never-ending Flood of Years Among the nations. How the rushing waves Bear all before them ! On their foremost edge, And there alone, is Life; the Present there Tosses and foams and fills the air with roar Of mingled noises. There are they who toil, And they who strive, and they who feast, and they Who hurry to and fro. The sturdy hind -Woodman and delver with the spade-are there, And busy artisan beside his bench, And palled student with his written roll. A moment on the mounting billow seen -The flood sweeps over them and they are gone There groups of revellers, whose brows are twined With roses, ride the topmost swell awhile, And as they raise their flowing cups to touch The clinking brim to brim, are whirled beneath The waves and disappear. I hear the jar Of beaten drums, and thunders that break forth From cannon, where the advancing billow sends Up to the sight long files of armed men, That hurry to the charge through flame and smoke. The torrent bears them under, whelmed and hid,

Slaver and slain, in heaps of bloody foam. Down go the steed and rider; the plumed chief Sinks with his followers; the head that wears The imperial diadem goes down beside The felon's with cropped ear and branded cheek. A funeral train - the torrent sweeps away Bearers and bier and mourners. By the bed Of one who dies men gather sorrowing, And women weep aloud; the flood rolls on; The wail is stifled, and the sobbing group Borne under. Hark to that shrill sudden shout-The cry of an applauding multitude Swayed by some loud-tongued orator who wields The living mass, as if he were its soul. The waters choke the shout and all is still Lo, next, a kneeling crowd and one who spreads The hands in prayer; the engulfing wave o'ertakes

And swallows them and him. A sculptor wields The chisel, and the stricken marble grows
To beauty; at his easel, eager-eyed,
A painter stands, and sunshine, at his touch,
Gathers upon the canvas, and life glows;
A poet, as he paces to and fro,
Murnurs his sounding line. Awhile they ride
The advancing billow, till its tossing crest
Strikes them and flings them under while them

Are yet unfinished See a mother smile
On her young babe that smiles to her again —
The torrent wrests it from her arms; she shrieks,
And weeps, and midst her tears is carried down.
A beam like that of moonlight turns the spray
To glistening pearls; two lovers, hand in hand,
Rise on the billowy swell and fondly look
Into each other's eyes The rushing flood Flings them apart; the youth goes down; the maid,

With hands outstretched in vain and streaming eves,

Waits for the next high wave to follow him. An aged man succeeds; his bending form Sinks slowly; mingling with the sullen stream Gleam the white locks and then are seen no more.

Lo, wider grows the stream, a sea-like flood Saps earth's walled cities; mussive palaces Crumble before it; fortresses and towers Dissolve in the swift waters; populous realms, Swept by the torrent, see their ancient tribes Engulfed and lost, their very languages Stifled and never to be uttered more.

I pause and turn my eyes, and, looking back, Where that tunnultuous flood has passed, I see The silent Ocean of the Past, a waste Of waters weltering over graves, its shores Strewn with the wreck of fleets, where mast and hull Drop away piecemeal; battlemented walls
Frown idly, green with moss, and temples stand
Unroofed, forsaken by the worshippers.
There lie memorial stones, whence time has gnawed

The graven legends, thrones of kings o'erturned, The broken altars of forgotten gods. Foundations of old cities and long streets Where never fall of human foot is heard Upon the desolate pavement. I behold Dim glimmerings of lost jewels far within The sleeping waters, diamond, sardonyx, Ruby and topaz, pearl and chrysolite, Once glittering at the banquet on fair brows That long ago were dust; and all around, Strewn on the waters of that silent sea, Are withering bridal wreaths, and glossy locks Shorn from fair brows by loving hands, and scrolls O'erwritten — haply with fond words of love And vows of friendship - and fair pages flung Fresh from the printer's engine. There they lie A moment and then sink away from sight

I look, and the quick tears are in my eyes,
For I behold, in every one of these,
A blighted hope, a separate history
Of human sorrow, telling of dear ties
Suddenly broken, dreams of happiness
Dissolved in air, and happy days, too brief,
That sorrowfully ended, and I think
How painfully must the poor heart have beat
In bosoms without number, as the blow
Was struck that slew their hope or broke their

Sadly I turn, and look before, where yet The Flood must pass, and I behold a mist Where swarm dissolving forms, the brood of Hope, Divinely fair, that rest on banks of flowers Or wander among rainbows, fading soon And reappearing, haply giving place To shapes of gristy aspect, such as Fear Moulds from the idle air; where serpents lift The head to strike, and skeletons stretch forth The bony arth in menace. Further on A belt of darkness seems to bar the way, Long, low and distant, where the Life that Is Touches the Life to come. The Flood of Years Rolls toward it, nearer and nearer. It must pass That dismal barrier. What is there beyond? Hear what the wise and good have said. Beyond That belt of darkness still the years roll on More gently, but with not less mighty sweep. They gather up again and softly bear All the sweet lives that late were overwhelmed And lost to sight - all that in them was good. Noble, and truly great and worthy of love -The lives of infants and ingenuous youths, Sages and saintly women who have made Their households happy — all are raised and borne By that great current on its onward sweep, Wandering and rippling with caressing waves Around green islands, fragrant with the breath Of flowers that never wither. So they pass, From stage to stage, along the shining course Of that fair river broadening like a sea.

As its smooth eddies curl along their way, They bring old friends together; hands are clasped

In joy unspeakable; the mother's arms
Again are folded round the child she loved
And lost. Old sorrows are forgotten now,
Or but remembered to make sweet the hour
That overpays them; wounded hearts that bled
Or broke are healed forever. In the room
Of this grief-shadowed Present there shall be
A Present in whose reign no grief shall gnaw
The heart, and never shall a tender tie
Be broken — in whose reign the eternal Chenge
That waits on growth and action shall proceed
With everlasting Concord hand in hand.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

THREE DAYS.

So much to do: so little done!

Ah! yesternight I saw the sun
Sink beamless down the vaulted gray,—
The ghastly ghost of YESTERDAY.

So little done · so much to do ! Each morning breaks on conflicts new; But eager, brave, I 'll join the fray, And fight the battle of To-DAY.

So much to do: so little done!
But when it's o'er, — the victory won, —
Oh! then, my soul, this strife and sorrow
Will end in that great, glad To-MORROW.

JAMLS R. GILMORE

INSIGNIFICANT EXISTENCE.

THERE are a number of us creep
Into this world, to eat and sleep,
And know no reason why we're born,
But only to consume the corn,
Devour the cattle, fowl, and fish,
And leave behind an empty dish.
The crows and ravens do the same,
Unlucky birds of hateful name;
Ravens or crows might fill their places,
And swallow corn and carcasses,

Then if their tombstone, when they die, Ben't taught to flatter and to lie, There's nothing better will be said Than that "they've eat up all their bread, Drunk up their drink, and gone to bed."

ISAAC WATTS

NEW YEAR'S EVE.

FROM "IN MEMORIAM."

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky, The flying cloud, the frosty light; The year is dying in the night; Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new; Ring, happy bells, across the snow; The year is going, let him go; Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind, For those that here we see no more; Ring out the feud of rich and poor, Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out a slowly dying cause And ancient forms of party strife; Ring in the nobler modes of life, With sweeter manners, purer laws.

Ring out false pride in place and blood, The civic slander and the spite; Ring in the love of truth and right, Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease, Ring out the narrowing lust of gold; Ring out the thousand wars of old, Ring in the thousand years of peace.

Ring in the valiant man and free, The larger heart, the kindlier hand; Ring out the darkness of the land, Ring in the Christ that is to be.

ALCRED TENNYSON

THE CLOSING YEAR.

'T is midnight's holy hour, - and silence now Is brooding like a gentle spirit o'er The still and pulseless world. Hark! on the winds

The bell's deep tones are swelling, -'t is the knell

Of the departed year. No funeral train Is sweeping past; yet, on the stream and wood, With melancholy light, the moonbeams rest

Like a pale, spotless shroud; the air is stirred As by a mourner's sigh; and on you cloud That floats so still and placidly through heaven, The spirits of the seasons seem to stand, — Young Spring, bright Summer, Autumn's solemn form,

And Winter with its aged locks, -and breathe, In mournful cadences that come abroad Like the far wind-harp's wild and touching wail, A melancholy darge o'er the dead year, Gone from the earth forever.

'T is a time For memory and for tears Within the deep, Still chambers of the heart, a spectre dim, Whose tones are like the wizard's voice of Time-Heard from the tomb of ages, points its cold And solemn finger to the beautiful And holy visions that have passed away, And left no shadow of their leveliness On the dead waste of life. That spectre lifts The coffin-lid of Hope and Joy and Love, And bending mournfully above the pale, Sweet forms that slumber there, scatters dead flowers

The year Has gone, and with it, many a glorious throng Of happy dreams. Its mark is on each brow, Its shadow in each heart. In its swift course It waved its sceptre o'er the beautiful, And they are not. It laid its pallid hand Upon the strong man, and the haughty form Is fallen, and the flashing eye is dim. It trod the hall of revelry, where thronged The bright and joyous, and the tearful wail Of stricken ones is heard where crst the song

O'er what has passed to nothingness.

And reckless shout resounded. It passed o'er The battle-plain where sword and spear and Flashed in the light of midday, and the strength Of serried hosts is shivered, and the grass, Green from the soil of carnage, waves above The crushed and mouldering skeleton. It came, And faded like a wreath of mist at eve; Yet ere it melted in the viewless air It heralded its millions to their home In the dim land of dreams.

Remorseless Time! Fierce spirit of the glass and scythe! - what power Can stay him in his silent course, or melt His iron heart to pity? On, still on, He presses, and forever. The proud bird, The condor of the Andes, that can soar

Through heaven's unfathomable depths, or brave
The fury of the northern hurricane,
And bathe his plumage in the thunder's home,
Furls his broad wings at nightfall, and sinks
down

To rest upon his mountain crag, — but Time Knows not the weight of sleep or weariness, And night's deep darkness has no chain to bind His rushing pinions.

Revolutions sweep
O'er earth, like troubled visions o'er the breast
Of dreaming sorrow; cities rise and sink
Like bubbles on the water; fiery isles
Spring blazing from the ocean, and go back
To their mysterious caverns; mountains rear
To heaven their bald and blackened cliffs, and bow

Their tall heads to the plain; new empires rise, Gathering the strength of hoary centuries, And rush down like the Alpine avalanche, Startling the nations; and the very stars, Yon bright and burning blazonry of God, Ghtter awhile in their eternal depths, And, like the Pleiads, loveliest of their train, Shoot from their glorious spheres, and pass away To darkle in the trackless void, — yet Time, Time the tomb-builder, holds his fierce career, Dark, stern, all-pitless, and pauses not Amid the mighty wrecks that strew his path To sit and muse, like other conquerors, Upon the fearful ruin he has wrought.

GEORGE DENISON PRENTICE.

THE DEATH OF THE OLD YEAR.

Full knee-deep lies the winter snow,
And the winter winds are wearily sighing:
Toll ye the church-bell sad and slow,
And tread softly and speak low,
For the old year lies a-dying.

Old year, you must not die; You came to us so readily, You lived with us so steadily, Old year, you shall not die.

He lieth still: he doth not move:
He will not see the dawn of day.
He hath no other life above.
He gave me a friend, and a true true-love,
And the New-year will take 'em away.

Old year, you must not go; So long as you have been with us, Such joy as you have seen with us, Old year, you shall not go. He frothed his bumpers to the brim; A jollier year we shall not see. But, though his eyes are waxing dim, And though his foes speak ill of him, He was a friend to me.

Old year, you shall not die; We did so laugh and cry with you, I've half a mind to die with you, Old year, if you must die.

He was full of joke and jest,
But all his merry quips are o'er.
To see him die, across the waste
His son and heir doth ride post-haste,
But he'll be dead before.

Every one for his own.

The night is starry and cold, my friend,
And the New-year, blithe and bold, my friend,
Comes up to take his own.

How hard he breathes! over the snow
I heard just now the crowing cock.
The shadows flicker to and fro:
The cricket chirps. the light burns low:
'T is nearly twelve o'clock.
Shake hands before you die.
Old year, we'll dearly rue for you:
What is it we can do for you?
Speak out before you die.

His face is growing sharp and thin. Alack! our friend is gone. Close up his eyes: tie up his chin: Step from the corpse, and let him in That standeth there alone.

And waiteth at the door.

There's a new foot on the floor, my friend,
And a new face at the door, my friend,
A new face at the door.

ALFRED TENNYSON.

THE APPROACH OF AGE.

SONNET AIL

When I do count the clock that tells the time, And see the brave day sunk in hideous night; When I behold the violet past prime, And sable curls all silvered o'er with white; When lofty trees I see barren of leaves, Which erst from heat did canopy the herd, And summer's green all girded up in sheaves, Borne on the bier with white and bristly beard; Then of thy beauty do I question make, That thou among the wastes of time must go, Since sweets and beauties do themselves forsake

And die as fast as they see others grow;
And nothing 'gainst Time's scythe can make defence,

Save breed, to brave him when he takes thee hence.

SHAKESPEARE.

TO THE VIRGINS.

GATHER ye rosebuds while ye may, Old Time is still a flying; And this same flower that smiles to-day To-morrow will be dying.

The glorious lamp of Heaven, the sun,
The higher he's a getting,
The sooner will his race be run,
And nearer he's to setting.

The age is best which is the first,
When youth and blood are warmer;
But being spent, the worse and worst
Times still succeed the former.

Then be not coy, but use your time, And, while ye may, go marry; For having lost but once your prime, You may forever tarry.

ROBERT HERRICK.

TO-MORROW.

FROM "IRENE."

To-morrow's action! can that hoary wisdom, Borne down with years, still doat upon to-morrow! The fatal mistress of the young, the lazy, The coward and the fool, condemned to lose An useless life in waiting for to-morrow, To gaze with longing eyes upon to-morrow, Till interposing death destroys the prospect. Strange that this general fraud from day to day Should fill the world with wretches, undetected! The soldier, laboring through a winter's march, Still sees to-morrow drest in 10bes of triumph; Still to the lover's long-expecting arms
To-morrow brings the visionary bride.
But thou, too old to bear another cheat, Learn that the present hour alone is man's.

SAMULL JOHNSON.

GOING AND COMING.

GOING — the great round Sun, Dragging the captive Day Over behind the frowning hill, Over beyond the bay, — Dying:

Coming — the dusky Night, Silently stealing in,

Wrapping himself in the soft warm couch Where the golden-haired Day hath been lying.

Going — the bright, blithe Spring; Blossoms! how fast ye fall, Shooting out of your starry sky Into the darkness all Blindly! Coming — the inellow days:

Crimson and yellow leaves; Languishing purple and amber fruits Kissing the bearded sheaves

Kindly !

Going — our early friends;
Voices we loved are dumb;
Footsteps grow dim in the morning dew;
Fainter the echoes come

Ringing:
Coming to join our march, —
Shoulder to shoulder pressed, —
Gray-haired veterans strike their tents
For the far-off purple West — Singing!

Going — this old, old life;

Beautiful world, farewell!

Forest and meadow! river and hill!

Ring ye a loving knell

O'er us '
Coming — a nobler life ,
Coming — a better land ;

Coming — a long, long, nightless day; Coming — the grand, grand

Chorus!

LOWARD A. JENKS

THE FOOLISH VIRGINS.

FROM "IDYLS OF THE KING."

THE Queen looked up, and said,
"O maiden, if indeed you list to sing,
Sing, and unbind my heart, that I may weep."
Whereat full willingly sang the little maid:

"Late, late, so late! and dark the night and chill!

Late, late, so late! but we can enter still. Too late, too late! Ye cannot enter now.

"No light had we: for that we do repent; And learning this, the bridegroom will relent Too late, too late! Ye cannot enter now. "No light; so late! and dark and chill the night!

O, let us in, that we may find the light! Too late, too late! Ye cannot enter now.

"Have we not heard the bridegroom is so sweet?
O, let us in, though late, to kiss his feet!
No, no, too late! Ye cannot enter now."

So sang the novice, while full passionately, Her head upon her hands, wept the sad Queen.

OLD AGE AND DEATH.

FROM "VERSES UPON HIS DIVINE POESY"

THE seas are quiet when the winds give o'er; So calm are we when passions are no more. For then we know how vain it was to boast Of fleeting things, too certain to be lost. Clouds of affection from our younger eyes Conceal that emptiness which age descries.

The soul's dark cottage, battered and decayed, Lets in new light through chinks that time has made.

Stronger by weakness, wiser men become, As they draw near to their eternal home. Leaving the old, both worlds at once they view, That stand upon the threshold of the new.

I DMUND WAILER.

THE ONE GRAY HAIR.

The wisest of the wise
Listen to pretty hes,
And love to hear them told;
Doubt not that Solomon
Listened to many a one, --Some in his youth, and more when he grew old.

I never sat among

The choir of Wisdom's song,

But pretty lies loved I

As much as any king, —

When youth was on the wing,

And (must it then be told?) when youth had quite gone by.

Alas! and I have not
The pleasant hour forgot,
When one pert lady said,—
"O Landor! I am quite Bewildered with affright;
I see (sit quiet now!) a white hair on your head!"

Another, more benign,
Drew out that hair of mine,
And in her own dark hair
Pretended she had found
That one, and twirled it round. —

Fair as she was, she never was so fair.

WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR.

GROWING GRAY.

"On a lage de son cœur," — A D'HOUDETOT

A LITTLE more toward the light.

Me miserum. Here's one that's white,
And one that's turning;
Adieu to song and "salad days."

My Muse, let's go at once to Jay's
And order mourning.

We must reform our rhymes, my dear, Renounce the gay for the severe, —

Be grave, not witty;

We have no more the right to find
That Pyrrha's hair is neatly twined,

That Chloe's pretty.

Young Love's for us a farce that's played; Light canzonet and serenade

No more may tempt us; Gray hairs but ill accord with dreams; From aught but sour didactic themes Our years exempt us.

"A la bonne heure!" You fancy so? You think for one white streak we grow At once satirie?

A fiddlestick! Each hair's a string
To which our graybeard Muse shall sing
A younger lyric.

Our heart's still sound. Shall "cakes and ale"
Grow rare to youth because we rail
At school-boy dishes"
Perish the thought! "T is ours to sing,
Though neither Time nor Tide can bring Belief with wishes

AUSTIN DOBSON.

TOO LATE.

"Ah! si la jeunesse savait — si la vieillesse pouvait!"

THERE sat an old man on a rock,
And unceasing bewailed him of Fate,—
That concern where we all must take stock,
Though our vote has no hearing or weight;
And the old man sang him an old, old song,—
Never sang voice so clear and strong
That it could drown the old man's long,
For he sang the song "Too late! too late!"

"When we want, we have for our pains The promise that if we but wait

Till the want has burned out of our brains, Every means shall be present to sate:

While we send for the napkin the soup gets

While the bonnet is trimming the face grows

When we've matched our buttons the pattern is sold,

And everything comes too late — too late !

"When strawberries seemed like red heavens, Terrapin stew a wild dream.

When my brain was at sixes and sevens, If my mother had 'folks' and ice-cream, Then I gazed with a lickerish hunger At the restaurant man and fruit-monger But O, how I wished I were younger When the goodies all came in a stream in a stream !

"I've a splendid blood-horse, and — a liver That it jars into torture to trot: My row-boat's the gem of the river, -Gout makes every knuckle a knot!

I can buy boundless credits on Paris and Rome,

But no palate for menus, no eyes for a dome-Those belonged to the youth who must tarry

When no home but an attic he'd got he'd got '

"How I longed, in that lonest of garrets, Where the tiles baked my brains all July, For ground to grow two pecks of carrots, Two pigs of my own in a sty,

A rosebush — a little thatched cottage -Two spoons -- love -- a basin of pottage ! -Now in freestone I sit — and my dotage — With a woman's chair empty close byclose by !

"Ah! now, though I sit on a rock. I have shared one seat with the great; I have sat - knowing naught of the clock -On love's high throne of state;

But the lips that kissed, and the arms that caressed.

To a mouth grown stern with delay were pressed,

And circled a breast that their clasp had

Had they only not come too late - too late!"

FITZ HUGH LUDLOW.

THE THREE WARNINGS.

THE tree of deepest root is found Least willing still to quit the ground; 'T was therefore said by ancient sages, That love of life increased with years So much, that in our latter stages, When pains grow sharp and sickness rages, The greatest love of life appears. This great affection to believe, Which all confess, but few perceive, If old assertions can't prevail, Be pleased to hear a modern tale.

When sports went round, and all were gay, On neighbor Dodson's wedding-day, Death called aside the jocund groom With him into another room, And, looking grave, "You must," says he, "Quit your sweet bride, and come with me." "With you ' and quit my Susan's side? With you!" the hapless husband cried; "Young as I am, 't is monstrous hard ! Besides, in truth, I'm not prepared: My thoughts on other matters go; This is my wedding-day, you know."

What more he urged I have not heard, His reasons could not well be stronger; So Death the poor delinquent spared, And left to live a little longer. Yet calling up a serious look, His hour-glass trembled while he spoke -"Neighbor," he said, "farewell! no more Shall Death disturb your mirthful hour; And further, to avoid all blame Of cruelty upon my name, To give you time for preparation, And fit you for your future station, Three several warnings you shall have, Before you're summoned to the grave; Willing for once I'll quit my prev, And grant a kind reprieve, In hopes you'll have no more to say,

But when I call again this way, Well pleased the world will leave." To these conditions both consented, And parted perfectly contented.

What next the hero of our tale befell, How long he lived, how wise, how well, How roundly he pursued his course, And smoked his pipe, and stroked his horse,

The willing muse shall tell : He chaffered then, he bought and sold, Nor once perceived his growing old, Nor thought of Death as near:

His friends not false, his wife no shrew,
Many his gains, his children few,
He passed his hours in peace.
But while he viewed his wealth increase,
While thus along life's dusty road
The beaten track content he trod,
Old Time, whose haste no mortal spares,
Uncalled, unheeded, unawares,
Brought on his eightieth year.
And now, one night, in musing mood,
As all alone he sate,
The unwelcome messenger of Fate
Once more before him stood.

Half killed with anger and surprise,
"So soon returned!" Old Dodson cries.
"So soon, d'ye call it!" Death replies;
"Surely, my friend, you're but in jest!
Since I was here before
"Tis six-and-thirty years at least,
And you are now fourscore."

"So much the worse," the clown rejoined;
"To spare the aged would be kind."
However, see your search be legal.
And your authority, — 1s't regal?
Else you are come on a fool's errand,
With but a secretary's warrant.
Beside, you promised me three warnings,
Which I have looked for nights and mornings;
But for that loss of time and case
I can recover damages."

"I know," cross Death, "that at the best I seldom am a welcome guest; But don't be captious, friend, at least: I little thought you'd still be able To stump about your farm and stable. Your years have run to a great length; I wish you joy, though, of your strength!"

"Hold," says the farmer, "not so fast! I have been lame these four years past"

"And no great wonder," Death replies "However, you still keep your eyes; And sure, to see one's loves and friends For legs and arms would make amends"

"Perhaps," says Dodson, "so it might, But latterly I 've lost my sight."

"This is a shocking tale, 't is true; But still there's comfort left for you: Each strives your sadness to amuse; I warrant you hear all the news."

"There's none," cries he; "and if there were, I'm grown so deaf, I could not hear."

"Nay, then," the spectre stern rejoined,
"These are unjustifiable yearnings:
If you are lame and deaf and blind,

You've had your three sufficient warnings; So come along, no more we'll part."
He said, and touched him with his dart.
And now, Old Dodson, turning pale,
Yields to his fate, — so ends my tale.

HISTER LYNCH THRALE

WITHOUT AND WITHIN.

IF every man's internal care
Were written on his brow,
How many would our pity share
Who raise our envy now?

The fatal secret, when revealed,
Of every aching breast,
Would prove that only while concealed
Their lot appeared the best.

ODE.

INTIMATIONS OF IMMORIALITY FROM RECOLLECTIONS OF

THERE was a time when meadow, grove, and stream,

The carth, and every common sight,

To me did seem

Apparelled in celestial light, — The glory and the freshness of a dream.

It is not now as it hath been of yore:

Turn wheresoe'er I may, By night or day,

The things which I have seen I now can see no more.

The nainbow comes and goes,
And lovely is the rose;
The moon doth with delight

Look round her when the heavens are bare; Waters on a starry night Are beautiful and fair;

The sunshine is a glorious birth;
But yet I know, where'er I go,
hat there hath passed away a glory fro

That there both pussed away a glory from the earth.

Now, while the birds thus sing a joyous song, And while the young lambs bound

As to the tabor's sound, To me alone there came a thought of grief;

A timely utterance gave that thought relief, And I again am strong.

The cataracts blow their trumpets from the steep, —

No more shall greef of mine the season wrong. I hear the echoes through the mountains throng; The winds come to me from the fields of sleep. And all the earth is gay;
Land and sea
Give themselves up to jollity;
And with the heart of May
Doth every beast keep holiday;
Thou child of joy,
thout round me, let me hear thy shouts

Shout round me, let me hear thy shouts, thou happy shepherd boy!

Ye blessed creatures! I have heard the call Ye to each other make; I see
The heavens laugh with you in your jubilee;
My heart is at your festival,
My head hath its coronal,—
The fulness of your bliss, I feel, I feel it all.
O evil day! if I were sullen
While Earth herself is adorning,
This sweet May morning,
And the children are culling,
On every side,

In a thousand valleys far and wide,
Fresh flowers; while the sun shines warm,
And the babe leaps up on his mother's arm;
I hear, I hear, with joy 1 hear!

But there 's a tree, of many, one,
A single field which I have looked upon, —
Both of them speak of something that is gone;

The pansy at my feet
Doth the same tale repeat.
Whither is fled the visionary gleam?
Where is it now, the glory and the dream

Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting; The soul that rises with us, our life's star, Hath had elsewhere its setting,

And cometh from afar:
Not in entire forgetfulness,
And not in utter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory, do we come

From God, who is our home:
Heaven lies about us in our infancy!
Shades of the prison-house begin to close

Upon the growing Boy;
But he beholds the light, and whence it flows,—
He sees it in his joy;

He sees it in his joy;
The Youth, who daily farther from the east
Must travel, still is nature's priest
And by the vision splendid
Is on his way attended:
At length the Man perceives it die away.

At length the Man perceives it die away, And fade into the light of common day.

Earth fills her lap with pleasures of her own; Yearnings she hath in her own natural kind, And even with something of a mother's mind, And no unworthy aim,

The homely nurse doth all she can To make her foster-child, her inmate man. Forget the glories he hath known, And that imperial palace whence he came.

Behold the child among his new-born blisses,—A six years' darling of a pygmy size!
See, where mid work of his own hand he lies,
Fretted by sallies of his mother's kisses,
With light upon him from his father's eyes!
See, at his feet, some little plan or chart,
Some fragment from his dream of human life,
Shaped by himself with newly learned art,—

A wedding or a festival,
A mourning or a funeral;
And this hath now his heart,
And unto this he frames his song:
Then will he fit his tongue
To dialogues of business, love, or strife;
But it will not be long
Ere this be thrown aside,
And with new joy and pride
The little actor cons another part, —
Filling from time to time his "humorous stage"
With all the persons, down to palsied age,
That Life brings with her in her equipage;
As if his whole vocation

Were endless unitation.

Thou, whose exterior semblance doth belie

Thy soul's immensity!
Thou best philosopher, who yet dost keep
Thy heritage! thou eye among the blind,
That, deaf and silent, read'st the eternal deep,
Haunted forever by the eternal mind!—

Mighty prophet! Seer blest!
On whom those truths do rest
Which we are toiling all our lives to find,
In darkness lost, the darkness of the grave;
Thou over whom thy immortality
Broods like the day, a master o'er a slave,
A presence which is not to be put by;
Thou little child, yet glorious in the might
Of heaven-born freedom on thy being's height,
Why with such earnest pains dost thou provoke
The years to bring the inevitable yoke,
Thus blindly with thy blessedness at strife?
Full soon thy soul shall have her earthly freight,
And custom lie upon thee with a weight
Heavy as frost, and deep almost as life!

O joy! that in our embers
Is something that doth live;
That Nature yet remembers
What was so fugitive!

The thought of our past years in me doth breed Perpetual benediction: not, indeed, For that which is most worthy to be blest, — Delight and liberty, the simple creed Of childhood, whether busy or at rest,

With new-fledged hope still fluttering in his To live beneath your more habitual sway.

breast: — I love the brooks which down their channe

Not for these I raise
The song of thanks and praise;
But for those obstinate questionings
Of sense and outward things,
Fallings from us, vanishings;
Blank misgivings of a creature
ving about in worlds not realized.

Moving about in worlds not realized,
High instincts, before which our mortal nature
Did tremble like a guilty thing surprised:
But for those first affections,

Those shadowy recollections,
Which, be they what they may,
Are yet the fountain-light of all our day,
Are yet a master light of all our seeing;

Uphold us, cherish, and have power to make Our noisy years seem moments in the being Of the eternal silence: truths that wake,

To perish never;
Which neither listlessness, nor mad endeavor,
Nor man nor boy,

Nor all that is at enmity with joy, Can utterly abolish or destroy!

Hence, in a season of calm weather,
Though inland far we be,

Our souls have sight of that immortal sea Which brought us hither,—

Can in a moment travel thither, And see the children sport upon the shore, And hear the mighty waters rolling evermore.

Then sing, ye birds, sing, sing a joyous song '
And let the young lambs bound
As to the tabor's sound '

We in thought will join your throng,
Ye that pipe and ye that play,
Ye that through your hearts to-day
Feel the gladness of the May!

What though the radiance which was once so bright

Be now forever taken from my sight,

Though nothing can bring back the hour
Of splendor in the grass, of glory in the flower;

We will grieve not, rather find

Strength in what remains behind, In the primal sympathy Which, having been, must ever be. In the soothing thoughts that spring Out of human suffering,

In the faith that looks through death, In years that bring the philosophic mind

And O ye fountains, meadows, hills, and groves, Forebode not any severing of our loves! Yet in my heart of hearts I feel your might; I only have relinquished one delight

To live beneath your more habitual sway. I love the brooks which down their channels fret, Even more than when I tripped lightly as they; The innocent brightness of a new-born day

Is lovely yet;
The clouds that gather round the setting sun
Do take a sober coloring from an eye
That hath kept watch o'er man's mortality;
Another race hath been, and other palms are won.
Thanks to the human heart by which we live,
Thanks to its tenderness, its love, and fears.—

Thanks to the human heart by which we live, Thanks to its tenderness, its joys, and fears,— To me the meanest flower that blows can give Thoughts that do often he too deep for tears.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

SOLILOQUY: ON IMMORTALITY.

FROM "CATO," ACT V. SC 1.

SCENE — CATO, silting in a thoughtful posture, with Plato's book on the Immortality of the Soul in his hand, and a drawn sword on the table by him.

Ir must be so — Plato, thou reasonest well '— Else whence this pleasing hope, this fond desire, This longing after immortality ' Or whence this secret dread, and inward horror, Of falling into naught ' Why shrinks the soul Back on herself, and startles at destruction ' 'T is the divinity that stirs within us; 'T is Heaven itself, that points out a hereafter, And intimates eternity to man.

Eternity!—thou pleasing, dreadful thought!
Through what variety of untiled being,
Through what new scenes and changes, must we pass!

The wide, the unbounded prospect lies before me; But shadows, clouds, and darkness rest upon it. Here will I hold. If there is a Power above us (And that there is, all Nature cries aloud Through all her works), he must delight in virtue:

And that which he delights in must be happy.

But when? or where? This world was made for

I'm weary of conjectures, — this must end 'cm.
(Laying his hand on his sword.)

Thus am I doubly armed: my death and life, My bane and antidote, are both before me: This in a moment brings me to an end, But this informs me I shall never die. The soul, secured in her existence, smiles At the drawn dagger, and defies its point. The stars shall fade away, the sun himself Grow dim with age, and Nature sink in years; But thou shalt flourish in immortal youth, Unhurt amid the war of elements, The wrecks of matter, and the crush of worlds!

JOSEPH ADDISON

O, MAY I JOIN THE CHOIR INVISIBLE!

O, MAY I join the choir invisible
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence, live
In pulses stirred to generosity,
In deeds of daring rectitude, in scorn
Of miserable aims that end with self,
In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars.

And with their mild persistence urge men's minds To vaster issues.

So to live is heaven To make undying music in the world, Breathing a beauteous order, that controls With growing sway the growing life of man. So we inherit that sweet purity For which we struggled, failed, and agonized With widening retrospect that bred despair. Rebellious flesh that would not be subdued, A vicious parent shaming still its child, Poor anxious penitence, is quick dissolved, Its discords quenched by meeting harmonics, Die in the large and charitable air. And all our rarer, better, truer self, That sobbed religiously in yearning song, That watched to ease the burden of the world, Laboriously tracing what must be, And what may yet be better, - saw within A worthier image for the sanctuary, And shaped it forth before the multitude, Divinely human, raising worship so To higher reverence more mixed with love, That better self shall live till human Time Shall fold its eyelids, and the human sky Pe gathered like a scroll within the tomb, Unread forever.

This is life to come, Which martyred men have made more glorious For us, who strive to follow.

That purest heaven, — be to other souls

The cup of strength in some great agony, Enkindle generous ardor, feed pure love, Beget the smiles that have no cruelty, Be the sweet presence of a good diffused, And in diffusion ever more intense! So shall I join the choi invisible, Whose music is the gladness of the world.

MARIAN EVANS LEWES CROSS (George Lliot).

PRE-EXISTENCE.

WHILE sauntering through the crowded street, Some half-remembered face I meet,

Albeit upon no mortal shore That face, methinks, has smiled before. Lost in a gay and festal throng, I tremble at some tender song,—

Set to an air whose golden bars I must have heard in other stars.

In sacred aisles I pause to share The blessings of a priestly prayer, —

When the whole scene which greets mine eyes In some strange mode I recognize

As one whose every mystic part I feel prefigured in my heart.

At sunset, as I calmly stand, A stranger on an alien strand,

Familiar as my childhood's home Seems the long stretch of wave and foam.

One sails toward me o'er the bay, And what he comes to do and say

I can foretell. A prescient lore Springs from some life outlived of yore.

() swift, instinctive, startling gleams ()! deep soul-knowledge! not as dreams

For aye ye vaguely dawn and die, But oft with lightning certainty

Pierce through the dark, oblivious brain, To make old thoughts and memories plain,

Thoughts which perchance must travel back Across the wild, bewildering track

Of countless wons; memories far, High-reaching as you pallid star,

Unknown, scarce seen, whose flickering grace Faints on the outmost rings of space '

PAUL HAMILION HAYNE

A LOST CHORD.

SEATED one day at the organ, I was weary and ill at ease, And my fingers wandered idly Over the noisy keys.

I do not know what I was playing, Or what I was dreaming then, But I struck one chord of music, Like the sound of a great Amen.

It flooded the crimson twilight,
Like the close of an angel's psalm,
And it lay on my fevered spirit,
With a touch of infinite calm.

It quieted pain and sorrow, Like love overcoming strife; It seemed the harmonious echo From our discordant life.

It linked all perplexed meanings
Into one perfect peace,
And trembled away into silence,
As if it were loath to cease.

I have sought, but I seek it vainly,
That one lost chord divine,
That came from the soul of the organ,
And entered into mine.

It may be that Death's bright angel
Will speak in that chord again;
It may be that only in heaven
I shall hear that grand Amen.

ADELAIDE ANNE PROCTER.

TO A SKELETON.

[The MS. of this poem, which appeared during the first quarter of the present century, was said to have been found in the Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, in London, near a perfect human skeleton, and to have been sent by the curator to the Morning Chronicle for publication. It excited so much attention that every vent so far as to offer a reward of fifty guineas for information that would discover its origin. The author preserved his incognito, and, we believe, has never been discovered.]

Behold this ruin! "T was a skull Once of ethereal spirit full.
This narrow cell was Life's retreat;
This space was Thought's mysterious seat.
What beauteous visions filled this spot!
What dreams of pleasure long forgot!
Nor hope, nor joy, nor love, nor fear
Has left one trace of record here.

Beneath this mouldering canopy
Once shone the bright and busy eye:
But start not at the dismal void, —
If social love that eye employed,
If with no lawless fire it gleamed,
But through the dews of kindness beamed,
That eye shall be forever bright
When stars and sun are sunk in night.

Within this hollow cavern hung
The ready, swift, and tuneful tongue:
If Falsehood's honey it disdained,
And when it could not praise was chained;
If bold in Virtue's cause it spoke,
Yet gentle concord never broke,—
This silent tongue shall plead for thee
When Time unveils Eternity!

Say, did these fingers delve the mine,
Or with the envied rubies shine?
To hew the rock, or wear a gem,
Can little now avail to them;
But if the page of Truth they sought,
Or comfort to the mourner brought,
These hands a richer meed shall claim
Than all that wait on Wealth and Fame.

Avails it whether bare or shod
These feet the paths of duty trod?
If from the bowers of Ease they fled,
To seek Affliction's humble shed;
If Grandeur's guilty bribe they spurned,
And home to Virtue's cot returned,
—
These feet with angel wings shall vie,
And tread the palace of the sky!

ANONYMOUS.

THE BROTHERS.

SLUMBER, Sleep, — they were two brothers, servants to the gods above;

Kind Prometheus lured them downwards, ever filled with earthly love;

But what gods could bear so lightly, pressed too hard on men beneath;

Slumber did his brother's duty, - Sleep was deepened into Death.

From the German of GOETHE.

INVOCATION TO SLEEP.

FROM "VALENTINIAN,"

COME, Sleep, and with thy sweet deceiving
Lock me in delight awhile;
Let some pleasing dreams beguile
All my fancies, that from thence
I may feel an influence,
All my powers of care bereaving!

Though but a shadow, but a sliding.

Let me know some little joy!

We that suffer long annoy

Are contented with a thought,

Through an idle fancy wrought:

O, let my joys have some abiding!

JOHN FLETCHER.

SLEEP.

COME, gentle sleep! attend thy votary's prayer, And, though death's image, to my couch repair; How sweet, though lifeless, yet with life to lie, And, without dying, O how sweet to die!

DR JOHN WOLCOIT (Peter Pendar)

SLEEP.

WEEP ye no more, sad fountains!
What need you flow so fast?
Look how the snowy mountains
Heaven's sun doth gently waste.
But my sun's heavenly eyes
View not your weeping,
That now lies sleeping
Softly, now softly lies
Sleeping.

Sleep is a reconciling, —
A rest that peace begets;
Doth not the sun rise smiling,
When fair at even he sets?
Rest you then, rest, sad eyes, —
Melt not in weeping,
While she lies sleeping
Softly, now softly lies
Sleeping.

JOHN DOWLAND.

SLEEP.

FROM "ASTROPHEL AND STLLLA."

COME, Sleep, O Sleep, the certain knot of peace, The baiting-place of wit, the balm of woe, The poor man's wealth, the prisoner's release, The indifferent judge between the high and low, With shield of proof shield me from out the prease* Of those fierce darts Despair at me doth throw; O, make me in those civil wars to cease: I will good tribute pay, if thou do so. Take thou of me smooth pillows, sweetest bed, A chamber deaf to noise, and blind to light, A rosy garland, and a weary head:

And if these things, as being thine in right, Move not thy heavy grace, thou shalt in me Livelier than elsewhere Stella's image see.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY.

SLEEP.

"He giveth his beloved sleep." - Psalm cxxvi. 2.

Or all the thoughts of God that are Borne inward unto souls afar, Among the Psalmist's music deep, Now tell me if that any is, For gift or grace, surpassing this,— "He giveth his beloved sleep"?

What would we give to our beloved? The hero's heart, to be unmoved,—
The poet's star-tuned harp, to sweep,—
The patriot's voice, to teach and rouse,—
The monarch's crown, to light the brows?
"He giveth his beloved sleep."

* Press - throng.

What do we give to our beloved?
A little faith, all undisproved,—
A little dust to overweep,
And butter memories, to make
The whole earth blasted for our sake,
"He giveth his beloved sleep."

"Sleep soft, beloved!" we sometimes say, But have no tune to charm away Sad dreams that through the eyelids creep; But never doleful dream again Shall break the happy slumber when "He giveth his beloved sleep."

O earth, so full of dreary noise!
O men, with wailing in your voice!
O delved gold the wailers heap!
O strite, O curse, that o'er it fall!
God strikes a silence through you all,
And "giveth his beloved sleep."

His dews drop mutely on the hill, His cloud above it saileth still, Though on its slope men sow and reap; More softly than the dew is shed, Or cloud is floated overhead, "He giveth his beloved sleep"

For me, my heart, that erst did go Most like a tired child at a show, That sees through tears the mummers leap, Would now its wearied vision close, Would childlike on his love repose Who "giveth his beloved sleep."

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING

SLEEP.

FROM "SECOND PART OF HENRY IV.," ACT III SC 1.

KING HENRY. How many thousand of my poorest subjects

Are at this hour asleep! — O sleep! O gentle sleep!

Nature's soft nurse, how have I frighted thee,
That thou no more wilt weigh my cyclids down,
And steep my senges in forgetfulness?
Why rather, sleep, liest thou in smoky cribs,
Upon uneasy pallets stretching thee,
And hushed with buzzing night-flies to thy slumber,

Than in the perfumed chambers of the great, Under the canopies of costly state, And lulled with sounds of sweetest melody? O thou dull god! why liest thou with the vile, In loathsome beds, and leav'st the kingly couch A watch-case, or a common 'larum-bell?

Wilt thou upon the high and giddy mast Seal up the ship-boy's eyes, and rock his brains In cradle of the rude imperious surge, And in the visitation of the winds, Who take the ruffian billows by the top, Curling their monstrous heads, and hanging them With deafening clamors in the slippery clouds, That, with the hurly, death itself awakes ? Canst thou, O partial sleep! give thy repose To the wet sea-boy in an hour so rude; And in the calmest and most stillest night, With all appliances and means to boot, Deny it to a king? Then, happy low, lie down, Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.

SLEEPLESSNESS.

A FLOCK of sheep that lessurely pass by One after one; the sound of rain, and bees Murmung; the fall of rivers, winds and seas, Smooth fields, white sheets of water, and pure sky ; --

I've thought of all by turns, and still I lie Sleepless, and soon the small birds' melodies Must hear, first uttered from my orchard trees, And the first cuckoo's melancholy cry. Even thus last night, and two nights more, I lay, And could not win thee, Sleep, by any stealth . So do not let me wear to-night away . Without thee what is all the morning's wealth? Come, blessèd barrier between day and day, Dear mother of fresh thoughts and joyous health! WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

HYMN TO NIGHT.

YES! bear them to their rest; The rosy babe, tired with the glare of day, The prattler, fallen asleep e'en in his play; Clasp them to thy soft breast,

O night! Bless them in dreams with a deep, hushed delight.

Yet must they wake again, Wake soon to all the bitterness of life, The pang of sorrow, the temptation strife, Aye to the conscience pain

O night! Canst thou not take with them a longer flight?

Canst thou not bear them far E'en now, all innocent, before they know The taint of sin, its consequence of woe, The world's distracting jar,

O night!

To some ethereal, holier, happier height?

Canst thou not bear them up Through starlit skies, far from this planet dim And sorrowful, e'en while they sleep, to Him Who drank for us the cup.

O night!

The cup of wrath, for hearts in faith contrite?

To Him, for them who slept A babe all holy on his mother's knee, And from that hour to cross-crowned Calvary. In all our sorrow wept,

O night !

That on our souls might dawn Heaven's cheering light.

Go, lay their little heads Close to that human heart, with love divine Deep-breathing, while his arms immortal twine Around them, as he sheds, O night!

On them a brother's grace of God's own boundless might.

Let them immortal wake Among the deathless flowers of Paradise, Where angel songs of welcome with surprise This their last sleep may break, () night '

And to celestial joy their kindred souls invite.

There can come no sorrow; The brow shall know no shade, the eye no tears, Forever young, through heaven's eternal years In one unfading morrow, () night !

Nor sin nor age nor pain their cherub beauty blight.

Would we could sleep as they, So stainless and so calm, — at rest with Thee, — And only wake in immortality!

Bear us with them away,

O night!

To that ethereal, holier, happier height. GEORGF WASHINGTON BETHUNE

WATCHING.

SLEEP, love, sleep ! The dusty day is done. Lo! from afar the freshening breezes sweep Wide over groves of balm, Down from the towering palm, In at the open casement cooling run, And round thy lowly bed, Thy bed of pain, Bathing thy patient head, Like grateful showers of rain.

They come;
While the white curtains, waving to and fro,
Fan the sick air;
And pityingly the shadows come and go,
With gentle human care,
Compassionate and dumb.

The dusty day is done,
The night begun;
While prayerful watch I keep,
Sleep, love, sleep!
Is there no magic in the touch
Of fingers thou dost love so much?
Fain would they scatter poppies o'er thee now;
Or, with its mute caress,
The tremulous lip some soft nepenthe press
Upon thy weary lid and aching brow;
While prayerful watch I keep,
Sleep, love, sleep!

On the pagoda spire The bells are swinging, Their little golden circlet in a flutter With tales the wooing winds have dared to utter, Till all are ringing. As if a choir Of golden-nested birds in heaven were singing. And with a lulling sound The music floats around, And drops like balm into the drowsy ear; Commingling with the hum Of the Sepoy's distant drum, And lazy beetle ever droning near. Sounds these of deepest silence born, Like night made visible by morn; So silent that I sometimes start To hear the throbbings of my heart, And watch, with shivering sense of pain, To see thy pale lids lift again.

The lizard, with his mouse-like eyes, Peeps from the mortise in surprise At such strange quiet after day's harsh din ; Then boldly ventures out, And looks about. And with his hollow feet Treads his small evening beat, Darting upon his prey In such a tricky, winsome sort of way, His delicate marauding seems no sin. And still the curtains swing, But noiselessly; The bells a melancholy murmur ring, As tears were in the sky: More heavily the shadows fall, Like the black foldings of a pall, Where juts the rough beam from the wall;

The candles flare
With fresher gusts of air;
The beetle's drone
Turns to a dirge-like, solitary moan;
Night deepens, and I sit, in cheerless doubt alone
EMILY CHUBBUCK JUDSON.

THE DREAM.

OUR life is twofold; sleep hath its own world, A boundary between the things misnamed Death and existence: sleep hath its own world, And a wide realm of wild reality. And dreams in their development have breath, And tears, and tortures, and the touch of joy; They leave a weight upon our waking thoughts, They take a weight from off our waking toils, They do divide our being; they become A portion of ourselves as of our time, And look like heralds of eternity: They pers like spirits of the past, - they speak Lake sibyls of the future; they have power, -The tyranny of pleasure and of pain; They make us what we were not, - what they will,

And shake us with the vision that's gone by, The dread of vanished shadows.— Are they so? Is not the past all shadow? What are they? Creations of the mind?— The mind can make Substances, and people planets of its own With beings brighter than have been, and give A breath to forms which can outlive all flesh. I would recall a vision which I dreamed Perchance in sleep,— for in itself a thought, A slumbering thought, is capable of years, And curdles a long life into one hour.

I saw two beings in the hues of youth Standing upon a hill, a gentle hill, Green and of a mild declivity, the last As 't were the cape of a long ridge of such, Save that there was no sea to lave its base, But a most living landscape, and the wave Of woods and cornfields, and the abodes of men Scattered at intervals, and wreathing smoke Arising from such rustic roofs; the hill Was crowned with a peculiar diadem Of trees, in circular array, so fixed, Not by the sport of nature, but of man : These two, a maiden and a youth, were there Gazing, - the one on all that was beneath Fair as herself. — but the boy gazed on her; And both were young, and one was beautiful; And both were young, - yet not alike in youth. As the sweet moon on the horizon's verge, The maid was on the eve of womanhood;

The boy had fewer summers, but his heart Had far outgrown his years, and to his eye There was but one beloved face on earth, And that was shining on him: he had looked Upon it till it could not pass away ; He had no breath, no being, but in hers; She was his voice; he did not speak to her, But trembled on her words; she was his sight, For his eye followed hers, and saw with hers, Which colored all his objects; — he had ceased To live within himself: she was his life, The ocean to the river of his thoughts, Which terminated all; upon a tone, A touch of hers, his blood would ebb and flow, And his cheek change tempestuously, — his heart Unknowing of its cause of agony. But she in these fond feelings had no share: Her sighs were not for him; to her he was Even as a brother, - but no more; 't was much, For brotherless she was, save in the name Her infant friendship had bestowed on him; Herself the solitary scion left Of a time-honored race. It was a name Which pleased him, and yet pleased him not, and why?

Time taught him a deep answer — when she loved

Another; even now she loved another, And on the summit of that hill she stood, Looking afar if yet her lover's steed Kept pace with her expectancy, and flew.

A change came o'er the spirit of my dream. There was an ancient mansion, and before Its walls there was a steed caparisoned; Within an antique oratory stood The boy of whom I spake;—he was alone, And pale, and pacing to and fro: anon He sate him down, and seized a pen, and traced Words which I could not guess of; then he leaned His bowed head on his hands and shook, as 't were

With a convulsion, — then arose again,
And with his teeth and quivering hands did tear
What he had written, but he shed no tears,
And he did calm himself, and fix his brow
Into a kind of quiet; as he paused,
The lady of his love re-entered there;
She was serene and smiling then, and yet
She knew she was by him beloved; she knew — For quickly comes such knowledge — that his heart

Was darkened with her shadow, and she saw That he was wretched, but she saw not all. He rose, and with a cold and gentle grasp He took her hand; a moment o'er his face A tablet of unutterable thoughts Was traced, and then it faded, as it came; He dropped the hand he held, and with slow steps

Retired, but not as bidding her adieu, For they did part with mutual smiles; he passed From out the massy gate of that old Hall, And mounting on his steed he went his way; And ne'er repassed that hoary threshold more

A change came o'er the spirit of my dream. The boy was sprung to manhood; in the wilds Of fiery climes he made himself a home, And his soul drank their sunbeams; he was girt With strange and dusky aspects; he was not Himself like what he had been : on the sea And on the shore he was a wanderer: There was a mass of many images Crowded like waves upon me, but he was A part of all; and in the last he lay Reposing from the mountide sultriness, Couched among fallen columns, in the shade Of ruined walls that had survived the names Of those who reared them; by his sleeping side Stood camels grazing, and some goodly steeds Were fastened near a fountain; and a man. Clad in a flowing garb, did watch the while, While many of his tribe slumbered around: And they were canopied by the blue sky, So cloudless, clear, and purely beautiful, That God alone was to be seen in heaven.

A change came o'er the spirit of my dream. The lady of his love was wed with one
Who did not love her better · in her home,
A thousand leagues from his, — her native home,
She dwelt, begirt with growing infancy,
Daughters and sons of beauty, — but behold!
Upon her face there was the tint of grief,
The settled shadow of an inward strife,
And an unquiet drooping of the eye,
As if its lid were charged with unshed tears.
What could her grief be?—she had all she loved,
And he who had so loved her was not there
To trouble with bad hopes, or evil wish,
Or ill-repressed affliction, her pure thoughts.
What could her grief be?—she had loved him
not,

Nor given him cause to deem himself beloved, Nor could he he a part of that which preyed Upon her mind — a spectre of the past.

A change came o'er the spirit of my dream.
The wanderer was returned. — I saw him stand
Before an altar — with a gentle bride;
Her face was fair, but was not that which made
The starlight of his boyhood; — as he stood
Even at the altar, o'er his brow there came

The selfsame aspect and the quivering shock
That in the antique oratory shook
His bosom in its solitude; and then —
As in that hour — a moment o'er his face
The tablet of unutterable thoughts
Was traced, — and then it faded as it came,
And he stood calm and quiet, and he spoke
The fitting vows, but heard not his own words,
And all things reeled around him; he could see
Not that which was, nor that which should have been, —

But the old mansion, and the accustomed hall,
And the remembered chambers, and the place,
The day, the hour, the sunshine, and the shade,
All things pertaining to that place and hour,
And her who was his destiny, came back
And thrust themselves between him and the light;

What business had they there at such a time?

A change came o'er the spirit of my dream. The lady of his love; - O, she was changed, As by the sickness of the soul! her mind Had wandered from its dwelling, and her eyes, They had not their own lustre, but the look Which is not of the earth; she was become The queen of a fantastic realm; her thoughts Were combinations of disjointed things, And forms impalpable and unperceived Of others' sight familiar were to hers. And this the world calls frenzy; but the wise Have a far deeper madness, and the glance Of melancholy is a fearful gift; What is it but the telescope of truth, Which strips the distance of its fantasies, And brings life near in utter nakedness, Making the cold reality too real '

A change came o'er the spirit of my dream. The wanderer was alone as herctofore,
The beings which surrounded him were gone,
Or were at war with him; he was a mark
For blight and desolation, compassed round
With hatred and contention; pain was mixed
In all which was served up to him, until,
Like to the Pontic monarch of old days,
He fed on poisons and they had no power,
But were a kind of nutrinient; he lived
Through that which had been death to many men,
And made him friends of mountains with the

And the quick Spirit of the universe
He held his dialogues; and they did teach
To him the magic of their mysteries;
To him the book of Night was opened wide,
And voices from the deep abyss revealed
A marvel and a secret. — Be it so.

My dream was past; it had no further change. It was of a strange order, that the doom Of these two creatures should be thus traced out Almost like a reality, — the one To end in madness — both in misery.

LORD BYRON

THE SCHOLAR.

FROM "EDWIN THE FAIR"

This life, and all that it contains, to him Is but a tissue of illuminous dreams Filled with book-wisdom, pictured thought and love

That on its own creations spends itself.
All things he understands, and nothing does.
Profusely eloquent in copious praise
Of action, he will talk to you as one
Whose wisdom lay in dealings and transactions;
Yet so much action as might the his shoe
Cannot his will command; himself alone
By his own wisdom not a jot the gainer.
Of silence, and the hundred thousand things
'T is better not to mention, he will speak,
And still most wisely.

HENRY TAYLOR.

UNKNOWN POETS.

FROM "THE EXCURSION," BOOK I.

O, MANY are the poets that are sown
By nature; men endowed with highest gifts,
The vision and the faculty divine;
Yet wanting the accomplishment of verse
(Which, in the docile season of their youth,
It was denied them to acquire, through lack
Of culture and the inspiring and of books,
Or haply by a temper too severe,
Or a nice backwardness afraid of shame),
Nor having e'er, as life advanced, been led
By circumstance to take unto the height
The measure of themselves, these favored beings,
All but a scattered few, live out their time,
Husbanding that which they possess within,
And go to the grave, unthought of. Strongest

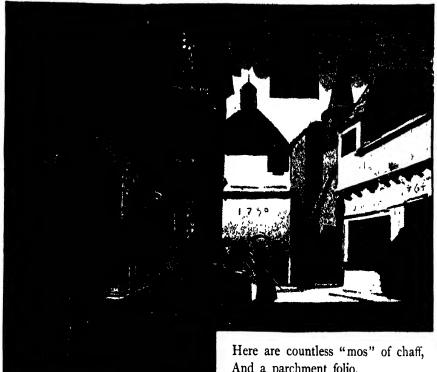

Are often those of whom the noisy world Hears least.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH

THE POET OF NATURE.

FROM "FESTUS."

HE had no times of study, and no place;
All places and all times to him were one.
His soul was like the wind-harp, which he loved,
And sounded only when the spirit blew,

Drawn by W. H. Drake.

THE BOOK-STALL.

It stands in a winding street,
A quiet and restful nook,
Apart from the endless beat
Of the noisy heart of Trade;
There's never a spot more cool
Of a hot midsummer day
By the brink of a forest pool,
Or the bank of a crystal brook
In the maples' breezy shade,
Than the book-stall old and gray.

Here are precious gems of thought
That were quarried long ago,
Some in vellum bound, and wrought
With letters and lines of gold;
Here are curious rows of "calf,"
And perchance an Elzevir;

Here are countless "mos" of chaff, And a parchment folio, Like leaves that are cracked with cold, All puckered and brown and sear.

In every age and clime
Live the monarchs of the brain:
And the lords of prose and rhyme,
Years after the long last sleep
Has come to the kings of earth
And their names have passed away,
Rule on through death and birth;
And the thrones of their domain
Are found where the shades are deep
In the book-stall old and gray.

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

FOR AN OLD POET. [To Richard Henry Stoddard.]

When he is old and past all singing, Grant, kindly Time, that he may hear The rhythm through joyous Nature ringing, Uncaught by any duller ear.

Grant that, in memory's deep still cherished, Once more may murmur low to him The winds that sung in years long perished Lit by the suns of days grown dim.

Grant that the hours when first he listened To bird-songs manhood may not know, In fields whose dew for lovers glistened, May come back to him ere he go.

Grant only this, O Time most kindly,
That he may hear the song you sung
When love was new—and, hearkening blindly,
Feign his o'erwearied spirit young.

With sounds of rivers singing round him, On waves that long since flowed away, O leave him, Time, where first Love found him, Dreaming To-morrow is To-day. Sometime in feasts and follies, for he went Lifelike through all things; and his thoughts then rose

Like sparkles in the bright wine, brighter still; Sometimes in dreams, and then the shining words Would wake him in the dark before his face.

All things talked thoughts to him. The sea went mad

To show his meaning; and the awful sun Thundered his thoughts into him; and at night The stars would whisper theirs, the moon sigh hers.

PHILIP JAMES BAILEY.

THE POETS IMPULSE.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD'S PILGRIMAGE," CANTO III.

SKY, mountains, river, winds, lake, lightnings!

With night, and clouds, and thunder, and a

To make these felt and feeling, well may be Things that have made me watchful; the far roll

Of your departing voices is the knoll
Of what in me is sleepless, — if I rest.
But where of ye, O tempests! is the goal?
Are ye like those within the human breast?
Or do ye find, at length, like eagles, some high nest?

Could I embody and unbosom now
That which is most within me, — could I wreak
My thoughts upon expression, and thus throw Soul, heart, mind, passions, feelings, strong or weak,

All that I would have sought, and all I seek,
Bear, know, feel, and yet breathe into one
word,

And that one word were Lightning, I would speak;

But as it is, I live and die unheard, With a most voiceless thought, sheathing it as a sword.

LORD BYRON.

THE INNER VISION.

Mosr sweet it is with unuplifted eyes
To pace the ground, if path there be or none,
While a fair region round the traveller lies
Which he forbears again to look upon;
Pleased rather with some soft ideal scene,
The work of fancy, or some happy tone
Of meditation, slipping in between
The beauty coming and the beauty gone.

If Thought and Love desert us, from that day
Let us break off all commerce with the Muse:
With Thought and Love companions of our way,—
Whate'er the senses take or may refuse,—
The mind's internal Heaven shall shed her dews
Of inspiration on the humblest lay.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTIL

THE POET OF TO-DAY.

More than the soul of ancient song is given To thee, O poet of to-day! — thy dower Comes, from a higher than Olympian heaven, In holier beauty and in larger power.

To thee Humanity, her woes revealing, Would all her griefs and ancient wrongs rehearse;

Would make thy song the voice of her appealing, And sob her mighty sorrows through thy verse.

While in her season of great darkness sharing,
Hail thou the coming of each promise-star
Which climbs the midnight of her long despair
ing,

And watch for morning o'er the hills afar.

Wherever Truth her holy warfare wages,
Or Freedom pines, there let thy voice be heard;
Sound like a prophet-warning down the ages
The human utterance of God's living word

But bring not thou the battle's stormy chorus,

The tramp of armies, and the roar of fight,

Not war's hot smoke to taint the sweet morn
o'er us,

Nor blaze of pillage, reddening up the night.

O, let thy lays prolong that angel-singing, Girdling with music the Redeemer's star, And breathe God's peace, to earth "glad tidings" bringing

From the near heavens, of old so dim and far! SARAH JANL LIPPINCOTT (Grace Greenwood).

BOOKS.

FROM "THE KALEDER OF SHEPERDES," 1528

HE that many bokes redys, Cunnyinge shall he be.
Wysedome is soone caught:
In many leues it is sought:
But slouth, that no boke bought,
For reason taketh no thought;
His thryfte cometh behynde.

BOOKS.

For why, who writes such histories as these Doth often bring the reader's heart such ease,
As when they sit and see what he doth note,
Well fare his heart, say they, this book that wrote!

JOHN HIGGINS.

THE FLOWER.

How fresh, O Lord, how sweet and clean

Are thy returns! even as the flowers in spring;

To which, besides their own demean,

The late-past frosts tributes of pleasure bring.

Grief melts away

Like snow in May,

As if there were no such cold thing.

Who would have thought my shrivelled heart Could have recovered greenness? It was gone Quite underground; as flowers depart To see their mother root, when they have blown;

Where they together

All the hard weather, Dead to the world, keep house unknown.

These are thy wonders, Lord of power, Killing and quickning, bringing down to hell And up to heaven in an houre; Making a chiming of a passing-bell.

We say amisse,
This or that is:
Thy word is all, if we could spell.

O that I once past changing were,
Fast in thy paradise, where no flower can wither!
Many a spring I shoot up fair,
Offring at heav'n, growing and groning thither;
Nor doth my flower

Want a spring-showre,
My sinnes and I joining together.

But, while I grow in a straight line,
Still upwards bent, as if heav'n were mine own,
Thy anger comes, and I decline:

What frost to that? what pole is not the zone
Where all things burn,
When thou dost turn,

And the least frown of thine is shown?

And now in age I bud again;
After so many deaths I live and write;
I once more smell the dew and rain,
And relish versing: O my only light,
It cannot be
That I am he
On whom thy tempests fell all night!

These are thy wonders, Lord of love, To make us see we are but flowers that glide;

Which when we once can finde and prove, Thou hast a garden for us where to bide.

Who would be more,
Swelling through store,
Forfeit their paradise by their pride.
George Herbert.

YUSSOUF.

A STRANGER came one night to Yussouf's tent,
Saying, "Behold one outcast and in dread,
Against whose life the bow of power is bent,
Who flies, and hath not where to lay his head;
I come to thee for shelter and for food,
To Yussouf, called through all our tribes 'The Good.'"

"This tent is mine," said Yussouf, "but no more Than it is God's; come in, and be at peace; Freely shalt thou partake of all my store As I of his who buildeth over these Our tents his glorious roof of night and day, And at whose door none ever yet heard Nay."

So Yussouf entertained his guest that night, And, waking him ere day, said. "Here is gold, My swiftest horse is saddled for thy flight, Depart before the prying day grow bold." As one lamp lights another, nor grows less, So nobleness enkindleth nobleness.

That inward light the stranger's face made grand, Which shines from all self-conquest; kneelinglow, He bowed his forehead upon Yussouf's hand, Sobbing: "O Sheik, I cannot leave thee so; I will repay thee; all this thou hast done Unto that Ibrahim who slew thy son!"

"Take thrice the gold," said Yussouf, "for with thee

Into the desert, never to return,
My one black thought shall ride away from me;
First-born, for whom by day and night I yearn,
Balanced and just are all of God's decrees;
Thou art avenged, my first-born, sleep in peace!"

JAMP'S RUSSELL LOWELL.

ABOU BEN ADHEM.

ABOU BEN ADHEM (may his tribe increase!)
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
And saw within the moonlight in his room,
Making it rich and like a lily in bloom,
An angel writing in a book of gold:
Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold,

And to the presence in the room he said,
"What writest thou?" The vision raised its head,
And, with a look made of all sweet accord,
Answered, "The names of those who love the Lord."
"And is mine one?" said Abou. "Nay, not so,"
Replied the angel. Abou spoke more low,
But cheerly still; and said, "I pray thee, then,
Write me as one that loves his fellow-men."

The angel wrote, and vanished. The next night It came again, with a great wakening light, And showed the names whom love of God had blessed, —

And, lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest!

BEAUTY.

I HAD a dream, one glorious, summer night, In the rich bosom of imperial June. Languid I lay upon an odorous couch, Golden with amber, festooned wildly o'er With crimson roses; and the longing stars Wept tears of light upon their clustered leaves. Above me soared the azure vault of heaven, Vast and majestic; cinctured with that path Whereby, perchance, the sea-born Venus found Her way to higher spheres; that path which seems A coronet of silver, gemmed with stars, And bound upon the forehead of the night. There, as I lay, the musical south wind Shook all the roses into murmurous life, And poured their fragrance o'er me, in a shower Of crimson mist; and softly, through the mist, Came a low, sweet, enchanting melody, A far-off echo from the land of dreams, Which with delicious languor filled the air, And steeped in bliss the senses and the soul. Then rose a shape, a dim and ghostly shape, Whereto no feature was, nor settled form, A shadowy splendor, seeming as it came A pearly summer cloud, shot through and through With faintest rays of sunset, yet within A spirit dwelt; and, floating from within, A murmur trembled sweetly into words: -

I am the ghost of a most lovely dream,
Which haunted, in old days, a poet's mind.
And long he sought for, wept, and prayed for me;
And searched through all the chambers of his soul,
And searched the secret places of the earth,
The lonely forest and the lonely shore;
And listened to the voices of the sea,
What time the stars shone out, and midnight cold
Slept on the dark waves whispering at his feet;
And sought the mystery in a human form,
Amid the haunts of men, and found it not;
And looked in woman's fond, bewildering eyes,
And mirrored there his own, and saw no sign:

But only in his sleep I came to him,
And gave him fitful glimpses of my face,
Whereof he after sang, in sweetest words;
Then died, and came to me. But evermore,
Through lonely days, and passion-haunted nights,
A life of starlit gloom, do poets seek
To rend the mystic veil that covers me,
And evermore they grasp the empty air.
For only in their dreams I come to them,
And give them fitful glimpses of my face,
And lull them, siren-like, with words of hope—
That promise, sometime, to their ravished eyes,
Beauty, the secret of the universe,
God's thought, that gives the soul eternal peace
Then the voice ceased, and only, throughthe mist,

WILLIAM WINTER.

VANITY.

The shaken roses murmured, and the wind.

THE sun comes up and the sun goes down, And day and night are the same as one; The year grows green, and the year grows brown, And what is it all, when all is done? Grains of sombre or shining sand, Gliding into and out of the hand.

And men go down in ships to the seas, And a hundred ships are the same as one; And backward and forward blows the breeze, And what is it all, when all is done? A tide with never a shore in sight Getting steadily on to the night.

The fisher droppeth his net in the stream,
And a hundred streams are the same as one;
And the maiden dreameth her love-lit dream,
And what is it all, when all is done?
The net of the fisher the burden breaks,
And alway the dreaming the dreamer wakes.

HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.

A PSALM OF LIFE.

Tell me not, in mournful numbers, Life is but an empty dream! For the soul is dead that slumbers, And things are not what they seem.

Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow, Is our destined end or way; But to act, that each to-morrow Find us farther than to-day. Art is long, and Time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still, like muffled drums, are beating
Funeral marches to the grave.

In the world's broad field of battle, In the bivouac of Life, Be not like dumb, driven cattle! Be a hero in the strife!

Trust no Future, howe'er pleasant! Let the dead Past bury its dead! Act, — act in the living Present! Heart within, and God o'erhead!

Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time;—

Footprints, that perhaps another, Sailing o'er life's solemn main, A forlorn and shipwrecked brother, Seeing, shall take heart again.

Let us, then, be up and doing, With a heart for any fate; Still achieving, still pursuing, Learn to labor and to wait.

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

MY LEGACY.

THEY told me I was heir: I turned in haste,
And ran to seek my treasure,
And wondered, as I ran, how it was placed,—
If I should find a measure
Of gold, or if the titles of fair lands
And houses would be laid within my hands.

I journeyed many roads; I knocked at gates; I spoke to each wayfarer
I met, and said, "A heritage awaits
Me. Art not thou the bearer
Of news? some message sent to me whereby
I learn which way my new possessions lie?"

Some asked me in; naught lay beyond their door; Some smiled, and would not tarry, But said that men were just behind who bore More gold than I could carry; And so the morn, the noon, the day, were spent, While empty-handed up and down I went.

At last one cried, whose face I could not see, As through the mists he hasted: "Poor child, what evil ones have hindered thee Till this whole day is wasted? Hath no man told thee that thou art joint heir With one named Christ, who waits the goods to share?"

The one named Christ I sought for many days, In many places vainly; I heard men name his name in many ways; I saw his temples plainly; But they who named him most gave me no sign To find him by, or prove the heirship mine.

And when at last I stood before his face, I knew him by no token Save subtle air of joy which filled the place; Our greeting was not spoken; In solemn silence I received my share, Kneeling before my brother and "joint heir."

My share! No deed of house or spreading lands, As I had dreamed; no measure Heaped up with gold; my elder brother's hands Had never held such treasure. Foxes have holes, and birds in nests are fed: My brother had not where to lay his head.

My share! The right like him to know all pain Which hearts are made for knowing; The right to find in loss the surest gain, To reap my joy from sowing In bitter tears; the right with him to keep A watch by day and night with all who weep.

My share! To-day men call it grief and death; I see the joy and life to-morrow; I thank my Father with my every breath, For this sweet legacy of sorrow; And through my tears I call to each "joint heir" With Christ, "Make haste to ask him for thy share."

HELEN HUNI JACKSON.

SYMPATHY.

FROM "ION," ACT I. SC. 2.

'T is a little thing
To give a cup of water; yet its draught
Of cool refreshment, drained by fevered lips,
May give a shock of pleasure to the frame
More exquisite than when nectarean juice
Renews the life of joy in happier hours.
It is a little thing to speak a phrase
Of common comfort which by daily use
Has almost lost its sense, yet on the ear
Of him who thought to die unmourned 't will fall
Like choicest music, fill the glazing eye
With gentle tears, relax the knotted hand
To know the bonds of fellowship again;
And shed on the departing soul a sense,

More precious than the benison of friends About the honored death-bed of the rich, To him who else were lonely, that another Of the great family is near and feels.

SIR THOMAS NOON TALFOURD

ALEXANDER'S FEAST; OR, THE POWER OF MUSIC.

AN ODE.

'T was at the royal feast, for Persia won
By Philip's warlike son:
Aloft in awful state
The godlike hero sate
On his imperial throne:
His valiant peers were placed around,
Their brows with roses and with myrtles bound

(So should desert in arms be crowned);
The lovely Thais, by his side,
Sate like a blooming Eastern bride
In flower of youth and beauty's pride.

Happy, happy, happy pair!
None but the brave,
None but the brave,
None but the brave deserves the fair.

CHORUS.

Happy, happy, happy pair!
None but the brave,
None but the brave,
None but the brave deserves the fair.

Timotheus, placed on high
Amid the tuneful choir,
With flying fingers touched the lyre;
The trembling notes ascend the sky,
And heavenly joys inspire
The song began from Jove,
Who left his blissful seats above
(Such is the power of mighty love).
A dragon's fiery form behed the god;
Sublime on radiant spires he rode,

When he to fair Olympia pressed,
And while he sought her snowy breast;
Then round her slender waist he curled,
And stamped an image of himself, a sovereign
of the world.

The listening crowd admire the lofty sound, A present deity! they shout around; A present deity! the vaulted roofs rebound.

With ravished ears
The monarch hears,
Assumes the god,
Affects to nod,
And seems to shake the spheres.

CHORUS.

With ravished ears
The monarch hears,
Assumes the god,
Affects to nod,
And seems to shake the spheres.

The praise of Bacchus then the sweet musician sung.

Of Bacchus — ever fair and ever young:
The jolly god in triumph comes;
Sound the trumpets; beat the drums.
Flushed with a purple grace
He shows his honest face:

Now give the hautboys breath. He comes! he comes!

Bacchus, ever fair and young,
Drinking joys did first ordain;
Bacchus' blessings are a treasure,
Drinking is the soldier's pleasure;
Rich the treasure,
Sweet the pleasure,
Sweet is pleasure after pain.

CHORUS.

Bacchus' blessings are a treasure,
Drinking is the soldier's pleasure,
Rich the treasure,
Sweet the pleasure,
Sweet is pleasure after pain.

Soothed with the sound the king grew vain;
Fought all his battles o'er again,
And thrice he routed all his foes, and thrice he slew the slain.

The master saw the madness rise; His glowing cheeks, his ardent eyes; And, while he heaven and earth defied, Changed his hand and checked his pride.

Changed his hand and checked his pride.

He chose a mournful muse,
Soft pity to infuse.

He sung Darius, great and good,
By too severe a fate,
Fallen, fallen, fallen, fallen,
Fallen from his high estate,
And weltering in his blood;
Deserted, at his utmost need,
By those his former bounty fed;
On the bare earth exposed he lies,
With not a friend to close his eyes.
With downcast looks the joyless victor sate,

Revolving in his altered soul

The various turns of chance below;

And, now and then, a sigh he stole;
And tears began to flow.

CHORUS.

Revolving in his altered soul
The various turns of chance below;
And, now and then, a sigh he stole;
And tears began to flow.

The mighty master smiled, to see That love was in the next degree; 'T was but a kindred sound to move, For pity melts the mind to love. Softly sweet, in Lydian measures, Soon he soothed his soul to pleasures. War, he sung, is toil and trouble; Honor, but an empty bubble; Never ending, still beginning, Fighting still, and still destroying If the world be worth thy winning, Think, O, think it worth enjoying ! Lovely Thats sits beside thee, Take the good the gods provide thee. The many rend the skies with loud applause; So Love was crowned, but Music won the cause.

Who caused his care,
And sighed and looked, sighed and looked,
Sighed and looked, and sighed again
At length, with love and wine at once oppressed,
The vanquished victor sunk upon her breast.

The prince, unable to conceal his pain,

Gazed on the fair

CHORUS.

The prince, unable to conceal his pain, Gazed on the fair Who caused his care,

And sighed and looked, sighed and looked, Sighed and looked, and sighed again: At length, with love and wine at once oppressed, The vanguished victor sunk upon her breast.

Now strike the golden lyre again : A louder yet, and yet a louder strain Break his bands of sleep asunder, And rouse him, like a rattling peal of thunder. Hark, hark, the horrid sound Has raised up his head; As awaked from the dead, And amazed, he stares around. Revenge ! revenge ! Timotheus cries, See the furies arise! See the snakes that they rear, How they hiss in their hair, And the sparkles that flash from their eyes ! Behold a ghastly band, Each a torch in his hand! Those are Grecian ghosts, that in battle were slain, And unburied remain,

Inglorious on the plain:

Give the vengeance due
To the valiant crew.
Behold how they toss their torches on high,

How they point to the Persian abodes, And glittering temples of their hostile gods ' The princes applaud with a furious joy; And the king seized a flambeau with zeal to destroy:

Thais led the way,
To light him to his prey,
And, like another Helen, fired another Troy!

CHORUS.

And the king serzed a flambeau with zeal to destroy ·

Thais led the way, To light him to his prey, And, like another Helen, fired another Troy!

Thus, long ago,
Ere heaving bellows learned to blow,
While organs yet were mute;
Timotheus, to his breathing flute,
And sounding lyre,

Could swell the soul to rage, or kindle soft desire.

At last divine Cecilis came,
Inventress of the vocal frame;
The sweet enthusiast, from her sacred store,

Enlarged the former narrow bounds,
And added length to solemn sounds,
With nature's mother-wit, and arts unknown

Let old Timothens yield the prize, Or both divide the crown; He raised a mortal to the skies, She drew an angel down.

before.

GRAND CHORUS.

At last divine Cecilia came,
Inventress of the vocal frame;
The sweet enthusiast, from her sacred store,
Enlarged the former varrow bounds,
And added length to solemn sounds,
With nature's mother-wit, and arts unknown
before.

Let old Timotheus yield the prize, Or both divide the crown; He raised a mortal to the skies, She drew an angel down.

JOHN DRYDEN.

INVOCATION.

FROM "THE DAVIDEIS."

AWAKE, awake, my Lyre!
And tell thy silent master's humble tale
In sounds that may prevail;
Sounds that gentle thoughts inspire:

Though so exalted she,
And I so lowly be,
Tell her, such different notes make all thy harmony.

Hark! how the strings awake:
And, though the moving hand approach not near,
Themselves with awful fear
A kind of numerous trembling make.
Now all thy forces try;
Now all thy charms apply;
Revenge upon her ear the conquests of her eye.

Weak Lyre! thy virtue sure
Is useless here, since thou art only found
To cure, but not to wound,
And she to wound, but not to cure.
Too weak, too, wilt thou prove
My passion to remove;
Physic to other ills, thou 'rt nourishment to love.

Sleep, sleep again, my Lyre'
For thou canst never tell my humble tale
In sounds that will prevail,
Nor gentle thoughts in her inspire;
All thy vain mirth lay by,
Bid thy strings silent lie,
Sleep, sleep again, my Lyre, and let thy master die.

ABRAHAM COWLEY.

THE PASSIONS.

AN ODE FOR MUSIC

WHEN Music, heavenly maid, was young, While yet in early Greece she sung, The Passions oft, to hear her shell, Thronged around her magic cell, -Exulting, trembling, raging, fainting, -Possessed beyond the muse's painting; By turns they felt the glowing mind Disturbed, delighted, raised, refined; Till once, 't is said, when all were fired, Filled with fury, rapt, inspired, From the supporting myrtles round They snatched her instruments of sound; And, as they oft had heard apart Sweet lessons of her forceful art, Each (for madness ruled the hour) Would prove his own expressive power.

First Fear his hand, its skill to try,
Amid the chords bewildered laid,
And back recoiled, he knew not why,
E'en at the sound himself had made.

Next Auger rushed; his eyes, on fire, In lightnings owned his secret stings: In one rude clash he struck the lyre, And swept with hurried hand the strings.

With woful measures wan Despair,
Low, sullen sounds, his grief beguiled,—
A solemn, strange, and mingled air;
'T was sad by fits, by starts 't was wild.

But thou, O Hope, with eyes so fair, —
What was thy delightful measure?
Still it whispered promised pleasure,
And bade the lovely scenes at distance hail!
Still would her touch the strain prolong;
And from the rocks, the woods, the vale,
She called ou Echo still, through all the song;
And where her sweetest theme she chose,
A soft responsive voice was heard at every close;
And Hope, enchanted, smiled, and waved her golden hair.

And longer had she sung — but, with a frown, Revenge impatient rose;

He threw his blood-stained sword in thunder down;

And, with a withering look,
The war-denouncing trumpet took,
And blew a blast so loud and dread,
Were ne'er prophetic sounds so full of woe!
And ever and anon he beat
The doubling drum with furious heat;
And though, sometimes, each dreary pause between,

Dejected Pity, at his side,
Her soul-subduing voice applied,
Yet still he kept his wild, unaltered mien,
While each strained ball of sight seemed bursting from his head.

Thy numbers, Jealousy, to naught were fixed,— Sad proof of thy distressful state; Of differing themes the veering song was mixed; And now it courted Love, — now, raving,

With eyes upraised, as one inspired, Pale Melancholy sate retired; And from her wild sequestered seat, In notes by distance made more sweet, called on Hate.

Poured through the mellow horn her pensive soul:

And, dashing soft from rocks around, Bubbling runnels joined the sound; Through glades and glooms the mingled measure stole:

Or o'er some haunted stream, with fond delay, Round an holy calm diffusing, Love of peace, and lonely musing, In hollow murmurs died away. But O, how altered was its sprightlier tone When Cheerfulness, a nymph of healthiest hue, Her bow across her shoulder flung, Her buskins gemmed with morning dew,

Blew an inspiring air, that dale and thicket rung,

The hunter's call, to faun and dryad known! The oak-crowned sisters, and their chaste-eyed queen, Satyrs and sylvan boys, were seen Feeping from forth their alleys green: Brown Exercise rejoiced to hear; And Sport leapt up, and seized his beechen spear.

Last came Joy's ecstatic trial: He, with viny crown advancing, First to the lively pipe his hand addrest; But soon he saw the brisk-awakening viol, Whose sweet entrancing voice he loved the best; They would have thought, who heard the strain, They saw, in Tempe's vale, her native maids Amidst the festal-sounding shades.

To some unwearied minstrel dancing, While, as his flying fingers kissed the strings, Love framed with Mirth a gay fantastic round: Loose were her tresses seen, her zone unbound;

And he, amidst his frolic play, As if he would the charming air repay, Shook thousand odors from his dewy wings.

O Music! sphere-descended maid, Friend of pleasure, wisdom's aid! Why, goddess, why, to us denied, Lay'st thou thy ancient lyre aside? As, in that loved Athenian bower, You learned an all-commanding power, Thy mimic soul, O nymph endeared, Can well recall what then it heard.

Where is thy native simple heart, Devote to virtue, fancy, art? Arise, as in that elder time, Warm, energetic, chaste, sublime! Thy wonders, in that godlike age, Fill thy recording sister's page; 'T is said — and I believe the tale — Thy humblest reed could more prevail, Had more of strength, diviner rage, Than all which charms this laggard age, -E'en all at once together found, -Cecilia's mingled world of sound. bid our vain endeavors cease; Revive the just designs of Greece! Return in all thy simple state, -Confirm the tales her sons relate!

WILLIAM COLLINS.

THE NIGHTINGALE'S SONG.

FROM "MUSIC'S DUEL."

Now westward Sol had spent the richest beams Of noon's high glory, when, hard by the streams Of Tiber, on the scene of a green plat, Under protection of an oak, there sat A sweet lute's-master, in whose gentle airs He lost the day's heat and his own hot cares.

Close in the covert of the leaves there stood A nightingale, come from the neighboring wood (The sweet inhabitant of each glad tree. Their muse, their siren, harmless siren she): There stood she listening, and did entertain The music's soft report, and mould the same In her own murmurs; that whatever mood His curious fingers lent, her voice made good.

This lesson too

She gives them back; her supple breast thrills

Sharp airs, and staggers in a warbling doubt Of dallying sweetness, hovers o'er her skill, And folds in waved notes, with a trembling bill, The plant series of her slippery song : Then starts she suddenly into a throng Of short thick sobs, whose thundering volleys

And roll themselves over her lubric throat In panting murmurs, stilled out of her breast; That ever-bubbling spring, the sugared nest Of her delicious soul, that there does lie Bathing in streams of liquid melody; Music's best seed-plot; when in ripened airs A golden-headed harvest fairly rears His honey-dropping tops ploughed by her breath Which there reciprocally laboreth. In that sweet soil it seems a holy quire, Sounded to the name of great Apollo's lyre; Whose silver roof rings with the sprightly notes Of sweet-lipped angel-imps, that swill their throats

In cream of morning Helicon, and then Prefer soft anthems to the ears of men. To woo them from their beds, still murmuring That men can sleep while they their matins sing (Most divine service), whose so early lay Prevents the eyelids of the blushing day. There might you hear her kindle her soft voice In the close murmur of a sparkling noise; And lay the groundwork of her hopeful song. Still keeping in the forward stream so long, Till a sweet whirlwind (striving to get out) Heaves her soft bosom, wanders round about, And makes a pretty earthquake in her breast, Till the fledged notes at length forsake their nest, Fluttering in wanton shoals, and to the sky, Winged with their own wild echoes, prattling fly.

She opes the floodgate, and lets loose a tide Of streaming sweetness, which in state doth ride On the waved back of every swelling strain, Rising and falling in a pompous train; And while she thus discharges a shrill peal Of flashing airs, she qualifies their zeal With the cool epode of a graver note; Thus high, thus low, as if her silver throat Would reach the brazen voice of war's hoarse bird; Her little soul is ravished, and so poured Into loose cestasies, that she is placed Above herself, music's enthusiast.

RICHARD CRASHAW

A SONG FOR ST. CECILIA'S DAY, 1687.

From harmony, from heavenly harmony,
This universal frame began;
When Nature underneath a heap
Of jarring atoms lay,
And could not heave her head,
The tuneful voice was heard from high,
Arise, ye more than dead '
Then cold and hot, and moist and dry,
In order to their stations leap,
And Music's power obey.
From harmony, from heavenly harmony,
This universal frame began:
From harmony to harmony,
Through all the compass of the notes it ran,
The diapason closing full in man.

What passion cannot Music raise and quell?

When Jubal struck the chorded shell,
His listening brethren stood around,
And, wondering, on their faces fell,
To worship that celestial sound.
Less than a God they thought there could not dwell
Within the hollow of that shell,
That spoke so sweetly and so well.
What passion cannot Music raise and quell?

The trumpet's loud clangor
Excites us to arms,
With shrill notes of anger,
And mortal alarms.
The double double double beat
Of the thundering drum
Cries, Hark! the foes come;
Charge, charge, 't is too late to retreat!

The soft complaining flute
In dying notes discovers
The woes of hopeless lovers,
Whose dirge is whispered by the warbling lute.

Sharp violins proclaim
Their jealous pangs, and desperation,
Fury, frantic indignation,
Depth of pains, and height of passion
For the fair, disdainful dame.
But O, what art can teach,
What human voice can reach,
The sacred organ's praise?
Notes inspiring holy love,
Notes that wing their heavenly ways
To mend the choirs above.

Orpheus could lead the savage race;
And trees uprooted left their place,
Sequacious of the lyre;
But bright Cecilia raised the wonder higher;
When to her organ vocal breath was given,
An angel heard, and straight appeared
Mistaking earth for heaven.

GRAND CHORUS.

As from the power of sacred lays
The spheres began to move,
And sung the great Creator's praise
To all the blessed above;
So, when the last and dreadful hour
This crumbling pageant shall deveur,
The trumpet shall be heard on high,
The dead shall live, the living dic,
And Music shall untune the sky.

IOHN DRYDEN.

MUSIC.

FROM "THE MERCHANT OF VENICE," ACT V SC. 1

LORENZO. How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!

Here will we sit, and let the sounds of music Creep in our ears: soft stillness, and the night, Become the touches of sweet harmony.

Sit, Jessica · look, how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold:

There's not the smallest orb which thou behold'st,

But in his motion like an angel sings, Still quiring to the young-eyed cherubins; Such harmomy is in immortal souls. But whilst this muddy vesture of decay Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it.

JESSICA. I am never merry when I hear sweet music.

Los. The reason is your spirits are attentive.

Therefore the poet

Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods;

Since naught so stockish, hard, and full of rage, But music for the time doth change his nature. The man that hath no music in himself, Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils; The motions of his spirit are dull as night, And his affections dark as Erebus:

Let no such man be trusted.

SHAKESPEARE.

то -----.

Music, when soft voices die, Vibrates in the memory, — Odors, when sweet violets sicken, Live within the sense they quicken.

Rose-leaves, when the rose is dead, Are heaped for the beloved's bed, And so thy thoughts, when thou art gone, Love itself shall slumber on.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY

MAN.

FROM "NIGHT THOUGHTS," NIGHT I.

How poor, how rich, how abject, how august, How complicate, how wonderful, is man! How passing wonder He who made him such! Who centred in our make such strange extremes, From different natures marvellously mixed, Connection exquisite of distant worlds! Distinguished link in being's endless chain! Midway from nothing to the Deity! A beam ethereal, sullied, and absorpt ! Though sullied and dishonored, still divine! Dim miniature of greatness absolute! An heir of glory! a frail child of dust! Helpless immortal! insect infinite! A worm ' a god ! - I tremble at myself, And in myself am lost. At home a stranger, Thought wanders up and down, surprised, aghast, And wondering at her own. How reason reels! O, what a miracle to man is man! Triumphantly distressed! What joy! what dread! Alternately transported and alarmed! What can preserve my life? or what destroy? An angel's arm can't snatch me from the grave; Legions of angels can't confine me there.

DR EDWARD YOUNG.

MAN - WOMAN.

Man's home is everywhere. On ocean's flood,
Where the strong ship with storm-defying tether
Doth link in stormy brotherhood
Earth's utmost zones together,

Where'er the red gold glows, the spice-trees wave, Where the rich diamond ripens, mid the flame Of vertic suns that ope the stranger's grave,

He with bronzed cheek and daring step doth rove:

He, with short pang and slight,

Doth turn him from the checkered light

Of the fair moon through his own forests dancing.

Where music, joy, and love

Were his young hours entrancing;

And where ambition's thunder-claim Points out his lot.

Or fitful wealth allures to roam,

There doth he make his home, Repining not.

It is not thus with Woman. The far halls, Though ruinous and lone,

Where first her pleased ear drank a nursingmother's tone;

The home with humble walls,
Where breathed a parent's prayer around her

The valley where, with playmates true, She culled the strawberry, bright with dew; The bower where Love her timid footsteps led; The hearthstone where her children grew;

The damp soil where she cast
The flower-seeds of her hope, and saw them bide
the blast.—

Affection with unfading tint recalls,
Lingering round the ivied walls,
Where every lose hath in its cup a bee,
Making fresh honey of remembered things,
Each rose without a thorn, each bee bereft of stings.

LYDIA HUNTLEY SIGOURNEY.

WOMAN.

THERE in the fane a beauteous creature stands,
The first best work of the ('reator's hands,
Whose slender limbs inadequately bear
A full-orbed bosom and a weight of care;
Whose teeth like pearls, whose lips like cherries,
show,

And fawn-like eyes still tremble as they glow.

From the Sanskrit of CALIDASA. Translation of WII SON.

APRÈS.

Down, down, Ellen, my little one, Climbing so tenderly up to my knee; Why should you add to the thoughts that are taunting me,

Dreams of your mother's arms clinging to me?

Cease, cease, Ellen, my little one,
Warbling so fairily close to my ear;
Why should you choose, of all songs that are haunting me,

This that I made for your mother to hear?

Hush, hush, Ellen, my little one,
Wailing so wearily under the stars;
Why should I think of her tears, that might light to me
Love that had made life, and sorrow that mars?

Sleep, sleep, Ellen, my little one '
Is she not like her whenever she stirs?
Has she not eyes that will soon be as bright to me,
Lips that will some day be honeyed like hers?

Yes, yes, Ellen, my little one,
Though her white bosom is stilled in the grave,
Something more white than her bosom is spared
to me. —

Something to cling to and something to crave.

Love, love, Ellen, my little one!
Love indestructible, love undefiled,
Love through all deeps of her spirit lies bared
to me,

Oft as I look on the face of her child.

FORTUNE.

FROM "FANNY."

BUT Fortune, like some others of her sex,
Delights in tantalizing and tormenting.
One day we feed upon their smiles, — the next
Is spent in swearing, sorrowing, and repenting.

Eve never walked in Paradise more pure
Than on that morn when Satan played the devil
With her and all her race. A lovesick wooer Ne'er asked a kinder maiden, or more civil,
Than Cleopatra was to Antony
The day she left him on the Ionian sea.

The serpent — loveliest in his coiled ring,
With eye that charms, and beauty that outvies
The tints of the rainbow — bears upon his sting
The deadliest venom. Ere the dolphin dies

The deadliest venom. Ere the dolphin dies
Its hues are brightest. Like an infant's breath
Are tropic winds before the voice of death

Is heard upon the waters, summoning
The midnight earthquake from its sleep of years
To do its task of woe. The clouds that fling
The lightning brighten ere the bolt appears;

The pantings of the warrior's heart are proud Upon that battle-morn whose night-dews wet his shroud:

The sun is loveliest as he sinks to rest;

The leaves of autumn smile when fading fast; The swan's last song is sweetest.

FITZ-GREENE HALLECK.

ENID'S SONG.

FROM "IDYLS OF THE KING"

TURN, Fortune, turn thy wheel and lower the proud;

Turn thy wild wheel through sunshine, storm, and cloud;

Thy wheel and thee we neither love nor hate.

Turn, Fortune, turn thy wheel with smile or frown:

With that wild wheel we go not up or down; Our hoard is little, but our hearts are great.

Smile and we smile, the lords of many lands; Frown and we smile, the lords of our own hands; For man is man and master of his fate.

Turn, turn thy wheel above the staring crowd Thy wheel and thou are shadows in the cloud; Thy wheel and thee we neither love nor hate

ALFRID TINNISON

EXCELSIOR.

THE shades of night were falling fast,
As through an Alpine village passed
A youth, who bore, 'mid snow and ice,
A banner with the strange device —

Excelsior!

His brow was sad; his eye beneath
Flashed like a falchion from its sheath;
And like a silver clarion rung
The accents of that unknown tongue —
Excelsior!

In happy homes he saw the light
Of household fires gleam warm and bright.
Above, the spectral glaciers shone,
And from his lips escaped a groan—
Excelsior!

"Try not the pass," the old man said:
"Dark lowers the tempest overhead;
The roaring torrent is deep and wide!"
And loud that clarion voice replied,
Excelsior!

"O stay," the maiden said, "and rest Thy weary head upon this breast!" A tear stood in his bright blue eye, But still he answered, with a sigh, Excelsior!

"Beware the pine-tree's withered branch!
Beware the awful avalanche!"
This was the peasant's last good-night:
A voice replied, far up the height,
Excelsior!

At break of day, as heavenward
The pious monks of Saint Bernard
Uttered the oft-repeated prayer,
A voice cried, through the startled air.
Excelsior!

A traveller, by the faithful hound, Half buried in the snow was found, Still grasping in his hand of ice That banner with the strange device— Excelsior!

There in the twilight cold and gray, Lifeless, but beautiful, he lay, And from the sky, serene and far, A voice fell, like a falling star— Excelsior!

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

THE GIFTS OF GOD.

WHEN God at first made man, Having a glass of blessings standing by, Let us (said he) pour on him all we can: Let the world's riches, which dispersed lie, Contract into a span.

So strength first made a way;
Then beauty flowed, then wisdom, honor, pleasure:
When almost all was out, God made a stay,
Perceiving that, alone, of all his treasure,
Rest in the bottom lay.

For if I should (said he)
Bestow this jewel also on my creature,
He would adore my gifts instead of me,
And rest in Nature, not the God of Nature:
So both should losers be.

Yet let him keep the rest,
But keep them with repining restlessness:
Let him be rich and weary, that, at least,
If goodness lead him not, yet weariness
May toes him to my breast.

GEORGE HERBERT,

A RIDDLE.*

THE LETTER "H."

'T was in heaven pronounced, and 't was muttered in hell,

And echo caught faintly the sound as it fell;
On the confines of earth 't was permitted to rest,
And the depths of the ocean its presence con-

'T will be found in the sphere when 't is riven asunder.

Be seen in the lightning and heard in the thunder.
'T was allotted to man with his earliest breath,
Attends him at birth, and awaits him in death,
Presides o'er his happiness, honor, and health,
Is the prop of his house, and the end of his wealth.
In the heaps of the miser 't is hoarded with care,
But is sure to be lost on his prodigal heir.
It begins every hope, every wish it must bound,
With the husbandman toils, and with monarchs is crowned.

Without it the soldier, the seaman may roam, But woe to the wretch who expels it from home! In the whispers of conscience its voice will be

Nor e'en in the whirlwind of passion be drowned. 'T will not soften the heart; but though deaf be the ear.

It will make it acutely and instantly hear.
Yet in shade let it rest, like a delicate flower,
Ah, breathe on it softly, — it dies in an hour.
CATHARINE LANSHAND

FATHER LAND AND MOTHER TONGUE.

Our Father Land! and wouldst thou know
Why we should call it Father Land?
It is that Adam here below
Was made of earth by Nature's hand;
And he, our father made of earth,
Hath peopled earth on every hand;
And we, in memory of his birth,
Do call our country Father Land.

At first, in Eden's bowers, they say,
No sound of speech had Adam caught,
But whistled like a bird all day, —
And maybe 't was for want of thought:
But Nature, with resistless laws,
Made Adam soon surpass the birds;
She gave him lovely Eve because
If he 'd a wife they must have words.

And so the native land, I hold,
By male descent is proudly mine;
The language, as the tale hath told,
Was given in the female line.

. Sometimes attributed to Byron.

And thus we see on either hand
We name our blessings whence they've sprung;
We call our country Father Land,

We call our language Mother Tongue.

SAMUEL LOVER.

SMALL BEGINNINGS.

A TRAVELLER through a dusty road strewed acorns on the lea;

And one took root and sprouted up, and grew into a tree.

Love sought its shade, at evening time, to breathe its early vows;

And age was pleased, in heats of noon, to bask beneath its boughs,

The dormouse loved its dangling twigs, the birds sweet music bore,

It stood a glory in its place, a blessing evermore.

A little spring had lost its way amid the grass and fern,

A passing stranger scooped a well, where weary men might turn;

He walled it in, and hung with care a ladle at the brink;

He thought not of the deed he did, but judged that toil might drink.

He passed again, and lo! the well, by summers never dried,

Had cooled ten thousand parching tongues, and saved a life beside.

A dreamer dropped a random thought; 't was old, and yet 't was new;

A simple fancy of the brain, but strong in being true.

It shone upon a genial mind, and lo! its light became

A lamp of life, a beacon ray, a monitory flame. The thought was small; its issue great; a watchfire on the hill,

It skeds its radiance far adown, and cheers the valley still!

A nameless man, amid a crowd that thronged the daily mart,

Let fall a word of Hope and Love, unstudied, from the heart;

A whisper on the tumult thrown, — a transitory breath. —

It raised a brother from the dust; it saved a soul from death.

O germ! O fount! O word of love! O thought at random cast!

Ye were but little at the first, but mighty at the last.

CHARLES MACKAY.

THE RULING PASSION.

FROM "MORAL ESSAYS,' EPISILE I.

Search thou the ruling passion; there, alone, The wild are constant, and the cunning known; The fool consistent and the false sincere; Priests, princes, women, no dissemblers here.

In this the lust, in that the avarice, Were means, not ends; ambition was the vice.

In this one passion man can strength enjoy, As fits give vigor just when they destroy. Time, that on all things lays his lenient hand, Yet tames not this; it sticks to our last sand. Consistent in our follies and our sins, Here honest Nature ends as she begins.

Old politicians chew on wisdom past, And totter on in business to the last; As weak, as earnest; and as gravely out, As sober Lanesborough dancing in the gout.

Behold a reverend sire, whom want of grace Has made the father of a nameless race, Shoved from the wall perhaps, or rudely pressed By his own son, that passes by unblessed Still to his wench he crawls on knocking knees, And envies every sparrow that he sees.

A salmon's belly, Helluo, was thy fate.
The doctor, called, declares all help too late.
"Mercy!" cries Helluo, "mercy on my soul!
Is there no hope?—Alas!—then bring the jowl."

The frugal crone, whom praying priests attend, Still tries to save the hallowed taper's end, Collects her breath, as ebbing life retires, For one puff more, and in that puff expires.

"Odious! in woollen! 't would a saint provoke,"

Were the last words that poor Narcissa spoke;
"No, let a charming chintz and Brussels lace
Wrap my cold limbs, and shade my lifeless face:
One would not, sure, be frightful when one's dead,—

And — Betty — give this cheek a little red."

The courtier smooth, who forty years had shined

An humble servant to all human-kind, Just brought out this, when scarce his tongue could stir,

"If — where I'm going —I could serve you, sir?"

"If — where I'm going — I could serve you, sir "
"I give and I devise" (old Euclio said,

And sighed) "my lands and tenements to Ned."
Your money, sir? "My money, sir! what, all?
Why — if I must" (then wept) — "I give it Paul."

The manor, sir? "The manor, hold!" he cried, "Not that, —I cannot part with that," — and died.

And you, brave Cobham! to the latest breath
Shall feel your ruling passion strong in death;
Such in those moments as in all the past,
"O, save my country, Heaven!" shall be your last.

ALEXANDER POPE.

CONTRADICTION.

FROM "CONVERSATION."

YE powers who rule the tongue, if such there are,

And make colloquial happiness your care, Preserve me from the thing I dread and hate. A duel in the form of a debate. The clash of arguments and jar of words, Worse than the mortal brunt of rival swords, Decide no question with their tedious length, For opposition gives opinion strength, Divert the champions prodigal of breath, And put the peacefully disposed to death. O, thwart me not, Sir Soph, at every turn, Nor carp at every flaw you may discein! Though syllogisms hang not on my tongue, I am not surely always in the wrong; "I is hard if all is false that I advance, A fool must now and then be right by chance. Not that all freedom of dissent I blame; No, — there I grant the privilege I claim. A disputable point is no man's ground; Rove where you please, 't is common all around. Discourse may want an animated No, To brush the surface, and to make it flow; But still remember, if you mean to please, To press your point with modesty and ease. The mark at which my juster aim I take, Is contradiction for its own dear sake. Set your opinion at whatever pitch Knots and impediments make something hitch: Adopt his own, 't is equally in vain, Your thread of argument is snapped again. The wrangler, rather than accord with you, Will judge himself deceived, and prove it too. Vociferated logic kills me quite; A noisy man is always in the right. I twirl my thumbs, fall back into my chair, Fix on the wainscot a distressful stare, And, when I hope his blunders are all out, Reply discreetly, - "To be sure - no doubt!"

DUELLING.

WILLIAM COWPER.

FROM "CONVERSATION."

THE point of honor has been deemed of use, To teach good manners, and to curb abuse; Admit it true, the consequence is clear, Our polished manners are a mask we wear,

And, at the bottom, barbarous still and rude, We are restrained, indeed, but not subdued. The very remedy, however sure, Springs from the mischief it intends to cure. And savage in its principle appears, Tried, as it should be, by the fruit it bears. 'T is hard, indeed, if nothing will defend Mankind from quarrels but their fatal end : That now and then a hero must decease, That the surviving world may live in peace. Perhaps at last close scrutiny may show The practice dastardly and mean and low; That men engage in it compelled by force, And fear, not courage, is its proper source; The fear of tyrant custom, and the fear Lest fops should censure us, and fools should

At least, to trample on our Maker's laws, And hazard life for any or no cause. To rush into a fixed eternal state Out of the very flames of rage and hate, Or send another shivering to the bar With all the guilt of such unnatural war, Whatever Use may urge, or Honor plead, On Reason's verdict is a madman's deed. Am I to set my life upon a throw Because a bear is rude and surly 7 No, -A moral, sensible, and well-bred man Will not affront me; and no other can. Were I empowered to regulate the lists, They should encounter with well-loaded fists; A Trojan combat would be something new, Let Dares beat Entellus black and blue; Then each might show, to his admiring friends. In honorable bumps his rich amends, And carry, in contusions of his skull, A satisfactory receipt in full.

WILLIAM COWPER.

FAME.

FROM "AN ESSAY ON MAN," EPISTLE IV

What's fame?—a fancied life in others' breath,

A thing beyond us, e'en before our death.

Just what you hear, you have; and what's un

The same (my lord) if Tully's, or your own.

All that we feel of it begins and ends
In the small circle of our foes or friends;
To all beside, as much an empty shade
A Eugene living as a Cæsar dead;
Alike or when or where they shone or shine,
Or on the Rubicon, or on the Rhine.
A wit's a feather, and a chief a rod;
An nonest man's the noblest work of God.

Fame but from death a villain's name can save, As justice tears his body from the grave; When what to oblivion better were resigned Is hung on high, to poison half mankind. All fame is foreign, but of true desert; Plays round the head, but comes not to the heart: One self-approving hour whole years outweighs Of stupid starers and of loud huzzas; And more true joy Marcellus exiled feels Than Cæsar with a senate at his heels.

ALEXANDER POPE.

FAME.

HER house is all of Echo made
Where never dies the sound;
And as her brows the clouds invade,
Her feet do strike the ground.

Ben Jonson

PERSEVERANCE

In facile natures fancies quickly grow,
But such quick fancies have but little root.
Soon the narcissus flowers and dies, but slow
The tree whose blossoms shall mature to fruit.
Grace is a moment's happy feeling, Power
A life's slow growth; and we for many an hour
Must strain and toil, and wait and weep, if we
The perfect fruit of all we are would see.

From the Italian of LEONARDO DA VINCI Translation of W. W STURY.

GREATNESS.

FROM "AN ESSAY ON MAN," EPISTLE IV.

Honor and shame from no condition rise;
Act well your part, there all the honor lies.
Fortune in men has some small difference made,
One flaunts in rags, one flutters in brocade;
The cobbler aproned, and the parson gowned,
The friar hooded, and the monarch crowned.
"What differ more (you cry) than crown and cowl?"

I'll tell you, friend; a wise man and a fool. You'll find, if once the monarch acts the monk Or, cobbler-like, the parson will be drunk, Worth makes the man, and want of it the fellow; The rest is all but leather or prunella.

Stuck o'er with titles, and hung round with strings,

That thou mayst be by kings, or whores of kings; Boast the pure blood of an illustrious race, In quiet flow from Lucrece to Lucrece; But by your fathers' worth if yours you rate, Count me those only who were good and great. Go! if your ancient but ignoble blood Has crept through scoundrels ever since the flood, Go! and pretend your family is young, Nor own your fathers have been fools so long. What can ennoble sots, or slaves, or cowards! Alas! not all the blood of all the Howards.

Who wickedly is wise, or madly brave,
Is but the more a fool, the more a knave.
Who noble ends by noble means obtains,
Or, failing, similes in exile or in chains,
Like good Aurelius let him reign, or bleed
Like Socrates, that man is great indeed.

ALEXANDER POPE.

REASON AND INSTINCT.

FROM "AN ESSAY ON MAN," EPISILE III
WHETHER with reason or with instinct blest,

Know, all enjoy that power which suits them best,

To bliss alike by that direction tend,

And find the means proportioned to their end. Say, where full instinct is the uneiring guide, What pope or council can they need beside? Reason, however able, cool at best, Cares not for service, or but serves when prest, Stays till we call, and then not often near, But honest instinct comes a volunteer, Sure never to o'ershoot, but just to hit, While still too wide or short is human wit. Sure by quick nature happiness to gain, Which heavier reason labous at in vain. This too serves always, reason never long; One must go right, the other may go wrong. See then the acting and comparing powers One in their nature, which are two m ours; And reason raise o'er instinct as you can. In this 't is God directs, in that 't is man. Who taught the nations of the field and wood To shun their poison and to choose then food? Prescient, the tides or tempests to withstand, Build on the wave, or arch beneath the sand ? Who made the spider parallels design, Sure as De Moivre, without rule or line? Who bid the stork, Columbus-like, explore Heavens not his own, and worlds unknown before! Who calls the council, states the certain day, Who forms the phalanx, and who points the way: ALEXANDER POPE

SCANDAL.

FROM "EPISTLE TO DR ARBUTHNOT," BEING THE "PRO LOGUE TO THE SATIRES"

CURSED be the verse, how well soe'er it flow, That tends to make one worthy man my foc, Give virtue scandal. innocence a fear, Or from the soft-eyed virgin steal a tear!

But he who hurts a harmless neighbor's peace, Insults fallen worth, or beauty in distress, Who loves a lie, lame slander helps about, Who writes a libel, or who copies out ; That fop whose pride affects a patron's name, Yet absent wounds an author's honest fame : Who can your merit selfishly approve, And show the sense of it without the love; Who has the vanity to call you friend, Yet wants the honor, injured, to defend; Who tells whate'er you think, whate'er you

And, if he lie not, must at least betray ; Who to the Dean and silver bell can swear, And sees at Canons what was never there; Who reads but with a lust to misapply, Make satire a lampoon, and fiction lie; A lash like mine no honest man shall dread, But all such babbling blockheads in his stead.

ALEXANDER POPE.

HUMANITY.

FROM "THE WINTER WALK AT NOON:"
"THE TASK," BOOK VI.

I would not enter on my list of friends (Though graced with polished manners and fine sense, Yet wanting sensibility) the man Who needlessly sets foot upon a worm. An inadvertent step may crush the snail That crawls at evening in the public path; But he that has humanity, forewarned, Will tread aside, and let the reptile live. The creeping vermin, loathsome to the sight, And charged perhaps with venom, that intrudes, A visitor unwelcome, into scenes Sacred to neatness and repose, the alcove, The chamber, or refectory, may die: A necessary act incurs no blame. Not so when, held within their proper bounds, And guiltless of offence, they range the air, Or take their pastime in the spacious field : There they are privileged; and he that hunts Or harms them there is guilty of a wrong, Disturbs the economy of Nature's realm, Who, when she formed, designed them an abode. The sum is this: If man's convenience, health, Or safety interfere, his rights and claims Are paramount, and must extinguish theirs. Else they are all — the meanest things that are — As free to live, and to enjoy that life, As God was free to form them at the first, Who in his sovereign wisdom made them all. Ye, therefore, who love mercy, teach your sons

To love it too.

WILLIAM COWPER.

OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

FROM "PROVERBIAL PHILOSOPHY."

SHAME upon thee, savage monarch-man, proud monopolist of reason:

Shame upon creation's lord, the fierce ensanguined despot:

What, man! are there not enough, hunger and diseases and fatigue, -

And yet must thy goad or thy thong add another sorrow to existence?

What ' art thou not content thy sin hath dragged down suffering and death

On the poor dumb servants of thy comfort, and yet must thou rack them with thy spite?

The prodigal heir of creation hath gambled away his all, -

Shall he add torment to the bondage that is galling his forfeit serfs?

The leader in nature's pean himself hath marred her psaltery, -

Shall he multiply the din of discord by overstraining all the strings?

The rebel hath fortified his stronghold, shutting in his vassals with him, -

Shall he aggravate the woes of the besieged by oppression from within ?

Thou twice-deformed image of thy Maker, thou hateful representative of Love,

For very shame be merciful, be kind unto the creatures thou hast ruined !

Earth and her million tribes are cursed for thy

Earth and her million tribes still writhe beneath thy cruelty:

Liveth there but one among the million that shall not bear witness against thee,

A pensioner of land or air or sea that hath not whereof it will accuse thee?

From the elephant toiling at a launch, to the shrew-mouse in the harvest-field,

From the whale which the harpooner hath stricken, to the minnow caught upon a pin,

From the albatross wearied in its flight, to the wren in her covered nest,

From the death-moth and lace-winged dragon-fly to the lady-bird and the gnat,

The verdict of all things is unanimous, finding their master cruel:

The dog, thy humble friend, thy trusting, honest friend; The ass, thine uncomplaining slave, drudging from morn till even :

The lamb, and the timorous hare, and the laboring ox at plough;

The speckled trout basking in the shallow, and the partridge gleaning in the stubble,

And the stag at bay, and the worm in thy path, and the wild bird pining in captivity,

And all things that minister alike to thy life and thy comfort and thy pride,

Testify with one sad voice that man is a cruel master.

MARIIN FARQUHAR TUPPER

PLEA FOR THE ANIMALS.

FROM "THE SEASONS : SPRING "

Ensanguined man

Is now become the lion of the plain,

And worse. The wolf, who from the nightly fold

Fierce drags the bleating prey, ne'er drunk her milk,

Nor wore her warming fleece; nor has the steer, At whose strong chest the deadly tiger hangs, E'er ploughed for him. They too are tempered high,

With hunger stung and wild necessity;
Nor lodges pity in their shaggy breast.
But man, whom nature formed of milder clay,
With every kind emotion in his heart,
And taught alone to weep, — while from her lap
She pours ten thousand delicacies, herbs,
And fruits as numerous as the drops of rain
Or beams that gave them birth, — shall he, fair form!

Who wears sweet smiles, and looks creet on heaven,

E'er stoop to mingle with the prowling herd, And dip his tongue in gore ⁷ The beast of prey, Blood-stained, deserves to bleed; but you, ye flocks.

What have ye done? ye peaceful people, what, To ment death? you who have given us milk In luscious streams, and lent us your own coat Against the winter's cold? And the plain ox, That harmless, honest, guileless animal, In what has he offended? he whose toil, Patient and ever-ready, clothes the land With all the pomp of harvest, — shall he bleed, And struggling groan beneath the cruel hand, Even of the clown he feeds? and that, perhaps, To swell the riot of the autumnal feast, Won by his labor?

JAMES THOMSON.

QUACK MEDICINES.

FROM "THE BOROUGH."

But now our Quacks are gamesters, and they play

With craft and skill to ruin and betray; With monstrous promise they delude the mind, And thrive on all that tortures human-kind. Void of all honor, avaricious, rash,
The daring tribe compound their boasted trash,— Tincture or syrup, lotion, drop or pill;
All tempt the sick to trust the lying bill;
And twenty names of cobblers turned to squires
Aid the bold language of these blushless liars.
There are among them those who cannot read,
And yet they'll buy a patent, and succeed;
Will dare to promise dying sufferers aid.
For who, when dead, can threaten or upbraid?
With cruel avarice still they recommend
More draughts, more syrup, to the journey's end.
"I feel it not." "Then take it every hour."
"It makes me worse." "Why, then it shows its power."

"I fear to die." "Let not your spirits sink, You're always safe while you believe and drink."

Troubled with something in your bile or blood, You think your doctor does you little good; And, grown impatient, you require in haste The nervous cordial, nor dislike the taste; It comforts, heals, and strengthens; nay, you think

It makes you better every time you drink; Who tipples brandy will some comfort feel, But will he to the medicine set his seal?

No class escapes them — from the poor man's psy The nostrum takes no trifling part away; . See! those square patent bottles from the shop Now decoration to the cupboard's top; And there a favorite hoard you'll find within, Companions meet! the julep and the gin.

Observe what ills to nervous females flow,
When the heart flutters and the pulse is low:
If once induced these cordial sips to try,
All feel the ease, and few the danger fly;
For, while obtained, of drams they've all the
force,

And when denied, then drams are the resource.

Who would not lend a sympathizing sigh,
To hear you infant's pity-moving cry?
Then the good nurse (who, had she borne a brain, Hed sought the cause that made her babe complain)

Has all her efforts, loving soul! applied
To set the cry, and not the cause, aside;
She gave her powerful sweet without remorse,
The sleeping cordial,—she had tried its force,
Repeating oft; the infant, freed from pain,
Rejected food, but took the dose again,
Sinking to sleep, while she her joy expressed,
That her dear charge could sweetly take his rest.
Soon may she spare her cordial; not a doubt Remains but quickly he will rest without.

GEORGE CRABBE.

TO THE UNCO GUID.

My son, these maxims make a rule
And lump them sye thegither:
The Rigid Righteous is a fooi,
The Rigid Wise another:
The cleanest corn that c'er was dight
May hae some pyles o' caff m,
Sac ne'er a fellow-creature slight
For random fits o' daffi

SOLOMUN, Eccles. vii. 16.

O ye wha are sae guid yoursel',
Sae pious and sae holy,
Ye've nought to do but mark and tell
Your neebor's fauts and folly:—
Whase life is like a weel-gaun mill,
Supplied wi'store o' water,
The heapet happer's ebbing still,
And still the clap plays clatter.

Hear me, ye venerable core,
As counsel for poor mortals,
That frequent pass douce Wisdom's door,
For glaikit Folly's portals!
I, for their thoughtless, careless sakes,
Would here propone defences,
Their donsie tricks, their black mistakes,
Their failings and mischances.

Ye see your state wi' theirs compared,
And shudder at the niffer;
But cast a moment's fair regard,
What maks the mighty differ?
Discount what scant occasion gave
That purity ye pride in,
And (what's aft mair than a' the lave)
Your better art o' hidin'.

Think, when your castigated pulse
Gies now and then a wallop,
What ragings must his veins convulse,
That still eternal gallop:
Wi' wind and tide fair i' your tail,
Right on ye scud your sea-way;
But in the teeth o' baith to sail,
It makes an unco leeway.

See Social life and Glee sit down,
All joyous and unthinking,
Till, quite transmugrified, they're grown Debauchery and Drinking:
O, would they stay to calculate
The eternal consequences;
Or your more dreaded hell to state,
Damnation of expenses!

Ye high, exalted, virtuous dames, Tied up iu godly laces, Before ye gie poor Frailty names, Suppose a change o' cases; A dear-loved lad, convenience anug, A treacherous inclination, — But, let me whisper i' your lug, Ye 're aiblins nae temptation.

Then gently scan your brother man,
Still gentler sister woman;
Though they may gang a kennin' wrang,
To step aside is human.
One point must still be greatly dark,
The moving why they do it;
And just as lamely can ye mark
How far perhaps they rue it.

Who made the heart, 't is He alone
Decidedly can try us;
He knows each chord, — its various tone,
Each spring, — its various bias:
Then at the balance let's be mute,
We never can adjust it;
What's done we partly may compute,
But know not what's resisted.

ROBERT BURNS

JUDGE NOT.

JUDGE not; the workings of his brain
And of his heart thou canst not see;
What looks to thy dim eyes a stain,
In God's pure light may only be
A scar, brought from some well-won field,
Where thou wouldst only faint and yield.

The look, the air, that fiets thy sight
May be a token that below
The soul has closed in deadly fight
With some infernal fiery foe,
Whose glance would scorch thy smiling grace,
And cast thee shuddering on thy face!

The fall thou darest to despise, —
May be the angel's slackened hand
Has suffered it, that he may rise
And take a firmer, surer stand;
Or, trusting less to earthly things,
May henceforth learn to use his wings.

And judge none lost; but wait and see,
With hopeful pity, not disdain;
The depth of the abyss may be
The measure of the height of pain
And love and glory that may raise
This soul to God in after days!

ADELAIDE ANNE PROC

L' ALLEGRO.

HENCE, loathed Melancholy,
Of Cerberus and blackest Midnight born,
In Stygian cave forlorn,
'Mongst horrid shapes, and shricks, and sights unholy!

Find out some uncouth cell,
Where brooding Darkness spreads his jealous wings,

And the night-raven sings;
There under ebon shades, and low-browed rocks,
As ragged as thy locks,

In dark Cimmerian desert ever dwell. But come, thou goddess fair and free, In heaven yeleped Euphrosyne, And, by men, heart-easing Mirth; Whom lovely Venus, at a birth, With two sister Graces more, To ivy-crowned Bacchus bore; Or whether (as some sager sing) The frolic wind that breathes the spring, Zephyr, with Aurora playing, — As he met her once a-Maying, — There, on beds of violets blue And fresh-blown roses washed in dew, Filled her with thee, a daughter fair, So buxom, blithe, and debonair.

Haste thee, nymph, and bring with thee Jest, and youthful Jollity, -Quips and cranks and wanton wiles, Nods and becks and wreathed smiles. Such as hang on Hebe's cheek, And love to live in dimple sleek, - -Sport, that wrinkled Care derides, And Laughter, holding both his sides. Come ! and trip it, as you go, On the light fantastic toe, And in thy right hand lead with thee The mountain nymph, sweet Liberty; And if I give thee honor due, Mirth, admit me of thy crew, To live with her, and live with thee, In unreproved pleasures free, --To hear the lark begin his flight, And singing startle the dull Night, From his watch-tower in the skies, Till the dappled dawn doth rise; Then to come, in spite of sorrow, And at my window bid good morrow, Through the sweet-brier, or the vine, Or the twisted eglantine; While the cock with lively din Scatters the rear of darkness thin, And to the stack, or the barn door, Stoutly struts his dames before; Oft listening how the hounds and horn Cheerly rouse the slumbering Morn, From the side of some hoar hill Through the high wood echoing shrill; Sometime walking, not unseen, By hedgerow elms, on hillocks green, Right against the eastern gate, Where the great Sun begins his state, Robed in flames, and amber light, The clouds in thousand liveries dight; While the ploughman, near at hand, Whistles o'er the furrowed land, And the milkmaid singeth blithe, And every shepherd tells his tale Under the hawthorn in the dale.

Straight mine eye hath caught new pleasures Whilst the landscape round it measures Russet lawns, and fallows gray, Where the nibbling flocks do stray, -Mountains, on whose barren breast The laboring clouds do often rest, -Meadows trun with daisies pied, Shallow brooks, and rivers wide. Towers and battlements it sees Bosomed high in tufted trees, Where perhaps some beauty lies, The cynosure of neighboring eyes. Hard by, a cottage chimney smokes From betwixt two aged oaks, Where Corydon and Thyrsis, met, Are at their savory dinner set Of herbs, and other country messes, Which the neat-handed Phillis dresses: And then in haste her bower she leaves With Thestylis to bind the sheaves, Or, if the earlier season lead, To the tanned haycock in the mead. Sometimes with secure delight The upland hamlets will invite, When the merry bells ring round, And the jocund rebecks sound To many a youth and many a maid, Dancing in the checkered shade, And young and old come forth to play On a sunshine holiday, Till the livelong daylight fail; Then to the spicy nut-brown ale With stories told of many a feat: How fairy Mab the junkets eat, -She was pinched and pulled, she said, And he, by frur's lantern led : Tells how the drudging goblin sweat To earn his cream-bowl duly set, When in one night, ere glimpse of morn, His shadowy flail had thrashed the corn That ten day-laborers could not end; Then lies him down the lubber fiend.

And, stretched out all the chimney's length, Basks at the fire his hairy strength, And, crop-full, out of doors he flings Ere the first cock his matin rings.

Thus done the tales, to bed they creep, By whispering winds soon lulled asleep.

Towered cities please us then, And the busy hum of men, Where throngs of knights and barons bold In weeds of peace high triumphs hold, -With store of ladies, whose bright eyes Rain influence, and judge the prize Of wit or arms, while both contend To win her grace whom all commend. There let Hymen oft appear In saffron robe, with taper clear, And pomp and feast and revelry, With masque, and antique pageantry, -Such sights as youthful poets dream On summer eves by haunted stream; Then to the well-trod stage anon, If Jonson's learned sock be on, Or sweetest Shakespeare, Fancy's child, Warble his native wood-notes wild.

And ever, against eating cares, Lap me in soft Lydian airs, Married to immortal verse, -Such as the meeting soul may pierce, In notes with many a winding bout Of linked sweetness long drawn out, With wanton heed and giddy cunning The melting voice through mazes running, Untwisting all the chains that tie The hidden soul of harmony, -That Orpheus' self may heave his head From golden slumber on a bed Of heaped Elysian flowers, and hear Such strains as would have won the ear Of Pluto, to have quite set free His half-regained Eurydice.

These delights if thou canst give, Mirth, with thee I mean to live.

MILTON

IL PENSEROSO.

HENCE, vain deluding joys,

The brood of Folly without father bred '
How little you bestead,
Or fill the fixed mind with all your toys '
Dwell in some idle brain,
And fancies fond with gaudy shapes possess,
As thick and numberless
As the gay motes that people the sunbeams, —
Or likest hovering dreams,
The fickle pensioners of Morpheus' train,

But hail, thou goddess, sage and holy ! Hail, divinest Melancholy! Whose saintly visage is too bright To hit the sense of human sight, And therefore, to our weaker view. O'erlaid with black, staid Wisdom's hue, -Black, but such as in esteem Prince Meninon's sister might beseem, Or that starred Ethiop queen that strove To set her beauty's praise above The Sea-Nymphs, and their powers offended. Yet thou art higher far descended; Thee bright-haired Vesta, long of yore. To solitary Saturn bore, -His daughter she (in Saturn's reign Such mixture was not held a stain). Oft in glimmering bowers and glades He met her, and in secret shades Of woody Ida's inmost grove, While yet there was no fear of Jove.

Come, pensive nun, devout and pure. Sober, steadfast, and demure, All in a robe of darkest grain Flowing with majestic train, And sable stole of cyprus-lawn Over thy decent shoulders drawn. Come, but keep thy wonted state, With even step, and musing gait, And looks commercing with the skies, Thy rapt soul sitting in thine eyes; There held in holy passion still, Forget thyself to marble, till With a sad, leaden, downward cast Thou fix them on the earth as fast: And join with thee calm Peace, and Quiet, — Spare Fast, that oft with gods doth diet, And hears the Muses in a ring Aye round about Jove's altar sing; And add to these retired Leisure. That in trim gardens takes his pleasure: But first and chiefest, with thee bring Him that you soars on golden wing, Guiding the fiery-wheeled throne, — The cherub Contemplation; And the mute Silence hist along, 'Less Philomel will deign a song In her sweetest, saddest plight, Smoothing the rugged brow of Night, While Cynthia checks her dragon yoke Gently o'er the accustomed oak. Sweet bird, that shun'st the noise of folly. -Most musical, most melancholy! Thee, chantress, oft, the woods among, I woo, to hear thy even-song. And, missing thee, I walk unseen On the dry, smooth-shaven green,

To behold the wandering moon Riding near her highest noon, Like one that had been led astray Through the heaven's wide pathless way; And oft, as if her head she bowed, Stooping through a fleecy cloud. Oft, on a plat of rising ground, I hear the far-off curfew sound Over some wide-watered shore, Swinging slow with sullen roar; Or if the air will not permit, Some still removed place will fit, Where glowing embers through the room Teach light to counterfeit a gloom, -Far from all resort of mirth, Save the cricket on the hearth. Or the bellman's drowsyscharm, To bless the doors from nightly harm; Or let my lamp at midnight hour Be seen in some high lonely tower, Where I may oft out-watch the Bear With thrice-great Hermes, or unsphere The spirit of Plato, to unfold What worlds or what vast regions hold The immortal mind that hath forsook Her mansion in this fleshly nook; And of those demons that are found In fire, air, flood, or under ground, Whose power hath a true consent With planet or with element. Sometime let gorgeous Tragedy In sceptred pall come sweeping by, Presenting Thebes, or Pelops' line, Or the tale of Troy divine, Or what (though rare) of later age Ennobled hath the buskined stage

But, O sad Virgin, that thy power Might raise Musæus from his bower! Or bid the soul of Orpheus sing Such notes as, warbled to the string, Drew iron tears down Pluto's cheek, And made hell grant what love did seek! Or call up him that left half told The story of Cambuscan bold, ---Of Camball, and of Algarsife, --And who had Canacé to wife, That owned the virtuous ring and glass, — And of the wondrous horse of brass, ()n which the Tartar king did ride! And, if aught else great bards beside In sage and solemn tunes have sung, -Of tourneys and of trophies hung, Of forests, and enchantments drear, Where more is meant than meets the ear.

Thus, Night, oft see me in thy pale career, Till civil-suited Morn appear, —

Not tricked and frounced, as she was wont With the Attic boy to hunt, But kerchiefed in a comely cloud, While rocking winds are piping loud, Or ushered with a shower still When the gust hath blown his fill, Ending on the rustling leaves, With minute drops from off the eaves. And when the sun begins to fling His flaring beams, me, goldess, bring To arched walks of twilight groves, And shadows brown, that Sylvan loves, Of pine, or monumental oak. Where the rude axe with heaved stroke Was never heard the Nyniphs to daunt. Or fright them from their hallowed haunt. There in close covert by some brook, Where no profaner eye may look, Hide me from day's garish eye, While the bee with honeyed thigh. That at her flowery work doth sing, And the waters murmuring With such consort as they keep, Entice the dewy-feathered Sleep; And let some strange mysterious dream Wave at his wings, in airy stream Of lively portraiture displayed, Softly on my eyelids laid; And, as I wake, sweet music breathe Above, about, or underneath, Sent by some Spirit to mortals good, Or the unseen Genius of the wood.

But let my due feet never fail
To walk the studious cloisters pale,
And love the high embowed roof,
With antic pillars massy proof,
And storied windows, richly dight,
Casting a dim religious light.
There let the pealing organ blow
To the full-voiced quire below,
In service high and anthems clear,
As may with sweetness, through mine ear,
Dissolve me into ecstasics,
And bring all heaven before mine eyes.

And may at last my weary age
Find out the peaceful hermitage,
The hairy gown and mossy cell,
Where I may sit and rightly spell
Of every star that heaven doth shew,
And every herb that sips the dew,
Till old experience do attain
To something like prophetic strain.

These pleasures, Melancholy, give, And I with thee will choose to live.

MILTON

HALLOWED GROUND.

WHAT's hallowed ground? Has earth a clod Its Maker meant not should be trod By man, the image of his God, Erect and free. Unscourged by Superstition's rod To bow the knee?

That's hallowed ground where, mourned and missed.

The lips repose our love has kissed; — But where 's their memory's mansion? Is't You churchyard's bowers? No! in ourselves their souls exist. A part of nurs.

A kiss can consecrate the ground Where mated hearts are mutual bound: The spot where love's first links were wound, That no'er are riven, Is hallowed down to earth's profound, And up to heaven!

For time makes all but true love old; The burning thoughts that then were told Run molten still in memory's mould ; And will not cool Until the heart itself be cold In Lethe's pool.

What hallows ground where heroes sleep? 'T is not the sculptured piles you heap! In dews that heavens far distant weep Their turf may bloom; Or Genii twine beneath the deep Their coral tomb.

But strew his ashes to the wind Whose sword or voice has served mankind, -And is he dead, whose glorious mind Lifts thine on high? -To live in hearts we leave behind Is not to die.

ts't death to fall for Freedom's right? He's dead alone that lacks her light! And murder sullies in heaven's sight The sword he draws :-What can alone ennoble fight? A noble cause!

Give that, — and welcome War to brace Her drums, and rend heaven's reeking space ! The colors planted face to face, The charging cheer, Though Death's pale horse lead on the chase, Shall still be dear.

And place our trophies where men kneel To Heaven ! - but Heaven rebukes my zeal ! The cause of Truth and human weal. O God above! Transfer it from the sword's appeal To Peace and Love.

Peace, Love! the cherubim, that join Their spread wings o'er Devotion's shrine, Prayers sound in vain, and temples shine, Where they are not. — The heart alone can make divine Religion's spot.

To incantations dost thou trust, And pompous rites in domes august? See mouldering stones and metal's rust Belie the vaunt, That man can bless one pile of dust

With chime or chant.

The ticking wood-worm mocks thee, man ! Thy temples, - creeds themselves grow wan ! But there's a dome of nobler span, A temple given Thy faith, that bigots dare not ban, -Its space is heaven!

Its roof, star-pictured Nature's ceiling, Where, trancing the rapt spirit's feeling, And God himself to man revealing, The harmonious spheres Make music, though unheard their pealing By mortal ears.

Fair stars 1 are not your beings pure? Can sin, can death, your worlds obscure? Else why so swell the thoughts at your Aspect above? Ye must be heavens that make us sure Of heavenly love !

And in your harmony sublime I read the doom of distant time; That man's regenerate soul from crime Shall yet be drawn, And reason on his mortal clime Immortal dawn.

What's hallowed ground? 'T is what gives birth To sacred thoughts in souls of worth ! -Peace! Independence! Truth! go forth Earth's compass round; And your high-priesthood shall make earth All hallowed ground. THOMAS CAMPBELL

FLOWERS WITHOUT FRUIT.

PRUNE thou thy words; the thoughts control
That o'er thee swell and throng;—
They will condense within thy soul,
And change to purpose strong.

But he who lets his feelings run
In soft luxurious flow,
Shrinks when hard service must be done,
And faints at every woe.

Faith's meanest deed more favor bears,
Where hearts and wills are weighed,
Than brightest transports, choicest prayers,
Which bloom their hour, and fade.

JOHN HENRY NEWMAN.

REVENGE OF INJURIES.

FROM "MARIAM"

THE fairest action of our human life
Is scorning to revenge an injury:
For who forgives without a further strife
His adversary's heart to him doth tie:
And 't is a firmer conquest truly said
To win the heart than overthrow the head.

If we a worthy enemy do find,

To yield to worth, it must be nobly done;
But if of baser metal be his mind,

In base revenge there is no honor won.
Who would a worthy courage overthrow?
And who would wrestle with a worthless foe?

We say our hearts are great, and cannot yield;
Because they cannot yield, it proves them poor:
Great hearts are tasked beyond their power but seld:

The weakest lion will the loudest roar.

Truth's school for certain does this same allow,
High-heartedness doth sometimes teach to bow.

LADY ELIZABETH CAREW.

A TEAR.

O THAT the chemist's magic art
Could crystallize this sacred treasure !
Long should it glitter near my heart,
A secret source of pensive pleasure.

The little brilliant, ere it fell,

Its lustre caught from Chloe's eye;

Then, trembling, left its coral cell,—

The spring of Sensibility!

Sweet drop of pure and pearly light!
In thee the rays of Virtue shine,
More calmly clear, more mildly bright,
Than any gem that gilds the mine.

Benign restorer of the soul!
Who ever fliest to bring relief,
When first we feel the rude control
Of Love or Pity, Joy or Grief.

The sage's and the poet's theme,
In every clime, in every age,
Thou charm'st in Fancy's idle dream,
In Reason's philosophic page.

That very law which moulds a tear,
And bids it trickle from its source, —
That law preserves the earth a sphere,
And guides the planets in their course.

SAMUEL ROGERS,

MIGNON'S SONG.

FROM "WILHELM MEISTER."

Know's thou the land where bloom the citron bowers,

Where the gold-orange lights the dusky grove? High waves the laurel there, the myrtle flowers, And through a still blue heaven the sweet winds rove.

Know'st thou it well ?

There, there with thee, O friend, O loved one ! fain my steps would flee

Know'st thou the dwelling !— there the pillars

Soft shines the hall, the painted chambers glow; And forms of marble seem with pitying eyes To say, "Poor child! what thus hath wrought thee woe?"

Know'st thou it well?

There, there with thee, O my protector! homewards might I flee!

Know'st thou the mountain? - high its bridge is hung,

Where the mule seeks through mist and cloud his way;

There lurk the dragon-race, deep caves among, O'er beetling rocks there foams the torrent spray. Know'st thou it well?

With thee, with thee,
There lies my path, O father! let us flee!
From the German of GOETHE. Trame lation of FELICIA HEMANS.

THE OLD MAID.

Why sits she thus in solitude? Her heart
Seems melting in her eyes' delicious blue;
And as it heaves, her ripe lips lie apart,
As if to let its heavy throbbings through;
In her dark eye a depth of softness swells,
Deeper than that her careless girlhood wore;
And her cheek crimsons with the hue that tells
The rich, fair fruit is ripened to the core.

It is her thirtieth birthday! With a sigh
Her soul hath turned from youth's luxuriant bowers,

And her heart taken up the last sweet tie
That measured out its links of golden hours!
She feels her inmost soul within her stir
With thoughts too wild and passionate to speak;

Yet her full heart—its own interpreter— Translates itself in silence on her cheek,

Joy's opening buds, affection's glowing flowers,
Once lightly sprang within her beaming track;
O, life was beautiful in those lost hours,
And yet she does not wish to wander back!
No! she but loves in loneliness to think
On pleasures past, though nevermore to be;
Hope links her to the future, — but the link
That binds her to the past is memory.

AMELIA B. WELBY.

LOVE AGAINST LOVE.

As unto blowing roses summer dews,
Or morning's amber to the tree-top choirs,
So to my bosom are the beams that use
To rain on me from eyes that love inspires.
Your love, — vouchsafe it, royal-hearted Few,
And I will set no common price thereon;
O, I will keep, as heaven his holy blue,
Or night her diamonds, that dear treasure won.
But aught of inward faith must I forego,
Or miss one drop from truth's baptismal hand,
Think poorer thought, pray cheaper prayers,
and grow

Less worthy trust, to meet your heart's demand, — Farewell! Your wish I for your sake deny: Rebal to love, in truth to love, am I.

DAVID A. WASSON.

A RENUNCIATION.

Ir women could be fair, and yet not fond, Or that their love were firm, not fickle still, I would not marvel that they make men bond By service long to purchase their good-will; But when I see how fiail those creatures are, I muse that men forget themselves so far.

To mark the choice they make, and how they change,

How oft from Phoebus they do flee to Pan; Unsettled still, like haggards wild they range, These gentle birds that fly from man to man; Who would not scorn and shake them from the

And let them fly, fair fools, which way they list?

Yet for disport we fawn and flatter both,
To pass the time when nothing else can please,
And train them to our lure with subtle oath,
Till, weary of their wiles, ourselves we ease,
And then we say when we their fancy try,
To play with fools, O, what a fool was I'

EDWARD VERF, LARL OF OXFORD,

FAITII.

BETTER trust all and be deceived, And weep that trust and that deceiving, Than doubt one heart that, if believed, Had blessed one's life with true believing

O, in this mocking world too fast The doubting field o'ertakes our youth; Better be cheated to the last Than lose the blessed hope of truth.

I RANCES ANNE KLMBLE BUTLER.

THE SUM OF LIFE.

FROM "THE GARDEN': "THE TASK," BOOK VI

I was a stricken deer, that left the herd Long since; with many an arrow deep infixed My panting side was charged, when I withdrew. To seek a tranquil death in distant shades There was I found by one who had himself Been hurt by the archers. In his side he bore, And in his hands and feet, the cruel scars. With gentle force soliciting the darts, He drew them forth, and healed, and bade me live. Since then, with few associates, in remote And silent woods I wander, far from those My former partners of the peopled scene; With few associates, and not wishing more. Here much I ruminate, as much I may, With other views of men and manners now Than once, and others of a life to come. I see that all are wanderers, gone astray Each in his own delusions; they are lost In chase of fancied happiness, still wooed And never won. Dream after dream ensues:

And still they dream, that they shall still succeed; | In want of bread; to them which pass among And still are disappointed. Rings the world With the vain stir. I sum up half mankind, And add two-thirds of the remaining half, And find the total of their hopes and fears Dreams, empty dreams.

WILLIAM COWPER.

THE WILL.

BEFORE I sigh my last gasp, let me breathe, Great Love, some legacies: here I bequeathe Mine eyes to Argus, if mine eyes can see, If they be blind, then, Love, I give them thee; My tongue to Fame; to embassadors mine cars,

To women, or the sea, my tears, Thou, Love, hast taught me heretofore By making me serve her who had twenty more, That I should give to none, but such as had too much before

My constancy I to the planets give; My truth to them who at the court do live; Mine ingenuity and openness To Jesuits; to buffoons my pensiveness; My silence to any who abroad have been; My money to a Capuchin.

Thou, Love, taught'st me, by appointing me To love there, where no love received can be, Only to give to such as have an incapacity.*

My faith I give to Roman Catholics; All my good works unto the schismatics Of Amsterdam; my best civility And courtship to an University; My modesty I give to shoulders bare;

My patience let gamesters share. Thou, Love, taught'st me, by making me Love her, that holds my love disparity, Only to give to those that count my gifts indigmty.

I give my reputation to those Which were my friends, mine industry to foes; To schoolmen I bequeathe my doubtfulness; My sickness to physicians, or excess; To Nature all that I in thyme have writ; And to my company my wit. Thou, Love, by making me adore Her, who begot this love in me before, Taught'st me to make, as though I gave, when I do but restore.

To him, for whom the passing-bell next tolls, I give my physic-books; my written rolls Of moral counsels I to Bedlam give: My brazen medals unto them which live

* No good capacity.

All foreigners, mine English tongue. Thou, Love, by making me love one Who thinks her friendship a fit portion For younger lovers, dost my gifts thus disproportion.

Therefore I'll give no more, but I'll undo The world by dying; because Love dies too. Then all your beauties will be no more worth Than gold in mmes, where none doth draw it forth:

And all your graces no more use shall have, Than a sun-dial in a grave

Thou, Love, taught'st me, by making me Love her, who doth neglect both me and thee, To invent and practise this one way to annihilate all three.

Dr. JOHN DONNE.

FRAGMENTS.

THE COURSE OF LIFE.

TIME.

Time rolls his ceaseless course. Lady of the Lake, Cant 111

SCOTT

The heavens on high perpetually do move; By minutes meal the hour doth steal away, By hours the days, by days the months remove, And then by months the years as fast decay; Yea, Virgil's verse and Tully's truth do say That Time flieth, and never claps her wings; But rides on clouds, and forward still she flings. G. GASCOIGNE.

On our quick'st decrees Th' inaudible and noiseless foot of Time Steals, ere we can effect them.

All's Well that Fnds Well, Act v Sc 3. SHAKESPEARE

And then he drew a dial from his poke, And, looking on it with lack-lustre eye, Says very wisely, "It is ten o'clock: Thus may we see," quoth he, "how the world wags :

'T is but an hour ago since it was nine; And after one hour more 't will be eleven ; And so, from hour to hour, we ripe and ripe, And then, from hour to hour, we rot and rot; And thereby hangs a tale."

As You Like It, Act il. Sc. 7.

SHAKESPEARE.

Come what come may, Time and the hour runs through the roughest day. Macbeth, Act i, Sc 2. SHAKESPEARE.

POPR.

LIFE.

Let us (since life can little more supply Than just to look about us, and to die) Expatiate free o'er all this scene of man; A mighty maze! but not without a plan.

Together let us beat this ample field, Try why the open, what the covert yield. Essay on Man, Epistle 1.

The world's a theatre, the earth a stage Which God and nature do with actors fill. Apology for Actors. T HEYWOOD.

To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow, Creeps in this petty pace from day to day, To the last syllable of recorded time, And all our yesterdays have lighted fools The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle Life's but a walking shadow; a poor player, That struts and frets his hour upon the stage, And then is heard no more : it is a tale Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, Signifying nothing.

Macbeth, Act v Sc. 5

SHAKESPEARL.

SHAKESPLARE.

J GAY

Life is a jest, and all things show it; I thought so once, but now I know it. My Own Epstaph.

All's Well that Ends Well, Act w. Sc. 3

The web of our life is of a mingled Yarn, good and ill together.

And what 's a life ? - a weary pilgrimage, Whose glory in one day doth fill the stage With childhood, manhood, and decrepit age. What is Life? F QUARLES

But thought's the slave of life, and life time's

King Henry IV., Pt. I. Act v. Sc 5.

SHAKESPEARE.

On life's vast ocean diversely we sail, Reason the card, but passion is the gale.

Fssay on Man, Epistle II

POPF.

MANKIND.

Man '

Thou pendulum betwixt a smile and tear Childe Harold, Cant 1v. BYRON.

More servants wait on man Than he'll take notice of. In ev'ry path He treads down that which doth befriend him When sicknesse makes him pale and wan. O mightie love ' Man is one world, and hath Another to attend him.

Man.

G. HERBERT.

Like leaves on trees the race of man is found, Now green in youth, now withering on the ground. Another race the following spring supplies; They fall successive, and successive rise. Had, Book v. Translation of POPT

Know then thyself, presume not God to scan; The proper study of mankind is man.

Created half to rise, and half to fall; Great lord of all things, yet a prey to all; Sole judge of truth, in endless error hurled; The glory, jest, and riddle of the world! Essay on Man, Epistle II.

THE PAST.

O, call back yesterday, bid time return.

To-day, unhappy day, too late. King Richard II., 4ct m. St. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Things without all remedy, Should be without regard: what's done is done. Macheth, Act m Sc 2 SHALESPI ARE Gone, glimmering through the dream of things that were,

A school-boy's tale, the wonder of an hour! Childe Harold, Cant 11

Not heaven itself upon the past has power; But what has been, has been, and I have had my Imitation of Horace, Book 1 Ode 29.

DRYDEN.

Applause To that blest son of foresight; lord of fate ! That awful independent on to-moriow Whose work is done; who triumphs in the past; Whose yesterdays look backwards with a smile. DR. E YOUNG. Night I houghts, Night u.

ACHILLES. . . . What! are my deeds forgot? ULYSSES Time hath, my lord, a wallet at his back.

Wherein he puts alms for oblivion,

For time is like a fashionable host, That slightly shakes his parting guest by the hand. And with his arms outstretched, as he would fly, Grasps-in the comer. Welcome ever smiles, And farewell goes out sighing.

Troilus and Cresada, Act ni. Sc 3.

SHAKESPEARE

THE PRESENT.

This narrow isthmus 'twixt two boundless seas. The past, the future, two eternities ! Lalla Rookh: The Veiled Prophet of Khorassan. T. MOORE.

Lo! on a narrow neck of land, Twixt two unbounded seas I stand.

C. WEST BY

Heaven from all creatures hides the book of Fate, All but the page prescribed, their present state. Essay on Man, Fpistle I.

Nothing is there to come, and nothing past, But an eternal Now does always last.

Daviders, Vol I. Book 1. A COWLEY.

Defer not till to-morrow to be wise. To-morrow's sun to thee may never rise. Letter to Cobham.

Happy the man, and happy he alone, He who can call to-day his own: He who, secure within, can say, To-morrow, do thy worst, for I have lived to-day. Imstation of Horace, Book 1. Ode 29. DRYDEN.

THE FUTURE.

The best of prophets of the Future is the Past. Letter, Jan 28, 1821. BYRON.

As though there were a tie, And obligation to posterity. We get them, bear them, breed and nurse. What has posterity done for us, That we, lest they their rights should lose, Should trust our necks to gripe of noose. McFingal, Cant. 11 I. TRUMBULL.

All that's bright must fade, -The brightest still the fleetest; All that's sweet was made But to be lost when sweetest! National Airs All that's bright must fade T. MOORE

When I consider life, 't is all a cheat. Yet, fooled with hope, men favor the deceit; Trust on, and think to-morrow will repay: To-morrow's falser than the former day; Lies worse; and, while it says we shall be blest With some new joys, cuts off what we possest. Strange cozenage! none would live past years again,

Yet all hope pleasure in what yet remain. Aureng-Zebe ; or, The Great Mogul, Act iv. Sc. 1. DRYDEN.

Beware of desperate steps. The darkest day, Live till to-morrow, will have passed away.

The Needless Alarm. COWPER.

FATE.

Men at some time are masters of their fates : The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, But in ourselves, that we are underlings. Julius Casar, Act 1 Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE

Man is his own star, and the soul that can Render an honest and a perfect man Commands all light, all influence, all fate. Nothing to him falls early, or too late. J FLETCHER. Upon an Honest Man's Fortune

Our remedies oft in ourselves do lie, Which we ascribe to Heaven: the fated sky Gives us free scope; only, doth backward pull Our slow designs, when we ourselves are dull. All's Well that Ends Well, Act 1, Sc 1, SHAKESPEARE

There's a divinity that shapes our ends, Rough-hew them how we will. Hamlet, Act v. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE

I'll make assurance doubly sure, And take a bond of Fate.

Macbeth, Act iv. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARP

Yопти.

Gay hope is theirs, by fancy fed, Less pleasing when possessed; The tear forgot as soon as shed. The sunshine of the breast. Theirs buxom health of rosy hue, Wild wit, invention ever new, And lively cheer of vigor born; The thoughtless day, the easy night, The spirits pure, the slumbers light. That fly the approach of morn. On a Distant Prospect of Liton College. T GRAY

Long as the year's dull circle seems to run When the brisk minor pants for twenty-one. Imitations of Horace, Epistle I. Book t. POPE

Returning, he proclaims by many a grace, By shrugs and strange contortions of his face. How much a dunce that has been sent to roam. Excels a dunce that has been kept at home. The Progress of Error.

The nimble-footed mad-cap Prince of Wales, And his comrades, that daffed the world aside, And bid it pass.

King Henry IV., Part I Act iv. Sc 1, SHAKESPEARE.

MANHOOD.

Be wise with speed: A fool at forty is a fool indeed.

Love of Fame, Sattre ii.

DR. E. YOUNG.

Not two strong men the enormous weight could raise;

Such men as live in these degenerate days.

Itaad, Book v. Translation of Pope. Homes.

Nor love thy life, nor hate; but what thou liv'st Live well; how long or short permit to heaven. Paradus Lat. Book xi. MILTON.

What the short thy date? Virtue, not rolling suns, the mind matures. That life is long which answers life's great end. The time that bears no fruit deserves no name. The man of wisdom is the man of years. In heavy youth Methusalems may die; O, how misdated on their flatt'ring tombs!

Night Thoughts, Night v. DR E Young

Live while you live, the epicure would say, And seize the pleasures of the present day; Live while you live, the sacred preacher cries, And give to God each moment as it flies. Lord, in my views, let both united be; I live in pleasure when I live to thee.

Epigram on his Family Arms. [Dum vivimus vivamus]
P DODDRIDGE.

OLD AGE.

My May of life
Is fall'n into the sear, the yellow leaf;
And that which should accompany old age,
As honour, love, obedience, troops of friends,
I must not look to have; but, in their stead,
Curses, not loud, but deep, mouth-honor, breath,
Which the poor heart would fain deny, and dare
not.

Macbeth, Act v. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

And wrinkles, thed——d democrats, won't flatter.

Don Fuan. Cant x. Byron.

Strange! that a harp of thousand strings Should keep in tune so long.

Hymns and Spiritual Songs, Book it Hymn 19. WATTS

In sober state,
Through the sequestered vale of rural life,
The venerable patriarch guileless held
The tenor of his way.

Death.

B PORTEUS.

Time has laid his hand
Upon my heart, gently, not smiting it,
But as a harper lays his open palm
Upon his harp, to deaden its vibrations.
The Golden Legend.
LONGFELLOW.

But grant, the virtues of a temp'rate prime Bless with an age exempt from scorn or crime; An age that melts with unperceived decay, And glides in modest innocence away.

Vanity of Human Wishes.

DR. S JOHNSON

O Heavens,

If you do love old men, it your sweet sway Allow obedience, if yourselves are old, Make it your cause; send down, and take my part!

King Lear, Act 11 Sc 4

SHAKESPI ARI

ДЕАТИ.

Man wants but little, nor that little long. How soon he must resign his very dust!

Night Thoughts, Night iv DR E. YOUNG.

"While there is life, there's hope," he cried;
"Then why such haste'" so groaned and died.
The Sick Man and the Angel

Lovely in death the beauteous ruin lay;
And if in death still lovely, lovelier there;
Far lovelier! pity swells the tide of love.

Night Thoughts, Night in DR E YOUNG

Nothing is here for tears, nothing to wail
Or knock the breast, no weakness, no contempt,
Dispraise or blame, nothing but well and fair,
And what may quiet us in a death so noble.

Sanson Agonistis.

MILTON

There is a calm for those who weep, A rest for weary pilgrims found, They softly lie and sweetly sleep Low in the ground.

The Grane

J MONTGOMERY

IMMORTALITY.

I know no evil death can show, which life Has not already shown to those who live Embodied longest. If there be indeed A shore, where mind survives, 't will be as mind All unincorporate.

Sardanapalus.

BYRON.

To be no more — sad cure; for who would lose, Though full of pain, this intellectual being, Those thoughts that wander through eternity, To perish rather, swallowed up and lost In the wide womb of uncreated night, Devoid of sense and motion?

Paradus Last. Book v. Million

I have asked that dreadful question of the hills That look eternal; of the flowing streams That lucid flow forever; of the stars, Amid whose fields of azure my raised spirit Hath trod in glory: all were dumb; but now, While I thus gaze upon thy living face, I feel the love that kindles through its beauty Can never wholly perish: we shall meet Again, Clemanthe!

Ion.

T. N. TALFOURD

THE SEXES.

WOMAN.

First, then, a woman will, or won't, depend on 't; If she will do't, she will; and there 's an end on 't. But if she won't, since safe and sound your trust is, Fear is affront, and jealousy injustice.

Epilogue to Zara.

Women, like princes, find few real friends. LORD LYTTELION Advice to a Lady.

What mighty ills have not been done by woman? Who was 't betrayed the Capitol? A woman! Who lost Mark Antony the world ' A woman' Who was the cause of a long ten years' war, And laid at last old Troy in ashes? Woman! Destructive, damnable, deceitful woman ! The Orphan, Act III Se. 1 T OTWAY.

She and comparisons are odious.

The Comparison

DR. J DONNE

So doth one sound the sleeping spirit wake To brave the danger, and to hear the harm -A low and gentle voice - dear woman's chiefest charm.

An excellent thing it is ' and ever lent To truth and love, and meekness, they who

This gift, by the all-gracious Giver sent, Ever by quiet step and smile are known; By kind eyes that have wept, hearts that have sorrowed - -

By patience never tired, from their own trials borrowed.

Woman's Voice.

E ARNOLD.

Woman's gentle brain. As You Like It. Act IV Sc 3.

SHAKESPLARE

Not she with traitorous kiss her Saviour stung, Not she denied him with unholy tongue; She, while apostles shrank, could danger brave, Last at his cross and earliest at his grave Woman, her Character and Influence F S. BARRETT.

And yet believe me, good as well as ill, Woman's at best a contradiction still.

Moral Essays, Epistle II. POPE.

A native grace Sat fair-proportioned in her polished limbs, Veiled in a simple robe their best attire, Beyond the pomp of dress; for loveliness Needs not the foreign aid of ornament. But is, when unadorned, adorned the most.

The Seasons Autumn I. THOMSON. The maid who modestly conceals Her beauties, while she hides, reveals; Give but a glimpse, and fancy draws Whate'er the Grecian Venus was.

The Spider and the Bei

E. MOORE

Th' adorning thee with so much art Is but a barb'rous skill; T is like the poisoning of a dart, Too apt before to kill.

The Wasting Maid

A. COWLEY.

For where is any author in the world Teaches such beauty as a woman's eye? Lore's Labor's Lost, Act w St 3 SHAKIISPFARH

Woman may err, woman may give her mind To evil thoughts, and lose her pure estate; But, for one woman who affronts her kind By wicked passions and remorseless hate, A thousand make amends in age and youth, By heavenly pity, by sweet sympathy, By patient kindness, by enduring truth. By love, supremest in adversity.

Pruse of Tomen.

CH MACKAY.

Accuse not Nature, she hath done her part; Do thon but thine.

Paradise Lost, Book viii.

MILTON.

MAN --- WOMAN.

If the heart of a man is depressed with cares, The mist is dispelled when a woman appears. The Beggar v Opera, Let n. Sc. 1 1 GAY

Without the smile from partial beauty won, O, what were man? - a world without a sun. Pleasures of Hope, Part II. T CAMPBEL

She's beautiful, and therefore to be wooed; She is a woman, therefore to be won. King Henry 11, Part 1 1ct v. Sc. 3. SHAKESPEARE.

He was a lover of the good old school, Who still become more constant as they cool. Beppo, Cant. xxxiv. BYRON.

We cannot fight for love as men may do: We should be wooed, and were not made to woo. Midsummer Night's Dream, Act ii. Sc. 1 SHAKE-PLARE

I give thee all - I can no more, Though poor the offering be; My heart and lute are all the store That I can bring to thee.

My Heart and Lute.

T. MOORE.

Since maids, in modesty, say "No" to that Which they would have the profferer construe "Ay."

I wo Gentlemen of Verona, Act v. Sc 2

SHAKESPEARE

The woman that deliberates is lost.

Catq, Act 1v. Sc 1. T ADDISON.

My friends were poor but honest; so's my love. Be not offended, for it hurts not him That he is loved of me.

All s Well that Ends Well, Act 1. Sc. 3. SHAKESPFARF.

In her first passion, woman loves her lover:
In all the others, all she loves is love.

Don Yuan, Cant. III. BYRON.

True as the needle to the pole,
Or as the dial to the sun;
Constant as gliding waters roll,
Whose swelling tides obey the moon;
From every other charmer free,
My life and love shall follow thee.
Song.
B. BOOTH.

Was ever woman in this humor wooed?
Was ever woman in this humor won?
King Richard III, Act b. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

Man's love is of man's life a thing apart;
'T is woman's whole existence. Man may range
The court, camp, church, the vessel, and the mart,
Sword, gown, gain, glory, offer in exchange
Pride, fame, ambition, to fill up his heart,

And few there are whom these cannot estrange:

Men have all these resources, we but one,

To love again, and be again undone.

Don Juan, Cant i

BYRON.

Thou wouldst be loved?—then let thy heart
From its present pathway part not!
Being everything which now thou art,
Be nothing which thou art not.
So with the world thy gentle ways,
Thy grace, thy more than beauty,
Shall be an endless theme of praise,
And love—a simple duty.

To F. S. O

All these good parts a perfect woman make;
Add love to me, they make a perfect wife;
Without her love, her beauty I should take
As that of pictures dead—that gives it life;
Till then her beauty, like the sun, doth shine
Alike to all;—that only makes it mine.

SIR T. OVERBURY.

And oft, when half induced to tread

Such paths as unto sin decoy,

I've felt her fond hand press my head,

And that soft touch hath saved her boy!

The Mother's Hand.

C. SWAIN.

CHARACTER AND ACTION.

VIRTUE.

The world in all doth but two nations bear,
The good, the bad, and these mixed everywhere.

The Leval Scot

A MARVELL.

He that has light within his own clear breast
May sit in the centre and enjoy bright day;
But he that hides a dark soul and foul thoughts
Benighted walks under the midday sun.

Comus
MILTON.

What nothing earthly gives or can destroy, — The soul's calm sunshine, and the heartfelt joy, Is Virtue's prize.

Essay on Man, Lpistle IV.

POPE.

The morning pearls
Dropt in the lily's spotless bosom
Are less chastely cold,
Ere the meridian sun
Has kissed them into heat.

Chastity.

W CHAMBERLAYNE.

1ST BROTHER. What hidden strength, Unless the strength of Heaven, if you mean that?

2D BROTHER. I mean that too, but yet θ hidden strength

Which, if Heaven gave it, may be termed her arm 'T is chastity, my Brother, chastity: She that has that is clad in complete steel.

So dear to heaven is saintly chastity,
That, when a soul is found sincerely so,
A thousand liveried angels lacky her,
Driving far off each thing of sin and guilt.

Comms:

MILTON.

Adieu, dear, amiable youth!
Your heart can ne'er be wanting!
May prudence, fortitude, and truth
Erect your brow undaunting!
In ploughman phrase, "God send you speed,"
Still daily to grow wiser;
And may you better reck the rede,
Than ever did the adviser!

Episite to a Young Friend
R BURNS.

What stronger breastplate than a heart untainted? Thrice is he armed that has his quarrel just; And he but naked, though locked up in steel, Whose conscience with injustice is corrupted.

King Henry VI. Part II. Act in. Sc 2. Shakespeare

True, conscious honor is to feel no sin;
He's armed without that's innocent within.

Littations of Horace, Epistle 1 Book 1. Pore

Be noble! and the nobleness that lies
In other men, sleeping, but never dead,
Will rise in majesty to meet thine own.

Sonnet.

1. R. Lower D.

This above all, — to thine own self be true; And it must follow, as the night the day, Thou canst not then be false to any man. Hamlet, Act is Sc 3. Shaklspeare

And thus he bore without abuse
The grand old name of gentleman,
Defamed by every charlatan,
And soiled with all ignoble use.

In Memoriam, cx

TENNYSON

NOBLE LIVING

If our virtues

Did not go forth of us, 't were all alike
As if we had them not. Spirits are not finely touched,

But to fine issues; nor Nature never lends The smallest scruple of her excellence, But, like a thufty goddess, she determines Herself the glory of a cieditor— Both thanks and use

Measure for Measure, lett Se 1

SHAKESPEARE.

The flighty purpose never is o'ertook, Unless the deed go with it.

Macheth, Let w Se 1

SHAKESPI ARL

Our acts our angels are, or good or ill,
Our fatal shadows that walk by us still.

An Honest Man's Fortune J FLETCHER

That light we see is burning in my hall
How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world.

Mirchant of Venue, Act v. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPEARI

DUTY.

When I'm not thanked at all, I'm thanked enough

I've done my duty, and I've done no more.

From Thumb the Great, 1st 1 Sc 3 II FIELDING

Stern Daughter of the Voice of God!
O Duty!

Through no disturbance of my soul, Or strong compunction in me wrought, I supplicate for thy control; But in the quietness of thought.

To humbler functions, awful Power!
I call thee: I myself commend
Unto thy guidance from this hour;
O, let my weakness have an end!
Give unto me, made lowly wise,
The spirit of self-sacrifice,
The confidence of reason give;
And in the light of truth thy bondman let me live!
Ode to Duty.

WORDSWORTH.

HONESTY.

You yourself

Are much condemned to have an itching palm.

There is no terror, Cassius, in your threats, Foi I am armed so strong in honesty, That they pass by me as the idle wind, Which I respect not.

Julius Casar, Act IV. Sc 3

.

SHAKESPEARE.

FALSEHOOD.

Who dares think one thing, and another tell, My heart detests him as the gates of hell.

Iliad, Book 13. Translation of POPE

HOMER.

Lake one,

Who having, unto truth, by telling of it, Made such a sinner of his memory, To credit his own he.

The lempest, Act 1, St. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

He was a man

Who stole the livery of the court of Heaven To serve the Devil in.

(ourse of Time, Book vui

R POLLOK.

The Devil can cite Scripture for his purpose.

An evil soul, producing holy witness,

Is like a villain with a smiling cheek,

A goodly apple rotten at the heart.

O, what a goodly outside falsehood hath!

Microant of Venus, Act 1 Sc 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

BENEVOLENCE.

That man may last, but never lives, Who much receives but nothing gives; Whom none can love, whom none can thank, Creation's blot, creation's blank.

Il hen Jesus dwelt

T GIBBONS

Do good by stealth, and blush to find it fame.

Poper to Satires, Dial 1

Poper to Satires

Who builds a church to God, and not to fame, Will never mark the marble with his name: Go, search it there, where to be born and die, Of rich and poor makes all the history; Enough that virtue filled the space between, Proved by the ends of being to have been.

Moral Essays, Epistle III

POPF.

B.* O say, what sums that generous hand supply?

What mines to swell that boundless charity?

P.+ Of debts and taxes, wife and children clear,
This man possessed—five hundred pounds a year.
Blush, grandeur, blush; proud courts, withdraw your blaze!

Ye little stars, hide your diminished rays!

Moral Essays, Epistle III. POPE

· Lord Bathurst.

† Pope.

MERCY.

Sweet mercy is nobility's true badge.

SHAKESPEARE.

The quality of mercy is not strained,—
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath: it is twice blessed,—
It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes:
Tis mightiest in the mightiest; it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown;
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings:
But mercy is above this sceptred sway,—
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself;
And earthly power doth then show likest God's,
When mercy seasons justice.

Merchant of Venuce, Act 14. Sc. 1

SHAKESPEARE.

FOLLY AND WISDOM.

Wisdom is ofttimes nearer when we stoop Than when we soar.

The Excursion, Book in

WORDSWORTH.

To know

That which before us lies in daily life is the prime wisdom.

Paradise Lost, Book vin.

MILTON.

Good sense, which only is the gift of Heaven,
And though no science, fairly worth the seven.

Moral Essays, Epistle IV POPL.

The weak have remedies, the wise have joys, Superior wisdom is superior bliss.

Night Thoughts, Night via.

DR E. YOUNG.

The wisely worldly, be not worldly wise.

Emblems, Book ii. F QUARLES.

With wisdom fraught,
Not such as books, but such as practice taught.

On the King's Return.

E WALLER.

Who are a little wise the best fools be.

The Triple hoo!

DR J DONNE.

For fools rush in where angels fear to tread.

Essay on Criticism, Part III. POPE.

Those that I rev'rence, those I fear — the wise; At fools I laugh, not fear them.

Cymbeline, Act 1v. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

In idle wishes fools supinely stay;
Be there a will, and wisdom finds a way.

The Birth of Flattery

G. CRABBE

Some positive, persisting fools we know, Who, if once wrong, will need be always so; But you with pleasure own your errors past, And make each day a critique on the last.

POPL

Yet proud of parts, with prudence some dispense, And play the fool because they 're men of sense. Input to Pope. Dr. E. Young

This fellow's wise enough to play the fool;
And to do that well craves a kind of wit.

Twelfth Night, Act up Sc 1 SHAKESPEARE,

GOOD NATURE AND RECKLESSNESS.

Care to our coffen adds a nail, no doubt,

And every grin, so merry, draws one out.

Expostulatory Odes xv. DR WOLCOTT (Peter Pundar).

But evil is wrought by want of thought As well as want of heart.

The Lady's Dream.

T. HOOD.

FORGIVENESS AND RESENTMENT.

The smallest worm will turn, being trodden on.

And doves will peck in safeguard at their brood.

King Henry VI, Part III. Act il. Sc. 2. SHAKI SPLARE.

Forgiveness to the injured does belong;
But they ne'er pardon who have done the wrong.

Conquest of Granada, Part II Act. Sc. 2. DRIDIN.

Good nature and good sense must ever join; To err is human, to forgive divine.

Essay on Criticism, Part II.

POPE

AMBITION.

I have no spur

To prick the sides of my intent; but only Vaulting ambition, which o'er-leaps itself, And falls on the other.

Macbeth, Act 1. Sc 7

SHAKE SPEARL.

But wild ambition loves to slide, not stand,
And Fortune's ice prefers to Virtue's land.

1050101 and Achilophel, Part I.

DEVOLOR

And he that stands upon a slippery place

Makes nice of no vile hold to stay him up.

King John, Act in. Sc. 4

SHAKESPEARE

Ambition's monstrous stomach does increase
By eating, and it fears to starve unless
It still may feed, and all it sees devour.

Playhous to Let.

SIR W. DAVENANT.

Lowliness is young ambition's ladder, Whereto the climber-upward turns his face; But when he once attains the upmost round, He then unto the ladder turns his back, Looks in the clouds, scorning the base degrees By which he did ascend.

Julius Casar, Act il. Sc 1

SHAKESPEARE

To reign is worth ambition, though in hell. Better to reign in hell, than serve in heaven. MILTON Paradise Lost, Book 1.

THE RULING PASSION.

The ruling passion, be it what it will, The ruling passion conquers reason still.

Hear then the truth: 'T is Heav'n each passion

And different men directs to different ends. Extremes in nature equal good produce; Extremes in man concur to general use. Morai Essays, Epistic III. POPR

And hence one master-passion in the breast, Like Aaron's serpent, swallows up the rest. Essay on Man, Epistle II.

SELF-CONCEIT.

To observations which ourselves we make, We grow more partial for the observer's sake. Moral Essays, Epistle I. POPE

'T is with our judgments as our watches, none Go just alike, yet each believes his own.

Essay on Criticism, Part I.

POPE.

PRIDE AND VANITY.

'T is pride, rank pride, and haughtiness of soul; I think the Romans call it stoicism.

Cato, Act i Sc. 4.

In pride, in reasoning pride, our error lies; All quit their sphere and rush into the skies. Essay on Man, Epistle I.

Pride, like an eagle, builds among the stars. Night Thoughts, Night v. DR. F. YOUNG.

Of all the causes which conspire to blind Man's erring judgment, and misguide the mind, What the weak head with strongest bias rules, Is pride, the never failing vice of fools. POPE.

Essay on Criticism, Part II.

As eddies draw things frivolous and light, How is man's heart by vanity drawn in! DR. E. YOUNG Night Thoughts, Night viii

The fashion wears out more apparel than the man. Much Ado about Nothing, Act us. Sc. 3. SHAKESPEARE.

Nothing exceeds in ridicule, no doubt, A feel in fashion, but a fool that's out: His passion for absurdity's so strong He cannot bear a rival in the wrong. Though wrong the mode, comply: more sense is shown

In wearing others' follies than our own. Night Thoughts. DR E YOUNG.

Sir Plume (of amber snuff-box justly vain, And the nice conduct of a clouded cane), With earnest eyes, and round unthinking face, He first the snuff-box opened, then the case. Rape of the Lock.

PHASES OF FEELING.

PAIN AND WEARINESS.

So when a raging fever burns, We shift from side to side by turns, And 't is a poor relief we gain To change the place, but keep the pain. Hymns and Spiritua. Songs, Book 11. Hymn 146 WATTS.

Till this heroic lesson thou hast learned. To frown at pleasure, and to smile in pain. Night Thoughts, Night vin. DR. E. YOUNG.

There's nothing in this world can make me joy Life is as tedious as a twice-told tale, Vexing the dull ear of a drowsy man. King John, Act III. Sc 4. SHAKESPEARE.

My heart is drowned with grief, My body round engirt with misery: For what's more miserable than discontent? King Henry VI., Part II Act in Sc. 1 SHAKESPEARE.

Grief hath changed me, And careful hours, with Time's deformed hand, Hath written strange defeatures in my face. Comedy of Frrors, Act v. Sc 1. SHAKESPEARE

REMORSE AND RETRIBUTION.

The mind is its own place, and in itself Can make a heaven of hell, a hell of heaven. Paradise Lost, Book i MILTON.

Amid the roses fierce Repentance rears Her snaky crest.

The Seasons · Spring.

I. THOMSON.

The thorns which I have reaped are of the tree I planted — they have torn me, and I bleed; I should have known what fruit would spring from such a seed.

Childe Harold, Cant. lv.

BYRON.

We but teach

Bloody instructions, which, being taught, return To plague the inventor. This even-handed justice Commends the ingredients of our poisoned chalice To our own lips.

Macbeth, Act 1 Sc 7.

SHAKESPEARL

So the struck eagle, stretched upon the plain,
No more through rolling clouds to soar again,
Viewed his own feather on the fatal dart,
And winged the shaft that quivered in his heart.

English Bards and Scotch Renewers.

BYRON

DESPAIR.

Talk not of comfort; 't is for lighter ills:
I will indulge my sorrows, and give way
To all the pangs and fury of despair.

Cate
J. ADDISON.

And, in that deep and utter agony,
Though then than ever most unfit to die,
I fell upon my knees and prayed for death.

Bertram.
C. MATURIN

All hope is lost
Of my reception into grace; what worse,
For where no hope is left, is left no fear.

Paradise Regasted. MILTON.

Hope! let the wretch, once conscious of the joy, Whom now despairing agonies destroy, Speak, for he can, and none so well as he, What treasures centre, what delights, in thee.

Hope. COWPER.

It is to hope, though hope were lost.

Come here, fond youth.

A L BARBAULD.

FEAR AND DOUBT.

Our doubts are traitors, And make us lose the good we oft might win, By fearing to attempt.

Measure for Measure, Act i. Sc 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

LADY MACBETH. Letting I dare not wait upon I would,

Like the poor cat i' the adage.

MAGBETH. Prythee, peace: I dare do all that may become a man; Who dares do more, is none.

Macbeth, Act i Sc 7.

SHAKESPEARE

But now, I am cabined, cribbed, confined, bound in To saucy doubts and fears.

Macbeth, Act ni. Sc 4.

SHALESPEARE.

Attempt the end, and never stand to doubt;
Nothing's so hard but search will find it out.

Seek and Find
R HERRICK.

Tender-handed stroke a nettle,
And it stings you for your pains;
Grasp it like a man of mettle,
And it soft as sulk remains.

Verses written on a Window in Scotland

A HILL

Fortune her gifts may variously dispose,
And these be happy called, unhappy those;
But Heaven's just balance equal will appear,
When those are placed in hope, and these in fear.
Not present good or ill the joy or curse,
But future views of better or of worse.

Essay on Man, Epistle !!!

POPE

Often do the spirits
Of great events stride on before the events,
And in to-day already walks to-morrow.

The Death of Wallenstein.

S T COLERIDGE

Порк.

Hope! of all ills that men endure, The only cheap and universal cure!

Hope! thou first-fruits of happiness! Thou gentle dawning of a bright success!

Brother of Faith! 'twixt whom and thee
The joys of Heaven and Earth divided be!
For Hope
A COWLEY.

Hope! thou nurse of young desire.

Love in a Village, Act 1 Sc 1 1 BICKERSTAFF

True hope is swift, and flies with swallow's wings; Kings it makes gods, and meaner creatures kings.

King Richard III. Act v 26 2. SHAKESPEARE

Hope, like a cordial, innocent though strong,
Man's heart at once inspirits and serenes;
Nor makes him pay his wisdom for his joys.

Night Thoughts DR. E. YOUNG

Hope, like the glimm'ring taper's light,
Adorns and cheers the way;
And still, as darker grows the night,
Emits a brighter ray.
The Captivity, Act is.
GOLDSMITH.

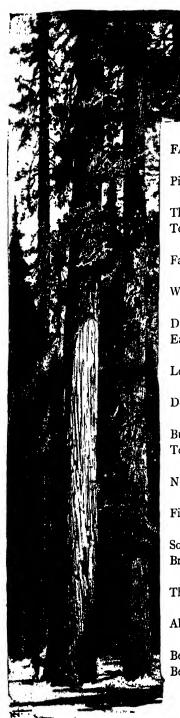

Thy wish was father, Harry, to that thought.

King Henry IV., Part II. Act iv Sc 4. SHAKESPEARE.

Cease, every joy, to glimmer on my mind,
But leave — oh! leave the light of Hope behind!

Pleasure: of Hope, Part!!

T. CAMPBELL

Among the Redwoods.

FAREWELL to such a world! Too long I press
The crowded pavement with unwilling feet.
Pity makes pride, and hate breeds hatefulness,
And both are poisons. In the forest sweet
The shade, the peace! Immensity, that seems To drown the human life of doubts and dreams.

Far off the massive portals of the wood,
Buttressed with shadow, misty-blue, serene,
Waited my coming. Speedily I stood
Where the dun wall rose roofed in plumy green.
Dare one go in?—Glance backward! Dusk as night
Each column, fringed with sprays of amber light.

Let me, along this fallen bole, at rest,

Turn to the cool, dim roof my glowing face.

Delicious dark on weary eyelids prest!

Enormous solitude of silent space,

But for a low and thunderous ocean sound,

Too far to hear, felt thrilling through the ground.

No stir nor call the sacred hush profanes;
Save when from some bare tree-top, far on high,
Fierce disputations of the clamorous cranes
Fall muffled, as from out the upper sky.
So still, one dreads to wake the dreaming air,
Breaks a twig softly, moves the foot with care.

The hollow dome is green with empty shade, Struck through with slanted shafts of afternoon; Aloft, a little rift of blue is made,

Where slips a ghost that last night was the moon. Beside its pearl a sea-cloud stays its wing, Beneath, a tilted hawk is balancing.

AMONG THE REDWOODS. Continued.

The heart feels not in every time and mood
What is around it. Dull as any stone
I lay; then, like a darkening dream, the wood Grew Karnac's temple, where I breathed alone
In the awed air strange incense, and uprose
Dim, monstrous columns in their dread repose.

The mind not always sees; but if there shine
A bit of fern-lace bending over moss,
A silky glint that rides a spider-line,
On a trefoil two shadow spears that cross,
Three grasses that toss up their nodding heads,
With spring and curve like clustered fountain-threads,

Suddenly, through side windows of the eye,
Deep solitudes, where never souls have met;
Vast spaces, forest corridors that lie
In a mysterious world, unpeopled yet.
Because the outward eye was elsewhere caught,
The awfulness and wonder come unsought.

If death be but resolving back again
Into the world's deep soul, this is a kind
Of quiet, happy death, untouched by pain
Or sharp reluctance. For I feel my mind
Is interfused with all I hear and see;
As much a part of All as cloud or tree.

Listen! A deep and solemn wind on high;
The shafts of shining dust shift to and fro;
The columned trees sway imperceptibly,
And creak as mighty masts when trade-winds blow.
The cloudy sails are set; the earth ship swings
Along the sea of space to grander things.

Besides what hope the never-ending flight Of future days may bring.

Paradese Lost, Book 11

MILION.

Hope humbly then; with trembling pinions soar;

Wait the great teacher Death, and God adore. What future bliss he gives not thee to know, But gives that hope to be thy blessing now. Hope springs eternal in the human breast: Man never is, but always to be, blest. The soul, uneasy and confined from home, Rests and expatiates in a life to come.

Essay on Man, I pistle I

POPI.

"I is expectation makes a blessing dear;

Heaven were not heaven, if we knew what it were.

Against Fruition SIR JOHN SUCKLING

DISAPPOINTMENT.

We're charmed with distant views of happiness, But near approaches make the prospect less.

Against Engagment T YALDEN.

Oft expectation fails, and most oft there Where most it promises; and oft it hits Where hope is coldest, and despair most fits.

All's Well that Ends Well, Act is Sc is Shakespeare.

As distant prospects please us, but when near We find but desert rocks and fleeting air.

The Dispensatory, Cant up.

S. GARTH

Why wish for more?
Wishing, of all employments, is the worst;
Philosophy's reverse and health's decay.

Night Thoughts, Night iv.

DR E YOUNG.

MEMORY.

While memory holds a seat
In this distracted globe. Remember thee?
Yea, from the table of my memory
I'll wipe away all trivial fond records,
All saws of books, all forms, all pressures past,
That youth and observation copied there;
And thy commandment all alone shall live
Within the book and volume of my brain.

Hamlet, Act. Sc. 5. SHAKESPEARE

The leaves of memory seem to make

A mountful rustling in the dark.

The Fire of Dryl-wood.

LONGFELLOW

Remembrance and reflection how allied!

What thin partitions sense from thought divide!

Fissay on Man, Epistic I.

POPP.

And, when the stream
Which overflowed the soul was passed away,
A consciousness remained that it had left,
Deposited upon the silent shore
Of memory, images and precious thoughts
That shall not die, and cannot be destroyed
The Excursion, Book vii.

WORDSWOPTH

Joys too exquisite to last,

—And yet more exquisite when past.

The Little Cloud J. MONTGOMERY.

How blessings brighten as they take their flight.

Night Thoughts, Night ii DR T YOUNG.

The face recalls some face, as 't were with pain, You once have seen, but ne'er will see again. Beppo, Cant xiii Byro'

Absent or dead, still let a friend be dear, (A sigh the absent claims, the dead a tear.) Lpistle to Robert, Earl of Oxford, and Earl of Mortimer PCPE.

For it so falls out,
That what we have we prize not to the worth,
Whiles we enjoy it, but being lacked and lost,
Why, then we rack the value; then we find
The virtue, that possession would not show as Whiles it was ours. So will it fare with Clau ho:
When he shall hear she died upon his words
Th' idea of her life shall sweetly creep
Into his study of imagination,
And every lovely organ of her life
Shall come apparelled in more precious habit,
More moving-delicate, and full of life,
Into the eye and prospect of his soul,
Than when she lived indeed.

Much Ado about Nothing, Act IV Sc. 1 SHAKESPEARE

PHASES OF FORTUNE.

FORTUNE.

Fortune, men say, doth give too much to many, But yet she never gave enough to any.

Epigrams

SIR J. HARRINGION

Are there not, dear Michal,
Two points in the adventure of the diver,
One — when, a beggar, he prepares to plunge?
One — when, a prince, he rises with his pearl?
Festus, I plunge.

Paraalsus.

R. BROWNING.

When Fortune means to men most good,
She looks upon them with a threatening eye.

King John, Act in Sc. 4.

SHAKI SPLARE.

Yet true it is, as cow chews cud, And trees, at spring, do yield forth bud, Except wind stands, as never it stood, It is an ill wind turns none to good.

The Winds.

T. TUSSER

There is some soul of goodness in things evil. Would men observingly distil it out. King Henry V , Act iv Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE

For 't is a truth well known to most, That whatsoever thing is lost, We seek it, ere it come to light, In every cranny but the right.

The Retired Cat.

COWPER

I have set my life upon a cast, And I will stand the hazard of the die. King Richard III, Act v. Sc 4. SHAKESPEARE

ELEMENTS OF SUCCESS.

MACBETH. If we should fail, -LADY MACBETH. We fail t But screw your courage to the sticking place, And we'll not fail.

Macheth, Act L. Sc 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

In the lexicon of youth, which fate reserves For a bright manhood, there is no such word As - fail.

Richelsen, Act ii Sc. 2

BULWER-LYTTON

The star of the unconquered will. The Light of Stars. LONGFELLOW

'T is not in mortals to command success, But we'll do more, Sempronius; we'll deserve it. Cato, Act v. Sc. 2 I ADDISON

To maken vertue of necessite. The Knightes Tale.

CHAUCER.

And many strokes, though with a little axc. Hew down and fell the hardest-timbered oak. King Henry VI , Part III , Act ii. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE

Striving to better, oft we mar what's well. King Lear, Act L Sc 4

A wild dedication of yourselves To unpathed waters, undreamed shores. Winter's Tale, Act lv. Sc 3 SHAKESPEARE.

There is a tide in the affairs of men. Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune; Omitted, all the voyage of their life Is bound in shallows and in miseries. On such a full sea are we now affoat: And we must take the current when it serves, Or lose our ventures.

Julius Casar, Act iv. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

In my school-days, when I had lost one shaft, I shot his fellow of the self-same flight The self-same way, with more advised watch, To find the other forth; and by adventuring both. I oft found both.

Merchant of Venuce, Act 1 Sc 1

SHAKESPRARR

Who breaketh his credit, or cracketh it twice, Trust such, with a sucrty, if ye be wise : Or if he be angry, for asking thy due, Once even, to him afterward, lend not anew. Good Husbandry Lessons. T TUSSER.

He is well paid that is well satisfied. Merchant of Venuce, Act iv Sc 1. SHAKESPEARE

A PROPHECY OF ENTERPRISE.

Soon shall thy arm, unconquered steam! afar Drag the slow barge, or drive the rapid car; Or on wide waving wings expanded bear The flying-chariot through the field of air.

The Botanic Garden, Part I. Ch 1.

E DARWIN

POVERTY.

Take physic, pomp; Expose thyself to feel what wretches feel. King Lear, Act in Sc 4. SHAKESPEARE.

Through tattered clothes small vices do appear; Robes and furred gowns hide all.

King Lear, Act IV. Sc. 6.

Yon friendless man, at whose dejected eye Th' unfeeling proud one looks, and passes by, Condemned on penury's barren path to roam, Scorned by the world, and left without a home. Pleasures of Hope. T. CAMPBELL.

Rest here, distrest by poverty no more. Epitaph on C Philips. DR. S JOHNSON.

RICHES.

Gold! gold! gold! gold! Bright and yellow, hard and cold, Molten, graven, hammered and rolled; Heavy to get, and light to hold; Hoarded, bartered, bought, and sold. Stolen, borrowed, squandered, doled: Spurned by the young, but hugged by the old To the very verge of the churchyard mould: Price of many a crime untold: Gold! gold! gold! gold! Good or bad a thousand-fold!

How widely its agencies vary, -To save, to ruin, to curse, to bless, — As even its minted coins express, Now stamped with the image of good Queen Bess. And now of a Bloody Mary.

Miss Kilmansegg.

T Hoop

Mammon, the least erected spirit that fell From heaven; for even in heaven his looks and thoughts

Were always downward bent, admiring more The riches of heaven's pavement, trodden gold, Than aught divine or holy else enjoyed In vision beatific.

Paradise Lost, Book L

MILTON.

Religious, punctual, 'frugal, and so forth;
His word would pass for more than he was worth.
One solid dish his week-day meal affords,
An added pudding solemnized the Lord's.
('onstant at church and change, his gains were sure,

His giving rare, save farthings to the poor.

Moral Essays, Epistle III. POPE.

The devil was piqued such saintship to behold, And longed to tempt him, like good Job of old; For Satan now is wiser than of yore, And tempts by making rich, not making poor.

Moral Essays, Epstle III. POPE.

Here Wisdom calls, "Seek virtue first, be bold; As gold to silver, virtue is to gold." There London's voice, "Get money, money still, And then let Virtue follow if she will."

Imitations of Horace, Epistle I Book i. POPE.

FOF

Be but great,
With praise or infamy — leave that to fate;
Get place and wealth; if possible, with grace;
If not, by any means get wealth and place.

Imitations of Horace, Epsite 1 Book 1. POPE

For what is worth in anything,
But so much money as 't will bring?

Hudibras, Part II. DR. S BUTLER.

You have too much respect upon the world:
They lose it, that do buy it with much care.

Merchant of Venuce, Act 1. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE

INTELLECTUAL ACTIVITY. Conversation.

Words are like leaves; and where they most abound,

Much fruit of sense beneath is rarely found.

Essay on Criticism, Part II. POPE.

And I oft have heard defended, Little said is soonest mended.

The Shipherd's Hunting.

G. WITHER.

Therefore, since brevity is the soul of wit,

And tediousness the limbs and outward flourishes,

I will be brief.

Handet, Act il. Sc. 2

SHAKESPFARF

KING RICHARD. Be eloquent in my behalf to her. QUEEN ELIZABETH. An honest tale speeds best, being plainly told.

King Richard III., Act iv. Sc. 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

And, when you stick on conversation's burrs, Don't strew your pathway with those dreadful

Urania,

O. W. HOLMES

In his brain —
Which is as dry as the remainder biscuit
After a voyage — he hath strange places crammed
With observation, the which he vents
In mangled forms.

As You Lake It, Act is Sc 7.

SHAKESPEARE.

They never taste who always drink;
They always talk who never think.

Upon a Passage in the Scaligerana M. PRIOR

O dear discretion! how his words are suited.

Merchant of Venue, Act un. Sc. 5. SHAKESPEARE

His wit invites you by his looks to come, But, when you knock, it never is at home. Conversation.

Bid me discourse, I will enchant thine ear.

Venus and Adons.

SHAKESPEARE.

A man in all the world's new fashion planted, That hath a mint of phrases in his brain.

Love's Labor Lost, Act u. Sc. 4

SHAKESPEARE

And gentle Dulness ever loves a joke.

The Dunciad, Book ii. POPE

O, many a shaft, at random sent,
Finds mark the archer little meant!
And many a word, at random spoken,
May soothe, or wound, a heart that's broken!

Lord of the Isles, Cant. v. Scott.

ARGUMENT.

And why, sir, must they so?
The why is plain as way to parish church.

As You Like It, Act II. Sc. 7. SHAKESPEARE

Who shall decide, when doctors disagree,
And soundest casuists doubt, like you and me?

Moral Essays, Epistle !!!. POPE.

Much may be said on both sides.

The Covent Garden Tragedy, Sc. 8. H. FIELDING.

He that complies against his will Is of his own opinion still.

Hudibras, Part /// DR S. BUTLER

Quoth she, I've heard old cunning stagers
Say, fools for arguments use wagers.

Hudibras, Part II.

A second Daniel, a Daniel, Jew! Now, infidel, I have thee on the hip.

A Daniel, still say I; a second Daniel!-I thank thee, Jew. for teaching me that word. Merchant of Venuce, Act w Sc 1, SHAKESPEARE,

To leave this keen encounter of our wits. King Richard III., Act i. Sc. 2 SHAKESPEARE.

ORATORY.

For rhetoric, he could not ope His mouth, but out there flew a trope.

For all a rhetorician's rules Teach nothing but to name his tools. Hudibras, Part I. Cant. L. DR S BUTLER

Where nature's end of language is declined, And men talk only to conceal the mind.

Love of Fame, Saure n

DR E YOUNG

To syllable-dissectors they appeal. Allow them accent-cadence, - fools may feel; But, spite of all the criticising elves, Those who would make us feel - must feel them-

The Rosciad.

C CHURCHILL

Thence to the famous orators repair, Those ancient, whose resistless eloquence Wielded at will that fierce democratie, Shook the arsenal, and fulmined over Greece, To Macedon, and Artaxerxes' throne.

Paradise Regained, Book iv MILTON.

Words that weep and tears that speak. The Prophet A. COWLEY.

THE STAGE.

I have heard That guilty creatures, sitting at a play, Have by the very cunning of the scene Been struck so to the soul, that presently They have proclaimed their malefactions.

The play's the thing Wherein I'll catch the conscience of the King. Hamlet, Act il Sc. 2. SHALESPEARE.

Lo, where the stage, the poor, degraded stage, Holds its warped mirror to a gaping age. Curtosity. C. SPRAGUE.

Nay, an thou'lt mouth, I'll rant as well as thou. Hamlet, Act v Sc 1. .

SHAKESPEARE.

There still remains, to mortify a wit, The many-headed monster of the pit. Imitations of Horace, Epistle I. Book il.

POPE

New forms arise, and different views engage, Superfluous lags the vet'ran on the stage. Till pitying Nature signs the last release, And bids afflicted worth retire to peace.

Vanity of Human Wishes

DR S. JOHNSON.

A veteran see! whose last act on the stage Entreats your smiles for sickness and for age; Their cause I plead, - plead it in heart and mind:

A fellow-feeling makes one wondrous kind. Prologue on Quitting the Stage in 1776

I hold the world but as the world, Gratiano; A stage, where every man must play a part. And mine a sad one.

Merchant of Venice, Act 1. Sc. 1

SHAKESPEARE

LEARNING.

'Tis education forms the common mind; Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined. Moral Essays, Lpistle I. POPE.

With too much quickness ever to be taught; With too much thinking to have common thought.

Moral Essays, Epistle II.

POPE

Glad that you thus continue your resolve To suck the sweets of sweet philosophy; Only, good master, while we do admire This virtue and this moral discipline, Let's be no stoics, nor no stocks, I pray.

No profit grows where is no pleasure ta'en; In brief, sir, study what you most affect. Taming of the Shrew, Act 1 Sc 1. SHAKESPEARE.

Some, for renown, on scraps of learning dote, And think they grow immortal as they quote. Love of Fame, Satire L DR L. YOUNG

With just enough of learning to misquote. English Bards and Stotch Reviewers. BYRON.

Whence is thy learning? Hath tly toil O'er books consumed the midnight oil? Fables . The Shepherd and the Philosopher J GAY

Small have continual plodders ever won, Save base authority from others' books. These earthly godfathers of heaven's lights, That give a name to every fixed star, Have no more profit of their shining nights Than those that walk, and wot not what they Love's Labor Lost, Act L. Sc 1.

SHALLSPEARE

Love seldom haunts the breast where learning | Immodest words admit of no defence,

And Venus sets ere Mercury can rise. The Wafe of Bath Her Prologue

POPR

A little learning is a dangerous thing; Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring : There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain, And drinking largely sobers us again. Essay on Criticism, Part II. POPE.

AUTHORS.

Shut, shut the door, good John! fatigued I said, Tie up the knocker, say I 'm sick, I 'm dead. The Dog-star rages! nay, 't is past a doubt, All Bedlam, or Parnassus, is let out: Fire in each eye, and papers in each hand, They rave, recite, and madden round the land. Lpistle to Dr Arbuthnot Prologue to the Satires

Why did I write? what sin to me unknown Dipped me in ink, - my parents', or my own? Lpistle to Dr Arbuthnot Prologue to the Satires

Whether the charmer sinner it, or saint it, If folly grow romantic, I must paint it. Moral Escays, I pistle !! POPE

Beneath the rule of men entirely great The pen is mightier than the sword.

Richelieu, Act u Sc 2.

E BULWER-LYTTON

And so I penned

It down, until at last it came to be, For length and breadth, the bigness which you

Pilgrim's Progress Apology for his Book.

J BUNYAN.

BOOKS.

If there's a hole in a' your coats, I rede ye tent it; A chiel 's amang ye takin' notes, And, faith, he'll prent it. On Captain Grose's Peregrinations through Scotland. BURNS

'T is pleasant, sure, to see one's name in print; A book 's a book, although there 's nothing in 't. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers BYRON.

Lest men suspect your tale untrue. Keep probability in view. The traveller leaping o'er those bounds, The credit of his book confounds. J. GAY. The Painter who pleased Nobody and Everybody

For want of decency is want of sense.

But foul descriptions are offensive still, Either for being like or being ill. Essay on Transla'ed Verse. EARL OF ROSCOMMON

But words are things, and a small drop of ink, Falling, like dew, upon a thought, produces That which makes thousands, perhaps millions, think.

Don Tuan, Cant. in Me, poor man! - My library Was dukedom large enough.

Tempest, Act 1 Sc 2.

SHAKESPLARE

His study! with what authors is it stored? In books, not authors, curious is my lord; To all their dated backs he turns you round ; These Aldus printed, those Du Sueil has bound! Lo, some are vellum, and the rest as good For all his lordship knows, but they are wood. For Locke or Milton 't is in vain to look, These shelves admit not any modern book.

Moral Essays, Epistle IV

"T is strange — but true; for truth is always strange;

Stranger than fiction.

Don Juan, Cant xiv.

BYRON.

Oh! rather give me commentators plain, Who with no deep researches vex the brain; Who from the dark and doubtful love to run. And hold their glimmering tapers to the sun The Parish Register, Part I, Introduction

The readers and the hearers like my books, But yet some writers cannot them digest; But what care I? for when I make a feast I would my guests should praise it, not the cooks.

Epigrams

SIR J. HARRINGTON

Dreams, books, are each a world; and books, we

Are a substantial world, both pure and good; Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,

Our pastime and our happiness will grow. WORDSWORTH. Personal Talk

And choose an author as you choose a friend. Essay on Translated Verse. EARL OF ROSCOMMON.

Then felt I like some watcher of the skies When a new planet swims into his ken; Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes He stared at the Pacific - and all his men Looked at each other with a wild surmise -Silent, upon a peak in Darien. On first looking into Chapman's Homer. KBATS My days among the Dead are passed;
Around me I behold,
Where'er these casual eyes are cast,
The mighty minds of old;
My never-failing friends are they,
With whom I converse day by day.

Coccasional Pieces, xviii.
R. SOUTHEY.

There studious let me sit,
And hold high converse with the mighty dead;
Sages of ancient time, as gods revered,
As gods beneficent, who blest mankind
With arts, with arms, and humanized a world.
The Seasons Wanter. THOMSON.

CRITICISM AND SATIRE.

And finds, with keen, discriminating sight,

Black's not so black; — nor white so very white.

New Morality G. CANNING.

In words, as fashions, the same rule will hold,
Alike fantastic if too new or old:
Be not the first by whom the new are tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the old aside.

Essay on Criticism, Part II.
POPE.

Poets lose half the praise they should have got, Could it be known what they discreetly blot. Upon Roscommon's Translation of Horace's De Arte Poetica. E. WALLER.

Even copious Dryden wanted, or forgot,
The last and greatest art, the art to blot.

Instations of Horace, Epistle I. Book in.

POPE

True ease in writing comes from art, not chance,
As those move easiest who have learned to dance.
'T is not enough no harshness gives offence;
The sound must seem an echo to the sense.
Soft is the strain when zephyr gently blows,
And the smooth stream in smoother numbers flows;

But when loud surges lash the sounding shore, The hoarse rough verse should like the torrent roar.

When Ajax strives some rock's vast weight to throw,

The line too labors, and the words move slow;

Not so when swift Camilla scours the plain,

Flies o'er th' unbending corn, and skims along the main.

Essay on Criticism, Part II.

Then, at the last and only couplet fraught
With some unmeaning thing they call a thought,
A needless Alexandrine ends the song,
That, like a wounded snake, drags its slow length
along.

Essay on Criticism, Part II.

POPE.

As soon
Seek roses in December, — ice in June;
Hope constancy in wind, or corn in chaff,
Believe a woman, or an epitaph,
Or any other thing that 's false, before
You trust in critics.

English Bards and Scotch Reviewers.

BYRON.

Vex not thou the poet's mind With thy shallow wit: Vex not thou the poet's mind; For thou caust not fathom it.

The Poet's Mind

TENNYSON

Prepare for rhyme — I'll publish, right or wrong: Fools are my theme, let satire be my song.

English Bards and Scotch Revnewers.

Byron

Satire's my weapon, but I'm too discreet
To run amuck, and tilt at all I meet.

Imitation of Horace, Satire I Book 11.

POPE.

Satire should, like a polished razor keen,
Wound with a touch that's scarcely felt or seen.

To the imitator of the first Satire of Horace, Book il LADY M W. MONTAGU.

POETS AND POETRY.

Of all those arts in which the wise excel,
Nature's chief masterpiece is writing well;
No writing lifts exalted man so high
As sacred and soul-moving poesy.

Essay on Peery Duke of Buckinghamshire

For his chaste Muse employed her heaven-taught lyre

None but the noblest passions to inspire,
Not one immoral, one corrupted thought,
One line which, dying, he could wish to blot.

Prologue to Thomsow's Corrolanus LORD LYTTELION.

Wisdom married to immortal verse.

The Excursion, Book vii. WORDSWORTH.

There is a pleasure in poetic pains Which only poets know.

The Timepiece The Tash, Book is.

COWPER.

Most wretched men

Are cradled into poetry by wrong;
They learn in suffering what they teach in song.

Shelley.

Shelley.

Lovers and madmen have such seething brains, Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend More than cool reason ever comprehends. The lunatic, the lover, and the poet Are of imagination all compact.

Midsummer Night's Dream, Act v. Sc 1. SHAKESPEARE

I do but sing because I must, And pipe but as the linnets sing.

TENNYSON

While pensive poets painful vigils keep,
Sleepless themselves to give their readers sleep.

The Duncad, Book i POPE

For wheresoe'er I turn my ravished eyes,
Gay gilded scenes and shining prospects rise,
Poetic fields encompass me around,
And still I seem to tread on classic ground.

A Letter from Italy.

ADDISON.

Eye Nature's walks, shoot folly as it flies, And catch the manners living as they rise; Laugh where we must, be candid where we can, But vindicate the ways of God to man.

Essay on Man, Epistle I

POPE.

Poets, like painters, thus unskilled to trace
The naked nature and the living grace,
With gold and jewels cover every part,
And hide with ornaments their want of art.
True wit is nature to advantage dressed,
What oft was thought, but ne'er so well expressed.

Essay on Grincism, Part II.
POPE

Apt illiteration's artful aid The Prophecy of Famine

C CHURCHILL,

But those that write in rhyme still make
The one verse for the other's sake,
For one for sense, and one for rhyme,
I think's sufficient at one time.

Hudibras, Part II

DR. S BUTLER.

For rhyme the rudder is of verses,
With which, like ships, they steer their courses.

Hindubras, Part I. Dr. S. BUTLER.

I had rather be a kitten, and cry, mew,
Than one of these same metre ballad-mongers;
I had rather hear a brazen can'stick turned,
Or a dry wheel grate on the axle-tree;
And that would set my teeth nothing on edge,
Nothing so much as mincing poetry:
'T is like the forced gait of a shuffling nag.

Kung Henry IV., Part I Act il. Sc. I SHAKESPEARE.

Go boldly forth, my simple lay,
Whose accents flow with artless ease,
Like orient pearls at random strung.

A Persian Song of Hafis SIR W JONES.

One simile that solitary shines
In the dry desert of a thousand lines.

Imiliations of Heracs, Epistle 1. Book ii. POPE.

Jewels five-words long, That on the stretched forefinger of all time Sparkle forever.

The Princess, Cant in.

TENNYSON.

Choice word and measured phrase above the reach Of ordinary men.

Resolution and Independence.

WORDSWORTH.

A poem round and perfect as a star.

A Life Drama.

A. SMITH.

My eyes make pictures, when they are shut.

A Day-Dream
5. T. COLERIDGE.

The poet in a golden clime was born,
With golden stars above;
Dowered with the hate of hate, the scorn of scorn,
The love of love.

The Poet
Tennyson.

Give me that growth which some perchance deem sleep.

Wherewith the steadfast coral-stems arise,
Which, by the toil of gathering energies,
Their upward way into clear sunshine keep Until, by Heaven's sweetest influences,
Slowly and slowly spreads a speck of green
Into a pleasant island in the seas,
Where, midtall palms, the cane-roofed home is seen,
And wearied men shall sit at sunset's hour,
Hearing the leaves and loving God's dear power
Sonnet VII.

J. R. LOWELL

Still govern thou my song,
Urania, and fit audience find, though few.

Paradise Losi, Book vii. Milton.

Thanks untraced to lips unknown
Shall greet me like the odors blown
From unseen meadows newly mown,
Or lilies floating in some pond,
Wood-fringed, the wayside gaze beyond;
The traveller owns the grateful sense
Of sweetness near, he knows not whence,
And, pausing, takes with forehead bare
The benediction of the air.

Snow-Bound.

I G WHITTIER.

THE MIND.

How small, of all that human hearts endure, That part which laws or kings can cause or cure! Still to ourselves in every place consigned, Our own felicity we make or find. With secret course, which no loud storms annoy, Glides the smooth current of domestic joy.

Lines added to Goldsmith's Traveller.

DR. S. JOHNSON.

Now see that noble and most sovereign reason, Like sweet bells jangled, out of tune and harsh. Hamlet, Act il. Sc. 1. Shakespeare.

Measure your mind's height by the shade it casts!

Paracelsus.

R BROWNING.

He that of such a height hath built his mind, And reared the dwelling of his thoughts so strong, As neither fear nor hope can shake the frame Of his resolved powers; nor all the wind Of vanity or malice pierce to wrong His settled peace, or to disturb the same; What a fair seat hath he, from whence he may The boundless wastes and wilds of man survey?

Unless above himself he can Erect himself, how poor a thing is man '
To the Countess of Cumberland S. DANIEL.

Were I so tall to reach the pole, Or grasp the ocean with my span, I must be measured by my soul: The mind 's the standard of the man.

Hora I yrua, Book u.; False Greatness DR. I WATTS.

PHILOSOPHY.

HORATIO. O day and night, but this is wondrous strange!

Hamlet. And therefore as a stranger give it welcome.

There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio,

Than are dreamt of in your philosophy.

Hamiet, Act 1 Sc 5. SHAKESPEARE.

Philosophy will clip an angel's wings.

Lama, Part II. J KEATS.

Sure, He that made us with such large discourse, Looking before and after, gave us not That capability and godlike reason, To fust in us unused.

Hamlet, Act IV Sc 4.

SHAKESPEARE

Thinking is but an idle waste of thought,

And naught is everything and everything is naught.

Rejected Addresses Cus Bono?

H and I SMITH.

When Bishop Berkeley said "there was no matter,"

And proved it—'t was no matter what he said.

Don Fuan, Cant. xi. Byron.

His cogitative faculties immersed In cogibundity of cogitation.

Chronon, Act L Sc z.

H. CAREY.

Hot philosophers

Stood banding factions, all so strongly propt; I staggered, knew not which was firmer part, But thought, quoted, read, observed, and pried, Stufft noting-books: and still my spaniel slept. At length he waked, and yawned; and by yon sky For aught I know, he knew as much as I.

A Scholar and his Dog.

MARSTON

He knew what's what, and that's as high As metaphysic wit can fly.

Hudibras, Part I.

DR S BUTLER

There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so.

Hamlet, Act II Sc 2.

SHAKESPI ARE

Not so the son; he marked this oversight, And then mistook reverse of wrong for right; (For What to shun, will no great knowledge need, But What to follow, is a task indeed!)

Moral Essays, Epistle III

Pop

The intellectual power, through words and things,
Went sounding on, a dim and perilous way!

The Excursion, Rook in WORDSWORTH

In discourse more sweet, (For eloquence the soul, song charms the sense,) Others apart sat on a hill retired,
In thoughts more elevate, and reasoned high OI providence, foreknowledge, will, and fate, Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute, And found no end, in wand'ring mazes lost. Of good and evil much they argued then, Of happiness and final misery,
Passion and apathy, and glory and shame;
Vain wisdom all, and false philosophy.

Paradise Lost, Book ii Millon

Slave to no sect, who takes no private road, But looks through nature up to nature's God.

And knows where faith, law, morals, all began, All end, in love of God and love of man, Essay on Man, Epistle IV.

POPF

Music.

If music be the food of love, play on; Give me excess of it, that, surfeiting, The appetite may sicken, and so die.
That strain again — it had a dying fall:
O, it came o'er my ear like the sweet south, That breathes upon a bank of violets, Stealing, and giving odor.

Twelfth Night, Adl. Sc. s.

SHAKESPEARE

There is a charm, a power, that sways the breast; Bids every passion revel or be still; Inspires with rage, or all our cares dissolves; Can soothe distraction, and almost despair. Art of Preserving Health. J. ARMSTRONG.

Music hath charms to soothe a savage breast, To soften rocks, or bend a knotted oak. I've read that things manimate have moved, And, as with living souls, have been informed By magic numbers and persuasive sound.

The Mourning Bride, Act 1 Sc 1

W CONGREVE

Where music dwells Lingering and wandering on, as loath to die, Like thoughts whose very sweetness yieldeth proof That they were born for immortality.

Laterastical Sonnets, Part III xim

WORDSWORTH

SCULPTURE.

As when, O lady mine, With chiselled touch The stone unhewn and cold Becomes a living mould. The more the marble wastes The more the statue grows.

Sonnet 7r of Mrs HLNRY ROSCOE, M. ANGELO

THE PROFESSIONS.

THE CLERGY AND THE PULPIT.

O for a forty parson power ! Don Juan, Cant v

BYRON

Wel oughte a prest ensample for to yive, By his clennesse, how that his sheep shulde lyve.

To draw folk to heven by fairnesse By good ensample, this was his busynesse. CHAUCER

Can'erbury Tales Prologue

What makes all doctrines plain and clear? About two hundred pounds a year. And that which was proved true before, Prove false again ? Two hundred more. Hudsbras, Part III. DR. S BUTLER.

Do not, as some ungracious pastors do, Show me the steep and thorny way to Heaven, Whilst, like a puffed and reckless libertine, Himself the primrose path of dalliance treads, And recks not his own rede.

Hamlet, Act i. Sc 2.

SHAKESPEARE

He 'stablishes the strong, restores the weak, Reclaims the wanderer, binds the broken heart.

The Timebiere . The Task Ronbin COWPER.

Of right and wrong he taught Truths as refined as ever Athens heard; And (strange to tell!) he practised what he preached.

Art of Preserving Health

J. ARMSTRONG.

MEDICINE AND DOCTORS.

I do remember an apothecary.

Sharp misery had worn him to the bones: And in his needy shop a tortoise hung, An alligator stuffed, and other skins Of ill-shaped fishes; and about his snelves A beggarly account of empty boxes.

Romes and Julie', Act v. Sc. 1

SHAKESPFARE

With us ther was a Doctour of Phisik, In al this world ne was ther non him lyk To speke of phisik and of surgerye.

He knew the cause of every maladye, Were it of hoot or colde, or moyste or drye, And wher engendered and of what humour; He was a verrey parfight practisour.

For gold in phisik is a cordial, Therfore he lovede gold in special. Canterbury Tales Prologue

CHAUCER.

"Is there no hope?" the sick man said. The silent doctor shook his head And took his leave with signs of sorrow. Despairing of his fee to-morrow.

The Sick Man and the Angel.

J GAY

But when ill indeed. E'en dismissing the doctor don't always succeed Lodgings for Single Gentlemen G COLMAN, the Younger.

LAWYERS AND THE LAW.

So wise, so grave, of so perplexed a tongue And loud withal, that could not wag, nor scarce Lie still, without a fee.

Valpone

B IONSON

While lawyers have more sober sense Than t' argue at their own expense, But make their best advantages Of others' quarrels, like the Swiss.

Hudsheas

DR S BUTLER.

Each wanton judge new penal statutes draw. Laws grind the poor, and rich men rule the law The I raveller GOLDSMITH Laws, as we read in ancient sages, Have been like cobwebs in all ages. Cobwebs for little flies are spread, And laws for little folks are made; But if an insect of renown, Hornet or beetle, wasp or drone, Be caught in quest of sport or plunder, The flimsy fetter flies in sunder.

J. BEATTIE

Between two hawks, which flues the higher pitch, Between two dogs, which hath the deeper mouth, Between two horses, which doth bear him best, Between two girls, which hath the merriest eye, I have, perhaps, some shallow spirit of judgment;

But in these nice sharp quillets of the law, Good faith, I am no wiser than a daw.

King Henry VI., Part I. Ad II St 4. SHAKESPEARE

Mastering the lawless science of our law, That codeless myriad of precedent, That wilderness of single instances.

Aylmer's Field

TENNYSON

For twelve honest men have decided the cause, Who are judges alike of the facts and the laws.

The Honest Jury.

W. PULTENEY

The hungry judges soon the sentence sign,
And wretches hang, that jurymen may dine.

Rape of the Lock, Cant. III. POPE.

Dame Justice, weighing long the doubtful right, Takes, opens, swallows it before their sight. The cause of strife removed so rarely well, There, take (says Justice), take ye each a shell; We thrive at Westminster on fools like you; "I was a fat oyster—live in peace—adieu.

Verbahm from Boileau

POPE

THE PRESS

Now stir the fire, and close the shutters fast, Let fall the curtains, wheel the sofa round, and while the bubbling and loud hissing urn Throws up a steamy column, and the cups, That cheer but not inebriate, wait on each, So let us welcome peaceful evening in.

This folio of four pages, happy work! Which not e'en critics criticise; that holds Inquisitive attention while I read,

What is it but a map of busy life,
Its fluctuations and its vast concerns?
T is pleasant, through the loop-holes of retreat,
To peep at such a world, — to see the stir
Of the great Babel, and not feel the crowd.

While fancy, like the finger of a clock,
Runs the great circuit, and is still at home.

Winter Evening. The Task, Book iv. COWPER.

THE JESTER.

When I did hear
The motley fool thus moral on the time,
My lungs began to crow like chanticleer,
That fools should be so deep contemplative;
And I did laugh, sans intermission,
An hour by his dial. — O noble fool!
A worthy fool! — Motley's the only wear.

As You Like It, Act is Sc. 7 SHAKESPEARE.

PERSONAL AND PUBLIC OPINION.

PRAISE.

The love of praise, howe'er concealed by art,
Reigns more or less, and glows in every heart.

Love of Fame, Sature 1.

DR E YOUNG

To things of sale a seller's praise belongs.

Love & Labor Lort, Act iv. Sc. 3. Shakespeare

I have bought

Golden opinions from all sorts of people.

Macbeth, Acts, Sc 7. Shakesplare

Who hath not owned, with rapture-smitten frame. The power of grace, the magic of a name?

Pleasures of Hope, Part II.

T. CAMPBELL.

FLATTERY.

'T is an old maxim in the schools, That flattery's the food of fools; Yet now and then your men of wit Will condescend to take a bit.

Cadenus and Vanessa.

DEAN SWIFT.

But flattery never seems absurd:
The flattered always takes your word:
Impossibilities seem just;
They take the strongest praise on trust.
Hyperboles, though ne'er so great,
Will still come short of self-conceit.
The Painter who pleased Nobody and Everybody.
J. GAY.

He loves to hear
That unicorns may be betrayed with trees,
And bears with glasses, elephants with holes,
Lions with toils, and men with flatterers.
But when I tell him he hates flatterers,
He says he does, being then most flattered.

Shikkespeare

Ne'er

Was flattery lost on Poet's ear:
A simple race! they waste their toil
For the vain tribute of a smile.
Lay of the Las' Minstrel, Cant. v.

SCOTT.

SCANDAL AND SLANDER.

There's nothing blackens like the ink of fools. It true, a woful likeness; and, if lies, "Praise undeserved is scandal in disguise."

Impations of Horace, I fistle I Book is Pope

And there's a last in man no charm can tame Of loudly publishing our neighbor's shame; On eagles' wings immortal scandals fly, While virtnous actions are but born and die.

Sature ix Trans of 5 Harvey JUVENAI

 ${f A}$ third interprets motions, looks and eyes; ${f A}t$ every word a reputation dies.

Rape of the Lock, Cant in

POPE.

No, 't is slander, Whose edge is sharper than the sword; whose tongue

Outvenoms all the worms of Nile, whose breath

Ontvenoms all the worms of Nile, whose breath Rides on the posting winds, and doth belie All comers of the world

Cymbeline, Act in Sc 4

SHALESPEARE

REPUTATION.

Good name in man and woman, dear my lord, Is the immediate jewel of their souls: Who steals my purse, steals trash; 't is something, nothing.

"I was mine, 't is his, and has been slave to thousands;

B it he that filches from me my good name R bbs me of that which not entiches him, And makes me poor indeed.

Othello, Act m Sc 3

SHAKESPEARE

After my death I wish no other herald,
No other speaker of my hving actions,
To keep mine honor from corruption,
But such an honest chronicler as Griffith.

King Henry I III., Act v Sc 2 Shakespeare.

HAMLET. Horatio, I am dead; Thou liv'st; report me and my cause aright To the unsatisfied.

HORATIO. Never believe it:

(Taking the cup)
I am more an antique Roman than a Dane:
Here's yet some liquor left.

HAM

As thou 'rt a man,

Give me the cup: let go; by heaven l'll have 't.—
(Strugglung: Hamlet gets the cup.)
O God!— Horatio, what a wounded name, Things standing thus unknown, shall live behind
no!!

If thou didst ever hold me in thy heart, Absent thee from felicity awhile, And in this haish world draw thy breath in pain, To tell my story.

Hamlet, Act v Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARR.

FAME.

What shall I do to be forever known,

And make the age to come my own †

7 ne Motto.

A COWLEY.

By Jove ' I am not covetous for gold;

But, if it be a sin to covet honor, I am the most offending soul alive.

King Henry V. Activ. Sc. 3

SHARESPEARE.

You name is great

In mouths of wisest censure.

Othello, Act v. Sc. 3. Shakesi

SHAKESPFARE.

It deserves with characters of brass A forted residence 'gainst the tooth of time And razure of oblivion,

Measure for Measure, Act v. Sc 1. SHAKESPEARE,

What is glory but the blaze of fame, The people's praise, if always praise unmixt?

And what delight to be by such extolled,
To live upon their tongues and be their talk,
Of whom to be dispinised were no small praise!

Faradise Regained, Book in Million

One touch of nature makes the whole world kin,— That all with one consent praise new-born gawds,

And give to dust, that is a little gilt,
More laud than gilt o'er-dusted.

Trailin and Cressida, 4cm 5c3 SHAKESPLARE

Thrice happy he whose name has been well spelt In the despatch. I knew a man whose loss Was printed (I) ove, although his name was Grose Pon Juan, Cant. viii. BY 20N

What is the end of Fame? "T is but to fill

A certain portion of uncertain paper.

Don Flum, Cant 1 BYRO'

Nor Fame I slight, nor for her favors call · · She comes unlooked for, if she comes at all.

Unblemished let me live, or die unknown;
O grant an honest fame, or grant me none!
The Temple of Fame.

Ah! who can tell how hard it is to climb The steep where fame's proud temple shines

Ah! who can tell how many a soul sublime Has felt the influence of malignant star, And waged with Fortune an eternal war; Checked by the scoff of pride, by envy's frown, And poverty's unconquerable bar, In life's low vale remote has pined alone,

Then dropt into the grave, unpitied and unknown!

The Minstrel, Book v.

J BEATTIE

Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise (That last infirmity of noble mind) To scorn delights, and live laborious days: But the fair guerdon when we hope to find, And think to burst out into sudden blaze, Comes the blind Fury with the abhorred shears, And slits the thin-spun life. But not the praise, Phæbus replied, and touched my trembling ears, Fame is no plant that grows on mortal soil,

But lives and spreads aloft by those pure eyes And perfect witness of all-judging Jove. As he pronounces lastly in each deed, Of so much fame in heaven expect thy meed. Lvcidas.

CLASS AND CASTE.

ARISTOCRACY.

Order is Heaven's first law, and, this confest, Some are, and must be, greater than the rest. POPE Essay on Man, Epistle IV.

Whoe'er amidst the sons Of reason, valor, liberty, and virtue, Displays distinguished merit, is a noble Of Nature's own creating.

Cornolanus, Act in Sc 2

J THOMSON.

None but himself can be his parallel.

The Double Falsehood

LOUIS THEOBALD.

He lives to build, not boast, a generous race; No tenth transmitter of a foolish face.

The Bastard.

R SAVAGE.

Such souls. Whose sudden visitations daze the world, Vanish like lightning, but they leave behind A voice that in the distance far away Wakens the slumbering ages.

Philip Van Artevelde, Act L. Sc. 7.

SIR H. TAYLOR.

SNOBBERY.

Let wealth and commerce, laws and learning die, But leave us still our old nobility.

England's Trust, and other Poems LORD J MANNERS.

In men this blunder still you find, All think their little set mankind.

Florio, Part I.

HANNAH MORR.

GLENDOWER. And all the courses of my life

I am not in the roll of common men.

I can call spirits from the vasty deep.

HOTSPUR. Why, so can I, or so can any man; But will they come when you do call for them? King Henry IV., Part I Act iii. Sc 1. SHAKESPEARE Know ye not then, said Satan, filled with scorn,-Know ye not me?

Not to know me argues yourselves unknown, The lowest of your throng.

Paradise Lost, Book IV.

MILTON.

And if his name be George, I'll call him Peter; For new-made honor doth forget men's names. King John, Act 1 Sc 1.

What woful stuff this madrigal would be In some starved hackney sonneteer, or me, But let a lord once own the happy lines, How the wit brightens! how the style refines! Essay on Criticism, Part II POPE.

"T is from high life high characters are drawn; A saint in crape is twice a saint in lawn. Moral Essays, Epistie I

POPE.

STATE-CRAFT.

For just experience tells, in every soil, That those that think must govern those that toil. The Traveller

'T is thus the spirit of a single mind Makes that of multitudes take one direction.

Don Juan

What should it be, that thus their faith can bind? The power of Thought — the magic of the Mind ! Linked with success, assumed and kept with skill, That moulds another's weakness to its will.

The Corsair BYRON.

Treason doth never prosper: what's the reason? For if it prosper, none dare call it treason.

Epigrams.

SIR J. HARRINGTON.

A cutpurse of the empire and the rule. That from a shelf the precious diadem stole, And put it in his pocket!

Hamlet, Act ill. Sc. 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

Measures, not men, have always been my mark. GOLDSMITH The Good-Natured Man. Act ii.

ABUSE OF AUTHORITY.

Oh! it is excellent To have a giant's strength; but it is tyrannous To use it like a giant.

Could great men thunder As Jove himself does, Jove would ne'er be quiet; For every pelting, petty officer Would use his heaven for thunder. -Nothing but thunder. Merciful Heaven ' Thou rather, with thy sharp and sulphurous bolt, Split'st the unwedgeable and gnarled oak, Than the soft myrtle: but man, proud man! Drest in a little brief authority, -Most ignorant of what he's most assured, His glassy essence, - like an angry ape, Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven, As make the angels weep; who, with our spleens, Would all themselves laugh mortal.

Measure for Measure, Act 11 Sc 2 SHAKESPEARE

THE PEOPLE

Who o'er the herd would wish to reign, Fantastic, fickle, fierce, and vain ! -Vain as the leaf upon the stream, And fickle as a changeful dream; Fantastic as a woman's mood, And fierce as Frenzy's fevered blood. Thou many-headed monster thing. O, who would wish to be thy king! Lady of the Lake, Cant. v.

He that depends Upon your favors swims with fins of lead, And hews down oaks with rushes. Hang ye!

Trust ye? With every minute you do change a mind; And call him noble that was now your hate, Him vile that was your garland.

Cortolanus, Act L. Sc. 1

SHAKLSPEARE.

SCOTT.

The scum That rises upmost when the nation boils. Don Sebastian. DRYDEN.

From lowest place when virtuous things proceed, The place is dignified by the doer's deed. All's Well that Finds Well, Act il Sc. 3. SHAKESPEARR

Through all disguise, form, place or name, Beneath the flaunting robes of sin, Through poverty and squalid shame, Thou lookest on the man within.

On man, as man, retaining yet, Howe'er debased, and soiled, and dim, The crown upon his forehead set -The immortal gift of God to him. Democracy I. G. WHITTIER.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SOLITUDE.

Alone ! - that worn-out word. So idly spoken, and so coldly heard; Yet all that poets sing, and grief hath known, Of hopes laid waste, knells in that word — ALONE! The New Timon, Part II. E. BULWER-LYTTON.

All heaven and earth are still, - though not in

But breathless, as we grow when feeling most; And silent, as we stand in thoughts too deep; -All heaven and earth are still; from the high host.

Of stars, to the lulled lake and mountain-coast, All is concentred in a life intense. Where not a beam, nor air, nor leaf is lost, But hath a part of being, and a sense Of that which is of all Creator and defence.

Then stirs the feeling infinite, so felt In solitude, where we are least alone. Childe Harold, Cant 111.

BYRON.

Such was that happy garden-state, While man there walked without a mate: After a place so pure and sweet, What other help could yet be meet! But 't was beyond a mortal's share To wander solitary there: Two paradises are in one. To live in paradise alone. The Garden (Translated)

A MARVELL

LONGFELLOW

Pacing through the forest, Chewing the cud of sweet and bitter fancy. In You Lake It, July N. St. & SHAKESPEARE.

A feeling of sadness and longing, That is not akin to pain, And resembles sorrow only As the mist resembles the rain. The Day is Done

Converse with men makes sharp the glittering wit, But God to man doth speak in solitude. Highland Solitude. J S. BLACKIR

But if much converse perhaps Thee satiate, to short absence I could yield; For solitude sometimes is best society, And short retirement urges sweet return.

Paradise Lost, Book ix.

MILTON.

SOCIAL PLEASURES.

Here thou, great Anna! whom three realms obey, Dost sometimes counsel take — and sometimes tea. Rape of the Lock, Cant. in. POPE.

She that asks

Her dear five hundred friends, contemns them all, And hates their coming.

The Timepiece The Task, Book 11

COWPER

The company is "mixed" (the phrase I quote is As much as saying, they 're below your notice).

Beffo.

Byron

Hands promiscuously applied, Round the slight waist or down the glowing side. The Waltz BYRON

O give me the sweet shady side of Pall Mall.

Town and Country.

C MORRIS

We may live without poetry, music, and art;
We may live without conscience and live without
heart;

We may live without friends; we may live without books;

But civilized man cannot live without cooks
We may live without books, — what is knowledge but grieving?

We may live without hope, — what is hope but deceiving?

We may live without love, — what is passion but pining?

But where is the man that can live without dining?

Lucile, Cant. il. R. BULWER LYTTON (Owen Meredith)

There my retreat the best companions grace, Chiefs out of war, and statesmen out of place; There St. John mingles with my friendly bowl, The feast of reason and the flow of soul.

Imitations of Horace, Satire i. Book 2

POPE.

Across the walnuts and the wine.

The Miller: Daughter

7 ENNYSON.

When in the Hall of Smoke they congress hold, And the sage berry sunburnt Mocha bears Has cleared their inward eye: then, smokeenrolled.

The Castle of Indolence, Cant. i.

J. THOMSON.

Sublime tobacco! which from east to west, Cheers the tar's labor or the Turkman's rest,

Divine in hookahs, glorious in a pipe,
When tipped with amber, mellow, rich and ripe;
Like other charmers, wooing the caress
More dazzlingly when daring in full dress;
Yet thy true lovers more admire by far
Thy naked beauties — Give me a cigar!
The Island, Cant. 11.

BYRON

Yes, social friend, I love thee well, In learned doctors' spite; Thy clouds all other clouds dispel, And lap me in delight. To my Cigar.

And when the smoke ascends on high, Then thou behold'st the vanity

> Of worldly stuff, Gone with a puff:

Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

C. SPRAGUE

And seest the ashes cast away, Then to thyself thou mayest say, That to the dust

Return thou must.

Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

Anonymous.—Before 1689.

MANNERS AND CUSTOMS.

Such is the custom of Branksome Hall.

The Lay of the Last Minstrel, Cant i. Scott.

But to my mind, — though I am native here,
And to the manner born, — it is a custom
More honored in the breach, than the observance.

Hamlet, Act 1 Sc. 4. SHAKLSPEARE.

Manners with fortunes, humors turn with climes, Tenets with books, and principles with times. Moral Essays, Epistle 1. Popt.

Plain living and high thinking are no more.
The homely beauty of the good old cause
Is gone; our peace, our fearful innocence,
And pure religion breathing household laws.

Written in London, September, 1802 WORDSWORTH

DIFFERING TASTES.

Different minds

Incline to different objects: one pursues The vast alone, the wonderful, the wild; Another sighs for harmony, and grace, And gentlest beauty.

Such and so various are the tastes of men.

Pleasures of the Imagination Book III M. AKENSIDE.

What 's one man's poison, signor, Is another's meat or drink.

Love's Cure, Act iii. Sc. 2. BEAUMONT and FLETCHER.

Variety's the very spice of life, That gives it all its flavor.

The Timepiece. The Task, Book is

COWPER

Not chaos-like together crushed and bruised, But, as the world, harmoniously confused, Where order in variety we see, And where, though all things differ, all agree. Windsor Forest.

QUARRELLING.

O, shame to men! devil with devil damned Firm concord holds, men only disagree Of creatures rational.

Paradise Lost, Book it.

MILTON

TRIFLES.

Think naught a trifle, though it small appear; Small sands the mountain, moments make the

And trifles life.

Love of Fame, Sattre vi-

DR. F YOUNG.

Pretty! in amber to observe the forms Of hair, or straws, or dirt, or grubs, or worms ! The things, we know, are neither uch nor rare, But wonder how the devil they got there!

Foistle to Dr Arbuthnot Prologue to Satires

What dire offence from amorous causes springs, What mighty contests rise from trivial things The Rape of the Lock, Cant 1. POPE

A little fire is quickly trodden out, Which, being suffered, rivers cannot quench. King Henry VI., Part III Act w. Sc. 8 SHAKESPFARE.

CRAFT.

Our better part remains To work in close design, by fraud or guile, What force effected not; that he no less At length from us may find, who overcomes By force hath overcome but half his foe.

Paradise Lost, Book 1

MILTON

TEMPTATION.

How oft the sight of means to do ill deeds Makes ill deeds done!

King John, Act Iv. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

PRUDENT SPEECH.

Let it be tenable in your silence still.

Give it an understanding, but no tongue. Hamlet, Act 1. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE

Give every man thine ear, but few thy voice; Take each man's censure, but reserve thy judg-

Hamlet, Act 1 Sc 3

SHAKESPEARE

And oftentimes excusing of a fault Doth make the fault the worse by the excuse, As patches, set upon a little breach, Discredit more in hiding of the fault Than did the fault before it was so patched. King John, Act iv Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE.

MODERATION.

Reason's whole pleasure, all the joys of sense, Lie in three words, - health, peace, and competence.

But health consists with temperance alone, And peace, O Virtue! peace is all thine own. Essay on Man, I pistle 11'

These violent delights have violent ends, And in their triumph die; like fire and powder. Which as they kiss consume

Therefore love moderately; long love doth so; Too swift arrives as tardy as too slow.

Romeo and Juliet, Act 11 Se 6

SHAKESPI ARE

They surfeited with honey, and began To loathe the taste of sweetness, whereof a little More than a little is by much too much.

King Henry IV., Part I Act m. Sc 2 SHAKESPEARL

He that holds fast the golden mean, And lives contentedly between The little and the great, Feels not the wants that pinch the poor, Nor plagues that haunt the rich man's door. Translation of Horace, Book 11 Ode x COWPER.

If then to all men happiness was meant, God in externals could not place content. I-ssav on Man, Fpistle II .

POPE.

IDLENESS AND ENNUL

'T is the voice of the sluggard; I heard him complain,

"You have waked me too soon, I must slumber again."

The Sluggard.

DR I WATIS

Absence of occupation is not rest, A mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.

Retirement

COWPER.

To sigh, yet feel no pain,

To weep, yet scarce know why;

To sport an hour with Beauty's chain,

Then throw it idly by.

I he Blue Stocking

T. MOORE.

The keenest pangs the wretched find Are rapture to the dreary void, The leafless desert of the mind, The waste of feelings unemployed.

BYRON.

Their only labor was to kill the time
(And labor dire it is, and weary woe);
They sit, they loll, turn o'er some idle rhyme;
Then, rising sudden, to the glass they go,
Or saunter forth, with tottering step and slow:
This soon too rude an exercise they find;
Straight on the couch their limbs again they throw.

Where hours on hours they sighing lie reclined, And court the vapory god, soft breathing in the wind.

The Castle of Indolence, Cant. L.

I. THOMSON

HANG SORROW!

And this the burden of his song forever used to be.

I care for nobody, no not I, if nobody cares for Love in a Village, Act i. Sc 2

I. BICKERSTAFF

Without the door let sorrow lie; And if for cold it hap to die, We'll bury't in a Christmas pie, And evermore be merry.

And Jack shall pipe, and Gill shall dance, And all the town be merry.

For Christmas comes but once a year, And then they shall be merry.

Though others' purses be more fat,
Why should we pine, or grieve at that?
Hang sorrow! care will kill a cat,
And therefore let's be merry.

Christmas.

G. WITHER

NIGHT AND SLEEP.

Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy Sleep!
He, like the world, his ready visit pays
Where fortune smiles; the wretched he forsakes:
Swift on his downy pinions flies from woe,
And lights on lids unsullied with a tear.

Night Thoughts, Night 1.

DR. E. YOUNG.

Thou hast been called, O sleep! the friend of woe;

But 't is the happy that have called thee so.

Curse of Kehama, Cant. Av. R. SOUTHEY.

She bids you on the wanton rushes lay you down, And rest your gentle head upon her lap, And she will sing the song that pleaseth you, And on your eyelids crown the god of sleep, ('harming your blood with pleasing heaviness; Making such difference betwixt wake and sleep As is the difference betwixt day and night, The hour before the heavenly-harnessed team Begins his golden progress in the east.

King Henry IV , Part I Act ii Sc 1. SHAKFSPEARE

Wearmess

Can snore upon the flint, when restive sloth Finds the down pillow hard.

Cymbeline, Act m. Sc. 6.

SHALESPEARE

Care-charming sleep, thou easer of all woes, Brother to Death, sweetly thyself dispose On this afflicted prince; fall like a cloud In gentle showers; . . . sing his pain Like hollow murmuring wind or silver rain.

Palenting BLAUMONT and FLETCHER.

Midnight brought on the dusky hour Friendliest to sleep and silence.

Paradise Lost, Book v.

MILION

And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away.

The Day is Done

LONGFFI LOW,

To all, to each, a fair good-night,

And pleasing dreams, and slumbers light!

Marmon · L'Envoy, To the Reader.

Scott

shad something strange of could but marks Ideny M. Longfellow The leaved of memory deemed to make A mounted rusting in the dark. The very bones in which we spake POEMS OF FANCY.

FANTASY.

FROM "THE VISION OF DELIGHT."

BREAK, Fantasy, from thy cave of cloud,
And spread thy purple wings,
Now all thy figures are allowed,
And various shapes of things;
Create of airy forms a stream,
It must have blood, and naught of phlegm;
And though it be a waking dream,
Yet let it like an odor rise
To all the senses here,
And fall like sleep upon their eyes,

BEN JONSON.

DELIGHTS OF FANCY.

Or music in their ear.

FROM "THE PLEASURES OF IMAGINATION."

'As Memnon's marble harp renowned of old By fabling Nilus, to the quivering touch Of Titan's ray, with each repulsive string Consenting, sounded through the warbling air Unbidden strains; e'en so did Nature's hand To certain species of external things Attune the finer organs of the mind; So the glad impulse of congenial powers, Or of sweet sound, or fair-proportioned form, The grace of motion, or the bloom of light, Thrills through imagination's tender frame, From nerve to nerve; all naked and alive They catch the spreading rays; till now the soul At length discloses every tuneful spring, To that harmonious movement from without, Responsive. Then the inexpressive strain Diffuses its enchantment; Fancy dreams Of sacred fountains and Elysian groves, And vales of bliss; the Intellectual Power Bends from his awful throne a wondering ear, And smiles; the passions gently soothed away, Sink to divine repose, and love and joy Alone are waking; love and joy serene As airs that fan the summer. O attend, Whoe'er thou art whom these delights can touch, Whose candid bosom the refining love
Of nature warms; O, listen to my song,
And I will guide thee to her favorite walks,
And teach thy solitude her voice to hear,
And point her loveliest features to thy view.

MARK AKENSIDE

FANCY.

EVER let the Fancy roam,
Pleasure never is at home.
At a touch sweet Pleasure melteth,
Like to bubbles when rain pelteth;
Then let winged Fancy wander
Through the thought still spread beyond her:
Open wide the mind's cage-door,
She'll dart forth, and cloudward soar.

O sweet Fancy ! let her loose ; Summer's joys are spoilt by use, And the enjoying of the Spring Fades as does its blossoming: Autumn's red-lipped fruitage too, Blushing through the mist and dew, Cloys with tasting What do then ! Sit thee by the ingle, when The sear fagot blazes bright, Spirit of a winter's night; When the soundless earth is muffled. And the caked snow is shuffled From the ploughboy's heavy shoon; When the Night doth meet the Noon In a dark conspiracy To banish Even from her sky. - Sit thee there, and send abroad With a mind self-overawed Fancy, high-commissioned : -- send her ! She has vassals to attend her; She will bring, in spite of frost, Beauties that the earth hath lost; She will bring thee, all together, All delights of summer weather; All the buds and bells of May From dewy sward or thorny spray;

All the heaped Autumn's wealth, With a still, mysterious stealth; She will mix these pleasures up Like three fit wines in a cup, And thou shalt quaff it; - thou shalt hear Distant harvest-carols clear; Rustle of the reaped corn : Sweet birds antheming the morn; And in the same moment - hark! 'T is the early April lark, Or the rooks, with busy caw, Foraging for sticks and straw. Thou shalt, at one glance, behold The daisy and the marigold; White-plumed lilies, and the first Hedge-grown primrose that hath burst; Shaded hyacinth, alway Sapphire queen of the mid-May; And every leaf, and every flower Pearled with the self-same shower. Thou shalt see the field-mouse peep Meagre from its celled sleep: And the snake all winter-thin Cast on sunny bank its skin; Freckled nest-eggs thou shalt see Hatching in the hawthorn tree, When the hen-bird's wing doth rest Quiet on her mossy nest; Then the hurry and alarm When the bee-hive casts its swarm: Acorns ripe down-pattering While the autumn breezes sing.

O sweet Fancy! let her loose; Everything is spoilt by use: Where 's the cheek that doth not fade, Too much gazed at? Where's the maid Whose lip mature is ever new? Where 's the eye, however blue, Doth not weary? Where's the face One would meet in every place? Where 's the voice, however soft, One would hear so very oft? At a touch sweet Pleasure melteth Like to bubbles when rain pelteth. Let then winged Fancy find Thee a mistress to thy mind: Dulcet-eyed as Ceres' daughten, Ere the god of torment taught her How to frown and how to chide, With a waist and with a side White as Hebe's, when her zonc Slipt its golden clasp, and down Fell her kirtle to her feet While she held the goblet sweet, And Jove grew languid. — Break the mesh Of the Fancy's silken leash:

Quickly break her prison-string,
And such joys as these she 'll bring:

— Let the winged Fancy roam,
Pleasure never is at home.

JOHN KLATS.

HALLO, MY FANCY.

[1650.]

In melancholic fancy,
Out of myself,
In the vulcan dancy,
All the world surveying,
Nowhere staying,

Just like a fairy elf;
Out o'er the tops of highest mountains skipping,
Out o'er the hills, the trees and valleys tripping,
Out o'er the ocean seas, without an oar or shipping.

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go?

Amidst the misty vapors,
Fsin would I know
What doth cause the tapers;
Why the clouds benight us,
And affright us

While we travel here below.

Fain would I know what makes the roaring thunder,

And what these lightnings be that rend the clouds asunder,

And what these comets are on which we gaze and wonder

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go ?

Fain would I know the reason
Why the little ant,
All the summer season,
Layeth up provision,
On condition

To know no winter's want:

And how these little fishes, that swim beneath salt water.

Do never blind their eye; methinks it is a matter An inch above the reach of old Erra Pater! Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go!

Fain would I be resolved
How things are done;
And where the bull was calved
Of bloody Phalaris,
And where the tailor is

That works to the man i' the moon!
Fain would I know how Cupid aims so rightly;
And how these little fairies do dance and leap
so lightly;

And where fair Cynthia makes her ambles nightly.

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go !

In conceit like Phaeton,
I'll mount Phœbus' chair,
Having ne'er a hat on,
All my hair a-burning
In my journeying,

Hurrying through the air.

Fair would I hear his fiery horses neighing,
And see how they on foamy bits are playing;
All the stars and planets I will be surveying!

Hallo, my tancy, whither wilt thou go?

O, from what ground of nature Doth the pelican, That self-devouring creature, Prove so froward And untoward.

Her vitals for to strain?

And why the subtle fox, while in death's wounds

Doth not lament his pangs by howling and by crying:

And why the milk-white swan doth sing when she's a-dying.

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go?

Fain would I conclude this,
At least make essay,
What similitude is;
Why fowls of a feather
Flock and fly together,
And lambs know beasts of prey:
How Nature's alchymists, these small laborious

How Nature's alchymists, these small laborious creatures, Acknowledge still a prince in ordering their natters,

And suffer none to live, who slothing lose their features.

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go?

I'm rapt with admiration,
When I do ruminate,
Men of an occupation,
How each one calls him brother,
Yet each envieth other,
And yet still intimate!

Yea, I admire to see some natures farther sund'red,

Than antipodes to us. Is it not to be wond'red?

In myriads ye'll find, of one mind scarce a hundred?

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go?

What multitude of notions
Doth perturb my pate,
Considering the motions,
How the heavens are preserved,
And this world served
In moisture, light, and heat!

If one spirit sits the outnost circle turning, Or one turns another, continuing in journeying, If rapid circles' motion be that which they call burning!

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go?

Fain also would I prove this,
By considering
What that, which you call love, is:
Whether it be a folly
Or a melancholy,

Or some herosthing!

Fain I'd have it proved, by one whom love hath wounded,

And fully upon one his desire hath founded,
Whom nothing else could please though the world were rounded

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go?

To know this world's centre,
Height, depth, breadth, and length,
Fain would I adventure
To search the hid attractions
Of magnetic actions,
And adamantine strength.

Fain would I know, if in some lofty mountain,
Where the moon sojourns, if there be trees or fountain:

If there be beasts of prey, or yet be fields to hunt in

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go?

Fain would I have it tried
By experiment,
By none can be demed !
If in this balk of nature,
There be voids less or greater,
Or all remains complete.
ain would I know it beasts have a

Fain would I know it beasts have any leason; If falcons killing eagles do commit a tleason; If fear of winter's want make swallows fly the season.

Hallo, my fancy, whither wilt thou go?

Hallo, my fancy, hallo '
Stay, stay at home with me,
I can thee no longer follow,
For thou hast betrayed me,
And bewrayed me;
It is too much for thee.

Stay, stay at home with me; leave off thy lofty soaring;

Stay thou at home with me, and on thy books be poring;

For he that goes abroad lays little up in storing:
Thou'rt welcome home, my fancy, welcome home to me.

WII LIAM CLELAND.

THE CLOUD.

I BRING fresh showers for the thirsting flowers,
From the seas and the streams;
I bear light shade for the leaves when laid
In their noonday dreams.
From my wings are shaken the dews that waken

From my wings are shaken the dews that waken The sweet buds every one,

When rocked to rest on their mother's breast, As she dances about the sun.

I wield the flail of the lashing hail,
And whiten the green plains under;
And then again I dissolve it in rain,

And then again I dissolve it in rain, And laugh as I pass in thunder.

I sift the snow on the mountains below,
And their great pines groan aghast;
And all the night 't is my pillow white,
While I sleep in the arms of the blast.
Sublime on the towers of my skyey bowers
Lightning, my pilot, sits:
In a cavern under is fettered the thunder;
It struggles and howls by fits.

Over earth and ocean, with gentle motion,
This pilot is guiding me,
Lured by the love of the genii that move
In the depths of the purple sea;
Over the rills and the crags and the hills,
Over the lakes and plains,

Wherever he dream, under mountain or stream, The spirit he loves remains;

And I all the while bask in neaven's blue smile, Whilst he is dissolving in rains.

The sanguine sunrise, with his meteor eyes,
And his burning plumes outspread,
Leaps on the back of my sailing rack,
When the morning star shines dead.
As, on the jag of a mountain crag

Which an earthquake rocks and swings, An eagle, alit, one moment may sit In the light of its golden wings;

And when sunset may breathe, from the lit sea beneath,

Its ardors of rest and of love,
And the crimson pall of eve may fall
From the depth of heaven above,
With wings folded I rest on mine airy nest,
As still as a brooding dove.

That orbed maiden with white fire laden,
Whom mortals call the moon,
Glides glimmering o'er my fleece-like floor
By the midnight breezes strewn;
And wherever the beat of her unseen feet,
Which only the angels hear,
May have broken the woof of my tent's thin roof,
The stars peep behind her and peer;

And I laugh to see them whirl and flee,
Like a swarm of golden bees,
When I widen the reut in my wind-built tent,
Till the calm rivers, lakes, and seas,
Like strips of the sky fallen through me on high,
Are each paved with the moon and these.

I bind the sun's throne with a burning zone,
And the moon's with a girdle of pearl;
The volcanoes are dim, and the stars reel and swim,
When the whirlwinds my banner unfurl.
From cape to cape, with a bridge-like shape,

Over a torrent sea,

Sunbeam-proof, I hang like a roof,
The mountains its columns be.
The triumphal arch through which I march
With hurricane, fire, and snow,
When the powers of the air are chained to my chair.

Is the million-colored bow;
The sphere-fire above its soft colors wove,
While the moist earth was laughing below.

I am the daughter of the earth and water; And the nursling of the sky;

I pass through the porce of the ocean and shores; I change, but I cannot die.

For after the rain, when, with never a stain, The pavilion of heaven is bare,

And the winds and sunbeams, with their convex gleams,

Build up the blue dome of air, —
I silently laugh at my own cenotaph,
And out of the caverns of rain,
Like a child from the womb, like a ghost from the tomb,

I rise and upbuild it again.

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY.

FANCY IN NUBIBUS.

O, IT is pleasant, with a heart at ease,
Just after sunset, or by moonlight skies,
To make the shifting clouds be what you please,
Or let the easily persuaded eyes
Own each quaint likeness issuing from the mould
Of a friend's fancy; or, with head bent low,
And check aslant, see rivers flow of gold,
'Twixt crimson banks; and then a traveller go
From mount to mount, through Cloudland, gor geous land!

Or, listening to the tide with closed sight, Be that blind Bard, who on the Chian strand, By those deep sounds possessed with inward light, Beheld the Iliad and the Odyssey, Rise to the swelling of the voiceful sea.

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE.

THE SUNSET CITY.

THERE's a city that lies in the Kingdom of Clouds, In the glorious country on high, Which an azure and silvery curtain enshrouds, To screen it from mortal eye;

A city of temples and turrets of gold,
That gream by a sapphire sea,
Like jewels more splendid than earth may behold,
Or are dreamed of by you and by me.

And about it are highlands of amber that reach
Far away till they melt in the gloom;
And waters that hem an immaculate beach
With fringes of luminous foam.

Aerial bridges of pearl there are, And belfries of marvellous shapes, And lighthouses lit by the evening star, That sparkle on violet capes,

And hanging gardens that far away Enchantedly float aloof; Rainbow pavilions in avenues gay, And banners of glorious woof!

When the Summer sunset's crimsoning fires Are aglow in the western sky, The pilgrim discovers the domes and spires Of this wonderful city on high,

And gazing enrapt as the gathering chade Creeps over the twilight lea, Sees palace and punnacle totter and fade, And sink in the sapphire sea;

Till the vision loses by slow degrees
The magical splendor it wore;
The silvery curtain is drawn, and he sees
The beautiful city no more!

THE CASTLE IN THE AIR.

HENRY SYLVESTER CORNWELL.

ADDRESSED TO A LADY WHO DATED HER LETTERS FROM "THE LITTLE CORNER OF 1HE WORLD"

In the region of clouds, where the whirlwinds arise,

My castle of fancy was built.

The turrets reflected the blue of the skies,

And the windows with sunbeams were gilt.

The rainbow sometimes in its beautiful state Enamelled the mansion around; And the figures that fancy in clouds can create Supplied me with gardens and ground. I had grottos and fountains and orange-tree groves;

I had all that enchantment has told;
I had sweet shady walks for the gods and their loves;

I had mountains of coral and gold.

But a storm that I felt not had risen and rolled, While wrapped in a slumber I lay; And when I awoke in the morning, behold, My castle was carried away!

It passed over rivers and valleys and groves;
The world, it was all in my view;
I thought of my friends, of their fates, of their loves,
And often, full often, of you.

At length it came over a beautiful scene,
Which Nature in silence had made;
The place was but small, but 't was sweetly serene,
And checkered with sunshine and shade.

I gazed and I envied, with painful good-will,
And grew tired of my seat in the air,
When all of a sudden my castle stood still
As if some attraction was there.

Like a lark in the sky it came fluttering down,
And placed me exactly in view,
When, whom should I meet in this charming retreat,

This corner of calmness, but you?

Delighted to find you in honor and ease,
I felt no more sorrow nor pain,
But, the wind coming fair, I ascended the breeze
And went back to my castle again

THOMAS PAINE.

IN THE MIST.

SITTING all day in a silver mist,
In silver silence all the day,
Save for the low, soft kiss of spray
And the lisp of sands by waters kissed,
As the tide draws up the bay.

Little I hear and nothing I see,
Wrapped in that veil by fairies spun;
The solid earth is vanished for me,
And the shining hours speed noiselessly,
A woof of shadow and sun.

Suddenly out of the shifting veil
A magical bark, by the sunbeams lit,
Flits like a dream—or seems to flit -With a golden prow and a gossamer sail
And the waves make room for it

A fair, swift bark from some radiant realm,—
Its diamond cordage cuts the sky
In glittering lines; all silently
A seeming spirit holds the helm,
And steers. Will he pass me by!

Ah! not for me is the vessel here;
Noiseless and swift as a sea-bird's flight
She swerves and vanishes from the sight;
No flap of sail, no parting cheer,—
She has passed into the light.

Sitting some day in a deeper mist,
Silent, alone, some other day,
An unknown bark, from an unknown bay,
By unknown waters lapped and kissed,
Shall near me through the spray.

No flap of sail, no scraping of keel, Shadowy, dim, with a bunner dark, It will hover, will pause, and I shall feel A hand which grasps me, and shivering steal To the cold strand, and embark,—

Embark for that far, mysterious realm
Where the fathomless, trackless waters flow.
Shall I feel a Presence dim, and know
Thy dear hand, Lord, upon the helm,
Nor be afraid to go?

And through black waves and stormy blast
And out of the fog-wreaths, dense and dun,
Guided by thee, shall the vessel run,
Gain anc fair haven, night being past,
And anchor in the sun?

SARAH WOOLSEY (Susan Coolidge)

THE BLESSED DAMOZEL

The blessed damozel leaned out
From the gold bar of heaven;
Her eyes were deeper than the depth
Of waters stilled at even;
She had three lilies in her hand,
And the stars in her hair were seven.

Her robe, ungirt from clasp to hem,
No wrought flowers did adorn,
But a white rose of Mary's gift,
For service neatly worn:
Her hair that lay along her back
Was yellow like ripe corn.

Her seemed she scarce had been a day One of God's choristers; The wonder was not yet quite gone From that still look of hers; Albeit, to them she left, her day Had counted as ten years.

It was the rampart of God's house
That she was standing on;
By God built over the sheer depth
The which is space begun;
So high, that looking downward thence
She scarce could see the sun.

It has in heaven, across the flood Of other, as a bridge. Beneath, the tides of day and night With flame and darkness ridge The void, as low as where this earth Spins like a tretful midge.

Heard hardly, some of her new friends Amid their loving games Spake evermore among themselves Their virginal chaste names; And the souls mounting up to God Went by her like thin flames.

And still she bowed herself and stopped
Out of the circling charm,
Until her bosom must have made
The bar she leaned on warm,
And the lilies lay as if asleep
Along her bended arm.

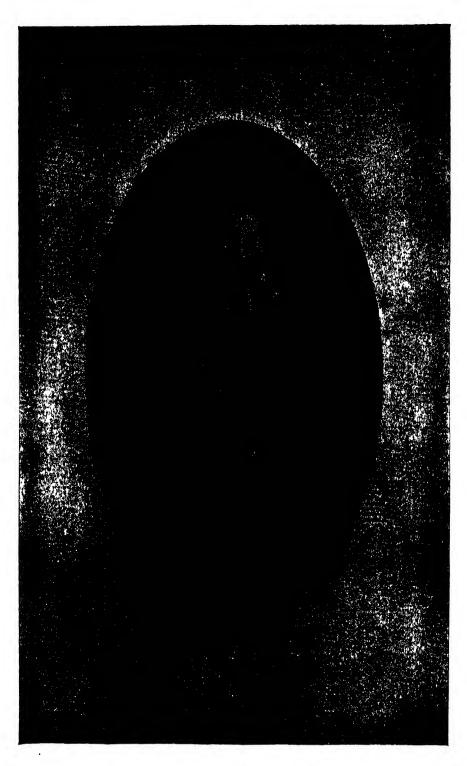

From the fixed place of heaven she saw
Time like a pulse shake fierce
Through all the worlds. Her gaze still streve
Within the gulf to pierce
The path, and now she spoke as when
The stars sang in their spheres.

"I wish that he were come to me,
For he will come," she said
"Have I not prayed in heaven?— on earth,
Lord, Lord, has he not prayed?
Are not two prayers a perfect strength?
And shall I feel atraid!"

She gazed and listened, and then said,
Less sad of speech than mild, —
"All this is when he comes" She ceased.
The light thrilled toward her, filled
With angels in strong level flight.
Her eyes prayed, and she smiled.

(I saw her smile.) But soon their path
Was vague in distant spheres;
And then she cast her arms along
The golden barriers,
And laid her face between her hands,
And wept. (I heard her tears.)

DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETT.

Goethe, at Eighty.

THE SUNKEN CITY.

HARK! the faint bells of the sunken city
Peal once more their wonted evening chime!
From the deep abysses floats a ditty,
Wild and wondrous, of the olden time.

Temples, towers, and domes of many stories
There lie buried in an ocean grave, —
Undescried, save when their golden glories
Gleam, at sunset, through the lighted wave.

And the mariner who had seen them glisten,
In whose ears those magic bells do sound,
Night by night bides there to watch and listen,
Though death lurks behind each dark rock
round.

So the bells of memory's wonder-city

Peal for me their old melodious chime;

So my heart pours forth a changeful ditty,

Sad and pleasant, from the bygone time.

Domes and towers and castles, fancy-builded, There he lost to daylight's garish beams,— There he hidden till unveiled and gilded, Glory-gilded, by my nightly dreams!

And then hear I music sweet upknelling
From many a well-known phantom band,
And, through tears, can see my natural dwelling
Far off in the spirit's luminous land!

From the German of WII HEI M MUFLLER Translation of JAMI'S CLARENCE MANGAN

THE LORE-LEI.

I know not whence it rises,
This thought so full of woe,—
But a tale of the times departed
Haunts me—and will not go.

The air is cool, and it darkens,
And calmly flows the Rhine;
The mountain peaks are sparkling
In the sunny evening-shine.

And yonder sits a maiden,
The fairest of the fair;
With gold is her garment glittering,
And she combs her golden hair.

With a golden comb she combs it,

And a wild song singeth she,

That melts the heart with a wondrous

And powerful melody.

The boatman feels his bosom
With a nameless longing move;
He sees not the gulfs before him,
His gaze is fixed above,

Till over boat and boatman
The Rhine's deep waters run;
And this with her magic singing
The Lore-Lei hath done!

From the German of HEINRICH HEINE.

THE FISHER

THE waters puried, the waters swelled A fisher sat near by,
And earnestly his line beheld
With tranquil heart and eye;
And while he sits and watches there,
He sees the waves divide,
And, lo ' a maid, with glistening hair,
Springs from the troubled tide.

She sang to him, she spake to him,—
"Why lur'st thou from below,
In cruel mood, my tender brood,
"To die in day's fierce glow?
Ah' didst thou know how sweetly there
The little fishes dwell,
Thou wouldst come down their lot to share,
And be forever well.

"Bathes not the smiling sun at night—
The moon too— in the waves?
Comes he not forth more fresh and bright
From ocean's cooling caves?
Canst thou unmoved that deep world see,
That heaven of tranquil blue,
Where thine own face is beckoning thee
Down to the eternal dew?"

The waters purled, the waters swelled, —
They kissed his naked feet;
His heart a nameless transport held,
As if his love did greet.
She spake to him, she sang to him;
Then all with him was o'er, —
Half drew she him, half sank he in, —
He sank to rise no more.

From the German of GOETHE Translation of CHARLES T BROOKS

THE SIRENS' SONG.

FROM THE "INNER TEMPLE MASQUL."

Steer hither, steer your winged pines,
All beaten mariners:
Here lie undiscovered mines,
A prey to passengers;

Perfumes far sweeter than the best
That make the phoenix urn and nest:
Fear not your ships,
Nor any to oppose you save our lips;
But come on shore,
Where no joy dies till love has gotten more.

For swelling waves our panting breasts,
Where never storms arise,
Exchange; and be awhile our guests:
For stars, gaze on our eyes.
The compass, love shall hourly sing;
And, as he goes about the ring,
We will not miss
To tell each point he nameth with a kiss.
WILLIAM BROWNE

THE FORSAKEN MERMAN.

Come, dear children, let us away;
Down and away below.

Now my brothers call from the bay;
Now the great winds shorewards blow;
Now the salt tides seaward flow;
Now the wild white horses play,
Champ and chafe and toss in the spray.
Children dear, let us away.
This way, this way.

Call her once before you go.

Call once yet,
In a voice that she will know:

"Margaret! Margaret!"
Children's voices should be dear
(Call once more) to a mother's ear:
Children's voices wild with pain,
Surely she will come again.
Call her once, and come away,
This way, this way.

"Mother dear, we cannot stay!
The wild white horses foam and fret,
Margaret! Margaret!"

Come, dear children, come away down.

Call no more.

One last look at the white-walled town,

And the little gray church on the windy shore,

Then come down.

She will not come, though you call all day.

Come away, come away.

Children dear, was it yesterday
We heard the sweet bells over the bay?
In the caverns where we lay,
Through the surf and through the swell,
The far-off sound of a silver bell?

Sand-strewn caverns cool and deep,
Where the winds are all asleep;
Where the spent lights quiver and gleam;
Where the salt weed sways in the stream;
Where the sea-beasts, ranged all round,
Feed in the coze of their pasture-ground;
Where the sea-snakes coil and twine,
Dry their mail and bask in the brine;
Where great whales come sailing by,
Sail and sail, with unshut eye,
Round the world forever and aye?

When did music come this way?
Children dear, was it yesterday?

Children dear, was it yesterday (Call yet once) that she went away? Once she sat with you and me, On a red gold throne in the heart of the sea. And the youngest sat on her knee. She combed its bright hair, and she tended it well, When down swung the sound of the far-off bell, She sighed, she looked up through the clear green sea, She said, "I must go, for my kinsfolk pray In the little gray church on the shore to-day. 'T will be Easter-time in the world, - ah me! And I lose my poor soul, Merman, here with thee " I said : "Go up, dear heart, through the waves : Say thy prayer, and come back to the kind seacaves.

She smiled, she went up through the surf in the bay,
Children dear, was it yesterday?

Children dear, were we long alone?
"The sea grows stormy, the little ones moan;
Long prayers," I said, "in the world they say."
"Come," I said, and we rose through the surf in the bay.

We went up the heach in the sandy down

We went up the beach in the sandy down
Where the sea-stocks bloom, to the white-walled town,

Through the narrow paved streets, where all was still,

To the little gray church on the windy hill.

From the church came a murmur of folk at their prayers,

But we stood without in the cold blowing airs
We climbed on the graves, on the stones worn with rains,

And we gazed up the aisle through the small leaded panes,

She sat by the pillar; we saw her clear; "Margaret, hist! come quick, we are here. Dear heart," I said, "we are here alone. The sea grows stormy, the little ones mean."

But, ah, she gave me never a look, For her eyes were sealed to the holy book.

"Loud prays the priest; shut stands the door."

Come away, children, call no more, Come away, come down, call no more.

Down, down, down,
Down to the depths of the sea.

She sits at her wheel in the humming town,
Singing most joyfully.

Hark what she sings: "O joy, O joy,
From the humming street, and the child with its toy,

From the priest and the bell, and the holy well,
From the wheel where I spun,
And the blessed light of the sun."

And so she sings her fill,
Singing most joyfully,
Till the shuttle falls from her hand,
And the whizzing wheel stands still.

She steals to the window, and looks at the sand,
And over the sand at the sea;
And her eyes are set in a stare;
And anon there breaks a sigh,
And anon there drops a tear,
From a sorrow-clouded eye,
And a heart sorrow-laden,

A long, long sigh,

For the cold strange eyes of a little Mermaiden,

And the gleam of her golden hair.

Come away, away, children, Come, children, come down. The hourse wind blows colder, Lights shine in the town. She will start from her slumber When gusts shake the door: She will hear the winds howling. Will hear the waves roar. We shall see, while above us The waves roar and whirl, A ceiling of amber. A pavement of pearl, -Singing, "Here came a mortal, But faithless was she. And alone dwell forever The kings of the sea."

But, children, at midnight,
When soft the winds blow,
When clear falls the moonlight,
When spring-tides are low;
When sweet airs come seaward
From heaths starred with broom;
And high rocks throw mildly
On the blanched sands a gloom:

Up the still, glistening beaches,
Up the creeks we will hie;
Over banks of bright seaweed
The ebb-tide leaves dry.
We will gaze from the sand-hills,
At the white sleeping town;
At the church on the hillside —
And then come back, down.
Singing, "There dwells a loved one,
But cruel is she:
She left lonely forever
The kings of the sea."

MATTHEW ARNOLD

UNA AND THE RED CROSSE KNIGHT

FROM "THE FAERIE QUEENE," BOOK I CANTO I

A GENTLE Knight was pricking on the plaine, Yeladd in mightie armes and silver shielde, Wherein old dints of deepe woundes did remaine,

The cruell markes of many a bloody fielde;
Yet arms till that time did he never wield
His angry steede did chide his forning bitt,
As much disdayning to the curbe to yield
Full iolly knight he seemd, and faire did sitt,
As one for knightly guists and fierce encounters fitt.

And on his brest a bloodie crosse he bore, The deare remembrance of his dying Loid, For whose sweete sake that glorious badge he

And dead, as living over, him ador'd .

Upon his shield the like was also scor'd,
For soveraine hope, which in his helpe he had,
Right, faithfull, true he was in deede and word:
But of his cheere, * did seeme too solemne and;
Yet nothing did he dread, but ever was ydrad. †

Upon a great adventure he was bond,
That greatest Gloriana to him gave,
That greatest glorious queene of Faery lond,
To winne him worshippe, and her grace to have,
Which of all earthly thinges he most did crave:
And ever, as he rode, his hart did earne
To prove his puissance in battell brave
Upon his foe, and his new force to learne;
Upon his foe, a Dragon horrible and stearne.

A lovely Ladic rode him faire beside, Upon a lowly asse more white then snow; Yet she much whiter; but the same did hide Under a vele, that wimpled was full low;

* countenance

† dreaded

And over all a blacke stole shee did throw:
As one that inly mournd, so was she sad,
And heavie sate upon her palfrey slow;
Seemèd in heart some hidden care she had;
And by her in a line a milke-white lambe she lad.

So pure and innocent as that same lambe
She was in life and every vertuous lore;
And by descent from royall lynage came
Of ancient kinges and queenes, that had of yore
Their scepters stretcht from east to westerne shore.

And all the world in their subjection held;
Till that infernall feend with foule uprore
Forwasted * all their land, and then expeld;
Whom to avenge, she had this Knight from far compeld.

Behind her farre away a Dwarfe did lag,
That laste seemd, in being ever last,
Or wearted with bearing of her bag
Of needments at his backe. Thus as they past,
The day with cloudes was suddeine overcast,
And angry Iove an hideous storme of rame
Did poure into his lemans lap so fast,
That everie wight to shrowd it did constrain;
And this faire couple eke to shroud themselves were fain.

Enforst to seeke some covert nigh at hand,
A shadie grove not farr away they spide,
That promist ayde the tempest to withstand;
Whose loftie trees, yelad with sommers pride,
Did spred so broad, that heavens light did hide,
Not perceable with power of any stair:
And all within were pathes and alleres wide,
With footing worne, and leading inward farr:
Faire harbour that them seemes, so in they entred ar.

EDMUND SPENSER

THE CAVE OF SLEEP.

FROM THE "FAFRIF QUEFNE," BOOK I CANTO I.

HE, making speedy way through spersed † ayre, And through the world of waters wide and deepe, To Morpheus house doth hastily repaire, Amid the bowels of the earth full steepe, And low, where dawning day doth never peepe, His dwelling is; there Tethys his wet bed Doth ever wash, and Cynthia still doth steepe In silver deaw his ever-drouping hed, Whiles sad Night over him her mantle black doth spred.

* For is here intensive. † dispersed.

And, more to lulle him in his slumber soft,

A trickling streame from high rock tumbling downe.

And ever-drizling raine upon the loft,

Mixt with a murmuring winde, much like the sowne *

Of swarming bees, did cast him in a swowne †
No other noyse, nor peoples troublous crycs,
As still are wont t'annoy the walled towne,
Might there be heard; but carelesse (Quiet lyes
Wrapt in eternall silence, farre from enimyes.

LOMUND SPENSER.

UNA AND THE LION.

FROM THE "FACRU QUEENE," BOOK 1. CANTO III.

ONE day, nigh wearie of the yrkesome way,
From her unhastic beast she did alight;
And on the grasse her dainty limbs did lay
In secrete shadow, far from all mens sight;
From her fayre head her fillet she undight,
And layd her stole aside. Her angels face,
As the great eye of heaven, shyned bright,
And made a sunshine in the shady place;
Did never mortall eye behold such heavenly grace.

It fortuned, out of the thickest wood
A ramping lyon rushed suddenly,
Hunting full greedy after salvage blood:
Soone as the royall virgin he did spy,
With gaping mouth at her ran greedily,
To have attonce devoured her tender corse;
But to the pray whenas he drew more ny,
His bloody rage aswaged with remorse,
And, with the sight amazd, forgat his furious forse.

Instead thereof, he kist her wearie feet,
And lickt her lilly hands with fawning tong;
As he her wrongèd innocence did weet. ||
O how can beautie maister the most strong,
And simple truth subdue avenging wrong!
Whose yielded pryde and proud submission,
Stilldreading death, when she had markèd long,
Her hart gan melt in great compassion;
And drizling teares did shed for pure affection.

"The lyon, lord of everie beast in field," Quoth she, "his princely puissance doth abate,
And mightie proud to humble weake does yield,
Forgetfull of the hungry rage, which late
Him prickt, in pittic of my sad estate:—
But he, my lyon, and my noble lord,
How does he find in cruell hart to hate
Her, that him lovd, and ever most adord
As the god of my life? why hath he me abhord?"

sound
blood of wild animals.

† swoon — deep sleep § pity. _ _ _ _ understand Redounding tears did choke th' end of her plaint, Which softly ecchoed from the neighbour wood; And, sad to see her sorrowfull constraint, The kingly beast upon her gazing stood; With pittie calmd, downe fell his angry mood. At last, in close hart shutting up her payne, Arose the virgin borne of heavenly brood, And to her snowy palfrey got agayne, To seeke her strayed champion if she might attayne.

The lyon would not leave her desolate,
But with her went along, as a strong gard
Of her chast person, and a faythfull mate
Of her sad troubles and misfortunes hard:
Still. when she slept, he kept both watch and ward:

And, when she wakt, he wayted diligent, With humble service to her will prepard; From her fayre eyes he took commandment, And ever by her lookes conceived her intent.

THE BOWER OF BLISS.

FROM THE "FALRIE QUEENL," BOOK II CANTO XII

THERE the most daintie paradise on ground
Itselfe doth offer to his sober eye,
In which all pleasures plenteously abownd,
And none does others happinesse envye;
The painted flowres; the trees upshooting hye;
The dales for shade, the hilles for breathing space;

The trembling groves; the christall running by; And, that which all faire workes doth most aggrace,*

The art, which all that wrought, appeared in no place.

One would have thought (so cunningly the rude And scoined partes were mingled with the fine) That Nature had for wantonesse ensude † Art, and that Art at Nature did repine; So striving each th' other to undermine, Each did the others worke more beautify; So diffring both in willes agreed in fine: So all agreed, through sweete diversity, This gardin to adorne with all variety.

And in the midst of all a fountaine stood,
Of richest substance that on earth might bee,
So pure and shiny that the silver flood.
Through every channell running one might see;
Most goodly it with curious ymageree

• give grace to. | innitated.

Was over wrought, and shapes of naked boyes, Of which some seemed with lively iollitee To fly about, playing their wanton toyes, Whylest others did themselves embay * in liquid ioyes.

And over all, of purest gold, was spred
A trayle of yvie in his native hew;
For the rich metall was so coloured,
That wight, who did not well avised † it vew,
Would surely deeme it to bee yvie trew:
Low his lascivious armes adown did creepe,
That, themselves dipping in the silver dew,
Their fleecy flowres they fearefully did steepe,
Which drops of christall seemed for wantones to weep

Infinit streames continually did well
Out of this fountaine, sweet and faire to see,
The which into an ample laver fell,
And shortly grew to so great quantitie,
That like a little lake it seemed to bee;
Whose depth exceeded not three cubits hight,
That through the waves one might the bottom
see,

All pav'd beneath with iaspar shining bright,
That seemd the fountaine in that sea did sayle upright.

Eftsoons ‡ they heard a most melodious sound, Of all that mote delight a daintie eare, Such as attonce might not on living ground, Save in this paradise, be heard elsewhere. Right hard it was for wight which did it heare, To read what manner musicke that mote bee, For all that pleasing is to living eare Was there consorted in one harmonce; Birdes, voices, instruments, windes, waters, all agree:

The ioyous birdes, shrouded in chearefull shade,
Their notes unto the voice attempred sweet;
Th' angelicall soft trembling voyces made
To th' instruments divine respondence meet;
The silver-sounding instruments did meet
With the base murmure of the waters fall,
The waters fall, with difference discreet,
Now soft, now loud, unto the wind did call;
The gentle warbling wind low answerèd to all.
EDMUND SPENSER.

THE LADY LOST IN THE WOOD.

FROM "COMUS."

This way the noise was, if mine ear be true, My best guide now; methought it was the sound Of riot and ill-managed incriment, Such as the jocund flute or gamesome pipe

bathe
 f with attention

1 mmediately

Stirs up amongst the loose, unlettered hinds, When for their teeming flocks and granges full In wanton dance they praise the bounteous Pan. And thank the gods amiss. I should be loath To meet the rudeness and swilled insolence Of such late wassailers; yet O, where else Shall I inform my unacquainted feet In the blind mazes of this tangled wood? My brothers, when they saw me wearied out With this long way, resolving here to lodge Under the spreading favor of these pines. Stepped, as they said, to the next thicket side To bring me berries, or such cooling fruit As the kind, hospitable woods provide They left me then, when the gray-hooded even, Like a sad votarist in palmer's weed, Rose from the hindmost wheels of Phæbus' wain. But where they are, and why they came not ls now the labor of my thoughts 't is likeliest They had engaged their wandering steps too far, And envious darkness, ere they could return, Had stole them from me; else, O thievish night, Why shouldst thou, but for some felonious end, In thy dark lantern thus close up the stars, That nature hung in heaven, and filled their lamps With everlasting oil, to give due light To the misled and lonely traveller? This is the place, as well as I may guess, Whence even now the tumult of loud mirth Was rife, and perfect in my listening ear, Yet naught but single darkness do I find. What might this be? A thousand fantasies Begin to throng into my memory, Of calling shapes, and beckoning shadows dire, And airy tongues, that syllable men's names On sands and shores and desert wildernesses. These thoughts may startle well, but not astound The virtuous mind, that ever walks attended By a strong-siding champion, Conscience. O welcome, pure-eyed Faith, white-handed Hope, Thou hovering angel girt with golden wings, And thou unblemished form of Chastity; I see you visibly, and now believe That he, the Supreme Good, to whom all things ill Are but as slavish officers of vengeance, Would send a glistering guardian, if need were, To keep my life and honor unassailed.

MILTON.

THE NYMPH OF THE SEVERN.

FROM "COMUS."

THERE is a gentle nymph not far from hence That with moist curb sways the smooth Severn stream.

Sabrina is her name, a virgin pure;

Whilom she was the daughter of Locrine,
That had the sceptre from his father Brute.
She, guiltless damsel, flying the mad pursuit
Of her enraged stepdame Guendolen,
Commended her fair innocence to the flood,
That stayed her flight with his cross-flowing course.

The water-nymphs that in the bottom played. Held up their pearled wrists, and took her in, Bearing her straight to aged Nereus' hall, Who, piteous of her woes, reared her lank head, And gave her to his daughters to imbathe In nectared lavers strewed with asphodel, And through the porch and inlet of each sense Dropped in ambrosial oils, till she revived, And underwent a quick immortal change, Made Goddess of the river · still she retains Her maiden gentleness, and oft at eve Visits the herds along the twilight meadows, Helping all urchin blasts, and ill-luck signs That the shrewd meddling elf delights to make, Which she with precious vialed liquous heals; For which the shepherds at their festivals Carol her goodness loud in rastic lays, And throw sweet garland wreaths into her stream Of pansies pinks, and gaudy daffodils.

THE HAUNT OF THE SORCERER.

FROM "COMUS"

WITHIN the navel of this hideous wood,
Immured in cypress shades a sorcerer dwells,
Of Bacchus and of Circè born, great Comus,
Deep skilled in all his mother's witcheries;
And here to every thirsty wanderer
By sly enticement gives his baneful cup,
With many murmurs mixed, whose pleasing poison

The visage quite transforms of him that drinks, And the juglorious likeness of a beast. Fixes instead, unmoulding reason's mintage Charactered in the face: this I have learnt. Tending my flocks hard by i' the hilly crofts, That brow this bottom-glade, whence night by night.

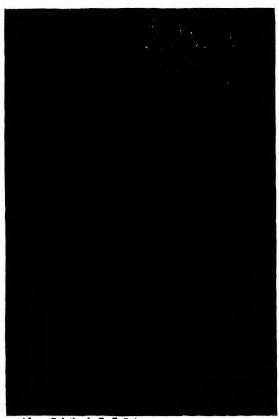

He and his monstrous rout are heard to howl, Like stabled wolves, or tigers at their prey, Doing abhorred rites to Hecate
In their obscured haunts of inmost bowers.
Yet have they many baits, and guileful spells, T' inveigle and invite the unwary sense
Of them that pass unweeting by the way.
This evening late, by them the chewing flocks
Had ta'en their supper on the savory herb
Of knot-grass dew-besprent, and were in fold,

BEETHOVEN'S THIRD SYMPHONY.

Passion and pain, the outcry of despair,

The pang of the unattainable desire,
And youth's delight in pleasures that expire,
And sweet high dreamings of the good and fair
Clashing in swift soul-storm, through which no prayer
Uplifted stays the destined death-stroke dire.
Then through a mighty sorrowing, as through fire,
The soul burnt pure yearns forth into the air
Of the dear earth and, with the scent of flowers
And song of birds assuaged, takes heart again,
Made cheerier with this drinking of God's wine,
And turns with healing to the world of men,
And high above a sweet strong angel towers,
And Love makes life triumphant and divine.

After a Painting by Emile Breton.

THE VOYAGE OF SLEEP.

To sleep I give myself away, Unclasp the fetters of the mind, Forget the sorrows of the day, The burdens of the heart unbind.

With empty sail this tired bark Drifts out upon the sea of rest, While all the shore behind grows dark, And when the soul on shining sands And silence reigns from east to west.

At last awakes the hidden breeze That bears me to the land of dreams, Where music sighs among the trees, And murmurs in the winding streams.

O weary day, O weary day, That dawns in fear and ends in strife, That brings no cooling draft to allay The burning fever-thirst of life.

O sacred night when angel hands Are pressed upon the tired brow, Descends with angels from the prow.

To sleep I give myself away, My heart forgets its vague unrest, And all the clamor of the day, And drifts toward the quiet west.

I sat me down to watch upon a bank With ivy canopied, and interwove With flaunting honeysuckle, and began, Wrapt in a pleasing fit of melancholy, To meditate my rural minstrelsy, Till fancy had her fill, but ere a close, The wonted roar was up amidst the woods. And filled the air with barbarous dissonance; At which I ceased, and listened them awhile, Till an unusual stop of sudden silence Gave respite to the drowsy frighted steeds, That draw the litter of close-curtained sleep; At last a soft and solemn-breathing sound Rose like a stream of rich distilled perfumes, And stole upon the air, that even Silence Was took ere she was ware, and wished she might Deny her nature, and be never more, Still to be so displaced. I was all ear, And took in strains that might create a soul Under the ribs of death: but O, ere long Too well I did perceive it was the voice Of my most honored Lady, your dear sister. Amazed I stood, harrowed with grief and fear, And O, poor hapless nightingale, thought I, How sweet thou sing'st, how near the deadly snare!

MILTON.

THE CASTLE OF INDOLENCE.

FROM CANTO I

The castle hight of Indolence, And its false luxury, Where for a little time, alas! We lived right jollily.

O MORTAL man, who livest here by toil,
Do not complain of this thy hard estate;
That like an emmet thou must ever moil,
Is a sad sentence of an ancient date;
And, certes, there is for it reason great;
For, though sometimes it makes thee weep and
wall.

And curse thy star, and early drudge and late; Withouten that would come a heavier bale, Loose life, unruly passions, and diseases pale.

In lowly dale, fast by a river's side,
With woody hill o'er hill encompassed round
A most enchanting wizard did abide,
Than whom a fiend more fell is nowhere found.
It was, I ween, a lovely spot of ground;
And there a season atween June and May,
Half prankt with spring, with summer half embrowned,

A listless climate made, where, sooth to say, No living wight could work, ne cared even for play. Was naught around but images of rest: Sleep-soothing groves, and quiet lawns between:

And flowery beds that slumbrous influence kest, From poppies breathed; and beds of pleasant green.

Where never yet was creeping creature seen. Meantime, unnumbered glittering streamlets played,

And hurled everywhere their waters sheen;
That, as they bickered through the sunny glade,
Though restless still themselves, a lulling murmur made.

Joined to the prattle of the purling rills
Were heard the lowing herds along the vale,
And flocks loud beating from the distant hills,
And vacant shepherds piping in the dale:
And, now and then, sweet Philomel would wail,
Or stockdoves plain amid the forest deep,
That drowsy rustled to the sighing gale;
And still a coil the grasshopper did keep;
Yet all these sounds yblent inclinèd all to sleep.

Full in the passage of the vale, above, A sable, silent, solemn forest stood; Where naught but shadowy forms was seen to move,

As Idless fancied in her dreaming mood:
And up the hills, on either side, a wood
Of blackening pines, aye waving to and fro,
Sent forth a sleepy horror through the blood;
And where this valley winded out, below,
The murniuring main was heard, and scarcely heard, to flow.

A pleasing land of drowsyhed it was,
Of dreams that wave before the half-shut eye;
And of gay castles in the clouds that pass,
Forever flushing round a summer sky:
There eke the soft delights, that witchingly
Instil a wanton sweetness through the breast,
And the calm pleasures always hovered nigh;
But whate'er smacked of noyance or unrest
Was far, far off expelled from this delicious nest.

The landscape such, inspiring perfect ease, Where Indolence (for so the wizard hight) Close-hid his castle mid embowering trees, That half shut out the beams of Phœbus bright, And made a kind of checkered day and night; Meanwhile, unceasing at the massy gate, Beneath a spacious palm, the wicked wight Was placed; and to his lute, of cruel fate And labor harsh, complained, lamenting man's estate.

Thither continual pilgrims crowded still, From all the roads of earth that pass there by: For, as they chanced to breathe on neighboring hill,

The freshness of this valley smote their eye. And drew them ever and anon more nigh ; Till clustering round the enchanter false they

Ymolten with his siren melody;

While o'er the enfeebling lute his hand he

And to the trembling chords these tempting verses sung :

"Behold! ye pilgrims of this earth, behold! See all, but man, with uncarned pleasure gay : See her bright robes the butterfly unfold, Broke from her wintry tomb in prime of May! What youthful bride can equal her array? Who can with her for easy pleasure vie? From mead to mead with gentle wing to stray, From flower to flower on balmy gales to fly, Is all she has to do beneath the radiant sky.

"Behold the merry minstrels of the morn, The swarming songsters of the careless grove, Ten thousand throats ! that, from the flowering thorn,

Hymn their good God, and carol sweet of love, Such grateful kindly raptures them emove: They neither plough nor sow; ne, fit for flail, E'er to the barn the nodden sheaves they

Yet theirs each harvest dancing in the gale, Whatever crowns the hill, or smiles along the vale.

"Outcast of nature, man! the wretched thrall Of bitter dropping sweat, of sweltry pain, Of cares that eat away the heart with gall, And of the vices, an inhuman train, That all proceed from savage thirst of gain: For when hard-hearted interest first began To poison earth, Astræa left the plain; Guile, violence, and murder seized on man, And, for soft milky streams, with blood the rivers ran.

"Come, ye who still the cumbrous load of life Push hard up hill; but as the furthest steep You trust to gain, and put an end to strife, Down thunders back the stone with mighty

And hurls your labors to the valley deep, Forever vain : come, and withouten fee, I in oblivion will your sorrows steep, Your cares, your toils; will steep you in a sea Of full delight: O, come, ye weary wights, to me! | Retiring, tasted joy he never knew before.

"With me, you need not rise at early dawn, To pass the joyless day in various stounds; Or, louting low, on upstart fortune fawn, And sell fair honor for some paltry pounds; Or through the city take your dirty rounds, To cheat, and dun, and lie, and visit pay, Now flattering base, now giving secret wounds : Or prowl in courts of law for human prey, In venal senate thieve, or rob on broad highway.

"No cocks, with me, to rustic labor call, From village on to village sounding clear; To tardy swain no shrill-voiced matrons squall; No dogs, no babes, no wives, to stun your ear ; No hammers thump; no horrid blacksmith sear.

Ne noisy tradesman your sweet slumbers start, With sounds that are a misery to hear: But all is calm, as would delight the heart Of Sybarite of old, all nature, and all art.

"Here naught but candor reigns, indulgent

Good-natured lounging, sauntering up and down:

They who are pleased themselves must always please;

On others' ways they never squint a frown, Nor heed what haps in hamlet or in town . Thus, from the source of tender Indolence, With milky blood the heart is overflown, Is soothed and sweetened by the social sense; For interest, envy, pride, and strife are banished hence.

"What, what is virtue, but repose of mind, A pure ethereal calm, that knows no storm; Above the reach of wild ambition's wind, Above those passions that this world deform, And torture man, a proud malignant worm? But here, instead, soft gales of passion play, And gently stir the heart, thereby to form A quicker sense of joy; as breezes stray Across the enlivened skies, and make them still more gay.

"The best of men have ever loved repose: They hate to mingle in the filthy fray; Where the soul sours, and gradual rancor

Imbittered more from peevish day to day. E'en those whom fame has lent her fairest rav. The most renowned of worthy wights of yore, From a base world at last have stolen away: So Scipio, to the soft Cumean shore

"But if a little exercise you choose,
Some zest for ease, 't is not forbidden here:
Amid the groves you may indulge the Muse,
Or tend the blooms, and deck the vernal year;
Or softly stealing, with your watery gear,
Along the brooks, the crimson-spotted fry
You may delude: the whilst, amused, you hear
Now the hoarse stream, and now the zephyr's sigh,

Attuned to the birds, and woodland melody.

"O grievous folly! to heap up estate,
Losing the days you see beneath the sun;
When, sudden, comes blind unrelenting fate,
And gives the untasted portion you have won
With ruthless toil, and many a wretch undone,
To those who mock you, gone to Pluto's reign,
There with sad ghosts to pine, and shadows
dun:

But sure it is of vanities most vain, To toil for what you here untoiling may obtain."

He ceased. But still their trembling ears retained

The deep vibrations of his witching song;
That, by a kind of magic power, constrained
To enter in, pell-mell, the listening throng
Heaps poured on heaps, and yet they slipt
along,

In silent ease; as when beneath the beam
Of summer moons, the distant woods among,
Or by some flood all silvered with the gleam,
The soft-embodied fays through airy portal stream:

By the smooth demon so it ordered was, And here his baneful bounty first begun: Though some there were who would not further pass,

And his alluring baits suspected han.

The wise distrust the too fair-spoken man.

Yet through the gate they cast a wishful eye:

Not to move on, perdie, is all they can:

For do their very best they cannot fly,

But often each way look, and often sorely sigh.

When this the watchful wicked wizard saw, With sudden spring he leaped upon them straight;

And soon as touched by his unhallowed paw,
They found themselves within the cursed gate:
Full hard to be repassed, like that of fate.
Not stronger were of old the giant crew,
Who sought to pull high Jove from regal state;
Though feeble wretch he seemed, of sallow hue:
Cartes, who bides his grasp, will that encounter rue.

Ye gods of quiet, and of sleep profound!
Whose soft dominion o'er this castle sways,
And all the widely silent places round,
Forgive me, if my trembling pen displays
What never yet was sung in mortal lays.
But how shall I attempt such arduous string!
I who have spent my nights and nightly days
In this soul-deadening place loose-lottering:
Ah! how shall I for this uprear my moulted wing?

Come on, my Muse, nor stoop to low despair,
Thou imp of Jove, touched by celestial fire!
Thou yet shalt sing of war, and actions fair,
Which the bold sons of Britain will inspire:
Of ancient bards thou yet shalt sweep the lyre;
Thou yet shalt tread in tragic pall the stage,
Paint love's enchanting woes, the heio's ire,
The sage's calm, the patriot's noble rage,
Dashing corruption down through every worthless age.

The doors, that knew no shrill alarming bell
Ne cursed knocker plied by villain's hand,
Self-opened into halls, where who can tell
What elegance and grandeur wide expand;
The pride of Turkey and of Persia land?
Soft quilts on quilts, on carpets carpets spread,
And couches stretched around in seemly band;
And endless pillows rise to prop the head;
So that each spacious room was one full-swelling bed;

And everywhere huge covered tables stood, With wines high-flavored and rich viands crowned:

Whatever sprightly juice or tasteful food
On the green bosom of this earth are found,
And all old ocean 'genders in his round:
Some hand unseen these silently displayed,
Even undemanded by a sign or sound,
You need but wish, and instantly obeyed,
Fair ranged the dishes rose, and thick the glasses played.

Hore freedom reigned, without the least alloy; Nor gossip's tale, nor ancient maiden's gall, Nor saintly spleen durst murinir at our joy, And with envenomed tongue our pleasures pall. For why? there was but one great rule for all, To wit, that each should work his own desire, And eat, drink, study, sleep, as it may fall, Or melt the time in love, or wake the lyre, And carol what, unbid, the Muscs might inspire.

The rooms with costly tapestry were hung, Where was inwoven many a gentle tale; Such as of old the rural poets sung, Or of Arcadian or Sicilian vale;

Reclining lovers, in the lonely dale,
Poured forth at large the sweetly tortured
heart:

Or, sighing tender passion, swelled the gale,
And taught charmed echo to resound their smart;

While flocks, woods, streams around, repose and peace impart.

Each sound too here to languishment inclined, Lulled the weak bosom, and induced ease; Aerial music in the warbling wind, At distance rising oft, by small degrees, Nearer and nearer came, till o'er the trees It hung, and breathed such soul-dissolving airs, As did, alas! with soft perdition please: Entangled deep in its enchanting snares, The listening heart forgot all duties and all cares.

A certain music, never known before,
Here lulled the pensive, melancholy mind;
Full easily obtained. Behooves no more,
But sidelong, to the gently waving wind,
To lay the well-tuned instrument reclined;
From which, with airy flying fingers light,
Beyond each mortal touch the most refined,
The god of winds drew sounds of deep delight:
Whence, with just cause, the harp of Æolus it hight.

Ah me! what hand can touch the string so fine? Who up the lofty diapason roll Such sweet, such sad, such solemn airs divine, Then let them down again into the soul: Now rising love they fanned; now pleasing dole They breathed, in tender musings, through the heart:

And now a graver sacred strain they stole,
As when seraphic hands a hymn impart:
Wild warbling nature all, above the reach of art!

[AMES THOMSON.]

KUBLA KHAN.*

In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure-dome decree
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran,
Through caverns measureless to man,
Down to a sunless sea.

* "In the summer of the year 1797 the author, then in ill-health, had retired to a lonely farm-house between Porlock and Linton, on the Exmoor confines of Somerset and Devonshire In consequence of a slight indisposition, an anodyne had been prescribed, from the effect of which he fell asleep in his chair at the moment he was reading the following sentence, or words of the same substance, in Purchas's Pigrimage: 'Here the Khan Kubla commanded a palace to be built, and a stately garden thereunto I and thus ten miles (if the time of fertile ground were enclosed with a wall.' The author continued for about three hours is a profound sleep, at least of the external THE AUTHOR, 1816.

So twice five miles of fertile ground With walls and towers were girdled round; And there were gardens, bright with sinuous rills, Where blossomed many an incense-bearing tree; And here were forests ancient as the hills, Infolding sunny spots of greenery.

But O that deep romantic chasm, which slanted Down the green hill athwart a cedarn cover! A savage place! as holy and enchanted As e'er beneath a waning moon was haunted By woman wailing for her demon-lover! And from this chasm, with ceaseless turmoil seething,

As if this earth in fast thick pants were breathing, A mighty fountain momently was forced, Amid whose swift, half-intermitted burst Huge fragments vaulted like rebounding hail, Or chaffy grain beneath the thresher's flail; And mid these dancing rocks at once and ever It flung up momently the sacred river. Five miles, meandering with a mazy motion Through wood and dale, the sacred river ran,—Then reached the caverns measureless to man, And sank in tumult to a lifeless ocean, And mid this tumult Kubla heard from far Ancestral voices prophesying war.

The shadow of the dome of pleasure Floated midway on the waves Where was heard the mingled measure From the fountain and the caves. It was a miracle of rare device, -A sunny pleasure-dome with caves of ice! A damsel with a dulcimer In a vision once I saw: It was an Abyssinian maid, And on her dulcimer she played. Singing of Mount Abora. Could I revive within me Her symphony and song, To such a deep delight 't would win me That, with music loud and long, I would build that dome in air, -That sunny dome! those caves of ice!

senses, during which time he has the most wivid confidence that he could not have composed less than from two to three hundred lines, if that indeed can be called composition in which all the mages rose up before him as things, with a parallel production of the correspondent expressions, without any sensation or consciousness of effort. On awaking he appeared to himself to have a distinct recollection of the whole, and, taking his pen, ink, and paper, instantly and eagerly wrote down the lines that are here preserved. At this moment he was unfortunately called out by a person on business from Porlock, and detained by him above an hour, and on his return to his room found, to his no small surprise and mortification, that though he still retained some vague and dim recollection of the general purport of the vision, yet, with the exception of some eight or ten scattered lines and images, all the rest had passed away, like the images on the surface of a stream into which a stone had been cast, but, alsa! without the after restoration of the latter."—
THE AUTHOR, 1816.

And all who heard should see them there, And all should cry, Beware! beware His flashing eyes, his floating hair! Weave a circle round him thrice, And close your eyes with holy dread, For he on honey-dew hath fed, And drunk the milk of Paradise.

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE.

SONG OF WOOD-NYMPHS.

COME here, come here, and dwell
In forest deep!
Come here, come here, and tell
Why thou dost weep!
Is it for love (sweet pain!)
That thus thou dar'st complain
Unto our pleasant shades, our summer leaves,
Where naught else grieves?

Come here, come here, and lie
By whispering stream!
Here no one dares to die
For love's sweet dream;
But health all seek, and joy,
And shun perverse annoy,
And race along green paths till close of day,
And laugh - alway!

Or else, through half the year,
On rushy floor,
We lie by waters clear,
While skylarks pour
Their songs into the sun!
And when bright day is done,
We hide 'neath bells of flowers or nodding corn,
And dream — till morn!

BRYAN WALLER PROCTER (Barry Cornwall).

THE FAIRIES' LULLABY.

FROM "MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S FREAM," ACT II. SC 3

Enter TITANIA, with her train.

TITANIA. Come, now a roundel, and a fairy song;

Then, for the third part of a minute, hence;—Some, to kill cankers in the musk-rose buds;
Some war with rear-mice for their leathern wings,
To make my small elves coats; and some keep back

The clamorous owl, that nightly hoots, and wonders

At our quaint spirits. Sing me now asleep; Then to your offices, and let me rest.

SONG.

1 FAIRY. You spotted snakes, with double tongue,
Thorny hedgehoys, be not seen;
Newts and blind-worms, do no wrong:
Come not near our fairy queen.

CHORUS. Philomel, with melody,
Sing in our sweet tullaby;
Lulla, tulla, tullaby; tulla, tulla, tullaby:
Never harm,
Nor spell nor charm,
Come our lovely lady nigh;
So, good-night, with tullaby.

2 FAIRY. Weaving spiders, come not here, Hence, you long-legged spinners, hence /

Beetles black, approach not near; Worm, nor snavl, do no offence.

CHORUS. Philomel, with melody, etc.

1 FAIRY. Hence away; now all is well:
One, aloof, stand sentinel.
[Excunt Fairies. TITANIA sleeps
SHAKESPEARE

FAIRIES' SONG.

WE the fairies blithe and antic, Of dimensions not gigantic, Though the moonshine mostly keep us, Oft in orchards frisk and peep us.

Stolen sweets are always sweeter; Stolen kisses much completer; Stolen looks are nice in chapels; Stolen, stolen be your apples

When to bed the world are bobbing, Then's the time for orchard-robbing; Yet the fruit were scarce worth peeling Were it not for stealing, stealing.

From the Latin of THOMAS RANDOLPH *
Translation of LEIGH HUNT

COMPLIMENT TO QUEEN ELIZABETH.

FROM "MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM," ACT II. SC. 2

OBERON. My gentle Puck, come hither. Thou remember'st

Since once I sat upon a promontory, And heard a mermaid, on a dolphin's back, Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breath, Randolph was a masterly scholar, and a profound student of the Greek and Latin poets, whose writings he imitated in those languages, and whose influence was marked in his English writings. He died (1634) at the age of twenty-nine, not fulfilling the fame promised by his early years. That the rude sea grew civil at her song, And certain stars shot madly from their spheres, To hear the sea-maid's music.

PUCK. I remember.

OBE. That very time I saw (but thou couldst not),

Flying between the cold moon and the earth, Cupid all armed: a certain aim he took
At a fair vestal thronèd by the west,
And loosed his love-shaft smartly from his bow,
As it should pierce a hundred thousand hearts
But I might see young Cupid's fiery shaft
Quenched in the chaste beams of the watery moon,
And the imperial votaress passed on,
In maiden meditation, fancy free.
Yet marked I where the bolt of Cupid fell:
It fell upon a little western flower
Before milk-white, now purple with love's wound,
And maidens call it Love-in-idleness.
Fetch me that flower.

SHAKESPEARE.

QUEEN MAB.

FROM "ROMEO AND JULIET," ACT L. SC. 4.

O, THEN, I see, Queen Mab hath been with you. She is the fairies' midwife; and she comes In shape no bigger than an agate-stone On the fore-finger of an alderman, Drawn with a team of little atomies Athwart men's noses as they lie asleep: Her wagon-spokes made of long spinners' legs; The cover, of the wings of grasshoppers; The traces, of the smallest spider's web; The collars, of the moonshine's watery beams; Her whip, of cricket's bone; the lash, of film; Her wagoner, a small gray-coated gnat, Not half so big as a round little worm Pricked from the lazy finger of a maid: Her chariot is an empty hazel-nut, Made by the joiner squirrel, or old grub, Time out of mind the fairies' coach-makers. And in this state she gallops night by night Through lovers' brains, and then they dream of love:

On courtiers' knees, that dream on court'sies straight;

O'er lawyers' fingers, who straight dream on fees; O'er ladies' lips, who straight on kisses dream, — Which oft the angry Mab with blisters plagues, Because their breaths with sweetmeats tainted are: Sometime she gallops o'er a courtier's nose, And then dreams he of smelling out a suit; And sometime comes she with a tithe-pig's tail, Tickling a parson's nose as 'a lies asleep, Then dreams he of another benefice:

Sometime she driveth o'er a soldier's neck, And then dreams he of cutting foreign throats, Of breaches, ambuscadoes, Spanish blades, Of healths five fathom deep; and then anon Drums in his ear, at which he starts, and wakes; And, being thus frighted, swears a prayer or two, And sleeps again. This is that very Mab That plats the manes of horses in the night; And bakes the elf-locks in foul sluttish hairs, Which, once untangled, much misfortune bodes: This is the hig, when maids lie on their backs, That presses them, and learns them first to hear, Making them women of good carriage.

SHALESPEARE.

THE FAIRIES.

UP the airy mountain,
Down the rushy glen,
We dare n't go a hunting
For fear of little men;
Wee folk, good folk,
Trooping all together;
Green jacket, red cap,
And white owl's feather!

Down along the rocky shore
Some make their home, —
They live on crispy pancakes
Of yellow tide-foam;
Some in the reeds
Of the black mountain-lake,
With frogs for their watch-dogs,
All night awake.

High on the hill-top
The old King sits;
He is now so old and gray
He's nigh lost his wits.
With a bridge of white mist
Columbkill he crosses,
On his stately journeys
From Slieveleague to Rosses:
Or going up with music
On cold starry nights,
To sup with the queen
Of the gay Northern Lights.

They stole little Bridget
For seven years long;
When she came down again
Her friends were all gone.
They took her lightly back,
Between the night and morrow;
They thought that she was fast asleep,
But she was dead with sorrow.

They have kept her ever since Deep within the lakes, On a bed of flag-leaves, Watching till she wakes.

By the craggy hillside,
Through the mosses bare,
They have planted thorn-trees
For pleasure here and there.
Is any man so daring
To dig one up in spite,
He shall find the thornies set
In his bed at night.

Up the airy mountain,
Down the rushy glen,
We dare n't go a hunting
For fear of little men;
Wee folk, good folk,
Trooping all together;
Green jacket, red cap,
And white owl's feather!

WIILLIAM ALLINGHAM.

KILMENY.

FROM "THE QUEEN'S WAKE."

Bonny Kilmeny gaed up the glen;
But it wasna to meet Duneira's men,
Nor the rosy monk of the isle to see,
For Kilmeny was pure as pure could be.
It was only to hear the yorlin sing,
And pu' the cress-flower round the spring, —
The scarlet hypp, and the hindberrye,
And the nut that hung frae the hazel-tree;
For Kilmeny was pure as pure could be.
But lang may her minny look o'er the wa',
And lang may she seek i' the green-wood shaw;
Lang the laird of Duneira blame,
And lang, lang greet or Kilmeny come hame.

When many a day had come and fled,
When grief grew calm, and hope was dead,
When mass for Kilmeny's soul had been sung,
When the bedesman had prayed, and the deadbell rung;

Late, late in a gloamin, when all was still,
When the fringe was red on the westlin hill,
The wood was sear, the moon i' the wane,
The reek o' the cot hung over the plain, —
Like a little wee cloud in the world its lane;
When the ingle lowed with an eiry leme,
Late, late in the gloamin Kilmeny came hame!

"Kilmeny, Kilmeny, where have you been? Lang hae we sought baith holt and den, — By linn, by ford, and green-wood tree; Yet you are halesome and fair to see Where got you that joup o' the lily sheen? That bonny snood of the birk sae green? And these roses, the fairest that ever was seen! Kilmeny, Kilmeny, where have you been?"

Kilmeny looked up with a lovely grace,
But nae smile was seen on Kilmeny's tace;
As still was her look, and as still was her ee,
As the stillness that lay on the emerant lea,
Or the mist that sleeps on a waveless sea.
For Kilmeny had been she knew not where,
And Kilmeny had seen what she could not declare

Kilmeny had been where the cock never crew, Where the rain never fell, and the wind never blew;

But it seemed as the harp of the sky had rung, And the airs of heaven played round her tongue, When she spake of the lovely forms she had seen, And a land where sin had never been, — A land of love, and a land of light, Withouten sun or moon or night; Where the river swa'd a living stream, And the light a pure celestial beam. The land of vision it would seem, A still, an everlasting dream.

In yon green-wood there is a wark,
And in that wark there is a wene,
And in that wene there is a marke,
That neither has flesh, blood, nor bane;
And down in yon green-wood he walks his lane.

In that green wene Kilmeny lay, Her bosom happed wi' the flowerets gay; But the air was soft, and the silence deep, And bonny Kilmeny fell sound asleep; She kend nae mair, nor opened her ce, Till waked by the hymns of a far countrye.

She awaked on a couch of the silk sae slim, All striped wi' the burs of the rambow's rim; And lovely beings around were rife, Who eist had travelled mortal life; And aye they smiled, and 'gan to speer "What spirit has brought this mortal here!"

"Lang have I journeyed the world wide,"
A meck and reverend fere replied;
"Baith night and day I have watched the fair
Eident a thousand years and mair.
Yes, I have watched o'er ilk degree,
Wherever blooms femenitye;
But sinless virgin, free of stain,
In mind and body, fand I nane.
Never, since the banquet of time,
Found I a virgin in her prime,
Till late this bonny maiden I saw,
As spotless as the morning snaw.

Full twenty years she has lived as free As the spirits that sojourn in this countrye. I have brought her away frae the snares of men, That sin or death she may never ken."

They clasped her waist and her hands sae fair; They kissed her cheek, and they kemed her hair; And round came many a blooming fere, Saying, "Bonny Kilmeny, ye're welcome here; Women are freed of the littand scorn; O, blest be the day Kilmeny was born! Now shall the land of the spirits see, Now shall it ken, what a woman may be! Many a lang year in sorrow and pain, Many a lang year through the world we've gane, Commissioned to watch fair womankind. For it's they who nurice the immortal mind. We have watched their steps as the dawning shone.

And deep in the greenwood walks alone;
By lily bower and silken bed
The viewless tears have o'er them shed;
Have soothed their ardent minds to sleep,
Or left the couch of love to weep.
We have seen! we have seen! but the time must come.

And the angels will weep at the day of doom !

*•O, would the fairest of mortal kind Aye keep the holy truths in mind, That kindred spirits their motions see, Who watch their ways with anxious e'e, And grieve for the guilt of humanitye! O, sweet to Heaven the maiden's prayer, And the sigh that heaves a bosom sae fair! And dear to Heaven the words of truth And the praise of virtue frae beauty's mouth! And dear to the viewless forms of air The minds that kythe as the body fair!

"O bonny Kilmeny! free frae stain,
If ever you seek the world again, —
That world of sin, of sorrow and fear, —
O, tell of the joys that are waiting here;
And tell of the signs you shall shortly see;
Of the times that are now, and the times that shall be."

They lifted Kilmeny, they led her away,
And she walked in the light of a sunless day;
The sky was a dome of crystal bright,
The fountain of vision, and fountain of light;
The emerald fields were of dazzling glow,
And the flowers of everlasting blow.
Then deep in the stream her body they laid,
That her youth and beauty never might fade;
And they smiled on heaven, when they saw her lie
In the stream of life that wandered by.

And she heard a song, - she heard it sung, She kend not where; but sae sweetly it rung, It fell on her ear like a dream of the morn. --"O, blest be the day Kilmeny was born! Now shall the land of the spirits see, Now shall it ken, what a woman may be! The sun that shines on the world sae bright. A borrowed gleid frae the fountain of light; And the moon that sleeks the sky sae dun. Like a gouden bow, or a beamless sun, Shall wear away, and be seen nae mair; And the angels shall miss them, travelling the air. But lang, lang after baith night and day, When the sun and the world have edyed away. When the sinner has gane to his waesome doom Kilmeny shall smile in eternal bloom!"

They bore her away, she wist not how, For she felt not arm nor rest below: But so swift they wained her through the light, 'T was like the motion of sound or sight: They seemed to split the gales of air, And yet nor gale nor breeze was there. Unnumbered groves below them grew; They came, they past, and backward flew. Like floods of blossoms gliding on, In moment seen, in moment gone. O, never vales to mortal view Appeared like those o'er which they flew, That land to human spirits given. The lowermost vales of the storied heaven; From whence they can view the world below. And heaven's blue gates with sapphires glow, -More glory yet unmeet to know.

They bore her far to a mountain green,
To see what mortal never had seen;
And they seated her high on a purple sward,
And bade her heed what she saw and heard,
And note the changes the spirits wrought;
For now she lived in the land of thought.—
She looked, and she saw nor sun nor skies,
But a crystal dome of a thousand dyes;
She looked, and she saw nae land aright,
But an endless whirl of glory and light;
And radiant beings went and came,
Far swifter than wind or the linked flame;
She hid her een frae the dazzling view;
She looked again, and the scene was new.

She saw a sun on a summer sky,
And clouds of amber sailing by;
A lovely land beneath her lay,
And that land had glens and mountains gray;
And that land had valleys and hoary piles,
And marled seas, and a thousand isles;
Its fields were speckled, its forests green,
And its lakes were all of the dazzling sheen,

Like magic mirrors, where slumbering lay
The sun and the sky and the cloudlet gray,
Which heaved and trembled, and gently swung;
On every shore they seemed to be hung;
For there they were seen on their downward plain
A thousand times and a thousand again;
In winding lake and placid firth,—
Little peaceful heavens in the bosom of earth.

Kilmeny sighed and seemed to grieve,
For she found her heart to that land did cleave;
She saw the corn wave on the vale;
She saw the deer run down the dale;
She saw the plaid and the broad claymore,
And the brows that the badge of freedom bore;
And she thought she had seen the land before.

She saw a lady sit on a throne,
The fairest that ever the sun shone on:
A lion licked her hand of milk,
And she held him in a leish of silk;
And a leifu' maiden stood at her knee,
With a silver wand and melting ee;
Her sovereign shield till love stole in,
And poisoned all the fount within.

Then a gruff untoward bedesman came,
And hundit the lion on his dame;
And the guardian maid wi' the dauntless ee,
She dropped a tear, and left her knee;
And she saw till the queen frae the lion fled,
Till the bonniest flower of the world lay dead;
A coffin was set on a distant plain,
And she saw the red blood fall like rain:
Then bonny Kilmeny's heart grew sair,
And she turned away, and could look nae mair.

Then the gruff grim carle girned amain,
And they trampled him down, but he rose again;
And he baited the lion to deeds of weir,
Till he lapped the blood to the kingdom dear;
And weening his head was danger-preef,
When crowned with the rose and clover leaf,
He gowled at the carle, and chased him away
To feed wi' the deer on the mountain gray.
He gowled at the carle, and he gecked at Heaven;
But his mark was set, and his arles given.
Kilmeny a while her een withdrew;
She looked again, and the scene was new.

She saw below her fair unfurled
One half of all the glowing world,
Where oceans rolled, and rivers ran,
To bound the aims of sinful man.
She saw a people, fierce and fell,
Burst frac their bounds like fiends of hell;
There lilies grew, and the eagle flew,
And she herked on her ravening crew,

Till the cities and towers were wrapt in a blaze, And the thunder it roared o'er the lands and the

The widows they wailed, and the red blood ran, And she threatened an end to the race of man: She never lened, nor stood in awe, Till caught by the lion's deadly paw.
Oh! then the eagle swinked for life, And brainzelled up a mortal strife; But flew she north, or flew she south, She met wi' the gowl of the lion's mouth.

With a mooted wing and waefu' maen,
The eagle sought her eiry again;
But lang may she cower in her bloody nest,
And lang, lang sleek her wounded breast,
Before she sey another flight,
To play wi' the norland lion's might.

But to sing the sights Kilmeny saw,
So far surpassing nature's law,
The singer's voice wad sink away,
And the string of his harp wad cease to play
But she saw till the sorrows of man were by,
And all was love and harmony;
—
Till the stars of heaven fell calmly away,
Like the flakes of snaw on a winter's day.

Then Kilmeny begged again to see
The friends she had left in her own countrye,
To tell the place where she had been,
And the glories that lay in the land unseen;
To warn the living maidens fair,
The loved of heaven, the spirits' care,
That all whose minds unmeled remain
Shall bloom in beauty when time is gane.

With distant music, soft and deep, They lulled Kilmeny sound asleep; And when she awakened, she lay her lane, All happed with flowers in the green-wood wene. When seven long years had come and fled; When grief was calm, and hope was dead; When scarce was remembered Kilmeny's name, Late, late in a gloamin, Kilmeny came hame! And O, her beauty was fair to see, But still and steadfast was her ee! Such beauty bard may never declare, For there was no pride nor passion there; And the soft desire of maidens' een In that mild face could never be seen. Her seymar was the lily flower, And her cheek the moss-rose in the shower; And her voice like the distant melodye That floats along the twilight sea. But she loved to raike the lanely glen, And keeped afar frae the haunts of men;

Her holy hymns unheard to sing, To suck the flowers and drink the spring. But wherever her peaceful form appeared, The wild beasts of the hills were cheered; The wolf played blythely round the field; The lordly byson lowed and kneeled; The dun deer wooed with manner bland, And cowered aneath her lily hand. And when at even the woodlands rung, When hymns of other worlds she sung In ecstasy of sweet devotion, O, then the glen was all in motion! The wild beasts of the forest came, Broke from their bughts and faulds the tame, And goved around, charmed and amazed; Even the dull cattle crooned, and gazed, And murmured, and looked with anxious pain For something the mystery to explain. The buzzard came with the throstle-cock, The corby left her houf in the rock; The blackbird alang wi' the eagle flew; The hind came tripping o'er the dew: The wolf and the kid their raike began; And the tod, and the lamb, and the leveret ran; The hawk and the hern attour them hung, And the merl and the mavis forhooyed their young:

And all in a peaceful ring were hurled: It was like an eve in a sinless world!

When a month and day had come and gane, Kilmeny sought the green-wood wene; There laid her down on the leaves sae green, And Kilmeny on earth was never mair seen. But O the words that fell from her mouth Were words of wonder, and words of truth! But all the land were in fear and dread, For they kend na whether she was living or dead. It wasna her hame, and she couldna remain; She left this world of sorrow and pain, And returned to the land of thought again.

THE FAIRY CHILD.

THE summer sun was sinking
With a mild light, calm and mellow;
It shone on my little boy's bonnie cheeks,
And his loose locks of yellow.

The robin was singing sweetly,
And his song was sad and tender;
And my little boy's eyes, while he heard the song,
Smiled with a sweet, soft splendor.

My little boy lay on my bosom
While his soul the song was quaffing;

The joy of his soul had tinged his cheek, And his heart and his eye were laughing.

I sate alone in my cottage,

The midnight needle plying;
I feared for my child, for the rush's light
In the socket now was dying;

There came a hand to my lonely latch, Like the wind at midnight meaning; I knelt to pray, but rose again, For I heard my little boy groaning.

I crossed my brow and I crossed my breast, But that night my child departed, — They left a weakling in his stead, And I am broken-hearted!

O, it cannot be my own sweet boy,
For his eyes are dim and hollow;
My little boy is gone — is gone,
And his mother soon will follow.

The dirge for the dead will be sung for me,
And the mass be chanted meetly,
And I shall sleep with my little boy,
In the moonlight churchyard sweetly.

JOHN ANSTER

THE CULPRIT FAY.

"My visual orbs are purged from film, and, to!
Instead of Anster's turnip bearing vales,
I see old fairy land's miraculous show!
Her trees of tinsel kissed by freakish gales,
Her ouths that, cloaked in leaf-gold, skin the breeze,
And fairies, swarning ""

FENNANI'S ANSTER LAIR.

'T is the middle watch of a summer's night,—
The earth is dark, but the heavens are bright;
Naught is seen in the vault on high
But the moon, and the stars, and the cloudless sky,

And the flood which rolls its milky hue,
A river of light on the welkin blue.
The moon looks down on old Cro'nest;
She mellows the shades on his shaggy breast,
And seems his huge gray form to throw
In a silver cone on the wave below.
His sides are broken by spots of shade,
By the walnut bough and the cedar made;
And through their clustering branches dark
Glimmers and dies the firefly's spark,—
Like starry twinkles that momently break
Through the rifts of the gathering tempest's rack

The stars are on the moving stream,
And fling, as its ripples gently flow,
A burnished length of wavy beam
In an eel-like, spiral line below;

The winds are whist, and the owl is still;
The bat in the shelvy rock is hid;
And naught is heard on the lonely hill
But the cricket's chirp, and the answer shrill
Of the gauze-winged katydid;
And the plaint of the wailing whippoorwill,
Who means unseen, and ceaseless sings
Ever a note of wail and woe,
Till morning spreads her rosy wings,
And earth and sky in her glances glow.

'T is the hour of fairy ban and spell:
The wood-tick has kept the minutes well;
He has counted them all with click and stroke
Deep in the heart of the mountain-oak,
And he has awakened the sentry elve
Who sleeps with him in the haunted tree,
To bid him ring the hour of twelve,
And call the fays to then revelry;
Twelve small strokes on his tinkling bell
('T was made of the white snail's pearly shell):
"Midnight comes, and all is well!
Hither, hither wing your way'
T is the dawn of the fairy-day."

They come from beds of lichen green, They creep from the mullem's velvet screen;

Some on the backs of beetles fly

From the silver tops of moon-touched trees,
Where they swing in their cobweb haminocks high,
And rocked about in the evening breeze;
Some from the hum-bird's downy nest,—
They had driven him out by elfin power,
And, pillowed on plumes of his rainbow breast,
Had slumbered there till the charmed hour;
Some had lain in the scoop of the rock,
With glittering ising-stars inlaid;
And some had opened the four-o'clock,
And stole within its purple shade.
And now they throng the moonlight glade,
Above, below, on every side,—

They come not now to print the lea,
In freak and dance around the tree,
Or at the mushroom board to sup,
And drink the dew from the buttercup:
A scene of sorrow waits them now,
For an ouphe has broken his vestal vow;
He has loved an earthly maid,
And left for her his woodland shade;
He has lain upon her lip of dew,
And sunned him in her eye of blue,
Fanned her cheek with his wing of air,
Played in the ringlets of her hair,

Their little minim forms arrayed

In the tricksy pomp of fairy pride!

And, nestling on her snowy breast,
Forgot the lily-king's behest.
For this the shadowy tribes of air
To the elfin court must haste away
And now they stand expectant there,
To hear the doom of the culprit fay.

The throne was reared upon the grass,
Of spice-wood and of sassafras;
On pillars of mottled tortoise-shell
Hung the burnished canopy, —
And o'er it gorgeous curtains fell
Of the tulip's crimson drapery.
The monarch sat on his judgment-seat,
On his brow the crown unperial shone,
The prisoner fay was at his feet,
And his peers were ranged around the throne.
He waved his sceptre in the air,
He looked around and calmly spoke;
His brow was grave and his eye severe,
But his voice in a softened accent broke:

"Fairy! fairy! list and mark . Thou hast broke thine elfin chain; Thy flame-wood lamp is quenched and dark, And thy wings are dyed with a deadly stain, -Thou hast sullied thine elfin purity In the glance of a mortal maiden's eye; Thou hast scorned our dread decree, And thou shouldst pay the forfeit high. But well I know her sinless mind Is pure as the angel forms above, Gentle and meek, and chaste and kind, Such as a spirit well might love. Fairy! had she spot or taint, Bitter had been thy punishment: Tied to the homet's shardy wings; Tossed on the pricks of nettles' stings; Or seven long ages doomed to dwell With the lazy worm in the walnut-shell Or every night to writhe and bleed Beneath the tread of the centipede; Or bound in a cobweb-dungeon dim, Your jailer a spider, huge and grim, Amid the carrion bodies to lie Of the worm, and the bug, and the murdered fly: These it had been your lot to bear, Had a stam been found on the earthly fair. Now list, and mark our mild decree, -Fairy, this your doom must be.

"Thou shalt seek the beach of sand
Where the water bounds the elfin land;
Thou shalt watch the oozy brine
Till the sturgeon leaps in the bright moonshine,
Then dart the glistening arch below,
And catch a drop from his silver bow.

The water-sprites will wield their arms
And dash around, with roar and rave,
And vain are the woodland spirits' charms;
They are the imps that rule the wave.
Yet trust thee in thy single might:
If thy heart be pure and thy spirit right,
Thou shalt win the warlock fight.

"If the spray-bead gem be won,
The stain of thy wing is washed away;
But another errand must be done
Ere thy crime be lost for aye:
Thy flame-wood lamp is quenched and dark,
Thou must re-illume its spark.
Mount thy steed, and spur him high
To the heaven's blue canopy;
And when thou seest a shooting star,
Follow it fast, and follow it far,
The last faint spark of its burning train
Shall light the elfin lamp again.
Thou hast heard our sentence, fay;

The goolin marked his monarch well;
He spake not, but he bowed him low,
Then plucked a crimson colen-bell,
And turned him round in act to go.
The way is long, he cannot fly,
His soiled wing has lost its power,

Hence! to the water-side, away!'

And he winds adown the mountain high,

For many a sore and weary hour.

Through dreary beds of tangled fern,

Through groves of nightshade dark and dern,

Over the grass and through the brake,

Where toils the ant and sleeps the snake;

Now o'er the violet's azure flush He skips along in lightsome mood;

And now he thrids the bramble-bush,
Till its points are dyed in fairy blood.
He has leaped the bog, he has pierced the brier,
He has swum the brook, and waded the mire,
Till his spirits sank, and his limbs grew weak,
And the red waxed fainter in his cheek.
He had fallen to the ground outright,

For rugged and dim was his onward track, But there came a spotted toad in sight, And he laughed as he jumped upon her back;

He bridled her mouth with a silkweed twist,
He lashed her sides with an osier thong;
And now, through evening's dewy mist,

With lesp and spring they bound along, Till the mountain's magic verge is past, And the beach of sand is reached at last.

Soft and pale is the moony beam, Moveless still the glassy stream; The wave is clear, the beach is bright
With snowy shells and sparkling stones;
The shore-surge comes in ripples light,

In murmurings faint and distant means; And ever afar in the silence deep Is heard the splash of the sturgeon's leap, And the bend of his graceful bow is seen,— A glittering arch of silver sheen, Spanning the wave of burnished blue, And dripping with gems of the river-dew.

The elfin cast a glance around,

As he lighted down from his courser toad,
Then round his breast his wings he wound,
And close to the river's brink he strode;
He sprang on a rock, he breathed a prayer,
Above his heed his arms he threw,
Then tossed a tiny curve in air,
And headlong plunged in the waters blue.

Up sprung the spirits of the waves From the sea-silk beds in their coral caves; With snail-plate armor, snatched in haste. They speed their way through the liquid waste; Some are rapidly borne along On the mailed shrimp or the plickly prong; Some on the blood-red leeches glide, Some on the stony star-fish ride. Some on the back of the lancing squab, Some on the sideling soldier-crab: And some on the jellied quarl, that flings At once a thousand streamy stings: They cut the wave with the living oar, And hurry on to the moonlight shore, To guard their realms and chase away The footsteps of the invading fay.

Fearlessly he skims along, His hope is high, and his limbs are strong; He spreads his arms like the swallow's wing, And throws his feet with a frog-like fling; His locks of gold on the waters shine,

At his breast the tiny foam-bees rise, His back gleams bright above the brine, And the wake-line foam behind him lies.

But the water-sprites are gathering near To check his course along the tide; Their warriors come in swift career

And hem him round on every side;
On his thigh the leech has fixed his hold,
The quarl's long arms are round him rolled,
The prickly prong has pierced his skin,
And the squab has thrown his javelin;
The gritty star has rubbed him raw,
And the crab has struck with his giant claw;
He howls with rage, and he shrieks with pain.
He strikes around, but his blows are vain;

Hopeless is the unequal fight, Fairy! naught is left but flight.

He turned him round, and fled amain, With hurry and dash, to the beach again; He twisted over from side to side. And laid his cheek to the cleaving tide; The strokes of his plunging arms are fleet, And with all his might he flings his feet, But the water-sprites are round him still, To cross his path and work him ill. They bade the wave before him rise; They flung the sea-fire in his eyes: And they stunned his ears with the scallop-stroke, With the porpoise heave and the drum-fish croak. O, but a weary wight was he When he reached the foot of the dogwood-tree. Gashed and wounded, and stiff and sore, He laid him down on the sandy shore; He blessed the force of the charmed line, And he banned the water-goblins' spite,

For he saw around in the sweet moonshine
Their little wee faces above the brine, Giggling and laughing with all their might

At the piteous hap of the fairy wight.

Soon he gathered the balsam dew
From the sorrel-leaf and the henbane bud;
Over each wound the balm he drew,

And with cobweb lint he stanched the blood. The mild west-wind was soft and low, It cooled the heat of his burning brow; And he felt new life in his sinews shoot, As he drank the juice of the calamus-root; And now he treads the fatal shore As fresh and vigorous as before.

Wrapped in musing stands the sprite;
'T is the middle wane of night;
His task is hard, his way is far,
But he must do his errand right
Ele dawning mounts her beamy car,
And rolls her chariot wheels of light;
And vain are the spells of fairy-land,—

He must work with a human hand.

He cast a saddened look around;
But he felt new joy his bosom swell,
When, glittering on the shadowed ground,
He saw a purple muscle-shell;
Thither he ran, and he bent him low,
He heaved at the stern and he heaved at the bow,
And he pushed her over the yielding sand
Till he came to the verge of the haunted land.
She was as lovely a pleasure-boat
As ever fairy had paddied in,
For she glowed with purple paint without,

And shone with silvery pearl within;

A sculler's notch in the stern he made, An oar he shaped of the bootle-blade; Then sprung to his seat with a lightsome leap, And launched afar on the calm, blue deep.

The imps of the river yell and rave.

They had no power above the wave;

But they heaved the billow before the prow,

And they dashed the surge against her side,

And they struck her keel with jerk and blow,

Till the gunwale bent to the rocking tide.

She wimpled about to the pale moonbeam,
Like a feather that floats on a wind-tossed stream.

And momently athwart her track

The quarl upreared his island back,
And the fluttering scallop behind would float,
And patter the water about the boat;
But he bailed her out with his colen-bell,
And he kept her trimmed with a wary tread,
While on every side, like lightning, fell

The heavy strokes of his bootle-blade.

Onward still he held his way,
Till he came where the column of moonshine lay
And saw beneath the surface dim
The brown-backed sturgeon slowly swim;
Around him were the goblin train,—
But he sculled with all his might and main,
And followed wherever the sturgeon led,
Till he saw him upward point his head;
Then he dropped his paddle-blade,
And held his colen-goblet up
To catch the drop in its crimson cup.

With sweeping tail and quivering fin Through the wave the sturgeon flew And, like the heaven-shot javelin, He sprung above the waters blue. Instant as the star-fall light He plunged him in the deep again. But he left an arch of silver bright, The rainbow of the moony main. It was a strange and lovely sight To see the puny goblin there; He seemed an angel form of light, With azure wing and sunny hair, Throned on a cloud of purple fair, Circled with blue and edged with white And sitting, at the fall of even. Beneath the bow of summer heaven.

A moment, and its lustre fell;
But ere it met the billow blue
He caught within his crimson bell
A droplet of its sparkling dew!—
Joy to thee, fay! thy task is done,
Thy wings are pure, for the gem is won,—

Cheerly ply thy dripping oar, And haste away to the elfin shore.

He turns, and, lo! on either side The ripples on his path divide; And the track o'er which his boat must pass Is smooth as a sheet of polished glass. Around, their limbs the sea-nymphs lave. With snowy arms half swelling out, While on the glossed and gleamy wave Their sea-green ringlets loosely float. They swim around with smile and song; They press the bark with pearly hand, And gently urge her course along Toward the beach of speckled sand, And, as he lightly leaped to land, They bade adieu with nod and bow; Then gayly kissed each little hand, And dropped in the crystal deep below.

A moment stayed the fairy there;
He kissed the beach and breathed a prayer;
Then spread his wings of gilded blue,
And on to the elfin court he flew.
As ever ye saw a bubble rise,
And shine with a thousand changing dyes,
Till, lessening far, through ether driven,
It mingles with the hues of heaven;
As, at the glimpse of morning pale,
The lance-fly spreads his silken sail,
And gleams with blendings soft and bright
Till lost in the shades of fading night, —
So rose from earth the lovely fay;
So vanished, far in heaven away!

Up, fairy! quit thy chickweed bower, The cricket has called the second hour; Twice again, and the lark will rise To kiss the streaking of the skies,— Up! thy charmed armor don, Thou 'lt need it ere the night be gone.

IIe put his acorn helmet on;
It was plumed of the silk of the thistle-down;
The corselet plate that guarded his breast
Was once the wild bee's golden vest;
His cloak, of a thousand mingled dyes,
Was formed of the wings of butterflies;
His shield was the shell of a lady-bug queen,
Studs of gold on a ground of green;
And the quivering lance which he brandished
bright

Was the sting of a wasp he had slain in fight. Swift he bestrode his firefly steed;

He bared his blade of the bent-grass blue; He drove his spurs of the cockle-seed, And away like a glance of thought he flew To skim the heavens, and follow far The fiery trail of the rocket-star.

The moth-fly, as he shot in air,
Crept under the leaf, and hid her there;
The katydid forgot its lay,
The prowling gnat fled fast away,
The fell mosquito checked his drone
And folded his wings till the fay was gone.
And the wily beetle dropped his head,
And fell on the ground as if he were dead;
They crouched them close in the darksome shade,
They quaked all o'er with awe and fear.

For they had felt the blue-bent blade,
And writhed at the prick of the elfin spear.

Many a time, on a summer's night,
When the sky was clear, and the moon was bright,
They had been roused from the haunted ground

By the yelp and bay of the fairy hound;
They had heard the tiny bugle-horn,
They had heard the twang of the maize-silk string,
When the vine-twig bows were tightly drawn,

And the needle-shaft through air was borne, Feathered with down of the hum-bird's wing. And now they deemed the courier ouphe Some hunter-sprite of the elfin ground, And they watched till they saw him mount the roof That canopies the world around; Then glad they left their covert lair, And freaked about in the midnight air.

Up to the vaulted firmament
His path the firefly courser bent,
And at every gallop on the wind
He flung a glittering spark behind;
He flies like a feather in the blast
Till the first light cloud in heaven is past.
But the shapes of air have begun their work,
And a drizzly must is round him cast;

He cannot see through the mantle murk; He shivers with cold, but he urges fast; Through storm and darkness, sleet and shade, He lashes his steed, and spurs amain,—

For shadowy hands have twitched the rein, And flame-shot tongues around him played, And near him many a fiendish eye Glared with a fell malignity, And yells of rage, and shrieks of fear, Came screaming on his startled ear.

His wings are wet around his breast,
The plume hangs dripping from his crest,
His eyes are blurred with the lightning's glare,
And his ears are stunned with the thunder's blare.
But he gave a shout, and his blade he drew,
He thrust before and he struck behind.

Till he pierced their cloudy bodies through,

And gashed their shadowy limbs of wind:

Howling the misty spectres flew,

They rend the air with frightful cries;

For he has gained the welkin blue,

And the land of clouds beneath him lies.

Up to the cope careering swift. In breathless motion fast, Fleet as the swallow cuts the drift. Or the sea-roc rides the blast, The sapphire sheet of eve is shot, The sphered moon is past, The earth but seems a tiny blot On a sheet of azure cast. O, it was sweet, in the clear moonlight, To tread the starry plain of even ! To meet the thousand eyes of night, And feel the cooling breath of heaven! But the elfin made no stop or stay Till he came to the bank of the Milky Way; Then he checked his courser's foot, And watched for the glimpse of the planet-shoot.

Sudden along the snowy tide That swelled to meet their footsteps' fall, The sylphs of heaven were seen to glide, Attired in sunset's crimson pall; Around the fay they weave the dance, They skip before him on the plain, And one has taken his wasp-sting lance. And one upholds his bridle-rein; With warblings wild they lead him on To where, through clouds of amber seen, Studded with stars, resplendent shone The palace of the sylphid queen. Its spiral columns, gleaming bright, Were streamers of the northern light; Its curtain's light and lovely flush Was of the morning's rosy blush; And the ceiling fair that rose aboon, The white and feathery fleece of noon.

But, O, how fair the shape that lay Beneath a rainbow bending bright! She seemed to the entranced fay The loveliest of the forms of light; Her mantle was the purple rolled At twilight in the west afar; 'I' was tied with threads of dawning gold, And buttoned with a sparkling star. Her face was like the lily roon That veils the vestal planet's hue; Her eyes, two beamlets from the moon, Set floating in the welkin blue. Her hair is like the sunny beam, And the diamond gems which round it gleam Are the pure drops of dewy even That ne'er have left their native heaven.

She raised her eves to the wondering sprite. And they leaped with smiles; for well I ween Never before in the bowers of light Had the form of an earthly fay been seen. Long she looked in his tiny face; Long with his butterfly cloak she played; She smoothed his wings of azure lace, And handled the tassel of his blade; And as he told, in accents low, The story of his love and woe, She felt new pains in her bosom rise, And the tear-drop started in her eyes. And "O, sweet spirit of earth," she cried, "Return no more to your woodland height, But ever here with me abide In the land of everlasting light! Within the fleecy drift we'll he, We'll hang upon the rainbow's rim; And all the jewels of the sky Around thy brow shall brightly beam! And thou shalt bathe thee in the stream That rolls its whitening foam aboon, And ride upon the lightning's gleam, And dance upon the orbed moon! We'll sit within the Pleiad ring, We'll rest on Onon's starry belt, And I will bid my sylphs to sing The song that makes the dew-mist melt; Then harps are of the umber shade That hides the blush of waking day, And every gleamy string is made Of silvery moonshine's lengthened ray; And thou shalt pillow on my breast, While heavenly breathings float around, And, with the sylphs of ether blest, Forget the joys of fany ground.

She was lovely and fair to see,
And the elfin's heart beat fitfully;
But lovelier far, and still more fair,
The earthly form imprinted there;
Naught he saw in the heavens above
Was half so dear as his mortal love,
For he thought upon her looks so meek,
And he thought of the light flush on her cheek
Never again night he bask and he
On that sweet cheek and moonlight eye;
But in his dreams her form to see,
To clasp her in his revery,
To think upon his virgin bide,
Was worth all heaven, and earth beside.

"Lady," he cried, "I have sworn to-night,
On the word of a fairy knight,
To do my sentence-task aright;
My honor scarce is free from stain,—
I may not soil its snows again:

Its mandate must be answered now."
Her bosom heaved with many a sigh,
The tear was in her drooping eye;
But she led him to the palace gate,
And called the sylphs who hovered there,
And bade them fly and bring him straight,
Of clouds condensed, a sable car.
With charm and spell she blessed it there,
From all the fiends of upper air;
Then round him cast the shadowy shroud,
And tied his steed behind the cloud;
And pressed his hand as she bade him fly
Far to the verge of the northern sky,

For by its wane and wavering light There was a star would fall to-night.

Betide me weal, betide me woe,

Borne afar on the wings of the blast,
Northward away he speeds him fast,
And his courser follows the cloudy wain
Till the hoof-strokes fall like pattering rain.
The clouds roll backward as he flies,
Each flickering star behind him lies,
And he has reached the northern plain,
And backed his firefly steed again,
Ready to follow in its flight
The streaming of the rocket-light.

The star is yet in the vault of heaven, But it rocks in the summer gale; And now 't is fitful and uneven, And now 't is deadly pale : And now't is wrapped in sulphur-smoke, And quenched is its rayless beam; And now with a rattling thunder-stroke It bursts in flash and flame. As swift as the glance of the arrowy lance That the storm-spirit flings from high, The star-shot flew o'er the welkin blue, As it fell from the sheeted sky. As swift as the wind in its train behind The elfin gallops along: The fiends of the clouds are bellowing loud, But the sylphid charm is strong; He gallops unhurt in the shower of fire, While the cloud-fiends fly from the blaze; He watches each flake till its sparks expire, And rides in the light of its rays. But he drove his steed to the lightning's speed, Ouphe and goblin! imp and sprite! Elf of eve! and starry fay! Ye that love the moon's soft light, Hither, — hither wend your way;

And caught a glimmering spark;

Then wheeled around to the fairy ground,

And sped through the midnight dark.

Twine ye in a jocund ring,
Sing and trip it merrily,
Hand to hand, and wing to wing,
Round the wild witch-hazel tree,

Hail the wanderer again
With dance and song, and lute and lyre;
Pure his wing and strong his chain,
And doubly bright his fairy fire.
Twine ye in an airy round,
Brush the dew and print the lea;
Skip and gambol, hop and bound,
Round the wild witch-hazel tree.

The beetle guards our holy ground,
He flies about the haunted place,
And if mortal there be found,
He hums in his ears and flaps his face;
The leaf-harp sounds our roundelay,
The owlet's eyes our lanterns be;
Thus we sing and dance and play
Round the wild witch-hazel tree.

But hark! from tower to tree-top high,
The sentry-elf his call has made;
A streak is in the eastern sky,
Shapes of moonlight! flit and fade!
The hill-tops gleam in morning's spring.
The skylark shakes his dappled wing,
The day-glimpse glimmers on the lawn,
The cock has crowed, and the fays are gone.

JOSEPH RODMAN DRAKE.

SHED no tear! O, shed no tear!
The flower will bloom another year.
Weep no more! O, weep no more!
Young buds sleep in the root's white core.
Dry your eyes! O, dry your eyes!
For I was taught in Paradise
To ease my breast of melodies, —
Shed no tear.

FAIRY SONG.

Overhead! look overhead!

'Mong the blossoms white and red, —
Look up, look up! I flutter now
On this fresh pomegranate bough.
See me! 't is this silvery bill
Ever cures the good man's ill,
Shed no tear! O, shed no tear!
The flower will bloom another year.
Adieu, adieu — I fly — adieu!
I vanish in the heaven's blue, —
Adieu, adieu!

JOHN KRATS

FAREWELL TO THE FAIRIES.

FAREWELL rewards and fairies,
Good housewifes now may say,
For now foul sluts in dairies
Do fare as well as they.
And though they sweep their hearths no less
Than maids were wont to do,
Yet who of late, for cleanliness,
Finds sixpence in her shoe;

Lament, lament, old Abbeys,
The fairies' lost command:
They did but change priests' babies,
But some have changed your land;
And all your children sprung from thence
Are now grown Puritans,
Who live as changelings ever since,
For love of your domains.

At morning and at evening both,
You merry were and glad,
So little care of sleep or sloth
These pretty ladies had;
When Tom came home from labor,
Or Cis to milking rose,
Then merrily went their tabor,
And nimbly went their toes.

Witness those rings and roundelays
Of theirs, which yet remain,
Were footed in Queen Mary's days
On many a grassy plain;
But since of late Elizabeth,
And later, James came in,
They never danced on any heath
As when the time hath been,

By which we note the fairies
Were of the old profession,
Their songs were Ave-Maries,
Their dances were procession:
But now, alas! they all are dead,
Or gone beyond the seas;
Or farther for religion fled,
Or else they take their ease.

A tell-tale in their company
They never could endure,
And whose kept not secretly
Their mirth, was punished sure;
It was a just and Christian deed,
To pinch such black and blue:
O, how the commonwealth doth need
Such justices as you!
RICHARD CORBET

TAM O'SHANTER.

A TALE

"Of Brownyis and of Bogilis full is this Buke."

GAWIN DOUGLASS.

When chapman billies leave the street,
And drouthy neebors neebors meet,
As market-days are wearing late,
An' folk begin to tak the gate;
While we sit bousing at the nappy,
An' getting fou and unco happy,
We think na on the lang Scots miles,
The mosses, waters, slaps, and styles,
That lie between us and our hame,
Whare sits our sulky, sullen dame,
Gathering her brows like gathering storm,
Nursing her wrath to keep it warm.

This truth fand honest Tam O'Shanter, As he frae Ayr ae night did canter (Auld Ayr, wham ne'er a town surpasses, For honest men and bonnie lasses).

O Tam! hadst thou been but sae wise As taen thy ain wife Kate's advice ! She tauld thee weel thou was a skellum, A blethering, blustering, drunken blellum: That frae November till October, As market-day thou was na sober; That ilka melder, wi' the miller, Thou sat as lang as thou had siller; That every naig was ca'd a shoe on, The smith and thee gat roaring fou on ; That at the L-d's house, ev'n on Sunday, Thou drank wi' Kirton Jean till Monday. She prophesied that, late or soon, Thou would be found deep drowned in Doon; Or catched wi' warlocks in the mirk, By Alloway's auld haunted kirk.

Ah, gentle dames! it gars me greet To think how monie counsels sweet, How monie lengthened sage advices, The husband frac the wife despises!

But to our tale: Ae market night Tam had got planted unco right, Fast by an ingle, bleezing finely, Wi' reaming swats, that drank divinely; And at his elbow souter Johnny, His ancient, trusty, drouthy crony. Tam lo'ed him like a vera brither; They had been fou for weeks thegither. The night drave on wi' sangs and clatter, And aye the ale was growing better; The landlady and Tam grew gracious, Wi' favors secret, sweet, and precious; The souter tauld his queerest stories; The landlord's laugh was ready chorus; The storm without might rair and rustle, Tam did na mind the storm a whistle.

Care, mad to see a man sae happy, E'en drowned himself amang the nappy; As bees flee hame wi' lades o' treasure, The minutes winged their way wi' pleasure; Kings may be blest, but Tam was glorious, O'er a' the ills o' life victorious.

But pleasures are like poppies spread;
You seize the flower, its bloom is shed;
Or like the snow-fall in the river,
A moment white, — then melts forever;
Or like the borealis race,
That flit ere you can point their place;
Or like the rainbow's lovely form
Evanishing amid the storm.
Nae man can tether time or tide;
The hour approaches Tam maun ride;
That hour o' night's black arch the keystane,
That dreary hour he mounts his beast in;
And sic a night he takes the road in
As ne'er poor sinner was abroad in.

The wind blew as 't wad blawn its last;
The rattling showers rose on the blast;
The speedy gleams the darkness swallowed;
Loud, deep, and lang the thunder bellowed;
That night a child might understand
The Deil had business on his hand.

Weel mounted on his gray mare, Meg, (A better never lifted leg,)

Tam skelpit on thro' dub and mire,
Despising wind and rain and fire, —
Whyles holding fast his guid blue bonnet,
Whyles crooning o'er some auld Scots sonnet,
Whyles glowering round wi' prudent cares,
Lest bogles catch him unawares;
Kirk-Alloway was drawing nigh,
Whare ghaists and houlets nightly cry.

By this time he was cross the ford, Whare in the snaw the chapman smoored; And past the birks and meikle stane, Whare drunken Charlie brak 's neck-bane; And through the whins, and by the carrn, Whare hunters fand the murdered bairn; And near the thorn, aboon the well, Whare Mungo's mither hanged hersel'. Before him Doon pours all his floods; The doubling storm roars through the woods; The lightnings flash from pole to pole; Near and more near the thunders roll; When, glimmering through the groaning trees, Kirk-Alloway seemed in a bleeze ! Through ilka bore the beams were glancing, And loud resounded mirth and dancing.

Inspiring bold John Barleycorn!
What dangers thou canst make us scorn!
Wi' tippenny we fear nae evil;
Wi' usquebae we'll face the Devil!—
The swats sae reamed in Tammie's noddle,

Fair play, he cared na Deils a bodle. But Maggie stood right sair astonished, Till, by the heel and hand admonished. She ventured forward on the light: And, wow! Tam saw an unco sight! Warlocks and witches in a dance: Nae cotillon brent new frae France, But hornpipes, jigs, strathspeys, and reels Put life and mettle in their heels. A winnock-bunker in the east, There sat auld Nick, in shape o' beast, -A towzie tyke, black, grim, and large, -To gie them music was his charge; He screwed the pipes and gart them skirl Till roof an' rafters a' did dirl. Coffins stood round like open presses, That shawed the dead in their last dresses; And by some devilish cantrip sleight, Each in its cauld hand held a light, — By which heroic Tam was able To note, upon the haly table, A murderer's banes, in gibbet airns : Twa span-lang, wee, unchristened bairns: A thief, new cutted frac a rape, Wi' his last gasp his gab did gape ; Five tomahawks, wi' blund red rusted; Five scymitars, wi murder crusted ; A garter, which a babe had strangled; A knife, a father's throat had mangled, Whom his ain son o' life bereft, -The gray hans yet stack to the heft; Three lawyers' tongues turned inside out. Wi' lies seamed like a beggan's clout; And priests' hearts, rotten, black as muck, Lay stinking, vile, in every neuk : Wi' mair o' horrible and awfu' Which even to name wad be unlawfu'.

As Tammie glowered, amazed and curious,
The mirth and fun grew fast and furious;
The piper loud and louder blew;
The dancers quick and quicker flew;
They reeled, they set, they crossed, they cleckit,
Till ilka carlin swat and reekit,
And coost her duddies to the wark,
And linket at it in her sark!

Now Tam, O Tam! had they been queaus, A' plump and strapping in their teens:
Their sarks, instead of creeshie flanuen,
Been snaw-white seventeen-hunder linen;
Thir breeks o' mine, my only pair,
That ance were plush, o' guid blue hair,
I wad hae gi'en them aff my hurdies
For ae blink o' the bonnie burdies!

But withered beldams, auld and droll, Rigwoodie hags wad spean a foal, Lowping an' flinging on a crummock,— I wonder didna turn thy stomach.

But Tam kenn'd what was what fu' brawlie. There was ae winsome wench and walie, That night inlisted in the core (Lang after kenn'd on Carrick shore; For monie a beast to dead she shot, And perished monie a bonne boat, And shook baith merkle corn and bear, And kept the country-side in fear) Her cutty-sark o' Paisley harn, That while a lassie she had worn, In longitude though sorely scanty, it was her best, and she was vaunty. -Ah! little kenned thy reverend grannic That sark she coft for her wee Nannie Wi' twa pund Scots ('t was a' her riches) Wad ever graced a dance o' witches!

But here my Muse her wing maun cower, Sic flights are far beyond her power, To sing how Nannie lap and flang (A souple jade she was and strang), And how Tam stood like ane bewitched, And thought his very een enriched Ev'n Satan glowered, and fidged fu' fain, And hotched and blew wi' might and main , Till first ae caper, sync anither, — Tam tint his reason a' thegither, And roars out, "Weel done, Cutty-sark '" And in an instant a' was dark . And scarcely had he Maggie ralhed, When out the hellish legion salhed.

As bees bizz out wi' angry tyke,
When plundering herds assail their byke;
As open pussie's mortal foes,
When, pop! she starts before their nose;
As eager runs the market-crowd,
When Catch the thief! resounds aloud;
So Maggie runs, — the witches follow,
Wi' mome an eldritch skreech and hollow.

Ah, Tam ' ah, Tam ' thou 'll get thy fairm' ! In hell they 'll roast thee like a herrin! In vain thy Kate awaits thy comin' -Kate soon will be a woefn' woman ! Now, do thy speedy utmost, Meg, And win the key-stane of the brig; There at them thou thy tail may toss, --A running stream they dare na cross But ere the key-stane she could make, The fient a tail she had to shake, For Nannie, far before the rest, Hard upon noble Maggie prest. And flew at Tam wi' furnous ettle: But little wist she Maggie's mettle, -Ae spring brought aff her master hale, But left behind her am gray tail . The carlin claught her by the rump, And left poor Maggie scarce a stump.

Now, wha this tale o' truth shall read, Ilk man and mother's son take heed; Whene'er to drink you are inclined, Or cutty-sarks run in your mind, Think, ye may buy the joys o'er dear, Remember Tam O Shanter's mare

ROBLET BURNS.

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN.

Hameles Town's in Brunswick,
By famous Hanover City,
The river Weser, deep and wide,
Washes its wall on the southern side;
A pleasanter spot you never spied;
But when begins my ditty,
Almost five hundred years ago,
To see the townsfolk suffer so
From vermin was a pity.

Rats !

They fought the dogs, and killed the cats,
And bit the babies in the cradles,
And ate the cheeses out of the vats,

And licked the soup from the cook's own ladles, Split open the kegs of salted sprats, Made nests inside men's Sunday hats, And even spoiled the women's chats,

By drowning their speaking With shireking and squeaking In fifty different sharps and flats.

At last the people in a body
To the Town Hall came flocking:
""T is clear," cried they, "our Mayor's a noddy;
And as for our Corporation, - shocking
To think we buy gowns lined with crimine
For dolts that can't or won't determine

For dolts that can't or won't determine What's best to rid us of our vermin!"
At this the Mayor and Corporation Quaked with a mighty consternation.

An hour they sate in counsel,

At length the Mayor broke silence:

"For a guilder I'd my erinne gown sell;

I wish I were a mile hence!

It's easy to bid one rack one's brain,—

I'm sure my poor head aches again.

I've scratched it so, and all in vain.

O for a trap, a trap, a trap!

Just as he said this, what should hap

At the chamber door but a gentle tap?

"Bless us," cried the Mayor, "what's that?"

"Come in!"—the Mayor cried, looking bigger;

And in did come the strangest figure;

He advanced to the council-table:

And, "Please your honors," said he, "I'm able,

By means of a secret charm, to draw All creatures living beneath the sun, That creep or swim or fly or run, After me so as you never saw!

Yet," said he, "poor piper as I am,
In Tartary I freed the Cham,
Last June, from his huge swarm of gnats;
I eased in Asia the Nizam
Of a monstrous brood of vampire-bats;
And as for what your brain bewilders, —
If I can rid your town of rats,
Will you give me a thousand guilders?"
"One? fifty thousand!" was the exclamation
Of the astonished Mayor and Corporation.

Into the street the piper stept, Smiling first a little smile, As if he knew what magic slept In his quiet pipe the while; Then, like a musical adept, To blow the pipe his lips he wrinkled, And green and blue his sharp eyes twinkled, Like a candle flame where salt is sprinkled; And ere three shrill notes the pipe uttered, You heard as if an army muttered; And the muttering grew to a grumbling; And the grumbling grew to a mighty rumbling; And out of the houses the rats came tumbling. Great rats, small rats, lean rats, brawny rats, Brown rats, black rats, gray rats, tawny rats, Grave old plodders, gay young friskers, Fathers, mothers, uncles, cousins, Cocking tales and pricking whiskers; Families by tens and dozens, Brothers, sisters, husbands, wives, -Followed the piper for their lives. From street to street he piped advancing, And step for step they followed dancing, Until they came to the river Weser, Wherein all plunged and perished Save one who, stout as Julius Cæsar, Swam across and lived to carry (As he the manuscript he cherished) To Rat-land home his commentary. Which was: "At the first shrill notes of the pipe, I heard a sound as of scraping tripe, And putting apples, wondrous ripe, Into a cider-press's gripe, -And a moving away of pickle-tub-boards, And a leaving ajar of conserve-cupboards, And a drawing the corks of train-oil-flasks, And a breaking the hoops of butter-casks; And it seemed as if a voice (Sweeter far than by harp or by psaltery Is breathed) called out, O rats, rejoice!

The world is grown to one vast drysaltery!

So munch on, crunch on, take your nuncheon,

Breakfast, supper, dinner, luncheon!
And just as a bulky sugar-puncheon,
Already staved, like a great sun shone
Glorious scarce an inch before me,
Just as methought it said, Come, bore me!—
I found the Weser rolling o'er me."

You should have heard the Hamelin people
Ringing the bells till they rocked the steeple;
"Go," cried the Mayor, "and get long poles!
Poke out the nests and block up the holes!
Consult with carpenters and builders,
And leave in our town not even a trace
Of the rats!" — when suddenly, up the face
Of the piper perked in the market-place,
With a "First, if you please, my thousand guilders!"

A thousand guilders! the Mayor looked blue;
So did the Corporation too.
For council-dinners made rare havoc
With Claret, Moselle, Vin-de-Grave, Hock;
And half the money would replenish
Their cellar's biggest butt with Rhenish.
To pay this sum to a wandering fellow
With a gypsy coat of red and yellow!
"Beside," quoth the Mayor, with a knowing wink,

"Our business was done at the river's brink;
We saw with our eyes the vermin sink,
And what's dead can't come to life, I think.
So, friend, we're not the folks to shrink
From the duty of giving you something to drink,
And a matter of money to put in your poke;
But as for the guilders, what we spoke
Of them, as you very well know, was in joke.
Beside, our losses have made us thrifty;
A thousand guilders! Come, take fifty!"

The piper's face fell, and he cried,
"No trifling! I can't wait! beside,
I've promised to visit by dinner time
Bagdat, and accept the prime
Of the head cook's pottage, all he's rich in,
For having left, in the Caliph's kitchen,
Of a nest of scorpions no survivor,—
With him I proved no bargain-driver;
With you, don't think I'll bate a stiver!
And folks who put me in a passion
May find me pipe to another fashion."

"How?" cried the Mayor, "d' ye think I'll brook
Being worse treated than a cook?
Insulted by a lazy ribald
With idle pipe and vesture piebald?
You threaten us, fellow? Do your worst,
Blow your pipe there till you burst!"

Once more he stept into the street;
And to his lips again
Laid his long pipe of smooth straight cane;
And ere he blew three notes (such sweet
Soft notes as yet musician's cunning
Never gave the enraptured air)
There was a rustling that seemed like a bustlin
Of merry crowds justling at pitching and hustlin

There was a rustling that seemed like a bustling
Of merry crowds justling at pitching and hustling;
Small feet were pattering, wooden shoes clattering,

Little hands clapping, and little tongues chattering;

And, like fowls in a farm-yard when barley is scattering.

Out came the children running:
All the little boys and girls,
With rosy cheeks and flaxen curls,
And sparkling eyes and teeth like pearls,
Tripping and skipping, ran merrily after
The wonderful music with shouting and laughter.

The Mayor was dumb, and the Council stood As if they were changed into blocks of wood, Unable to move a step, or cry To the children merrily skipping by, -And could only follow with the eye That joyous crowd at the piper's back. But how the Mayor was on the rack, And the wretched Council's bosoms beat, As the piper turned from the High Street To where the Weser rolled its waters Right in the way of their sons and daughters! However, he turned from south to west, And to Koppelberg Hill his steps addressed, And after him the children pressed; Great was the joy in every breast. "He never can cross that mighty top! He's forced to let the piping drop, And we shall see our children stop!" When, lo, as they reached the mountain's side, A wondrous portal opened wide, As if a cavern was suddenly hollowed; And the piper advanced and the children followed; And when all were in, to the very last, The door in the mountain-side shut fast. Did I say all? No! One was lame, And could not dance the whole of the way; And in after years, if you would blame His sadness, he was used to say, --"It's dull in our town since my playmates left! I can't forget that I 'm bereft Of all the pleasant sights they see, Which the piper also promised me; For he led us, he said, to a joyous land, Joining the town and just at hand, Where waters gushed, and fruit-trees grew, And flowers put forth a fairer hue, and everything was strange and new;

The sparrows were brighter than peacocks here, And their dogs outran our fallow deer, And honey-bees had lost their stings, And horses were born with eagles' wings; And just as I became assured My lame foot would be speedily cured, The music stopped and I stood still, And found myself outside the Hill, Left alone against my will, To go now limping as before, And never hear of that country more!"

THE TOAD'S JOURNAL.

[It is said that Belzoni, the traveller in Egypt, discovered a living toad in a temple, which had been for ages buried in the said]

In a land for antiquities greatly renowned
A traveller had dug wide and deep under ground,
A temple, for ages entombed, to disclose,—
When, lo' he disturbed, in its secret repose,
A toad, from whose journal it plainly appears
It had lodged in that mansion some thousands of years.

The roll which this reptile's long history records, A treat to the sage antiquarian affords:
The sense by obscure hieroglyphics concealed,
Deep learning at length, with long labor, revealed.
The first thousand years as a specimen take, —
The dates are omitted for brevity's sake

"Crawled forth from some rubbish, and winked with one eye;

Half opened the other, but could not tell why, Stretched out my left leg, as it felt rather queer, Then drew all together and slept for a year. Awakened, felt chilly, — crept under a stone, Was vastly contented with living alone. One toe became wedged in the stone like a prg, Could not get it away, —had the cramp in my leg, Began half to wish for a neighbor at hand To loosen the stone, which was fast in the sand; Pulled harder, then dozed, as I found 't was no

Awoke the next summer, and lo' it was loose. Crawled forth from the stone when completely awake:

Crept into a corner and grinned at a snake.
Retreated, and found that I needed repose;
Curled up my damp limbs and prepared for a doze;
Fell sounder to sleep than was usual before,
And did not awake for a century or more;
But had a sweet dream, as I rather believe:
Methought it was light, and a fine summer's eve;
And I in some garden deliciously fed
In the pleasant moist shade of a strawberry-bed.
There fine speckled creatures claimed kindred with me,

And others that hopped, most enchanting to see.

Here long I regaled with emotion extreme; — Awoke, — disconcerted to find it a dream; Grew pensive, — discovered that life is a load; Began to get weary of being a toad;

Was fretful at first, and then shed a few tears "— Here ends the account of the first thousand years.

MORAL

It seems that life is all a void, On selfish thoughts alone employed; That length of days is not a good, Unless their use be understood.

JANE TAYLOR.

THE RAVEN.

ONCE upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered, weak and weary,

Over many a quaint and curious volume of forgotten lore, ---

While I nodded, nearly napping, suddenly there came a tapping,

As of some one gently rapping, rapping at my chamber door

"T is some visitor," I muttered, "tapping at my chamber door,

Only this, and nothing more."

Ah, distinctly I remember, it was in the bleak December,

And each separate dying ember wrought its ghost upon the floor.

Eagerly I wished the morrow; vainly I had sought to borrow

From my books surcease of sorrow, — sorrow for the lost Lenore, —

For the rare and radiant maiden whom the angels named Lenore.

Nameless here forevermore.

And the silken, sad, uncertain rustling of each purple curtain

Thilled me, -- filled me with fautastic terrors never felt before,

So that now, to still the beating of my heart, I stood repeating,

"'T is some visitor entreating entrance at my chamber door, .-

Some late visitor entreating entrance at my chamber door;

That it is, and nothing more "

Presently my soul grew stronger; hesitating then no longer,

"Sir," said I, "or madam, truly your forgiveness I implore;

But the fact is, I was napping, and so gently you came rapping,

And so faintly you came tapping, tapping at my chamber door,

That I scarce was sure I heard you " — Here I opened wide the door;

Darkness there, and nothing more.

Deep into that darkness peering, long 1 stood there, wondering, fearing.

Doubting, dreaming dreams no mortal ever dared to dream before;

But the silence was unbroken, and the darkness gave no token,

And the only word there spoken was the whispered word "Lenore!"

This I whispered, and an echo murmured back the word "Lenoie!"

Merely this, and nothing more.

Back into the chamber turning, all my soul within me burning,

Soon again I heard a tapping, something louder than before

"Surely," said I, "surely that is something at my window-lattice;

Let me see then what thereat is, and this mystery explore. —

Let my heart be still a moment, and this mystery explore, —

"T is the wind, and nothing more."

Open then I flung the shutter, when, with many a flirt and flutter,

In there stepped a stately raven of the saintly days of yore.

Not the least obeisance made he; not an instant stopped or stayed he;

But, with mien of lord or lady, perched above my champer door,—

Perched upon a bust of Pallas, just above my chamber door, —

Perched, and sat, and nothing more.

Then this ebony bird beguiling my sad fancy into smiling,

By the grave and stern decorum of the countenance it wore,

"Though thy crest be shorn and shaven, thou,"
I said, "art sure no craven;

Ghastly, grim, and ancient raven, wandering from the nightly shore,

Tell me what thy lordly name is on the night's Plutoman shore ""

Quoth the raven, "Nevermore!"

Much I marvelled this ungainly fowl to hear discourse so plainly,

Though its answer little meaning, little relevancy bore;

For we cannot help agreeing that no living hu- | Swung by seraphim, whose footfalls tinkled on man being

Ever yet was blessed with seeing bird above his chamber door,

Bird or beast upon the sculptured bust above his chamber door,

With such name as "Nevermore!"

But the raven, sitting lonely on the placid bust, spoke only

That one word, as if his soul in that one word he did outpour.

Nothing further then he uttered, - not a feather then he fluttered, -

Till I scarcely more than muttered, "Other friends have flown before. --

On the morrow he will leave me, as my hopes have flown before "

Then the bird said, "Nevermore!"

Startled at the stillness, broken by reply so aptly spoken,

"Doubtless," said I, "what it utters is its only stock and store,

Caught from some unhappy master, whom unmerciful disaster

Followed fast and followed faster, till his song one burden bore,

Till the dirges of his hope that melancholy burden bore, .

Of 'Nevermore, - nevermore!'"

But the raven still begunling all my sad soul into smiling.

Straight I wheeled a cushroned seat in front of bird and bust and door,

Then, upon the velvet sinking, I betook myself to linking

Fancy unto fancy, thinking what this ominous bird of yore -

What this grim, ungainly, ghastly, gaunt, and ommous bird of yore -

Meant in croaking "Nevermore!"

This I sat engaged in guessing, but no syllable expressing

To the fowl whose fiery eyes now burned into my bosom's core;

This and more I sat divining, with my head at ease reclining

On the cushion's velvet lining that the lamplight gloated o'er,

But whose velvet violet lining, with the lamplight gloating o'er,

She shall press - ah! nevermore!

Then methought the air grew denser, perfumed from an unseen censer.

the tutted floor.

"Wretch," I cried, "thy God hath lent thee, by these angels he hath sent thee

Respite, - respite and nepenthe from the memories of Lenote!

Quaff, O, quaff this kind nepenthe, and forget this lost Lenore !"

Quoth the raven, "Nevermore!"

"Prophet!" said I, "thing of evil! -- prophet still, if bird or devil '

Whether tempter sent, or whether tempest tossed thee here ashore,

Desolate yet all undaunted, on this desert land enchanted. -

On this home by horror haunted, — tell me truly, I implore, -

Is there — is there balm in Gilead? — tell me, tell me, I implore!"

Quoth the raven, "Nevermore!"

"Prophet '" said I, "thing of evil '- prophet still, if bind or devil!

By that heaven that bends above us, - by that God we both adore,

Tell this soul with sorrow laden, if, within the distant Aidenii.

It shall clasp a sainted maiden, whom the angels name Lenore, Clasp a fair and radiant maiden, whom the angels name Lenore '"

Quoth the raven, "Nevermore!"

"Be that word our sign of parting, bad or fiend !" I shricked, upstarting, --

"Get thee back into the tempest and the night's Plutonian shore!

Leave no black plume as a token of that lie thy soul hath spoken!

Leave my loneliness unbroken '- quit the bust above my door!

Take thy beak from out my heart, and take thy form from off my door !"

Quoth the raven, "Nevermore!"

And the raven, never flitting, still is sitting, still is sitting

On the pallid bust of Pallas, just above my chamber door;

And his eyes have all the seeming of a demon that is dreaming,

And the lamplight o'er him streaming throws his shadow on the floor;

And my soul from out that shadow that lies floating on the floor

Shall be lifted - nevermore ! ...

1 EDGAR ALLAN POB.

RIME OF THE ANCIENT MARINER.

PART I.

three gal-lants bidd

An Ancient IT is an Ancient Mariner, Mariner
meeteth And he stoppeth one of th And he stoppeth one of three. "By thy long gray beard and glittering

> Now wherefore stopp'st thou me? The Bridegroom's doors are opened wide, And I am next of kin; The guests are met, the feast is set, -Mayst hear the merry din."

He holds him with his skinny hand: "There was a ship," quoth he. "Hold off! unhand me, graybeard loon!"-

Eftsoons his hand dropt he.

The Wed-ding-Guest is spell-bound by faring man,

He holds him with his glittering eye, The Wedding-Guest stood still; He listens like a three years' child; The Mariner hath his will.

The Wedding-Guest sat on a stone, – He cannot choose but hear; And thus spake on that ancient man, The bright-eyed Mariner:

"The ship was cheered, the harbor cleared: Merrily did we drop

Below the kirk, below the hill. Below the light-house top.

The Mari-ner tells how the ship sailed southward, with a good wind and

The sun came up upon the left, Out of the sea came he; And he shone bright, and on the right Went down into the sea;

fair weather, till it reached the Higher and higher every day, Till over the mast at noon - " The Wedding-Guest here beat his breast, For he heard the loud bassoon.

The Wed-ding-Guest heareth the bridal music; but the Marmer coutinueth his tale.

The Bride hath paced into the hall-Red as a rose is she; Nodding their heads before her goes The merry minstrelsy.

The Wedding-Guest he beat his breast. Yet he cannot choose but hear: And thus spake on that ancient man. The bright-eyed Mariner:

The ship drawn by a storm to-

"And now the Storm-blast came, and he Was tyrannous and strong; He struck with his o'ertaking wings, And chased us south along.

With sloping masts and dipping prow — As who pursued with yell and blow Still treads the shadow of his foe. And forward bends his head -The ship drove fast; loud roared the blast,

And now there came both mist and snow, And it grew wondrous cold ; And ice, mast-high, came floating by, As green as emerald.

And southward ave we fled.

And through the drifts the snowy cliffs The land of Did send a dismal sheen; Nor shapes of men nor beasts we ken The ice was all between.

ice and of fearful sounds, where no living thing

The ice was here, the ice was there, The ice was all around; It cracked and growled, and roared and howled,

Like noises in a swound!

At length did cross an Albatross — Thorough the fog it came; As if it had been a Christian soul, We hailed it in God's name.

It ate the food it ne'er had eat, And round and round it flew. The ice did split with a thunder-fit; The helmsman steered us through !

Till a great sea-bird, called the Albatross, came through the snow-fog, and was received with great joy and hos-pitality

And a good south wind sprung up be-And lo' the proveth a bird of good omen, and followeth the ship as it returned hind: The Albatross did follow, And every day, for food or play,

Came to the mariners' hollo! In mist or cloud, on mast or shroud,

It perched for vespers nine; Whiles all the night, through fog-smoke

Glimmered the white moonshine."

"God save thee, Ancient Mariner! From the fiends, that plague thee thus!-Why look'st thou so ?"-" With my pious bird of cross-bow

The Ancient Mariner inhospitably northward through fog and floating

I shot the Albatross.

PART II.

THE Sun now rose upon the right: Out of the sea came he, Still hid in mist, and on the left Went down into the sea.

And the good south wind still blew behind. But no sweet bird did follow,

Nor any day, for food or play, Came to the mariners' hollo!

His ship.

And I had done an hellish thing, mates cry out against the Ancient And it would work 'em woe: Mariner, for For all averred, I had killed the bird bird of good That made the breeze to blow.

Ah wretch ! said they, the bird to slay, That made the breeze to blow!

But when the fog cleared off, they justify the same, and thus make them-

Nor dim nor red, like God's own head The glorious Sun uprist: Then all averred, I had killed the bird That brought the fog and mist. selves ac-complices in 'T was right, said they, such birds to slay, That bring the fog and mist.

The fair breeze conship enters the Pacific Ocean, and sails north- Into t ward, ever till it reaches the line.

The fair breeze blew, the white foam flew, The furrow followed free; We were the first that ever burst Into that silent sea.

The ship hath been suddenly becalmed: Down dropt the breeze, the sails dropt down, ---

'T was sad as sad could be; And we did speak only to break The silence of the sea.

All in a hot and copper sky The bloody Sun, at noon, Right up above the mast did stand, No bigger than the Moon.

Day after day, day after day, We stuck, - nor breath nor motion; As idle as a painted ship Upon a painted ocean.

and the Alhatrose hegins to be avenged.

Water, water everywhere, And all the boards did shrink; Water, water everywhere, Nor any drop to drink.

The very deep did rot: O Christ! That ever this should be! Yea, slimy things did crawl with legs Upon the slimy sea!

About, about, in reel and rout, The death-fires danced at night; The water, like a witch's oils, Burnt green, and blue, and white.

A Spirit And some in dreams assured were lowed them. Of the Spirit that plagued us so; one of the invisi- Nine fathom deep he had followe Nine fathom deep he had followed us ants of this From the land of mist and snow.

ants of this Froili the Ballu of lines and shoot methods are the planet, neither departed souls nor angels; concerning whom the learned Jew Josephus, and the Platonic Constantinopolitan, Michael Psellus, may be consulted. They are very numerous, and there is no cleasate or element without one or more

And every tongue, through utter drought,

Was withered at the root;

We could not speak, no more than if We had been choked with soot.

Ah! well-a-day! what evil looks Haa I from old and young! Instead of the cross the Albatross About my neck was hung.

PART III.

Each they hang the dead sea-bird THERE passed a weary time.

Was parched, and glazed each eye -A weary time! a weary time! How glazed each weary eye !-When, looking westward, I beheld

A something in the sky.

At first it seemed a little speck, And then it seemed a mist; It moved and moved, and took at last 🛦 certain shape, I wist —

A speck, a mist, a shape, I wist! And still it neared and neared; As if it dodged a water-sprite, It plunged and tacked and veered.

With throats unslaked, with black lips At its near re approach to seemeth the seemeth him to be a ship; and at Through utter drought all dumb we a dear ranson he stood!

stood!

I bit my arm, I sucked the blood, And cried, 'A sail! a sail!'

With throats unslaked, with black lips baked.

Agape they heard me call: Gramercy! they for joy did grin, And all at once their breath drew in,

joy. As they were drinking all.

'See! see!' I cried, 'she tacks no more! And horror follows. For can it be a ship that without a breeze, without a tide. Without a breeze, without a tide, She steadies with upright keel!'

The western wave was all a-flame; The day was well nigh done; Almost upon the western wave Rested the broad bright sun, When that strange shape drove suddenly Betwixt us and the Sun.

And straight the Sun was flecked with It seemeth him but the skeleton of (Heaven's Mother send us grace!)

The ship-mates, in their sore distress. would fain whole guilt on the An-cient Mariner : in sign

The Ancient Mariner be-holdeth a sign in the element afar speech from the bonds of omes onout wind or

A flash of

As if through a dungeon-grate he peered With broad and burning face.

Alas thought I - and my heart beat loud -How fast she nears and nears !

Are those her sails that glance in the sun, Like restless gossameres?

are seen as bars on the face of the The spec-tre-woman and no other on board the skeleton ship.

And its ribs Are those her ribs through which the Sun Did peer, as through a grate? setting sun. And is that woman all her crew? Is that a death? and are there two? and her death-mate, Is Death that woman's mate?

Like vessel,

Her lips were red, her looks were free, Her locks were yellow as gold; Her skin was as white as leprosy: The night-mare, Life-in-Death, was she, Who thicks man's blood with cold.

Death and

The naked hulk alongside came, Death have And the twain were casting dice : ship's crew, 'The game is done. I've won! I' ve and she (the won!' latter) winneth the Ancient ManQuoth she, and whistles thrice.

No twilight The Sun's rim dips; the stars rush out,

Within the nether tip courts of the At one stride comes the dark, With far-heard whisper, o'er the sea, Off shot the spectre-bark.

At the rising We listened and looked sideways up ! Fear at my heart, as at a cup; My life-blood seemed to sip! The stars were dim, and thick the night, The steersman's face by his lamp gleamed white; From the sails the dew did drip — Till clombe above the eastern bar. The horned Moon, with one bright star

one after

One after one, by the star-dogged Moon, Too quick for groan or sigh, Each turned his face with a ghastly pang, And cursed me with his eve his shipmates drop down dead,

Four times fifty living men (And I heard nor sigh nor groan), With heavy thump, a lifeless lump, They dropped down one by one.

gins her work on the Ancient

But Life in The souls did from their bodies fly, -They fled to bliss or woe! And every soul, it passed me by, Like the whizz of my cross-bow!

PART IV.

"I FEAR thee, Ancient Mariner! I fear thy skinny hand!

And thou art long, and lank, and talking to brown.

As is the ribbed sea-sand.

I fear thee and thy glittering eye, And thy skinny hand so brown."

"Fear not, fear not, thou Wedding. but the An-Guest!

This body dropt not down.

Alone, alone, all, all alone, Alone on a wide, wide sea! And never a saint took pity on My soul in agony.

The many men so beautiful! And they all dead did lie:

creatures of And a thousand thousand slimy things Lived on; and so did I.

I looked upon the rotting sea, And drew my eves away; I looked upon the lotting deck, And there the dead men lay.

and Envieth that they should live and so many

The Wed-dung-Guest

feareth that

cient Mari-ner assureth him of his bodily life, and pro-horrible

ceedeth to

He despise

I looked to heaven, and tried to pray; But, or ever a prayer had gusht, A wicked whisper came, and made My heart as dry as dust.

I closed my lids, and kept them close, And the balls like pulses beat, For the sky and the sea, and the sea and the sky,

Lay like a load on my weary eye, And the dead were at my feet.

But the The cold sweat melted from their limbs, curse liveth Nor rot nor reek did they The look with which they looked on me the dead Had never passed away.

An orphan's curse would drag to hell A spirit from on high; But oh! more horrible than that Is a curse in a dead man's eye! Seven days, seven nights, I saw that curse.

And yet I could not die.

The moving Moon went up the sky, And nowhere did abide: Softly she was going up, And a star or two beside ---

In his loneliness and fixed ness he vearneth towards the Journeying Moon, and the stars that still solourn, yet still move onward; and everywhen the blue sky belongs to them, and is their appointed rest, and ther native country, and ther own natural homes, which they enter unannounced, as lords that are certainly expected, and yet there is a silent joy at their arrival.

Her beams bemecked the sultry main, Like April hoar-frost spread; But where the ship's huge shadow lay The charmed water burnt alway, A still and awful red.

eth God's the great

By the light Beyond the shadow of the shir the Moon in behold. I watched the water-snakes, I watched the water-snakes, creatures of They moved in tracks of shining white; And when they reared, the elfish light Fell off in hoary flakes.

> Within the shadow of the ship I watched their rich attire -Blue, glossy green, and velvet black, They coiled and swam, and every track Was a flash of golden fire.

Their beau- O happy living things ! no tongue ty and their

Their beauty might declare; A spring of love gushed from my heart, And I blessed them unaware -Sure my kind saint took pity on me,

He blesseth them in his heart

The spell begins to

The selfsame moment I could pray: And from my neck so free The Albatross fell off, and sank Like lead into the sea.

And I blessed them unaware

PART V

O SLEEP! it is a gentle thing, Beloved from pole to pole ! To Mary Queen the praise be given! She sent the gentle sleep from heaven That slid into my soul.

Ancient Mariner is refreshed with rain.

By grace of The silly buckets on the deck, the holy Mother, the That had so long remained. That had so long remained, I dreamt that they were filled with dew: And when I awoke, it rained.

> My lips were wet, my throat was cold, My garments all were dank; Sure I had drunken in my dreams, And still my body drank.

I moved, and could not feel my limbs; I was so light -- almost I thought that I had died in sleep. And was a blessed ghost.

sounds and strange in the sky and the ele ment.

He heareth And soon I heard a roaring wind --It did not come anear : sights and commotions

That were so thin and sere. But with its sound it shook the sails,

> The upper air burst into life; And a hundred fire-flags sheen, To and fro they were hurried about;

And to and fro, and in and out, The wan stars danced between.

And the coming wind did roar more loud. And the sails did sigh like sedge; And the rain poured down from one black cloud -The Moon was at its edge.

The thick black cloud was cleft, and etill

The Moon was at its side: Like waters shot from some high crag, The lightning fell with never a jag -A river steep and wide.

The loud wind never reached the ship, Yet now the ship moved on! Beneath the lightning and the Moon The dead men gave a groan.

The bodies of the ship s crew are inspired, and the ship moves on

They groaned, they stirred, they all uprose -

Nor spake, nor moved their eyes; It had been strange, even in a dream, To have seen those dead men rise.

The helmsman steered, the ship moved Yet never a breeze up blew;

The manners all 'gan work the ropes, Where they were wont to do; They raised their limbs like lifeless tools -

We were a ghastly crew.

The Body of my brother's son Stood by me, knee to knee: The Body and I pulled at one rope, But he said naught to me."

"I fear thee, Ancient Mariner!" "Be calm, thou Wedding-Guest! 'T was not those souls that fled in pain, Which to their corses came again, but not by the souls of the men, nor by demons of earth or middle air, but by a

But a troop of spirits blest:

For when it dawned—they dropped for angelic spirits, sent down by the invocation of the guardian saint

And clustered round the mast; Sweet sounds rose slowly through their mouths. And from their bodies passed.

Around, around, flew each sweet sound, Then darted to the Sun; Slowly the sounds came back again. Now mixed, now one by one.

Sometimes a-dropping from the sky, I heard the skylark sing; Sometimes all little birds that are, How they seemed to fill the sea and air With their sweet jargoning!

And now 't was like all instruments, Now like a lonely flute: And now it is an angel's song That makes the heavens be mute.

It ceased; yet still the sails made on A pleasant noise till noon, A noise like of a hidden brook In the leafy month of June, That to the sleeping woods all night Singeth a quiet tune.

Till noon we quietly sailed on. Yet never a breeze did breathe : Slowly and smoothly went the ship, Moved onward from beneath.

The lone ome spirit from the south pole carries on the ship as far as the line, in obe-dience to the angenc troop, but still requireth ven-

Under the keel nine fathom deep, From the land of mist and snow, The Spirit slid: and it was he That made the ship to go. The sails at noon left off their tune, And the ship stood still also.

The Sun, right up above the mast, Had fixed her to the ocean: But in a minute she 'gan stir, With a short uneasy motion — Backwards and forwards half her length With a short uneasy motion.

Then like a pawing horse let go, She made a sudden bound: It flung the blood into my head And I fell down in a swound.

The Polar Spirit's feltake part in his wrong; and two of them relate, one to the other, that eth south-

How long in that same fit I lay, I have not to declare: nows, the most to declare; moss, the invisible in-But ere my living life returned, habitants of the element, I heard, and in my soul discerned Two voices in the air.

'Is it he?' quoth one, 'Is this the man? other, that penance long and heavy for With his cruel bow he laid full low the Ancient Marinerhath The harmless Albatross!

The harmless Albatross!

Polar Sprift, The Spirit who bideth by himself eth south. With his cruel bow he laid full low

In the land of mist and snow, He loved the bird that loved the man Who shot him with his bow.'

The other was a softer voice, As soft as honey-dew : Quoth he, 'The man hath penance done, And penance more will do.'

PART VI.

FIRST VOICE

'Bur tell .ne, tell me ' speak again, Thy soft response renewing -What makes that ship drive on so fast? What is the ocean doing?'

SECOND VOICE.

'Still as a slave before his lord. The ocean hath no blast; His great bright eye most silently Up to the Moon is cast —

If he may know which way to go; For she guides him smooth or grim. See, brother, see! how graciously She looketh down on him.

FIRST VOICE.

'But why drives on that ship so fast, Without or wave or wind ?'

SECOND VOICE.

'The air is cut away before. And closes from behind.

Fly, brother, fly ! more high, more high! Or we shall be belated; For slow and slow that ship will go, When the Mariner's trance is abated.'

I woke, and we were sailing on As in a gentle weather; 'T was night, calm night - the moon Mariner was high ;

The dead men stood together.

All stood together on the deck, For a charnel-dungeon fitter; All fixed on me their stony eyes. That in the Moon did glitter.

The pang, the curse, with which they died, Had never passed away;

I could not draw my eyes from theirs, Nor turn them up to pray.

And now this spell was snapt; once more The curse had now this spell was snapt; once more The curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snapt; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the spell was snaps; once more than the curse had now the curse ha I viewed the ocean green, And looked far forth, yet little saw Of what had else been seen —

Like one that on a lonesome road Doth walk in fear and dread.

The Marines trance, for the angelic power caus sel to drive northward faster than human life could en-

The supernatural motion is re-tarded, the awakes, and his penance begins

And, having once turned round, walks

And turns no more his head; Because he knows a frightful fiend Doth close behind him tread.

But soon there breathed a wind on me, Nor sound nor motion made ; Its path was not upon the sea, In ripple or in shade.

It raised my hair, it fanned my cheek, Like a meadow-gale of Spring-It mingled strangely with my fears, Yet it felt like a welcoming.

Swiftly, swiftly flew the ship, Yet she sailed softly too; Sweetly, sweetly blew the breeze -On me alone it blew.

O dream of joy ' is this indeed And the An. The light-house top I see? ner behold. Is this the hill? is this the kirk? eth his na-tive country. Is this mine own countree?

> We drifted o'er the harbor-bar, And I with sobs did pray — O let me be awake, my God! Or let me sleep alway.

The harbor-bay was clear as glass, So smoothly it was strewn ' And on the bay the moonlight lay, And the shadow of the moon.

The rock shone bright, the kirk no less That stands above the rock; The moonlight steeped in silentness The steady weathercock.

And the bay was white with silent light, Till rising from the same, The angetic Full many shapes, that shadows were, the dead In crimson colors came.

and appear in their own forms of Those crimson shadows were I turned my eyes upon the deck -O Christ! what saw I there!

> Each corse lay flat, lifeless and flat, And, by the holy rood! A man all light, a seraph man, On every corse there stood.

This seraph-band, each waved his hand: It was a heavenly sight!

They stood as signals to the land, Each one a lovely light;

This seraph-band, each waved his hand, No voice did they impart -No voice; but oh! the silence sank Like music on my heart.

But soon I heard the dash of oars, I heard the pilot's cheer; My head was turned perforce away, And I saw a boat appear.

The pilot and the pilot's boy, I heard them coming fast: Dear Lord in Heaven! it was a joy The dead men could not blast.

I saw a third - I heard his voice : It is the hermit good! He singeth loud his godly hymns That he makes in the wood. He'll shrieve my soul, he'll wash away The Albatross's blood.

PART VII.

This hermit good lives in that wood Which slopes down to the sea. How loudly his sweet voice he rears! He loves to talk with marineres That come from a far countree.

The hernit of the wood

He kneels at morn, and noon, and eve -He hath a cushion plump: It is the moss that wholly hides The rotted old oak-stump.

The skiff-boat neared: I heard them talk. 'Why, this is strange, I trow ! Where are those lights so many and fair,

'Strange, by my faith '' the hermit approacheth the ship with wonder.

'And they answered not our cheer! The planks look'd warped! and see those sails

How thin they are and sere ' I never saw aught like to them, Unless perchance it were

That signal made but now?'

Brown skeletons of leaves that lag My forest-brook along: When the ivy-tod is heavy with snow, And the owlet whoops to the wolf below, That eats the she-wolf's young.'

'Dear Lord! it hath a fiendish look (The pilot made reply) ---I am a-feared.' - 'Push on, push on!' Said the hermit cheerily.

The boat came closer to the ship, But I nor spake nor stirred; The boat came close beneath the ship, And straight a sound was heard.

The ship suddenly

Under the water it rumbled on. Still louder and more dread: It reached the ship, it split the bay; The ship went down like lead.

Mariner is saved in the pilot s boat.

the Ancient Stunned by that loud and dreadful sound.

> Which sky and ocean smote, Like one that hath been seven days drowned

My body lay afloat; But swift as dreams, myself I found Within the pilot's boat

Upon the whirl where sank the ship The bost span round and round, And all was still, save that the hill Was telling of the sound

I moved my lips - the pilot shrieked And fell down in a fit; The holy hermit raised his eyes, And prayed where he did sit.

I took the oars; the pilot's boy, Who now doth crazy go, Laughed loud and long; and all the while His eyes went to and fro: 'Ha! ha!' quoth he, 'full plain I see, The Devil knows how to row.'

And now, all in my own countree. I stood on the firm land ' The hermit stepped forth from the boat, And scarcely he could stand.

The Ancient '()
Mariner earnestly en-treateth the shrieve me, shrieve me, holy man ! '---

The hermit crossed his brow: thermit of the hermit crossed his brow:

shrieve him: Say quick,' quoth he, 'I bid thee ance of life falls as him

say — What manner of man art thou?'

> Forthwith this frame of mine was wrenched With a woful agony,

Which forced me to begin my tale -And then it left me free.

Since then, at an uncertain hour, That agony returns; And till my ghastly tale is told This heart within me burns.

And ever and anon throughout his future life an agony constraineth him to travel from land to land

I pass, like night, from land to land; I have strange power of speech; That moment that his face I see I know the man that must hear me -To him my tale I teach.

What loud uproar bursts from that door !

The wedding-guests are there, But in the garden-bower the Bride And bride-maids singing are; And hark the little vesper bell, Which biddeth me to prayer!

O Wedding-Guest! this soul hath been Alone on a wide, wide sca-So lonely 't was, that God himself Scarce seemed there to be.

O sweeter than the marriage-feast, T is sweeter far to me, To walk together to the kirk With a goodly company !--

To walk together to the kirk, And all together pray, While each to his great Father bends -Old men, and babes, and loving friends, And youths and maidens gay!

Farewell! farewell! but this I tell To thee, thou Wedding-Guest! He prayeth well who loveth well Both man and bird and beast.

and to teach by his own example, love and reverence to all things, that God made and loveth.

He prayeth best who loveth best All things both great and small; For the dear God who loveth us. He made and loveth all."

The Mariner, whose eye is bright, Whose beard with age is hoar, Is gone. And now the Wedding-Guest Turned from the Budegroom's door.

He went like one that hath been stunned. And is of sense forlorn: A sadder and a wiser man He rose the morrow morn.

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDOR

ALONZO THE BRAVE AND THE FAIR IMOGINE.

A warrior so bold, and a virgin so I right,
Conversed as they sat on the green;
They gazed on each other with tender delight:
Alonzo the Brave was the name of the knight,—
The maiden's, the Fair Imogine.

"And O," said the youth, "since to-morrow I go
To fight in a far distant land,
Your tears for my absence soon ceasing to flow,
Some other will court you, and you will bestow
On a wealthier suitor your hand!"

"O, bush these suspicions," Fair Imogine said,
'Offensive to love and to me;
For, if you be living, or if you be dead,
I swear by the Virgin that none in your stead Shall husband of Imogine be.

"If e'er I, by lust or by wealth led aside,
Forget my Alonzo the Brave,
God grant that, to punish my falschood and pride,
Your ghost at the marriage may sit by my side,
May tax me with perjury, claim me as bride,
And bear me away to the grave!"

To Palestine hastened the hero so bold,

His love she lamented him sore;

But scarce had a twelvemonth clapsed when, behold!

A baron, all covered with jewels and gold, Arrived at Fan Imogine's door

His treasures, his presents, his spacious domain, Soon made her untrue to her vows; He dazzled her eyes, he bewildered her brain; He caught her affections, so light and so vain, And carried her home as his spouse.

And now had the marriage been blest by the priest;

The revely now was begun;

The tables they grouned with the weight of the feast,

Nor yet had the laughter and meriment ceased, When the bell at the castle tolled — one.

Then first with amazement Fair Imogine found
A stranger was placed by her side:
His air was terrific; he uttered no sound.—

His air was terrific; he uttered no sound, —

He spake not, he moved not, he looked not around. —

But earnestly gazed on the bride.

His visor was closed, and gigantic his height, His armor was sable to view;

All pleasure and laughter were hushed at his sight;

The dogs, as they eyed him, drew back in affright;
The lights in the chamber burned blue!

His presence all bosoms appeared to dismay;

The guests sat in silence and fear;

At length spake the bride, -- while she trembled,
-- "I pray,

Sir knight, that your helmet aside you would lay, And deign to partake of our cheer."

The lady is silent; the stranger complies —
His visor he slowly unclosed;
O God! what a sight met Fair Imagine's eyes!
What words can express her dismay and surprise,
When a skeleton's head was exposed!

All present then uttered a terrified shout,
All turned with disgust from the scene;
The worms they crept in, and the worms they crept out,

And sported his eyes and his temples about While the spectre addressed Imogine:

"Behold me, thou false one, behold me!" he cried,

"Remember Alonzo the Brave!
God grantsthat, to punish thy falsehood and pinde,
My ghost at thy marriage should sit by thy side;
Should tax thee with perjury, claim thee as bride,
And bear thee away to the grave!"

Thus saying his arms round the lady he wound,
While loudly she shrieked in dismay,
Then sunk with his prey through the wideyawning ground,

Nor ever again was Fair Imogine found, Or the spectre that bore her away.

Not long lived the baron; and none, since that time.

To inhabit the castle presume; For chronicles tell that, by order sublime, There Imogine suffers the pain of her crime, And mourns her deplorable doom.

At undought, four times in each year, does her spute.

When mortals in slumber are bound, Aniaved in her bridal apparel of white, Appear in the hall with the skeleton knight, And shrick as he whirls her around!

While they drink out of skulls newly torn from the grave,

Dancing round them the spectres are seen;
Their liquor is blood, and this horrible stave
They how! "To the health of Alonzo the Brave,
And his consort, the Fair Imogine!"

MATTHEW GREGORY LEWIS

THE KING OF THULE.

MARGARET'S SONG IN "FAUST."

THERE was a king in Thule, Was faithful till the grave,— To whom his mistress, dying, A golden goblet gave.

Naught was to him more precious; He drained it at every bout: His eyes with tears ran over, As oft as he drank thereout.

When came his time of dying, The towns in his land he told, Naught else to his heir denying Except the goblet of gold.

He sat at the royal banquet With his knights of high degree, In the lofty hall of his fathers, In the Castle by the Sea.

There stood the old carouser,
And drank the last life-glow;
And hurled the hallowed goblet
Into the tide below.

He saw it plunging and filling, And sinking deep in the set,— Then fell his eyelids forever, And never more drank he.

From the German of GOETHE Translation of BAYARD TAYLOR.

THE PHILOSOPHER'S SCALES.

A MONK, when his rites sacerdotal were o'er, In the depth of his cell with its stone-covered floor.

Resigning to thought his chimerical brain, Once formed the contrivance we now shall explain; But whether by magic's or alchemy's powers We know not; indeed, 't is no business of ours.

Perhaps it was only by patience and care,
At last, that he brought his invention to bear.
In youth 't was projected, but years stole away,
And ere 't was complete he was wrinkled and gray;

But success is secure, unless energy fails;
And at length he produced THE PHILOSOPHER'S SCALES.

"What were they?" you ask. You shall presently see;

These scales were not made to weigh sugar and tea.

O no; for such properties wondrous had they, That qualities, feelings, and thoughts they could weigh,

Together with articles small or immense, From mountains or planets to atoms of sense.

Naught was there so bulky but there it would lay, And naught so ethereal but there it would stay, And naught so reluctant but in it must go: All which some examples more clearly will show

The first thing he weighed was the head of Voltaire,

Which retained all the wit that had ever been there:

As a weight, he threw in the torn scrap of a leaf Containing the prayer of the penitent thief; When the skull rose aloft with so sudden a spell That it bounced like a ball on the roof of the cell.

One time he put in Alexander the Great,
With the garment that Dorcas had made, for a weight;

And though clad in armor from sandals to crown, The hero rose up, and the garment went down.

A long row of almshouses, amply endowed By a well-esteemed Pharisee, busy and proud, Next loaded one scale; while the other was pressed

By those mites the poor widow dropped into the chest:

Up flew the endowment, not weighing an ounce, And down, down the farthing-worth came with a bounce.

By further experiments (no matter how)
He found that ten chariots weighed less than one plough;

A sword with gilt trapping rose up in the scale, Though balanced by only a ten-penny nail; A shield and a helmet, a buckler and spear, Weighed less than a widow's uncrystallized tear. A lord and a lady went up at full sail,

When a bee chanced to light on the opposite scale;

Ten doctors, ten lawyers, two courtiers, one earl, Ten counsellors' wigs, full of powder and curl, All heaped in one balance and swinging from thence,

Weighed less than a few grains of candor and sense;

A first-water diamond, with brilliants begirt,
Than one good potato just washed from the dirt;
Yet not mountains of silver and gold could suffice
One pearl to outweigh, — 't was THE PEABL OF GREAT PRICE.

Last of all, the whole world was bowled in at the Monster fishes swam the silent main, grate, Stately forests waved their giant b

With the soul of a beggar to serve for a weight, When the former sprang up with so strong a rebuff

That it made a vast tent and escaped at the roof!
When balanced in air, it ascended on high,
And sailed up aloft, a balloon in the sky;
While the scale with the soul in 't so mightily fell

That it jerked the philosopher out of his cell.

THE NIGHTINGALE AND GLOW-WORM.

A NIGHTINGALE, that all day long Had cheered the village with his song, Nor yet at eve his note suspended, Nor yet when eventide was ended, Began to feel — as well he might — The keen demands of appetite; When, looking eagerly around, He spied, far off, upon the ground, A something shining in the dark, And knew the glow-worm by his spark, So, stooping down from hawthorn top, He thought to put him in his crop. The worm, aware of his intent, Harangued him thus, quite eloquent, -"Did you admire my lamp," quoth he, "As much as I your minstrelsy, You would abhor to do me wrong, As much as I to spoil your song; For 't was the self-same Power divine Taught you to sing, and me to shine; That you with music, I with light, Might beautify and cheer the night." The songster heard his short oration, And, warbling out his approbation, Released him, as my story tells, And found a supper somewhere else.

WII LIAM COWPER.

THE PETRIFIED FERN.

In a valley, centuries ago,
Grew a little fern-leaf, green and slender,
Veining delicate and fibres tender;
Waving when the wind crept down so low.
Rushes tall, and moss, and grass grew round it,
Playful sunbeams darted in and found it,
Drops of dew stole in by night, and crowned it,
But no foot of man e'er trod that way;
Earth was young, and keeping holiday

Monster fishes swam the silent main,
Stately forests waved their giant branches,
Mountains hurled their snowy avalanches,
Mammoth creatures stalked across the plain;
Nature revelled in grand mysteries,
But the little fern was not of these,
Did not number with the hills and trees;
Only grew and waved its wild sweet way,
No one came to note it day by day.

Earth, one time, put on a frolic mood,

Heaved the rocks and changed the mighty motion

Of the deep, strong currents of the ocean; Moved the plain and shook the haughty wood, Crushed the little fern in soft moist clay, — Covered it, and hid it safe away.

O, the long, long centuries since that day!

O, the changes! O, life's bitter cost, Since that useless little fern was lost!

Useless? Lost? There came a thoughtful man Searching Nature's secrets, far and deep; From a fissure in a rocky steep He withdrew a stone, o'er which there ran Fairy pencillings, a quaint design, Vennings, leafage, fibres clear and fine. And the fern's life lay in every line!

So, I think, God hides some souls away,

Sweetly to surprise us, the last day.

MARY L BOLLES BRANCH.

THE COMET.

OCTOBER, 1858.

Erratic Soul of some great Purpose, doomed To track the wild illimitable space,
Till sure propitiation has been made
For the divine commission unperformed!
What was thy crime? Ahasuerus' curse
Were not more stern on earth than thine in heaven!

Art thou the Spirit of some Angel World, For grave rebellion banished from thy peers, Compelled to watch the calm, immortal stars Circling in rapture the celestial void, While the avenger follows in thy train To spur thee on to wretchedness eterne?

Or one of Nature's wildest fantasies,
From which she flies in terror so profound,
And with such whirl of torment in her breast,
That mighty earthquakes yawn where'er she treads;

While War makes red its terrible right hand, And Famine stalks abroad all lean and wan? To us thou art as exquisitely fair
As the ideal visions of the seet,
Or gentlest fancy that e'er floated down
Imagination's bright, unruffled stream,
Wedding the thought that was too deep for words
To the low breathings of inspired song.

When the stars sang together o'er the birth Of the poor Babe at Bethlehem, that lay In the coarse manger at the crowded Inn, Didst thou, perhaps a bright exalted star, Refuse to swell the grand, harmonious lay, Jealous as Herod of the birth divine?

Or when the crown of thorns on Calvary Pierced the Redeemer's brow, didst thou disdain To weep, when all the planetary worlds Were blinded by the fulness of their tears? E'en to the flaming sun, that hid his face At the loud cry, "Lama Sabachtham!"

No rest! No rest! the very damned have that In the dark councils of remotest Hell, Where the dread scheme was perfected that scaled Thy disobedience and accruing doom lake Adam's sons, hast thou, too, forfeited The blest repose that never pillowed Sin?

No ' none can tell thy fate, thou wandering Sphinx '

Pale Science, searching by the midnight lamp Through the vexed mazes of the human brain, Still fails to read the secret of its soul As the superb enigma flashes by, A loosed Prometheus burning with disdain.

CHARLES SANGSTER

SONG OF THE LIGHTNING.

"PUCK. I'll put a girdle round about the earth In forty minutes"

Midsummer's Night Dream.

AWAY! away! through the sightless air
Stretch forth your iron thread!
For I would not dim my sandals fair
With the dust ye tamely tread!
Ay, rear it up on its million piers,
Let it circle the world around,
And the journey ye make in a hundred years
I'll clear at a single bound!

Though I cannot toil, like the groaning slave
Ye have fettered with iron skill
To ferry you over the boundless wave,
Or grind in the noisy mill,
Let him sing his giant strength and speed!
Why, a single shaft of mine

Would give that monster a flight indeed, To the depths of the occan's brine!

No! no! I'm the spirit of light and love!
To my unseen hand 't is given
To pencil the ambient clouds above
And polish the stars of heaven!
I scatter the golden rays of fire
On the horizon far below,
And deck the sky where storms expire
With my red and dazzling glow.

With a glance I cleave the sky in twain;
I light it with a glare,
When fall the boding drops of rain
Through the darkly curtained air!
The rock-built towers, the turrets gray,
The piles of a thousand years,
Have not the strength of potter's clay
Beneath my glittering spears.

From the Alps' or the Andes' highest crag,
From the peaks of cternal snow,
The blazing tolds of my fiery flag
Illume the world below
The earthquake hetalds my coming power,
The avalanche bounds away,
And howling storms at midnight's hour
Proclaim my kingly sway

Ye tremble when my legions come, —
When my quivering sword leaps out
O'er the hills that echo my thunder down,
And rend with my joyous shout.
Ye quail on the land, or upon the sea
Ye stand in your fear aghast,
To see me burn the stalworth trees,
Or shiver the stately mast.

The heroglyphs on the Persian wall, —
The letters of high command, —
Where the prophet read the tyrant's fall,
Were traced by my burning hand.
And oft in fire have I wrote since then
What angry Heaven decreed;
But the sealèd eyes of sintul men
Were all too blind to read.

At length the hour of light is here,
And kings no more shall bind,
Nor bigots crush with craven fear
The forward march of mind.
The words of Truth and Freedom's rays
Are from my pinions hurled;
And soon the light of better days
Shall rise upon the world.

GEORGE W. CUTTER.

ORIGIN OF THE OPAL.

A DEW-DROP came, with a spark of flame He had caught from the sun's last ray, To a violet's breast, where he lay at rest Till the hours brought back the day.

The rose looked down, with a blush and frown;
But she smiled all at once, to view
Her own bright form, with its coloring warm,
Reflected back by the dew.

Then the stranger took a stolen look
At the sky, so soft and blue;
And a leaflet green, with its silver sheen,
Was seen by the idler too

A cold north-wind, as he thus reclined,
Of a sudden raged around;
And a maiden fair, who was walking there,
Next morning, an opal found
ANONYMOUS

THE ORIGIN OF THE HARP.

T is believed that this harp, which I wake now for thee,

Was a Siren of old, who sung under the sea; And who often, at eve, through the bright billow roved.

To meet, on the green shore, a youth whom she loved.

But she loved him in vain, for he left her to weep.

And in tears, all the night, her gold ringlets to steep,

Till Heaven looked with pity on true-love so

And changed to this soft harp the sea-maiden's form.

Still her bosom rose fair — still her cheek smiled the same —

While her sea-beauties gracefully curled round the frame;

And her hair, shedding tear-drops from all its bright rings,

Fell o'er her white arm, to make the gold strings!

Hence it came, that this soft harp so long hath peen known

To mingle love's language with sorrow's sad tone.

Till thou didst divide them, and teach the fond lay

To be love when I'm near thee, and grief when away!

ECHO AND SILENCE.*

In eddying course when leaves began to fly,
And Autumn in her lap the store to strew,
As mid wild scenes I chanced the Muse to woo,
Through glens untied, and woods that frowned
on high,

Two sleeping nymphs with wonder mute 1 spy! And, lo, she's gone! — In robe of dark-green hue, 'T was Echo from her sister Silence flew, For quick the hunter's horn resounded to the sky! In shade affrighted Silence melts away. Not so her sister. Hark! for onward still, With far-heard step, she takes her listening way, Bounding from rock to rock, and hill to hill. Ah, mark the inerry maid in mockful play With thousand mimic tones the laughing forest fill!

SIR SAMUFL EGERTON BRYDGES

A MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.

What was he doing, the great god Pan,
Down in the reeds by the river?
Spreading ruin and scattering ban,
Splashing and paddling with hoofs of a goat,
And breaking the golden lilies afloat
With the dragon-fly on the river?

He tore out a reed, the great god Pan,
From the deep, cool bed of the river,
The limpid water turbidly ran,
And the broken lilies a-dying lay,
And the dragon-fly had fled away,
Ere he brought it out of the river

High on the shore sat the great god Pan,
While turbidly flowed the river,
And hacked and hewed as a great god can
With his hard, bleak steel at the patient reed,
Till there was not a sign of a leaf indeed
To prove it fresh from the river.

He cut it short, did the great god Pan,
(How tall it stood in the river!)
Then drew the pith like the heart of a man,
Steaduly from the outside ring,
Then notched the poor dry empty thing
In holes, as he sate by the river.

"This is the way," laughed the great god Pan, (Laughed while he sate by the river!)
"The only way since gods began
To make sweet music, they could succeed."
Then dropping his mouth to a hole in the reed,
He blow in power by the river.

* Declared by Wordsworth to be the best Sonnet in the English language.

Sweet, sweet, sweet, O Pan,
Piercing sweet by the river!
Blinding sweet, O great god Pan!
The sun on the hill forgot to die,
And the lilies revived, and the dragon-fly
Came back to dream on the river.

Yet half a beast is the great god Pan,
To laugh, as he sits by the river,
Making a poet out of a man.
The true gods sigh for the cost and the pain, —
For the reed that grows nevermore again
As a reed with the reeds of the river.

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING

THE CALIPH AND SATAN.

VERSIFIED FROM THOLUCKS TRANSLATION OUT OF THE PERSIAN,

In heavy sleep the Caliph lay, When some one called, "Arise, and pray!"

The angry Caliph cried, "Who dare Rebuke his king for slighted prayer?"

Then, from the corner of the room, A voice cut sharply through the gloom:

"My name is Satan. Rise! obey Mohammed's law; awake, and pray!"

"Thy words are good," the Caliph said, "But their intent I somewhat dread.

For matters cannot well be worse
Than when the thief says, 'Guard your purse!'

I cannot trust your counsel, friend, It surely hides some wicked end."

Said Satan, "Near the throne of God, In ages past, we devils trod;

Angels of light, to us 't was given To guide each wandering foot to heaven.

Not wholly lost is that first love, Nor those pure tastes we knew above.

Roaming across a continent, The Tartar moves his shifting tent,

But never quite forgets the day When in his father's arms he lay;

So we, once bathed in love divine, Recall the taste of that rich wine. God's finger rested on my brow, — That magic touch, I feel it now!

I fell, 't is true — O, ask not why, For still to God I turn my eye.

It was a chance by which I fell, Another takes me back from hell.

'T was but my envy of mankind, The envy of a loving mind.

Jealous of men, I could not bear God's love with this new race to share.

But yet God's tables open stand, His guests flock in from every land;

Some kind act toward the race of men May toss us into heaven again.

A game of chess is all we see, — And God the player, pieces we.

White, black — queen, pawn, —'t is all the same, For on both sides he plays the game.

Moved to and fro, from good to ill, We rise and fall as suits his will."

The Caliph said, "If this be so, I know not, but thy guile I know;

For how can I thy words believe, When even God thou didst deceive?

A sea of lies art thou,— our sin Only a drop that sea within."

"Not so," said Satan, "I serve God, His angel now, and now his rod.

In tempting I both bless and curse, Make good men better, bad men worse.

Good coin is mixed with bad, my brother, I but distinguish one from the other."

"Granted," the Caliph said, "but still You never tempt to good, but ill.

Tell then the truth, for well I know You come as my most deadly foe."

Loud laughed the field. "You know me well, Therefore my purpose I will tell.

If you had missed your prayer, I knew A swift repentance would ensue;

And such repentance would have been A good, outweighing far the sin.

FROM "CORN."

Look, out of line one tall corn-captain stands

Advanced beyond the foremost of his bands,

And waves his blades upon the very edge And hottest thicket of the battling hedge.

Thou lustrous stalk, that ne'er mayst walk nor talk,

Still shalt thou type the poet-soul sublime
That leads the vanward of his timid time
And sings up cowards with commanding rhyme—

Soul-calm, like thee, yet fain, like thee, to grow

By double increment, above, below;

Soul-homely, as thou art, yet rich in grace like thee,

Teaching the yeomen selfless chivalry
That moves in gentle curves of courtesy;
Soul-filled like thy long veins with sweetness tense,

By every godlike sense

Transmuted from the four wild elements.

Drawn to high plans,

Thou lift'st more stature than a mortal man's,

Yet ever piercest downward in the mould And keepest hold

Upon the reverend and steadfast earth
That gave thee birth;

Yea, standest smiling in thy very grave, Serene and brave,

With unremitting breath

Inhaling life from death,

Thine epitaph writ fair in fruitage eloquent
Thy living self thy monument.

SIDNEY LANIER

FROM "WORDSWORTH'S GRAVE."

POET who sleepest by this wandering wave!

When thou wast born, what birth-gift hadst thou then?

To thee what wealth was that the Immortals gave,

The wealth thou gavest in thy turn to men?

Not Milton's keen, translunar music thine;
Not Shakespeare's cloudless, boundless human view;
Not Shelley's flush of rose on peaks divine;
Nor yet the wizard twilight Coleridge knew.

What hadst thou that could make so large amends
For all thou hadst not and thy peers possessed, Motion and fire, swift means to radiant ends?—
Thou hadst for weary feet the gift of rest.

From Shelley's dazzling glow or thunderous haze,
From Byron's tempest-anger, tempest-mirth,
Men turned to thee and found—not blast and blaze,
Tumult of tottering heavens, but peace on earth.

Nor peace that grows by Lethe, scentless flower, There in white languors to decline and cease; But peace whose names are also rapture, power, Clear sight, and love: for these are parts of peace. I chose this humbleness divine. Borne out of fault, should not be thine,

Preferring prayers elate with pride To sin with penitence allied.'

JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE.

AIRY NOTHINGS.

FROM "THE TEMPEST," ACT IV. SC. 1.

Our revels now are ended. These our actors, As I foretold you, were all spirits, and Are melted into air, into thin air; And, like the baseless fabric of this vision, The cloud-capped towers, the gorgeous palaces, The solemn temples, the great globe itself, Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve, And, like this insubstantial pageant faded, Leave not a tack behind. We are such stuff As dreams are made on, and our little life Is rounded with a sleep

SHALLSPEARE

FRAGMENTS.

IMAGINATION.

Within the soul a faculty abides, That with interpositions, which would hide And darken, so can deal that they become Contingencies of pomp; and serve to exalt Her native brightness. As the ample moon, In the deep stillness of a summer even Rising behind a thick and lofty grove. Burns, like an unconsuming fire of light, In the green trees; and, kindling on all sides Their leafy umbrage, turns the dusky veil Into a substance glorious as her own.

The Excursion, Book iv

WORDSWORTH.

And, as imagination bodies forth The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy nothing A local habitation and a name.

Midsummer Night's Dream, Act v. Sc. 1. SHAKESPEARE

O for a muse of fire, that would ascend The brightest heaven of invention!

King Henry V., Chorus SHAKESPEARE.

Hark, his hands the lyre explore! Bright-eyed Fancy, hovering o'er, Scatters from her pictured urn Thoughts that breathe and words that burn. Progress of Poesy. T GRAY

CONCEPTION AND EXECUTION.

We figure to ourselves The thing we like, and then we build it up As chance will have it, on the rock or sand; For thought is tired of wandering o'er the world, And home-bound Fancy runs her bark ashore. Philip Van Astevelde, Part I. Act 1. Sc. 5 SIR H. FAYIOR.

Of its own beauty is the mind diseased, And fevers into false creation : - where, Where are the forms the sculptor's soul hath seized?

In him alone. Can Nature show so fair? Where are the charms and vutues which we Conceive in boyhood and pursue as men, The unreached Paradise of our despair, Which o'er-informs the pencil and the pen, And overpowers the page where it would bloom again "

Childe Harold, Cant. 1V

BYRON.

CLOUD-VISIONS.

A step,

A single step, that freed me from the skirts Of the blind vapor, opened to my view Glory beyond all glory ever seen By waking sense or by the dreaming soul! The appearance, instantaneously disclosed, Was of a mighty city, - boldly say A wilderness of building, sinking far And self-withdrawn into a boundless depth. Far sinking into splendor, - without end ! Fabric it seemed of diamond and of gold. With alabaster domes, and silver spines, And blazing terrace upon terrace, high Uplifted; here, serene pavilions bright, In avenues disposed; there, towers begirt With battlements that on their restless fronts Bore stars, - illumination of all gems!

The Excursion, Book 11.

WORDSWORTH

THE MIND'S EYE

HAMLET. My father, - methinks I see my father.

Horatio. O! where, my loid! In my mind's eve, Horatio, Нам. SHAKESPRARE.

Hamlet, Act 1. Sc 2.

On man, on nature, and on human life, Musing in solitude, I oft perceive Fair trains of imagery before me rise. Accompanied by feelings of delight, Pure, or with no unpleasing sadness mixed. The Excursion Prelude.

But O, what solemn scenes on Snowdon's height Descending slow their glittering skirts unroll? Visions of glory, spare my aching sight!

Ye unborn ages, crowd not on my soul! The Bard. T. GRAY.

SPIRITS.

Millions of spiritual creatures walk the earth Unseen, both when we wake, and when we sleep. MILTON. Paradise Lost, Book iv.

Spirits when they please Can either sex assume, or both,

Can execute their airy purposes, And works of love or enmity fulfil. Paradise Lost, Book i.

MILTON.

Worse

Than fables yet have feigned, or fear conceived, Gorgons, and Hydras, and Chimeras dire. Paradise Lost, Book II. MILTON.

'T is the djinns' wild-streaming swarm Whistling in their tempest-flight: Snap the tall yews 'neath the storm, Like a pine-flame crackling bright; Swift and heavy, low, their crowd Through the heavens rushing loud! --Like a lurid thunder-cloud With its bolt of fiery night!

The Dfinns. Trans. of J. L. O'SULLIVAN. V. HUGO.

But shapes that come not at an earthly call Will not depart when mortal voices bid; Lords of the visionary eye, whose lid, Once raised, remains aghast, and will not fall! WORDSWORTH.

GHOSTS OF THE DEAD.

MACBETH. Thou canst not say I did it; never shake thy gory locks at me.

LADY MACBETH. O proper stuff! This is the very painting of your fear; This is the air-drawn dagger which, you said, Led you to Duncan.

MACBETH. Pr'ythee, see there! behold! look! lo! how say you?

The times have been. That, when the brains were out, the man would

And there an end; but now they rise again, With twenty mortal murders on their crowns, And push us from our stools.

Avaunt! and quit my sight. Let the earth hide thee!

Thy bones are marrowless, thy blood is cold; Thou hast no speculation in those eyes, Which thou dost glare with !

Hence, horrible shadow!

Unreal mockery, hence! Macbeth, Act us Sc. 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

And then it started, like a guilty thing Upon a fearful summons. I have heard, The cock, that is the trumpet to the morn, Doth with his lofty and shrill-sounding throat Awake the god of day; and at his warning, Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air, The extravagant and erring spirit hies To his confine.

Hamlet, Act & Sc 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

This is the very coinage of your brain. Hamlet Act iti. Sc. 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

By the apostle Paul, shadows to-night Have struck more terror to the soul of Richard Than can the substance of ten thousand soldiers. King Richard III, Act v Sc. 3. SHAKESPEAR H.

WITCHES.

What are these, BANQUO. So withered, and so wild in their attire; That look not like the inhabitants o' the earth, And vet are on 't?

The earth hath bubbles, as the water has, And these are of them. - Whither have they vanished?

MACBETH. Into the air, and what seemed corporal melted

As breath into the wind.

Macbeth, Act i. Sc. 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

Show his eyes, and grieve his heart; Come like shadows, so depart.

Macbeth, Act iv. Sc. 1.

SHAKESPRAPT

FAIRIES.

They're fairies! he that speaks to them shall die: I'll wink and couch; no man their sports must Merry Wives of Windsor, Act v Sc. 5.

SHAKESPEARR

This is the fairy land: O, spite of spites! We talk with goblins, owls, and elvish sprites. Comedy of Errors, Act il. Sc. 2. SHAKESPEARE I took it for a facry vision
Of some gay creatures of the element,
That in the colors of the rainbow live
And play i' th' plighted clouds.

Comus.

MILTON.

ARIEL. Where the bee sucks, there suck I: In a cowshp's bell I lie;
There I couch when owls do cry.
On the bat's back I do fly
After summer, merrily.
Merrily, merrily, shall I live now,
Under the blossom that hangs on the bough.
The Tempert, Act v Sc. 1. Shakespeare.

Puck. How now, spirit, whither wander you? FAIRY. Over hill, over dale, Thorough bush, thorough brier. Over park, over pale, Thorough flood, thorough fire, I do wander everywhere, Swifter than the moon's sphere; And I serve the fairy queen, To dew her orbs upon the green: The cowslips tall her pensioners be; In their gold coats spots you see; Those be rubies, fairy favors, In those freckles live their savors: I must go seek some dewdrops here. And hang a pearl in every cowslip's ear. Midsummer Night's Dream, Act it. Sc. 1 SHAKESPEARE.

Fairies use flowers for their charactery.

Merry Wives of Windsor, Act v. Sc. 5. SHAKESPEARE

WATER SPRITES.

Come unto these yellow sands,
And then take hands;
Court'sied when you have, and kissed
The wild waves whist,
Foot it featly here and there;
And, sweet sprites, the burden bear.

Hark, hark!

Bowgh, wowgh.

The watch-dogs bark:

Bowgh, wowgh.

Hark, hark! I hear
The strain of strutting chanticleer
Cry, Cock-a-doodle-doo.

Full fathom five thy father lies Of his bones are coral made: Those are pearls that were his eyes:

Nothing of him that doth fade,
But doth suffer a sea-change
Into something rich and strange.
Sea-nymphs hourly ring his knell:

[Burden] Ding-dong.

Hark! now I hear them, — Ding-dong, bell.

The Tempest, Act. Sc : SHAKESPEARE!

Sabrina fair.

Listen where thou art sitting,
Under the glassy, cool, translucent wave,
In twisted braids of lilies knitting
The loose train of thy amber-dropping hair.
Listen for dear honor's sake,
Goddess of the silver lake,

Listen and save.

Comus

MILTON.

WOOD-NYMPHS.

Egeria! sweet creation of some heart
Which found no mortal resting-place so fair
As thine ideal breast; whate'er thou art
Or wert, — a young Aurora of the air,
The nympholepsy of some fond despair;
Or, it might be, a beauty of the earth,
Who found a more than common votary there
Too much adoring; whatsoe'er thy birth,
Thou wert a beautiful thought, and softly bodied forth.

Childe Harold, Cant. iv

Dunau

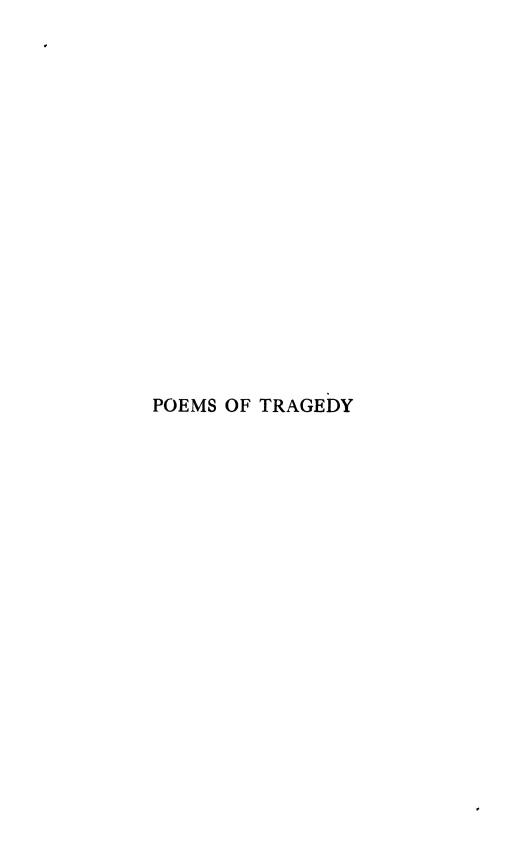

Quite spent and out of breath he reached the tree,

And, listening fearfully, he heard once more The low voice murmur "Rhœcus!" close at hand: Whereat he looked around him, but could see Naught but the deep-ning glooms beneath the

Then sighed the voice, "O Rhœcus! nevermore Shalt thou behold me or by day or night, Me, who would fain have blessed thee with a love More ripe and bounteous than ever yet Filled up with nectar any mortal heart; But thou didst scorn my humble messenger, And sent'st him back to me with bruisèd wings. We spirits only show to gentle eyes, We ever ask an undivided love. And he who scorns the least of Nature's works Is thenceforth exiled and shut out from all. Farewell! for thou canst never see me more."

The male birds planing note, the wile, schange colle. I have think own opinite at is solvers alle! And though the hand is theringed again, O Lea, Thange ordness triebes all that go with thee. Like Holed monks They Tamb & chant The lungs How dark & Them repan the waves dooks lower are some to join they requien, gloomy Deep! and see! more solbe times along the steet One the week with they low besting sunger. -Aprile toll Bliff! - be with the now now.

Bink H. Dans

who deafle from before 126

POEMS OF TRAGEDY.

IPHIGENEIA AND AGAMEMNON.

IPHIGENEIA, when she heard her doom At Aulis, and when all beside the king Had gone away, took his right hand, and said : "O father! I am young and very happy. I do not think the pious Calchas heard Distinctly what the goddess spake; old age Obscures the senses. If my nurse, who knew My voice so well, sometimes misunderstood, While I was resting on her knee both arms. And hitting it to make her mind my words, And looking in her face, and she in mine, Might not he, also, hear one word amiss, Spoken from so far off, even from Olympus?" The father placed his cheek upon her head, And tears dropt down it; but the king of men Replied not. Then the maiden spake once more: "O father! sayest thou nothing! Hearest thou not Me, whom thou ever hast, until this hour, Listened to fondly, and awakened me To hear my voice amid the voice of birds, When it was inarticulate as theirs, And the down deadened it within the nest?' He moved her gently from him, silent still; And this, and this alone, brought tears from her, Although she saw fate nearer. Then with sighs: "I thought to have laid down my hair before Benignant Artemis, and not dimmed Her polished altar with my virgin blood; I thought to have selected the white flowers To please the nymphs, and to have asked of each By name, and with no sorrowful regret, Whether, since both my parents willed the change, I might at Hymen's feet bend my clipt brow; And (after these who mind us girls the most) Adore our own Athene, that she would Regard me mildly with her azure eyes, -But, father, to see you no more, and see Your love, O father! go ere I am gone!" Gently he moved her off, and drew her back, Bending his lofty head far over hers; And the dark depths of nature heaved and burst. He turned away, - not far, but silent still.

She now first shuddered; for in him, so nigh, So long a silence seemed the approach of death, And like it. Once again she raised her voice: "O father! if the ships are now detained. And all your vows move not the gods above, When the knife strikes me there will be one prayer The less to them; and purer can there be Any, or more fervent, than the daughter's prayer For her dear father's safety and success?" A groan that shock him shook not his resolve. An aged man now entered, and without One word stepped slowly on, and took the wrist Of the pale maiden. She looked up, and saw The fillet of the priest and calin, cold eyes. Then turned she where her parent stood, and cried: "O father! grieve no more; the ships can sail." WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR.

THE ROMAN FATHER'S SACRIFICE.

FROM "VIRGINIA."

STRAIGHTWAY Virginius led the maid
A little space aside,
To where the reeking shambles stood,
Piled up with horn and hide;
Close to yon low dark archway,
Where, in a crimson flood,
Leaps down to the great sewer
The gurgling stream of blood.

Hard by, a flesher on a block
Had laid his whittle down:
Virginius caught the whittle up,
And hid it in his gown.
And then his eyes grew very dim,
And his throat began to swell,
And in a hoarse, changed voice he spake,
"Farewell, sweet child! Farewell!

"O, how I loved my darling!
Though stern I sometimes be,
To thee, thou know'st, I was not so, —
Who could be so to thee?

And how my darling loved me! How glad she was to hear My footstep on the threshold When I came back last year!

"And how she danced with pleasure To see my civic crown,
And took my sword, and hung it up,
And brought me forth my gown!
Now, all those things are over, —
Yes, all thy pretty ways,
Thy needlework, thy prattle,
Thy snatches of old lays;

"And none will grieve when I go forth,
Or smile when I return,
Or watch beside the old man's bed,
Or weep upon his urn
The house that was the happiest
Within the Roman walls,
The house that envied not the wealth
Of Capua's marble halls,

"Now, for the brightness of thy smile,
Must have eternal gloom,
And for the music of thy voice,
The silence of the tomb.
The time is come! See how he points
His eager hand this way!
See how his eyes gloat on thy grief,
Like a kite's upon the prey!

"With all his wit, he little deems
That, spurned, betrayed, beieft,
Thy father hath, in his despair,
One fearful refuge left.
He little deems that in this hand
I clutch what still can save
Thy gentle youth from taunts and blows,
The portion of the slave;

"Yea, and from nameless evil,
That passeth taunt and blow, -Foul outrage which thou knowest not,
Which thou shalt never know.
Then clasp me round the neck once more,
And give me one more kiss;
And now, mine own dear little girl,
There is no way but this."

With that he lifted high the steel,
And smote her in the side,
And in her blood she sank to earth,
And with one sob she died.
Then, for a little moment,
All people held their breath;
And through the crowded forum
Was stillness as of death;

And in another moment
Brake forth, from one and all,
A cry as if the Volscians
Were coming o'er the wall.
Some with averted faces
Shricking fled home amain;
Some ran to call a leech; and some
Ran to lift up the slain.

Some felt her lips and little wrist,
If life might there be found;
And some tore up their garments fast,
And strove to stanch the wound.
In vain they ran, and felt, and stanched;
For never truer blow
That good right arm had dealt in fight Against a Volscian foe.

When Appius Claudius saw that deed,
He shuddered and sank down,
And hid his face some little space
With the corner of his gown;
Till, with white lips and bloodshot eyes,
Virginius tottered nigh,
And stood before the judgment-seat,
And held the knile on high.

"O dwellers in the nether gloom,
Avengers of the slam,
By this dear blood 1 cry to you
Do right between us twain;
And even as Appius Claudius
Hath dealt by me and mine,
Deal you by Appius Claudius,
And all the Claudian line!"

So spake the slayer of his child,
And turned and went his way;
But first he cast one haggard glance
To where the body lay,
And writhed, and groaned a fearful groan,
And then, with steadfast feet,
Strode right across the market-place
Unto the Sacred Street.

Then up sprang Appius Claudius:

"Stop him; alive or dead!

Ten thousand pounds of copper

To the man who brings his head."

He looked upon his clients;

But none would work his will.

He looked upon his lictors;

But they trembled, and stood still.

And as Virginius through the press His way in silence cleft, Ever the mighty multitude Fell back to right and left. And he hath passed in safety Unto his woful home,
And there ta'en horse to tell the camp,
What deeds are done in Rome.

THOMAS BABINGTON MACAULAY.

LUCIUS JUNIUS BRUTUS OVER THE BODY OF LUCRETIA.

FROM "BRUTUS"

WOULD you know why I summoned you together? Ask ye what brings me here? Behold this dagger, Clotted with gore! Behold that frozen corse! See where the lost Lucretia sleeps in death! She was the mark and model of the time, The mould in which each female face was formed, The very shrine and sacristy of virtue ! Fairer than ever was a form created By youthful fancy when the blood strays wild, And never-resting thought is all on fire ' The worthiest of the worthy! Not the nymph Who met old Numa in his hallowed walks, And whispered in his ear her strains divine, Can I conceive beyond her; - the young choir Of vestal virgins bent to her. 'T is wonderful Amid the darnel, hemlock, and base weeds, Which now spring rife from the luxurious compost

Spread o'er the realm, how this sweet lily rose, --How from the shade of those ill-neighboring plants

Her father sheltered her, that not a leaf
Was blighted, but, arrayed in purest grace,
She bloomed unsullied beauty. Such perfections
Might have called back the torpid breast of age
To long-forgotten rapture; such a mind
Might have abashed the boldest libertine
And turned desire to reverential love
And holiest affection! O my countrymen!
You all can witness when that she went forth
It was a holiday in Rome; old age
Forgot its crutch, labor its task, — all ran,
And mothers, turning to their daughters, cried,
"There, there's Lucretia!" Now look ye where she lies!

That beauteous flower, that innocent sweet rose,
Torn up by ruthless violence,—gone!gone!gone'
Say, would you seek instruction? would ye ask
What ye should do? Ask ye yon conscious walls,
Which saw his poisoned brother,—
Ask yon deserted street, where Tullia drove O'er her dead father's corse, 't will cry, Revenge!
Ask yonder senate-house, whose stones are purple
With human blood, and it will cry, Revenge!
Go to the tomb where lies his murdered wife,

And the poor queen, who loved him as her son, Their unappeased ghosts will shriek, Revenge! The temples of the gods, the all-viewing heavens, The gods themselves, shall justify the cry, And swell the general sound, Revenge! Revenge!

And we will be revenged, my countrymen!
Brutus shall lead you on; Brutus, a name
Which will, when you're revenged, be dearer to him

Than all the noblest titles earth can boast
Brutus your king! — No, fellow-citizens!
If mad ambition in this guilty frame
Had strung one kingly fibre, yea, but one, —
By all the gods, this dagger which I hold
Should rip it out, though it intwined my heart.

Now take the body up. Bear it before us
To Tarquin's palace; there we'll light our torches,
And in the blazing conflagration rear
A pile, for these chaste relics, that shall send Her soul amongst the stars On! Brutus leads you!

JOHN HOWARD PAYNE

ANTONY'S ORATION OVER THE BODY OF CÆSAR.

FROM "JULIUS CA.SAR," ACT III SC 2

ANTONY. Omighty Caesar! dost thou lie so low? Are all thy conquests, glories, triumphs, spoils, Shrunk to this little measure?— Fare thee well.—

(To the people.)

Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears:

I come to bury Cæsar, not to praise him. The evil that men do lives after them; The good is oft interred with their bones; So let it be with Casar. The noble Brutus Hath told you Cæsar was ambitious. If it were so, it was a grievous fault; And grievously hath ('esar answered it. Here, under leave of Brutus and the rest, (For Brutus is an honorable man: So are they all, all honorable men,) Come I to speak in Casar's funeral. He was my friend, faithful and just to me: But Brutus says he was ambitious; And Brutus is an honorable man. He hath brought many captives home to Rome, Whose ransoms did the general coffers fill : Did this in Casar seem ambitious? When that the poor have cried, Cæsar hath went: Ambition should be made of sterner stuff: Yet Brutus says he was ambitious: And Brutus is an honorable man. You all did see that on the Lupercal

I thrice presented him a kingly crown,
Which he did thrice refuse: was this ambition?
Yet Brutus says he was ambitious;
And, sure, he is an honorable man.
I speak not to disprove what Brutus spoke,
But here I am to speak what I do know.
You all did love him once, — not without cause.
What cause withholds you, then, to mourn for him?
O independ they are field to brutish heads.

O judgment, thou art fled to brutish beasts, And men have lost their reason!—Bear with me; My heart is in the coffin there with Cæsar, And I must pause till it come back to me.

But yesterday, the word of Cæsar might Have stood against the world · now lies he there, And none so poor to do him reverence. O masters! if I were disposed to stir Your hearts and minds to mutiny and rage, I should do Brutus wrong, and Cassius wrong, Who, you all know, are honorable men: I will not do them wrong; I rather choose To wrong the dead, to wrong myself, and you, Than I will wrong such honorable men. But here 's a parchment, with the seal of Cæsar, -I found it in his closet, - 't is his will . Let but the commons hear this testament, (Which, pardon me, I do not mean to read,) And they would go and kiss dead Cæsar's wounds, And dip their napkins in his sacred blood: Yea, beg a hair of him for memory, And, dying, mention it within their wills, Bequeathing it, as a rich legacy, Unto their issue.

4 CITIZEN. We'll hear the will: read it, Mark Antony.

CITIZENS. The will, the will! we will hear Cassar's will.

ANT. Have patience, gentle friends, I must not read it;

It is not meet you know how Cæsar loved you. You are not wood, you are not stones, but men; And, being men, hearing the will of Cæsar, It will inflame you, it will make you mad: 'T is good you know not that you are his heirs, For if you should, O, what would come of it!

4 Cit. Read the will; we'll hear it, Antony; You shall read us the will, — Cæsar's will.

ANT. Will you be patient? Will you stay awhile?

awnile?
I have o'ershot myself to tell you of it.
I fear I wrong the honorable men
Whose daggers have stabbed Cæsar; I do fear it.
4 Cit. They were traitors: honorable men!
Cit. The will! the testament!
2 Cit. They were villains, murderers: the will! read the will!

ANT. You will compel me, then, to read the will?

Then make a ring about the corse of Cæsar, And let me show you him that made the will. Shall I descend? and will you give me leave?

CITIZENS. Come down.

ANT. Nay, press not so upon me; stand far off.

CITIZENS. Stand back; room; bear back.
Ant. If you have tears, prepare to shed them

You all do know this mantle: I remember The first time ever ('sesar put it on ; 'T was on a summer's evening, in his tent; That day he overcame the Nervii : -Look, in this place ran Cassius' dagger through: See what a rent the envious Casca made: Through this the well-beloved Brutus stabbed : And, as he plucked his cursed steel away, Mark how the blood of Cæsar followed it. As rushing out of doors, to be resolved If Brutus so unkindly knocked, or no; For Brutus, as you know, was Cæsar's angel: Judge, O vou gods, how dearly Cresar loved him ! This was the most unkindest cut of all: For when the noble Cæsar saw him stab. Ingratitude, more strong than traitors' arms, Quite vanquished him: then burst his mighty

heart;
And, in his mantle muffling up his face,
Even at the base of Pompey's statua,
Which all the while ran blood, great Cæsar fell.
O, what a fall was there, my countrymen!
Then I, and you, and all of us fell down,
Whilst bloody treason flourished over us.
O, now you weep; and, I perceive, you feel
The dint of pity: these are gracious drops.
Kind souls, what, weep you when you but behold
Our Cæsar's vesture wounded? Look you here,
Here is himself, marred, as you see, with traitors.

Good friends, sweet friends, let me not stir you up

To such a sudden flood of mutiny.

They that have done this deed are honorable; —
What private griefs they have, alas, I know not,
That made them do it; — they are wise and honorable,

And will, no doubt, with reasons answer you. I come not, friends, to steal away your hearts; I am no orator, as Brutus is;

But, as you know me all, a plain blunt man, That love my friend; and that they know full

That gave me public leave to speak of him: For I have neither wit, nor words, nor worth, Action, nor utterance, nor the power of speech, To stir men's blood: I only speak right on; I tell you that which you yourselves do know; Show you sweet Cæsar's wounds, poor, poor dumb mouths,

And bid them speak for me: but were I Brutus, And Brutus Antony, there were an Antony Would ruffle up your spirits, and put a tongue In every wound of Cassar, that should move The stones of Rome to rise in mutiny.

Here is the will, and under Cæsar's seal:— To every Roman citizen he gives, To every several man, seventy-five drachmas.

2 Cir. Most noble Cæsar! — we'll revenge his death.

3 Cit. O royal Cæsar!

Ant. Hear me with patience.
CITIZENS. Peace, ho!

ANT. Moreover, he hath left you all his walks, His private arbors, and new-planted orchards, On this side Tiber; he hath left them you, And to your heirs forever, — common pleasures, To walk abroad, and recreate yourselves. Here was a Cæsar! when comes such another?

1 Cit. Never, never! — Come away, away!

1 CIT. Never, never! — Come away, away! We'll burn his body in the holy place, And with the brands fire the traitors' houses. Take up the body.

SHAKESPEARE.

OTHELLO'S REMORSE.

FROM "OTHELIO," ACT V. SC. 2

Behold, I have a weapon;

A better never did itself sustain
Upon a soldier's thigh: I have seen the day,
That, with this little arm and this good sword,
I have made my way through more impediments
Than twenty times your stop:—but, O vain boast!

Who can control his fate? 't is not so now. —
Be not afraid, though you do see me weaponed;
Here is my journey's end, here is my butt,
And very sea-mark of my utmost sail.
Do you go back dismayed? 't is a lost fear;
Man but a rush against Othello's breast,
And he retires: — where should Othello go? —
Now, how dost thou look now? O ill-starred wench!

Pale as thy smock! when we shall meet at compt, This look of thine will hurl my soul from heaven, And fiends will snatch at it. Cold, cold, my girl! Even like thy chastity — O, cursed slave! — Whip me, ye devils,

From the possession of this heavenly sight! Blow me about in winds! roast me in sulphur! Wash me in steep-down gulfs of liquid fire!— O Desdemona! Desdemona! dead! O! O!

SHAKESPEARE

THE EXECUTION OF MONTROSE.

[James Graham, Marquis of Montrose, was executed in Edinburgh, May 21, 1650, for an attempt to overthrow the Commonwealth, and restore Charles II.]

Come hither, Evan Cameron!
Come, stand behind my knee —
I hear the river roaring down
Toward the wintry sea.
There's shouting on the mountain-side,
There's war within the blast —
Old faces look upon me,
Old forms go trooping past.
I hear the pibroch wailing
Amidst the din of fight,
And my dim spirit wakes again
Upon the verge of night.

"T was I that led the Highland host
Through wild Lochaber's snows,
What time the plaided clans came down
To battle with Montrose.
I 've told thee how the Southrons fell
Beneath the broad claymore,
And how we smote the Campbell clan
By Inverlochy's shore.
I 've told thee how we swept Dundee,
And tamed the Lindsays' pride;
But never have I told thee yet
How the great Marquis died.

A traitor sold him to his foes; —
O deed of deathless shame!
I charge thee, boy, if e'er thou meet
With one of Assynt's name —
Be it upon the mountain's side,
Or yet within the glen,
Stand he in martial gear alone,
Or backed by armed men —
Face him as thou wouldst face the man
Who wronged thy sire's renown;
Remember of what blood thou art,
And strike the caitiff down!

They brought him to the Watergate,
Hard bound with hempen span,
As though they held a lion there,
And not a 'fenceless man.
They set him high upon a cart —
The hangman rode below —
They drew his hands behind his back,
And bared his noble brow.
Then, as a hound is slipped from leash,
They cheered the common throng,
And blew the note with yell and shout,
And bade him pass along.

It would have made a brave man's heart
Grow sad and sick that day,
To watch the keen, mangnant eyes
Bent down on that array.
There stood the Whig west-country lords
In balcony and bow;
There sat their gaunt and withered dames,
And their daughters all a-row.
And every open window
Was full as full might he
With black-robed Covenanting carles,
That goodly sport to see!

But when he came, though pale and wan,
He looked so great and high,
So noble was his manly front,
So calm his steadfast eye;—
The rabble rout forbore to shout,
And each man held his breath,
For well they knew the hero's soul
Was face to face with death.
And then a mournful shudder
Through all the people crept,
And some that came to scoff at him
Now turned aside and wept.

But onward — always onward,
In silence and in gloom,
The dreary pageant labored,
Till it reached the house of doom.
Then first a woman's voice was heard
In jeer and laughter loud,
And an angry cry and a hiss arose
From the heart of the tossing crowd:
Then, as the Græme looked upward,
He saw the ugly smile
Of him who sold his king for gold —
The master-fiend Argyle!

The Marquis gazed a moment,
And nothing did he say,
But the cheek of Argyle grew ghastly pale,
And he turned his eyes away.
The painted harlot by his side,
She shook through every limb,
For a roar like thunder swept the street,
And hands were clenched at him;
And a Saxon soldier cried aloud,
"Back, coward, from thy place!
For seven long years thou hast not dured
To look him in the face."

Had I been there with sword in hand,
And fifty Camerons by,
That day through high Dunedin's streets
Had pealed the slogan-cry.

Not all their troops of trampling horse,
Nor might of mailed men —
Not all the rebels in the south
Had borne us backward then!
Once more his foot on Highland heath
Had trod as free as air,
Or I, and all who bone my name,
Been laid around him there!

It might not be. They placed him next
Within the solemn hall,
Where once the Scottish kings were throned
Amidst their nobles all.
But there was dust of vulgar feet
On that polluted floor,
And perjured traitors filled the place
Where good men sate before.
With savage glee came Warriston
To read the murderous doom;
And then uprose the great Montrose
In the middle of the room:

"Now, by my faith as belted knight
And by the name I bear,
And by the hight St. Andrew's cross
That waves above us there—
Yea, by a greater, mightier oath—
And O that such should be!—
By that dark stream of royal blood
That lies 'twixt you and me—
I have not sought in battle-field
A wreath of such renown,
Nor dared I hope on my dying day
To win the martyr's crown!

"There is a chamber far away
Where sleep the good and brave,
But a better place ye have named for me
Than by my fathers' grave.
For truth and right, 'gainst treason's might.
This hand hath always striven,
And ye raise it up for a witness still
In the eye of earth and heaven.
Then nail my head on yonder tower—
Give every town a limb—
And God who made shall gather them:
I go from you to Him!"

The morning dawned full darkly,
The rain came flashing down,
And the jagged streak of the levin-bolt
Lit up the gloomy town.
The thunder crashed across the heaven,
The fatal hour was come;
Yet aye broke in, with muffled beat,
The 'larum of the drum.

There was madness on the earth below And anger in the sky, And young and old, and rich and poor, Came forth to see him die.

Ah God! that ghastly gibbet!
How dismal 't is to see
The great tall spectral skeleton,
The ladder and the tree!
Hark! hark! it is the clash of arms,—
The bells begin to toll,—
"He is coming! he is coming!
God's mercy on his soul!"
One last long peal of thunder,—
The clouds are cleared away,
And the glorious sun once more looks down
Amidst the dazzling day.

"He is coming!"
Like a bridegroom from his room
Came the hero from his prison
To the scaffold and the doom.
There was glory on his forehead,
There was lustre in his eye,
And he never walked to battle
More proudly than to die.
There was color in his visage,
Though the cheeks of all were wan;
And they marvelled as they saw him pass,
That great and goodly man!

He mounted up the scaffold,
And he turned him to the crowd;
But they dared not trust the people,
So he might not speak aloud.
But he looked upon the heavens,
And they were clear and blue,
And in the liquid ether
The eye of God shone through:
Yet a black and murky battlement
Lay resting on the hill,
As though the thunder slept within,
All else was calm and still.

The grim Geneva ministers
With anxious scowl drew near,
As you have seen the ravens flock
Around the dying deer.
He would not deign them word nor sign,
But alone he bent the knee;
And veiled his face for Christ's dear grace
Beneath the gallows-trec.
Then, radiant and serene, he rose,
And cast his cloak away;
For he had ta'en his latest look
Of earth and sun and day.

A beam of light fell o'er Lim,
Like a glory round the shriven,
And he climbed the lofty ladder
As it were the path to heaven.
Then came a flash from out the cloud,
And a stunning thunder-roll;
And no man dared to look aloft,—
Fear was on every soul.
There was another heavy sound,
A hush, and then a groan;
And darkness swept across the sky,—
The work of death was done!
WILLIAM EDMONDSTOUNE AYTOUN.

GOD'S JUDGMENT ON A WICKED BISHOP.

[Hatto, Archbishop of Mentz, in the year 914, barbarously murdered a number of poor people to prevent their consuming a portion of the food during that year of familie He was afterwards devoured by rats in his tower on an island in the Rhine.—Old Legend]

THE summer and autumn had been so wet, That in winter the corn was growing yet: "T was a piteous sight to see all around The grain lie totting on the ground.

Every day the starving poor Crowded around Bishop Hatto's door; For he had a plentiful last-year's store, And all the neighborhood could tell His granaries were furnished well.

At last Bishop Hatto appointed a day
To quiet the poor without delay;
He bade them to his great barn repair,
And they should have food for the winter there.

Rejoiced the tidings good to hear, The poor folks flocked from far and near; The great barn was full as it could hold Of women and children, and young and old.

Then, when he saw it could hold no more, Bishop Hatto he made fast the door; And whilst for mercy on Christ they call, He set fire to the barn, and burnt them all.

"I' faith 't is an excellent bonfire '" quoth he; "And the country is greatly obliged to me For ridding it, in these times forlorn, Of rats that only consume the corn."

So then to his palace returned he, And he sate down to supper merrily, And he slept that night like an innocent man; But Bishop Hatto never slept again. In the morning, as he entered the hall, Where his picture hung against the wall, A sweat like death all over him came, For the rats had eaten it out of the frame.

As he looked, there came a man from his farm, -He had a countenance white with alarm · "My lord, I opened your granaries this morn, And the rats had eaten all your corn."

Another came running presently,
And he was pale as pale could be.
"Fly! my lord bishop, fly!" quoth he,
"Ten thousand rats are coming this way, —
The Lord forgive you for yesterday!"

"I'll go to my tower in the Rhine," replied he;
"'T is the safest place in Germany, —
The walls are high, and the shores are steep,
And the tide is strong, and the water deep."

Bishop Hatto fearfully hastened away; And he crossed the Rhine without delay, And reached his tower, and barred with care All the windows, doors, and loop-holes there.

He laid him down and closed his eyes, But soon a scream made him arise; He started, and saw two eyes of flame On his pillow, from whence the screaming came.

He listened and looked, —it was only the cat; But the bishop he grew more fearful for that, For she sate screaming, mad with fear, At the army of rats that were drawing near.

For they have swum over the river so deep, And they have climbed the shores so steep, And now by thousands up they crawl To the holes and the windows in the wall.

Down on his knees the bishop fell, And faster and faster his beads did he tell, As louder and louder, drawing near, The saw of their teeth without he could hear.

And in at the windows, and in at the door,
And through the walls, by thousands they pour;
And down from the ceiling and up through the floor.

From the right and the left, from behind and before.

From within and without, from above and below. —

And all at once to the bishop they go.

They have whetted their teeth against the stones, And now they pick the bishop's bones;
They gnawed the flesh from every limb,
For they were sent to do judgment on him!
ROBERT SOUTHEY.

THE SACK OF BALTIMORE.

[Baltimore is a small seaport in the barony of Carbery, in South Munster. It grew up around a castle of O'Driscoll's, and was, after his ruin, colonized by the English. On the soth of June, 1631, the crews of two Algerine galleys landed in the dead of the night, sacked the town, and bore off into slavery all who were not too old, or too groung, or too ferce, for their purpose. The pirates were steered up the intricate channel by one Hackett, a Dungarvan fisherman, whom they had taken at sea for the purpose. Two years after, he was convicted of the crume and executed. Baltimore never recovered from this.]

THE summer sun is falling soft on Carbery's hundred isles,

The summer sun is gleaming still through Gabriel's rough defiles, —

Old Inisherkin's crumbled fane looks like a moulting bird;

And in a calm and sleepy swell the ocean tide is heard:

The hookers lie upon the beach; the children cease their play;

The gossips leave the little inn; the households kneel to pray;

And full of love and peace and rest, — its daily labor o'er, —

Upon that cosy creek there lay the town of Baltimore.

A deeper rest, a starry trance, has come with midnight there;

No sound, except that throbbing wave, in earth or sea or air.

The massive capes and ruined towers seem conscious of the calm;

The fibrous sod and stunted trees are breathing heavy balm.

So still the night, these two long barks round Dunashad that glide

Must trust their oars — methinks not few — against the ebbing tide,

O, some sweet mission of true love must urge them to the shore, —

They bring some lover to his bride, who sighs in Baltimore!

All, all asleep within each roof along that rocky street.

And these must be the lover's friends, with gently gliding feet.

A stifled gasp! a dreamy noise! The roof is in a flame!

From out their beds, and to their doors, rush maid and sire and dame,

And meet, upon the threshold stone, the gleaming sabre's fall,

And o'er each black and bearded face the white or crimson shawl.

The yell of "Allah!" breaks above the prayer and shriek and roar—

O blessèd God 1 the Algerine is lord of Baltimore !

Then flung the youth his naked hand against the | 'T is Hackett of Dungarvan, - he who steered shearing sword;

Then sprung the mother on the brand with which her son was gored;

Then sunk the grandsire on the floor, his grandbabes clutching wild;

Then fled the maiden mouning faint, and nestled with the child.

But see, you pirate strangling lies, and crushed Some cursed him with Iscariot, that day in Balwith splashing heel,

While o'er him in an Irish hand there sweeps his Syrian steel;

Though virtue sink, and courage fail, and misers yield their store,

There's one hearth well avenged in the sack of Baltimore!

Midsummer morn, in woodland nigh, the birds begin to sing;

They see not now the milking-maids, deserted is the spring !

Midsummer day, this gallant rides from distant Bandon's town,

These hookers crossed from stormy Skull, that skiff from Affadown.

They only found the smoking walls with neighbors' blood besprent,

And on the strewed and trampled beach awhile they wildly went,

Then dashed to sea, and passed Cape Clear, and saw, five leagues before,

The pirate-galleys vanishing that ravaged Balti-

O, some must tug the galley's oar, and some must tend the steed, -

This boy will bear a Scheik's chibouk, and that a Bey's jerreed.

O, some are for the arsenals by beauteous Darda-

And some are in the caravan to Mecca's sandy

The maid that Bandon gallant sought is chosen for the Dey,

She 's safe, - she 's dead, - she stabled him in the midst of his Serai :

And when to die a death of fire that noble maid they bore,

She only smiled, - O'Driscoll's child, - she thought of Baltimore.

"T is two long years since sunk the town beneath that bloody band,

And all around its trampled hearths a larger concourse stand,

Where high upon a gallows-tree a yelling wretch is seen, --- the Algerine!

He fell amid a sullen shout, with scarce a passing prayer,

For he had slain the kith and kin of many a hundred there:

Some muttered of MacMorrogh, who had brought the Norman o'er, timore.

THOMAS DAVIS.

PARRHASIUS.

PARRHASIUS stood, gazing forgetfully Upon the canvas. There Prometheus lay, Chained to the cold rocks of Mount Caucasus, The vulture at his vitals, and the links Of the lame Lemnian festering in his flesh; And, as the painter's mind felt through the dim Rapt mystery, and plucked the shadows forth With its far-reaching fancy, and with form And color clad them, his fine, earnest eye Flashed with a passionate fire, and the quick curi Of his thin nostril, and his quivering lip, Were like the winged god's breathing from his flights.

"Bring me the captive now! My hand feels skilful, and the shadows lift From my waked spirit airily and swift;

And I could paint the bow Upon the bended heavens, - around me play Colors of such divinity to-day.

"Ha! bind him on his back! Look! as Prometheus in my picture here; Quick, - or he faints ! - stand with the cordial

Now, - bend him to the rack! Press down the poisoned links into his flesh ' And tear agape that healing wound afresh:

"So, - let him writhe ! How long Will he live thus? Quick, my good pencil, now! What a fine agony works upon his brow!

Ha! gray-haired, and so strong! How fearfully he stifles that short moan! Gods! if I could but paint a dying groan!

"Pity thee! so I do! I pity the dumb victim at the altar, But does the robed priest for his pity falter! I'd rack thee, though I knew A thousand lives were perishing in thine; What were ten thousand to a fame like mine? "Ah! there's a deathless name!—
A spirit that the smothering vaults shall spurn,
And, like a steadfast planet, mount and burn;

And though its crown of flame Consumed my brain to ashes as it shone, By all the fiery stars, I'd bind it on!

"Ay! though it bid me rifle
My heart's last fount for its insatiate thirst, —
Though every life-strung nerve be maddened first, —

Though it should bid me stifle
The yearnings in my heart for my sweet child,
And taunt its mother till my brain went wild, —

"All, — I would do it all, — Sooner than die, like a dull worm, to rot Thrust foully in the earth to be forgot.

O Heavens! — but l appall
Your heart, old man! — forgive — ha! on your lives

Let him not faint! rack him till he revives!

"Vain, — vain, — give o'er. His eye Glazes apace. He does not feel you now, — Stand back! I'll paint the death-dew on his brow! Gods! if he do not die,

But for one moment — one — till I eclipse Conception with the scorn of those calm lips!

"Shivering! Hark! he mutters Brokenly now, — that was a difficult breath, — Another? Wilt thou never come, O Death?

Look! how his temple flutters!

Is his heart still? Aha! lift up his head!

He shudders, — gasps, — Jove help him! — so,
— he's dead!"

How like a mounting devil in the heart Rules the unremed ambition! Let it once But play the monarch, and its haughty brow Glows with a beauty that bewilders thought And unthrones peace forever. Putting on The very pomp of Lucifer, it turns The heart to ashes, and with not a spring Left in the bosom for the spirit's lip, We look upon our splendor, and forget The thirst of which we perish!

NATHANIEL PARKER WILLIS

A DAGGER OF THE MIND.

FROM "MACBETH," ACT II. SC. 1.

[MACBETH before the murder of Duncan, meditating alone, sees the image of a dagger in the air, and thus solidoquizes if

Is this a dagger which I see before me,

The handle toward my hand? Come, let me clutch thee:—

I have thee not, and yet I see thee still.

To feeling as to sight? or art thou but A dagger of the mind, a false creation, Proceeding from the heat-oppressed brain? I see thee yet, in form as palpable As this which now I draw. Thou marshal'st me the way that I was going; And such an instrument I was to use. Mine eyes are made the fools o' the other senses, Or else worth all the rest: I see thee still; And on thy blade and dudgeon gouts of blood,

Art thou not, fatal vision, sensible thing:

It is the bloody business, which informs Thus to mine eyes. — Now o'er the one half world

Which was not so before. — There's no such

Nature seems dead, and wicked dreams abuse
The curtained sleep; witchcraft celebrates
Pale Hecate's offerings; and withered murder,
Alarumed by his sentinel, the wolf,
Whose howl's his watch, thus with his stealthy pace,

With Tarquin's ravishing strides, towards his design

Moves like a ghost. — Thou sure and firm-set earth,

Hear not my steps, which way they walk, for fear

The very stones prate of my whereabout,
And take the present horror from the time,
Which now suits with it. — Whiles I threat, he
lives:

Words to the heat of deeds too cold breath gives.

(A bell rings.)

I go, and it is done; the bell invites me. Hear it not, Duncan; for it is a knell That summons thee to heaven or to hell.

SHAKESPLARE.

THE MURDER.

FROM "MACBETH," ACT II. SC 2.

Scene in the Castle. Enter LADY MACBETH.

LADY MACBETH. That which hath made them drunk hath made me bold,

What hath quenched them hath given me fire.

Hark!—Peace!

It was the owl that shrieked, the fatal bellman, Which gives the stern'st good night. He is about it:

The doors are open; and the surfeited grooms

Do mark their charge with snores: I have drugged their possets,

That death and nature do contend about them, Whether they live or die.

MACBETH (within). Who's there? What, ho!

awaked

Confounds us. - Hark ! - I laid their daggers ready;

He could not miss them. — Had he not resembled My father, as he slept, I had done 't. - My husband †

MACB. I have done the deed. Didst thou not hear a noise?

LADY M. I heard the owl scream, and the crickets cry.

Did not you speak?

MACB. When?

LADY M.

As I descended? MACB

LADY M. Ay.

MACB. Hark! -Who lies i' the second chamber?

Donalbain. LADY M.

MACB (looking on his hands). This is a sorry sight.

LADY M. A foolish thought, to say a sorry

MACB. There's one did laugh in's sleep, and one cried, "Murder!"

That they did wake each other: I stood and heard them .

But they did say then prayers, and addressed them

Again to sleep.

There are two lodged together. LADY M. MACB. One cried, "God bless us!" and, "Amen," the other;

As they had seen me with these hangman's hands.

Listening their fear, I could not say, "Amen," When they did say, "God bless us."

Consider it not so deeply. MACB. But wherefore could not I pronounce "Amen"?

I had most need of blessing, and "Amen" Stuck in my throat.

LADY M. These deeds must not be thought After these ways; so, it will make us mad.

MACB. Methought I heard a voice cry, "Sleep

Macbeth does murder sleep,"- the innocent

Sleep that knits up the ravelled sleave of care, The death of each day's life, sore labor's bath. Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course. Chief nourisher in life's feast, -

What do you mean ? LADY M. MACE. Still it cried, "Sleep no more!" to all the house:

LADY M. Alack, I am afraid they have | "Glamis hath murdered sleep; and therefore Cawdor

And 't is not done: — the attempt and not the Shall sleep no more, — Macbeth shall sleep no more!"

> LADY M. Who was it that thus cried? Why, worthy thane,

You do unbend your noble strength, to think So brainsickly of things. - Go; get some water, And wash this filthy witness from your hand. Why did you bring these daggers from the place?

They must lie there : go carry them ; and smear The sleepy grooms with blood.

I'll go no more ! MACB. I am afraid to think what I have done;

Look on 't again, I dare not.

Infirm of purpose ! LADY M. Give me the daggers: the sleeping, and the

Are but as pictures: 't is the eye of childhood That fears a painted devil. If he do bleed, I'll gild the faces of the grooms withal;

For it must seem their guilt.

Exit. Knocking within. Whence is that knocking? How is't with me, when every noise appalls me! What hands are here! Ha! they pluck out mine eyes!

Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood Clean from my hand? No; this my hand will rather

The multitudinous seas mearnadine, Making the green - one red.

(Re-enter LADY MACBETH.)

LADY M. My hands are of your color; but I

To wear a heart so white (Knocking.) I hear a knocking

At the south entry · — retire we to our chamber:

A little water clears us of this deed How easy is it, then ' Your constancy

Hath left you unattended. (Knocking.) Hark, more knocking

Get on your nightgown, lest occasion call us, And show us to be watchers: - he not lost So poorly in your thoughts.

MACB. To know my deed, 't were best not know myself. (Knocking.)

Wake Duncan with thy knocking! I would thou couldst. SHAKESPEARE.

RIDING TOGETHER.

For many, many days together The wind blew steady from the east; For many days hot grew the weather. About the time of our Lady's feast.

For many days we rode together, Yet met we neither friend nor foe; Hotter and clearer grew the weather, Steadily did the east-wind blow.

We saw the trees in the hot, bright weather, Clear-cut, with shadows very black, As freely we rode on together With helms unlaced and bridles slack.

And often as we rode together,
We, looking down the green-banked stream,
Saw flowers in the sunny weather,
And saw the bubble-making bream.

And in the night lay down together,
And hung above our heads the rood,
Or watched night-long in the dewy weather,
The while the moon did watch the wood.

Our spears stood bright and thick together, Straight out the banners streamed behind, As we galloped on in the sunny weather, With faces turned towards the wind.

Down sank our threescore spears together, As thick we saw the pagans ride; His eager face in the clear fresh weather Shone out that last time by my side.

Up the sweep of the bridge we dashed together, It rocked to the crash of the meeting spears, Down rained the buds of the dear spring weather, The elm-tree flowers fell like tears.

There, as we rolled and writhed together,
I threw my arms above my head,
For close by my side, in the lovely weather,
I saw him reel and fall back dead.

I and the slayer met together,

He waited the death-stroke there in his place,
With thoughts of death, in the lovely weather
Gapingly mazed at my maddened face.

Madly I fought as we fought together; In vain: the little Christian band The pagans drowned, as in stormy weather, The river drowns low-lying land.

They bound my blood-stained hands together,
They bound his corpse to nod by my side:
Then on we rode, in the bright March weather,
With clash of cymbals did we ride.

We ride no more, no more together;
My prison-bars are thick and strong,
I take no heed of any weather,
The sweet Saints grant I live not long.
WILLIAM MORRIS.

THE ROSE AND THE GAUNTLET.

Low spake the knight to the peasant maid, "O, be not thus of my suit afraid! Fly with me from this garden small, And thou shalt sit in my castle hall.

"Thou shalt have pomp and wealth and pleasure, Joys beyond thy fancy's measure; Here with my sword and horse I stand, To bear thee away to my distant land.

"Take, thou fairest! this full-blown rose
A token of love that as ripely blows."
With his glove of steel he plucked the token,
And it fell from the gauntlet crushed and broken.

The maiden exclaimed, "Thou seest, Sir Knight, Thy fingers of iron can only smite; And, like the rose thou hast torn and scattered, I in thy grasp should be wrecked and shattered!"

She trembled and blushed, and her glances fell, But she turned from the knight, and said, "Farewell."

"Not so," he cried, "will I lose my prize; I heed not thy words, but I read thine eyes."

He lifted her up in his grasp of steel, And he mounted and spurred with fiery herl; But her cry drew forth her hoary sire, Who snatched his bow from above the fire.

Swift from the valley the warrior fled,
But swifter the bolt of the cross-bow sped;
And the weight that pressed on the fleet-foot horse

Was the living man and the woman's corse.

That morning the rose was bright of hue, That morning the maiden was sweet to view; But the evening sun its beauty shed On the withered leaves and the maiden dead.

JOHN WILSON (Christopher North).

THE KING IS COLD.

RAKE the embers, blow the coals,
Kindle at once a roaring fire;
Here's some paper — 't is nothing, sir —
Light it (they 've saved a thousand souls),
Run for fagots, ye scurvy knaves,
There are plenty out in the public square,
You know they fry the heretics there.
(But God remember their nameless graves!)
Fly, fly, or the king may die'

Ugh! his royal feet are like snow,
And the cold is mounting up to his heart.
(But that was frozen long ago!)
Rascals, varlets, do as you are told, —
The king is cold.

His bed of state is a grand affair,

With sheets of satin and pillows of down,

And close beside it stands the crown,—

But that won't keep him from dying there!

His hands are wrinkled, his hair is gray,

And his ancient blood is sluggish and thin;

When he was young it was hot with sin,—

But that is over this many a day!

Under these sheets of satin and lace

He slept in the arms of his concubines;

Now they carouse with the prince instead,

Drinking the maddest, merriest wines;

It's pleasant to hear such catches trolled,

Now the king is cold!

What shall I do with His Majesty now?

For, thanks to my potion, the man is dead;
Suppose I bolster him up in bed,
And fix the crown again on his brow?

That would be merry! but then the prince
Would tumble it down, I know, in a trice;

'T would puzzle the Devil to name a vice
That would make his Excellent Highness wince!
Hark! he's coming, I know his step;
He's stealing to see if his wishes are true;
Sire, may your father's end be yours!

(With just such a son to murder you!)
Peace to the dead! Let the bells be tolled—

The king is cold!

ROBERT BROWNING.

FRA GIACOMO.

ALAS, Fra Giacomo, Too late! — but follow me ; Hush! draw the curtain, — so! — She is dead, quite dead, you see. Poor little lady! she lies With the light gone out of her eyes, But her features still wear that soft Gray meditative expression, Which you must have noticed oft, And admired too, at confession. How saintly she looks, and how meek! Though this be the chamber of death. I fancy I feel her breath As I kiss her on the cheek. With that pensive religious face, She has gone to a holier place! And I hardly appreciated her, -Her praying, fasting, confessing, Poorly, I own, I mated her;

I thought her too cold, and rated her
For her endless image-caressing.
Too saintly for me by far,
As pure and as cold as a star,
Not fashioned for kissing and pressing,—
But made for a heavenly crown.
Ay, father, let us go down,—
But first, if you please, your blessing.

Wine? No? Come, come, you must!
You'll bless it with your prayers,
And quaff a cup, I trust,
To the health of the saint up stairs?
My heart is aching so!
And I feel so weary and sad,
Through the blow that I have had,— You'll sit, Fra Giacomo?
My friend! (and a friend I rank you
For the sake of that saint,)—nay, nay!
Here's the wine,—as you love me, stay!—
'T is Montepulciano!—Thank you.

Heigh-ho! 'T is now six summers Since I won that angel and married her: I was rich, not old, and carried her Off in the face of all comers. So fresh, yet so brimming with soul! A tenderer morsel, i swear, Never made the dull black coal Of a monk's eye glitter and glare. Your pardon! — nay, keep your chair! I wander a little, but mean No offence to the gray gaberdine; Of the church, Fra Giacomo, I 'm a faithful upholder, you know, But (humor me !) she was as sweet As the saints in your convent windows, So gentle, so meek, so discreet, She knew not what lust does or sin does. I'll confess, though, before we were one, I deemed her less saintly, and thought The blood in her veins had caught Some natural warmth from the sun. I was wrong, - I was blind as a bat, -Brute that I was, how I blundered! Though such a mistake as that Might have occurred as pat To ninety-nine men in a hundred. Yourself, for example ? you've seen her? Spite her modest and pious demeanor, And the manners so nice and precise, Seemed there not color and light, Bright motion and appetite, That were scarcely consistent with ice? Externals implying, you see, Internals less saintly than human ? — Pray speak, for between you and me You're not a bad judge of a woman!

A jest, — but a jest! — Very true: 'T is hardly becoming to jest, And that saint up stairs at rest, -Her soul may be listening, wo ! I was always a brute of a fellow! Well may your visage turn yellow, -To think how I doubted and doubted. Suspected, grumbled at, flouted That golden-haired angel, - and solely Because she was zealous and holy! Noon and night and morn She devoted herself to piety; Not that she seemed to scorn Or dislike her husband's society; But the claims of her soul superseded All that I asked for or needed. And her thoughts were far away From the level of sinful clay, And she trembled if earthly matters Interfered with her aves and paters. Poor dove, she so fluttered in flying Above the dim vapors of hell -Bent on self-sanctifying -That she never thought of trying To save her husband as well. And while she was duly elected For place in the heavenly roll, I (brute that I was ') suspected Her manner of saving her soul. So, half for the fun of the thing, What did I (blasphemer!) but fling On my shoulders the gown of a monk — Whom I managed for that very day To get safely out of the way -And seat me, half sober, half drunk, With the cowl thrown over my face, In the father confessor's place. Eheu ! benedicite ! In her orthodox sweet simplicity, With that pensive gray expression, She sighfully knelt at confession, While I but my lips till they bled, And dug my nails in my hand,

More wine, Fra Giacomo!
One cup, — if you love me! No?
What, have these dry lips drank
So deep of the sweets of pleasure —
Sub rosa, but quite without measure —
That Montepulciano tastes rank?
Come, drink! 't will bring the streaks

What I'd guessed and could understand.

And heard with averted head

I sat, like a marble thing,

Each word was a serpent's sting,

But, wrapt in my gloomy gown,

As she told me all '- SIT DOWN.

Of crimson back to your cheeks; Come, drink again to the saint Whose virtues you loved to paint, Who, stretched on her wifely bed, With the tender, grave expression You used to admire at confession, Lies poisoned, overhead!

Sit still, — or by heaven, you die!
Face to face, soul to soul, you and I
Have settled accounts, in a fine
Pleasant fashion, over our wine.
Stir not, and seek not to fly, —
Nay, whether or not, you are mine!
Thank Montepulciano for giving
You death in such delicate sips;
'T is not every monk ceases living
With so pleasant a taste on his lips;
But, lest Montepulciano unsurely should kiss,
Take this! and this! and this!

Cover him over, Pietro,
And bury him in the court below, —
You can be secret, !ad, I know!
And, hark you, then to the convent go, —
Bid every bell of the convent toll,
And the monks say mass for your mistress' soul.

ROBERT BUCHAMAN

COUNTESS LAURA.

It was a dreary day in Padua. The Countess Laura, for a single year Fernando's wife, upon her bridal bed. Like an uprooted lily on the snow. The withered outcast of a festival, Lay dead. She died of some uncertain ill, That struck her almost on her wedding day, And clung to her, and dragged her slowly down, Thinning her cheeks and pinching her full lips, Till, in her chance, it seemed that with a year Full half a century was overpast. In vain had Paracelsus taxed his art, And feigned a knowledge of her malady; In vain had all the doctors, far and near. Gathered around the mystery of her bed. Draining her veins, her husband's treasury, And physic's jargon, in a fruitless quest For causes equal to the dread result. The Countess only smiled when they were gone, Hugged her fair body with her little hands. And turned upon her pillows wearily, As though she fain would sleep no common sleep. But the long, breathless slumber of the grave She hinted nothing. Feeble as she was. The rack could not have wrung her secret out. The Bishop, when he shrived her, coming forth.

Cried, in a voice of heavenly ecstasy,
"O blessed soul! with nothing to confess
Save virtues and good deeds, which she mistakes—

So humble is she — for our human sins!" Praying for death, she tossed upon her bed Day after day; as might a shipwrecked bark That rocks upon one billow, and can make No onward motion towards her port of hope. At length, one morn, when those around her said, "Surely the Countess mends, so fresh a light Beams from her eyes and beautifies her face," One morn in spring, when every flower of earth Was opening to the sun, and breathing up Its votive incense, her impatient soul Opened itself, and so exhaled to heaven. When the Count heard it, he receled back a pace; Then turned with anger on the messenger; Then craved his pardon, and wept out his heart Before the menial; tears, ah me ' such tears As love sheds only, and love only once. Then he bethought him, "Shall this wonder die, And leave behind no shadow? not a trace Of all the glory that environed her, That mellow numbus circling round my star?" So, with his sorrow glooming in his face, He paced along his gallery of art, And strode among the painters, where they stood, With Carlo, the Venetian, at then head, Studying the Masters by the dawning light Of his transcendent genius. Through the groups Of gayly vestured artists moved the Count, As some lone cloud of thick and leaden hue, Packed with the secret of a coming storm, Moves through the gold and crimson evening mists, Deadening their splendor. In a moment still Was Carlo's voice, and still the prattling crowd; And a great shadow overwhelmed them all, As their white faces and their anxious eyes Pursued Fernando in his moody walk. He paused, as one who balances a doubt, Weighing two courses, then burst out with this: "Ye all have seen the tidings in my face; Or has the dial ceased to register The workings of my heart? Then hear the bell, That almost cracks its frame in utterance, The Countess, — she is dead!" "Dead!" Carlo groaned.

And if a bolt from middle heaven had struck
His splendid features full upon the brow,
He could not have appeared more scathed and blanched.

"Dead!—dead!" He staggered to his easelframe,

And clung around it, buffeting the air With one wild arm, as though a drowning man

Hung to a spar and fought against the waves. The Count resumed . "I came not here to grieve, Nor see my sorrow in another's eyes. Who'll paint the Countess, as she lies to-night In state within the chapel? Shall it be That earth must lose her wholly? that no hint Of her gold tresses, beaming eyes, and lips That talked in silence, and the eager soul That ever seemed outbreaking through her clay, And scattering glory round it, -shall all these Be dull corruption's heritage, and we, Poor beggars, have no legacy to show That love she bore us? That were shame to love, And shame to you, my masters." Carlo stalked Forth from his easel stiffly as a thing Moved by mechanic impulse. His thin lips, And sharpened nostrils, and wan, sunken cheeks. And the cold glunmer in his dusky eyes, Made him a ghastly sight. The throng drew back

As though they let a spectre through. Then he, Fronting the Count, and speaking in a voice Sounding remote and hollow, made reply:

"Count, I shall paint the Countess. "T is my fate, —

Not pleasure, — no, nor duty." But the Count, Astray in woe, but understood assent,
Not the strange words that bore it, and he flung His arm round Carlo, drew him to his breast,
And kissed his forehead. At which Carlo shrank;
Perhaps 't was at the honor. Then the Count,
A little reddening at his public state, —
Unseemly to his near and recent loss, —
Withdrew in haste between the downcast eyes
That did him reverence as he rustled by.

Night fell on Padua. In the chapel lay
The Countess Laura at the altar's foot.
Her coronet glittered on her pallid brows;
A crimson pall, weighed down with golden work,
Sown thick with pearls, and heaped with early
flowers,

Draped her still body almost to the chin;
And over all a thousand candles flamed
Against the winking jewels, or streamed down
The marble aisle, and flashed along the guard
Of men-at-arms that slowly wove their turns, Backward and forward, through the distant gloom.

When Carlo entered, his unsteady feet
Scarce bore him to the altar, and his head
Drooped down so low that all his shining curls
Poured on his breast, and veiled his countenance.
Upon his easel a half-finished work,
The secret labor of his studio,
Said from the canvas, so that none might err,
"I am the Countess Laura." Carlo kneeled,

And gazed upon the picture; as if thus,
Through those clear eyes, he saw the way to heaven.

Then he arose; and as a swimmer comes Forth from the waves, he shook his locks aside, Emerging from his dream, and standing firm Upon a purpose with his sovereign will. He took his palette, murmuring, "Not yet!" Confidingly and softly to the corpse, And as the veriest drudge, who plies his art Against his fancy, he addressed himself With stolid resolution to his task, Turning his vision on his memory, And shutting out the present, till the dead, The gilded pall, the lights, the pacing guard, And all the meaning of that solemn scene Became as nothing, and creative Art Resolved the whole to chaos, and reformed The elements according to her law. So Carlo wrought, as though his eye and hand Were Heaven's unconscious instruments, and

The settled purpose of Omnipotence. And it was wondrous how the red, the white, The ochre, and the umber, and the blue, From mottled blotches, hazy and opaque, Grew into rounded forms and sensuous lines; How just beneath the lucid skin the blood Glimmered with warmth; the scarlet lips apart Bloomed with the moisture of the dews of life; How the light glittered through and underneath The golden tresses, and the deep, soft eyes Became intelligent with conscious thought, And somewhat troubled underneath the arch Of eyebrows but a little too intense For perfect beauty; how the pose and poise Of the lithe figure on its tiny foot Suggested life just ceased from motion; so That any one might cry, in marvelling joy, "That creature lives, - has senses, mind, a soul To win God's love or dare hell's subtleties!" The artist paused. The ratifying "Good!" Trembled upon his lips. He saw no touch To give or soften. "It is done," he cried, -"My task, my duty! Nothing now on earth Can taunt me with a work left unfulfilled!" The lofty flame, which bore him up so long, Died in the ashes of humanity; And the mere man rocked to and fro again Upon the centre of his wavering heart. He put aside his palette, as if thus He stepped from sacred vestments, and assumed A mortal function in the common world. "Now for my rights!" he muttered, and approached

The noble body. "O lily of the world! So withered, yet so lovely! what wast thou To those who came thus near thee — for I stood Without the pale of thy half-royal rank — When thou wast budding, and the streams of life Made eager struggles to maintain thy bloom, And gladdened heaven dropped down in gracious dews

On its transplanted darling? Hear me now! I say this but in justice, not in pride,
Not to insult thy high nobility,
But that the poise of things in God's own sight
May be adjusted; and hereafter I
May urge a claim that all the powers of heaven
Shall sanction, and with clarions blow abroad.—
Laura, you loved me! Look not so severe,
With your cold brows, and deadly, close-drawn lips!

You proved it, Countess, when you died for it, —
Let it consume you in the wearing strife
It fought with duty in your ravaged heart.
I knew it ever since that summer day
I painted Lilla, the pale beggar's child,
At rest beside the fountain; when I felt — O Heaven! — the warmth and moisture of your breath

Blow through my hair, as with your eager soul —
Forgetting soul and body go as one —
You leaned across my easel till our cheeks —
Ah me ' 't was not your purpose — touched, and clung!

Well, grant 't was genius; and is genius naught? I ween it wears as proud a diadem -Here, in this very world — as that you wear. A king has held my palette, a grand-duke Has picked my brush up, and a pope has begged The favor of my presence in his Rome. I did not go; I put my fortune by. I need not ask you why: you knew too well. It was but natural, it was no way strange, That I should love you. Everything that saw, Or had its other senses, loved you, sweet, And I among them. Martyr, holy saint, -I see the halo curving round your head, --I loved you once; but now I worship you, For the great deed that held my love aloof, And killed you in the action! I absolve Your soul from any taint. For from the day Of that encounter by the fountain-side Until this moment, never turned on me Those tender eyes, unless they did a wrong To nature by the cold, defiant glare With which they chilled me. Never heard I word Of softness spoken by those gentle lips; Never received a bounty from that hand Which gave to all the world. I know the cause. You did your duty, - not for honor's sake. Nor to save sin, or suffering, or remorse. Or all the ghosts that haunt a woman's shame.

But for the sake of that pure, loyal love Your husband bore you. Queen, by grace of God, I bow before the lustre of your throne! I kiss the edges of your garment-hem, And hold myself ennobled! Answer me, -If I had wronged you, you would answer me Out of the dusty porches of the tomb : --Is this a dream, a falsehood? or have I Spoken the very truth?" "The very truth!" A voice replied; and at his side he saw A form, half shadow and half substance, stand, Or, rather, rest; for on the solid earth It had no footing, more than some dense mist That wavers o'er the surface of the ground It scarcely touches. With a reverent look The shadow's waste and wretched face was bent Above the picture; as though greater awe Subdued its awful being, and appalled, With memories of terrible delight And fearful wonder, its devouring gaze. "You make what God makes, - beauty," said the shape.

"And might not this, this second Eve, console The empttest heart? Will not this thing outlast The fairest creature fashioned in the flesh? Before that figure, Time, and Death himself, Stand baffled and disarmed. What would you

More than God's power, from nothing to create?"
The artist gazed upon the boding form,
And answered: "Goblin, if you had a heart,
That were an idle question. What to me
Is my creative power, bereft of love?
Or what to God would be that self-same power,
If so bereaved?" "And yet the love, thus mourned,

You calmly forfeited. For had you said To living Laura - in her burning ears -One half that you professed to Laura dead, She would have been your own. These contraries Sort not with my intelligence. But speak. Were Laura living, would the same stale play Of raging passion tearing out its heart Upon the rock of duty be performed ?" "The same, O phantom, while the heart I bear Trembled, but turned not its magnetic faith From God's fix d centre." "If I wake for you This Laura, - give her all the bloom and glow Of that midsummer day you hold so dear, -The smile, the motion, the impulsive soul, The love of genius, - yea, the very love, The mortal, hungry, passionate, hot love, She bore you, flesh to flesh, - would you receive That gift, in all its glory, at my hands ?" A smile of malice curled the tempter's lips. And glittered in the caverns of his eyes, Mocking the answer. Carlo paled and shook;

A woful spasm went shuddering through his frame.

Curdling his blood, and twisting his fair face
With nameless torture. But he cried aloud,
Out of the clouds of anguish, from the smoke
Of very martyrdom, "O God, she is thine!
Do with her at thy pleasure!" Something grand,
And radiant as a sunbeam, touched the head
He bent in awful sorrow. "Mortal, see —"
"Dare not! As Christ was sinless, I abjure
These vile abominations! Shall she bear
Life's burden twice, and life's temptations twice, While God is justice?" "Who has made you judge

Of what you call God's good, and what you think God's evil? One to him, the source of both. The God of good and of permitted ill. Have you no dream of days that might have been, Had you and Laura filled another fate? -Some cottage on the sloping Apennines, Roses and lilies, and the rest all love? I tell you that this tranquil dream may be Filled to repletion. Speak, and in the shade Of my dark pinions I shall bear you hence, And land you where the mountain-goat himself Struggles for footing." He outspread his wings. And all the chapel darkened, as though hell Had swallowed up the tapers; and the air Grew thick, and, like a current sensible, Flowed round the person, with a wash and dash, As of the waters of a nether sea. Slowly and calmly through the dense obscure, Dove-like and gentle, rose the artist's voice: "I dare not bring her spirit to that shame! Know my full meaning, - I who neither fear Your mystic person nor your dreadful power. Nor shall I now invoke God's potent name For my deliverance from your toils. I stand Upon the founded structure of his law, Established from the first, and thence defy Your arts, reposing all my trust in that!" The darkness eddied off; and Carlo saw The figure gathering, as from outer space, Brightness on brightness; and his former shape Fell from him, like the ashes that fall off, And show a core of mellow fire within. Adown his wings there poured a lambent flood, That seemed as molten gold, which plashing fell Upon the floor, enringing him with flame; And o'er the tresses of his beaming head Arose a stream of many-colored light, Like that which crowns the morning. Carlo stood Steadfast, for all the splendor, reaching up The outstretched palms of his untainted soul Towards heaven for strength. A moment thus then asked,

With reverential wonder quivering through

His sinking voice, "Who, spirit, and what, art | Gazes his fill, and comes and comes again, thou ?"

"I am that blessing which men fly from, -Death."

"Then take my hand, if so God orders it; For Laura waits me." "But, bethink thee, man, What the world loses in the loss of thee! What wondrous art will suffer with eclipse! What unwon glories are in store for thee ! What fame, outreaching time and temporal shocks. Would shine upon the letters of thy name Graven in marble, or the bruzen height Of columns wise with memories of thee!" "Take me! If I outlived the Patriarchs, I could but paint those features o'er and o'er : Lo! that is done." A smile of pity lit The seraph's features, as he looked to heaven. With deep inquiry in his tender eyes. The mandate came. He touched with downy wing The sufferer lightly on his aching heart; And gently, as the skylark settles down Upon the clustered treasures of her nest, So Carlo softly slid along the prop Of his tall easel, nestling at the foot As though he slumbered, and the morning broke In silver whiteness over Padua

GEORGI, HENRY ROLLR.

GINEVRA.

If thou shouldst ever come by choice or chance To Modena, where still religiously Among her ancient trophies is meserved Bologna's bucket (in its chain it hangs Within that reverend tower, the Guirlandina), Stop at a palace near the Reggio gate, Dwelt in of old by one of the Orsini. Its noble gardens, terrace above terrace. And rich in fountains, statues, cypresses, Will long detain thee, through their archèd walks.

Dim at noonday, discovering many a glimpse Of knights and dames, such as in old romance, And lovers, such as in heroic song, Perhaps the two, for groves were their delight. That in the spring-time, as alone they sat, Venturing together on a tale of love, Read only part that day. - A summer sun Sets ere one half is seen ; but ere thou go. Enter the house - prythee, forget it not -And look awhile upon a picture there.

'T is of a Lady in her earliest youth, The last of that illustrious race: Done by Zampieri — but I care not whom. He who observes it, ere he passes on,

That he may call it up when far away.

She sits inclining forward as to speak, Her lips half open, and her finger up, As though she said "Beware!" her vest of gold Broidered with flowers, and clasped from head to

An emerald stone in every golden clasp; And on her brow, fairer than alabaster, A coronet of pearls. But then her face, So lovely, yet so arch, so full of mirth, The overflowings of an innocent heart, -It haunts me still, though many a year has fied, Like some wild melody!

Alone it hangs Over a mouldering heirloom, its companion, An oaken chest, half eaten by the worm, But richly carved by Antony of Trent With Scripture stories from the life of Christ; A chest that came from Venice, and had held The ducal robes of some old Ancestor, That, by the way - it may be true or false -But don't forget the picture; and thou wilt not When thou hast heard the tale they told me there.

She was an only child; from infancy The joy, the pride, of an indulgent Sire; Her Mother dying of the gift she gave, That precious gift, what else remained to him? The young Ginevia was his all in life, Still as she grew, for ever in his sight; And in her fifteenth year became a bride, Marrying an only son, Francesco Doria, Her playmate from her birth, and her first love.

Just as she looks there in her budal dress, She was all gentleness, all gayety, Her pranks the favorite theme of every tongue. But now the day was come, the day, the hour; Now, frowning, smiling, for the hundredth time, The nurse, that ancient lady, preached decorum, And, in the lustre of her youth, she gave Her hand, with her heart in it, to Francesco.

Great was the joy; but at the Bridal-feast, When all sate down, the bride was wanting there.

Nor was she to be found! Her Father cried, "'T is but to make a trial of our love!" And filled his glass to all; but his hand shook, And soon from guest to guest the panic spread. 'T was but that instant she had left Francesco, Laughing and looking back, and flying still, Her ivory tooth imprinted on his finger. But now, alas, she was not to be found : Nor from that hour could anything be guessed, But that she was not!

Weary of his life,
Francesco flew to Venice, and, forthwith,
Flung it away in battle with the Turk.
Orsini lived, — and long mightst thou have seen
An old man wandering as in quest of something,
Something he could not find, he knew not what.
When he was gone, the house remained awhile
Silent and tenantless, — then went to strangers.

Full fifty years were past, and all forgot, When, on an idle day, a day of search Mid the old lumber in the Gallery, That mouldering chest was noticed; and 't was said

By one as young, as thoughtless as Ginevra, "Why not remove it from its lurking-place?" Twas done as soon as said; but on the way It burst, it fell; and lo, a skeleton, With here and there a pearl, an emerald sone, A golden clasp, clasping a shred of gold. All clse had perished, — save a nuptial-ring, And a small seal, her mother's legacy, Engiaven with a name, the name of both, "Ginevra."

There then had she found a grave 'Within that chest had she concealed herself, Fluttering with joy, the happiest of the happy, When a spring-lock, that lay in ambush there, Fastened her down for ever '

SAMULL ROGERS

THE MISTLETON BOUGH.

The mistletoe hung in the castle hall,
The holly branch shone on the old oak wall.
And the baron's retainers were blithe and gay,
And keeping their Christmas holiday.
The baron beheld with a father's pride
His beautiful child, young Lovell's bride;
While she with her bright eyes seemed to be
The star of the goodly company.

"I'm weary of dancing now," she cried;
"Here tarry a moment, — I'll hide, I'll hide!
And, Lovell, be sure thou'rt first to trace
The clew to my secret lunking-place."
Away she ran, — and her friends began
Each tower to search, and each nook to scan;
And young Lovell cried, "O, where dost thou hide?

I'm lonesome without thee, my own dear bride"

They sought her that night, and they sought her next day,

And they sought her in vain when a week passed away:

In the highest, the lowest, the loneliest spot,
Young Lovell sought wildly,—but found her not.
Bunny.

And years flew by, and their grief at last Was told as a sorrowful tale long past; And when Lovell appeared, the children cried, "See! the old man weeps for his fairy bride."

At length an oak chest, that had long lain hid, Was found in the castle, — they raised the lid, And a skeleton form lay mouldering there In the bridal wreath of that lady fair 'O, sad was her fate '—in sportive jest She hid from her lord in the old oak chest. It closed with a spring!—and, dreadful doom, The bride lay clasped in her living tomb!

THE YOUNG GRAY HEAD.

GRIEF hath been known to turn the young head gray, --

To silver over in a single day
The bright locks of the beautiful, their prime Scarcely o'erpast; as in the fearful time
Of Gallia's madness, that discrowned head
Serene, that on the accursed altar bled
Miscalled of Liberty O martyred Queen!
What must the sufferings of that night have
been—

That me — that sprinkled thy fair tresses o'er With time's untimely snow! But now no more, Lovely, august, unhappy one! of thee — I have to tell a humbler history; A village tale, whose only charm, in sooth (If any), will be sad and simple truth.

"Mother," quoth Ambrose to his thrifty dame, — So oft our peasant's use his wife to name, "Father" and "Master" to himself applied, As life's grave duties matronize the bride, — "Mother," quoth Ambrose, as he faced the north With hard-set teeth, before he issued forth To his day labor, from the cottage door, — "I'm thinking that, to-night, if not before, There'll be wild work. Dost hear old Chewton * roar?

It's brewing up, down westward, and look there, One of those sea-gulls! ay, there goes a pair, And such a sudden thaw! If rain comes on, As threats, the waters will be out anon. That path by the ford's a nasty bit of way,—Best let the young ones bide from school to-day."

"Do, mother, do!" the quick-cared urchins cried; Two little lasses to the father's side

* A fresh-water spring rushing into the sea, called Chewton Bunny.

Close clinging, as they looked from him, to spy The answering language of the mother's eye. There was denial, and she shook her head: "Nay, nay, — no harm will come to them," she

"The mistress lets them off these short dark days
An hour the earlier; and our Liz, she says,
May quite be trusted — and I know 't is true —
To take care of herself and Jenny too.
And so she ought, — she 's seven come first of May, —

Two years the oldest; and they give away The Christmas bounty at the school to-day."

The mother's will was law (alas, for her That hapless day, poor soul!) - she could not err, Thought Ambrose; and his little fair-haired Jane (Her namesake) to his heart he hugged again, When each had had her turn; she clinging so As if that day she could not let him go. But Labor's sons must snatch a hasty bliss In nature's tenderest mood. One last fond kiss, "God bless my little maids!" the father said, And cheerly went his way to win their bread. Then might be seen, the playmate parent gone, What looks demure the sister pair put on, -Not of the mother as afraid, or shy, Or questioning the love that could deny; But simply, as their simple training taught, In quiet, plain straightforwardness of thought (Submissively resigned the hope of play) Towards the serious business of the day.

To me there's something touching, I confess, In the grave look of early thoughtfulness, Seen often in some little childish face Among the poor. Not that wherein we trace (Shame to our land, our rulers, and our race!) The unnatural sufferings of the factory child, But a staid quietness, reflective, mild, Betokening, in the depths of those young eyes, Sense of life's cares, without its miseries.

So to the mother's charge, with thoughtful brow,
The docile Lizzy stood attentive now,
Proud of her years and of imputed sense,
And prudence justifying confidence,—
And little Jenny, more demurely still,
Beside her waited the maternal will.
So standing hand in hand, a lovelier twain
Gainsborough ne'er painted: no—nor he of Spain,

Glorious Murillo!— and by contrast shown
More beautiful. The younger little one,
With large blue eyes and silken ringlets fair,
By nut-brown Lizzy, with smooth parted hair,
Sable and glossy as the raven's wing,
And lastrous eyes as dark.

"Now, mind and bring Jenny safe home," the mother said, — "don't stay

To pull a bough or berry by the way:

And when you come to cross the ford, hold fast
Your little sister's hand, till you're quite past, —
That plank's so crazy, and so slippery (If not o'erflowed) the stepping-stones will be.
But you're good children — steady as old folk — I'd trust ye anywhere." Then Lizzy's cloak,
A good gray duffle, lovingly she tied,
And amply little Jenny's lack supplied
With her own warmest shawl. "Be sure," said she,

"To wrap it round and knot it carefully (Like this), when you come home, just leaving free

One hand to hold by. Now, make haste away — Good will to school, and then good right to play."

Was there no sinking at the mother's heart When, all equipt, they turned them to depart? When down the lane she watched them as they

Till out of sight, was no forefeeling sent
Of coming ill? In truth I cannot tell:
Such warnings have been sent, we know full well
And must believe — believing that they are —
In mercy then — to rouse, restrain, prepare.

And now I mind me, something of the kind
Did surely haunt that day the mother's mind,
Making it irksome to bide all alone
By her own quiet hearth. Though never known
For idle gossipry was Jenny Gray,
Yet so it was, that morn she could not stay
At home with her own thoughts, but took her

To her next neighbor's, half a loaf to borrow, — Yet might her store have lasted out the morrow, —

And with the loan obtained, she lingered still.
Said she, "My master, if he 'd had his will,
Would have kept back our little ones from school
This dreadful morning; and I 'm such a fool,
Since they 've been gone, I 've wished them back.

But then
It won't do in such things to humor men, —
Our Ambrose specially. If let alone
He'd spoil those wenches. But it's coming on,
That storm he said was brewing, sure enough, —
Well! what of that? To think what idle stuff
Will come into one's head! And here with you
I stop, as if I'd nothing else to do — And they'll come home, drowned rats. I must be gone To get dry things, and set the kettle on." His day's work done, three mortal miles, and more.

Lay between Ambrose and his cottage-door. A weary way, God wot, for weary wight! But yet far off the curling smoke in sight From his own chimney, and his heart felt light. How pleasantly the humble homestead stood, Down the green lane, by sheltering Shirley wood! How sweet the wafting of the evening breeze, In spring-time, from his two old cherry-trees, Sheeted with blossom! And in hot July, From the brown moor-track, shadowless and dry, How grateful the cool covert to regain Of his own avenue, — that shady lane, With the white cottage, in a slanting glow Of sunset glory, gleaming bright below, And jasmine porch, his rustic portico!

With what a thankful gladness in his face, (Silent heart-homage, - plant of special grace ') At the lane's entrance, slackening oft his pace, Would Ambrose send a loving look before, Conceiting the caged blackbard at the door; The very blackbird strained its little throat, In welcome, with a more rejoicing note; And honest Tinker, dog of doubtful breed, All bristle, back, and tail, but "good at need," Pleasant his greeting to the accustomed ear; But of all welcomes pleasantest, most dear, The ringing voices, like sweet silver bells, Of his two little ones How fondly swells The father's heart, as, dancing up the lane, Each clasps a hand in her small hand again, And each must tell her tale and "say her say," Impeding as she leads with sweet delay (Childhood's blest thoughtlessness ') his onward

And when the winter day closed in so fast;
Scarce for his task would dreary daylight last;
And in all weathers — driving sleet and snow —
Home by that bare, bleak moor-track must he go, Darkling and lonely. O, the blessed sight
(His polestar) of that little twinkling light
From one small window, through the leafless

Glimmering so fitfully; no eye but his Had spied it so far off. And sure was he,
Entering the lane, a steadier beam to see,
Ruddy and broad as peat-fed hearth could pour,
Streaming to meet him from the open door.
Then, though the blackbird's welcome was unheard,—

Silenced by winter, — note of summer bird Still hailed him from no mortal fowl alive, But from the cuckoo clock just striking five. And Tinker's ear and Tinker's nose were keen,— Off started he, and then a form was seen Darkening the doorway; and a smaller sprite,
And then another, peered into the night,
Ready to follow free on Tinker's track,
But for the mother's hand that held her back:
And yet a moment — a few steps — and there,
Pulled o'er the threshold by that eager pair,
He sits by his own hearth, in his own chair;
Tinker takes post beside with eyes that say,
"Master, we've done our business for the day."
The kettle sings, the cat in chorus purrs,
The busy housewife with her tea-things stirs;
The door's made fast, the old stuff curtain
drawn:

How the hail clatters! Let it clatter on! How the wind raves and rattles! What cares he? Safe housed and warm beneath his own roof-tree, With a wee lassie prattling on each knee.

Such was the hour — hour sacred and apart — Warmed in expectancy the poor man's heart. Summer and winter, as his toil he plied, To him and his the literal doom applied, Pronounced on Adam. But the bread was sweet So earned, for such dear mouths. The weary feet, Hope-shod, stept lightly on the homeward way; So specially it fared with Ambrose Gray That time I tell of. He had worked all day At a great clearing; vigorous stroke on stroke Striking, till, when he stopt, his back seemed broke,

And the strong arms dropt nerveless. What of that?

There was a treasure hidden in his hat, —
A plaything for the young ones. He had found
A dormouse nest; the living ball coiled round
For its long winter sleep; and all his thought,
As he trudged stoutly homeward, was of naught
But the glad wonderment in Jenny's eyes,
And graver Lizzy's quieter surprise,
When he should yield, by guess and kiss and Hard won, the frozen captive to their care.

"T was a wild evening, -- wild and rough. "I knew,"

Thought Ambrose, "those unlucky gulls spoke true, —

And Gaffer Chewton never growls for naught, —
I should be mortal 'mazed now if I thought
My little maids were not safe housed before That blinding hail-storm, — ay, this hour and more, —

Unless by that old crazy bit of board, They've not passed dry-foot over Shallow ford, That I'll be bound for, — swollen as it must

Well! if my mistress had been ruled by me — *But, checking the half-thought as heresy,

He looked out for the Home Star. There it | Mocked by the sobbing gust. Down, quick as shone,

And with a gladdened heart he hastened on.

He's in the lane again, — and there below,
Streams from the open doorway that red glow,
Which warms him but to look at. For his prize
Cautious he feels, — all safe and snug it lies. — "Down, Tinker! down, old boy! — not quite so
free. —

The thing thou sniffest is no game for thee.—
But what's the meaning? no lookout to-night!
No living soul astir! Pray God, all's right!
Who's flittering round the peat-stack in such weather?

Mother!" you might have felled him with a feather.

When the short answer to his loud "Hillo!"

And hurried question, "Are they come?" was
"No."

To throw his tools down, hastily unhook The old cracked lantern from its dusty nook, And, while he lit it, speak a cheering word, That almost choked him, and was scarcely heard, Was but a moment's act, and he was gone To where a fearful foresight led him on. Passing a neighbor's cottage in his way, — Mark Fenton's, - him he took with short delay To bear him company, - for who could say What need might be ? They struck into the track The children should have taken coming back From school that day; and many a call and shout Into the pitchy darkness they sent out, And, by the lantern light, peered all about, In every roadside thicket, hole, and nook, Till suddenly - as nearing now the brook -Something brushed past them. That was Tinker's bark, -

Unheeded, he had followed in the dark,
Close at his master's heels, but, swift as light,
Darted before them now. "Be sure he's right,— He's on the track," cried Ambrose. "Hold the light

Low down, — he 's making for the water. Hark 'I know that whine, — the old dog 's found them, Mark."

So speaking, breathlessly he hurried on Toward the old crazy foot-bridge. It was gone:
And all his dull contracted light could show
Was the black youd and dark swollen stream below.
"Yet there's life somewhere, — more than Tinker's whine, —

That s sure," said Mark. "So, let the lantern

Down yonder. There 's the dog, - and, hark !"
"O dear!"

And a low sob came faintly on the ear,

thought,
Into the stream leapt Ambrose, where he caught
Fast hold of something,—a dark huddled heap,—
Half in the water, where 't was scarce knee-deep
For a tall man, and half above it, propped
By some old ragged side-piles, that had stopt
Endways the broken plank, when it gave way

With the two little ones that luckless day!
"My babes!—my lambkins!" was the father's

One little voice made answer. "Here am 1!"
'T was Lizzy's. There she crouched with face as white,

More ghastly by the flickering lantern-light
Than sheeted corpse. The pale blue hips drawn tight.

Wide parted, showing all the pearly teeth,
And eyes on some dark object underneath,
Washed by the turbid water, fixed as stone, —
One arm and hand stretched out, and rigid grown.

Grasping, as in the death-gripe, Jenny's frock.
There she lay drowned. Could he sustain that shock,

The doting father? Where's the unriven rock Can bide such blasting in its flintiest part. As that soft sentient thing, — the human heart?

They lifted her from out her watery bed, — Its covering gone, the lovely little head Hung like a broken snowdrop all aside; And one small hand, — the mother's shawl was tred,

Leaving that free, about the child's small form,
As was her last injunction—"fast and warm"—
Too well obeyed,—too fast! A fatal hold Affording to the scrag by a thick fold
That caught and punned her in the river's bed,
While through the reckless water overhead
Her life-breath bubbled up.

"She might have lived, Struggling like Lizzy," was the thought that rived

The wretched mother's heart, when she knew all, "But for my foolishness about that shawl! And Master would have kept them back the day, But I was wilful, —driving them away In such wild weather!"

Thus the tortured heart Unnaturally against itself takes part,
Driving the sharp edge deeper of a woe
Too deep already. They had raised her now,
And parting the wet ringlets from her brow,
To that, and the cold cheek, and lips as cold,
The father glued his warm ones, ere they rolled
Once more the fatal shawl—her winding-sheet—
About the precious clay. One heart still beat,

Warmed by his heart's blood. To his only child | There were some that ran, and some that leapt He turned him, but her piteous moaning mild Pierced him afresh, - and now she knew him not. "Mother!" she murmured, "who says I forgot? Mother ! indeed, indeed, I kept fast hold, And tied the shawl quite close—she can't be cold— But she won't move — we slipt — I don't know

But I held on - and I 'm so weary now -And it's so dark and cold! O dear! O dear! -And she won't move; — if daddy was but here!"

Poor lamb! she wandered in her mind, 't was clear ;

But soon the piteous murmur died away, And quiet in her father's arms she lay, -They their dead burden had resigned, to take The living, so near lost. For her dear sake, And one at home, he armed himself to bear His misery like a man, - with tender care Doffing his coat her shivering form to fold (His neighbor bearing that which felt no cold), He clasped her close, and so, with little said, Homeward they bore the living and the dead.

rrom Ambrose Gray's poor cottage all that night Shone fitfully a little shifting light, Above, below, — for all were watchers there, Save one sound sleeper. Her, parental care, Parental watchfulness, availed not now. But in the young survivor's throbbing brow, And wandering eyes, delirious fever burned, And all night long from side to side she turned, Piteously plaining like a wounded dove, With now and then the murinur, "She won't move."

And lo! when morning, as in mockery, bright Shone on that pillow, passing strange the sight, -That young head's raven hair was streaked with white!

No idle fiction this. Such things have been, We know. And now I tell what I have seen.

Life struggled long with death in that small frame, Bat it was strong, and conquered. All became As it had been with the poor family, -All, saving that which nevermore might be: I here was an empty place, — they were but three. CAROLINE BOWLES SOUTHEY

THE DREAM OF EUGENE ARAM.

"I was in the prime of summer time, An evening calm and cool, And four-and-twenty happy boys Came bounding out of school;

Like troutlets in a pool.

Away they sped with gamesome minds And souls untouched by sin; To a level mead they came, and there They drave the wickets in: Pleasantly shone the setting sun Over the town of Lynn.

Like sportive deer they coursed about, And shouted as they ran, Turning to mirth all things of earth As only boyhood can; But the usher sat remote from all, A melancholy man!

His hat was off, his vest apart, To catch heaven's blessèd breeze; For a burning thought was in his brow, And his bosom ill at ease; So he leaned his head on his hands, and read The book between his knees.

Leaf after leaf he turned it o'er, Not ever glanced aside, -For the peace of his soul he read that book In the golden eventide; Much study had made him very lean, And pale, and leaden-eyed.

At last he shut the ponderous tome; With a fast and fervent grasp He strained the dusky covers close, And fixed the brazen hasp: "O God ! could I so close my mind, And clasp it with a clasp!"

Then leaping on his feet upright, Some moody turns he took, -Now up the mead, then down the mead, And past a shady nook, -And, lo! he saw a little boy That pored upon a book.

"My gentle lad, what is 't you read, -Romance or fairy fable? Or is it some historic page, Of kings and crowns unstable ?" The young boy gave an upward glance, -"It is 'The Death of Abel."

The usher took six hasty strides, As smit with sudden pain, -Six hasty strides beyond the place, Then slowly back again; And down he sat beside the lad. And talked with him of Cain;

And, long since then, of bloody men,
Whose deeds tradition saves;
And lonely folk cut off unseen,
And hid in sudden graves;
And horrid stabs, in groves forlorn;
And murders done in caves;

And how the sprites of injured men Shriek upward from the sod; Ay, how the ghostly hand will point To show the burial clod; And unknown facts of guilty acts Are seen in dreams from God.

He told how murderers walk the earth Beneath the curse of Cain, — With crimson clouds before their eyes, And flames about their brain; For blood has left upon their souls Its everlasting stain!

"And well," quoth he, "I know for truth
Their pangs must be extreme —
Woe, woe, unutterable woe! —
Who spill life's sacred stream.
For why? Methought, last night I wrought
A murder, in a dream!

"One that had never done me wrong, —
A feeble man and old;
I led him to a lonely field, —
The moon shone clear and cold:
Now here, said I, this man shall die,
And I will have his gold!

"Two sudden blows with a ragged stick,
And one with a heavy stone,
One hurried gash with a hasty knife, —
And then the deed was done:
There was nothing lying at my feet
But lifeless flesh and bone!

"Nothing but lifeless flesh and bone, That could not do me ill; And yet I feared him all the more For lying there so still: There was a manhood in his look That murder could not kill!

"And, lo! the universal air Seemed lit with ghastly flame, — Ten thousand thousand dreadful eyes Were looking down in blame; I took the dead man by his hand, And called upon his name.

"O God! it made me quake to see Such sense within the slain; But, when I touched the lifeless clay,
The blood gushed out amain!
For every clot a burning spot
Was scorching in my brain!

"My head was like an ardent coal, My heart as solid ice; My wretched, wretched soul, I knew, Was at the Devil's price. A dozen times I groaned, — the dead Had never groaned but twice.

"And now, from forth the frowning sky,
From the heaven's topmost height,
I heard a voice, — the awful voice
Of the blood-avenging sprite:

'Thou guilty man! take up thy dead,
And hide it from my sight!'

"And I took the dreary body up,
And cast it in a stream, —
The sluggish water black as ink,
The depth was so extreme: —
My gentle boy, remember, this
Is nothing but a dream!

"Down went the corse with a hollow plunge,
And vanished in the pool;
Anon I cleansed my bloody hands,
And washed my forehead cool,
And sat among the urchins young,
That evening, in the school.

"O Heaven! to think of their white souls,
And mme so black and grim!
I could not share in childish prayer,
Nor join in evening hymn;
Like a devil of the pit I seemed,
Mid holy cherubim!

"And Peace went with them, one and all, And each calm pillow spread; But Guilt was my grim chamberlain, That lighted me to bed, And drew my midnight curtains round With fingers bloody red!

"All night I lay in agony,
In anguish dark and deep;
My fevered eyes I dared not close,
But stared aghast at Sleep;
For Sin had rendered unto her
The keys of hell to keep!

"All night I lay in agony,
From weary chime to chime;
With one besetting horrid hint
That racked me all the time,—

A mighty yearning, like the first Fierce impulse unto crime, -

"One stern tyrannic thought, that made All other thoughts its slave! Stronger and stronger every pulse Did that temptation crave, -Still urging me to go and see The dead man in his grave !

"Heavily I rose up, as soon As light was in the sky, And sought the black accursed pool With a wild, misgiving eye; And I saw the dead in the river-bed, For the faithless stream was dry.

"Merrily rose the lark, and shook The dew-drop from its wing; But I never marked its morning flight, I never heard it sing, For I was stooping once again Under the horrid thing.

"With breathless speed, like a soul in chase, I took him up and ran; There was no time to dig a grave Before the day began, In a lonesome wood, with heaps of leaves, I hid the murdered man!

"And all that day I read in school, But my thought was otherwhere; As soon as the midday task was done, In secret I was there, — And a mighty wind had swept the leaves, And still the corse was bare!

"Then down I cast me on my face, And first began to weep, For I knew my secret then was one That earth refused to keep, -Or land or sea, though he should be Ten thousand fathoms deep.

"So wills the fierce avenging sprite, Till blood for blood atones! Av. though he's buried in a cave. And trodden down with stones, And years have rotted off his flesh, — The world shall see his bones!

"O God! that horrid, horrid dream Besets me now awake! Again — again, with dizzy brain, The human life I take; And my red right hand grows raging hot, Like Cranmer's at the stake.

"And still no peace for the restless clay Will wave or mould allow; The horrid thing pursues my soul, -It stands before me now! The fearful boy looked up, and saw Huge drops upon his brow.

That very night, while gentle sleep The urchin's eyelids kissed, Two stern-faced men set out from Lynn Through the cold and heavy mist; And Eugene Aram walked between, With gyves upon his wrist.

THOMAS HOOD.

RAMON.

REFUGIO MINE, NORTHERN MEXICO.

Drunk and senseless in his place, Prone and sprawling on his face, More like brute than any man Alive or dead, --By his great pump out of gear. Lay the peon engineer, Waking only just to hear, Overhead, Angry tones that called his name, Oaths and cries of bitter blame, -Woke to hear all this, and waking, turned and "To the man who'll bring to me," Cried Intendant Harry Lee, -Harry Lee, the English foreman of the mine, -"Bring the sot alive or dead, I will give to him," he said, "Fifteen hundred pesos down, Just to set the rascal's crown Underneath this heel of mine: Since but death Deserves the man whose deed. Be it vice or want of heed, Stops the pumps that give us breath, -Stops the pumps that suck the death From the poisoned lower levels of the mine!"

No one answered, for a cry From the shaft rose up on high; And shuffling, scrambling, tumbling from below, Came the miners each, the bolder Mounting on the weaker's shoulder. Grappling, clinging to their hold or Letting go, As the weaker gasped and fell From the ladder to the well. -To the poisoned pit of hell

Down below!

Cried the foreman, Harry Lee, —
Harry Lee, the English foreman of the mine, —
"Brings them out and sets them free,
I will give that man," said he,
"Twice that sum, who with a rope
Face to face with death shall cope:
Let him come who dares to hope!"
"Hold your peace!" some one replied,
Standing by the foreman's side;
"There has one already gone, whoe'er he be!"

"To the man who sets them free,'

Then they held their breath with awe,
Pulling on the rope, and saw
Fainting figures reappear,
On the black rope swinging clear,
Fastened by some skilful hand from below;
Till a score the level gained,
And but one alone remained,—
He the hero and the last,
He whose skilful hand made fast
The long line that brought them back to hope and cheer!

Haggard, gasping, down dropped he
At the feet of Harry Lee, —
Harry Lee, the English foreman of the mine;
"I have come," he gasped, "to claim
Both rewards, Señor, — my name
Is Ramon!
I'm the drunken engineer, —
I'm the coward, Señor — "Here
He fell over, by that sign
Dead as stone!

BRET HARTE.

REVELRY OF THE DYING.

[Supposed to be written in India, while the plague was raging, and playing havoc among the British residents and troops stationed there. This has been attributed to Alfred Domett and to Bartholomew Dowling, but was written by neither of them. It first appeared in the New York .11bion, but the author is absolutely unknown]

We meet 'neath the sounding rafter,
And the walls around are bare;
As they shout to our peals of laughter,
It seems that the dead are there.
But stand to your glasses, steady!
We drink to our connades' eyes;
Quaff a cup to the dead already —
And hurrah for the next that dies!

Not here are the goblets glowing,
Not here is the vintage sweet;
'T is cold, as our hearts are growing,
And dark as the doom we meet.

But stand to your glasses, steady!
And soon shall our pulses rise;
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next that dies!

Not a sigh for the lot that darkles,

Not a tear for the friends that sink;

We'll fall, midst the wine-cup's sparkles,

As mute as the wine we drink.

So stand to your glasses, steady!

'T is this that the respite buys;

One cup to the dead already—

Hurrah for the next that dies!

Time was when we frowned at others;
We thought we were wiser then;
Ha! ha! let those think of their mothers,
Who hope to see them again.
No! stand to your glasses, steady!
The thoughtless are here the wise;
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next that dies!

There's many a hand that's shaking,
There's many a cheek that's sunk;
But soon, though our hearts are breaking,
They'll burn with the wine we've drunk
So stand to your glasses, steady!
'T is here the revival lies;
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next that dies!

There's a mist on the glass congealing,
'T is the hurricane's fiery breath;
And thus does the warmth of feeling
Turn ice in the grasp of Death.
Ho! stand to your glasses, steady!
For a moment the vapor flies;
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next that dies!

Who dreads to the dust returning?
Who shrinks from the sable shore,
Where the high and haughty yearning
Of the soul shall sting no more!
Ho! stand to your glasses, steady!
The world is a world of lies;
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next that dies!

Cut off from the land that bore us,
Betrayed by the land we find,
Where the brightest have gone before us,
And the dullest remain behind —
Stand, stand to your glasses, steady!
"T is all we have left to prize;
A cup to the dead already —
And hurrah for the next that dies!

FRAGMENTS.

THE FIRST TRAGEDY.

So saying, her rash hand in evil hour Forth reaching to the fruit, she plucked, she eat : Earth felt the wound; and Nature from her seat, Sighing through all her works, gave signs of woe, That all was lost.

Paradise Lost, Book ix.

MILTON

He scrupled not to eat Against his better knowledge, not deceived, But fondly overcome with female charm. Earth trembled from her entrails, as again In pangs, and Nature gave a second groan. Paradise Lost, Book ix

Death

Granned horrible a ghastly smile, to hear His famine should be filled, and blessed his maw Destined to that good hour.

Paradise Lost, Book 11.

MILTON

EFFECTS OF CRIME AND GRIEF.

The stings of Falsehood those shall try, And hard Unkindness' altered eye, That mocks the tear it forced to flow: And keen Remorse with blood defiled. And moody Madness laughing wild

Amid severest woe On a Distant Prospect of Eton College

T GRAY

My heart is as an anvil unto sorrow, Which beats upon it like a Cyclop's hammer, And with the noise turns up my giddy brain And makes me frantic !

Edward II

C MARLOWE

Every sense Had been o'erstrung by pangs intense; And each frail fibre of her brain (As bowstrings, when relaxed by rain, The erring arrow launch aside) Sent forth her thoughts all wild and wide.

I am not mad; - I would to heaven I were! For then, 't is like I should forget myself: O, if I could, what grief I should forget! King John, Act in, Sc. 4. SHAKFSPEARE

PORTENTS AND FEARS.

Speak! Cæsar is turned to hear. SOOTHSAYER. Beware the Ides of March! Juhus Casar, Act i. Sc. 2. SHAKFSPBARE

Fierce fiery warriors fought upon the clouds. In ranks and squadrons, and right form of war, Which drizzled blood upon the Capitol. O Cæsar! these things are beyond all use, And I do fear them.

When beggars die there are no comets seen ; The heavens themselves blaze forth the death of princes.

Julius Casar, Act n. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

Danger knows full well That Cæsar is more dangerous than he. We are two lions littered in one day, And I the elder and more terrible. SHAKESPEARE

Tulius Casar, Act ii Sc 2

What is danger More than the weakness of our apprehensions? A poor cold part o' th' blood; who takes it hold of? Cowards and wicked livers . valuant minds Were made the masters of it.

BEAUMONT and FLETCHER

CESAR. The Ides of March are come. SOOTHSAYER. Ay, Cæsar; but not gone. Julius Casar, Act in Sc. 1 SHAKESPEARE.

Eyes, look your last . Arms, take your last embrace; and lips, O! you,

The doors of breath, seal with a righteous kiss A dateless bargain to engrossing death. Romeo and Juliet, Act v. Sc 3.

SHAKESPEARE.

THE KING'S ENEMY.

Thou art a traitor. -

Off with his head ! -- now by Saint Paul I swear I will not dine until I see the same.

King Richard III , Act iii Sc 4.

Off with his head! so much for Buckingham! Shakespeare's Richard III (Attered), Activ. Sc. 3

REVENCE.

And if we do but watch the hour, There never yet was human power Which could evade, if unforgiven, The patient search and vigil long Of him who treasures up a wrong Макерра.

BYRON.

I will feed fat the ancient grudge I bear him. SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venuce, Act 1 Sc 2

If it will feed nothing else, it will feed my revenge.

Merchant of Venuce, Act in Sc 1

SHAKESPEARE

Vengeance to God alone belongs ; But when I think on all my wrongs, My blood is liquid flame.

Marmion, Cant vi.

SCOTT.

FORETHOUGHT OF MURDER.

There shall be done

A deed of dreadful note. Macheth, Ad III. Sc. a.

SHAKESPEARE.

Between the acting of a dreadful thing, And the first motion, all the interim is Like a phantasma, or a hideous dream : The Genius, and the mortal instruments, Are then in council; and the state of man, Like to a little kingdom, suffers then The nature of an insurrection.

Yulsus Casar, Act i. Sc 1.

SHAKESPEARE.

If it were done, when 't is done, then 't were well It were done quickly: if the assassination Could trammel up the consequence, and catch With his surcease, success; that but this blow Might be the be-all and the end-all here, But here, upon this bank and shoal of time, -We'd jump the life to come.

Besides, this Duncan Hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been So clear in his great office, that his virtues Will plead like angels, trumpet-tongued, against The deep damnation of his taking-off.

Macbeth, Act 1. Sc 7.

Put out the light, and then — put out the light. If I quench thee, thou flaming minister, I can again thy former light restore, Should I repent me; but once put out thy light, Thou cunning'st pattern of excelling nature. I know not where is that Promethean heat. That can thy light relume. When I have plucked

I cannot give it vital growth again, It needs must wither.

Othello. Act v. Sc. 2

SHAKESPEARE.

Stop up th' access and passage to remorse, That no compunctious visitings of nature Shake my fell purpose, nor keep peace between Th' effect and it.

Macbeth, Act | Sc. s.

SHAKESPEARE.

Let's kill him boldly, but not wrathfully; Let's carve him as a dish fit for the gods, Not hew him as a carcase fit for hounds. Yuitus Casar, Act il. Sc. 1.

AFTERWARDS.

O, my offence is rank, it smells to heaven; It hath the primal eliest curse upon 't, A brother's murder.

Hamlet, Act III. Sc. 9.

SHAKESPEARE.

O horror! horror! Tongue nor heart Cannot conceive nor name thee.

Confusion now hath made his master-piece. Most sacrilegious murder hath broke ope The Lord's anointed temple, and stole thence The life o' the building.

Macbeth, Act li. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPHARE

Blood, though it sleep a time, yet never dies: The gods on murderers fix revengeful eyes. Widow's Tears.

Foul deeds will rise.

Though all the earth o'erwhelm them, to men's

Hamlet, Act L. Sc. 2.

SHAKESPEARE.

O blisful God, that art so just and trewe! Lo, howe that thou biwreyest mordre alway! Mordre wol out, that se we day by day. The Nonnes Preestes Tale. CHAUCER.

For murder, though it have no tongue, will speak With most miraculous organ.

Hamlet, Act 11. Sc. 1

SHAKESPEARE.

THE HARDENED CRIMINAL

I have almost forgot the taste of fear. The time has been, my senses would have quailed To hear a night-shriek; and my fell of hair Would at a dismal treatise rouse, and stir, As life were in 't. I have supped full with hor-

Direness, familiar to my slaughterous thoughts. Cannot once start me.

Macbeth, Act v. Sc 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

SUICIDE.

All mankind Is one of these two cowards; Either to wish to die

When he should live, or live when he should die. The Blind Lady. SIR R. HOWARD.

Our enemies have beat us to the hin: It is more worthy to leap in ourselves Than tarry till they push us.

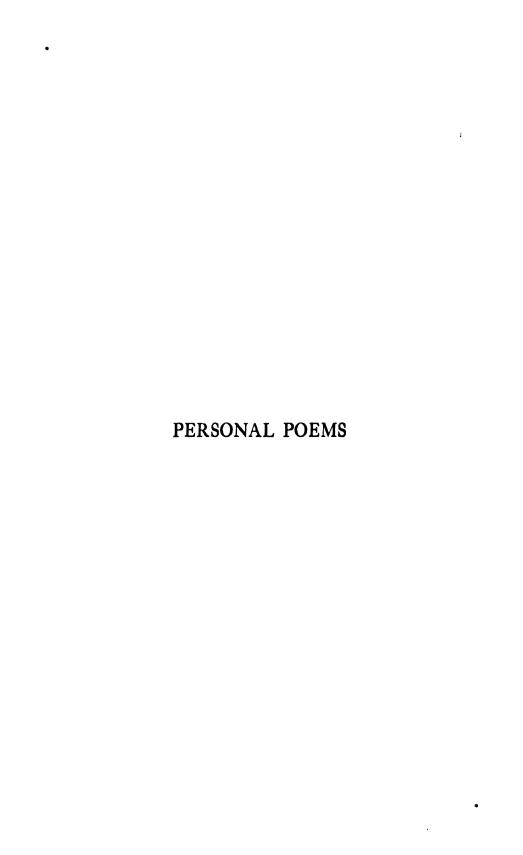

Julius Casar, Ad v. Sc. 5.

SHAKESPEARE.

That kills himself t' avoid misery, fears it, And at the best shows but a bastard valor: This life's a fort committed to my trust, Which I must not yield up, till it be forced; Nor will I: he's not valiant that dares die, But he that boldly bears calamity.

The Maid of Honor.

P. MASSINGER.

Spitaph.

Shere rests his Slead upon the Lap of larth of Youth to Gortune & to Same unknown:

Sair Science from I not on his humble Birth,

And Melancholy mark I him for her own.

Large was his Bounty, & his Soul sincere;

Sleav'h did a Recompense as largely send:

The gave to Mistry all he had, a Sear,

The gain'd from obleavin ('twas all he wish'd) a Triend

No farther seek his Merits to disclose,

Or draw his Trailises from their dread oblac.

There they alike in trembling slope repose)

The Bosom of his Father, & his Jod.

Lyray.

And so omeh gone that year that year the even flow of life shows and andy on;

ABATON

Hark! It the tolling bells
In echoes deeps and slow.
Mile on the bruge our barner floats
Drafted in the weeds of wee.

L. Hurthy Signerer

PERSONAL POEMS.

PRAXITELES.

FROM THE GREEK

VENUS (loquitur). Paris, Anchises, and Adonis
— three,
Three only, did me ever naked see;
But this Praysteles—when, where, did he?

DIRGE OF ALARIC THE VISIGOTH.

[Alaric stormed and spoiled the city of Rome, and was afterwards buried in the channel of the river Bosentins the water of which had been diverted from its course that the body might be interred.]

When I am dead, no pageant train
Shall waste their sorrows at my bier,
Nor worthless pomp of homage vain
Stain it with hypocritic tear;
For I will die as I did live,
Nor take the boon I cannot give.

Ye shall not raise a marble bust
Upon the spot where I repose;
Ye shall not fawn before my dust,
In hollow circumstance of woes;
Nor sculptured clay, with lying breath,
Insult the clay that moulds beneath.

Ye shall not pile with servile toil
Your monuments upon my breast,
Nor yet within the common soil
Lay down the wreck of power to rest;
Where man can boast that he has trod
On him that was "the scourge of God."

But ye the mountain-stream shall turn,
And lay its secret channel bare
And hollow, for your sovereign's urn
A resting-place forever there
Then bid its everlasting springs
Flow back upon the king of kings;
And never be the secret said,
Until the deep give up his dead.

My gold and silver ye shall fling
Back to the clods that gave them birth;
The captured crowns of many a king,
The ransom of a conquered earth;
For e'en though dead will I control
The trophies of the capitol.

But when, beneath the mountain-tide, Ye've laid your monarch down to rot, Ye shall not rear upon its side
Pillar or mound to mark the spot;
For long enough the world has shook
Beneath the terrors of my look,
And now, that I have run my race,
The astonished realms shall rest a space.

My course was like a river deep,
And from the northern hills I burst,
Across the world in wrath to sweep,
And where I went the spot was cursed
Nor blade of grass again was seen
Where Alaric and his hosts had been.

See how their haughty barriers fail
Beneath the terror of the Goth,
Their iron-breasted legions quail
Before my ruthless sabaoth,
And low the queen of empires kneels,
And grovels at my chariot-wheels.

Not for myself did 1 ascend
In judgment my trumphal car;
'T was God alone, on high, did send
The avenging Scythian to the wai,
To shake abroad, with iron hand,
The appointed scourge of his command.

With iron hand that scourge I reared
O'er guilty king and guilty realm;
Destruction was the ship I steered,
And Vengeance sat upon the helm,
When, launched in fury on the flood,
I ploughed my way through seas of blood,
And, in the stream their hearts had spilt,
Washed out the long arrears of guilt.

Across the everlasting Alp I poured the torrent of my powers, And feeble Cæsars shrieked for help, In vain, within their seven-hilled towers! I quenched in blood the brightest gem That glittered in their diadem, And struck a darker, deeper dye

In the purple of their majesty, And bade my Northern banners shine Upon the conquered Palatine.

I go to Him from whom I came; But never yet shall set the sun Of glory that adorns my name; And Roman hearts shall long be sick, When men shall think of Alaric.

My course is run, my errand done;

My course is run, my errand done; But darker ministers of fate, Impatient, round the eternal throne, And in the caves of vengeance, wait ; And soon mankind shall blench away Before the name of Attila.

EDWARD EVERETT

THE COMPLEYNTE OF CHAUCER TO HIS PURSE.*

To you, my purse, and to noon other wight Compleyn I, for ye be my lady dere! I am so sorry now that ye been lyght, For certes, but-yf ye make me hevy chere, Me were as leaf be layde upon my bere, For whiche unto your mercy thus I crye, -Beeth hevy ageyne, or ellès mote I dye!

Now voucheth sauf this day, or it be nyghte, That I of you the blissful soune may here, Or see your colour lyke the sonne bryghte. That of yelownesse hadde never pere. Ye be my lyfe! ye be myn hertys stere!† Quene of comfort and good companye! Beth hevy ageyne, or elles mote I dye.

Now, purse, that ben to me my lyves lyght And saveour, as down in this worlde here, Oute of this toune helps me thurgh your myght.

" From this unique petition," says Mr. Gilman in his "Riverside "Chaucer, "there seems to have resulted an additional pension of forty marks a year, on the strength of which Chaucer took a lease of a house in the garden of St. Mary's Chapel, Westminster, for of a house in the garden of the many a chapter, the term shillings fifty-three years, at an annual rent of two pounds thirteen shillings to be void on the poet's death." So that the practical results of this poetical plaint show that Chaucer well described one of his own characteristics in his description of the MARCHANT, among his Canterbury Prigrams, -

"This worthy man ful wel his wit bisette [used]."

Syn that ye wole not ben my tresorere; For I am shave as nye as is a frere. But I praye unto your curtesye Beth hevy ageyn, or elles moote I dye!

L'ENVOYE DE CHAUCER.

O conquerour of Brutes Albyoun,* Whiche that by lygne and free eleccioun Been verray Kynge, + this song to you I sende. And ye that mowen ‡ alle myn harme amende, Have mynde upon my supplicacioun!

GEOFFREY CHAUCER.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY.

FROM "AN ELEGY ON A FRIEND'S PASSION FOR HIS ASTROPHILL.

WITHIN these woods of Arcadie He chiefe delight and pleasure tooke, And on the mountaine Parthenie, Upon the chrystall liquid brooke, The Muses met him ev'ry day, That taught him sing, to write, and say.

When he descended downe to the mount. His personage seemed most divine, A thousand graces one might count Upon his lovely, cheerfull eine; To heare him speake and sweetly smile.

You were in Paradise the while. A sweet attractive kinde of grace,

A full assurance given by lookes, Continuall comfort in a face, The lineaments of Gospell bookes; I trowe that countenance cannot lie, Whose thoughts are legible in the eie.

Was never eie did see that face, Was never eare did heare that tong. Was never minde did minde his grace, That ever thought the travell long; But eies, and eares, and ev'ry thought, Were with his sweete perfections caught. MATTHEW ROYDEN.

ANNE HATHAWAY.

TO THE IDOL OF MY EYE AND DELIGHT OF MY HEART. ANNE HATHAWAY.

Would ye be taught, ye feathered throng, With love's sweet notes to grace your song, To pierce the heart with thrilling lay, Listen to mine Anne Hathaway!

The Albion of Brutus, a descendant of Eneas. King Henry IV. seems to be meant. I may.

f guide.

She hath a way to sing so clear, Phœbus might wondering stop to hear. To melt the sad, make blithe the gay, And nature charm, Anne hath a way; She hath a way.

Anne Hathaway ; To breathe delight Anne hath a way.

When Envy's breath and rancorous tooth Do soil and bite fair worth and truth, And merit to distress betray, To soothe the heart Anne hath a way; She hath a way to chase despair, To heal all grief, to cure all care, Turn foulest night to fairest day. Thou know'st, fond heart, Anne hath a way;

She hath a way. Anne Hathaway ; To make grief bliss, Anne hath a way.

Talk not of gems, the orient list, The diamond, topaz, amethyst, The emerald mild, the ruby gay; Talk of my gem, Anne Hathaway! She hath a way, with her bright eye, Their various lustres to defy, -The jewels she, and the foil they, So sweet to look Anne hath a way;

She hath a way, Anne Hathaway : To shame bright gems, Anne hath a way.

But were it to my fancy given To rate her charms, I'd call them heaven; For, though a mortal made of clay, Angels must love Anne Hathaway; She hath a way so to control, To rapture, the imprisoned soul, And sweetest heaven on earth display, That to be heaven Anne hath a way;

Anne Hathaway; To be heaven's self, Anne hath a way.

She hath a way,

ANONYMOUS *

ON THE PORTRAIT + OF SHAKESPEARE.

This figure, that thou here seest put, It was for gentle Shakespeare cut; Wherein the Graver had a strife With Nature to outdo the life: O, could he but have drawn his wit As well in brass, as he hath hit

The engraving by Martin Droeshout.

His face; the Print would then surpass All that was ever writ in brass. But since he cannot, Reader, look Not at his picture, but his book.

BEN JONSON.

SHAKESPEARE.

FROM "PROLOGUE" SPOKEN BY MR. GARRICK AT THE OPEN-ING OF THE THEATRE IN DRURY LANE, IN 1747.

WHEN Learning's triumph o'er her barbarous

First reared the stage, immortal Shakespeare rose: Each change of many-colored life he drew. Exhausted worlds, and then imagined new: Existence saw him spurn her bounded reign, And panting Time toiled after him in vain : His powerful strokes presiding Truth impressed, And unresisted Passion stormed the breast.

DR SAMUEL JOHNSON.

TO THE MEMORY OF MY BELOVED MASTER, WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, AND WHAT HE HATH LEFT US.

To draw no envy, Shakespeare, on thy name, Am I thus ample to thy book and fame; While I confess thy writings to be such As neither man nor Muse can praise too much. 'T is true, and all men's suffrage. But these ways Were not the paths I meant unto thy praise: For silliest ignorance on these would light, Which, when it sounds at best, but echoes right; Or blind affection, which doth ne'er advance The truth, but gropes, and urges all by chance; Or crafty malice might pretend this praise, And think to ruin, where it seemed to raise.

But thou art proof against them, and, indeed, Above the ill fortune of them, or the need. I therefore will begin: Soul of the age! The applause, delight, the wonder of our stage ! My Shakespeare, rise! I will not lodge thee by Chaucer, or Spenser, or bid Beaumont lie A little further off, to make thee room : Thou art a monument without a tomb, And art alive still, while thy book doth live, And we have wits to read, and praise to give. That I not mix thee so, my brain excuses, I mean with great but disproportioned Muses: For if I thought my judgment were of years, I should commit thee surely with thy peers, And tell how far thou didst our Lyly outshine, Or sporting Kyd or Marlowe's mighty line. And though thou had small Latin and less Greek, From thence to honour thee I will not seek For names; but call forth thundering Eschylus. Euripides, and Sophocles to us,

^{*} This poem has sometimes, but without much reason, been attributed to Shakespeare.

Pacuvius, Accius, him of Cordova dead, To live again, to hear thy buskin tread, And shake a stage : or when thy socks were on, Leave thee alone for the comparison Of all, that insolent Greece or haughty Rome Sent forth, or since did from their ashes come. Triumph, my Britain, thou hast one to show, To whom all scenes of Europe homage owe. He was not of an age, but for all time! And all the Muses still were in their prime, When, like Apollo, he came forth to warm Our ears, or like a Mercury, to charm ' Nature herself was proud of his designs, And joyed to wear the dressing of his lines! Which were so richly spun, and woven so fit, As, since, she will vouchsafe no other wit. The merry Greek, tart Aristophanes, Neat Terence, witty Plautus, now not please: But antiquated and deserted lie, As they were not of nature's family. Yet must I not give nature all; thy art, My gentle Shakespeare, must enjoy a part. For though the poet's matter nature be, His art doth give the fashion; and, that he Who casts to write a living line, must sweat (Such as thine are) and strike the second heat Upon the Muses' anvil, turn the same, And himself with it, that he thinks to frame; Or for the laurel, he may gam a scorn; For a good poet's made as well as born. And such wert thou! Look how the father's face laves in his issue, even so the race Of Shakespeare's mind and manners brightly shines

In his well turned and true filed lines
In each of which he seems to shake a lance,
As brandished at the eyes of ignorance.
Sweet Swan of Avon' what a sight it were
To see thee in our water yet appear,
And make those flights upon the banks of Thames
That so did take Eliza and our James!
But stay, I see thee in the hemisphere
Advanced, and made a constellation there'
Shine forth, thou Star of Poets, and with rage,
Or influence, chide, or cheer the drooping stage
Which since thy flight from hence hath mourned like night,

And despairs day, but for thy volume's light!

BEN JONSON.

SHAKESPEARE.

THE soul of man is larger than the sky, Deeper than ocean, or the abysmal dark Of the unfathomed centre. Like that ark, Which in its sacred hold uplifted high, O'er the drowned hills, the human family, And stock reserved of every living kind,
So, in the compass of the single mind,
The seeds and pregnant forms in essence lie,
That make all worlds. Great poet, 't was thy art
To know thyself, and in thyself to be Whate'er love, hate, ambition, destiny,
Or the firm fatal purpose of the heart
Can make of man. Yet thou wert still the Serene of thought, unhurt by thy own flame.

HARTLEY COLERIDGE

AN EPITAPH ON THE ADMIRABLE DRAMATIC POET, W. SHAKESPEARE.

What needs my Shakespeare for his honored bones,
The labor of an age in piled stones?
Or that his hallowed relics should be hid

Under a star-y-pointing pyramid?

Dear son of memory, great heir of fame,
What need'st thou such weak witness of thy name?

Thou in our wonder and astonishment
Hast built thyself a livelong monument.
For whilst to the shame of slow-endeavoring art
Thy easy numbers flow, and that each heart
Hath from the leaves of thy unvalued book
Those Delphic lines with deep impression took,
Then thou our fancy of itself bereaving,
Dost make us marble with too much conceiv-

And so sepulchred in such pomp dost lie,
That kings for such a tomb would wish to die.

MILTON

TO THE MEMORY OF BEN JONSON.

THE Muse's fairest light in no dark time,
The wonder of a learned age; the line
Which none can pass! the most proportioned wit, —

To nature, the best judge of what was fit;
The deepest, plainest, highest, clearest pen;
The voice most echoed by consenting men;
The soul which answered best to all well said
By others, and which most requital made;
Tuned to the highest key of ancient Rome,
Returning all her music with his own;
In whom, with nature, study claimed a part,
And yet who to himself owed all his art:
Here lies Ben Jonson! every age will look
With sorrow here, with wonder on his book.

JOHN CLEVELAND

ODE TO BEN JONSON.

AH Ben!

Say how or when Shall we, thy guests, Meet at those lyric feasts,

Made at the Sun, The Dog, the Triple Tun; Where we such clusters had

As made us nobly wild, not mad;
And yet each verse of thine

Outdid the meat, outdid the frolic wine.

My Ben!

Or come again,

Or send to us

Thy wit's great overplus; But teach us yet

Wisely to husband it,

Lest we that talent spend:
And having once brought to an end

That precious stock, the store
Of such a wit, the world should have no more.

Robert Herrick.

BEN JONSON'S COMMONPLACE BOOK.

His learning such, no author, old or new,
Escaped his reading that deserved his view;
And such his judgment, so exact his taste,
Of what was best in books, or what books best,
That had he joined those notes his labors took From each most praised and praise-deserving book,

And could the world of that choice treasure boast, It need not care though all the rest were lost.

LUCIUS CARY (LORD FALLLAND)

EPITAPH ON THE COUNTESS OF PEMBROKE.

UNDERNEATH this sable hearse
Lies the subject of all verse,
Sydney's sister, — Pembroke's mother.
Death, ere thou hast slain another
Fair and wise and good as she,
Time shall throw a dart at thee!

Marble piles let no man raise To her name in after days; Some kind woman, born as she, Reading this, like Niobe Shall turn marble, and become Both her mourner and her tomb.

BEN JONSON.

EPITAPH ON ELIZABETH L. H.

Wouldst thou heare what man can say
In a little?— reader, stay!
Underneath this stone doth lye
As much beauty as could dye,—
Which in life did harbor give
To more vertue than doth live.
If at all she had a fault,
Leave it buried in this vault.
One name was Elizabeth,—
The other, let it sleep with death:
Fitter where it dyed to tell,
Than that it lived at all. Farewell!

BEN JONSON.

UNDER THE PORTRAIT OF JOHN MILTON.

PREFIXED TO "PARADISF LOST."

THREE Poets, in three distant ages born, Greece, Italy, and England did adorn.
The first in loftiness of thought surpassed;
The next in majesty; in both the last.
The force of nature could no further go;
To make a third, she joined the former two.

JOHN DRYDEN.

TO MILTON.

"LONDON, 1802 "

MILTON ' thou shouldst be living at this hour: England hath need of thee, she is a fen Of stagnant waters ' altai, sword, and pen, Fireside, the heroic wealth of hall and bower, Have forfeited their ancient English dower Of inward happiness. We are selfish men; Oh ' raise us up, return to us again; ' And give us manners, virtue, freedom, power. Thy soul was like a star, and dwelt apart: Thou hadst a voice whose sound was like the sea: Pure as the naked heavens, majestic, free, So didst thou travel on life's common way, In cheerful godliness; and yet thy heart The lowliest duties on herself did lay

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH

THE SONNET.

Sconn not the sonnet; critic, you have frowned, Mindless of its just honors; with this key Shakespeare unlocked his heart: the melody. Of this small lute gave ease to Petrarch's wound. A thousand times this pipe did Tasso sound; With it Camoens soothed an exile's grief; The sonnet glittered a gay myrtle leaf

Amid the cypress with which Dante crowned His visionary brow; a glow-worm lamp, It cheered mild Spenser, called from fairy-land To struggle through dark ways; and when a damp Fell round the path of Milton, in his hand The thing became a trumpet; whence he blew Soul-animating strains, — alas! too few.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

ON A BUST OF DANTE.

SEE, from this counterfeit of him Whom Arno shall remember long, How stern of lineament, how grim, The father was of Tuscan song! There but the burning sense of wrong, Perpetual care, and scorn, abide — Small friendship for the lordly throng, Distrust of all the world beside.

Faithful if this wan image be,
No dream his life was — but a fight;
Could any Beatrice see
A lover in that anchorite?
To that cold Ghibeline's gloomy sight
Who could have guessed the visions came
Of beauty, veiled with heavenly light,
In circles of eternal flame?

The lips as Cumæ's cavern close,
The cheeks with fast and sorrow thin,
The rigid front, almost morose,
But for the patient hope within,
Declare a life whose course hath been Unsullied still, though still severe,
Which, through the wavering days of sin,
Kept itself icy-chaste and clear.

Not wholly such his haggard look
When wandering once, forlorn, he strayed,
With no companion save his book,
To Corvo's hushed monastic shade;
Where, as the Benedictine laid
His palm upon the pilgrim guest,
The single boon for which he prayed
The convent's charity was rest.

Peace dwells not here — this rugged face Betrays no spirit of repose; The sullen warrior sole we trace, The marble man of many woes. Such was his mien when first arose The thought of that strange tale divine — When hell he peopled with his foes, The scourge of many a guilty line. War to the last he waged with all
The tyrant canker-worms of earth;
Baron and duke, in hold and hall,
Cursed the dark hour that gave him birth;
He used Rome's harlot for his mirth;
Plucked bare hypocrisy and crime;
But valiant souls of knightly worth
Transmitted to the rolls of time.

O time! whose verdiets mock our own,
The only righteous judge art thou;
That poor, old exile, sad and lone,
Is Latium's other Virgil now.
Before his name the nations bow;
His words are parcel of mankind,
Deep in whose hearts, as on his brow,
The marks have sunk of Dante's mind.

THOMAS WILLIAM PARSONS.

WALTON'S BOOK OF LIVES.

FROM "ECCLESIASTICAL SONNETS." PART III.

THERE are no colors in the fairest sky
So fair as these. The feather, whence the pen
Was shaped that traced the lives of these good men,

Dropped from an angel's wing. With moistened eve

We read of faith and purest charity
In statesman, priest, and humble citizen:
O, could we copy their mild virtues, then
What joy to live, what blessedness to die!
Methinks their very names shine still and bright;
Apart, — like glow-worms on a summer night;
Or lonely tapers when from far they fling
A guiding ray; or seen, like stars on high,
Satellites burning in a lucid ring
Around meek Walton's heavenly memory.
WILLIAM WORDSWORTH,

WILLIAM WORDSWORTS

CHARACTER OF THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY.

FROM "ABSALOM AND ACHITOPHEL, ' PART I.

For close designs and crooked councils fit;
Sagacious, bold, and turbulent of wit;
Restless, unfixed in principles and place;
In power unpleased, impatient of disgrace.
A fiery soul, which, working out its way,
Fretted the pygmy-body to decay,
And o'er informed the tenement of clay.
A daring pilot in extremity;
Pleased with the danger, when the waves went high

He sought the storms; but for a calm unfit, Would steer too nigh the sands to boast his wit. Great wits are sure to madness near allied, And thin partitions do their bounds divide.

JOHN DRYDEN.

ZIMRI.

[GEORGE VILLIERS, DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM, 1682.]

FROM "ABSALOM AND ACHIIOPHEL," PART I

Some of their chiefs were princes of the land, In the first rank of these did Zimm stand; A man so various, that he seemed to be Not one, but all mankind's epitome : Stiff in opinions, always in the wrong; Was everything by starts, and nothing long; But, in the course of one revolving moon, Was chymist, fiddler, statesman, and buffoon; Then all for women, painting, rhyming, drinking, Besides ten thousand freaks that died in thinking. Blest madman, who could every hour employ, With something new to wish or to enjoy! Railing and praising were his usual themes; And both, to show his judgment, in extremes : So over-violent or over-civil, That every man with him was god or devil. In squandering wealth was his peculiar art; Nothing went unrewarded but desert. Beggared by fools, whom still he found too late . He had his jest, and they had his estate. He laughed himself from court, then sought relief By forming parties, but could ne'er be chief; For, spite of him, the weight of business fell On Absalom, and wise Achitophel. Thus, wicked but in will, of means bereft, He left no faction, but of that was left.

JOHN DRYDEN

CHARLES XII.

FROM "VANITY OF HUMAN WISHES"

On what foundations stands the warrior's pride,
How just his hopes, let Swedish Charles decide:
A frame of adamant, a soul of fire,
No dangers fright him, and no labors tire;
O'er love, o'er fear, extends his wide domain,
Unconquered lord of pleasure and of pain.
No joys to him pacific sceptres yield,
War sounds the trump, he rushes to the field;
Behold surrounding kings their power combine,
And one capitulate, and one resign;
Peace courts his hand, but spreads her charms in vain;

"Think nothing gained," he cries, "till naught remain,

On Moscow's walls till Gothic standards fly, And all be mine beneath the polar sky." The march begins in military state, And nations on his eye suspended wait ; Stern famine guards the solitary coast, And winter barricades the realms of frost. He comes, nor want nor cold his course delay, Hide, blushing glory, hide Pultowa's day! The vanquished here leaves his broken bands. And shows his miseries in distant lands; Condemned a needy supplicant to wait, While ladies interpose and slaves debate. But did not chance at length her error mend " Did no subverted empire mark his end? Did rival monarchs give the fatal wound, Or hostile millions press him to the ground? His fall was destined to a barren strand, A petty fortress, and a dubious hand: He left the name, at which the world grew pale. To point a moral or adorn a tale.

DR SAMUEL JOHNSON

TO THE LORD-GENERAL CROMWELL.

CROMWELL, our chief of men, who through a cloud.

Not of war only, but detractions rude, Guided by faith and matchless fortitude, To peace and truth thy glorious way hast ploughed,

And on the neck of crowned fortune proud Hast reared God's trophies, and his work pursued.

While Darwen stream, with blood of Scots imbued.

And Dunbar field resounds thy praises loud, And Worcester's laureate wreath. Yet much re-

To conquer still; Peace hath her victories
No less renowned than War: new foes arise,
Threatening to bind our souls with secular chains:
Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves, whose gospel is their maw.

MILTON,

SPORUS.

[LORD HERVEY.]

FROM THE "PROLOGUE TO THE SATIRES."

LET Sporus tremble. — A.* What ! that thing of silk,

Sporus, that mere white curd of asses' milk * Satire or sense, alas! can Sporus feel? Who breaks a butterfly upon a wheel?

* Arbuthmot.

This painted child of dirt that stinks and stings; Whose buzz the witty and the fair annoys, Yet wit ne'er tastes, and beauty ne'er enjoys: So well-bred spamels civilly delight In mumbling of the game they dare not bite. Eternal smiles his emptiness betray, As shallow streams run dimpling all the way. Whether in florid impotence he speaks, And, as the prompter breathes, the puppet squeaks,

Or at the ear of Eve, familiar toad, Half froth, half venom, spits himself abroad, In puns, or politics, or tales, or lies, Or spite, or smut, or rhymes, or blasphemies; His wit all seesaw, between that and this, Now high, now low, now master up, now miss, And he himself one vile antithesis. Amphibious thing ' that, acting either part, The trifling head, or the corrupted heart, Fop at the toilet, flatterer at the board, Now trips a lady, and now struts a lord. Eve's tempter thus the rabbins have exprest, A cherub's face, a reptile all the rest; Beauty that shocks you, parts that none will trust, Wit that can creep, and pride that licks the dust. ALEXANDER POPL.

ADDISON.

FROM 1HF "PROLOGUE TO THE SATIRES."

PEACE to all such! but were there one whose fires True genius kindles, and fair fame inspires; Blest with each talent and each art to please, And born to write, converse, and live with ease: Should such a man, too fond to rule alone, Bear, like the Turk, no brother near the throne, View him with scornful, yet with jealous eyes, And hate for arts that caused himself to rise; Damn with faint praise, assent with civil leer, And, without sneering, teach the rest to sneer; Willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike, Just hint a fault, and hesitate dislike, Alike reserved to blame, or to commend, A timorous foe, and a suspicious friend, Dreading even fools, by flatterers besieged, And so obliging that he ne'er obliged; Like Cato, give his little senate laws, And sit attentive to his own applause; Whilst wits and templars every sentence raise, And wonder with a foolish face of praise :-Who but must laugh, if such a one there be? Who would not weep, if Atticus were he? ALEXANDER POPE.

Yet let me flap this bug with gilded TO THE EARL OF WARWICK, ON THE DEATH OF ADDISON.

> Ir, dumb too long, the drooping Muse hath stayed,

And left her debt to Addison unpaid. Blame not her silence, Warwick, but bemoan, And judge, O, judge my bosom by your own. What mourner ever felt poetic fires! Slow comes the verse that real woe inspires: Grief unaffected suits but ill with art, Or flowing numbers with a bleeding heart.

Can I forget the dismal night that gave My soul's best part forever to the grave? How silent did his old companions tread, By midnight lamps, the mansions of the dead, Through breathing statues, then unheeded things, Through rows of warriors and through walks of kings!

What awe did the slow, solemn kuell inspire; The pealing organ, and the pausing choir; The duties by the lawn-robed prelate paid; And the last words, that dust to dust conveyed! While speechless o'er thy closing grave we bend, Accept these tears, thou dear departed friend. O, gone forever! take this long adicu; And sleep in peace next thy loved Montague. To strew fresh laurels let the task be mine. A frequent pilgrim at thy sacred shrine; Mine with true sighs thy absence to bemoan, And grave with faithful epitaphs thy stone. If e'er from me thy loved memorial part, May shame afflict this alienated heart; Of thee forgetful if I form a song, My lyre be broken, and untuned my tongue. My grief be doubled, from thy image free, And mirth a torment, unchastised by thee !

Oft let me range the gloomy assles alone, Sad luxury! to vulgar minds unknown. Along the walls where speaking marbles show What worthies form the hallowed mould below; Proud names, who once the rems of empire held, In arms who triumphed, or in arts excelled; Chiefs, graced with scars, and prodigal of blood, Stern patriots, who for sacred freedom stood; Just men, by whom impartial laws were given; And saints, who taught and led the way to heaven:

Ne'er to these chambers, where the mighty rest, Since their foundation came a nobler guest; Nor e'er was to the bowers of bliss conveyed A fairer spirit or more welcome shade.

In what new region, to the just assigned, What new employments please the unbodied mind?

A winged Virtue, through the ethereal sky, From world to world unwearied does he fly? Or curious trace the long laborious maze Of Heaven's decrees, where wondering angels gaze?

Does he delight to hear bold scraphs tell How Michael battled and the dragon fell, Or, mixed with milder cherubim, to glow In hymns of love, not ill-essayed below? Or dost thou warn poor mortals left behind, A task well suited to thy gentle mind? O, if sometimes thy spotless form descend, To me thy aid, thou guardian genius, lend! When rage misguides me, or when tear alaims, When pain distresses, or when pleasure chaims, In silent whisperings purer thoughts impart, And turn from ill a frail and feeble heart; Lead through the paths thy virtue trod before, Till bliss shall join, nor death can part us more.

That awful form which, so the heavens decree, Must still be loved and still deplored by me, In mightly visions seldom fails to rise, Or, roused by fancy, meets my waking eyes. If business calls, or crowded courts invite, The unblemished statesman seems to strike my sight,

If in the stage I seek to soothe my care,
I meet his soul which breathes in Cato there;
If pensive to the rural shades I rove,
His shape o'ertakes me in the lonely grove,
'T was there of just and good he reasoned strong,
Cleared some great truth, or raised some serious
song'

There patient showed us the wise course to steer, A candid censor and a friend severe, There taught us how to live, and (O, too high The price for knowledge!) taught us how to die.

Thou Hill, whose brow the antique structures grace,

Reared by hold chiefs of Warwick's noble race, Why, once so loved, whene'er thy bower appears,

O'er my dnn eyeballs glance the sudden tears? How sweet were once thy prospects fresh and fair, Thy sloping walks, and unpolluted air! How sweet the glooms beneath thy aged trees, Thy noontide shadow, and thy evening breeze! His image thy forsaken bowers restore, Thy walks and airy prospects charm no more; No more the summer in thy glooms allay, Thy evening breezes, and thy noonday shade.

From other hills, however fortune frowned, Some refuge in the Muse's art I found; Reductant now I touch the trembling string, Bereft of him who taught me how to sing; And these sad accents, murinured o'er his urn, Betray that absence they aftempt to mourn. O, must I then (now fresh my bosom bleeds, And Craggs in death to Addison succeeds) The verse, begin to one lost friend, prolong, And weep a second in the unfinished song!

These works divine, which on his death-bed laid To thee, O Craggs! the expiring sage conveyed, Great, but ill-omened, monument of fame, Nor he survived to give, nor thou to claim Swift after him thy social spirit flies, And close to his, how soon! thy coffin hes. Blest pan! whose umon future bards shall tell In future tongues, each other's boast! farewell! Farewell! whom, joined in fame, in friendship tried,

No chance could sever, nor the grave divide.

HOMAS TICKELL.

THE POET'S FRIEND.

[LORD BOLINGBROKE]

I ROM "AN ESSAY ON MAN. EPISTLE IV

COME then, my friend 'my genins' come along; O master of the poet, and the song! And while the muse now stoops, or now ascends, To man's low passions, or their glorious ends, Teach me, like thee, in various nature wise, To fall with dignity, with temper rise, Formed by thy converse happily to steer From grave to gay, from lively to severe; Correct with spirit, eloquent with case, Intent to reason, or polite to please. O, while along the stream of time thy name Expanded flies, and gathers all its fame, Say, shall my little bark attendant sail, Pursue the triumph, and partake the gale? When statesmen, heroes, kings, in dust repose, Whose sons shall blush their fathers were thy foes, Shall then this verse to future age pretend Thou wert my guide, philosopher, and friend! That, urged by thee, I turned the tuneful art From sounds to things, from fancy to the heart: For wit's talse mirror held up Nature's light; Showed erring pride, WHATEVER IS, IS RIGHT.

ALEXANDER POPE

NAPOLEON.

FROM "CHILDE HAROLD," CANTO III

THERE sunk the greatest, nor the worst of men, Whose spirit antithetically mixed
One moment of the mightiest, and again
On little objects with like firmness fixed,

Extreme in all things! hadst thou been betwixt, Thy throne had still been thine, or never been; For daring made thy rise as fall: thou seek'st! Even now to reassume the imperial mien, And shake again the world, the Thunderer of the scene!

Conqueror and captive of the earth art thou! She trembles at thee still, and thy wild name Was ne'er more bruited in men's minds than now

That thou art nothing, save the jest of Fame, Who wooed thee once, thy vassal, and became The flatterer of thy fierceness, till thou wert A god unto thyself : nor less the same To the astounded kingdoms all inert, Who deemed thee for a time whate'er thou didst

O more or less than man - in high or low, Battling with nations, flying from the field; Now making monarchs' necks thy footstool, assert.

More than thy meanest soldier taught to yield . An empire thou couldst crush, command, rebuild.

But govern not thy pettiest passion, nor However deeply in men's spirits skilled, Look through thine own, nor curb the lust of Nor learn that tempted Fate will leave the loftiest star.

Yet well thy soul hath brooked the turning

With that untaught innate philosophy, Which, be it wisdom, coldness, or deep pride, Is gall and wormwood to an enemy.

When the whole host of hatred stood hard by, To watch and mock thee shrinking, thou hast smiled

With a sedate and all-enduring eye, ---When Fortune fled her spoiled and favorite

He stood unbowed beneath the ills upon him piled.

Sager than in thy fortunes : for in them Ambition steeled thee on too far to show That just habitual scorn which could contemn Men and their thoughts; 't was wise to feel,

To wear it ever on thy lip and brow, And spurn the instruments thou wert to use Till they were turned unto thine overthrow: 'T is but a worthless world to win or lose; So hath it proved to thee, and all such lot who choose.

If, like a tower upon a headlong rock, Thou hadst been made to stand or fall alone, Such scorn of man had helped to brave the shock:

But men's thoughts were the steps which paved thy throne,

Their admiration thy best weapon shone: The part of Philip's son was thine, not then (Unless aside thy purple had been thrown) Like stern Diogenes to mock at men;

For sceptred cynics earth were far too wale a den.

But quiet to quick bosoms is a hell, And there hath been thy vane : there is a fire And motion of the soul which will not dwell In its own narrow being, but aspire Beyond the fitting medium of desire: And, but once kindled, quenchless evermore, Preys upon high adventure, nor can tire Of aught but rest; a fever at the core, Fatal to him who bears, to all who ever bore

This makes the madmen who have made men

By their contagion ' Conquerors and Kings, Founders of sects and systems, to whom add Sophists, Bards, Statesmen, all unquiet things Which stir too strongly the soul's secret springs, And are themselves the fools to those they Envied, yet how unenviable! what stings Are theirs! One breast laid open were a school Which would unteach mankind the lust to shine

Their breath is agitation, and their life A storm whereon they ride, to sink at last, And yet so nursed and higoted to strife, That should their days, surviving perils past, Melt to calm twilight, they feel overcast With sorrow and supineness, and so die; Even as a flame, unfed, which runs to waste With its own flickering, or a sword laid by, Which eats into itself, and rusts ingloriously.

He who ascends to mountain-tops shall find The loftiest peaks most wrapt in clouds and snow;

He who surpasses or subdues mankind Must look down on the hate of those below. Though high above the sun of glory glow, And far beneath the earth and ocean spread, Round him are icy rocks, and loudly blow Contending tempests on his naked head, And thus reward the toils which to those sum mits led.

LORD BYRON.

POPULAR RECOLLECTIONS OF BONAPARTE.

A RENDERING OF BERANGER'S "SOUVENIRS DU PEUPLE."

THEY'll talk of him for years to come,
In cottage chronicle and tale;
When, for aught else, renown is dumb,
His legend shall prevail!
When in the hamlet's honored chair
Shall sit some aged dame,
Teaching to lowly clown and villager
That narrative of fame.
"'T is true," they'll say, "his gorgeous throne
France bled to raise;
But he was all our own!"
"Mother, say something in his praise,—

"I saw him pass, — his was a host Countless beyond your young imaginings, — My children, he could boast

A train of conquered kings '
And when he came this road,
'T was on my bridal day,
He wore, for near to him I stood,
Cocked hat and surcoat gray.

O, speak of him always '"

I blushed; he said, 'Be of good cheer! Courage, my dear!'

That was his very word "

"Mother! O, then, this really occurred, And you his voice could hear."

"A year rolled on, when next at Paris I,
Lone woman that I am,
Saw him pass by,

Girt with his peers to kneel at Notre Dame, I knew, by merry chime and signal gun, God granted him a son,

And O, I wept for joy !

For why not weep when warrior men did, Who gazed upon that sight so splendid, And blessed the imperial boy? Never did noonday sun shine out so bright! O, what a sight!"

"Mother, for you that must have been A glorious scene."

"But when all Europe's gathered strength
Burst o'er the French frontier at length,
'T will scarcely be believed
What wonders, single-handed, he achieved;
Such general ne'er lived!
One evening on my threshold stood
A guest, — 't was he! Of warriors few
He had a toil-worn retinue'
He flung himself into this chair of wood,

Muttering, meantime, with fearful air, 'Quelle guerre! O, quelle guerre!" "Mother! and did our emperor sit there, Upon that very chair!"

"He said, 'Give me some food.'
Brown loaf I gave, and homely wine,
And made the kindling fire-blocks shine
To dry his cloak with wet bedewed.
Soon by the bonny blaze he slept,
Then waking chid me, — for I wept;
'Courage!' he cried, 'I'll strike for all
Under the sacred wall
Of France's noble capital!'
Those were his words: I've treasured up
With pride that same wine-cup;
And for its weight in gold
It never shall be sold!"

"Mother, on that proud relic let us gaze. O, keep that cup always!'

"But through some fatal witchery
He, whom a pope had crowned and blest,
Perished, my sons, by foulest treachery,
Cast on an isle far in the lonely West!
Long time sad rumors were afloat, —
The fatal tidings we would spurn,
Still hoping from that isle remote
Once more our hero would return.
But when the dark announcement drew
Tears from the virtuous and the brave,
When the sad whisper proved too true,
A flood of grief I to his memory gave.
Peace to the glorious dead!"

"Mother, may God his fullest blessing shed Upon your aged head!"

MURAT.

FRANCIS MAHONY (Father Proxt)

FROM "ODF FROM THE FRENCH."

THERE, where death's brief pang was quickest,
And the battle's wreck lay thickest,
Strewed beneath the advancing banner
Of the eagle's burning crest —
(There with thunder-clouds to fan her,
Who could then her wing arrest —
Victory beaming from her breast?)
While the broken line enlarging
Fell, or fled along the plain: There be sure Murat was charging!
There he ne'er shall charge again!

LORD BYRON

TO MADAME DE SEVIGNÉ,

PLAYING BLIND MAN'S-BUFF.

You charm when you talk, walk, or move, Still more on this day than another When blinded -- you're taken for Love; When the bandage is off -- for his mother!

ON A PORTRAIT OF WORDSWORTH,

BY R. B HAYDON

Wordsworth upon Helvellyn! Let the cloud Ebb audibly along the mountain-wind, Then break against the rock, and show behind The lowland valleys floating up to crowd The sense with beauty — He, with forehead bowed And humble-hidded eyes, as one inclined before the sovran thought of his own mind, And very meek with inspirations proud, — Takes here his rightful place as poet-priest By the high-altar, singing prayer and prayer To the higher Heavens.—A noble vision free, Our Haydon's hand hath flung out from the mist! No portrait this, with Academic air, — This is the poet and his poetry.

LLIZABI III BARRI.11 BROWNING.

BURNS.

A POET'S EPITAPH. STOP, mortal! Here thy brother lies, -The poet of the poor. His books were rivers, woods, and skies, The meadow and the moor, His teachers were the torn heart's wail, The tyrant, and the slave, The street, the factory, the jail, The palace, — and the grave! Sin met thy brother everywhere! And is thy brother blamed? From passion, danger, doubt, and care He no exemption claimed. The meanest thing, earth's feeblest worm, He feared to scorn or hate; But, honoring in a peasant's form The equal of the great, He blessed the steward, whose wealth makes The poor man's little more; Yet loathed the haughty wretch that takes From plundered labor's store. A hand to do, a head to plan, A heart to feel and dare, -

Tell man's worst foes, here lies the man Who drew them as they are.

EBENEZER ELLIOTT.

BURNS.

ON RECEIVING A SPRIG OF HEATHER IN BLOSSOM

No more these simple flowers belong To Scottish maid and lover; Sown in the common soil of song, They bloom the wide world over.

In simles and tears, in sun and showers,
The minstrel and the heather,
The deathless singer and the flowers
He sang of live together.

Wild heather-bells and Robert Burns! The moorland flower and peasont! How, at their mention, memory turns Her pages old and pleasant!

The gray sky wears again its gold
And purple of adorning,
And manhood's noonday shadows hold
The dews of boyhood's morning:

The dews that washed the dust and soil
From off the wings of pleasure,
The sky, that fleeked the ground of toil
With golden threads of leisure.

I call to mind the summer day,
The early harvest mowing,
The sky with sun and clouds at play,
And flowers with breezes blowing.

I hear the blackbird in the corn,
The locust in the haying;
And, like the fabled hunter's horn,
Old tunes my heart is playing.

How oft that day, with fond delay,
I sought the maple's shadow,
And sang with Burns the hours away,
Forgetful of the meadow!

Bees hummed, birds twittered, overhead I heard the squirrels leaping; The good dog listened while I read, And wagged his tail in keeping.

I watched him while in sportive mood I read "The Twa Dogs" story, And half believed he understood The poet's allegory.

Sweet day, sweet songs! — The golden hours Grew brighter for that singing, From brook and bird and meadow flowers A dearer welcome bringing. New light on home-seen Nature beamed, New glory over Woman; And daily life and duty seemed No longer poor and common.

I woke to find the simple truth
Of fact and feeling better
Than all the dreams that held my youth
A still repining debtor:

That Nature gives her handmaid, Art,
The themes of sweet discoursing;
The tender idyls of the heart
In every tongue rehearsing.

Why dream of lands of gold and pearl, Of loving knight and lady, When farmer boy and barefoot girl Were wandering there already?

I saw through all familiar things
The romance underlying,
The joys and griefs that plume the wings
Of Fancy skyward flying

I saw the same blithe day return, The same sweet fall of even, That rose on wooded Craigie-buin, And sank on crystal Devon

I matched with Scotland's heathery hills The sweet-brier and the clover, With Ayr and Doon, my native rills, Then wood-hymns chanting over.

O'er rank and pomp, as he had seen, I saw the Man uprising, No longer common or unclean, The child of God's baptizing.

With clearer eyes I saw the worth Of life among the lowly; The Bible at his Cotter's hearth Had made my own more holy.

And if at times an evil strain,
To lawless love appealing,
Broke in upon the sweet refrain
Of pure and healthful feeling,

It died upon the eye and ear, No inward answer gaining; No heart had I to see or hear The discord and the staining.

Let those who never erred forget
His worth, in vain bewailings;
Sweet Soul of Song!—I own my debt
Uncancelled by his failings!

Lament who will the ribald line
Which tells his lapse from duty,
How kissed the maddening lips of wine,
Or wanton ones of beauty;

But think, while falls that shade between The erring one and Heaven, That he who loved like Magdalen, Like her may be forgiven.

Not his the song whose thunderous chime Eternal echoes render, — The mournful Tuscan's haunted rhyme, And Milton's starry splendor,

But who his human heart has laid To Nature s bosom nearer ' Who sweetened toil like him, or paid To love a tribute dearer?

Through all his tuneful art, how strong
The human feeling gustes!
The very moonlight of his song
Is warm with smiles and blushes!

Give lettered point to teeth of Time, So "Bonny Doon" but tarry; Blot out the Epic's stately thyme, But spare his "Highland Mary"!

BURNS.

TO A ROSE BROUGHT FROM NEAR ALLOWAY KIRK, IN AYR SHIRE, IN THE AUTUMN OF 1822.

Will prose of Alloway! my thanks:
Thou 'mind'st me of that autumn noon
When first we met upon "the banks
And braes o' bonny Doon."

Like thine, beneath the thorn-tree's bough, My sunny hour was glad and brief; We've crossed the winter sea, and thou Art withered — flower and leaf.

And will not thy death-doom be mine —
The doom of all things wrought of clay ?
And withered my life's leaf like thine,
Wild rose of Alloway !

Not so his memory for whose sake

My bosom bore thee far and long —

His, who a humbler flower could make

Immortal as his song,

The memory of Burns — a name
That calls, when brimmed her festal cup.
A nation's glory and her shame,
In silent sadness up.

A nation's glory — be the rest
Forgot — she 's canonized his mind,
And it is joy to speak the best
We may of humankind.

I've stood beside the cottage-bed
 Where the bard-peasant first drew breath;
 A straw-thatched roof above his head,
 A straw-wrought couch beneath.

And I have stood beside the pile,
His monument — that tells to Heaven
The homage of earth's proudest isle
To that bard-peasant given.

Bid thy thoughts hover o'er that spot,
Boy-minstrel, in thy dreaming hour;
And know, however low his lot,
A poet's pride and power;

The pride that lifted Burns from earth,
The power that gave a child of song
Ascendency o'er rank and birth,
The rich, the brave, the strong;

And if despondency weigh down
Thy spirit's fluttering pinions then,
Despair — thy name is written on
The roll of common men.

There have been loftier themes than hia, And longer scrolls, and louder lyres, And lays lit up with Poesy's Purer and holier fires;

Yet read the names that know not death; Few nobler ones than Burns are there; And few have won a greener wreath Than that which binds his hair.

His is that language of the heart
In which the answering heart would speak,
Thought, word, that bids the warm tear start,
Or the smile light the cheek;

And his that music to whose tone
The common pulse of man keeps time,
In cot or castle's mirth or moan,
In cold or sunny clime.

And who hath heard his song, nor knelt Before its spell with willing knee, And listened and believed, and felt The poet's mastery

O'er the mind's sea, in calm and storm,
O'er the heart's sunshine and its showers,
O'er Passion's moments, bright and warm,
O'er Reason's dark, cold hours;

On fields where brave men "die or do,"
In halls where rings the banquet's mirth,
Where mourners weep, where lovers woo,
From throne to cottage hearth?

What sweet tears dim the eye unshed,
What wild vows falter on the tongue,
When "Scots wha hae wi' Wallace bled,"
Or "Auld Lang Syne," is sung!

Pure hopes, that lift the soul above, Come with his Cotter's hymn of praise, And dreams of youth, and truth, and love With "Logan's" banks and braes.

And when he breathes his master-lay Of Alloway's witch-haunted wall, All passions in our frames of clay Come thronging at his call.

Imagination's world of air,
And our own world, its gloom and glee,
Wit, pathos, poetry, are there,
And death's sublimity.

And Burns — though brief the race he ran,
Though rough and dark the path he trod —
Lived, died, in form and soul a man,
The image of his God.

Through care, and pain, and want, and woe,
With wounds that only death could heal,
Tortures the poor alone can know,
The proud alone can feel;

He kept his honesty and truth,

His independent tongue and pen,

And moved, in manhood as in youth,

Pride of his fellow-men.

Strong sense, deep feeling, passions strong,
A hate of tyrant and of knave,
A love of right, a scorn of wrong,
Of coward and of slave;

A kind, true heart, a spirit high,
That could not fear, and would not bow,
Were written in his manly eye
And on his manly brow.

Praise to the bard! his words are driven, Like flower-seeds by the far winds sown, Where'er, beneath the sky of heaven, The birds of fame have flown.

Praise to the man! a nation stood Beside his coffin with wet eyes, Her brave, her beautiful, her good, As when a loved one dies. And still, as on his funeral-day,

Men stand his cold earth-couch around,
With the mute homage that we pay

To consecrated ground.

And consecrated ground it is,
The last, the hallowed home of one
Who lives upon all memories,
Though with the buried gone.

Such graves as his are pilgrim-shrines, Shrines to no code or creed confined— The Delphian vales, the Palestines, The Meccas, of the mind.

Sages, with Wisdom's garland wreathed, Crowned kings, and mitred priests of power, And warriors with their bright swords sheathed, The mightiest of the hour.

And lowlier names, whose humble home
Is lit by Fortune's dimmer star,
Are there — o'er wave and mountain come,
From countries near and far;

Pilgrims, whose wandering feet have pressed The Switzer's snow, the Arab's sand, Or trod the piled leaves of the West, My own green forest-land.

All ask the cottage of his birth, Gaze on the scenes he loved and sung, And gather feelings not of earth His fields and streams among.

They linger by the Doon's low trees,
And pastoral Nith, and wooded Ayr,
And round thy sepulchres, Dumfries
The Poet's tomb is there.

But what to them the sculptor's art, His funeral columns, wreaths, and urns? Wear they not graven on the heart The name of Robert Burns?

FITZ-GREENE HALLECK.

A BARD'S EPITAPH.

Is there a whim-inspired fool,
Owre fast for thought, owre hot for rule,
Owre blate * to seek, owre proud to snool; †
Let him draw near,
And owre this grassy heap sing dool,
And drap a tear.

· backful.

† tamely submit.

Is there a bard of rustic song, Who, noteless, steals the crowd among, That weekly this area throng;

O, pass not by; But, with a frater-feeling strong, Here heave a sigh!

Is there a man whose judgment clear Can others teach the course to steer, Yet runs himself life's mad career,

Wild as the wave; Here pause, and, through the starting tear, Survey this grave.

The poor inhabitant below

Was quick to learn and wise to know,
And keenly felt the friendly glow,
And sober flame,
But thoughtless follies laid him low,
And stained his name!

Reader, attend, — whether thy soul
Soars fancy's flights beyond the pole,
Or darkly grubs this earthly hole,
In low pursuit;
Know, prudent, cautious self-control
Is wisdom's root.

ROBERT BURNS

ELEGY ON CAPTAIN MATTHEW HENDERSON.

He's gane, he's gane! he's frae us torn
The ae best fellow e'er was born!
Thee, Matthew, Nature's sel'shall mourn
By wood and wild,
Where, haply, pity strays forlorn,
Frae man exiled.

Ye hills, near neebors o' the starns,
That proudly cock your cresting cairns!
Ye cliffs, the haunts of sailing yearns,*
Where echo slumbers!
Come join, ye Nature's sturdiest bairns,
My wailing numbers!

Mourn, ilka grove the cushat kens!
Ye hazelly shaws and briery dens!
Ye burnies, wimplin' down your glens,
Wi' toddlin' din.
Or foaming strang, wi' hasty stens,
Frae lin to lin!

Mourn, little harebells o'er the les, Ye stately foxgloves fair to see; Ye woodbines hanging bonnilis

* eagles.

In scented bowers;
Ye roses on your thorny tree,
The first o' flowers.

At dawn, when every grassy blade
Droops with a diamond at his head,
At even, when beans their fragrance shed,
I' the rustling gale,
Ye maukins whiddin through the glade,
Come join my wail.

Mourn, ye wee songsters o' the wood;
Ye grouse that crap the heather bud;
Ye curlews calling through a clud;
Ye whistling plover;
And mourn, ye whirring paitrick brood;
He's gane forever!

Mourn, sooty coots, and speckled teals,
Ye fisher herons, watching eels;
Ye duck and drake, wi' ary wheels
Circling the lake,
Ye bitterns, till the quagnire reels,
Rair for his sake.

Mourn, clamoring cracks at close o' day,
'Mang fields o' flowering clover gay;
And when ye wing your annual way
Frac our cauld shore,
Tell thae far warlds wha hes in clay,
Wham we deplore

Ye houlets, frae your ivy bower,
In some suld tree, or eldritch tower,
What time the moon, wi' silent glower,
Sets up her horn,
Wail thro' the dreary midnight hour
Till waukrife morn.

O rivers, forests, hills and plains!
Oft have ye heard my canty strains:
But now, what else for me remains
But tales of wo?
And frae my een the drapping rains
Maun ever flow.

Mourn, Spring, thou darling of the year!
Ilk cowslip cup shall keep a tear:
Thou, Simmer, while each corny spear
Shoots up its head,
Thy gay, green flowery tresses shear,
For him that's dead!

Thou, Autumn, wi' thy yellow hair,
In grief thy sallow mantle tear!
Thou, Winter, hurling through the air
The roaring blast,
Wide o'er the naked world declare
The worth we've lost.

Mourn him, thou sun, great source of light!

Mourn, empress of the silent night!

And you, ye twinkling starnies bright,

My Matthew mourn!

For thre' your orbs he's ta'en his flight,

Ne'er to return.

O Henderson, the man ' the brother!
And art thou gone, and gone forever!
And hast thou crost that unknown river,
Life's dreary bound!
Like thee where shall I find another,
The world around!

Go to your sculptured tombs, ye great,
In a' the tinsel trash o' state!
But by thy honest turf I 'll wait,
Thou man of worth!
And weep the ae best fellow's fate
E'er lay in earth

BYRON.

FROM "THE COURSE OF TIME," BOOK IV

Take one example — to our purpose quite.

A man of rank, and of capacious soul,
Who riches had, and fame, beyond desire,
An heir of flattery, to titles born,
And reputation, and luxurious life.
Yet, not content with ancestorial name,
Or to be known because his fathers were,
He on this height hereditary stood,
And, gazing higher, purposed in his heart
To take another step. Above him seemed Alone, the mount of song, the lofty seat
Of canonized bards; and thitherward,
By nature taught, and inward inclody,
In prime of youth, he bent his eagle eye.
No cost was spared. What books he wished, he read:

What sage to hear, he heard; what scenes to see, He saw. And first, in rambling school-boy days, Britannia's mountain-walks, and heath-gut lakes, And story-telling glens, and founts, and brooks, And maids, as dew-drops pure and fair, his soul With grandeur filled, and melody, and love. Then travel came, and took him where he wished He cities saw, and courts, and princely pomp, And mused alone on ancient mountain-brows. And mused on battle-fields, where valor fought In other days; and mused on ruins gray With years; and drank from old and fabulous wells,

And plucked the vine that first-born prophets p'ncked;

And mused on famous tombs, and on the wave Of ocean mused, and on the desert waste; The heavens and earth of every country saw: Where'er the old inspiring Genii dwelt, Aught that could rouse, expand, refine the soul, Thither he weut, and meditated there.

He touched his harp, and nations heard entranced.

As some vast river of unfailing source,
Rapid, exhaustless, deep, his numbers flowed,
And opened new fountains in the human heart.
Where Fancy halted, weary in her flight,
In other men, his fresh as morning rose,
And soared untrodden heights, and seemed at home.

Where angels bashful looked. Others, though great,

Beneath their argument seemed struggling; whiles

He, from above descending, stooped to touch The loftiest thought; and proudly stooped, as though

It scarce deserved his verse. With Nature's self He seemed an old acquaintance, free to jest At will with all her glorious majesty. He laid his hand upon "the Ocean's mane," And played familiar with his hoary locks, Stood on the Alps, stood on the Apennines, And with the thunder talked as friend to friend; And wove his garland of the lightning's wing, In sportive twist, — the lightning's fiery wing, Which, as the footsteps of the dreadful God, Marching upon the storm in vengeance, seemed; Then turned, and with the grasshopper, who

His evening song beneath his feet, conversed.

Suns, moons, and stars, and clouds his sisters were:

Rocks, mountains, meteors, seas, and winds, and storms

His brothers, younger brothers, whom he scarce As equals deemed. All passions of all men, The wild and tame, the gentle and severe; All thoughts, all maxims, sacred and profane; All creeds, all seasons, time, eternity; All that was hated, and all that was dear ; All that was hoped, all that was feared, by man,-He tossed about, as tempest-withered leaves; Then, smiling, looked upon the wreck he made. With terror now he floze the cowering blood, And now dissolved the heart in tenderness; Yet would not tremble, would not weep himself; But back into his soul retired, alone, Dark, sullen, proud, gazing contemptuously On hearts and passions prostrate at his feet. So Ocean, from the plans his waves had late To desolation swept, retired in pride, Exulting in the glory of his might,

And seemed to mock the ruin he had wrought.

As some fierce comet of tremendous size,

To which the stars did reverence as it passed,

So he, through learning and through fancy, took

His flight sublime, and on the lottiest top

Of Fame's dread mountain sat, not soiled and worn,

As if he from the earth had labored up, But as some bird of heavenly plumage fair He looked, which down from higher regions came, And perched it there, to see what lay beneath.

The nations gazed, and wondered much and praised.

Critics before him fell in humble plight;
Confounded fell, and made debasing signs
To catch his eye; and stretched and swelled themselves

To bursting high, to utter bulky words Of admiration vast; and many too, Many that aimed to imitate his flight, With weaker wing, unearthly fluttering made, And gave abundant sport to after days.

Great man ' the nations gazed and wondered much,

And praised; and many called his evil good.
Wits wrote in favor of his wickedness; .
And kings to do him honor took delight.
Thus full of titles, flattery, honor, fame;
Beyond desire, beyond ambition, full, —
He died, — he died of what? Of wretchedness;
Drank every cup of joy, heard every trump
Of fame; drank early, deeply drank; drank draughts

That common millions might have quenched, -then died

Of thirst, because there was no more to drink. His goddess, Nature, wooed, embraced, enjoyed, Fell from his arms, abhorred; his passions died Died, all but dreary, solitary Pride; And all his sympathies in being died. As some ill-guided bark, well built and tall, Which angry tides cast out on desert shore. And then, retiring, left it there to rot And moulder in the winds and rains of heaven; So he, cut from the sympathies of life, And cast ashore from pleasure's boisterous surge, A wandering, weary, worn, and wretched thing, A scorched and desolate and blasted soul, A gloomy wilderness of dying thought, -Repined, and groaned, and withered from the carth.

His groanings filled the land his numbers filled; And yet he seemed ashamed to groan. — Poor man!

Ashamed to ask, and yet he needed help.

ROBERT POLLOK

TO CAMPBELL.

True bard and simple, — as the race
Of heaven-born poets always are,
When stooping from their starry place
They 're children near, though gods afar.

THOMAS MOORE.

CAMP-BELL.

CHARADI..

COME from my first, ay, come!
The battle-dawn is nigh;
And the screaming trump and the thundering drum
Are calling thee to die!

Fight as thy father fought;
Fall as thy father fell;
Thy task is taught; thy shroud is wrought;
So forward and farewell!

Toll ye my second, toll!

Fling high the flambeau's light,
And sing the hymn for a parted soul
Beneath the silent night!

The wreath upon his head,
The cross upon his breast,
Let the prayer be said and the tear be shed,
So, — take him to his rest!

Call ye my whole, — ay, call
The lord of lute and lay;
And let him greet the sable pall
With a noble song to-day.

Go, call him by his name!

No fitter hand may crave
To light the flame of a soldier's fame
On the turf of a soldier's grave.

WINTHROP MACKWORTH PRAFE.

TO THOMAS MOORE.

My boat is on the shore,
And my bark is on the sea;
But before I go, Tom Moore,
Here's a double health to thee!

Here's a sigh to those who love me,

And a smile to those who hate;

And, whatever sky's above me,

Here's a heart for every fate!

Though the ocean roar around me,
Yet it still shall bear me on;
Though a desert should surround me,
It hath springs that may be won.

Were 't the last drop in the well, As I gasped upon the brink, Ere my fainting spirit fell, 'T is to thee that I would drink.

With that water, as this wine,
The libation I would pour
Should be, — Peace with thine and mine,
And a health to thee, Tom Moore!

BURIAL OF SIR JOHN MOORE.

Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note, As his corse to the rampart we hurried; Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot O'er the grave where our hero we buried.

We buried him darkly, at dead of night,
The sods with our bayonets turning;
By the struggling moonbeams' misty light,
And the lantern dimly burning.

No useless coffin enclosed his breast,

Not in sheet or in shroud we wound him;
But he lay, like a warrior taking his rest,
With his martial cloak around him.

Few and short were the prayers we said, And we spoke not a word of sorrow; But we steadfastly gazed on the face of the dead, And we bitterly thought of the morrow.

We thought, as we hollowed his narrow bed,
And smoothed down his lonely pillow,
That the foe and the stranger would tread o'er his head,

And we far away on the billow!

Lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone, And o'er his cold ashes upbraid him; But little he'll reck, if they let him sleep on In the grave where a Briton has laid him!

But half of our heavy task was done,
When the clock struck the hour for retiring;
And we heard the distant and random gun
That the foe was suddenly firing.

Slowly and sadly we laid him down,

From the field of his fame fresh and gory!

We carved not a line, and we raised not a stone,

But we left him alone with his glory.

CHARLES WOLFE.

EMMET'S EPITAPH.

[Robert Emmet, the celebrated Irish Revolutionist, at his trial for high treason, which resulted in his conviction and execution, September so, 280, made an eloquent and pathetic defence, concluding with these words: "Let there be no inscription upon my tomb Let no man write my epitaph. Let my character and my motives repose in security and peace till other times and other men can do them justice. Then shall my character be vindicated; then may my epitaph be written. I have done." It was immediately upon reading this speech that the following lines were written.]

"LET no man write my epitaph; let my grave Be uninscribed, and let my memory rest Till other times are come, and other men, Who then may do me justice."

Emmet, no! No withering curse hath dried my spirit up, That I should now be silent, - that my soul Should from the stirring inspiration shrink, Now when it shakes her, and withhold her voice, Of that divinest impulse nevermore Worthy, if impious I withheld it now, Hardening my heart. Here, here in this free Isle, To which in thy young virtue's erring zeal Thou wert so perilous an enemy, Here in free England shall an English hand Build thy imperishable monument; O, to thine own misfortune and to ours, By thine own deadly error so beguiled, Here in free England shall an English voice Raise up thy mourning-song. For thou hast paid The bitter penalty of that misdeed; Justice hath done her unrelenting part, If she in truth be Justice who drives on, Bloody and blind, the chariot-wheels of death.

So young, so glowing for the general good,
O, what a lovely manhood had been thine,
When all the violent workings of thy youth
Had passed away, hadst thou been wisely spared,
Left to the slow and certain influences
Of silent feeling and maturing thought!
How had that heart, — that noble heart of thine,
Which even now had snapped one spell, which beat

With such brave indignation at the shame
And guilt of France, and of her miscreant lord,—
How had it clung to England! With what love,
What pure and perfect love, returned to her,
Now worthy of thy love, the champion now
For freedom, — yea, the only champion now,
And soon to be the avenger. But the blow
Hath fallen, the undiscriminating blow,
That for its portion to the grave consigned
Youth, Genius, generous Virtue. O, grief, grief!
O, sorrow and reproach! Have ye to learn,
Deaf to the past, and to the future blind,
Ye who thus irremissibly exact
The forfeit life, how lightly life is staked,
When in distempered times the feverish mind

To strong delusion yields? Have ye to learn With what a deep and spirit-stirring voice Pity doth call Revenge? Have ye no hearts To feel and understand how Mercy tames The rebel nature, maddened by old wrongs, And binds it in the gentle bands of love, When steel and adamant were weak to hold That Samson-strength subdued!

Let no man write Thy epitaph! Emmet, nay; thou shalt not go Without thy funeral strain! O young and good, And wise, though erring here, thou shalt not go Unhonored or unsung. And better thus Beneath that undiscriminating stroke, Better to fall, than to have lived to mourn, As sure thou wouldst, in misery and remorse, Thine own disastrous triumph; to have seen, If the Almighty at that awful hour Had turned away his face, wild Ignorance Let loose, and frantic Vengeance, and dark zeal, And all bad passions tyrannous, and the fires Of Persecution once again ablaze. How had it sunk into thy soul to see, Last curse of all, the ruffian slaves of France In thy dear native country lording it! How happier thus, in that heroic mood That takes away the sting of death, to die, By all the good and all the wise forgiven! Yea, in all ages by the wise and good To be remembered, mourned, and honored still ! ROBERT SOUTHEY.

O, BREATHE NOT HIS NAME!

ROBERT EMMET.

O, BREATHE not his name! let it sleep in the shade,

Where cold and unhonored his relics are laid; Sad, silent, and dark be the tears that we shed, As the night-dew that falls on the grave o'er his head.

But the night-dew that falls, though in silence it weeps,

Shall brighten with verdure the grave where he sleeps;

And the tear that we shed, though in secret it rolls,

Shall long keep his memory green in our souls.

THOMAS MOORE.

TO TOUSSAINT L'OUVERTURE.

TOUSSAINT! the most unhappy man of men! Whether the whistling rustic tend his plough Within thy hearing, or thy head be now Pillowed in some deep dungeon's earless den,

O miserable chieftain! where and when Wilt thou find patience? Yet die not; do thou

Wear rather in thy bonds a cheerful brow:
Though fallen thyself, never to rise again,
Live and take comfort. Thou hast left behind Powers that will work for thee; air, earth, and skies:

There's not a breathing of the common wind That will forget thee; thou hast great allies, Thy friends are exultations, agonies, And love, and man's unconquerable mind.

WILLIAM WORDSWORTH

DEATH-BED OF BOMBA, KING OF NAPILES,

AI BARI, 1859

COULD 1 pass those lounging sentries, through the aloe-bordered entries, up the sweep of squalid stair,

On through chamber after chamber, where the sunshine's gold and amber turn decay to beauty rare,

I should reach a guarded portal, where for strife of issue mortal, face to face two kings are met:

One the grisly King of Terrors; one a Bourbon, with his errors, late to conscience-clearing set.

Well his fevered pulse may flutter, and the priests their mass may mutter with such fervor as they may

Cross and chrism, and genuflection, mop and mow, and interjection, will not frighten Death away.

By the dying despot sitting, at the hard heart's portals hitting, shocking the dull brain to work.

Death makes clear what life has hidden, chides what life has left unchilden, quickens truth life tried to burke

He but ruled within his borders after Holy Church's orders, did what Austria bade him do:

By their guidance flogged and tortured; highborn men and gently nurtured chained with crime's felonious crew.

What if summer fevers gripped them, what if winter freezings nipped them, till they rotted in their chains?

He had word of Pope and Kaiser; none could holier be or wiser; theirs the counsel, his the reins. So he pleads excuses eager, clutching, with his fingers meagre, at the bedclothes as he speaks;

But King Death sits grimly grinning at the Bourbon's cobweb-spinning, — as each cobweb-cable breaks.

And the poor soul, from life's eylot, rudderless, without a pilot, drifteth slowly down the dark:

While mid rolling meense vapor, chanted dirge, and flaring taper, lies the body, stiff and stark.

PUNCII

TO THE MEMORY OF THOMAS HOOD.

Take back into thy bosom, earth,
This joyous, May-eyed morrow,
The gentlest child that ever mirth
Gave to be reared by sorrow!
'T is hard — while rays half green, half gold,
Through vernal bowers are burning,
And streams their diamond mirrors hold
To Summer's face returning —
To say we're thankful that his sleep
Shall nevermore be lighter,
In whose sweet-tongued companionship
Stream, bower, and beam grow brighter!

But all the more intensely true
His soul gave out each feature
Of elemental love, — each hue
And grace of golden nature, —
The deeper still beneath it all
Lurked the keen jags of anguish;
The more the laurels clasped his brow
Then poison made it languish.
Seemed it that, like the nightingale
Of his own mournful singing,
The tenderer would his song prevail
While most the thorn was stinging.

So never to the desert-worn
Did fount bring freshness deeper
Than that his placid rest this morn
Has brought the shrouded sleeper.
That rest may lap his weary head
Where charnels choke the city,
Or where, mid woodlands, by his bed
The wren shall wake its ditty;
But near or far, while evening's star
Is dear to hearts regretting,
Around that spot admiring, thought
Shall hover, unforgetting.

BARTHOIOMEW SIMMONS.

A VOICE, AND NOTHING ELSE.

"I WONDER if Brougham thinks as much as he talks,"

Said a punster, perusing a trial:
"I vow, since his lordship was made Baron
Vany

He's been Vaux et præteren nihil!"

ANUNYMOUS

MACAULAY.

THE dreamy thymer's measured snore Falls heavy on our ears no more; And by long strides are left behind The dear delights of womankind, Who wage their battles like their loves, In satin waistcoats and kid gloves, And have achieved the crowning work When they have trussed and skewered a Turk. Another comes with stouter tread, And stalks among the statelier dead He rushes on, and hails by turns High-crested Scott, broad-breasted Burns; And shows the British youth, who ne'er Will lag behind, what Romans were, When all the Tuscans and their Lars Shouted, and shook the towers of Mars.

WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR

SONNETS TO GEORGE SAND.

A DESIRE.

Thou large-brained woman and large-hearted man.

Self-called George Sand! whose soul amid the

Of thy tumultuous senses, moans defiance,
And answers roar for roar, as spirits can,
I would some mild minaculous thunder ran
Above the applauded circus, in appliance
Of thine own nobler nature's strength and science,

Drawing two pinions, white as wings of swan, From thy strong shoulders, to amaze the place With holier light! that thou to woman's claim, And man's, might join beside the angel's grace Of a pure genius sanctified from blame; Till child and maiden pressed to thine embrace, To kiss upon thy lips a stainless fame.

A RECOGNITION.

TRUE genius, but true woman! dost deny Thy woman's nature with a manly scorn, And break away the gauds and armlets worn By weaker women in captivity? Ah, vain denial! that revolted cry
Is sobbed in by a woman's voice forlorn,
Thy woman's hair, my sister, all unshorn,
Floats back dishevelled strength in agony,
Disproving thy man's name; and while before
The world thou burnest in a poet-fire,
We see thy woman-heart beat everinore Through the large flame. Beat purer, heart, and higher,

Till God unsex thee on the heavenly shore, Where unincarnate spirits purely aspire.

FLIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

HEINE'S GRAVE.

"Henri Heine" — 't is here!
The black tombstone, the name
('arved there — no more! and the smooth
Swarded alleys, the limes
Touched with yellow by hot Summer, but under them still
In September's bright afternoon
Shadow and verdure and cool!
Trim Montmartre! the faint
Murnur of Paris outside;
Crisp everlasting-flowers,
Yellow and black on the graves.

Half blind, palsied, in pain,
Hither to come, from the streets'
Uproar, surely not loath
Wast thou, Heine, — to lie
Quiet! to ask for closed
Shutters, and darkened room,
And cool drinks, and an eased
Posture, and opium, no more!
Hither to come, and to sleep
Under the wings of Renown.

Ah! not little, when pain
Is most quelling, and man
Easily quelled, and the fine
Temper of genius alive
Quickest to ill, is the praise
Not to have yielded to pain!
No small boast for a weak
Son of mankind, to the earth
Pinned by the thunder, to rear
His bolt-scathed front to the stars,
And, undaunted, retort
'Gainst thick-crashing, insane,
Tyrannous tempests of bale,
Arrowy lightnings of soul!

Hark! through the alley resounds Mocking laughter! A film Creeps o'er the sunshine; a breeze Ruffles the warm afternoon, Saddens my soul with its chill. Gibing of spirits in scorn Shakes every leaf of the grove, Mars the benignant repose Of this amiable home of the dead. Bitter spirits! ye claim Heine ! - Alas, he is yours ! Only a moment 1 longed Here in the quiet to snatch From such mates the outworn Poet, and steep him in calm. Only a moment! I knew Whose he was who is here Buried; I knew he was yours Ah, I knew that I saw Here no sepulchre built In the laurelled rock, o'er the Mue Naples bay, for a sweet Tender Virgil! no temb On Ravenna sands, in the shade Of Ravenna pines, for a high Austere Dante! no grave By the Avon side, in the bright Stratford meadows, for thee, Shakespeare ! loveliest of souls, Peerless in radiance, in joy.

What so harsh and malign, Heine! distils from thy life, Poisons the peace of thy grave?

Charm is the glory which makes Song of the poet divine; Love is the fountain of charm. How without charm wilt thou draw, Poet, the world to thy way? Not by the lightnings of wit, Not by the thunder of scorn! These to the world, too, are given; Wit it possesses, and scorn, -Charm is the poet's alone. Hollow and dull are the great, And artists envious, and the mob profane. We know all this, we know! Cam'st thou from heaven, O child Of light! but this to declare? Alas! to help us forget Such barren knowledge awhile, God gave the poet his song. Therefore a secret unrest Tortured thee, brilliant and bold ! Therefore triumph itself Tasted amiss to thy soul. Therefore, with blood of thy foes, Trickled in silence thine own. Therefore the victor's heart Broke on the field of his fame.

Ah! as of old from the pomp Of Italian Milan, the fair Flower of marble of white Southern palaces, - steps Bordered by statues, and walks Terraced, and orange bowers Heavy with fragrance, -the blond German Kaiser full oft Longed himself back to the fields, Rivers, and high-roofed towns Of his native Germany; so, So, how often! from hot Paris drawing-rooms, and lamps Blazing, and brilliant crowds, Starred and jewelled, of men Famous, of women the queens Of dazzling converse, and fumes Of praise, - hot, heady fumes, to the poor brair That mount, that madden ! - how oft Heine's spirit, outworn, Longed itself out of the din Back to the tranquil, the cool, Far German home of his youth! See! in the May afternoon, O'er the fresh short turf of the Hartz. A youth, with the foot of youth, Heine! thou climbest again. Up, through the tall dark firs Warming their heads in the sun, Checkering the grass with their shade, Up, by the stream with its huge Moss-hung bowlders and thin Musical water half-hid, Up o'er the rock-strewn slope. With the sinking sun, and the air Chill, and the shadows now Long on the gray hillside, To the stone-roofed hut at the top.

Or, yet later, in watch On the roof of the Brocken tower Thou standest, gazing! to see The broad red sun, over field, Forest and city and spire And mist-tracked stream of the wide. Wide German land, going down In a bank of vapors, - again Standest ' at nightfall, alone; Or, next morning, with limbs Rested by slumber, and heart Freshened and light with the May, O'er the gracious spurs coming down Of the lower Hartz, among oaks, And beechen coverts, and copse Of hazels green in whose depth Ilse, the fairy transformed, In a thousand water-breaks light Pours her petulant youth, — Climbing the rock which juts O'er the valley, the dizzily perched Rock! to its Iron Cross Once more thou cling'st; to the Cross Clingest! with smiles, with a sigh.

But something prompts me: Not thus Take leave of Heine, not thus Speak the last word at his grave! Not in pity, and not With half-censure, — with awe Hail, as it passes from earth, Scattering lightnings, that soul!

The spirit of the world,
Beholding the absurdity of men,—
Their vaunts, their feats,—let a sardonic smile
For one short mement wander o'er his lips.
That smile was Heine! for its earthly hour
The strange guest sparkled; now 'tis passed away.

That was Heine! and we. Myriads who live, who have lived, What are we all, but a mood, A single mood, of the life Of the Being in whom we exist, Who alone is all things in one. Spirit, who fillest us all ! Spirit, who utterest in each New-coming son of mankind Such of thy thoughts as thou wilt! O thou, one of whose moods, Bitter and strange, was the life Of Heine, — his strange, alas! His bitter life, - may a life Other and milder be mine! Mayst thou a mood more serene, Happier, have uttered in mine! Mayst thou the rapture of peace Deep have embreathed at its core! Made it a ray of thy thought, Made it a beat of thy joy!

MATTHEW ARNOLD.

A WELCOME TO "BOZ."

ON HIS FIRST VISIT TO THE WEST

COME as artist, come as guest,
Welcome to the expectant West,
Hero of the charmed pen,
Loved of children, loved of men.
We have felt thy spell for years;
Oft with laughter, oft with tears,
Thou hast touched the tenderest part
Of our immost, hidden heart.
We have fixed our eager gaze
On thy pages nights and daya,

Wishing, as we turned them o'er, Like poor Oliver, for "more," And the creatures of thy brain In our memory remain, Till through them we seem to be Old acquaintances of thee. Much we hold it thee to greet, Gladly sit we at thy feet; On thy features we would look, As upon a living book, And thy voice would grateful hear, Glad to feel that Boz were near. That his veritable soul Held us by direct control: Therefore, author loved the best. Welcome, welcome to the West.

In immortal Weller's name, By the rare Micawber's fame, By the flogging wreaked on Squeers. By Job Trotter's fluent tears, By the beadle Bumble's fate At the hands of shrewish mate, By the famous Pickwick Club, By the dream of Gabriel Grubb, In the name of Snodgrass' muse, Tupman's amorous interviews. Winkle's ludicrous mishaps, And the fat boy's countless naps; By Ben Allen and Bob Sawyer, By Miss Sally Brass, the lawyer, In the name of Newman Noggs, River Thames, and London fogs, Richard Swiveller's excess, Feasting with the Marchioness, By Jack Bunsby's oracles, By the chime of Christmas bells, By the cricket on the hearth, By the sound of childish mirth, By spread tables and good cheer. Wayside mns and pots of beer, Hostess plump and jolly host, Coaches for the turnpike post, Chambermaid in love with Boots, Toodles, Traddles, Tapley, Toots, Betsey Trotwood, Mister Dick, Susan Nipper, Mistress Chick, Snevellicci, Lilyvick, Mantalini's predilections To transfer his warm affections, By poor Barnaby and Grip, Flora, Dora, Di, and Gip, Peerybingle, Pinch, and Pip, -Welcome, long-expected guest, Welcome to the grateful West.

In the name of gentle Nell, Child of light, beloved well, - Weeping, did we not behold Roses on her bosom cold? Better we for every tear Shed beside her snowy bier. --By the mournful group that played Round the grave where Smike was laid. By the life of Tiny Tim, And the lesson taught by him, Asking in his plaintive tone God to "bless us every one," By the sounding waves that bore Little Paul to Heaven's shore, By thy yearning for the human Good in every man and woman, By each noble deed and word That thy story-books record, And each noble sentiment Dickens to the world hath lent. By the effort thou hast made Truth and true reform to aid, By thy hope of man's relief Finally from want and grief, By thy never-failing trust That the God of love is just, -We would meet and welcome thee, Preacher of humanity : Welcome fills the throbbing breast Of the sympathetic West.

W H VENABLE.

DICKENS IN CAMP.

Above the pines the moon was slowly drifting,
The river sang below,

The dim Sierras, far beyond, uplifting Their minarets of snow.

The roaring camp-fire, with rude humor, painted The ruddy tints of health

On haggard face and form that drooped and fainted In the fierce race for wealth;

Till one arose, and from his pack's scant treasure A hoarded volume drew,

And cards were dropped from hands of listless leisure.

To hear the tale anew;

And then, while round them shadows gathered faster,

And as the firelight fell,

He read aloud the book wherein the Master Had writ of "Little Nell."

Perhaps 't was boyish fancy, — for the reader Was youngest of them all, — But, as he read, from clustering pine and cedar A silence seemed to fall: The fir-trees, gathering closer in the shadows, Listened in every spray,

While the whole camp, with "Nell," on English meadows

Wandered and lost their way.

And so in mountain solitudes — o'ertaken
As by some spell'divine —

Their cares dropped from them like the needles shaken

From out the gusty pine.

Lost is that camp, and wasted all its fire;
And he who wrought that spell?—
Ah, towering pine and stately Kentish spire,
Ye have one tale to tell!

Lost is that camp! but let its fragrant story
Blend with the breath that thrills
With hop-vines' incense all the pensive glory
That fills the Kentish hills.

And on that grave where English oak and holly
And laurel wreaths intwine,

Deem it not all a too presumptuous folly, —
This spray of Western pine.

BRI I HARTE

TO VICTOR HUGO.

VICTOR in poesy! Victor in romance!

Cloud-weaver of phantasmal hopes and fears!

French of the French and lord of human tears!

Child-lover, bard, whose fame-lit laurels glance, Darkening the wreaths of all that would advance

Beyond our strait their claim to be thy peers!
Weird Titan, by thy wintry weight of years
As yet unbroken! Stormy voice of France,

Who does not love our England, so they say,
I know not! England, France, all men to be,
Will make one people, ere man's race be run:

And I, desiring that diviner day,

Yield thee full thanks for thy full courtesy
To younger England in the boy, my son.

ALCRID TENNYSON.

DANIEL BOONE.

PROM "DON JUAN"

OF all men, saving Sylla the man-slayer,
Who passes for in life and death most lucky,
Of the great names which in our faces stare,
The General Boone, backwoodsman of Kentucky,

Was happiest amongst mortals anywhere;
For, killing nothing but a bear or buck, he Enjoyed the lonely, vigorous, harmless days
Of his old age in wilds of deepest maze.

Crime came not near him, she is not the child Of solitude; Health shrank not from him, for Her home is in the tarely trodden wild,

Where if men seek her not, and death be more Their choice than life, forgive them, as beguiled By habit to what their own hearts abhor, In cities caged. The present case in point 1 Cite is, that Boone lived hunting up to ninety;

And, what's still stranger, left behind a name For which men vainly decimate the throng, Not only famous, but of that good fame,

Without which glory's but a tavern song, — Simple, serene, the antipodes of shame,

Which hate nor envy e'er could tinge with wrong,

An active hermit, even in age the child Of nature, or the Man of Ross run wild.

"T is true he shrank from men, even of his nation; When they built up unto his dailing trees, He moved some hundred miles off, for a station Where there were fewer houses and more ease;

The meanventence of civilization

Is that you neither can be pleased nor please; But where he met the individual man, He showed himself as kind as mortal can.

He was not all alone; around him grew
A sylvan tribe of children of the chase,
Whose young, unwakened world was ever new;
Nor sword nor sorrow yet had left a trace
On her unwrinkled brow, nor could you view

A frown on nature's or on human face.

The freeborn forest found and kept them free,
And fresh as is a torrent or a tree

And tall, and strong, and swift of foot, were they, Beyond the dwarfing city's pale abortions, Because their thoughts had never been the prey Of care or gain: the green woods were their portions:

No sinking spirits told them they grew gray, No fashion made them apes of her distortions; Simple they were, not savage; and their rifles, Though very true, were not yet used for trifles.

Motion was in their days, rest in their slumbers, And cheerfulness the handmaid of their toil; Nor yet too many nor too few their numbers; Corruption could not make their hearts her soil.

The lust which stings, the splendor which encumbers,

With the free foresters divide no spoil: Screne, not sullen, were the solitudes Of this unsighing people of the woods.

LORD BYRON

WASHINGTON.

FROM "UNDER THE ELM," READ AT CAMBRIDGE, JULY 3, 1875, ON THE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OF WASHING-TON'S TAKING COMMAND OF THE AMERICAN ARMY.

BENEATH our consecrated elm A century ago he stood,

Famed vaguely for that old fight in the wood, Which redly foamed round him but could not overwhelm

The life foredoomed to wield our rough-hewn helm.

From colleges, where now the gown
To arms had yielded, from the town,
Our rude self-summoned levies flocked to see
The new-come chiefs and wonder which was he.
No need to question long; close-lipped and tall,
Long trained in murder-brooding forests lone
To bridle others' clamors and his own,
Firmly elect, he towered above them all,
The mearnate discipline that was to free
With iron curb that armed democracy.

Haughty they said he was, at first, severe,
But owned, as all men owned, the steady haud
Upon the bridle, patient to command,
Prized, as all prize, the justice pure from fear,
And leained to honor first, then love him, then revere.

Such power there is in clear-eyed self-restraint,
And purpose clean as light from every selfish taint

Musing beneath the legendary tree,
The years between furl off: I seem to see
The sun-flecks, shaken the stirred foliage through,
Dapple with gold his sober buff and blue,
And weave prophetic aureoles round the head
That shines our beacon now, nor darkens with the dead.

O man of silent mood,

A stranger among strangers then,

How art thou since renowned the Great, the Good,

Familiar as the day in all the homes of men! The winged years, that winnow praise and blame, Blow many names out: they but fan to flame. The self-renewing splendors of thy fame.

O, for a drop of that terse Roman's ink Who gave Agricola dateless length of days,

To celebrate him fitly, neither swerve To phrase unkempt, nor pass discretion's brink, With him so statuelike in sad reserve, So diffident to claim, so forward to deserve! Nor need I shun due influence of his fame Who, mortal among mortals, seemed as now The equestrian shape with unimpassioned brow, That paces silent on through vistas of a claim. What figure more immovably august Than that grave strength so patient and so pure, Calm in good fortune, when it wavered, sure, That soul serene, impenetrably just, Modelled on classic lines, so simple they endure? That soul so softly radiant and so white The track it left seems less of fire than light, Cold but to such as love distemperature? And if pure light, as some deem, be the force That drives rejoicing planets on their course, Why for his power benign seek an impurer

His was the true enthusiasm that burns long, Domestically bright,
Fed from itself and shy of human sight,
The hidden force that makes a lifetime strong,
And not the short-lived fuel of a song.
Passionless, say you? What is passion for
But to sublime our natures and control
To front heroic toils with late return,
Or none, or such as shames the conqueror?
That fire was fed with substance of the soul,
And not with holiday stubble, that could burn
Through seven slow years of unadvancing war,
Equal when fields were lost or fields were won,
With breath of popular applause or blame,
Nor fanned nor damped, unquenchably the same,

Too inward to be reached by flaws of idle fame.

Soldier and statesman, rarest unison;
High-poised example of great duties done
Simply as breathing, a world's honors worn
As life's indifferent gifts to all men born;
Dumb for himself, unless it were to God,
But for his barefoot soldiers eloquent,
Tramping the snow to coral where they trod,
Held by his awe in hollow-eyed content;
Modest, yet firm as Nature's self; unblamed
Save by the men his nobler temper shamed;
Not honored then or now because he wooed
The popular voice, but that he still withstood;
Broad-minded, higher-souled, there is but one
Who was all this, and ours, and all men's,
Washington.

Minds strong by fits, irregularly great, That flash and darken like revolving lights, Catch more the vulgar eye unschooled to wait On the long curve of patient days and nights, Rounding a whole life to the circle fair
Of orbed completeness; and this balanced soul,
So simple in its grandeur, coldly bare
Of draperies theatric, standing there
In perfect symmetry of self-control,
Seems not so great at first, but greater grows
Still as we look, and by experience learn
How grand this quiet is, how nobly stern
The discipline that wrought through life-long

This energetic passion of repose.

A nature too decorous and severe,
Too self-respectful in its griefs and joys
For ardent girls and boys,
Who find no genius in a mind so clear
That its grave depths seem obvious and near,
Nor a soul great that made so little noise.
They feel no force in that calm, cadenced phrase,
The habitual full-dress of his well-bred mind,
That seems to pace the minuet's courtly maze
And tell of ampler leisures, roomier length of days.

His broad-built brain, to self so little kind
That no tumultuary blood could blind,
Formed to control men, not amaze,
Looms not like those that borrow height of haze.
It was a world of statelier movement then
Than this we fret in, he a denizen
Of that ideal Rome that made a man for men.

Placid completeness, life without a fall From faith or highest aims, truth's breachless wall.

Surely if any fame can bear the touch,
His will say "Here!" at the last trumpet's call.
The unexpressive man whose life expressed so much.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

By broad Potomac's silent shore
Better than Trajan lowly lies,
Gilding her green declivities
With glory now and evermore;
Art to his fame no aid hath lent;
His country is his monument.

ANONYMOUS

DANIEL WEBSTER.

WHEN, stricken by the freezing blast, A nation's living pillars fall, How rich the storied page, how vast, A word, a whisper, can recall! No medal lifts its fretted face,

Nor speaking marble cheats your eye;

Yet, while these pictured lines I trace,

A living image passes by:

A roof beneath the mountain pines;
The cloisters of a hill-girt plain;
The front of life's embattled lines;
A mound beside the heaving main.

These are the scenes a boy appears; Set life's round dial in the sun, Count the swift arc of seventy years, His frame is dust; his task is done.

Yet pause upon the noontide hour, Ere the declining sun has laid His bleaching rays on manhood's power, And look upon the mighty shade.

No gloom that stately shape can hide, No change uncrown his brow; behold! Dark, calm, large-fronted, lightning-eyed, Earth has no double from its mould!

Ere from the fields by valor won
The battle-smoke had rolled away,
And bared the blood-red setting sun,
His eyes were opened on the day.

His land was but a shelving strip,
Black with the strife that made it free;
He lived to see its banners dip
Their fringes in the western sea.

The boundless prairies learned his name, His words the mountain echoes knew; The northern breezes swept his fame From icy lake to warm bayou.

In toil he lived; in peace he died;
When life's full cycle was complete,
Put off his robes of power and pride,
And laid them at his Master's feet.

His rest is by the storm-swept waves,
Whom life's wild tempests roughly tried,
Whose heart was like the streaming caves
Of ocean, throbbing at his side.

Death's cold white hand is like the snow Laid softly on the furrowed hill; It hides the broken seams below, And leaves the summit brighter still.

In vain the envious tongue upbraids;
His name a nation's heart shall keep,
Till morning's latest sunlight fades
On the blue tablet of the deep!
OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

ICHABOD.

DANIEL WEBSTER 1990

So fallen! so lost! the light withdrawn, Which once he wore! The glory from his gray hairs gone Forevermore!

Revile him not, — the Tempter hath
A snare for all '
And pitying tears, not scorn and wrath,
Befit his fall '

O, dumb be passion's stormy rage, When he who might Have lighted up and led his age Falls back in night '

Scorn ' would the angels laugh to mark A bright soul driven, Fiend-goaded, down the endless dark, From hope and heaven?

Let not the land, once proud of him,
Insult him now;
Nor brand with deeper shame his dim,
Dishonored brow.

But let its humbled sons instead,
From sea to lake,
A long lament, as for the dead,
In sadness make.

Of all we loved and honored, naught
Save power remains, —
A fallen angel's pride of thought,
Still strong in chains.

All else is gone; from those great eyes
The soul has fied:
When faith is lost, when honor dies,
The man is dead!

Then pay the reverence of old days
To his dead fame;
Walk backward, with averted gaze,
And hide the shame!

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER

THE DEAD CZAR NICHOLAS.

LAY him beneath his snows,
The great Norse giant who in these last days
Troubled the nations. Gather decently
The imperial robes about him. 'T is but man,—

This demi-god. Or rather it was man, And is — a little dust, that will corrupt As fast as any nameless dust which sleeps 'Neath Alma's grass or Balaklava's vines.

No vineyard grave for him. No quiet tomb By river margin, where across the seas Children's fond thoughts and women's memories come.

Like angels, to sit by the sepulchre, Saying. "All these were men who knew to count, Front-faced, the cost of honor, nor did shrink From its full payment; coming here to die, They died — like men."

But this man? Ah! for him Funereal state, and ceremonial grand, The stone-engraved sarcophagus, and then Oblivion.

Nay, oblivion were as bliss
To that fierce howl which rolls from land to land
Exulting, — "Art thou fallen, Lucifer, Son of the morning?" or condemning, — "Thus Perish the wicked!" or blaspheming, -- "Here
Lies our Belshazzar, our Sennacherth,
Our Pharaoh, — he whose heart God hardenèd,
So that he would not let the people go."

Self-glorifying sinners! Why, this man Was but like other men, -you, Levite small, Who shut your saintly ears, and prate of hell And heretics, because outside church-doors, Your church-doors, congregations poor and small Praise Heaven in their own way; you, autociat Of all the hamlets, who add field to field And house to house, whose slavish children cower Before your tyrant footstep; you, foul-tongued Fanatic or ambitious egotist,

To lay his finger on your puny head,
And crown it, that you henceforth may parade
Your maggotship throughout the wondering

world, —
"I am the Lord's anointed ""

Fools and blind '
This czar, this emperor, this disthroned corpse,
Lying so straightly in an icy calm
Grander than sovereignty, was but as ye,—
No better and no worse: Heaven mend us all '

Carry him forth and bury him Death's peace Rest on his memory! Mency by his bier Sits silent, or says only these few words, — "Let him who is without sin 'mongst ye all Cast the first stone."

DINAH MARIA MULOCK CRAIK.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

FROM THE "COMMEMORATION ODE."

LIFE may be given in many ways,
And loyalty to Truth be sealed
As bravely in the closet as the field,
So bountiful is Fate;
But then to stand beside her,
When craven churls deride her,
To front a lie in arms and not to yield,
This shows, methinks, God's plan
And measure of a stalwart man,
Limbed like the old heroic breeds,
Who stand self-poised on manhood's solid earth,

Not forced to frame excuses for his birth, Fed from within with all the strength he needs.

Such was he, our Martyr-Chief,
Whom late the Nation he had led,
With ashos on her head,
Wept with the passion of an angry grief:
Forgive me, if from present things I turn
To speak what in my heart will heat and burn,
And hang my wreath on his world-honored urn

Nature, they say, doth dote,
And cannot make a man
Save on some worn-out plan,
Repeating us by rote:
or humber Old-World moulds as

For him her Old-World moulds aside he threw, And, choosing sweet clay from the breast Of the unexhausted West,

With sfull untainted shaped a hero new, Wise, steadfast in the strength of God, and truc.

How beautiful to see

Once more a shepherd of mankind indeed,

Who loved his charge, but never loved to lead, One whose meek flock the people joyed to be, Not lured by any cheat of birth,

But by his clear-grained human worth, And brave old wisdom of sincerity!

They knew that outward grace is dust;

They could not choose but trust

In that sure-footed mind's unfaltering skill,
And supple-tempered will

That bent like perfect steel to spring again and thrust.

His was no lonely mountain-peak of mind,
Thrusting to thin air o'er our cloudy bars,
A sea-mark now, now lost in vapors blind;
Broad praine rather, genial, level-lined,
Fruitful and friendly for all human kind,
Yet also nigh to heaven and loved of loftiest stars.

Nothing of Europe here,
Or, then, of Europe fronting mornward still,
Ere any names of Serf and Peer

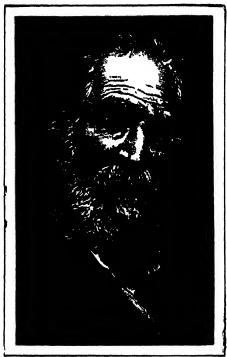

Could Nature's equal scheme deface;

ON THE LIFE-MASK OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

This bronze doth keep the very form and mould Of our great martyr's face. Yes, this is he: That brow all wisdom, all benignity; That human, humorous mouth; those cheeks that hold Like some harsh landscape all the summer's gold; That spirit fit for sorrow, as the sea For storms to beat on; the lone agony Those silent, patient lips too well foretold. Yes, this is he who ruled a world of men As might some prophet of the elder day,—Brooding above the tempest and the fray With deep-eyed thought and more than mortal ken. A power was his beyond the touch of art Of armèd strength: his pure and mighty heart.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER.

After an Engraving by Wm. J. Linton.

OUT FROM BEHIND THIS MASK.

To confront his Portrait for "The Wound Dresser" in "Leaves of Grass."

OUT from behind this bending, rough-cut mask.

These lights and shades, this drama of the whole,

This common curtain of the face, contain'd in me for me, in you for you, in each for each.

(Tragedies, sorrows, laughter, tears — O heaven!

The passionate teeming plays this curtain hid!)

This glaze of God's serenest, purest sky, This film of Satan's seething pit,

This heart's geography's map, this limitless small continent, this soundless sea:

Out from the convolutions of this globe, This subtler astronomic orb than sun or moon, than Jupiter, Venus. Mars,

This condensation of the universe (nay, here the only universe, Here the idea, all in this mystic handful wrapt);

These burin'd eyes, flashing to you, to pass to future time,

To launch and spin through space, revolving, sideling, from these to emanate

To you - whoe'er you are - a look.

A traveler of thoughts and years, of peace and war,

Of youth long sped and middling age declining

(As the first volume of a tale perused and laid away, and this the second, Songs, ventures, speculations, presently to close),

Lingering a moment here and now, to you I opposite turn,

As on the road, or at some crevice door by chance, or open'd window,

Pausing, inclining, baring my head, you specially I greet,

To draw and clinch your soul for once inseparably with mine,
Then travel, travel on.

Here was a type of the true elder race, And one of Plutarch's men talked with us face to face.

I praise him not; it were too late;
And some innative weakness there must be
In him who condescends to victory
Such as the Present gives, and cannot wait,
Safe in himself as in a fate
So always firmly he.
He knew to bide his time,
And can his fame abide,
Still patient in his simple faith sublime,
Till the wise years decide.
Great captains, with their guns and drums

Great captains, with their guns and drums, Disturb our judgment for the hour, But at last silence comes;

These all are gone, and, standing like a tower, Our children shall behold his fame,

The kindly-earnest, brave, foreseeing man, Sagacious, patient, dreading praise, not blame, New birth of our new soil, the first American.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.*

FOULLY ASSASSINATED APRIL 14, 1865

You lay a wreath on murdered Lincoln's bier,
You, who with mocking pencil wont to trace,
Broad for the self-complacent British sneer,
His length of shambling limb, his furrowed face,

His gaunt, gnarled hands, his unkempt, bristling hair,

His garb uncouth, his bearing ill at ease, His lack of all we prize as debonair, Of power or will to shine, of art to please,

You, whose smart pen backed up the pencil's laugh,

Judging each step as though the way were plain,

Reckless, so it could point its paragraph Of chief's perplexity, or people's pain

Beside this corpse, that bears for winding-sheet The Stars and Stripes he lived to rear anew, Between the mourners at his head and feet, Say, scurrile jester, is there room for you?

Yes: he had lived to shame me from my sneer,
To lame my pencil, and confute my pen;
To make me own this hind of princes peer,
This rail-splitter a true-born king of men.

• This tribute appeared in the Londón Punch, which, up to the time of the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, had ridiculed and maligned him with all its well-known powers of pen and pencil My shallow judgment I had learned to rue,

Noting how to occasion's height he rose;

How his quaint wit made home-truth seem more true;

How, iron-like, his temper grew by blows.

How humble, yet how hopeful, he could be; How, in good fortune and in ill, the same; Nor bitter in success, nor boastful he, Thirsty for gold, nor teverish for fame.

He went about his work, — such work as few Ever had laid on head and heart and hand, —
As one who knows, where there's a task to do, Man's honest will must Heaven's good grace command;

Who trusts the strength will with the burden grow,

That God makes instruments to work his will, If but that will we can arrive to know, Nor tamper with the weights of good and ill.

So he went forth to battle, on the side
That he felt clear was Liberty's and Right's,
As in his peasant boyhood he had plied
His warfare with rude Nature's thwarting mights,

The uncleared forest, the unbroken soil,

The iron-bark, that turns the lumberer's axe,
The rapid, that o'erbears the boatman's toil,
The prairie, inding the mazed wanderer's tracks,

The ambushed Indian, and the prowling bear,— Such were the deeds that helped his youth to train:

Rough culture, but such trees large fruit may bear,

If but their stocks be of right girth and grain.

So he grew up, a destined work to do, And lived to do it: four long-suffering years' Ill-fate, ill-feeling, ill-report, lived through, And then he heard the hisses change to cheers,

The taunts to tribute, the abuse to praise,
And took both with the same unwavering mood;
Till, as he came on light, from darkling days,
And seemed to touch the goal from where he stood,

A felon hand, between the goal and him,
Reached from behind his back, a trigger prest,
And those perplexed and patient eyes were dim,
Those gaunt, long-laboring limbs were laid to rest!

The words of mercy were upon his lips,
Forgiveness in his heart and on his pen,
When this vile murderer brought swift eclipse
To thoughts of peace on earth, good-will to men.

The Old World and the New, from sea to sea,
Utter one voice of sympathy and shame:
Sore heart, so stopped when it at last beat high;
Sad life, cut short just as its triumph came!

A deed accurst! Strokes have been struck before By the assassin's hand, whereof men doubt If more of horror or disgrace they bore; But thy foul crime, like Cain's, stands darkly out.

Vile hand, that brandest murder on a strife,
Whate'erits grounds, stoutly and nobly striven;
And with the martyr's crown crownest a life
With much to praise, little to be forgiven.

Ton laylor

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON.

"Some time afterward, it was reported to me by the city officers that they had ferreted out the paper and its editor, that his office was an obscure hole, his only visible auxiliary a negro boy, and his supporters a few very insignificant persons of all colors "— Letter of H G OTIS.

In a small chamber, friendless and unseen, Toiled o'er his types one poor, unlearned young man;

The place was dark, unfurnitured, and mean: Yet there the freedom of a race began.

Help came but slowly; surely no man yet
Put lever to the heavy world with less:
What need of help? He knew how types were set,
He had a dauntless spirit, and a press.

Such earnest natures are the fiery pith,

The compact nucleus, round which systems grow.

Mass after mass becomes inspired therewith,

And whirls impregnate with the central glow

O Truth! O Freedom! how are ye still born In the rude stable, in the manger nursed! What humble hands unbar those gates of morn Through which the splendors of the New Day burst!

What! shall one monk, scarce known beyond his cell.

Front Rome's far-reaching bolts, and scorn her frown?

Brave Luther answered Yes; that thunder's swell Rocked Europe, and discharmed the triple crown. Whatever can be known of earth we know, Sneered Europe's wise men, in their snailshells curled:

No! said one man in Genoa, and that No Out of the dark created this New World.

Who is it will not dare himself to trust?
Who is it hath not strength to stand alone?
Who is it thwarts and bilks the inward Must?
He and his works, like sand, from earth are blown

Men of a thousand shifts and wiles, look here! See one straightforward conscience put in pawn To win a world; see the obedient sphere By bravery's simple gravitation drawn!

Shall we not heed the lesson taught of old,
And by the Present's hps repeated still,
In our own single manhood to be bo'd,
Fortressed in conscience and impregnable will?

We stride the river daily at its spring,

Nor, in our childish thoughtlessness, foresee
What myriad vassal streams shall tribute bring,
How like an equal it shall greet the sea.

O small beginnings, ye are great and strong,
Based on a faithful heart and wearrless brain!
Ye build the future fair, ye conquer wrong,
Ye earn the crown, and wear it not in vain.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

THE OLD ADMIRAL

ADMIRAL SILWARI, U S NAVY.

GONE at last,

That brave old hero of the past!
His spirit has a second birth,
An unknown, grander life;
All of him that was earth
Lies mute and cold,
Like a wrinkled sheath and old,
Thrown off forever from the shimmering blade
That has good entrance made

From another generation,

A simpler age, to ours Old Ironsides came; The morn and noontide of the nation Alike he knew, nor yet outlived his fame, -

Upon some distant, glorious strife.

O, not outlived his fame!

The dauntless men whose service guards our shore Lengthen still their glory-roll With his name to lead the scroll,

As a flagship at her fore

Carries the Union, with its azure and the stars, Symbol of times that are no more And the old heroic wars. He was the one

Whom Death had spared alone

Of all the captains of that lusty age, Who sought the foeman where he lay, On sea or sheltering bay,

Nor till the prize was theirs repressed their rage.

They are gone, — all gone :

They rest with glory and the undying Powers; Only their name and fame, and what they saved, are ours!

It was fifty years ago,

Upon the Gallic Sea,

He bore the banner of the free,

And fought the fight whereof our children know, ---

The deathful, desperate fight !

Under the fair moon's light

The frigate squared, and yawed to left and right. Every broadside swept to death a score!

Roundly played her guns and well, till their thery ensigns fell,

Neither for replying more

All in silence, when the night-breeze cleared the Old Ironsides rested there.

Locked in between the twain, and dienched with

Then homeward, like an eagle with her prey!

O, it was a gallant fray, -

That fight in Biscay Bay!

Fearless the captain stood, in his youthful haidi-

He was the boldest of them all, Our brave old Admiral !

And still our heroes bleed. Taught by that olden deed.

Whether of iron or of oak

The ships we marshal at our country's need, Still speak their cannon now as then they spoke;

Still floats our unstruck banner from the mast As in the stormy past.

Lay him in the ground

Let him rest where the ancient river rolls; Let him sleep beneath the shadow and the sound Of the bell whose proclamation, as it tolls,

Is of Freedom and the gift our fathers gave.

Lay him gently down

The clamor of the town

Will not break the slumbers deep, the beautiful, ripe sleep,

Of this lion of the wave,

Will not trouble the old Admiral in his grave. Sounded his triumph. Texas, wild and grim,

Earth to earth his dust is laid. Methinks his stately shade

On the shadow of a great ship leaves the shore;

Over cloudless western seas Seeks the far Hesperides,

The islands of the blest,

Where no turbulent billows roar, --

Where is rest.

His ghost upon the shadowy quarter stands Nearing the deathless lands.

There all his martial mates, renewed and stiong,

Await his coming long.

I see the happy Heroes rise

With gratulation in their eyes :

"Welcome, old comrade," Lawrence cries;

"Ah, Stewart, tell us of the wars!

Who win the glory and the scars?

How floats the skyey flag, - how many stars?

Still speak they of Decatur's name? Of Bambridge's and Perry's fame !

Of me, who earliest came &

Make ready, all:

Room for the Admiral!

Come, Stewart, tell us of the wars '"

FDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN

KANE.

DIED FEBRUARY 16, 1857.

ALOFT upon an old basaltic crag,

Which, scalped by keen winds that defend the Pole,

Gazes with dead face on the seas that roll

Around the secret of the mystic zone, A mighty nation's star-bespangled flag Flutters alone,

And underneath, upon the lifeless front

Of that drear chiff, a simple name is traced; Fit type of him who, famishing and gaunt,

But with a rocky purpose in his soul,

Breasted the gathering snows, (lung to the drifting floes,

By want beleaguered, and by winter chased, Seeking the brother lost amid that frozen waste.

Not many months ago we greeted him,

. Crowned with the icy honors of the North,

Across the land his hard-won fame went forth, And Mame's deep woods were shaken limb by limb.

His own mild Keystone State, sedate and prim, Burst from decorous quiet, as he came.

Hot Southern hips, with eloquence affame,

Proffered its horny hand. The large-lunged West,
From out his giant breast,
Yelled its frank welcome. And from main to main Jubilant to the sky,
Thundered the mighty cry,
HONOR TO KANE!

In vain, — in vain beneath his feet we flung
The reddening roses! All in vain we poured
The golden wine, and round the shining board
Sent the toast circling, till the rafters rung
With the thrice-tripled honors of the feast!
Scarce the buds wilted and the voices ceased
Ere the pure light that sparkled in his eyes,
Bright as auroral fires in Southern skies,

Faded and faded! And the brave young heart That the relentless Arctic winds had robbed Of all its vital heat, in that long quest For the lost captain, now within his breast

More and more faintly throbbed. His was the victory; but as his grasp Closed on the laurel crown with eager clasp,

Death launched a whistling dart; And ere the thunders of applause were done His bright eyes closed forever on the sun! Too late, — too late the splendid prize he won In the Olympic race of Science and of Art! Like to some shattered berg that, pale and lone, Drifts from the white North to a Tropic zone,

And in the burning day
Wastes peak by peak away,
Till on some rosy even
It dies with sunlight blessing it; so he Tranquilly floated to a Southern sea,
And melted into heaven!

He needs no tears who lived a noble life!

We will not weep for him who died so well;

But we will gather round the hearth, and tell

The story of his strife;

Such homage suits him well,

Better than funeral pomp or passing bell!

What tale of peril and self-sacrifice!

Prisoned amid the fastnesses of ice,

With hunger howling o'er the wastes of snow!

Night lengthening into months; the ravenous

floe
Crunching the massive ships, as the white bear
Crunches his prey. The insufficient share
Of loathsome food:

The lethargy of famine; the despair
Urging to labor, nervelessly pursued:
Toil done with skinny arms, and faces hued
Like pallid masks, while dolefully behind
Glimmered the fading embers of a mind!
That awful hour, when through the prostrate band
Delirium stalked, laying his burning hand

Upon the ghastly foreheads of the crew;
The whispers of rebellion, faint and few
At first, but deepening ever till they grew
Into black thoughts of murder, — such the throng
Of horrors bound the hero. High the song
Should be that hymns the noble part he played!
Sinking himself, yet ministering aid

To all around him. By a mighty will Living defiant of the wants that kill,
Because his death would seal his comrades' fate;
Cheering with ceaseless and inventive skill
Those polar waters, dark and desolate.
Equal to every trial, every fate,
He stands, until spring, tardy with relief,
Unlocks the icy gate,

And the pale prisoners thread the world once more.

To the steep cliffs of Greenland's pastoral shore Bearing their dying chief!

Time was when he should gain his spurs of gold' From royal hands, who wooed the knightly state:

The knell of old formalities is tolled,

And the world's knights are now self-consecrate.

No grander episode doth chivalry hold
In all its annals, back to Charlemagne,
Than that lone vigil of unceasing pain,
Faithfully keptthrough hunger and through cold,
By the good Christian knight, Elisha Kane!

I ITZ-JAMES O'BRIEN

MAZZINI.

A LIGHT is out in Italy,
A golden tongue of purest flame.
We watched it burning, long and lone,
And every watcher knew its name,
And knew from whence its fervor came:
That one rare light of Italy,
Which put self seeking souls to shame!

This light which burnt for Italy
Through all the blackness of her night,
She doubted, once upon a time,
Because it took away her sight.
She looked and said, 'There is no light!"
It was thine eyes, poor Italy!
That knew not dark apart from bright.

This flame which burnt for Italy,
It would not let her haters sleep.
They blew at it with angry breath,
And only fed its upward leap,
And only made it hot and deep.

Its burning showed us Italy, And all the hopes she had to keep.

This light is out in Italy,

Her eyes shall seek for it in vain!

For her sweet sake it spent itself,

Too early flickering to its wane, —

Too long blown over by her pain.

Bow down and weep, O Italy,

Thou canst not kindle it again!

LAURA C. REDDEN (Howard Glyndon)

JOHN CHARLES FREMONT.

Thy error, Fremont, simply was to act
A brave man's part, without the statesman's tact,
And, taking counsel but of common sense,
To strike at cause as well as consequence.
O, never yet since Roland wound his horn
At Roncesvalles has a blast been blown
Far-heard, wide-echoed, startling as thine own,
Heard from the van of freedom's hope to lorn '
It had been safer, doubtless, for the time,
To flatter treason, and avoid offence
To that Dark Power whose underlying crime
Heaves upward its perpetual turbulence.
But, if thine be the fate of all who break
The ground for truth's seed, or forerun their years

Till lost in distance, or with stout hearts make A lane for freedom through the level spears, Still take thou courage! God has spoken through thee.

Irrevocable, the mighty words, Be free 'The land shakes with them, and the slave's dull Turns from the rice-swamp stealthily to hear.

Who would recall them now must first arrest
The winds that blow down from the free North-

Ruffling the Gulf; or like a scroll roll back
The Mississippi to its upper springs.
Such words fulfil their prophecy, and lack
But the full time to harden into things.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER

TO THE MEMORY OF FLETCHER HARPER.

No soldier, statesman, hierophant, or king; None of the heroes that you poets sing; A toiler ever since his days began, Simple, though shrewd, just-judging, man to man; God-fearing, learned in life's hard-taught school; By long obedience lessoned how to rule; Through many an early struggle led to find That crown of prosperous fortune, — to be kind. Lay on his breast these English daisies sweet! Good rest to the gray head and the tired feet That walked this world for seventy steadfast years!

Bury him with fond blessings and few tears,
Or only of remembrance, not regret
On his full life the eternal seal is set,
Unbroken till the resurrection day.
So let his children's children go their way,
Go and do likewise, leaving 'neath this sod
An honest man, "the noblest work of God."

DINAH MARIA MULOCK CRAIK.

THE FIFTIETH BIRTHDAY OF AGASSIZ

MAY 28, 1857

Ir was fifty years ago,
In the pleasant month of May,
In the beautiful Pays de Vaud,
A child in its cradle lay.

And Nature, the old nurse, took.
The child upon her knee,
Saying, "Here is a story-book
Thy Father has written for thee."

"Come, wander with me," she said,
"Into regions yet untrod,
And read what is still unread
In the manuscripts of God."

And he wandered away and away
With Nature, the dear old nurse,
Who sang to him night and day
The rhymes of the universe.

And whenever the way seemed long, Or his heart began to fail, She would sing a more wonderful song, Or tell a more marvellous tale.

So she keeps him still a child, And will not let him go, Though at times his heart beats wild For the beautiful Pays de Vaud;

Though at times he hears in his dreams
The Ranz des Vaches of old,
And the rush of mountain streams
From glaciers clear and cold;

And the mother at home says, "Hark!
For his voice I listen and yearn:
It is growing late and dark,
And my boy does not return!"
HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

THE PRAYER OF AGASSIZ.

On the isle of Penikese,
Ringed about by sapphire seas,
Fanned by breezes salt and cool,
Stood the Master with his school.
Over sails that not in vain
Wooed the west-wind's steady strain,
Line of coast that low and far Stretched its undulating bu,
Wings aslant along the rim
Of the waves they stooped to skiin,
Rock and isle and glistening bay,
Fell the beautiful white day.

Said the Master to the youth . "We have come in search of truth. Trying with uncertain key Door by door of mystery; We are reaching, through His laws, To the garment-hem of Cause, Him, the endless, unbegun, The Unnameable, the One, Light of all our light the Source, Life of life, and Force of force. As with fingers of the blind, We are groping here to find What the hieroglyphics mean Of the Unseen in the seen, What the Thought which underlies Nature's masking and disguise, What it is that hides beneath Blight and bloom and buth and death. By past efforts unavailing, Doubt and error, loss and failing, Of our weakness made aware. On the threshold of our task Let us light and guidance ask, Let us pause in silent prayer !"

Then the Master in his place Bowed his head a little space, And the leaves by soft airs stirred, Lapse of wave and cry of bird, Left the solemn hush unbroken Of that wordless prayer unspoken, While its wish, on earth unsaid, Rose to heaven interpreted. As in life's best hours we hear By the spirit's finer ear His low voice within us, thus The All-Father heareth us; And his holy ear we pain With our noisy words and vain. Not for him our violence, Storning at the gates of sense, His the primal language, his The eternal silences! Even the careless heart was moved, And the doubting gave assent, With a gesture reverent. To the Master well-beloved. As thin mists are glorified By the light they cannot hide, All who gazed upon him saw, Through its veil of tender awe, How his face was still uplit By the old sweet look of it, Hopeful, trustful, full of cheer, And the love that casts out fear. Who the secret may declare Of that brief, unuttered prayer? Did the shade before him come Of the mevitable doom, Of the end of earth so near, And Eternity's new year ?

In the lap of sheltering seas Rests the isle of Penikese, But the lord of the domain Comes not to his own again Where the eyes that follow fail, On a vaster sea his sail Drifts beyond our beck and hail! Other hips within its bound Shall the laws of life expound, Other eyes from tock and shell Read the world's old middles well; But when breezes light and bland Blow from Summer's blossomed land, When the air is glad with wings, And the blithe song-sparrow sings, Many an eye with his still face Shall the living ones displace, Many an ear the word shall seek He alone could fitly speak. And one name forevernore Shall be uttered o'er and o'er By the waves that kiss the shore, By the curlew's whistle, sent Down the cool, sea-scented air: In all voices known to her Nature own her worshipper, Half in triumph, half lament. Thither love shall tearful turn. Friendship pause uncovered there, And the wisest reverence learn From the Master's silent prayer. JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIEK

TO HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW,

ON HIS BIRTHDAY, 27TH FEBRUARY, 1867.

I NEED not praise the sweetness of his song,
Where limpid verse to limpid verse succeeds Smooth as our Charles, when, fearing lest he wrong

The new moon's mirrored skiff, he slides along, Full without noise, and whispers in his reeds.

With loving breath of all the winds his name
Is blown about the world, but to his friends
A sweeter secret hides behind his fame,
And Love steals shyly through the loud acclaim
To murmur a God bless you! and there ends.

As I muse backward up the checkered years,
Wherein so much was given, so much was lost,
Blessings in both kinds, such as cheapen tears—
But hush! this is not for profaner ears,

Let them drink molten pearls nor dream the cost,

Some suck up poison from a sorrow's core, As naught but nightshade grew upon earth's ground;

Love turned all his to heart's-ease, and the more Fate tried his bastions, she but forced a door, Leading to sweeter manhood and more sound

Even as a wind-waved fountain's swaying shade Seems of mixed race, a gray whath shot with sun, So through his trial faith translucent rayed, Till darkness, half disnatured so, betrayed A heart of sunshme that would tain o'eriun

Surely if skill in song the shears may stay,
And of its purpose cheat the charmed abyss,
If our poor life be lengthened by a lay,
He shall not go, although his presence may,
And the next age in praise shall double this.

Long days be his, and each as lusty-sweet
As gracious natures find his song to be;
May Age steal on with softly cadenced feet
Falling in music, as for him were meet
Whose choicest verse is harsher-toned than he!

JAMES RUSSILL LOWELL

JOSEPH RODMAN DRAKE.

DIED IN NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER, 1820

GREEN be the turf above thee, Friend of my better days! None knew thee but to love thee, Nor named thee but to praise, Tears fell, when thou wert dying, From eyes unused to weep, And long, where thou art lying, Will tears the cold turf steep.

When hearts, whose truth was proven, Like thine, are laid in earth, There should a wreath be woven To tell the world their worth;

And I, who woke each morrow
To clasp thy hand in mine,
Who shared thy joy and sorrow,
Whose weal and woe were thine.

It should be mine to braid it
Around thy faded brow,
But I've in vain essayed it,
And feel I cannot now.

While memory bids me weep thee, Nor thoughts nor words are free, The guef is fixed too deeply That mourns a man like thee.

FITZ-GRELNE HALLECK

FITZ-GREENE HALLECK.

READ AT THE UNITHING OF HIS STATUE IN CENTRAL PARK, MAY, 1877

Awong their graven shapes to whom Thy civic wreaths belong, O city of his love 1 make room For one whose gift was song.

Not his the soldier's sword to wield, Nor his the helm of state, Nor glory of the stricken field, Nor triumph of debate.

In common ways, with common men,
He served his race and time
As well as if his clerkly pen
Had never danced to rhyme.

If, in the thronged and noisy mart, The Muses found then son, Could any say his tuneful art A duty left undone?

He toiled and sang, and year by year Men found then homes more sweet, And through a tenderer atmosphere Looked down the brick-walled street.

The Greek's wild onset Wall Street knew,
The Red King walked Broadway;
And Alnwick Castle's roses blew
From Palisades to Bay.

Fair City by the Sea! upraise
His veil with reverent hands;
And mingle with thy own the praise
And pride of other lands.

Let Greece his fiery lyric breathe
Above her hero-urns;
And Scotland, with her holly, wreathe
The flower he culled for Burns.

O, stately stand thy palace walls,
Thy tall ships ride the seas;
To-day thy poet's name recalls
A prouder thought than these.

Not less thy pulse of trade shall beat, Nor less thy tall fleets swim, That shaded square and dusty street Are classic ground through him.

Alive, he loved, like all who sing, The echoes of his song; Too late the tardy meed we bring, The praise delayed so long.

Too late, alas! — Of all who knew The living man, to-day Before his unveiled face, how few Make bare their locks of gray!

Our lips of praise must soon be dumb, Our grateful eyes be dim; O, brothers of the days to come, Take tender charge of him '

New hands the wires of song may sweep,
New voices challenge fame;
But let no moss of years o'ercreep
The lines of Halleck's name.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER

FRAGMENTS.

CHAUCER.

As that renowmed poet them compyled
With warlike numbers and heroicke sound,
Dan Chaucer, well of English undefyled,
In Fame's eternall beadroll worthie to be fyled.
Factic Queene, Book iv. Cane. ii.

Spenser

THE EARL OF WARWICK.

'eace, impudent and shameless Warwick!
'roud setter-up and puller-down of kings.

King Honry VI., Part III. Act III. Sc. 3 SHAKESPEARE.

THE DUKE OF GLOSTER.

I, that am rudely stamped and want love's majesty

To strut before a wanton ambling nymph; I, that am curtailed of this fair proportion, Cheated of feature by dissembling nature, Deformed, unfinished, sent before my time Into this breathing world, scarce half made up, And that so lamely and unfashionable That dogs bark at me as I halt by them, — Why, I, in this weak piping time of peace, Have no delight to pass away the time, Unless to see my shadow in the sun.

King Richard III, Act 1 Sc 1.

SHAKESPEARE

GALILEO.

The starry Galileo, with his woes.

Childe Harold, Cant iv

BYRON.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY.

The admired mirror, glory of our isle,
Thou far, far more than mortal man, whose style
Struck more men dumb to hearken to thy song
Than Orpheus' harp, or Tully's golden tongue.
To him, as right, for wit's deep quintessence,
For honor, valor, virtue, excellence,
Be all the garlands, crown his tomb with bay,
Who spake as much as e'er our tongue can say.

Britannia's Pasterals, Book in Song 2. W BROWNE

EDMUND SPENSER.

Divinest Spenser, heaven-bred, happy Muse!
Would any power into my brain infuse
Thy worth, or all that poets had before,
I could not praise till thou deserv'st no more.

Britannia's Pastorals, Book ii Song i W BROWNE

I was promised on a time
To have reason for my rhyme;
From that time unto this season,
I received nor rhyme nor reason.
Lines on his promised Pension

SPENSER

CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE.

For that fine madness still he did retain,
Which rightly should possess a poet's brain.
To Henry Reynolds: Of Poets and Poety. M DRAYTON

LORD BACON.

If parts allure thee, think how Bacon shined, The wisest, brightest, meanest of mankind ' Essay on Man, Epistle IV. POPE.

BEN JONSON.

O rare Ben Jonson!

SIR J. YOUNG-

What things have we seen

Done at the Mermaid! heard words that have
been

So nimble, and so full of subtle flame,
As if that every one from whence they came
Had meant to put his whole wit in a jest,
And had resolved to live a fool the rest
Of his dull life: then when there hath been thrown

Wit able enough to justify the town

For three days past; wit that might warrant be

For the whole city to talk foolishly

Fill that were cancelled; and when that was gone,

We left an air behind us, which alone

Was able to make the two next companies

(Right witty, though but downright fools) more wise.

Letter to Ben Jonson.

F. BLAUMONT.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE.

Far from the sun and summer gale, In thy green lap was Nature's darling laid, What time, where lucid Avon strayed,

To him the mighty mother did unveil
Her awful face: the dauntless child
Stretched forth his little arms and smiled
"This pencil take," she said, "whose colors clear
Richly paint the vernal year.

Thine too these golden keys, immortal boy!
This can unlock the gates of joy;

Of horror that, and thrilling fears,

Ir ope the sacred source of sympathetic tears."

Progress of Poesy
T. GRAY.

Renowned Spenser, lie a thought more nigh
To learned Chaucer, and rare Beaumont lie
A little nearer Spenser, to make room
For Shakespeare in your threefold, fourfold tomb.
On Shakespeare
W. BASSE.

ABRAHAM COWLEY.

Old mother-wit and nature gave Shakespeare and Fletcher all they have;
In Spenser and in Jonson art
Of slower nature got the start;
But both in him so equal are,
None knows which bears the happiest share;
To him no author was unknown,
Yet what he wrote was all his own

Blery on Cowley.

SIR J. DENHAM.

EARL OF MARLBOROUGH.

[Lord-President of the Council to King James 1. Parliament was dissolved March 10, and he died March 24, 1628]

Till the sad breaking of that Parliament Broke him. . . .

Killed with report that old man eloquent.

To the Lady Margaret Ley.

MILTON.

JOHN WICKLIFFE.

As thou these ashes, little Brook! wilt bear
Into the Avon, Avon to the tide
Of Severn, Severn to the narrow seas,
Into main ocean they, this deed accursed
An emblem yields to friends and enemies,
How the bold Teacher's doctrine, sanctified
By truth, shall spread, throughout the world dispersed.

Eccles. Sonnets, Part II. xvii : To Wickliffe. WORDSWORTH

(Bartlett quotes, in this connection, the following:)

"Some prophet of that day said:

"The Avon to the Severn runs,

The Severn to the sea;

And Wickliffe's dust shall spread abroad, Wide as the waters be.'"

From Address before the "Sons of New Hampshure" (1849).
DANIEL WEBSTER.

JOHN MILTON.

Nor second he, that rode sublime Upon the scraph-wings of cestasy, The secrets of the abyse to spy.

He passed the flaming bounds of place and time The living throne, the sapphire blaze, Where angels tremble while they gaze, He saw; but, blasted with excess of light, Closed his eyes in endless night.

Progress of Poesy

T. GRAY.

OLIVER CROMWELL.

How shall I then begin, or where conclude,
To draw a fame so truly circular?
For in a round what order can be showed,
Where all the parts so equal perfect are?

His grandeur he derived from Heaven alone;
For he was great, ere fortune made him so:
And wars, like mists that rise against the sun,
Made him but greater seem, not greater grow.

Oliver Cromwell.

J. DRYDEN.

Or, ravished with the whistling of a name, See Cromwell, damned to everlasting fame! Essay on Man, Epssile IV.

KING CHARLES II.

Here lies our sovereign lord the king,
Whose word no man relies on;
He never says a foolish thing,
Nor ever does a wise one.

Written on the Bedchamber Door of Charles II. EARL OF ROCHESIFR

JAMES THOMSON.

A bard here dwelt, more fat than bard beseems Who, void of envy, guile, and lust of gain, On virtue still, and nature's pleasing themes, Poured forth his unpremeditated strain The world forsaking with a calm disdam, Here laughed he careless in his easy seat, Here quaffed, encircled with the joyous train, Oft moralizing sage: his ditty sweet He loathed much to write, ne cared to repent Stanza introduced into Thomson's "Castle of Indolence," (ant i

LORD I YTTELTON

In yonder grave a Druid lies,
Where slowly winds the stealing wave;
The year's best sweets shall duteous rise
To deck its poet's sylvan grave.

And see, the fairy valleys fade;
Dun night has veiled the solemn view!
Yet once again, dear parted shade,
Meek Nature's child, again adieu!

Ode on the Death of Thomson.
W. COLLINS

WILLIAM HOGARTH.

The hand of him here torpid lies
That drew the essential form of grace;
Here closed in death the attentive eyes
That saw the manners in the face.

Equaph.

DR. S. JOHNSON.

WILLIAM WORDSWORFIL.

Thine is a strain to read among the hills,

The old and full of voices; — by the source
Of some free stream, whose gladdening presence

The solitude with sound; for in its course Even such is thy deep song, that seems a part Of those high scenes, a fountain from their heart.

Wordsworth.

1. D. HLMANS.

RICHARD BRINSLEY SHERIDAN.

Whose humor, as gay as the firefly's light,
Played round every subject, and shone as it played;—

Whose wit, in the combat, as gentle as bright, Ne'er carried a heart-stain awayon its blade;— Whose eloquence — brightening whatever it tried,

Whether reason or fancy, the gay or the grave — Was as rapid, as deep, and as brilliant a tide,
As ever bore freedom aloft on its wave!

Lines on the Death of Sheridan.

T MOORE.

Ye men of wit and social eloquence!

He was your brother, — bear his ashes hence!

While powers of mind almost of boundless range,
Complete in kind, as various in their change, —

While eloquence, wit, poesy, and mirth,
That humbler harmonist of care on earth,
Survive within our souls, — while lives our sense
Of pinde in merit's proud pre-eminence,
Long shall we seek his likeness, — long in vain,
And turn to all of him which may remain,
Sighing that Nature formed but one such man,
And broke the die — in moulding Sheridan '

Monody on the Death of Sheridan.

Busin

Amos Cottle.

Oh! Amos ('ottle!*—Phœbus! what a name To fill the speaking trump of future fame!—Oh! Amos Cottle! for a moment think What meagre profits spring from pen and ink!

Linglish Bards and Stotch Reviewers.

BYRON

THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON.

O good gray head which all men knew, O voice from which their omens all men drew, O iron nerve to true occasion true,

O fallen at length that tower of strength Which stood four-square to all the winds that blew!

Such was he whom we deplore.

The long self-sacrifice of life is o'er.

The great World-victor's victor will be seen no more.

On the Death of the Duke of Wellington. TENNYSON.

NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE.

There in seclusion and remote from men

The wizard hand lies cold,

Which at its topmost speed let fall the pen,

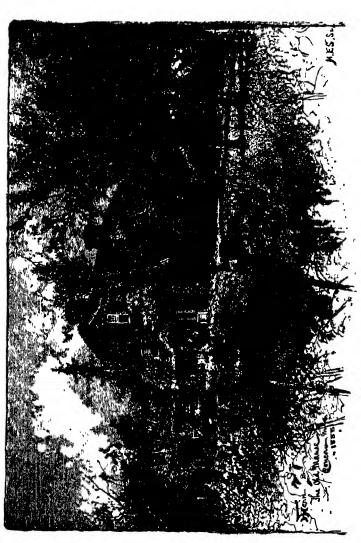

And left the tale half told.

Ah! who shall lift that wand of magic power, And the lost clew regain? The unfinished window in Aladdın's tower Unfinished must remain!

Hawthorne, May 23, 1864.

LONGFELLOW.

* "Mr. Cottle, Amos or Joseph, I don't know which, but one or both, once sellers of books they did not write, but now writers of books that do not sell, have published a pair of epics."—THB AUTHOR.

THE OLD MANSE

EARLY HONE OF EMERSON, AND, LATER, OF HAWTHORNE,

Because I found a home in haunts by others scorned,
The partial wood gods overpaid my love,
And through my rock-like, solitary wont
Shot million rays of thought and tenderness.

HAWTHORNE

HARP of New England Song, That even in slumber trembled with the touch Of poets who like the four winds from thee waken All harmonies that to thy strings belong,— Say, wilt thou blame the younger hands too much Which from thy laureled resting place have taken Thee crowned one in their hold? There is a name Should quicken thee! No carol Hawthorne sang, Yet his articulate spirit, like thine own,

Made answer, quick as flame, To each breath of the shore from which he sprang, And prose like his was poesy's high tone.

But he whose quickened eye Saw through New England's life her inmost spirit,-Her heart, and all the stays on which it leant,— Returns not, since he laid the pencil by Whose mystic touch none other shall inherit! What though its work unfinished lies? Half-bent The rainbow's arch fades out in upper air; The shining cataract half-way down the height Breaks into mist; the haunting strain, that fell On listeners unaware. Ends incomplete, but through the starry night

The ear still waits for what it did not tell.

EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN

HUMOROUS POEMS

J. St. Strosur Che. & Lass. Northern hais wife is a subby? Led in time and love, Bibly; In feeled as then the writer fit we live, that Daw; the feeled on them the word to a money Thou the bear that the com ole! " That, you to, it never be true The is always wated bottom Fuel a paroson is woman Lebel exp' up gite underlawn With is one righ to hunder. In the 2st lady all alone

HUMOROUS POEMS.

KING JOHN AND THE ABBOT OF CANTERBURY.

FROM "PERCY'S RELIQUES."

An ancient story I'll tell you anon
Of a notable prince that was called King John;
And he ruled England with main and with might,
For he did great wrong, and maintained little right.

And I'll tell you a story, a story so merry, Concerning the Abbot of Canterbury; How for his house-keeping and high renown, They rode poste for him to fair London towne.

An hundred men the king did heare say, The abbot kept in his house every day; And fifty golde chaynes without any doubt, In velvet coates waited the abbot about.

- "How now, father abbot, I heare it of thee, Thou keepest a farre better house than mee; And for thy house-keeping and high renowne, I feare thou work'st treason against my crown."
- "My liege," quo the abbot, "I would it were knowne

I never spend nothing, but what is my owne; And I trust your grace will doe me no decre, For spending of my owne true-gotten geere."

- "Yes, yes, father abbot, thy fault it is highe, And now for the same thou needest must dye; For except thou canst answer me questions three, Thy head shall be smitten from thy bodie.
- "And first," quo' the king, "when I'm in this stead.

With my crowne of golde so faire on my head, Among all my liege-men so noble of birthe, Thou must tell me to one penny what I am worthe.

"Secondly, tell me, without any doubt, How soone I may ride the whole world about; And at the third question thou must not shrink, But tell me here truly what I do think." "O these are hard questions for my shallow witt. Nor I cannot answer your grace as yet: But if you will give me but three weeks' space, Ile do my endeavor to answer your grace."

"Now three weeks' space to thee will I give, And that is the longest time thou hast to live; For if thou dost not answer my questions three, Thy lands and thy livings are forfeit to mee."

Away rode the abbot all sad at that word, And he rode to Cambridge, and Oxenford; But never a doctor there was so wise, That could with his learning an answer devise.

Then home rode the abbot of comfort so cold,
And he met his shepheard a-going to fold:

"How now, my lord abbot, you are welcome
home;

What newes do you bring us from good King John?"

- "Sad news, sad news, shepheard, I must give, That I have but three days more to live; For if I do not answer him questions three, My head will be smitten from my bodie.
- "The first is to tell him, there in that stead, With his crowne of golde so fair on his head, Among all his liege-men so noble of birth, To within one penny of what he is worth.
- "The seconde, to tell him without any doubt, How soone he may ride this whole world about; And at the third question I must not shrinke, But tell him there truly what he does thinke."
- "Now cheare up, sire abbot, did you never hear yet,
- That a fool he may learne a wise man witt?

 Lend me horse, and serving-men, and your apparel.
- And He ride to London to answere your quarrel.
- "Nay, frowne not, if it hath bin told unto me, I am like your lordship, as ever may be;

And if you will but lend me your gowne, There is none shall know us at fair London towne."

- "Now horses and serving-men thou shalt have, With sumptuous array most gallant and brave, With crozier, and mitre, and rochet, and cope, Fit to appear 'fore our fader the pope."
- "Now welcome, sire abbot," the king he did say,
 "'T is well thou 'rt come back to keepe thy day:
 For and if thou canst answer my questions three,
 Thy life and thy living both saved shall be.
- "And first, when thou seest me here in this stead, With my crowne of golde so fair on my head, Among all my liege-men so noble of birthe, Tell me to one penny what I am worth."
- "For thirty pence our Saviour was sold Among the false Jewes, as I have bin told, And twenty-nine is the worth of thee, For I thinke thou art one penny worser than he."

The king he laughed, and swore by St. Bittel, "I did not think I had been worth so littel!— Now secondly tell me, without any doubt, How soone I may ride this whole world about."

"You must rise with the sun. and ride with the Until the next morning he riseth againe; And then your grace need not make any doubt But in twenty-four hours you'll ride it about."

The king he laughed, and swore by St. Jone,
"I did not think it could be gone so soone!

- Now from the third question thou must not shrinke.

But tell me here truly what I do thinke"

"Yea, that shall I do, and make your grace merry;

You thinke I'm the Abbot of Canterbury; But I'm his poor shepheard, as plain you may

That am come to beg pardon for him and for me."

The king he laughed, and swore by the Masse, "Ile make thee lord abbot this day in his place!"
"Now naye, my liege, be not in such speede,
For alacke I can neither write ne reade."

"Four nobles a week then I will give thee,
For this merry jest thou hast showne unto me;
And tell the old abbot when thou comest home,
Thou hast brought him a pardon from good King John."

ANONYMOUS

JOHN BARLEYCORN.*

THERE was three kings into the East,
Three kings both great and high,
And they has sworn a solemn oath
John Barleycorn should die.

They took a plough and ploughed him down,
Put clods upon his head,
And they has sworn a solemn oath,
John Barleycorn was dead.

But the cheerful spring came kindly or And showers began to fall; John Barleycorn got up again, And sore surprised them all.

The sultry suns of summer came,
And he grew thick and strong,
His head well armed wi' pointed spears,
That no one should him wrong.

The sober autumn entered mild,
When he grew wan and pale;
His bending joints and drooping head
Showed he began to fail.

His color sickened more and more, He faded into age; And then his enemies began To show their deadly rage.

They 've ta'en a weapon long and sharp, And cut him by the knee; And tied him fast upon the cart, Like a rogue for forgeric.

They laid him down upon his back.

And cudgelled him full sore;

They hung him up before the storm,

And turned him o'er and o'er.

They filled up a darksome pit
With water to the brim,
They heaved in John Barleycorn,
There let him sink or swim.

They laid him out upon the floor, To work him further woe, And still, as signs of life appeared, They tossed him to and fro.

They wasted, o'er a scorching flame,
The marrow of his bones;
But a miller used him worst of all,
For he crushed him between two stomes.

* An improvement on a very old ballad found in a black-le volume in the Pepys library, Cambridge University

And they hae ta'en his very heart's blood, And drank it round and round; And still the more and more they drank, Their joy did more abound.

John Barleycorn was a hero bold, Of noble enterprise; For if you do but taste his blood, 'T will make your courage rise.

Then let us toast John Barleycorn, Each man a glass in hand; And may his great posterity Ne'er fail in old Scotland '

ROBERT BURNS.

OF A CERTAINE MAN

THERE was (not certaine when) a certaine preacher,

That never learned, and yet became a teacher, Who having read in Latine thus a text Of erat quidam homo, much perplext, He seemed the same with studie great to scan, In English thus, There was a certaine man. But now (quoth he), good people, note you this, He saith there was, he doth not say there is; For in these daies of ours it is most plaine Of promise, oath, word, deed, no man's certaine; Yet by my text you see it comes to passe That surely once a certaine man there was:

But yet, I think, in all your Bible no man Can finde this text, There was a certaine woman.

SIR JOHN HARRINGTON.

LOGIC OF HUDIBRAS.

FROM "INUDIBRAS," PART I. CANTO I.

HE was in logic a great critic, Profoundly skilled in analytic; He could distinguish and divide A hair, 'twixt south and southwest side; On either which he would dispute, Confute, change hands, and still confute; He'd undertake to prove, by force Of argument, a man's no horse; He'd prove a buzzard is no fowl, And that a lord may be an owl, A calf an alderman, a goose a justice, And rooks committee-men and trustees. He'd run in debt by disputation, And pay with raticcination: All this by syllogism true, In mood and figure he would do.

DR SAMUEL BUTLER.

THE VICAR OF BRAY.

["The Vicar of Bray in Berkshire, England, was Sumon Alleyn or Allen, and held his place from 1540 to 1588. He was a Papist under the reign of Henry the Eighth, and a Protestant under hed ward the Sixth He was a Papist again under Mary, and once more became a Protestant in the reign of Elizabeth. When this scandal to the gown was reproached for his versatility of religious creeds, and taxed for being a turn-coat and an inconstant changeling, as Fuller expresses it, he replied ! Not so neither, for if I changed my religion, I am sure I kept true to my principle, which is to live and die the Vicar of Bray." — DISRAELI.]

In good King Charles's golden days,
When loyalty no harm meant,
A zealous high-churchman was I,
And so I got preferment.
To teach my flock I never missed:
Kings were by God appointed,
And lost are those that dare resist
Or touch the Lord's anointed.
And this is law that I'll maintain
Until my dying day, sir,
That whatsoever king shall reign,
Still I'll be the Vicar of Bray, mr

When royal James possessed the crown,
And popery came in fashion,
The penal laws I hooted down,
And read the Declaration;
The Church of Rome I found would fit
Full well my constitution;
And I had been a Jesuit
But for the Revolution.

And this is law, etc.

When William was our king declared,
To ease the nation's grievance;
With this new wind about I steered,
And swore to him allegiance;
Old principles I did revoke,
Set conscience at a distance;
Passive obedience was a joke,
A jest was non-resistance.

And this is law, etc.

When royal Anne became our queen,
The Church of England's glory,
Another face of things was seen,
And I became a Tory;
Occasional conformists base,
I blamed their moderation;
And thought the Church in danger was,
By such prevarication.
And this is law, etc.

When George in pudding-time came o'er,
And moderate men looked big, sir,
My principles I changed ouce more,
And so became a Whig, sir;

And thus preferment I procured From our new faith's-defender, And almost every day abjured The Pope and the Pretender.

And this is law, etc.

The illustrious house of Hanover,
And Protestant succession,
To these I do allegiance swear—
While they can keep possession:
For in my faith and loyalty
I nevermore will falter,
And George my lawful king shall be—
Until the times do alter.

And this is law, etc.

ANONYMOUS

GOOD ALE.

I CANNOT eat but little meat, —
My stomach is not good;
But, sure, I think that I can drink
With him that wears a hood.
Though I go bare, take ye no care;
I nothing am a-cold, —
I stuff my skin so full within
Of jolly good ale and old.
Back and side go bare, go bare;
Both foot and hand go cold:
But, belly, God send thee good ale enough,
Whether it be new or old!

I love no roast but a nut-brown toast,
And a crab laid in the fire;
A little bread shall do me stead, —
Much bread I not desire.
No frost, nor snow, nor wind, I trow,
Can hurt me if I wold, —
I am so wrapt, and thorowly lapt
Of jolly good ale and old.
Back and side, etc.

And Tyb, my wife, that as her life
Loveth well good ale to seck,
Full oft drinks she, till you may see
The tears run down her cheek;
Then doth she trowl to me the bowl,
Even as a malt-worm should;
And saith, "Sweetheart, I took my part
Of this jolly good ale and old."

Back and side, etc.

Now let them drink till they nod and wink, Even as good fellows should do; They shall not miss to have the bliss Good ale doth bring men to; And all poor souls that have scoured bowls, Or have them lustily trowled, God save the lives of them and their wives, Whether they be young or old! Back and side, etc.

JOHN STILL

GLUGGITY GLUG.

FROM "THE MYRILE AND THE VINE"

A JOLLY fat friar loved liquor good store,
And he had drunk stoutly at supper;
He mounted his horse in the night at the door,
And sat with his face to the crupper:
"Some rogue," quoth the friar, "quite dead to remorse,

Some thief, whom a halter will throttle,
Some scoundrel has cut off the head of my horse,
While I was engaged at the bottle,

Which went gluggity, gluggity — glug — glug — glug."

The tail of the steed pointed south on the dale,
'T was the friar's road home, straight and level;
But, when spurred, a horse follows his nose, not his tail,

So he scampered due north, like a devil:
"This new mode of docking," the friar then said,
"I perceive doesn't make a horse trot ill;
And 't is cheap, — for he never can eat off his head
While I am engaged at the bottle,

Which goes gluggity, gluggity — glug — glug — glug."

The steed made a stop, —in a pond he had got, He was rather for drinking than grazing; Quoth the friar, "Tis strange headless horses should trot,

But to drink with their tails is amazing '"
Turning round to see whence this phenomenon rose,

In the pond fell this son of a pottle; Quoth he, "The head's found, for I'm under his nose, —

I wish I were over a bottle,

Which goes gluggity, gluggity — glug — glug — glug !"

GEORGE COLMAN, THE YOUNGER.

THE VIRTUOSO.*

"Videmus Nugari solitos," — PERSIUS

Whilom by silver Thames's gentle stream,
In London town there dwelt a stibtle wight,
A wight of mickle wealth, and mickle fame,
Book-learned and quaint: a Virtuoso hight.

• In imitation of Spenser's style and stanza

Uncommon things, and rare, were his delight;
From musings deep his brain ne'er gotten

Nor ceased he from study, day or night, Until (advancing onward by degrees) He knew whatever breeds on earth or air or seas

He many a creature did anatomize,
Almost unpeopling water, air, and land;
Beasts, fishes, birds, snails, caterpillars, flies,
Were laid full low by his relentless hand,
That oft with gory crimson was distained;
He many a dog destroyed, and many a cat;
Of fleas his bed, of frogs the marshes drained,
Could tellen if a mite were lean or fat,
And read a lecture o'er the entrails of a gnat.

He knew the various modes of ancient times,

Their arts and fashions of each different guise,
Their weddings, funerals, punishments for crimes,

Their strength, their learning eke, and rarities; Of old habiliments, each sort and size,

Male, female, high and low, to him were known; Each gladiator dress, and stage disguise;

With learned, clerkly phrase he could have shown

How the Greek tunic differed from the Roman gown

A curious medallist, I wot, he was,
And boasted many a course of ancient coin;
Well as his wife's he knewen every face,
From Julius Cæsar down to Constantine:
For some rare sculpture he would oft ypine,
(As green-sick damosels for husbands do;)
And when obtained, with enraptured eyne,
He'd run it o'er and o'er with greedy view,
And look, and look again, as he would look it through.

His rich museum, of dimensions fair,
With goods that spoke the owner's mind was fraught:

Things ancient, curious, value-worth, and rare, From sea and land, from Greece and Rome, were brought,

were brought,
Which he with mighty sums of gold had bought:
On these all tides with joyous eyes he pored;
And, sooth to say, himself he greater thought,
When he beheld his cabinets thus stored,
Than if he'd been of Albion's wealthy cities lord.

MARK AKENSIDE.

THE SPLENDID SHILLING.*

"Sing, heavenly Muse.
Things unattempted yet in prose or rhyine;"
A shilling, breeches, and chimeras dire.

HAPPY the man, who, void of cares and strife, In silken or in leathern purse retains A Splendid Shilling: he nor hears with pain New oysters cried, nor sighs for cheerful ale; But with his friends, when nightly mists arise, To Juniper's Magpie, or Town Hall repairs; Where, mindful of the nymph, whose wanton eye Transfixed his soul, and kindled amorous flames, Chlor or Phyllis, he each circling glass Wisheth her health and joy and equal love. Meanwhile he smokes, and laughs at merry tale, Or pun ambiguous or conundrum quaint. But I, whom graping penury surrounds, And hunger, sure attendant upon want, With scanty offals, and small acid tiff (Wretched repast!) my meagre corpse sustain: Then solitary walk, or doze at home In garret vile, and with a warming puff Regale chilled fingers; or from tube as black As winter-chimney or well-polished jet, Exhale mundungus, ill-perfuming scent. Not blacker tube, nor of a shorter size, Smokes Cambro-Briton (versed in pedigree, Sprung from Cadwallador and Arthur, kings Full famous in romantic tale) when he O'er many a craggy hill and barren cliff, Upon a cargo of famed Cestrian cheese, High overshadowing rides, with a design To wend his wares at the Arvonian mart, Or Maridunum, or the ancient town Ycleped Brechinia, or where Vaga's stream Encircles Ariconium, fruitful soil! Whence flow nectareous wines, that well may vie With Massic, Setin, or renowned Falern.

Thus, while my joyless minutes tedious flow, With looks demure, and silent pace, a Dun, Horrible monster | hated by gods and men, To my aerial citadel ascends + With vocal heel thrice thundering at my gate, With hideous accent thrice he calls; I know The voice ill-boding, and the solemn sound, What should I do ' or whither turn ? Amazed. Confounded, to the dark recess I fly Of wood-hole; straight my bristling hairs erect Through sudden fear; a chilly sweat bedews My shuddering limbs, and (wonderful to tell!) My tongue torgets her faculty of speech; So horrible he seems! His faded brow Intrenched with many a frown, and conic beard, And spreading band, admired by modern saints, Disastrous acts forebode; in his right hand

^{*} A burlesque unitation of Milton's style

[†] To wit, his garret

Long scrolls of paper solemnly he waves, With characters and figures dire inscribed, Grievous to mortal eyes, (ye gods, avert Such plagues from righteous men!) Behind him stalks

Another monster, not unlike itself,
Sullen of aspect, by the vulgar called
A Catchpole, whose polluted hands the gods
With force incredible, and magic charms,
First have endued: if he his ample palm
Should haply on ill-fated shoulder lay
Of debtor, straight his body to the touch
Obsequious (as whilom knights were wont)
To some enchanted castle is conveyed,
Where gates impregnable, and coercive chains,
In durance strict detain him, till, in form
Of money, Pallas sets the captive free.

Beware, ye debtors! when ye walk, beware, Be circumspect; oft with insidious ken The caitiff eyes your steps aloof, and oft Lies perdue in a nook or gloomy cave, Prompt to enchant some inadvertent wretch With his unhallowed touch. So (poets sing) Grimalkin to domestic vermin sworn An everlasting foe, with watchful eye Lies nightly brooding o'er a chinky gap, Portending her fell claws, to thoughtless mice Sure ruin. So her disembowelled web Arachne, in a hall or kitchen, spreads Obvious te vagrant flies: she secret stands Within her woven cell; the humming prev. Regardless of their fate, rush on the toils Inextricable, nor will aught avail Their arts, or arms, or shapes of lovely hue. The wasp insidious, and the buzzing drone, And butterfly proud of expanded wings Distinct with gold, entangled in her snares, Useless resistance make; with eager strides, She towering flies to her expected spoils: Then with envenomed jaws the vital blood Drinks of reluctant foes, and to her cave Their bulky carcasses triumphant drags.

So pass my days. But when nocturnal shades This world envelop, and the inclement air Persuades men to repel benumbing frosts With pleasant wines and crackling blaze of wood, Me, lonely sitting, nor the glimmering light Of make-weight candle, nor the joyous talk Of loving friend, delights; distressed, forlorn, Amidat the horrors of the tedious night, Darkling I sigh, and feed with dismal thoughts My anxious mind; or sometimes mournful verse Indite, and sing of groves and myrtle shades, Or desperate lady near a purling stream, Or lover pendent on a willow-tree.

Meanwhile I labor with eternal drought, And restless wish, and rave; my parched throat

Finds no relief, nor heavy eyes repose:
But if a slumber haply does invade
My weary limbs, my fancy, still awake,
Thoughtful of drink, and eager, in a dream,
Tipples imaginary pots of ale;
In vain; -- awake I find the settled thirst
Still gnawing, and the pleasant phantom curse.

Thus do I live, from pleasure quite debarred, Nor taste 'ne fruits that the sun's genial rays Mature, john-apple, nor the downy peach, Nor walnut in rough-furrowed coat secure. Nor medlar fruit delicious in decay : Afflictions great! yet greater still remain. My galligaskins, that have long withstood The winter's fury and encroaching frosts, By time subdued, (what will not time subdue ') An horrid chasm disclose with orifice Wide, discontinuous; at which the winds Eurus and Auster and the dreadful force Of Boreas, that congeals the Cronian waves, Tumultuous enter with dire chilling blasts, Portending agues. Thus a well-fraught ship, Long sails secure, or through the Ægean deep, Or the Ionian, till cruising near The Lilybean shore, with hideous crush On Scylla or Charybdis (dangerous rocks) She strikes rebounding; whence the shattered oak.

So fierce a shock unable to withstand,
Admits the sea. In at the gaping side
The crowding waves gush with impetuous rage,
Resistless, overwhelming; horrors seize
The mariners; Death in their eyes appears,
They stare, they lave, they pump, they swear,
they pray:

(Vain efforts!) still the battering waves rush in, Implacable, till, deluged by the foam, The ship sinks foundering in the vast abyss.

JOHN PHILIPS

ELEGY ON THE DEATH OF A MAD DOG

Good people all, of every sort, Give ear unto my song; And if you find it wondrous short, It cannot hold you long

In Islington there was a man
Of whom the world might say,
That still a godly race he ran
Whene'er he went to pray.

A kind and gentle heart he had, To comfort friends and foes: The naked every day he clad — When he put on his clothes. And in that town a dog was found,
As many dogs there be,
Both mongrel, puppy, whelp, and hound,
And curs of low degree.

This dog and man at first were friends;
But when a pique began,
The dog, to gain his private ends,
Went mad, and bit the man.

Around from all the neighboring streets
The wondering neighbors ran,
And swore the dog had lost his wits,
To bite so good a man!

The wound it seemed both sore and sad To every Christian eye: And while they swore the dog was mad, They swore the man would die.

But soon a wonder came to light,

That showed the rogues they lied:

The man recovered of the bite,

The dog it was that died!

OLIVER GOLDSMITH

ELEGY ON MADAM BLAIZE.

Goop people all, with one accord, Lament for Madam Blaize; Who never wanted a good word — From those who spoke her praise.

The needy seldom passed her door,
And always found her kind;
She freely ient to all the poor—
Who left a pledge behind

She strove the neighborhood to please, With manner wondrous winning; She never followed wicked ways— Unless when she was sinning.

At church, in silk and satus new,
With hoop of monstreus size,
She never slumbered in her pew —
But when she shut her eyes.

Her love was sought, I do aver,
By twenty beaux, or more;
The king himself has followed her—
When she has walked before.

But now, her wealth and finery fled,
Her hangers-on cut short all,
Her doctors found, when she was dead—
Her last disorder mortal.

Let us lament, in sorrow sore;
For Kent Street well may say,
That, had she lived a twelvemonth more—
She had not died to-day.
OLIVER GOLDSMITH

THE DEVIL'S WALK.

FROM his brimstone bed at break of day
A walking the Devil has gone,
To look at his little, snug farm of the world,
And see how his stock went on.

Over the hill and over the dale,
And he went over the plain,
And backward and forward he swished his tail,
As a gentleman swishes a cane.

How then was the Devil dressed?

O, he was in his Sunday's best;

His coat was red, and his breeches were blue,

And there was a hole where his tail came through.

A lady drove by in her pride,
In whose face an expression he spied,
For which he could have kissed her;
Such a flourishing, fine, clever creature was she,
With an eye as wicked as wicked can be:
"I should take her for my aunt," thought he;
"If my dam had had a sister."

He met a lord of high degree, —
No matter what was his name, —
Whose face with his own when he came to compare

The expression, the look, and the air,
And the character too, as it seemed to a hair, —
Such a twin-likeness there was in the pair,
That it made the Devil start and stare;
For he thought there was surely a looking-glass

But he could not see the frame.

He saw a lawyer killing a viper
On a dunghill beside his stable;
"Ho!" quoth he, "thou put'st me in mind
Of the story of Cain and Abel."

An apothecary on a white horse Rode by on his vocation; And the Devil thought of his old friend Death in the Revelation.

He passed a cottage with a double coach-house, A cottage of gentility; And he owned with a grin' That his favorite sin Is pride that apes humility. He saw a pig rapidly
Down a river float;
The pig swam well, but every stroke
Was cutting his own throat;

And Satan gave thereat his tail
A twirl of admiration;
For he thought of his daughter War
And her suckling babe Taxation.

Well enough, in sooth, he liked that truth,
And nothing the worse for the jest;
But this was only a first thought;
And in this he did not rest:
Another came presently into his head;
And here it proved, as has often been said,
That second thoughts are best.

For as piggy plied, with wind and tide,
His way with such celerity,
And at every stroke the water dyed
With his own red blood, the Devil cried,
"Behold a swinish nation's pride
In cotton-spun prosperity!"

He walked into London leisurely;
The streets were dirty and dim;
But there he saw Brothers the prophet,
And Brothers the prophet saw him.

He entered a thriving bookseller's shop; Quoth he, "We are both of one college, For I myself sate like a cormorant once Upon the tree of knowledge."

As he passed through Cold-Bath Fields, he looked At a solitary cell;

And he was well pleased, for it gave him a hint For improving the prisons of hell.

He saw a turnkey tie a thief's hands
With a cordial tug and jerk;
"Nimbly," quoth he, "a man's fingers move
When his heart is in his work."

He saw the same turnkey unfettering a man With little expedition; And he chuckled to think of his dear slave-trade, And the long debates and delays that were made Concerning its abolition.

At this good news, so great
The Devil's pleasure grew,
That with a joyful swish he rent
The hole where his tail came through.

"After this I was in a vision, having the angel of God near me, and saw Satan walking leisurely into London." — BROTHERS' Prophecies, Part L. p. 41.

His countenance fell for a moment
When he felt the stitches go;
"Ah!" thought he, "there's a job now
That I 've made for my tailor below."

"Great news! bloody news!" cried a newsm. The Devil said, "Stop, let me see! Great news! bloody news!" thought the De "The bloodier the better for me."

So he bought the newspaper, and no news
At all for his money he had.
"Uning roulet" thought he "thus to tal

"Lying varlet," thought he, "thus to take Old Nick!

But it's some satisfaction, my lad, To know thou art paid beforehand for the tri-For the sixpence I gave thee is bad."

And then it came into his head,
By oracular inspiration,
That what he had seen and what he had said.
In the course of this visitation,
Would be published in the Morning Post
For all this reading nation.

Therewith in second-sight he saw
The place and the manner and time,
In which this mortal story
Would be put in immortal rhyme.

That it would happen when two poets
Should on a time be met
In the town of Nether Stowey,
In the shire of Somerset.

There, while the one was shaving,
Would he the song begin;
And the other, when he heard it at breakfast,
In ready accord join in.

So each would help the other,
Two heads being better than one;
And the phrase and conceit
Would in unuson meet,
And so with glee the verse flow free
In ding-dong chime of sing-song rhyme,
Till the whole were merrily done.

And because it was set to the razor, Not to the lute or harp, Therefore it was that the fancy Should be bright, and the wit be sharp

"But then," said Satan to himself,
"As for that said beginner,
Against my infernal Majesty
There is no greater sinner.

"He hath put me in ugly ballads
With libellous pictures for sale;
He hath scoffed at my hoofs and my horns,
And has made very free with my tail,

"But this Mister Poet shall find I am not a safe subject for whim; For I'll set up a school of my own, And my poets shall set upon him."

As he went along the Strand

Between three in the morning and four,
He observed a queer-looking person *

Who staggered from Perry's door.

And he thought that all the world over In vain for a man you might seek, Who could drink more like a Trojan, Or talk more like a Greek.

The Devil then he prophesied
It would one day be matter of talk,
That with wine when smitten,
And with wit moreover being happily bitten,
This erudite bibber was he who had written
The story of this walk.

"A pretty mistake," quoth the Devil;
"A pretty mistake, I opine!
I have put many ill thoughts in his mouth;
He will never put good ones in mine."

Now the morning air was cold for him, Who was used to a warm abode; And yet he did not immediately wish To set out on his homeward road.

For he had some morning calls to make

Before he went back to hell;
"So," thought he, "I'll step into a gaminghouse,

And that will do as well."

And that will do as well;"
But just before he could get to the door
A wonderful chance befell.

For all on a sudden, in a dark place,
He came upon General ——'s burning face;
And it struck him with such consternation,
That home in a hurry his way did he take,
Because he thought by a slight mistake
'T was the general conflagration.

ROBERT SOUTHLY

THE DEVIL AT HOME.

FROM "THE DEVIL'S PROGRESS"

The Devil sits in his easy-chair, Sipping his sulphur tea, And gazing out, with a pensive air, O'er the broad bitumen sea: Lulled into sentimental mood By the spirits' far-off wail, That sweetly, o'er the burning flood, Floats on the brimstone gale! -The Devil, who can be sad at times, In spite of all his munmery. And grave, - though not so prosy quite As drawn by his friend Montgomery, -The Devil to day has a dreaming air, And his eye is raised, and his throat is bare. His musings are of many things, That - good or ill - befell, Since Adam's sons macadamized The highways into hell: -And the Devil - whose murth is never loud -Laughs with a quiet mirth, As he thinks how well his serpent-tricks Have been mimicked upon earth; Of Eden and of England, soiled And darkened by the foot Of those who preach with adder-tongues, And those who eat the fruit; Of creeping things, that drag their slime Into God's chosen places, And knowledge leading into crime, Before the angels' faces; Of lands - trom Nineveh to Spain -That have bowed beneath his sway, And men who did his work, — from Cain To Viscount Castlereagh !

THOMAS KIBBLE HERVEY.

THE NOSE AND THE EYES.

BETWEEN Nose and Eyes a strange contest arose; The spectacles set them, unhappily, wrong; The point in dispute was, as all the world knows, To whom the said spectacles ought to belong.

So Tongue was the lawyer, and argued the cause, With a great deal of skill, and a wig full of learning.

While chief baron Eur sat to balance the laws, — So famed for his talent in nicely discerning.

"In behalf of the Nose, it will quickly appear (And your lordship," he said, "will undoubtedly find)

Porson, the Greek scholar.

That the Nose has the spectacles always to wear,
Which amounts to possession, time out of mind."

Then, holding the spectacles up to the court,
"Your lordship observes, they are made with a straddle,

As wide as the ridge of the Nose is; in short, Designed to sit close to it, just like a saddle.

"Again, would your lordship a moment suppose ("T is a case that has happened, and may happen again)

That the visage or countenance had not a Nose, Pray, who would, or who could, wear spectacles then?

"On the whole, it appears, and my argument shows,

With a reasoning the court will never condemn,
That the spectacles, plainly, were made for the Nose,

And the Nose was, as plainly, intended for them."

Then shifting his side (as a lawyer knows how),
He pleaded again in behalf of the Eyes:
But what were his arguments, few people know,
For the court did not think them equally wise.

So his lordship decreed, with a grave, solemn tone.

Decisive and clear, without one if or but,

That whenever the Nose put his spectacles on,

By daylight or candlelight, — Eyes should be shut.

WILLIAM COWPER

ADDRESS TO THE TOOTHACHE.

My curse upon thy venomed stang,
That shoots my tortured gums alang.
An' through my lugs gies mony a twang,
Wi' gnawing vengeance!
Tearing my nerves wi' bitter pang,
Like racking engines.

When fevers burn, or ague freezes,
Rheumatics gnaw, or cholic squeezes;
Our neighbor's sympathy may ease us,
Wi' pitying moan;
But thee,—thou hell o' a' diseases,
Aye mocks our groan.

Adown my beard the slavers trickle; I throw the wee stools o'er the mickle, As round the fire the giglets keckle

To see me loup;

While, raving mad, I wish a heckle
Were in their doup.

O' a' the numerous human dools, Ill har'sts, daft bargains, cutty-stools, Or worthy friends raked i' the mools, Sad sight to see!

The tricks o' knaves or fash o' fools, Thou bear'st the gree.

Where'er that place be priests ca' hell, Whence a' the tones o' mis'ry yell, And rankèd plagues their numbers tell, In dreadfu' raw,

Thou, Toothache, surely bear'st the bell, Among them a';

O thou grim mischief-making chiel,
That gars the notes of discord squeal,
Till daft mankind aft dance a reel
In gore a shoe-thick!—
Gie a' the faes o' Scotland's weal

Gie a' the face o' Scotland's weal

A fowmond's Toothache!

ROBERT BURNS.

THE FRIEND OF HUMANITY AND THE KNIFE-GRINDER.*

FRIEND OF HUMANITY.

NEEDY knife-grinder! whither are you going? Rough is the road; your wheel is out of order. Bleak blows the blast; — your hat has got a hole in?

So have your breeches!

Weary knife-grinder' little think the proud ones, Who in their coaches roll along the turnpike-Road, what hard work 't is crying all day,

'Knives and Scissors to grind O!'

Tell me, knife-grinder, how came you to grind knives?

Did some rich man tyrannically use you?
Was it the squire? or parson of the parish?
Or the attorney?

Was it the squire for killing of his game ' or Covetous parson for his tithes distraining ' Or roguish lawyer made you lose your little All in a lawsuit '

(Have you not read the Rights of Man, by Tom

Drops of compassion tremble on my eyelids, Ready to fall as soon as you have told your Pitiful story.

A burlesque upon the humanitarian sentiments of Southey in his younger days, as well as of the Sapphic stansas in which he senetimes embodied them

KNIFE-GRINDER.

Story! God bless you! I have none to tell, sir; Only, last night, a-drinking at the Chequers, This poor old hat and breeches, as you see, were Torn in a scuffle.

Constables came up for to take me into Custody; they took me before the justice; Justice Oldmixon put me into the parish Stocks for a vagrant.

I should be glad to drink your honor's health in A pot of beer, if you will give me sixpence: But for my part, I never love to meddle With politics, sir.

FRIEND OF HUMANITY.

I give thee sixpence ' I will see thee damned first, —

Wretch! whom no sense of wrongs can rouse to vengeance, —

Sordid, unfeeling, reprobate, degraded, Spiritless outcast '

(Kicks the knife-grinder, overturns his wheel, and exit in a trunsport of republican enthusiasm and universal philanthropy.)

GLORGE CANNING

EPITAPH

FOR THE TOMBSIONE ERECTED OVER THE MAR-QUIS OF ANGLESIA'S LEG, LOST AT THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO

HERE rests, and let no saucy knave Presume to sneet and laugh, To learn that mouldering in the grave Is laid a British Calf

For he who writes these lines is sure, That those who read the whole Will find such laugh was premature, For here, too, lies a sole

And here five little ones repose,
Twin born with other five,
Unheeded by their brother toes,
Who all are now alive.

A leg and foot, to speak more plain, Rests here of one commanding; Who, though his wits he might retain, Lost half his understanding.

And when the guus, with thunder fraught,
Poured bullets thick as hail,
Could only in this way be taught
To give the foe leg-bail.

And now in England, just as gay
As in the battle brave,
Goes to a rout, review, or play,
With one foot in the grave.

Fortune in vain here showed her spite, For he will still be found, Should England's sons engage in fight, Resolved to stand his ground.

But Fortune's pardon I must beg; She meant not to disarm, For when she lopped the hero's leg, She did not seek his harm.

And but indulged a harmless whim; Since he could walk with one, She saw two legs were lost on him, Who never meant to run.

GEORGE CANNING

THE PILGRIMS AND THE PEAS.

A BRACE of sinners, for no good,
Were ordered to the Virgin Mary's shrine,
Who at Loretto dwelt, in wax, stone, wood,
And in a fair white wig looked wondrous fin,
Fifty long miles had those sad rogues to travel,
With something in their shoes much worse than gravel;

In short, their toes so gentle to anuse,
The priest had ordered peas into their shoes
A nostrum famous in old popish times
For purifying souls that stunk of crimes
A sort of apostolic salt,

Which popush parsons for its powers exalt, For keeping souls of sinners sweet, Just as our kitchen salt keeps meat.

The knaves set off on the same day, Peas in their shoes, to go and pray;

But very different was their speed, I wot: One of the sinners galloped on,

Swift as a bullet from a gun;

The other limped, as if he had been shot.
One saw the Virgin soon, Peccavi cried,
Had his soul whitewashed all so clever;
Then home again he nimbly hied,

Made fit with saints above to live torever.

In coming back, however, let me say,
He met his brother rogue about half-way,— Hobbling, with outstretched arms and bended knees,

Cursing the souls and bodies of the peas; His eyes in tears, his cheeks and brow in sweat, Deep sympathizing with his groaning feet. "How now," the light-toed, whitewashed pil- | T was a vile razor ! — then the rest he tried, grim broke,

"You lazy lubber!"

"Ods curse it!" cried the other, "'t is no joke; My feet, once hard as any rock,

Are now as soft as blubber.

"Excuse me, Virgin Mary, that I swear, As for Loretto, I shall not get there; No, to the devil my sinful soul must go, For damme if I ha'n't lost every toe. But, brother sinner, pray explain How 't is that you are not in pain.

What power hath worked a wonder for your

Whilst I just like a snail am crawling, Now swearing, now on saints devoutly bawling, Whilst not a rascal comes to ease my woes?

"How is't that you can like a greyhound go, Merry as if that naught had happened, burn ye!"

"Why," cried the other, grinning, "you must

That just before I ventured on my journey, To walk a little more at ease, I took the liberty to boil my peas." DR. JOHN WOLCOTT (Peter Pindar).

THE RAZOR-SELLER.

A FELLOW in a market-town, Most musical, cried razors up and down, And offered twelve for eighteen pence: Which certainly seemed wondrous cheap, And, for the money, quite a heap, As every man would buy, with cash and sense.

A country bumpkin the great offer heard, -Poor Hodge, who suffered by a broad black beard, That seemed a shoe-brush stuck beneath his

With cheerfulness the eighteen pence he paid, And proudly to himself in whispers said,

"This rascal stole the razors, I suppose.

"No matter if the fellow be a knave. Provided that the razors shave; It certainly will be a monstrous prize." So home the clown, with his good fortune, went, Smiling, in heart and soul content,

And quickly soaped himself to ears and eyes.

Being well lathered from a dish or tub, Hodge now began with grinning pain to grub, Just like a hedger cutting furse;

All were impostors. "Ah!" Hodge sighed, "I wish my eighteen pence within my purse."

In vain to chase his beard, and bring the graces, He cut, and dug, and winced, and stamped, and swore;

Brought blood, and danced, blasphemed, and made wry faces,

And cursed each razor's body o'er and o'er:

His muzzle formed of opposition stuff, Firm as a Foxite, would not lose its ruff; So kept it, - laughing at the steel and suds.

Hodge, in a passion, stretched his angry jaws, Vowing the direct vengeance with clenched claws, On the vile cheat that sold the goods.

"Razors! a mean, confounded dog, Not fit to scrape a hog '"

Hodge sought the fellow, - found him, - and begun:

"P'rhaps, Master Razor-rogue, to you't is fun, That people flay themselves out of their lives. You rascal! for an hour have I been grubbing, Giving my crying whiskers here a scrubbing,

With razors just like oyster-knives. Sirrah! I tell you you're a knave, To cry up razors that can't shave!"

"Friend," quoth the razor-man, "I'm not a knave:

As for the razors you have bought, Upon my soul, I never thought That they would shave."

"Not think they 'd shave !" quoth Hodge, with wondering eyes,

And voice not much unlike an Indian yell; "What were they made for, then, you dog?" he cries.

"Made," quoth the fellow with a smile, -"to sell." DR. JOHN WOLCOTT (Peter Pindar).

EPIGRAMS BY S. T. COLERIDGE.

COLOGNE.

In Koln, a town of monks and bones, And pavements fanged with murderous stones. And rags, and hags, and hideous wenches, -I counted two-and-seventy stenches. All well-defined and several stinks! Ye nymphs that reign o'er sewers and sinks, The river Rhine, it is well known, Doth wash your city of Cologne; But tell me, nymphs! what power divine Shall henceforth wash the river Rhine ?

SLY Beelzebub took all occasions
To try Job's constancy and patience.
He took his honor, took his health;
He took his children, took his wealth,
His servants, oxen, horses, cows—
But cunning Satan did not take his spouse.

But Heaven, that brings out good from evil, And loves to disappoint the devil, Had predetermined to restore Twofold all he had before; His servants, horses, oxen, cows—Short-sighted devil, not to take his spouse!

Hoarse Mævius reads his hobbling verse To all, and at all times, And finds them both divinely smooth, His voice as well as rhymes.

Yet folks say Mævius is no ass; But Mævius makes it clear That he's a monster of an ass,— An ass without an ear!

Swans sing before they die, —'t were no bad thing Did certain persons die before they sing.

THE WELL OF ST. KEYNE.

"In the parish of St Neots, Cornwall, is a well arched over with the robes of four kinds of trees, — withy, oak, elm, and ash, — and dedicated to St Keyne. The reported virtue of the water is this, that, whether husband or wife first drink thereof, they get the mastery thereby."—FULLER

A WELL there is in the West country,
And a clearer one never was seen;
There is not a wife in the West country
But has heard of the Well of St. Keyne.

An oak and an elm tree stand beside, And behind does an ash-tree grow, And a willow from the bank above Droops to the water below.

A traveller came to the Well of St. Keyne; Pleasant it was to his eye, For from cock-crow he had been travelling, And there was not a cloud in the sky.

He drank of the water so cool and clear,
For thirsty and hot was he,
And he sat down upon the bank,
Under the willow-tree.

There came a man from the neighboring town
At the well to fill his pail,
On the well-side he rested it,
And bade the stranger hail.

- "Now art thou a bachelor, stranger?" quoth he,
 "For an if thou hast a wife,
- The happiest draught thou hast drank this day That ever thou didst in thy life.
- "Or has your good woman, if one you have, In Cornwall ever been? For an if she have, I'll venture my life She has drunk of the Well of St. Keyne."
- "I have left a good woman who never was here,"
 The stranger he made reply;
- "But that my draught should be better for that,
 "I pray you answer me why."
- "St. Keyne," quoth the countryman, "many a time

Drank of this crystal well, And before the angel summoned her She laid on the water a spell.

- "If the husband of this gifted well Shall drink before his wife, A happy man thenceforth is he.
- A happy man thenceforth is he, For he shall be master for life.
- "But if the wife should drink of it first, Heaven help the husband then!"
 The stranger stooped to the Well of St. Keyne,
 And drank of the waters again.
- "You drank of the well, I warrant, betimes?"

 He to the countryman said.
 But the countryman smiled as the stranger spake,

And sheepishly shook his head.

"I hastened, as soon as the wedding was done,
And left my wife in the porch.
But i' faith, she had been wiser than me,
For she took a bottle to church."

ROBERI SOUTHEY

THE EGGS AND THE HORSES.

A MATRIMONIAL LPIC

JOHN DOBBINS was so captivated
By Mary Trueman's fortune, face, and cap, (With near two thousand pounds the hook was baited,)

That in he popped to matrimony's trap.

One small ingredient towards happiness,
It seems, ne'er occupied a single thought;
For his accomplished bride
Appearing well supplied
With the three charms of riches, beauty, dress,
He did not, as he ought,

Think of aught else; so no inquiry made he As to the temper of the lady.

And here was certainly a great omission; None should accept of Hymen's gentle fetter, "For worse or better,"

Whatever be their prospect or condition, Without acquaintance with each other's nature;

For many a mild and quiet creature Of charming disposition,

Alas! by thoughtless marriage has destroyed it. So take advice; let girls dress e'er so tastily, Don't enter into wedlock hastily Unless you can't avoid it.

Week followed week, and, it must be confest, The bridegroom and the bride had both been blest:

Month after month had languidly transpired, Both parties became tired: Year after year dragged on ,

Their happiness was gone.

Ah! foolish pair! "Bear and forbear" Should be the rule for married folks to take. But blind mankind (poor discontented elves!) Too often make

At length the husband said, "This will not do! Mary, I never will be ruled by you;

So, wife, d' ye see ! To live together as we can't agree, Suppose we part!" With woman's pride, Mary replied, "With all my heart!"

The misery of themselves.

John Dobbins then to Mary's father goes, And gives the list of his imagined woes.

"Dear son-in-law!" the father said, "I see All is quite true that you 've been telling me, Yet there in marriage is such strange fatality.

That when as much of life You shall have seen As it has been My lot to see, I think you'll own your wife

As good or better than the generality.

"An interest in your case I really take, And therefore gladly this agreement make An hundred eggs within this basket lie, With which your luck, to-morrow, you shall try; Also my five best horses, with my cart ; And from the farm at dawn you shall depart,

All round the country go, And be particular, I beg; Where husbands rule, a horse bestow, But where the wives, an egg.

And if the horses go before the eggs, I'll ease you of your wife, - I will, - I' fegs

Away the married man departed, Brisk and light-hearted .

Not doubting that, of course, The first five houses each would take a horse.

> At the first house he knocked. He felt a little shocked

To hear a female voice, with angry roar, Scream out, - "Hullo!

Who 's there below?

Why, husband, are you deaf t go to the door, See who it is, I beg."

Our poor friend John Trudged quickly on,

But first laid at the door an egg.

I will not all his journey through The discontented traveller pursue; Suffice it here to say

That when his first day's task was nearly don He'd seen an hundred husbands, minus one, And eggs just ninety-nine had given away. "Ha! there's a house where he I seek mu dwell," At length cried John; "I'll go and ring t bell."

The servant came, - John asked his " Prav.

Friend, is your master in the way ?" "No," said the man, with smiling phi "My master is not, but my mistress is; Walk in that parlor, sir, my lady 's in it Master will la himself there - in a minute The lady said her husband then was dressing, And, if his business was not very pressing, She would prefer that he should wait until

His toilet was completed; Adding, "Pray, sir, be seated."

"Madam, I will," Said John, with great politeness; "but I own

That you alone

Can tell me all I wish to know;

Will you do so ? Pardon my rudeness,

And just have the goodness

(A wager to decide) to tell me - do -Who governs in this house, - your spouse you ?"

"Sir," said the lady, with a doubting no "Your question's very odd; But as I think none ought to be Ashamed to do their duty (do you see !) On that account I scruple not to say It always is my pleasure to obey.

Take not my word, but ask him, if you doubt me."

"Sir," said the husband, "'t is most true; I promise you,

A more obedient, kind, and gentle woman Does not exist."

"Give us your fist,"

Said John, "and, as the case is something more than common,

Allow me to present you with a beast Worth fifty guineas at the very least.

"There's Smiler, sir, a beauty, you must own, There's Prince, that handsome black, Ball the gray mare, and Saladin the roan.

Besides old Dunn:

Come, sir, choose one; But take advice from me.

Let Prince be he:

Why, sir, you'll look the hero on his back."

I'll take the black, and thank you too." " Nay, husband, that will never do; You know, you've often heard me say How much I long to have a gray; And this one will exactly do for me."

"No, no," said he, "Friend, take the four others back, And only leave the black "

"Nay, husband, I declare

I must have the gray mare;"

Adding (with gentle force), "The gray mare 18, I'm sure, the better horse."

"Well, if it must be so, - good sir,

The gray mare we prefer; So we accept your gift." John made a leg:

"Allow me to present you with an egg;

'T is my last egg remaining,

The cause of my regaining, I trust, the fond affection of my wife,

Whom I will love the better all my life.

"Home to content has her kind father brought

I thank him for the lesson he has taught me." ANONYMOUS.

THE MILKMAID.

A MILKMAID, who poised a full pail on her head, Thus mused on her prospects in life, it is said: "Let me see, - I should think that this milk will procure

One hundred good eggs, or fourscore, to be sure.

But here's my husband (always sad without | "Well then, — stop a bit, — it must not be forgotten.

> Some of these may be broken, and some may be rotten:

> But if twenty for accident should be detached, It will leave me just sixty sound eggs to be hatched.

> "Well, sixty sound eggs, -no, sound chickens,

Of these some may die, - we'll suppose seventeen, Seventeen! not so many, - say ten at the most, Which will leave fifty chickens to boil or to ross,

"But then there 's their barley: how much will they need?

Why, they take but one grain at a time when they feed, -

So that's a mere trifle; 1 , w then, let us see, At a fair market price how much money there'll

"Six shillings a pair - five - four - three-and

To prevent all mistakes, that low price I will fix . Now what will that make ? fifty chickens, I said, -Fifty times three-and-sixpence - I'll ask Brother Ned.

"O, but stop, - three-and-sixpence a pair I must

Well, a pair is a couple, - now then let us tell 'em ;

A couple in fifty will go (my poor brain!) Why, just a score times, and five pair will remain.

"Twenty-five pair of fowls --- now how tiresome it is

That I can't reckon up so much money as this ' Well, there's no use in trying, so let's give a guess, ---

I'll say twenty pounds, and it can't be no less.

"Twenty pounds, I am certain, will buy me a cow, Thirty geese, and two turkeys, - eight pigs and Now if these turn out well, at the end of the year, I shall fill both my pockets with guineas, 't is clear."

Forgetting her burden, when this she had said, The maid superciliously tossed up her head; When, alas for her prospects! her milk-pail descended.

And so all her schemes for the future were ended.

This moral, I think, may be safely attached, -"Reckon not on your chickens before they are hatched."

JEFFREYS TAYLOR.

WHERE ARE YOU GOING, MY PRETTY MAID?

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

"I am going a-milking, sir," she said.

"May I go with you, my pretty maid?"

"You're kindly welcome, sir," she said.

"What is your father, my pretty maid?"

"My father's a farmer, sir," she said.

"What is your fortune, my pretty maid ?"

"My face is my fortune, sir," she said.

"Then I won't marry you, my pretty maid?"

"Nobody asked you, sir," she said.

ANONYMOUS.

TOBY TOSSPOT.

ALAS! what pity 't is that regularity,
Like Isaac Shove's, is such a rarity!
But there are swilling wights in London town,
Termed jolly dogs, choice spirits, alias swine,
Who pour, in midnight revel, bumpers down,
Making their throats a thoroughfare for wine.

These spendthrifts, who life's pleasures thus run on,
Dozing with headaches till the afternoon,
Lose half men's regular estate of sun,
By borrowing too largely of the moon.

One of this kidney — Toby Tosspot hight —
Was coming from the Bedford late at night;
And being Bacchi plenus, full of wine,
Although he had a tolerable notion
Of aiming at progressive motion,
'T was n't direct, —'t was serpentine.
He worked with sinuosities, along,
Like Monsieur Corkscrew, worming through a cork,

Not straight, like Corkscrew's proxy, stiff Don Prong, — a fork.

At length, with near four bottles in his pate,
He saw the moon shining on Shove's brass plate,
When reading, "Please to ring the bell,"
And being civil beyond measure,
"Ring it!" says Toby, — "very well;
I'll ring it with a deal of pleasure."
Toby, the kindest soul in all the town,

Gave it a jerk that almost jerked it down.

He waited full two minutes, — no one came;
He waited full two minutes more; — and then Says Toby, "If he's deaf, I'm not to blame;
I'll pull it for the gentleman again."

But the first peal woke Isaac in a fright,
Who, quick as lightning, popping up his head,
Sat on his head's antipodes, in bed,
Pale as a parsnip, — bolt upright.

At length he wisely to himself doth say, calming his fears, —

"Tush! 't is some fool has rung and run away;"
When peal the second rattled in his ears.

Shove jumped into the middle of the floor;
And, trembling at each breath of air that stirred,

He groped down stairs, and opened the street door.

While Toby was performing peal the third.

Isaac eyed Toby, fearfully askant,
And saw he was a strapper, stout and tall;
Then put this question, "Pray, sir, what d'ye want?"

Says Toby, "I want nothing, sir, at all.

"Want nothing! Sir, you've pulled my bell, I vow,

As if you'd jerk it off the wire."

Quoth Toby, gravely making him a bow,
"I pulled it, sir, at your desire."

"At mine?" "Yes, yours; I hope I've done it well.

High time for bed, sir; I was hastening to it; But if you write up, 'Please to ring the bell,' Common politeness makes me stop and do it."
GEORGE COLMAN THE YOUNGER.

SIR MARMADUKE.

SIR MARMADUKE was a hearty knight, —
Good man! old man!
He's painted standing bolt upright,
With his hose rolled over his knee;
His periwig's as white as chalk,
And on his fist he holds a hawk;
And he looks like the head
Of an ancient family.

His dining-room was long and wide, —
Good man! old man!
His spaniels lay by the fireside;
And in other parts, d'ye see,
Cross-bows, tobacco-pipes, old hats,
A saddle, his wife, and a litter of cats;
And he looked like the head
Of an ancient family.

He never turned the poor from the gate, -Good man! old man!

But was always ready to break the pate Of his country's enemy. What knight could do a better thing Than serve the poor and fight for his king? And so may every head Of an ancient family.

GEORGE COLMAN THE YOUNGER.

THE FINE OLD ENGLISH GENTLEMAN.*

I 'LL sing you a good old song, Made by a good old pate, Of a fine old English gentleman Who had an old estate, And who kept up his old mansion At a bountiful old rate, With a good old porter to relieve The old poor at his gate, Like a fine old English gentleman All of the olden time.

His hall so old was hung around With pikes and guns and bows, And swords, and good old bucklers, That had stood some tough old blows; 'T was there "his worship" held his state In doublet and trunk hose, And quaffed his cup of good old sack, To warm his good old nose, Like a fine, etc.

When winter's cold brought frost and snow, He opened house to all; And though threescore and ten his years, He featly led the ball; Nor was the houseless wanderer E'er driven from his hall; For while he feasted all the great, He ne'er forgot the small; Like a fine, etc.

But time, though old, is strong in flight, And years rolled swiftly by, And Autumn's falling leaves proclaimed This good old man must die! He laid him down right tranquilly, Gave up life's latest sigh; And mournful stillness reigned around, And tears bedewed each eye, For this good, etc.

Now surely this is better far Than all the new parade Of theatres and fancy balls, "At home" and masquerade:

 Modelled upon an old black-letter song, called "The Old and Young Courtier

And much more economical. For all his bills were paid. Then leave your new vagaries quite, And take up the old trade Of a fine old English gentleman, All of the olden time. ANONYMOUS

THE DIVERTING HISTORY OF JOHN GILPIN.

SHOWING HOW HE WEN'T LARTHER THAN HE INTENDED. AND CAME SAFE HOME AGAIN.

John Gilpin was a citizen Of credit and renown, A trainband captain eke was he Of famous London town.

John Gilpin's spouse said to her dear ---"Though wedded we have been These twice ten tedious years, yet we No holiday have seen.

"To-morrow is our wedding-day, And we will then repair Unto the Bell at Edmonton All in a chaise and pair.

"My sister and my sister's child, Myself and children three, Will fill the chaise; so you must ride On horseback after we."

He soon replied, "I do admire Of womankind but one, And you are she, my dearest dear: Therefore it shall be done.

"I am a linendraper bold, As all the world doth know, And my good friend the calender Will lend his horse to go "

Quoth Mrs. Gilpin, "That's well said; And for that wine is dear, We will be furnished with our own, Which is both bright and clear."

John Gilpin kissed his loving wife; O'erjoyed was he to find, That, though on pleasure she was bent, She had a frugal mind.

The morning came, the chaise was brought, But yet was not allowed To drive up to the door, lest all Should say that she was proud.

So three doors off the chaise was stayed, Where they did all get in; Six precious souls, and all agog To dash through thick and thin.

Smack went the whip, round went the wheels, Were never folks so glad; The stones did rattle underneath, As if Cheapside were mad.

John Gilpin at his horse's side Seized fast the flowing mane, And up he got, in haste to ride, But soon came down again;

For saddle-tree scarce reached had he, His journey to begin, When, turning round his head, he saw Three customers come in.

So down he came; for loss of time, Although it grieved him sore, Yet loss of pence, full well he knew, Would trouble him much more.

"T was long before the customers Were suited to their mind, When Betty screaming came down stairs, "The wine is left behind!"

"Good lack!" quoth he, "yet bring it me, My leathern belt likewise, In which I bear my trusty sword When I do exercise."

Now Mistress Gilpin (careful soul!)
Had two stone bottles found,
To hold the liquor that she loved,
And keep it safe and sound.

Each bottle had a curling ear,
Through which the belt he drew,
And hung a bottle on each side,
To make his balance true.

When over all, that he might be Equipped from top to toe, His long red cloak, well brushed and neat, He manfully did throw.

Now see him mounted once again Upon his nimble steed, Full slowly pacing o'er the stones, With caution and good heed.

But finding soon a smoother road Beneath his well-shod feet, The snorting beast began to trot, Which galled him in his seat. "So, fair and softly," John he cried, But John he cried in vain; That trot became a gallop soon, In spite of curb and rein.

So stooping down, as needs he must
Who cannot sit upright,
He grasped the mane with both his hands,
And eke with all his might.

His horse, who never in that sort Had handled been before, What thing upon his back had got Did wonder more and more.

Away went Gilpin, neck or naught; Away went hat and wig; He little dreamt, when he set out, Of running such a rig.

The wind did blow, the cloak did fly, Like streamer long and gay, Till, loop and button failing both, At last it flew away.

Then might all people well discern
The bottles he had slung;
A bottle swinging at each side,
As hath been said or sung.

The dogs did bark, the children screamed, Up flew the windows all; And every soul cried out, "Well done!" As loud as he could bawl Away went Gilpin, — who but he?

His fame soon spread around,
"He carries weight! he rides a race!
"T is for a thousand pound!"

And still as fast as he drew near,
'T was wonderful to view,
How in a trice the turnpike men
Their gates wide open threw.

And now, as he went bowing down
His reeking head full low,
The bottles twain behind his back
Were shattered at a blow.

Down ran the wine into the road, Most piteous to be seen, Which made his horse's flanks to smoke As they had basted been.

But still he seemed to carry weight, With leathern girdle braced; For all might see the bottle necks Still dangling at his waist. Thus all through merry Ialington These gambols did he play, Until he came unto the Wash Of Edmonton so gay;

And there he threw the wash about On both sides of the way, Just like unto a trundling mop, Or a wild goose at play.

At Edmonton his loving wife
From the balcony spied
Her tender husband, wondering much
To see how he did ride.

"Stop, stop, John Gilpin!—Here's the house,"
They all at once did cry,
"The dinner waits, and we are tired."
Said Gilpin, "So am I!"

But yet his horse was not a whit Inclined to tarry there; For why?—his owner had a house Full ten miles off, at Ware.

So like an arrow swift he flew, Shot by an archer strong; So did he fly — which brings me to The middle of my song.

Away went Gilpin out of breath, And sore against his will, Till at his friend the calender's His horse at last stood still.

The calender, amazed to see
His neighbor in such trim,
Laid down his pipe, flew to the gate,
And thus accosted him:

"What news? what news? your tidings tell;
Tell me you must and shall,—
Say why bareheaded you are come,
Or why you come at all?"

Now Gilpin had a pleasant wit, And loved a timely joke : And thus unto the calender In merry guise he spoke

"I came because your horse would come;
And, if I well forebode,
My hat and wig will soon be here,
They are upon the road"

The calender, right glad to find His friend in merry pin, Returned him not a single word, But to the house went in; Whence straight he came with hat and wig.

A wig that flowed behind,

A hat not much the worse for wear,

Each comely in its kind.

He held them up, and in his turn
Thus showed his ready wit,
"My head is twice as big as yours,
They therefore needs must fit.

"But let me scrape the dirt away That hangs upon your face, And stop and eat, for well you may Be in a hungry case."

Said John, "It is my wedding-day, And all the world would stare, If wife should dine at Edmonton, And I should dine at Ware."

So turning to his horse, he said,
"I am in haste to dine;
'T was for your pleasure you came here,
You shall go back for mine."

Ah, luckless speech, and bootless boast For which he paid full dear; For, while he spake, a braying ass Did sing most loud and clear;

Whereat his horse did snort, as he Had heard a lion roar, And galloped off with all his might, As he had done before.

Away went Gilpin, and away
Went Gilpin's hat and wig:
He lost them sooner than at first,
For why?—they were too big.

Now Mistress Gilpin, when she saw Her husband posting down Into the country far away, She pulled out half a crown;

And thus unto the youth she said,
That drove them to the Bell,
"This shall be yours when you bring back
My husband safe and well."

The youth did ride, and soon did meet
John coming back amain;
Whom in a trice le tried to stop
By catching at his rein;

But not performing what he meant,
And gladly would have done,
The frighted steed he frighted more,
And made him faster run.

Away went Gilpin, and away Went postboy at his heels, The postboy's horse right glad to miss The lumbering of the wheels.

Six gentlemen upon the road, Thus seeing Gilpin fly, With postboy scampering in the rear, They raised the hue and cry: -

"Stop thief! stop thief! - a highwayman!" Not one of them was mute; And all and each that passed that way Did join in the pursuit.

And now the turnpike-gates again Flew open in short space; The toll-men thinking, as before, That Gilpin rode a race.

And so he did, and won it too. For he got first to town; Nor stopped till where he had got up He did again get down.

Now let us sing, "Long live the king, And Gilpin, long live he: And when he next doth ride abroad, May I be there to see!"

WILLIAM COWPER

THE GOUTY MERCHANT AND THE STRANGER.

In Broad Street building (on a winter night), Snug by his parlor-fire, a gouty wight Sat all alone, with one hand rubbing His feet, rolled up in fleecy hose: With t' other he'd beneath his nose The Public Ledger, in whose columns grubbing, He noted all the sales of hops, Ships, shops, and slops; Gum, galls, and groceries; ginger, gin, Tar, tallow, turmeric, turpentine, and tin; When lo! a decent personage in black Entered and most politely said, -"Your footman, sir, has gone his nightly track

To the King's Head, And left your door agar; which I Observed in passing by,

And thought it neighborly to give you notice." "Ten thousand thanks; how very few get.

In time of danger, Such kind attentions from a stranger! Assuredly, that fellow's throat is Doomed to a final drop at Newgate:

He knows, too, (the unconscionable elf!) That there's no soul at home except myself."

"Indeed," replied the stranger (looking grave),

"Then he 's a double knave;

He knows that rogues and thieves by scores Nightly beset unguarded doors:

And see, how easily might one

Of these domestic foes,

Even beneath your very nose, Perform his knavish tricks;

Enter your room, as I have done,

Blow out your candles — thus — and thus — Pocket your silver candlesticks.

And - walk off - thus "-

So said, so done; he made no more remark Nor waited for replies,

But marched off with his prize,

Leaving the gouty merchant in the dark.

HORACE SMITH.

ORATOR PUFF.

MR ORATOR PUFF had two tones in his voice. The one squeaking thus, and the other down so; In each sentence he uttered he gave you your choice,

For one half was B alt, and the rest G below. O ! O! Orator Puff,

One voice for an orator's surely enough.

But he still talked away, spite of coughs and of frowns,

So distracting all ears with his ups and his downs,

That a wag once, on hearing the orator say,

"My voice is for war!" asked, "Which of them, pray?"

O! O! Orator Puff, etc.

Reeling homewards one evening, top-heavy with

And rehearsing his speech on the weight of the crown,

He tripped near a saw-pit, and tumbled right in, "Sinking fund" the last words as his noddle came down.

O! O! Orator Puff, etc.

"Good Lord !" he exclaimed, in his he-and-she

"HELP ME OUT! Help me out! I have broken my bones!"

"Help you out?" said a Paddy who passed, "what a bother!

Why, there's two of you there - can't you help one another?"

O! O! Orator Puff.

One voice for an orator's surely enough. THOMAS MOORE.

MORNING MEDITATIONS.

LET Taylor preach, upon a morning breezy, How well to rise while nights and larks are flying,— For my part, getting up seems not so easy By half as lying.

What if the lark does carol in the sky, Soaring beyond the sight to find him out,— Wherefore am I to rise at such a fly? I'm not a trout.

Talk not to me of bees and such-like hums,
The smell of sweet herbs at the morning princ,—
Only lie long enough, and hed becomes
A bed of time.

To me Dan Phoebus and his car are naught, His steeds that paw impatiently about, — Let them enjoy, say I, as horses ought, The first turn-out!

Right beautiful the dewy meads appear Besprinkled by the rosy-fingered girl; What then, — if I prefer my pullow-beer To early pearl?

My stomach is not ruled by other men's, And, grumbling for a reason, quaintly begs Wherefore should master rise before the hens Have laid their eggs?

Why from a comfortable pillow start
To see faint flushes in the east awaken?
A fig, say I, for any streaky part,
Excepting bacon.

An early riser Mr. Gray has drawn,
Who used to haste the dewy grass among,
"To meet the sun upon the upland lawn,"—
Well, — he died young.

With charwomen such early hours agree,
And sweeps that earn betimes their bit and sup;
But I'm no climbing boy, and need not be
All up, — all up!

So here I lie, my morning calls deferring,
Till something nearer to the stroke of noon;

A man that's fond precoclously of stirring
Must be a spoon.

THOMAS HOOD.

FAITHLESS SALLY BROWN.

Young Ben he was a nice young man, A carpenter by trade; And he fell in love with Sally Brown, That was a lady's maid. But as they fetched a walk one day,
They met a press-gang crew;
And Sally she did faint away,
Whilst Ben he was brought to.

The boatswain swore with wicked words
Enough to shock a saint,
That, though she did seem in a fit,
'T was nothing but a feint.

"Come, girl," said he, "hold up your head, He'll be as good as me; For when your swain is in our boat A boatswain he will be."

So when they 'd made their game of her, And taken off her elf, She roused, and found she only was A coming to herself.

"And is he gone, and is he gone?"
She cried and wept outright;
"Then I will to the water-side,
And see him out of sight."

A waterman came up to her;
"Now, young woman," said he,
"If you weep on so, you will make Eye-water in the sea."

"Alas! they've taken my beau, Ben, To sail with old Benbow;" And her woe began to run afresh, As if she'd said, Gee woe!

Says he, "They've only taken hun
To the tender-ship, you see"
"The tender-ship," cried Sally Brown, "What a hard-ship that must be!"

"O, would I were a mermaid now, For then I'd follow him ' But O, I'm not a fish-woman, And so I cannot swim

"Alas! I was not born beneath The Virgin and the Scales, So I must curse my cruel stars, And walk about in Wales."

Now Ben had sailed to many a place That's underneath the world; But in two years the ship came home, And all her sails were furled.

But when he called on Sally Brown,
To see how she got on,
He found she d got another sen,
Whose Christian-name was John.

O Sally Brown! O Sally Brown! How could you serve me so! ('ve met with many a breeze before, But never such a blow!"

Then, reading on his 'bacco box, He heaved a heavy sigh, And then began to eye his pipe, And then to pipe his eye.

And then he tried to sing, "All's Well!"

But could not, though he tried;

His head was turned, — and so he chewed

His pigtail till he died.

His death, which happened in his berth, At forty-odd befeal; They went and told the sexton, and The sexton tolled the bell.

THOMAS HOOD.

FAITHLESS NELLY GRAY.

A PATHETIC BALLAD

BEN BATTLE was a soldier bold, And used to war's alarms; But a cannon-ball took off his legs, So he laid down his arms.

Now as they bore him off the field, Said he, "Let others shoot; For here I leave my second leg, And the Forty-second Foot."

The army-surgeons made him limbs Said he, "They're only pegs;
But there's as wooden members quite,
As represent my legs."

Now Ben he loved a pretty maid, — Her name was Nelly Gray; So he went to pay her his devours, When he devoured his pay.

But when he called on Nelly Gray, She made him quite a scoff; And when she saw his wooden legs, Began to take them off.

"O Nelly Gray! O Nelly Gray! Is this your love so warm? The love that loves a scarlet coat Should be more uniform."

Said she, "I loved a soldier once, For he was blithe and brave; But I will never have a man With both legs in the grave. "Before you had those timber toes
Your love I did allow;
But then, you know, you stand upon Another footing now."

"O Nelly Gray! O Nelly Gray!
For all your jeering speeches,
At duty's call I left my legs
In Badajos's breaches."

"Why, then," said she, "you 've lost the feet Of legs in war's alarms, And now you cannot wear your shoes Upon your feats of arms!"

"O false and fickle Nelly Gray!
I know why you refuse:
Though I've no feet, some other man
Is standing in my shoes.

"I wish I ne'er had seen your face;
But, now, a long farewell!
For you will be my death; — alas!
You will not be my Nell!"

Now when he went from Nelly Gray His heart so heavy got, And life was such a burden grown, It made him take a knot.

So round his melancholy neck
A rope he did intwine,
And, for his second time in life,
Enlisted in the Line.

One end he tied around a beam, And then removed his pegs; And, as his legs were off, — of course He soon was off his legs.

And there he hung till he was dead
As any nail in town;
For, though distress had cut him up,
It could not cut him down.

A dozen men sat on his corpse,
To find out why he died, —
And they buried Ben in four cross-roads,
With a stake in his inside.

I AM A FRIAR OF ORDERS GRAY.

FROM THE OPERA OF "ROBIN HOOD."

I am a friar of orders gray, And down in the valleys I take my way; I pull not blackberry, haw, or hip,— Good store of venison fills my scrip; My long bead-roll I merrily chant; Where'er I walk no money I want : And why I'm so plump the reason I tell, -Who leads a good life is sure to live well. What baron or squire,

Or knight of the shire, Lives half so well as a holy friar?

After supper of heaven I dream, But that is a pullet and clouted cream; Myself, by denial, I mortify -With a dainty bit of a warden-pie; I'm clothed in sackcloth for my sin. -With old sack wine I'm lined within; A chirping cup is my matin song, And the vesper's bell is my bowl, ding dong.

> What baron or squire. Or knight of the shire, Lives half so well as a holy friar? JOHN O'KEEFE

THE JACKDAW OF RHEIMS.

THE Jackdaw sat on the Cardinal's chair ! Bishop and abbot and prior were there;

Many a monk, and many a friar, Many a knight, and many a squire, With a great many more of lesser degree, -In sooth, a goodly company, And they served the Lord Primate on bended

Never, I ween,

Was a prouder seen,

Read of in books, or dreamt of in dreams, Than the Cardinal Lord Archbishop of Rheims!

In and out.

Through the motley rout,

That little Jackdaw kept hopping about:

Here and there,

Like a dog in a fair,

Over comfits and cates,

And dishes and plates,

Cowl and cope, and rochet and pall, Mitre and crosier, he hopped upon all.

With a saucy air,

He perched on the chair

Where, in state, the great Lord Cardinal sat, In the great Lord Cardinal's great red hat;

And he peered in the face

Of his Lordship's Grace,

With a satisfied look, as if he would say, "WE TWO are the greatest folks here to-day!"

> And the priests, with awe, As such freaks they saw,

Said. "The Devil must be in that little Jack- Some rascal or other had popped in and prigged daw!"

The feast was over, the board was cleared, The flawns and the custards had all disappeared, And six little Singing-boys, - dear little souls In nice clean faces, and nice white stoles. -

Came, in order due,

Two by two,

Marching that grand refectory through ! A nice little boy held a golden ewer, Embossed and filled with water, as pure As any that flows between Rheims and Namur. Which a nice little boy stood ready to catch In a fine golden hand-basin made to match. Two nice little boys, rather more grown, Carried lavender-water and eau-de-Cologne; And a nice little boy had a nice cake of soap. Worthy of washing the hands of the Pope!

One little boy more A napkin bore,

Of the best white diaper, fringed with pink, And a cardinal's hat marked in "permane ink."

The great Lord Cardinal turns at the sight Of these nice little boys dressed all in white;

From his finger he draws

His costly turquoise:

And, not thinking at all about little Jackdaws

Deposits it straight

By the side of his plate,

While the nice little boys on his Eminence wait. Till, when nobody 's dreaming of any such thing, That little Jackdaw hops off with the ring!

> There's a cry and a shout, And a deuce of a rout,

And nobody seems to know what they 're about, But the monks have their pockets all turned inside out :

The friars are kneeling.

And hunting and feeling

The carpet, the floor, and the walls, and the ceiling.

The Cardinal drew

Off each plum-colored shoe,

And left his red stockings exposed to the view;

He peeps, and he feels

In the toes and the heels.

They turn up the dishes, - they turn up the plates. -

They take up the poker and poke out the grates,

— They turn up the rugs,

They examine the mugs; But, no! - no such thing, -

They can't find THE RING!

And the Abbot declared that "when nobody twigged it,

it!"

The Cardinal rose with a dignified look,

He called for his candle, his bell, and his book!

In holy anger and pious grief

He solemnly cursed that rascally thief!

He cursed him at board, he cursed him in bed;

From the sole of his foot to the crown of his

He cursed him in sleeping, that every night He should dream of the Devil, and wake in a

He cursed him in cating, he cursed him in drinking,

He cursed him in coughing, in sneezing, in winking:

He cursed him in sitting, in standing, in lying; He cursed him in walking, in riding, in flying; He cursed him living. he cursed him dying!—

Never was heard such a terrible curse!

But what gave rise To no little surprise,

Nobody seemed one penny the worse!

The day was gone, The night came on,

The monks and the friers they searched till dawn;

When the sacristan saw, On crumpled claw,

Come limping a poor little lame Jackdaw!

No longer gay,

As on yesterday;

His feathers all seemed to be turned the wrong way; --

His pinions drooped, —he could hardly stand, — His head was as bald as the palm of your hand; His eye so dim,

So wasted each limb,

That, heedless of grammar, they all cried, "That's HIM!—

That's the scamp that has done this scandalous thing,

That's the thief that has got my Lord Cardinal's Ring!"

The poor little Jackdaw, When the monks he saw,

Feebly gave vent to the ghost of a caw; And turned his bald head as much as to say, "Pray be so good as to walk this way!"

Slower and slower

He limped on before, Till they came to the back of the belfry-door,

Where the first thing they saw, Midst the sticks and the straw,

Was the RING, in the nest of that little Jackdaw!

Then the great Lord Cardinal called for his book, And off that terrible curse he took:

> The mute expression Served in lieu of confession,

And, being thus coupled with full restitution, The Jackdaw got plenary absolution!

> — When those words were heard, That poor little bird

Was so changed in a moment, 't was really absurd .

He grew sleek and fat;

In addition to that,

A fresh crop of feathers came thick as a mat!

His tail waggled more

Even than before;

But no longer it wagged with an impudent air, No longer he perched on the Cardinal's chair:

He hopped now about With a gait devout;

At Matins, at Vespers, he never was out;

And, so far from any more pilfering deeds,

He always seemed telling the Confessor's beads. If any one lied, or if any one swore,

Or slumbered in prayer-time and happened to snore,

That good Jackdaw

Would give a great "Caw!"

As much as to say, "Don't do so any more!"
While many remarked, as his manners they saw,
That they "never had known such a pious Jackdaw '"

He long lived the pride
Of that country side,

And at last in the odor of sanctity died;

When, as words were too faint

His merits to paint,

The Conclave determined to make him a Saint.

And on newly made Saints and Popes, as you know

It's the custom of Rome new names to bestow, So they canonized him by the name of Jem Crow!

RICHARD HARRIS BARHAM
(Thomas Ingoldsby, Esq.).

MISADVENTURES AT MARGATE.

MR. SIMPKINSON (loquitur).

I was in Margate last July, I walked upon the pier,

I saw a little vulgar Boy, — I said, "What make you here?

The gloom upon your youthful cheek speaks anything but joy;"

Again I said, "What make you here, you little vulgar Boy?"

He frowned, that little vulgar Boy, — he deemed I meant to scoff. —

And when the little heart is big, a little "sets it off."

He put his finger in his mouth, his little bosom | I took him home to Number 2, the house beside rose. -

He had no little handkerchief to wipe his little nose!

"Hark! don't you hear, my little man ! - it's striking Nine," I said,

"An hour when all good little boys and girls should be in bed.

Run home and get your supper, else your Ma will scold, -O fie!

It's very wrong indeed for little boys to stand and cry i"

The tear-drop in his little eye again began to spring,

His bosom throbbed with agony, - he cried like anything!

I stooped, and thus amidst his sobs I heard him murmur, — " Ah !

I have n't got no supper! and I have n't got no Ma !

"My father, he is on the seas, - my mother's dead and gone!

And I am here, on this here pier, to roam the world alone;

I have not had, this livelong day, one drop to cheer my heart,

Nor 'brown' to buy a bit of bread with, -let alone a tart.

"If there 's a soul will give me food, or find me in employ,

By day or night, then blow me tight!" (he was a vulgar Boy;)

"And now I'm here, from this here pier it is my fixed intent

To jump as Mister Levi did from off the Monument!"

"Cheer up! cheer up! my little man, - cheer up!" I kindly said,

"You are a naughty boy to take such things into your head;

If you should jump from off the rier, you'd surely break your legs,

Perhaps your neck, - then Bogey'd have you, sure as eggs are eggs!

"Come home with me, my little man, come home with me and sup!

My landlady is Mrs. Jones, — we must not keep her up, -

There's roast potatoes at the fire, - enough for I rang the bell for Mrs. Jones, for she was down me and you, --

Number 2."

"The Foy,"

I bade him wipe his dirty shoes, - that little vulgar Boy, -

And then I said to Mistress Jones, the kindest of her sex,

"Pray be so good as go and fetch a pint of double X ' "

But Mrs. Jones was rather cross, she made a little noise.

She said she "did not like to wait on little vulgar Boys."

She with her apron wiped the plates, and, as she rubbed the delf,

Said I might "go to Jericho, and fetch my beer myself!"

I did not go to Jericho, — I went to Mr. Cobb, — I changed a shilling (which in town the people call a Bob), -

It was not so much for myself as for that vulgar child, -

And I said, "A pint of double X, and please to draw it mild!"

When I came back I gazed about, - I gazed on stool and chair, -

I could not see my little friend, because he was not there!

I peeped beneath the table-cloth, beneath the sofa, too, -

I said, "You little vulgar Boy! why, what's become of you!"

I could not see my table-spoons. — I looked, but could not see

The little fiddle-patterned ones I use when I'm

I could not see my sugar-tongs, my silver watch, -- O. dear!

I know 't was on the mantel-piece when I went out for beer.

I could not see my Macintosh, - it was not to be seen!

Nor yet my best white beaver hat, broad-brimmed and lined with green;

My carpet-bag, - my cruet-stand, that holds my sauce and soy, -

My roast potatoes! - all are gone! - and so's that vulgar Boy!

below,

Come home, you little vulgar Boy, - I lodge at | "O Mrs. Jones, what do you think ! - ain't this a pretty go?

That horrid little vulgar Boy whom I brought | I went and told the constable my property te here to-night

He's stolen my things and run away!" Says He asked me if "I did not wish that I might get she, "And serve you right!"

Next morning I was up betimes, - I sent the Crier round,

All with his bell and gold-laced hat, to say I'd give a pound

To find that little vulgar Boy, who'd gone and used me so;

But when the Crier cried, "O Yes!" the people cried, "O No!"

I went to "Jarvis' Landing-place," the glory of the town.

There was a common sailor-man a walking up and down,

I told my tale, — he seemed to think I'd not been treated well,

And called me "Poor old Buffer!" - what that means I cannot tell.

That Sailor-man, he said he'd seen that morning on the shore

A son of - something - 't was a name I 'd never heard before, -

A little "gallows-looking chap," - dear me, what could he mean? -

With a "carpet-swab" and "mucking-togs," and a hat turned up with green.

He spoke about his "precious eyes," and said he 'd seen him "sheer," -

It's very odd that Sailor-men should talk so very queer ;

And then he hitched his trousers up, as is, I'm told, their use, -

It's very odd that Sailor-men should wear those things so loose.

I did not understand him well, but think he meant to say

He'd seen that little vulgar Boy, that morning, swim away

In Captain Large's Royal George, about an hour before.

And they were now, as he supposed, "somewheres" about the Nore.

A landsman said, "I twig the chap, he's been upon the Mill, -

And 'cause he gammons so the flats, ve calls him Veeping Bill!"

He said "he'd done me werry brown, and nicely stowed the swag," --

That's French, I fancy, for a hat, or else a carpet-bag.

track;

it back."

I answered, "To be sure I do! - it's what I'm come about."

He smiled and said, "Sir, does your mother know that you are out?'

Not knowing what to do, I thought I'd hasten back to town,

And beg our own Lord Mayor to catch the boy who'd "done me brown."

His Lordship very kindly said he 'd try and find bim out.

But he "rather thought that there were several vulgar boys about."

He sent for Mr. Whithair then, and I described "the swag,"

My Macintosh, my sugar-tongs, my spoons, and carpet-bag;

He promised that the New Police should all their powers employ,

But never to this hour have I beheld that vulgar Boy!

MORAL.

Remember, then, that when a boy I've heard my Grandma tell,

"BE WARNED IN TIME BY OTHERS' HARM, ANL YOU SHALL DO FULL WELL!"

Don't link yourself with vulgar folks, who 've got no fixed abode,

Tell lies, use naughty words, and say they "wisl they may be blowed!"

Don't take too much of double X! - and don't at night go out

To fetch your beer yourself, but make the pot boy bring your stout!

And when you go to Margate next, just stop and ring the bell,

Give my respects to Mrs. Jones, and say I'm pretty well!

RICHARD HARRIS BARHAM (Thomas Ingoldsby, Esq).

THE YARN OF THE "NANCY BELL."

FROM "THE BAB BALLADS,"

'T was on the shores that round our coast From Deal to Ramsgate span,

That I found alone, on a piece of stone, An elderly naval man.

- His hair was weedy, his beard was long, And weedy and long was he; And I heard this wight on the shore recite, In a singular minor key:—
- "O, I am a cook and a captain bold,
 And the mate of the Nancy brig,
 And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite,
 And the crew of the captain's gig."
- And he shook his fists and he tore his hair,
 Till I really felt afraid,
 For I could n't help thinking the man had been drinking,
 And so I simply said:—
- "O elderly man, it's little I know Of the duties of men of the sea, And I'll eat my hand if I understand How you can possibly be
- "At once a cook and a captain bold,
 And the mate of the Nancy brig,
 And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite,
 And the crew of the captain's gig!"
- Then he gave a hitch to his trousers, which Is a trick all seamen larn,

 And having got rid of a thumping quid

 He spun this painful yarn:—
- "Twas in the good ship Nancy Beli That we sailed to the Indian sea, And there on a reef we come to grief, Which has often occurred to me.
- "And pretty nigh all o' the crew was drowned (There was seventy-seven o' soul); And only ten of the Nancy's men Said 'Here' to the muster-roll.
- "There was me, and the cook, and the captain bold, And the mate of the Nancy brig,
- And the mate of the Nancy brig, And the bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite, And the crew of the captain's gig.
- "For a month we 'd neither wittles nor drink,
 Till a-hungry we did feel,
 So we drawed a lot, and, accordin', shot
 The captain for our meal.
- "The next lot fell to the Nancy's mate,
 And a delicate dish he made;
 Then our appetite with the midshipmite
 We seven survivors stayed.

- "And then we murdered the bo'sun tight,
 And he much resembled pig;
 Then we wittled free, did the cook and me,
 On the crew of the captain's gig.
- "Then only the cook and me was left,
 And the delicate question, 'Which
 Of us two goes to the kettle?' arose,
 And we argued it out as sich.
- "For I loved that cook as a brother, I did, And the cook he worshipped me; But we'd both be blowed if we'd either be stowed In the other chap's hold, you see.
- "I'll be eat if you dines off me,' says Tom.
 'Yes, that,' says I, 'you'll be.
 I'm boiled if I die, my friend,' quoth I;
 And 'Exactly so,' quoth he.
- "Says he: 'Dear James, to murder me Were a foolish thing to do, For don't you see that you can't cook me, While I can—and will—cook you?'
- "So he boils the water, and takes the salt
 And the pepper in portions true
 (Which he never forgot), and some chopped shalot,
 And some sage and parsley too.
- "'Come here,' says he, with a proper pride,
 Which his smiling features tell;
 "T will soothing be if 1 let you see How extremely nice you'll smell."
- "And he stirred it round, and round, and round,
 And he sniffed at the foaming froth;
 When I ups with his heels, and smothers his squeals
 In the scum of the boiling broth.
- "And I eat that cook in a week or less,
 And as I eating be
 The last of his chops, why I almost drops,
 For a wessel in sight I see.
- "And I never larf, and I never smile, And I never lark nor play; But I sit and croak, and a single joke I have—which is to say:
- "O, I am a cook and a captain bold
 And the mate of the Nancy brig,
 And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite,
 And the crew of the captain's gig!"
 WILLIAM SCHWERCK GLEBERT

CAPTAIN REECE.*

Or all the ships upon the blue, No ship contained a better crew Than that of worthy Captain Reece, Commanding of The Mantelpiece.

He was adored by all his men, For worthy Captain Reece, R. N., Did all that lay within him to Promote the comfort of his crew.

If ever they were dull or sad, Their captain danced to them like mad, Or told, to make the time pass by, Droll legends of his infancy.

A feather-bed had every man, Warm slippers and hot-water can, Brown windsor from the captain's store, A valet, too, to every four.

Did they with thirst in summer burn, Lo, seltzogenes at every turn, And on all very sultry days Cream ices handed round on trays.

Then currant wine and ginger pops Stood handily on all the "tops:" And, also, with amusement rife, A "Zoetrope, or Wheel of Life."

New volumes came across the sea From Mister Mudie's libraree; The Times and Saturday Review Beguiled the leisure of the crew.

Kind-hearted Captain Reece, R. N., Was quite devoted to his men; In point of fact. good Captain Reece Beatified The Mantelpiece.

One summer eve, at half past ten, He said (addressing all his men), "Come, tell me, please, what I can do, To please and gratify my crew.

"By any reasonable plan
I'll make you happy if I can;
My own convenience count as nil;
It is my duty, and I will."

Then up and answered William Lee (The kindly captain's coxawain he, A nervous, shy, low-spoken man); He cleared his throat, and thus began:

- "You have a daughter, Captain Reece, Ten female cousins and a niece, A ma, if what I 'm told is true, Six sisters, and an aunt or two.
- "Now, somehow, sir, it seems to me, More friendly-like we all should be, If you united of 'em to Unmarried members of the crew.
- "If you'd ameliorate our life, Let each select from them a wife; And as for nervous me, old pal, Give me your own enchanting gal!"

Good Captain Reece, that worthy man, Debated on his coxswain's plan: "I quite agree," he said, "O Bill; It is my duty, and I will.

- "My daughter, that enchanting gurl, Has just been promised to an earl, And all my other familee To peers of various degree.
- "But what are dukes and viscounts to The happiness of all my crew? The word I gave you I'll fulfil; It is my duty, and I will.
- "As you desire it shall befall, I'll settle thousands on you all, And I shall be, despite my hoard, The only bachelor on board."

The boatswain of The Mantelpiece, He blushed and spoke to Captain Recce "I beg your honor's leave," he said, "If you would wish to go and wed,

"I have a widowed mother who Would be the very thing for you — She long has loved you from afar, She washes for you, Captain R."

The captain saw the dame that day — Addressed her in his playful way — "And did it want a wedding-ring? It was a tempting ickle sing!

"Well, well, the chaplain I will seek, We'll all be married this day week At yonder church upon the hill; It is my duty, and I will!"

The sisters, cousins, aunts, and niece, And widowed ma of Captain Reece, Attended there as they were bid; It was their duty, and they did.

WILLIAM SCHWENCK GILBERT

[•] In this delicious piece of absurdity will be found the germs of Gilbert's two famous comic operas, — "H. M. S. Pinafore," with its amiable captam, cheerful crew, and the "sisters and the cousins and the aunts," and "The Perates of Pensance, or The Slave of Duty?"

LITTLE BILLEE.

THERE were three sailors of Bristol City
Who took a boat and went to sea,
But first with beef and captain's biscuits
And pickled pork they loaded she.

There was gorging Jack, and guzzling Jimmy, And the youngest he was little Billee; Now when they'd got as far as the Equator, They'd nothing left but one split pea.

Says gorging Jack to guzzling Jimmy, "I am extremely hungaree."
To gorging Jack says guzzling Jimmy, "We've nothing left, us must eat we."

Says gorging Jack to guzzling Jimmy,
"With one another we should n't agree!
There's little Bill, he's young and tender,
We're old and tough, so let's eat he."

"O Billy! we're going to kill and eat you, So undo the button of your chemie." When Bill received this information, He used his pocket-handkerchie.

"First let me say my catechism Which my poor mother taught to me."
"Make haste! make haste!" says guzzling Jimmy,
While Jack pulled out his snickersnee.

Billy went up to the main-top-gallant mast, And down he fell on his bended knee, He scarce had come to the Twelfth Commandment

When up he jumps - "There's land I see!

"Jerusalem and Madagascar And North and South Amerikee, There's the British flag a riding at anchor, With Admiral Napier, K. C. B."

So when they got aboard of the Admiral's,
He hanged fat Jack and flogged Jimmee,
But as for little Bill he made him
The Captain of a Seventy-three.
WILLIAM MARREPEACE THACKERAY.

THE BELLE OF THE BALL.

Years, years ago, ere yet my dreams
Had been of being wise or witty,
Ere I had done with writing themes,
Or yawned o'er this infernal Chitty,—
Years, years ago, while all my joys
Were in my fowling-piece and filly;
In short, while I was yet a boy,
I fell in love with Laura Lilly.

I saw her at the county ball;
There, when the sounds of flute and fiddle
Gave signal sweet in that old hall
Of hands across and down the middle,
Hers was the subtlest spell by far
Of all that sets young hearts romancing:
She was our queen, our rose, our star;
And then she danced,—O Heaven! her dancing.

Dark was her hair; her hand was white;
Her voice was exquisitely tender;
Her eyes were full of liquid light;
I never saw a waist so slender;
Her every look, her every smile,
Shot right and left a score of arrows:
I thought 't was Venus from her isle,
And wondered where she'd left her sparrows.

She talked of politics or prayers,
Of Southey's prose or Wordsworth's sonnets,
Of danglers or of dancing bears,
Of battles or the last new bonnets;
By candle-light, at twelve o'clock, —
To me it mattered not a tittle, —
If those bright lips had quoted Locke,
I might have thought they murmured Little

Through sunny May, through sultry June,
I loved her with a love eternal;
I spoke her praises to the moon,
I wrote them to the Sunday Journal.
My mother laughed; I soon found out
That ancient ladies have no feeling
My father frowned; but how should gout
See any happiness in kneeling?

She was the daughter of a dean, —
Rich, fat, and rather apoplectic;
She had one brother just thirteen,
Whose color was extremely hectic;
Her grandmother for many a year
Had fed the parish with her bounty;
Her second cousin was a peer,
And lord-lieutenant of the county.

But titles and the three-per-cents,
And mortgages, and great relations,
And India bonds, and tithes and rents,
O, what are they to love's sensations?
Black eyes, fair forehead, clustering locks,
Such wealth, such honors Cupid chooses;
He cares as little for the stocks
As Baron Rothschild for the muses.

She sketched; the vale, the wood, the beach, Grew lovelier from her pencil's shading. She botanized; I envied each Young blossom in her boudoir fading; She warbled Handel; it was grand, —
She made the Catilina jealous:
She touched the organ; I could stand
For hours and hours to blow the bellows.

She kept an album too, at home,
Well filled with all an album's glories, Paintings of butterflies and Rome,
Patterns for trinmings, Persian stories,
Soft songs to Julia's cockatoo,
Fierce odes to famine and to slaughter,
And autographs of Prince Leeboo,
And recipes for elder-water.

And she was flattered, worshipped, bored;
Her steps were watched, her dress was noted;
Her poodle-dog was quite adored;
Her sayings were extremely quoted.
She laughed, — and every heart was glad,
As if the taxes were abolished;
She frowned, — and every look was sad,
As if the opera were demolished.

She smiled on many just for fun, —
I knew that there was nothing in it;
I was the first, the only one,
Her heart had thought of for a minute.
I knew it, for she told me so,
In phrase which was divinely moulded;
She wrote a charming hand, — and O,
How sweetly all her notes were folded!

Our love was most like other loves, —
A little glow, a little shiver,
A rosebud and a pair of gloves,
And "Fly Not Yet," upon the river;
Some jealousy of some one's heir,
Some hopes of dying broken-hearted;
A miniature, a lock of hair,
The usual vows, — and then we parted.

We parted: months and years rolled by;
We met again four summers after.
Our parting was all sob and sigh,
Our meeting was all mirth and laughter!
For in my heart's most secret cell
There had been many other lodgers;
And she was not the ball-room's belle,
But only Mrs. — Something — Rogers!
WINTHEOF MACKWORTH PRAED,

SORROWS OF WERTHER.

WERTHER had a love for Charlotte Such as words could never utter; Would you know how first he met her? She was cutting bread and butter. Charlotte was a married lady,
And a moral man was Worther,
And for all the wealth of Indies
Would do nothing for to hurt her.

So he sighed and pined and ogled, And his passion boiled and bubbled, Till he blew his silly brains out, And no more was by it troubled.

Charlotte, having seen his body
Borne before her on a shutter,
Like a well-conducted person,
Went on cutting bread and butter.

WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY.

A LIFE'S LOVE.

I LOVED him in my dawning years —
Far years, divinely dim;
My blithest smiles, my saddest tears,
Were evermore for him.
My dreaming when the day began,
The latest thought I had,
Was still some little loving plan
To make my darling glad.

They deemed he lacked the conquering wiles,
That other children wear;
To me his face, in frowns or smiles,
Was never aught but fair.
They said that self was all his goal,
He knew no thought beyond;
To me, I know, no living soul
Was half so true and fond.

In love's eclipse, in friendship's dearth,
In grief and feud and bale,
My heart has learnt the sacred worth
Of one that cannot fail;
And come what must, and come what may,
Nor power, nor praise, nor pelf,
Shall lure my faith from thee to stray.
My sweet, my own — Myself.

Anonymou

ON AN OLD MUFF.

Time has a magic wand!
What is this meets my hand,
Moth-eaten, mouldy, and Covered with fluff,
Faded and stiff and scant!
Can it be? no, it can't,—
Yes,—I declare't is Aunt Prudence's Muff!

Years ago — twenty-three!
Old Uncle Barnaby
Gave it to Aunty P.,
Laughing and teasing, —
"Pru. of the breezy curls,
Whisper these solemn churls,
What holds a pretty girl's
Hand without squeezing?"

Uncle was then a lad,
Gay, but, I grieve to add,
Gone to what's called "the bad," —
Smoking, — and worse!
Sleek sable then was this Muff, lined with pinkiness, —
Bloom to which beauty is Seldom averse.

I see in retrospect
Aunt, in her best bedecked,
Gliding, with mien erect,
Gravely to meeting:
Psalm-book, and kerchief new,
Peeped from the Muff of Pru.,
Young men—and pious, too—
Giving her greeting.

Pure was the life she led
Then: from her Muff, 't is said,
Tracts she distributed; — Scapegraces many,
Seeing the grace they lacked,
Followed her; one attacked
Prudence, and got his tract
Oftener than any!

Love has a potent spell!
Soon this bold ne'er-do-well,
Aunt's sweet susceptible
Heart undermining,
Slipped, so the scandal runs,
Notes in the pretty nun's
Muff, — triple-cornered ones, —
Pink as its lining!

Worse, even, soon the jade
Fled (to oblige her blade !)
Whilst her friends thought that they'd Locked her up tightly:
After such shocking games,
Aunt is of wedded dames
Gayest, — and now her name's
Mrs. Golightly.

In female conduct flaw
Sadder I never saw,
Still I 've faith in the law
Of compensation.

Once uncle went astray, — Smoked, joked, and swore away; Sworn by, he's now, by a Large congregation!

Changed is the child of sin;
Now he's (he once was thin)
Grave, with a double chin,—
Blest be his fat form!
Changed is the garb he wore:
Preacher was never more Prized than is uncle for Pulpit or platform.

If all 's as best befits
Mortals of slender wits,
Then beg this Muff, and its Fair owner pardon;
All's for the best, — indeed,
Such is my simple creed;
Still I must go and weed
Hard in my garden.

FREDERICK LOCKER

JACK HORNER.

ROM "MOTHER GOOSE FOR GROWN FOLKS."

"Little Jack Horner
Sat in a corner
Eating a Christmas Pie,
He put in his thumb,
And pulled out a plum,
And sald, 'What a great boy am 1!'"

AH, the world hath many a Horner,
Who, seated in his corner,
Finds a Christmas Pie provided for his thumb;
And cries out with exultation,
When successful exploration
Doth discover the predestinated plum!

Little Jack outgrows his 'tire,
And becometh John, Esquire;
And he finds a monstrous pasty ready made,
Stuffed with stocks and bonds and bales,
Gold, currencies, and sales,
And all the mixed ingredients of Trade.

And again it is his luck
To be just in time to pluck,
By a clever "operation," from the pie
An unexpected "plum;"
So he glorifies his thumb,
And says proudly, "What a mighty man am I!"

Or, perchance to science turning,
And with weary labor learning
All the formulas and phrases that oppress her,—
For the fruit of others' baking
So a fresh diploma taking,
Comes he forth, a full accredited Professor!

Or he's not too nice to mix
In the dish of politics;
And the dignity of office he puts on;
And he feels as big again
As a dozen nobler men,
While he writes himself the Honorable John!

Ah me, for the poor nation!
In her hour of desperation,
Her worst foe is that unsparing Horner thumb!
To which War and Death and Hate,
Right, Policy, and State,
Are but pies wherefrom his greed may grasp a plum!

O, the work was fair and true, But 'tis riddled through and through, And plundered of its glories everywhere; And before men's cheated eyes Doth the robber triumph rise And magnify itself in all the air.

Why, if even a good man dies,
And is welcomed to the skies
In the glorious resurrection of the just,
They must ruffle it below
With some vain and wretched show,
To make each his little mud-pie of the dust!

Shall we hint at Lady Horners,
Who, in their exclusive corners,
Think the world is only made of upper-crust?
Who in the queer mince-pie
That we call Society,
Do their dainty fingers delicately thrust;

Till, if it come to pass,
In the spiced and sugared mass,
One should compass — don't they call it so?—
a catch,

By the gratulation given
It would seem the very heaven
Had outdone itself in making such a match!

Or the Woman Horner, now,
Who is raising such a row
To prove that Jack 's no bigger boy than Jill;
And that she won't sit by,
With her little saucer pie,
While he from the Great Pastry picks his fill.

Jealous-wild to be a sharer
In the fruit she thinks the fairer,
Flings by all for the swift gaining of her wish;
Not discerning in her blindness,
How a tender Loving Kindness
Hid the best things in her own rejected dish!

O, the world keeps Christmas Day
In a queer, perpetual way;
Shouting always, "What a great big boy am I!"
Yet how many of the crowd
Thus vociferating loud,
And their honors or pretensions lifting high,
Have really, more than Jack,
With their boldness or their knack,
Had a finger in the making of the Pie?

ADELINE D T. WHITNEY.

COMFORT.

Who would care to pess his life away
Of the Lotos-land a dreamful denizen, —
Lotos-islands in a waveless bay,
Sung by Alfred Tennyson?

Who would care to be a dull new-comer
Far across the wild sea's wide abysses,
Where, about the earth's three thousandth summer,
Passed divine Ulysses?

Rather give me coffee, art, a book,
From my windows a delicious sea-view,
Southdown mutton, somebody to cook, —
"Music?" — I believe you.

Strawberry icebergs in the summer time, —
But of elm-wood many a massive splinter,
Good ghost stories, and a classic rhyme,
For the nights of winter.

Now and then a friend and some Sauterne, Now and then a haunch of Highland venison, And for Lotos-land I'll never yearn, Malgré Alfred Tennyson.

MORTIMER COLLINS

THE WOMEN FO'K.*

O, SAIRLY may I rue the day
I fancied first the womenkind;
For aye sinsyne I ne'er can hae
Ae quiet thought or peace o' mind!
They hae plagued my heart an' pleased my e'e,
An' teased an' flattered me at will,
But aye for a' their witcherye,
The pawky things I lo'e them still.

The air of this song is my own It was first set to music by Heather, and most beautifully set too. It was afterwards set by Dewar, whether with the same accompaniments or not, I have forced to sing by ladies against my will, which too frequently happens; and, notwithstanding my wood-notes wild, it will never be sung by any so well again.—THE AUTHOR.

THE V-A-S-E.

FROM the madding crowd they stand apart, The maidens four and the Work of Art;

And none might tell from sight alone In which had culture ripest grown,—

The Gotham Millions fair to see, The Philadelphia Pedigree,

The Boston Mind of azure hue, Or the soulful Soul from Kalamazoo,—

For all loved Art in a seemly way, With an earnest soul and a capital A.

Long they worshipped; but no one broke The sacred stillness, until up spoke

The Western one from the nameless place, Who blushing said: "What a lovely vace!"

Over three faces a sad smile flew, And they edged away from Kalamazoo.

But Gotham's haughty soul was stirred To crush the stranger with one small word Deftly hiding reproof in praise, She cries: "'Tis, indeed, a lovely vaze!"

But brief her unworthy triumph when The lofty one from the home of Penn,

With the consciousness of two grand papas, Exclaims: "It is quite a lovely vahs!"

And glances round with an anxious thrill, Awaiting the word of Beacon Hill.

But the Boston maid smiles courteouslee, And gently murmurs: "Oh pardon me!

"I did not catch your remark, because I was so entranced with that charming vaws!"

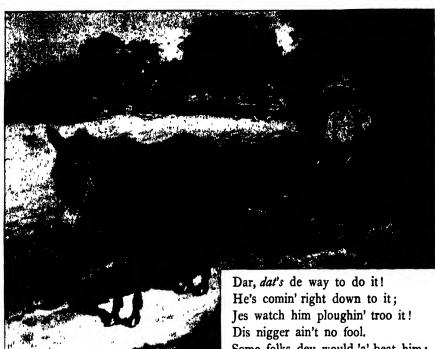

Dies erit prægelida Sinistra quum Bostonia.

JAMES JEFFREY ROCHE.

THE BRYANT VASE.

Designed by Jas. M. Whitehouse, of Tiffany & Co.

Drawn by W. H. Drake

NEBUCHADNEZZAR.

You, Nebuchadnezzah, whoa, sah! Whar is you tryin' to go, sah? I'd hab you fur to know, sah, I's a-holdin' ob de lines. You better stop dat prancin', You's paw'ful fond ob dancin', But I'll bet my yeah's advancin' Dat I'll cure you ob yo' shines.

Look heah, mule! Better min' out; Fus' t'ing you know you'll fin' out How quick I'll wear dis line out On your ugly, stubbo'n back. You needn't try to steal up; An' lif' dat precious heel up; You's got to plough dis fiel' up, You has, sah, fur a fac'.

Some folks dey would 'a' beat him; Now, dat would only heat him-I know jes how to treat him: You mus' reason wid a mule.

He minds me like a nigger. If he wuz only bigger He'd fotch a mighty figger, He would, I tell you! Yes, sah! See how he keeps a-clickin'! He's as gentle as a chicken, And nebber thinks o' kickin'-Whoa dar! Nebuchadnezzah!

Is this heah me, or not me? Or is de debbil got me? Wuz dat a cannon shot me? Hab I laid heah more'n a week? Dat mule do kick amazin'! De beast was sp'iled in raisin'; But now I spect he's grazin' On de oder side de creek.

IRWIN RUSSELL

O the women fo'k! O the women fo'k!

But they hae been the wreck o' me;
O weary fa' the women fo'k,

For they winna let a body be!

I hae thought an' thought, but darena tell,
I 've studied them wi' a' my skill,
I 've lo'd them better than mysell,
I 've tried again to like them ill.
Wha sairest strives, will sairest rue,
To comprehend what nae man can;
When he has done what man can do,
He'll end at last where he began.
O the women fo'k, etc.

That they hae gentle forms an' meet,
A man wi' half a look may sec;
An gracefu' airs, an' faces sweet,
An' waving curls aboon the brec;
An' smiles as soft as the young rosebud,
And een sae pawky, bright, an' rare,
Wad lure the laverock frae the cludd,—
But, laddie, seek to ken nae mair!
O the women fo'k, etc.

Even but this night nae farther gane,
The date is neither lost nor lang,
I tak ye witness ilka ane,
How fell they fought, and fairly dang.
Their point they 've carried right or wrang,
Without a reason, rhyme, or law,
An' forced a man to sing a sang,
That ne'er could sing a verse ava.

O the women fo'k! O the women fo'k!

But they had been the wreck o' me;
O weary fa' the women fo'k,

For they winna let a body be!

JAMES HOGG

WOMAN.

When Eve brought woe to all mankind Old Adam called her wo-man; But when she wooed with love so kind, He then pronounced her woo-man. But now, with folly and with pride, Their husbands' pockets trimming, The women are so full of whims

That men pronounce them wimmen!

ANONYMOUS.

PAPER.

A CONVERSATIONAL PLEASANTRY

Some wit of old — such wits of old there were, Whose hints showed meaning, whose allusions care —

By one brave stroke to mark all human kind, Called clear, blank paper every infant mind; Where still, as opening sense her dictates wrote, Fair virtue put a seal, or vice a blot.

The thought was happy, pertinent, and true; Methinks a genius might the plan pursue. I (can you pardon my presumption?)—I, No wit, no genius, yet for once will try.

Various the paper various wants produce, — The wants of fashion, elegance, and use. Men are as various; and, if right I scan, Each sort of paper represents some man.

Pray note the fop, half powder and half lace; Nice, as a bandbox were his dwelling-place; He's the gill-paper, which apart you store, And lock from vulgar hands in the 'scrutoire.

Mechanics, servants, farmers, and so forth, Are copy-paper, of inferior worth; Less prized, more useful, for your desk decreed; Free to all pens, and prompt at every need.

The wretch whom avarice bids to pinch and spare, Starve, cheat, and pilfer, to enrich an heir, Is course brown paper, such as pedlers choose To wrap up wares, which better men will use.

Take next the miser's contrast, who destroys Health, fame, and fortune in a round of joys; Will any paper match him? Yes, throughout; He's a true sinking-paper, past all doubt.

The retail politician's anxious thought Deems this side always right, and that stark
naught;

He foams with censure; with applause he raves; A dupc to rumors, and a tool of knaves; He'll want no type, his weakness to proclaim, While such a thing as foolscap has a name.

The hasty gentleman, whose blood runs high, Who picks a quarrel, if you step awry, Who can't a jest, a hint, or look endure, — What is he?— what? Touch-paper, to be sure.

What are our poets, take them as they fall, Good, bad, rich, poor, much read, not read at all? They and their works in the same class you'll find:

They are the mere waste-paper of mankind.

Observe the maiden, innocently sweet! She's fair, white paper, an unsullied sheet; On which the happy man whom fate ordains May write his name, and take her for his pains.

One instance more, and only one I'll bring; 'T is the great man who scorns a little thing;

Whose thoughts, whose deeds, whose maxims, are his own,

Formed on the feelings of his heart alone,
True, genuine, royal paper is his breast;
Of all the kinds most precious, purest, best.

Benjamin Franklin.

OLD GRIMES.

OLD Grimes is dead, that good old man, —
We ne'er shall see him more;
He used to wear a long black coat,
All buttoned down before.

His heart was open as the day,
His feelings all were true;
His hair was some inclined to gray,
He wore it in a queue.

Whene'er he heard the voice of pain, His breast with pity burned; The large round head upon his cane From ivory was turned.

Kind words he ever had for all;
He knew no base design;
His eyes were dark and rather small,
His nose was aquiline.

He lived at peace with all mankind, In friendship he was true; His coat had pocket-holes behind, His pantaloons were blue.

Unharmed, the sin which earth pollutes
He passed securely o'er, —
And never wore a pair of boots
For thirty years or more.

But good Old Grimes is now at rest, Nor fears misfortune's frown; He wore a double-breasted vest, — The stripes ran up and down.

He modest merit sought to find, And pay it its desert; He had no malice in his mind, No ruffles on his shirt.

His neighbors he did not abuse, —
Was sociable and gay;
He wore large buckles on his shoes,
And changed them every day.

His knowledge, hid from public gaze, He did not bring to view, Nor make a noise, town-meeting days, As many people do. His worldly goods he never threw In trust to fortune's chances, But lived (as all his brothers do) In easy circumstances.

Thus undisturbed by anxious cares
His peaceful moments ran;
And everybody said he was
A fine old gentleman.

ALBERT G. GREENE.

THE HEIGHT OF THE RIDICULOUS.

I wrote some lines once on a time In wondrous merry mood, And thought, as usual, men would say They were exceeding good.

They were so queer, so very queer, I laughed as I would die; Albeit, in the general way, A sober man am I.

I called my servant, and he came; How kind it was of him, To mind a slender man like me, He of the mighty limb!

"These to the printer," I exclaimed, And, in my humorous way, I added (as a trifling jest), "There'll be the devil to pay."

He took the paper, and I watched, And saw him peep within; At the first line he read, his face Was all upon the grin.

He read the next; the grin grew broad, And shot from ear to ear; He read the third; a chuckling noise I now began to hear.

The fourth; he broke into a roar;
The fifth; his waistband split;
The sixth; he burst five buttons off,
And tumbled in a fit.

Ten days and nights, with sleepless eye, I watched that wretched man, And since, I never dare to write As funny as I can.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES

Oliver Wendell Hormes

THE ONE-HOSS SHAY; OR, THE DEACON'S MASTERPIECE.

A LOGICAL STORY.

HAVE you heard of the wonderful one-hoss shay,
That was built in such a logical way
It ran a hundred years to a day,
And then of a sudden, it — ah, but stay,
I'll tell you what happened without delay,
Scaring the parson into fits,
Frightening people out of their wits, —
Have you ever heard of that. I say?

Seventeen hundred and fifty-five.

Georgius Secundus was then alive, —
Snuffy old drone from the German hive.

That was the year when Lisbon-town
Saw the earth open and gulp her down,
And Braddock's army was done so brown,
Left without a scalp to its crown.

It was on the terrible Earthquake-day
That the Deacon finished the one-hoss shay.

Now in building of chaises, I tell you what,
There is always somewhere a weakest spot, —
In hub, tire, felloe, in spring or thill,
In panel, or crossbar, or floor, or sill,
In screw, bolt, thoroughbrace, —lurking still,
Find it somewhere you must and will, —
Above or below, or within or without, —
And that's the reason, beyond a doubt,
A chaise breaks down, but does n't wear out.

But the Deacon swore (as Deacons do, With an "I dew vum," or an "I tell yeou,") He would build one shay to beat the taown 'n' the keounty 'n' all the kentry raoun'; It should be so built that it could n' break daown; — "Fur," said the Deacon, "'t's mighty plain Thut the weakes' place mus' stan' the strain; 'n' the way t' fix it, uz I maintain,

Is only jest
T' make that place uz strong uz the rest."

So the Deacon inquired of the village folk Where he could find the strongest oak, That could n't be split nor bent nor broke, — That was for spokes and floor and sills; He sent for lancewood to make the thills; The crossbars were ash, from the straightest trees; The panels of whitewood, that cuts like cheese, But lasts like iron for things like these; The hubs of logs from the "Settler's ellum," — Last of its timber, — they could n't sell 'em, Never an axe had seen their chips, And the wedges flev from between their lips, Their blunt ends frizzled like celery-tipe;

Step and prop-iron, bolt and screw,
Spring, tire, axle, and linchpin too,
Steel of the finest, bright and blue;
Thoroughbrace bison-skin, thick and wide;
Boot, top, dasher, from tough old hide
Found in the pit when the tanner died.
That was the way he "put her through."
"There!" said the Deacon, "naow she 'll dew!"

Do! I tell you, I rather guess
She was a wonder, and nothing less!
Colts grew horses, beards turned gray,
Deacon and deaconess dropped away,
Children and grandchildren, — where were they!
But there stood the stout old one-hoss shay
As fresh as on Lisbon-earthquake-day!

EIGHTEEN HUNDRED; — it came and found The Deacon's masterpiece strong and sound. Eighteen hundred increased by ten; — "Hahnsum kerridge" they called it then. Eighteen hundred and twenty came; — Running as usual; much the same. Thirty and forty at last arrive, And then came fifty, and FIFTY-FIVE.

Little of all we value here
Wakes on the morn of its hundredth year
Without both feeling and looking queer.
In fact, there's nothing that keeps its youth,
So far as I know, but a tree and truth.
(This is a moral that runs at large;
Take it. — You're welcome. — No extra charge.)

FIRST OF NOVEMBER, — the Earthquake-day. — There are traces of age in the one-hoss shay, A general flavor of mild decay, But nothing local as one may say.

There could n't be, — for the Deacon's art Had made it so like in every part

That there was n't a chance for one to start. For the wheels were just as strong as the thills, And the floor was just as strong as the sills, And the panels just as strong as the floor, And the whippletree neither less nor more, And the back-crossbar as strong as the fore, And spring and axle and hub encore.

And yet, as a whole, it is past a doubt In another hour it will be worn out!

First of November, 'Fifty-five!
This morning the parson takes a drive.
Now, small boys, get out of the way!
Here comes the wonderful one-hoss shay,
Drawn by a rat-tailed, ewe-necked bay.
"Huddup!" said the parson. — Off went they
The parson was working his Sunday's text, —
Had got to fifthly, and stopped perplexed

At what the - Moses - was coming next. All at once the horse stood still, Close by the meet'n'-house on the hill. - First a shiver, and then a thrill, Then something decidedly like a spill, -And the parson was sitting upon a rock, At half past nine by the meet'n'-house clock, -Just the hour of the Earthquake shock! - What do you think the parson found, When he got up and stared around? The poor old chaise in a heap or mound, As if it had been to the mill and ground! You see, of course, if you're not a dunce, How it went to pieces all at once, -All at once, and nothing first, -Just as bubbles do when they burst.

End of the wonderful one-hoss shay. Logic is logic. That's all I say.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

RUDOLPH THE HEADSMAN.

RUDOLPH, professor of the headsman's trade,
Alike was famous for his arm and blade.
One day a prisoner Justice had to kill
Knelt at the block to test the artist's skill.
Bare-armed, swart-viseged, gaunt, and shaggybrowed.

Rudolph the headsman rose above the crowd.

His falchion lightened with a sudden gleam,

As the pike's armor flashes in the stream.

He sheathed his blade; he turned as if to go;

The victim knelt, still waiting for the blow.

"Why strikest not? Perform thy murderous act."

The prisoner said. (His voice was slightly cracked.)

"Friend, I have struck," the artist straight replied;

"Wait but one moment, and yourself decide."

He held his snuff-box, — "Now then, if you please!"

The prisoner sniffed, and, with a crashing sneeze, Off his head tumbled, bowled along the floor, Bounced down the steps; — the prisoner said no more!

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

THE BOYS.

Has there any old fellow got mixed with the boys!

If there has, take him out, without making a noise.

Hang the Almanac's cheat and the Catalogue's spite!

Old Time is a liar! We're twenty to-night!

We're twenty! We're twenty! Who says we are more?

He's tipsy, — young jackanapes!—show him the door!
"Gray temples at twenty?"—Yes! while, if we

"Gray temples at twenty?" — Yes! white, if we please;

Where the snow-flakes fall thickest there's nothing can freeze!

Was it snowing I spoke of? Excuse the mistake!

Look close, — you will see not a sign of a flake!
We want some new garlands for those we have shed, —

And these are white roses in place of the red.

We've a trick, we young fellows, you may have been told,

Of talking (in public) as if we were old:

That boy we call "Doctor," and this we call "Judge;"—

It's a neat little fiction, — of course it's all fudge.

That fellow's the "Speaker," — the one on the right;

"Mr. Mayor," my young one, how are you tonight?

That's our "Member of Congress," we say when we chaff;

There's the "Reverend" What's his name?—
don't make me laugh!

That boy with the grave mathematical look
Made believe he had written a wonderful book,
And the ROYAL SOCIETY thought it was true!
So they chose him right in, — a good joke it was too!

There's a boy, we pretend, with a three-decker brain.

That could harness a team with a logical chain; When he spoke for our manhood in syllabled fire.

We called him "The Justice," but now he's "The Squire."

And there 's a nice youngster of excellent pith,—
Fate tried to conceal him by naming him Smith, But he shouted a song for the brave and the free,—

Just read on his medal, "My country," "of thee'"

You hear that boy laughing? — You think he's all fun:

But the angels laugh, too, at the good he has done:

The children laugh loud as they troop to his call, And the poor man that knows him laughs loudest of all!

Yes, we're boys, — always playing with tongue or with pen;

And I sometimes have asked, Shall we ever be

Shall we always be youthful, and laughing, and gay,

Till the last dear companion drop smiling away?

Then here's to our boyhood, its gold and its gray '

The stars of its winter, the dews of its May '
And when we have done with our life-lasting toys,

Dear Father, take care of thy children, THE Boys.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

THE OLD MAN DREAMS.

O for one hour of youthful joy!
Give back my twentieth spring!
I'd rather laugh a bright-haired boy
Than reign a gray-beard king!

Off with the spoils of wrinkled age!
Away with learning's crown!
Tear out life's wisdom-written page,
And dash its trophies down!

One moment let my life-blood stream
From boyhood's fount of flame!
Give me one giddy, reeling dream
Of life all love and fame!

My listening angel heard the prayer, And, calmly smiling, said, "If I but touch thy silvered hair, Thy hasty wish hath sped.

"But is there nothing in thy track
To bid thee fondly stay,
While the swift seasons hurry back
To find the wished-for day?"

Ah! truest soul of womankind!
Without thee what were life!
One bliss I cannot leave behind:
I'll take — my — precious — wife!

The angel took a sapphire pen
And wrote in rainbow dew,
"The man would be a boy again,
And be a husband, too!"

"And is there nothing yet unsaid Before the change appears? Remember, all their gifts have fled With those dissolving years!"

"Why, yes; for memory would recall
My fond paternal joys;
I could not bear to leave them all:
I'll take — my — girl — and — boys!"

The smiling angel dropped his pen —
"Why, this will never do;
The man would be a boy again,
And be a father, too!"

And so I laughed — my laughter woke
The household with its noise —
And wrote my dream, when morning broke,
To please the gray-haired boys.
OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES

WHITTLING.

A "NATIONAL PORTRAIT."

THE Yankee boy, before he's sent to school, Well knows the mysteries of that magic tool, The pocket-knife. To that his wistful eye Turns, while he hears his mother's lullaby; His hoarded cents he gladly gives to get it, Then leaves no stone unturned till he can whet it; And in the education of the lad No little part that implement hath had. His pocket-knife to the young whittler brings A growing knowledge of material things.

Projectiles, music, and the sculptor's art,
His chestnut whistle and his shingle dart,
His elder popgun with its hickory rod,
Its sharp explosion and rebounding wad,
His cornstalk fiddle, and the deeper tone
That murmurs from his pumpkin-stalk trombone,
Conspire to teach the boy. To these succeed
His bow, his arrow of a feathered seed,
His windmill, raised the passing breeze to win,
His water-wheel, that turns upon a pin;
Or, if his father lives upon the shore,
You'll see his ship, "beam ends upon the floor,"
Full rigged with raking masts, and timbers
stanch,

And waiting near the wash-tub for a launch.

Thus by his genius and his jack-knife driven, Erelong he'll solve you any problem given; Make any gimcrack musical or mute, A plough, a couch, an organ or a flute; Make you a locomotive or a clock, Cut a canal, or build a floating-dock, Or lead forth Beauty from a marble block; — Make anything in short, for sea or shore, From a child's rattle to a seventy-four; — Make it, said I?—Ay, when he undertakes it, He'll make the thing and the machine that makes it.

And when the thing is made, — whether it be To move on earth, in air, or on the sea; Whether on water, o'er the waves to glide, Or upon land to roll, revolve, or slide; Whether to whirl or jar, to strike or ring, Whether it be a piston or a spring, Whether it be a piston or a spring, Wheel, pulley, tube sonorous, wood or brass, The thing designed shall surely come to pass; For, when his hand 's upon it, you may know That there 's go in it, and he'll make it go.

JOHN PIERPONT

RAILROAD RHYME.

Singing through the forests,
Rattling over ridges;
Shooting under arches,
Rumbling over bridges;
Whizzing through the mountains,
Buzzing o'er the vale,
Bless me! this is pleasant,
Riding on the rail!

Men of different "stations"
In the eye of fame,
Here are very quickly
Coming to the same;
High and lowly people,
Birds of every feather,
On a common level,
Travelling together.

Gentleman in shorts,
Looming very tall;
Gentleman at large
Talking very small;
Gentleman in tights,
With a loose-ish mien;
Gentleman in gray,
Looking rather green;

Gentleman quite old, Asking for the news. Gentleman in black,
In a fit of blues;
Gentleman in claret,
Sober as a vicar;
Gentleman in tweed,
Dreadfully in liquor!

Stranger on the right
Looking very sunny,
Obviously reading
Something rather funny.
Now the smiles are thicker,—
Wonder what they mean!
Faith, he's got the KnickerBocker Magazine!

Stranger on the left
Closing up his peepers;
Now he snores amain,
Like the Seven Sleepers;
At his feet a volume
Gives the explanation,
How the man grew stupid
From "Association"!

Ancient maiden lady
Anxiously remarks,
That there must be peril
'Mong so many sparks;
Roguish-looking fellow,
Turning to the stranger,
Says it's his opinion
She is out of danger!

Woman with her baby,
Sitting vis-à-vis;
Baby keeps a-squalling,
Woman looks at me;
Asks about the distance,
Says it's tiresome talking,
Noises of the cars
Are so very shocking!

Market-woman, careful
Of the precious casket,
Knowing eggs are eggs,
Tightly holds her basket;
Feeling that a smash,
If it came, would surely
Send her eggs to pot,
Rather prematurely.

Singing through the forests, Rattling over ridges; Shooting under arches, Rumbling over bridges; Whizzing through the mountains, Buzzing o'er the vale,— Bless me! this is pleasant, Riding on the rail!

JOHN GODFREY SAXE.

WOMAN'S WILL.

AN EPIGRAM

MEN, dying, make their wills, but wives
Escape a work so sad;
Why should they make what all their lives
The gentle dames have had?

JOHN GODFREY SAXE.

"NOTHING TO WEAR."

MISS FLORA MCFLIMSEY, of Madison Square, Has made three separate journeys to Paris, And her father assures me, each time she was there,

That she and her friend Mrs Harris
(Not the lady whose name is so famous in history,

But plain Mrs. H., without romance or mystery)
Spent six consecutive weeks without stopping
In one continuous round of shopping, —
Shopping alone, and shopping together,
At all hours of the day, and in all sorts of weather, —

For all manner of things that a woman can put On the crown of her head or the sole of her foot, Or wrap round her shoulders, or fit round her waist,

Or that can be sewed on, or pinned on, or laced, Or tied on with a string, or stitched on with a bow.

In front or behind, above or below;
For bonnets, mantillas, capes, collars, and shawls;
Dresses for breakfasts and dinners and balls;
Dresses to sit in and stand in and walk in;
Dresses to dance in and flirt in and talk in;
Dresses in which to do nothing at all;
Dresses for winter, spring, summer, and fall;
All of them different in color and pattern,
Silk, muslin, and lace, crape, velvet, and satin,
Brocade, and broadcloth, and other material,
Quite as expensive and much more ethereal;
In short, for all things that could ever be thought of.

Or milliner, modiste, or tradesmen be bought of, From ten-thousand-francs robes to twentysons frills:

In all quarters of Paris, and to every store, While McFlimsey in vain stormed, scolded, as swore,

They footed the streets, and he footed the bills.

The last trip, their goods shipped by the steamer Arago,

Formed, McFlimsey declares, the bulk of her cargo,

Not to mention a quantity kept from the rest, Sufficient to fill the largest-sized chest, Which did not appear on the ship's manifest, But for which the ladies themselves manifested Such particular interest, that they invested Their own proper persons in layers and rows Of muslins, embroideries, workedunder-clothes, Gloves, handkerchiefs, scarfs, and such trifles as those:

Then, wrapped in great shawls, like Circassian beauties,

Gave good-by to the ship, and go-by to the duties. Her relations at home all marvelled, no doubt, Miss Flora had grown so enormously stout

For an actual belle and a possible bride; But the miracle ceased when she turned inside out,

And the truth came to light, and the dry-goods beside,

Which, in spite of collector and custom-house sentry,

Had entered the port without any entry.

And yet, though scarce three months have passed since the day

This merchandise went, on twelve carts, up Broadway,

This same Miss McFlimsey, of Madison Square, The last time we met was in utter despair, Because she had nothing whatever to wear!

NOTHING TO WEAR! Now, as this is a true ditty,
I do not assert — this, you know, is between us —

That she 's in a state of absolute nudity,

Like Powers' Greek Slave, or the Medici Venus; But I do mean to say, I have heard her declare, When at the same moment she had on a dress

When, at the same moment, she had on a dress Which cost five hundred dollars, and not a cent less.

And jewelry worth ten times more, I should guess,

That she had not a thing in the wide world to wear!

I should mention just here, that out of Miss Flora's

Two hundred and fifty or sixty adorers, I had just been selected as he who should throw all The rest in the shade, by the gracious bestowal On myself, after twenty or thirty rejections, Of those fossil remains which she called her "affections."

And that rather decayed, but well-known work of art,

Which Miss Flora persisted in styling "her heart."

So we were engaged. Our troth had been plighted, Not by moonbeam or starbeam, by fountain or grove,

But in a front parlor, most brilliantly lighted, Beneath the gas-fixtures we whispered our love, Without any romance or raptures or sighs, Without any tears in Miss Flora's blue eyes, Or blushes, or transports, or such silly actions, It was one of the quietest business transactions, With a very small sprinkling of sentiment, if any, And a very large diamond imported by Tiffany. On her virginal lips while I printed a kiss, She exclaimed, as a sort of parenthesis, And by way of putting me quite at my ease, "You know, I'm to polka as much as I please, And flirt when I like, — now, stop, don't you speak, —

And you must not come here more than twice in the week,

Or talk to me either at party or ball,
But always be ready to come when I call;
So don't prose to me about duty and stuff,
It we don't break this off, there will be time enough

For that sort of thing; but the bargain must be That, as long as I choose, I am perfectly free, For this is a sort of engagement, you see, Which is binding on you but not binding on me."

Well, having thus wooed Miss McFlimsey and gained her,

With the silks, crinolines, and hoops that contained her,

I had, as I thought, a contingent remainder
At least in the property, and the best right
To appear as its escort by day and by night;
And it being the week of the Stuckups' grand ball.—

Their cards had been out a fortnight or so, And set all the Avenue on the tiptoe, — I considered it only my duty to call,

And see if Miss Flora intended to go.

I found her, — as ladies are apt to be found,

When the time intervening between the first sound

Of the bell and the visitor's entry is shorter Than usual, — I found — I won't say, I caught her, —

Intent on the pier-glass, undoubtedly meaning To see if perhaps it didn't need cleaning. She turned as I entered, — "Why, Harry, you sinner,

I thought that you went to the Flashers' to dinner!"

"So I did," I replied; "but the dinner is swallowed

And digested, I trust, for 't is now nine and more,

So being relieved from that duty, I followed Inclination, which led me, you see, to your door:

And now will your ladyship so condescend
As just to inform me if you intend
Your beauty and graces and presence to lend (All of which, when I own, I hope no one will borrow)

To the Stuckups, whose party, you know, is tomorrow?"

The fair Flora looked up with a pitiful air,
And answered quite promptly, "Why, Harry
mon cher,

I should like above all things to go with you there;

But really and truly — 1've nothing to wear."
"Nothing to wear! go just as you are;

Wear the dress you have on, and you'll be by far.

I engage, the most bright and particular star
On the Stuckup horizon"—I stopped—for her eye,

Notwithstanding this delicate onset of flattery, Opened on me at once a most terrible battery

Of scorn and amazement. She made no reply, But gave a slight turn to the end of her nose

(That pure Grecian feature), as much as to say, "How absurd that any sane man should suppose That a lady would go to a ball in the clothes,

No matter how fine, that she wears every day!"

So I ventured again: "Wear your crimson brocade"

(Second turn-up of nose) — "That's too dark by a shade."

"Your blue silk"— "That's too heavy." "Your pink"—"That's too light."

"Wear tulle over satin"—"I can't endure white."

"Your rose-colored, then, the best of the batch"—

"I have n't a thread of point lace to match."

"Your brown moire antique" — "Yes, and look like a Quaker."

"The pearl-colored"—"I would, but that plaguy dressmaker

Has had it a week." "Then that exquisite lilac In which you would melt the heart of a Shylock," (Here the nose took again the same elevation)—
"I would n't wear that for the whole of creation."
"Why not? It's my fancy, there's nothing could strike it

As more comme il faut"—" Yes, but, dear me! that lean Sophronia Stuckup has got one just like it, And I won't appear dressed like a chit of sixteen."

"Then that splendid purple, that sweet Mazarine.

That superb point d'aiguille, that imperial green, That zephyr-like tarlatan, that rich grenadine"— "Not one of all which is fit to be seen,"

Said the lady, becoming excited and flushed.
"Then wear," I exclaimed, in a tone which quite crushed Opposition, "that gorgeous toilette which you sported

In Paris last spring, at the grand presentation, When you quite turned the head of the head of the nation;

And by all the grand court were so very much courted."

The end of the nose was portentously tipped up,
And both the bright eyes shot forth indignation,
As she burst upon me with the fierce exclamation,
"I have worn it three times at the least calculation,

And that and most of my dresses are ripped up!"

Here I rupped out something, perhaps rather rash, Quite innocent, though; but, to use an expression

More striking than classic, it "settled my hash,"

And proved very soon the last act of our session.

"Fiddlesticks, is it, sir? I wonder the ceiling Does n't fall down and crush you — oh! you men have no feeling;

You selfish, unnatural, illiberal creatures, Who set yourselves up as patterns and preachers, Your silly pretence, — why, what a mere guess it is!

Pray, what do you know of a woman's necessities?
I have told you and showed you I've nothing to wear.

And it's perfectly plain you not only don't care, But you do not believe me" (here the nose went still higher),

"I suppose, if you dared, you would call me a

Our engagement is ended, sir — yes, on the spot; You're a brute, and a monster, and — I don't know what."

I mildly suggested the words — Hottentot, Pickpocket, and cannibal, Tartar, and thief, As gentle expletives which might give relief; But this only proved as a spark to the powder,
And the storm I had raised cause faster and louder;

It blew and it rained, thundered, lightened, and Interjections, verbs, pronouns, till language quite failed

To express the abusive, and then its arrears Were brought up all at once by a torrent of tears, And my last faint, despairing attempt at an obs-Ervation was lost in a tempest of sobs.

Well, I felt for the lady, and felt for my hat, too,

Improvised on the crown of the latter a tattoo,
In lieu of expressing the feelings which lay Quite too deep for words, as Wordsworth would say;

Then, without going through the form of a bow, Found myself in the entry ~I hardly knew how, —

On doorstep and sidewalk, past lamp-post and square,

At home and up stairs, in my own easy-chair;
Poked my feet into slippers, my fire into blaze,
And said to myself, as I lit my cigar,
Supposing a man had the wealth of the Czar

Of the Russias to boot, for the rest of his days, On the whole, do you think he would have much to spare,

If he married a woman with nothing to wear?

Since that night, taking pains that it should not be bruited

Abroad in society, I 've instituted
A course of inquiry, extensive and thorough,'
On this vital subject, and find, to my horror.
That the fair Flora's case is by no means surprising.

But that there exists the greatest distress In our female community, solely arising

From this unsupplied destitution of dress, Whose unfortunate victims are filling the air With the pitiful wail of "Nothing to wear." Researches in some of the "Upper Ten" districts Reveal the most painful and startling statistics, Of which let me mention only a few:

In one single house, on Fifth Avenue,

Three young ladies were found, all below twenty-

Who have been three whole weeks without anything new

In the way of flounced silks, and thus left in the lurch

Are unable to go to ball, concert, or church. In another large mansion, near the same place, Was found a deplorable, heartrending case Of entire destitution of Brussels point lace. In a neighboring block there was found, in three calls.

Total want, long continued, of camel's-hair But why harrow the feelings by lifting the curshawls;

And a suffering family, whose case exhibits The most pressing need of real ermine tippets; One deserving young lady almost unable To survive for the want of a new Russian sable: Another confined to the house, when it 's windier Than usual, because her shawl is n't India. Still another, whose tortures have been most terrific Ever since the sad loss of the steamer Pacific, In which were engulfed, not friend or relation (For whose fate she perhaps might have found consolation, Or borne it, at least, with serene resignation), But the choicest assortment of French sleeves and collars

Ever sent out from Paris, worth thousands of dollars.

And all as to style most recherché and rare, The want of which leaves her with nothing to

And renders her life so drear and dyspeptic That she's quite a recluse, and almost a scep-

For she touchingly says that this sort of grief Cannot find in Religion the slightest relief, And Philosophy has not a maxim to spare For the victim of such overwhelming despair. But the caddest by far of all these sad features Is the cruelty practised upon the poor creatures By husbands and fathers, real Bluebeards and Timons.

Who resist the most touching appeals made for diamonds

By their wives and their daughters, and leave them for days

Unsupplied with new jewelry, fans, or bouquets, Even laugh at their miseries whenever they have a chance.

And deride their demands as useless extravagance;

One case of a bride was brought to my view, Too sad for belief, but, alas! 't was too true, Whose husband refused, as savage as Charon, To permit her to take more than ten trunks to Sharon.

The consequence was, that when she got there, At the end of three weeks she had nothing to wear,

And when she proposed to finish the season At Newport, the monster refused out and out, For his infamous conduct alleging no reason, Except that the waters were good for his gout. Such treatment as this was too shocking, of course. And proceedings are now going on for divorce.

tain

From these scenes of woe? Enough, it is certain Has here been disclosed to stir up the pity Of every benevolent heart in the city, And spur up Humanity into a canter To rush and relieve these sad cases instanter. Won't somebody, moved by this touching description,

Come forward to-morrow and head a subscription? Won't some kind philanthropist, seeing that aid is

So needed at once by these indigent ladies, Take charge of the matter? Or won't Peter Cooper

The corner-stone lay of some splendid super-Structure, like that which to-day links his name In the Union unending of honor and fame: And found a new charity just for the care Of these unhappy women with nothing to wear. Which, in view of the cash which would daily be claimed.

The Laying-out Hospital well might be named ! Won't Stewart, or some of our dry-goods importers,

Take a contract for clothing our wives and our daughters?

Or, to furnish the cash to supply these distresses. And life's pathway strew with shawls, collars, and dresses,

Ere the want of them makes it much rougher and thornier.

Won't some one discover a new California?

O ladies, dear ladies, the next sunny day Please trundle your hoops just out of Broadway From its whirl and its bustle, its fashion and pride.

And temples of trade which tower on each side. To the alleys and lanes, where Misfortune and

Their children have gathered, their city have built:

Where Hunger and Vice, like twin beasts of prey, Have hunted their victims to gloom and despair :

Raise the rich, dainty dress, and the fine broidered skirt.

Pick your delicate way through dampness and dirt.

Grope through the dark dens, climb the rickety stair

To the garret, where wretches, the young and the old,

Half starved and half naked, lie crouched from Proud abroad, and proud at home, the cold. Proud wherever she chanced to co

Ser those skeleton limbs, those frost-bitten feet, All bleeding and bruised by the stones of the street;

Hear the sharp cry of childhood, the deep groans that swell

From the poor dying creature who writhes on the floor.

Hear the curses that sound like the echoes of Hell,

As you sicken and shudder and fly from the door;

Then home to your wardrobes, and say, if you dare, —

Spoiled children of Fashion, — you've nothing to

And O, if perchance there should be a sphere Where all is made right which so puzzles us here,

Where the glare and the glitter and tinsel of Time Fade and die in the light of that region sublime, Where the soul, disenchanted of flesh and of sense.

Unscreened by its trappings and shows and pretence,

Must be clothed for the life and the service above, With purity, truth, faith, meekness, and love; O daughters of Earth! foolish virgins, beware! Lest in that upper realm you have nothing to wear!

WILLIAM ALLEN BUTLER.

THE PROUD MISS MACBRIDE.

A LEGEND OF GOTHAM

O, TERRIBLY proud was Miss MacBride, The very personification of pride, As she minced along in fashion's tide, Adown Broadway — on the proper side —

When the golden sun was setting;
There was pride in the head she carried so high,
Pride in her lip, and pride in her eye,
And a world of pride in the very sigh

That her stately bosom was fretting!

O, terribly proud was Miss MacBride, Proud of her beauty, and proud of her pride, And proud of fifty matters beside —

That would n't have borne dissection; Proud of her wit, and proud of her walk, Proud of her teeth, and proud of her talk, Proud of "knowing cheese from chalk,"

On a very slight inspection !

Proud abroad, and proud at home, Proud wherever she chanced to come— When she was glad, and when she was glum;

Proud as the head of a Saracen
Over the door of a tippling-shop!—
Proud as a duchess, proud as a fop,
"Proud as a boy with a brand-new top,"
Proud beyond comparison!

It seems a singular thing to say, But her very senses led her astray

Respecting all humility;
In sooth, her dull auricular drum
Could find in humble only a "hum,"
And heard no sound of "gentle" come,
In talking about gentility.

What lowly meant she did n't know, For she always avoided "everything low,"

With care the most punctilious; And, queerer still, the audible sound Of "super-silly" she never had found In the adjective supercilious!

The meaning of meck she never knew, But imagined the phrase had something to ds With "Moses," a peddling German Jew, Who, like all hawkers, the country through,

Was "a person of no position;"
And it seemed to her exceedingly plain,
If the word was really known to pertain
To a vulgar German, it was n't germane
To a lady of high condition!

Even her graces — not her grace — For that was in the "vocative case" — Chilled with the touch of her icy face.

Sat very stiffly upon her!

She never confessed a favor aloud,
Like one of the simple, common crowd—
But coldly smiled, and faintly bowed,
As who should say, "You do me proud,
And do yourself an honor!"

And yet the pride of Miss MacBride, Although it had fifty hobbies to ride, Had really no foundation; But, like the fabrics that gossips devise—

Those single stories that often arise
And grow till they reach a four-story size —

Was merely a fancy creation!

Her birth, indeed, was uncommonly high — For Miss MacBride first opened her eye Through a skylight dim, on the light of the sky; But pride is a curious passion —
And in talking about her wealth and worth,
She always forgot to mention her birth
To people of rank and fashion!

Of all the notable things on earth,
The queerest one is pride of birth
Among our "fierce democracie!"
A bridge across a hundred years,
Without a prop to save it from sneers,—
Not even a couple of rotten peers,—
A thing for laughter, fleers, and jeers,
Is American aristocracy!

English and Irish, French and Spanish,
German, Italian, Dutch and Danish,
Crossing their veins until they vanish
In one conglomeration!
So subtle a tangle of blood, indeed,
No Heraldry Harvey will ever succeed
In finding the circulation.

Depend upon it, my snobbish friend,
Your family thread you can't ascend,
Without good reason to apprehend
You may find it waxed, at the farther end,
By some plebeian vocation '
Or, worse than that, your boasted line
May end in a loop of stronger twine,
That plagued some worthy relation!

But Miss MacBride had something beside Her lofty birth to nourish her pride — For rich was the old paternal MacBride,

According to public rumor;
And he lived "up town," in a splendid square,
And kept his daughter on dainty fare,
And gave her gems that were rich and rare,
And the finest rings and things to wear,
And feathers enough to plume her.

A thriving tailor begged her hand,
But she gave "the fellow" to understand,
By a violent manual action,
She perfectly scorned the best of his clan,
And reckoned the ninth of any man
An exceedingly vulgar fraction!

Another, whose sign was a golden boot,
Was mortified with a bootless suit,
In a way that was quite appalling;
For, though a regular sutor by trade,
He was n't a suitor to suit the maid,
Who cut him off with a saw — and bade
"The cobbler keep to his calling!"

A rich tobacconist comes and sues,
And, thinking the lady would scarce refuse
A man of his wealth, and liberal views,
Began, at once, with "If you choose —
And could you really love him —"
But the lady spoiled his speech in a huff,
With an answer rough and ready enough,
To let him know she was up to snuff,
And altogether above him!

A young attorney, of winning grace,
Was scarce allowed to "open his face,"
Ere Miss MacBride had closed his case
With true judicial celerity;
For the lawyer was poor, and "seedy" to boot,
And to say the lady discarded his suit,
Is merely a double verity!

The last of those who came to court,
Was a lively beau, of the dapper sort,
"Without any visible means of support,"
A crime by no means flagrant
In one who wears an elegant coat,
But the very point on which they vote
A ragged fellow "a vagrant!"

Now dapper Jim his courtship plied
(I wish the fact could be denied)
With an eye to the purse of the old MacBride,
And really "nothing shorter!"
For he said to himself, in his greedy lust,
"Whenever he dies — as die he must —
And yields to Heaven his vital trust,
He's very sure to 'come down with his dust,'
In behalf of his only daughter."

And the very magnificent Miss MacBride,
Half in love, and half in pride,
Quite graciously relented;
And, tossing her head, and turning her back,
No token of proper pride to lack—
To be a bride, without the "Mac,"
With much disdain. consented!

Old John MacBride, one fatal day, Became the unresisting prey Of fortune's undertakers; And staking all on a single die, His foundered bark went high and dry Among the brokers and breakers!

But, alas, for the haughty Miss MacBride,
'T was such a shock to her precious pride!
She could n't recover, although she tried
Her jaded spirits to rally;

"T was a dreadful change in human affairs, From a place "up town" to a nook "up stairs," From an avenue down to an alley!

'T was little condolence she had, God wot,
From her "troops of friends," who had n't forgot
The airs she used to borrow!
They had civil phrases enough, but yet
"T was plain to see that their "deepest regret"
Was a different thing from sorrow!

And one of those chaps who make a pun,
As if it were quite legitimate fun
To be blazing away at every one
With a regular, double-loaded gun—
Remarked that moral transgression

Remarked that moral transgression Always brings retributive stings To candle-makers as well as kings; For "making light of cereous things" Was a very wick-ed profession!

And vulgar people — the saucy churls —
Inquired about "the price of pearls,"
And mocked at her situation:
"She was n't ruined — they ventured to hope—
Because she was poor, she need n't mope;
Few people were better off for soap,
And that was a consolation!"

And to make her cup of woe run over,
Her elegant, ardent plighted lover
Was the very first to forsake her;
"He quite regretted the step, 't was true—
The lady had pride enough 'for two,'
But that alone would never do
To quiet the butcher and baker!"

And now the unhappy Miss MacBride —
The merest ghost of her early pride —
Bewails her lonely position;
Cramped in the very narrowest niche,
Above the poor, and below the rich —
Was ever a worse condition!

MORAL.

Because you flourish in worldly affairs,
Don't be haughty, and put on airs,
With insolent pride of station!
Don't be proud, and turn up your nose
At poorer people in plainer clothes,
But learn, for the sake of your mind's re

At poorer people in plainer clothes, But learn, for the sake of your mind's repose, That wealth's a bubble that comes — and goes! And that all proud flesh, wherever it grows,

Is subject to irritation!

JOHN GODFREY SAXE.

PLAIN LANGUAGE FROM TRUTHFUL JAMES.

POPULARLY KNOWN AS THE "HEATHEN CHINES."

WHICH I wish to remark —
And my language is plain —
That for ways that are dark
And for tricks that are vain,
The heathen Chinee is peculiar:
Which the same I would rise to explain.

Ah Sin was his name;
And I shall not deny
In regard to the same
What that name might imply;
But his smile it was pensive and childlike,
As I frequent remarked to Bill Nye.

It was August the third,
And quite soft was the skies,
Which it might be inferred
That Ah Sin was likewise;
Yet he played it that day upon William
And me in a way I despise.

Which we had a small game,
And Ah Sin took a hand:

It was euchre. The same
He did not understand,

But he smiled, as he sat by the table,
With the smile that was childlike and bland

Yet the cards they were stocked
In a way that I grieve.
And my feelings were shocked
At the state of Nye's sleeve,
Which was stuffed full of aces and bowers,
And the same with intent to deceive.

But the hands that were played
By that heathen Chinee,
And the points that he made,
Were quite frightful to see,—
Till at last he put down a right bower,
Which the same Nye had dealt unto me.

Then I looked up at Nye,
And he gazed upon me;
And he rose with a sigh,
And said, "Can this be?
We are ruined by Chinese cheap labor,"—
And he went for that heathen Chines.

In the scene that ensued
I did not take a hand,
But the floor it was strewed,
Like the leaves on the strand,
With the cards that Ah Sin had been hiding
In the game "he did not understand,"

In his sleeves, which were long, He had twenty-four jacks, -Which was coming it strong, Yet I state but the facts.

And we found on his nails, which were taper, What is frequent in tapers, - that 's wax.

Which is why I remark, And my language is plain, That for ways that are dark, And for tricks that are vain, The heathen Chinee is peculiar, -Which the same I am free to maintain.

BRET HARTL.

THE SOCIETY UPON THE STANISLAUS.

I RESIDE at Table Mountain, and my name is Truthful James :

I am not up to small deceit or any sinful games; And I'll tell in simple language what I know about the row

That broke up our Society upon the Stanislow.

But first I would remark, that't is not a proper

For any scientific gent to whale his fellow-man; And, if a member don't agree with his peculiar

To lay for that same member for to "put a head" on him.

Now, nothing could be finer, or more beautiful

Than the first six months' proceedings of that same society;

Till Brown of Calaveras brought a lot of fossil

That he found within a tunnel near the tenement of Jones.

Then Brown he read a paper, and he reconstructed there,

From those same bones, an animal that was extremely rare :

And Jones then asked the Chair for a suspension of the rules.

Till he could prove that those same bones was one of his lost mules.

Then Brown he smiled a bitter smile, and said he was at fault;

It seemed he had been trespassing on Jones's family vault;

He was a most sarcastic man, this quiet Mr.

And on several occasions he had cleaned out me town.

Now I hold it is not decent for a scientific gent To say another is an ass, — at least, to all intent; Nor should the individual who happens to be

Reply by heaving rocks at him to any great extent.

Then Abner Dean of Angel's raised a point of order, when

A chunk of old red sandstone took him in the abdomen:

And he smiled a kind of sickly smile, and curled up on the floor,

And the subsequent proceedings interested him

For in less time than I write it, every member did engage

In a warfare with the remnants of a paleozoic

And the way they heaved those fossils in their anger was a sin,

Till the skull of an old mammoth caved the head of Thompson in.

And this is all I have to say of these improper games,

For I live at Table Mountain and my name is Truthful James,

And I 've told in simple language what I know about the row

That broke up our Society upon the Stanislow. BRET HARTE.

THE NANTUCKET SKIPPER.

MANY a long, long year ago, Nantucket skippers had a plan Of finding out, though "lying low," How near New York their schooners ran.

They greased the lead before it fell, And then by sounding, through the night, Knowing the soil that stuck so well, They always guessed their reckoning right.

A skipper gray, whose eves were dim, Could tell, by tasting, just the spot, And so below he'd "douse the glim," After, of course, his "something hot."

Snug in his birth, at eight o'clock, This ancient skipper might be found; No matter how his craft would rock, He slept, — for skippers' naps are sound.

The watch on de k would now and then Run down and wake him, with the lead; He'd up, and taste, and tell the men How many miles they went ancad.

One night 't was Jotham Marden's watch, A curious wag, — the pedler's son; And so he mused, (the wanton wretch!) "To-night I'll have a grain of fun.

"We're all a set of stupid fools,
To think the skipper knows, by tasting,
What ground he's on; Nantucket schools
Don't teach such stuff, with all their basting!"

And so he took the well-greased lead,
And rubbed it o'er a box of earth
That stood on deck, — a parsnip-bed, —
And then he sought the skipper's berth.

"Where are we now, sir? Please to taste."
The skipper yawned, put out his tongue,
Opened his eyes in wondrous haste,
And then upon the floor he sprung!

The skipper stormed, and tore his hair,
Hauled on his boots, and roared to Marden,
"Nantucket's sunk, and here we are Right over old Marm Hackett's garden!"

JAMPS THOMAS FIELDS.

THE ART OF BOOK-KEEPING.

How hard, when those who do not wish To lend, thus lose, their books, Are snared by anglers — folks that fish With literary hooks — Who call and take some favorite tome, But never read it through; They thus complete their set at home By making one at you.

I, of my "Spenser" quite bereft,
Last winter sore was shaken;
Of "Lamb" I've but a quarter left,
Nor could I save my "Bacon;"
And then I saw my "Crabbe" at last,
Like Hamlet, backward go,
And, as the tide was ebbing fast,
Of course I lost my "Rowe."

My "Mallet" served to knock me down,
Which makes me thus a talker,
And once, when I was out of town,
My "Johnson" proved a "Walker."
While studying o'er the fire one day
My "Hobbes" amidst the smoke,
They bore my "Colman" clean away,
And carried off my "Coke."

They picked my "Locke," to me far more Than Bramsh's patent worth, And now my losses I deplore, Without a "Home" on earth. If once a book you let them lift, Another they conceal,
For though I caught them stealing "Swift,"
As swiftly went my "Steele."

"Hope" is not now upon my shelf,
Where late he stood elated,
But, what is strange, my "Pope" himself
Is excommunicated.
My little "Suckling" in the grave
Is sunk to swell the ravage,
And what was Crusoe's fate to save,
"T was mine to lose—a "Savage."

Even "Glover's" works I cannot put My frozen hands upon,
Though ever since I lost my "Foote"
My "Bunyan" has been gone.
My "Hoyle" with "Cotton" went oppressed,
My "Taylor," too, must fail,
To save my "Goldsmith" from arrest,
In vain I offered "Bayle."

I "Prior" sought, but could not see
The "Hood" so late in front,
And when I turned to hunt for "Lee,"
O, where was my "Leigh Hunt"!
I tried to laugh, old Care to tickle,
Yet could not "Tickell" touch,
And then, alack! I missed my "Mickle,"
And surely mickle's much.

"T is quite enough my griefs to feed,
My sorrows to excuse,
To think I cannot read my "Reid,"
Nor even use my "Hughes,"
My classics would not quiet lie, —
A thing so fondly hoped;
Like Dr. Primrose, I may cry,
My "Livy" has eloped.

My life is ebbing fast away;
I suffer from these shocks;
And though I fixed a lock on "Gray,"
There's gray upon my locks.
I 'm far from "Young," am growing pale,
I see my "Butler" fly,
And when they ask about my ail,
"T is "Burton" I reply.

They still have made me slight returns,
And thus my griefs divide;
For O, they cured me of my "Burns,"
And eased my "Akenside."
But all I think I shall not say,
Nor let my anger burn,
For, as they never found me "Gay,"
They have not left me "Sterne."

THOMAS HOOD

ODE TO TOBACCO.

Thou who, when fears attack,
Bid'st them avaunt, and Black
Care, at the horseman's back
Perching, unseatest;
Sweet when the morn is gray;
Sweet, when they 've cleared away
Lunch; and at close of day
Possibly sweetest:

I have a liking old
For thee, though manifold
Stories, I know, are told,
Not to thy credit;
How one (or two at most)
Drops make a cat a ghost —
Useless, except to roast —
Doctors have said it:

How they who use fusees
All grow by slow degrees
Brainless as chimpanzees,
Meagre as lizards;
Go mad, and beat their wives;
Plunge (after shocking lives)
Razors and carving-knives
Into their gizzards.

Confound such knavish tricks!
Yet know I five or six
Smokers who freely mix
Still with their neighbors;
Jones — (who, I'm glad to say,
Asked leave of Mrs. J.) —
Daily absorbs a clay
After his labors.

Cats may have had their goose
Cooked by tobacco-juice;
Still why deny its use
Thoughtfully taken?
We're not as tabbies are:
Smith, take a fresh cigar!
Jones, the tobacco-jar!
Here's to thee, Bacon!

DISASTER.

CHARLES S CALVERLEY.

T was ever thus from childhood's hour
My fondest hopes would not decay:
I never loved a tree or flower
Which was the first to fade away!
The garden, where I used to delve
Short-frocked, still yields me pinks in plenty;
The pear-tree that I climbed at twelve,
I see still blossoming, at twenty.

I never nursed a dear gazelle.

But I was given a peroquet —
How I did nurse him if unwell!

He's imbecile, but lingers yet.

He's green, with an enchanting tuft;

He melts me with his small black eye:

He'd look inimitable stuffed,

And knows it — but he will not die!

I had a kitten — I was rich
In pets — but all too soon my kitten Became a full-sized cat, by which
I've more than once been scratched and bitten;
And when for sleep her limbs she curled
One day beside her untouched plateful,
And glided calmly from the world,
I freely own that I was grateful.

And then I bought a dog — a queen!
Ah, Tiny, dear departing pug!
She lives, but she is past sixteen,
And scarce can crawl across the rug.
I loved her beautiful and kind;
Delighted in her pert Bow-wow:
But now she snaps if you don't mind;
'T were lunacy to love her now.

I used to think, should e'er mishap
Betide my crumple-visaged Ti,
In shape of prowling thief, or trap,
Or coarse bull-terrier — I should die.
But ah ' disasters have their use;
And life might e'en be too sunshiny:
Nor would I make myself a goose,
If some big dog should swallow Tiny.

CHARLES S CALVERLEY

MOTHERHOOD.

SHE laid it where the sunbeams fall Unscanned upon the broken wall. Without a tear, without a groan, She laid it near a mighty stone, Which some rude swain had haply cast Thither in sport, long ages past, And Time with mosses had o'erlaid, And fenced with many a tall grass-blade, And all about bid roses bloom And violets shed their soft perfume. There, in its cool and quiet bed, She set her burden down and fled: Nor flung, all eager to escape, One glance upon the perfect shape, That lay, still warm and fresh and fair. But motionless and soundless there.

No human eye had marked her pass Across the linden-shadowed grass Ere yet the minster clock chimed seven: Only the innocent birds of heaven -The magpie, and the rook whose nest Swings as the elm-tree waves his crest— And the lithe cricket, and the hoar And huge-limbed hound that guards the door, Looked on when, as a summer wind That, passing, leaves no trace behind, All unapparelled, barefoot all, She ran to that old ruined wall. To leave upon the chill dank earth (For ah! she never knew its worth), Mid hemlock rank, and fern and ling, And dews of night, that precious thing! And then it might have lain forlorn From morn to eve, from eve to morn: But that, by some wild impulse led, The mother, ere she turned and fled, One moment stood erect and high; Then poured into the silent sky A cry so jubilant, so strange, That Alice - as she strove to range Her rebel ringlets at her glass -Sprang up and gazed across the grass; Shook back those curls so fair to see, Clapped her soft hands in childish glee; And shricked — her sweet face all aglow, Her very limbs with rapture shaking -"My hen has laid an egg, I know; And only hear the noise she's making!" CHARLES S. CALVERLEY.

THE HEN.

A FAMOUS hen's my story's theme, Which ne'er was known to tire Of laying eggs, but then she'd scream So loud o'er every egg, 't would seem The house must be on fire. A turkey-cock, who ruled the walk, A wiser bird and older. Could bear 't no more, so off did stalk Right to the hen, and told her: "Madam, that scream, I apprehend, Adds nothing to the matter; It surely helps the egg no whit; Then lay your egg, and done with it! I pray you, madam, as a friend, Cease that superfluous clatter ! You know not how't goes through my head." "Humph! very likely!" madam said, Then, proudly putting forth a leg, -"Uneducated barnyard fowl! You know, no more than any owl,

The noble privilege and praise
Of authorship in modern days —
I'll tell you why I do it:
First, you perceive, I lay the egg,
And then — review it."
From the German of CLAUDIUS.

THE COSMIC EGG.

Upon a rock yet uncreate, Amid a chaos inchoate, An uncreated being sate: Beneath him, rock, Above him, cloud. And the cloud was rock. And the rock was cloud. The rock then growing soft and warm, The cloud began to take a form, A form chaotic, vast, and vague, Which issued in the cosmic egg. Then the Being uncreate On the egg did incubate, And thus became the incubator: And of the egg did allegate, And thus became the alligator; And the incubator was potentate, But the alligator was potentator.

ANONYMOUS-

DARWIN.

THERE was an ape in the days that were earlier; Centuries passed, and his hair grew curlier; Centuries more gave a thumb to his wrist, Then he was a Man and a Positivist.

MORTIMER COLLINS.

TO THE PLIOCENE SKULL.

A GEOLOGICAL ADDRESS.

"A human skull has been found in California, in the pliocene formation. This skull is the remnant, not only of the earliest pioneer of this State, but the oldest known human being. The skull was found in a shaft one hundred and fifty feet deep, two miles from Angel's, in Calaveras County, by a miner named James Matson, who gave it to Mr. Scribner, a merchant, and he gave it to Dr Jones, who sent it to the State Geological Survey. The published volume of the State Survey on the Geology of California states that man existed contemporaneously with the mastodon, but this fossil proves that he was here before the mastodon was known to exist."—Daily Paper.

"SPEAK, O man, less recent! Fragmentary fossil! Primal pioneer of pliocene formation, Hid in lowest drifts below the earliest stratum Of Volcanic tufa!

"Older than the beasts, the oldest Palæotherium; Older than the trees, the oldest Cryptogamia; Older than the hills, those infantile eruptions Of earth's epidermis! That those vacant sockets filled with awe and wonder, - Whether shores Devonian or Silurian beaches, -Tell us thy strange story!

"Or has the Professor slightly antedated By some thousand years thy advent on this planet, Giving thee an air that's somewhat better fitted For cold-blooded creatures?

"Wert thou true spectator of that mighty forest, When above thy head the stately Sigillaria Reared its columned trunks in that remote and distant

Carboniferous epoch 7

"Tell us of that scene, - the dim and watery woodland,

Songless, silent, hushed, with never bird or in-

Veiled with spreading fronds and screened with tall club-mosses,

Lycopodiacea ---

"When beside thee walked the solemn Plesio-

And around thee crept the festive Ichthyosaurus. While from time to time above thee flew and circled Cheerful Pterodactyls.

"Tell us of thy food, - those half-marine refec-

Crinoids on the shell, and Brachipods au natu-

Cuttle-fish to which the pieuvre of Victor Hugo Seems a periwinkle.

"Speak, thou awful vestige of the earth's crea-Solitary fragment of remains organic! Tell the wondrous secrets of thy past existence, -Speak! thou cldest primate!"

Even as I gazed, a thrill of the maxilla And a lateral movement of the condyloid process, With post-pliocene sounds of healthy mastica-

Ground the teeth together;

And from that imperfect dental exhibition, Stained with expressed juices of the weed Nicotian.

Came these hollow accents, blent with softer murmurs

Of expectoration:

"Eo -- Mio -- Plio -- whatsoe'er the 'cene' was | "Which my name is Bowers, and my crust was busted > Falling down a shaft, in Calaveras County, But I'd take it kindly if you'd send the pieces Home to old Missouri!" BRET HARTE.

PHYSICS.

[THE UNCONSCIOUS POETIZING OF A PHILOSOPHER.]

THERE is no force however great Can stretch a cord however fine Into a horizontal line That shall be accurately straight. WILLIAM WHEWELL

THE COLLEGIAN TO HIS BRIDE:

BEING A MATHEMATICAL MADRIGAL IN THE SIMPLEST FORM

CHARMER, on a given straight line, And which we will call B C, Meeting at a common point A, Draw the lines A C, A B. But, my sweetest, so arrange it That they 're equal, all the three; Then you'll find that, in the sequel, All their angles, too, are equal.

Equal angles, so to term them, Each one opposite its brother! Equal joys and equal sorrows, Equal hopes, 't were sin to smother, Equal, - O, divine ecstatics, -Based on Hutton's mathematics!

PUNCH.

THE LAWYER'S INVOCATION TO SPRING.

WHEREAS, on certain boughs and sprays Now divers birds are heard to sing, And sundry flowers their heads upraise, Hail to the coming on of spring!

The songs of those said birds arouse The memory of our youthful hours, As green as those said sprays and boughs, As fresh and sweet as those said flowers.

The birds aforesaid, - happy pairs, -Love, mid the aforesaid boughs, inshrines In freehold nests; themselves, their heirs, Administrators, and assigns.

O busiest term of Cupid's Court,
Where tender plaintiffs actions bring,

Season of frolic and of sport,
Hail, as aforesaid, coming Spring!

HENRY HOWARD BROWNELL.

TONIS AD RESTO MARE.

AIR : " O Mary, heave a sigh for me"

O MARE æva si forme;
Forme ure tonitru;
Iambicum as amandum,
Olet Hymen promptu;
Mihi is vetas an ne se,
As humano erebi;
Olet mecum marito te,
Or eta beta pi.

Alas, plano more meretrix,
Mi ardor vel uno;
Inferiam ure artis base,
Tolerat me urebo
Ah me ve ara silicet,
Vi laudu vimin thus?
Hiatu as arandum sex—
Illue Ionicus.

Heu sed heu vix en imago,
My missis mare sta;
O cantu redit in mihi
Hibernas arida?
A veri vafer heri si,
Mihi resolves indu:
Totius olet Hymen cum—
Accepta tonitru.

Jonathan Swift

NURSERY RHYMES.

"JOHN, JOHN, THE PIPER'S SON."

JOHANNES, Johannes, tibicine natus

Fugit perniciter porcum furatus,

Sed porcus voratus, Johannes delatus,

Et plorans per vias est fur flagellatus.

"TWINKLE, TWINKLE, LITTLE STAR."

MICA, mica, parva stella;

Miror, quænam si tam bella!

Splendens eminus in illo,

Alba velut gemma, cœlo.

"BOYS AND GIRLS, COME OUT TO PLAY."
GARÇONS et filles venez toujours,
La lune est brillante comme le jour,
Venez au bruit d'un joyeux éclat
Venez du bons cœurs, ou ne venez pas.

"THREE WISE MEN OF GOTHAM."

TRES Philosophi de Tusculo
Mare navigarunt vasculo:
Si vas id esset tutius
Tibi canerem diutius.

"DING DONG BELL, THE CAT'S IN THE WELL."

ΑΙΛΝΟΝ αΊλινον εἶπε· φρέαρ λάβεν, οὖλον ἄβυσ
σον,

Τὴν γαλέην ' τίσ τησδ' αἶτιος ἀμπλακίης;

Τυτθὸς Ἰωάννης, χλωρὸν γάνος, αἴσυλα ἔιδως.

Τοῦ γαλέην βυθίσαι νήπιον ὧδ' ἄκακον.

THE COURTIN'.

God makes sech nights, all white an' still Fur'z you can look or listen; Moonshine an' snow on field an' hill, All silence an' all glisten.

Zekle crep' up quite unbeknown An' peeked in thru' the winder, An' there sot Huldy all alone, 'Ith no one nigh to hender.

A fireplace filled the room's one side,
With half a cord o' wood in —
There warn't no stoves (tell comfort died)
To bake ye to a puddin'.

The wa'nut logs shot sparkles out
Towards the pootiest, bless her!
An' leetle flames danced all about
The chiny on the dresser.

Agin the chimbley crook-necks hung,
An' in amongst 'em rusted
The ole queen's arm thet gran'ther Young Fetched back from Concord busted.

The very room, coz she was in, Seemed warm from floor to ceilin', An' she looked full ez rosy agin Ez the apples she was peelin'.

'T was kin o' kingdom-come to look On sech a blessèd cretur, A dogrose blushin' to a brook Ain't modester nor sweeter.

He was six foot o' man, A 1, Clean grit an' human natur'; None could n't quicker pitch a ton, Nor dror a furrer straighter. He'd sparked it with full twenty gals, Hed squired 'em, danced 'em, druv 'em, Fust this one, an' then thet, by spells -All is, he could n't love 'em.

But long o' her his veins 'ould run All crinkly like curled maple, The side she breshed felt full o' sun Ez a south slope in Ap'il.

She thought no vice hed such a swing Ez hisn in the choir; My! when he made Ole Hundred ring, She knowed the Lord was nigher.

An' she'd blush scarlit, right in prayer, When her new meetin'-bunnet Felt somehow thru' its crown a pair O' blue eyes sot upon it.

That night, I tell ye, she looked some! She seemed to 've gut a new soul, For she felt sartin-sure he 'd come, Down to her very shoe-sole.

She heered a foot, an' knowed it tu, A-raspin' on the scraper, ---All ways to once her feelin's flew Like sparks in burnt-up paper.

He kin' o' l'itered on the mat, Some doubtfle o' the sekle, His heart kep' goin' pitty-pat, But hern went pity Zekle.

An' yit she gin her cheer a jerk Ez though she wished him furder, An' on her apples kep' to work, Parin' away like murder.

"You want to see my Pa, I s'pose?" "Wal . . . no . . . I come dasignin'"-"To see my Ma? She 's sprinklin' clo'es Agin to-morrer's i'nin'."

To say why gals acts so or so, Or don't, 'ould be presumin': Mebby to mean yes an' say no Comes nateral to women.

He stood a spell on one foot fust, Then stood a spell on t'other. An' on which one he felt the wust He couldn't ha' told ye nuther.

Says he, "I'd better call agin;" Says she, "Think likely, Mister;" Thet last word pricked him like a pin, An' . . . Wal, he up an' kist her.

When Ma bimeby upon 'em slipe. Huldy sot pale ez ashes, All kin' o' smily roun' the lips An' teary roun' the lashes.

For she was jes' the quiet kind Whose naturs never vary, Like streams that keep a summer mind Snow-hid in Jenocary.

The blood clost roun' her heart felt glued Too tight for all expressin', Tell mother see how metters stood. And gin 'em both her blessin'.

Then her red come back like the tide Down to the Bay o' Fundy, An' all I know is they was cried In meetin' come nex' Sunday. JAMES RUSSELL LOWFLL

WHAT MR. ROBINSON THINKS.*

FROM "THE BIGLOW PAPERS," NO. III.

GUVENER B. is a sensible man; He stays to his home an' looks arter his folks;

He draws his furrer ez straight ez he can, An' into nobody's tater-patch pokes; -

> But John P. Robinson he

Sez he wunt vote fer Guvener B.

My! ain't it terrible? Wut shall we du? We can't never choose him o' course, - thet 's flat:

Guess we shall hev to come round, (don't you?) An' go in fer thunder an' guns, an' all that;

> Fer John P. Robinson he

Sez he wunt vote fer Guvener B.

Gineral C. is a dreffle smart man: He's ben on all sides thet give places or pelf; But consistency still wuz a part of his plan, -He's ben true to one party, - an' thet is himself : -

So John P. Robinson he

Sez he shall vote fer Gineral C.

Gineral C. he goes in fer the war; † He don't vally principle more 'n an old cud; Wut did God make us raytional creeturs fer, But glory an' gunpowder, plunder an' blood ?

^{*} Preserved here because the essential humor of the satire has outlived its local and temporary application, † Written at the time of the Mexican war, which was strongly opposed by the Antislavery party as being unnecessary and wrong.

So John P.
Robinson he
Sez he shall vote fer Gineral C.

We were gittin' on nicely up here to our village, With good old idees o' wut's right an' wut ain't,

We kind o' thought Christ went agin war an' pillage,

An' thet eppyletts worn't the best mark of a saint;

But John P.

Robinson he

Sez this kind o' thing's an exploded idee.

The side of our country must ollers be took,
An' Presidunt Polk, you know, he is our country;

An' the angel that writes all our sins in a book
Puts the debit to him, an' to us the per contry;

An' John P. Robinson he

Sez this is his view o' the thing to a T.

Parson Wilbur he calls all these argimunts lies; Sez they 're nothin' on airth but jest fee, faw, fum

And thet all this big talk of our destinies
Is half ov it ign'ance, an' t' other half rum;

But John P.

Robinson he

Sez it ain't no sech thing; an', of course, so must we.

Parson Wilbur sez he never heerd in his life
Thet th' Apostles rigged out in their swallertail coats,

An' marched round in front of a drum an' a fife, To git some on 'em office, an' some on 'em votes;

But John P. Robinson he

Sez they didn't know everythin' down in Judec.

Wal, it's a marcy we've gut folks to toll us

The rights an' the wrongs o' these matters, I vow, —

God sends country lawyers, an' other wise fellers, To drive the world's team wen it gits in a slough; Fer John P.

Robinson he

Sez the world 'll go right, ef he hollers out Gee!

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL

WIDOW BEDOTT TO ELDER SNIFFLES.

FROM "THE WIDOW BEDOTT PAPERS."

O REVEREND sir, I do declare It drives me most to frenzy, To think of you a lying there Down sick with influenzy.

A body 'd thought it was enough To mourn your wive's departer, Without sich trouble as this ere To come a follerin' arter.

But sickness and affliction

Are sent by a wise creation,

And always ought to be underwent

By patience and resignation.

O, I could to your bedside fly,
And wipe your weeping eyes,
And do my best to cure you up,
If 't would n't create surprise.

It's a world of trouble we tarry in, But, Elder, don't despair; That you may soon be movin' again Is constantly my prayer.

Both sick and well, you may depend You'll never be forgot By your faithful and affectionate friend, PRISCILLA POOL BEDOTT.

FRANCES MIRIAM WHITCHER,

THE NEW CHURCH ORGAN.

They've got a bran new organ, Sue,
For all their fuss and search;
They've done just as they said they'd do,
And fetched it into church.
They re bound the critter shall be seen,
And on the preacher's right,
They've hoisted up their new machine
In everybody's sight.
They've got a chorister and choir,
Ag'in my voice and vote;
For it was never my desire
To praise the Lord by note!

I 've been a sister good an' true,
For five an' thirty year;
I 've done what seemed my part to do,
An' prayed my duty clear;
I 've sung the hymns both alow and quick,
Just as the preacher read;
And twice, when Deacon Tubbs was aick,
I took the fork an' led!

An' now, their bold, new-fangled ways
Is comin' all about;
And I, right in my latter days,
Am fairly crowded out!

To-day, the preacher, good old dear,
With tears all in his eyes,
Read — "I can read my title clear
To mansions in the skies." —
I al'ays liked that blessed hymn —
I s'pose I al'ays will;
It somehow gratifies my whim,
In good old Ortonville;
But when that choir got up to sing,
I could n't catch a word;
They sung the most dog-gonedest thing
A body ever heard!

Some worldly chaps was standin' near,
An' when I see them grin,
I bid farewell to every fear,
And boldly waded in.
I thought I'd chase the tune along,
An' tried with all my might;
But though my voice is good an' strong,
I could n't steer it right.
When they was high, then I was low,
An' also contra'wise;
And I too fast, or they too slow,
To "mansions in the skies."

An' after every verse, you know,
They played a little tune;
I did n't understand, an' so
I started in too soon.
I pitched it purty middlin' high,
And fetched a lusty tone,
But O, alas! I found that I
Was singin' there alone!
They laughed a little, I am told;
But I had done my best;
And not a wave of trouble rolled
Across my peaceful breast.

And Sister Brown, — I could but look, —
She sits right front of me;
She never was no singin' book,
An' never went to be;
But then she al'ays tried to do
The best she could, she said;
She understood the time, right through,
An' kep' it with her head;
But when she tried this mornin', O,
I had to laugh, or cough!
It kep' her head a bobbin' so,
It e'en a'most come off!

An' Deacon Tubbs, — he all broke down,
As one might well suppose;
He took one look at Sister Brown,
And meekly scratched his nose.
He looked his hymn-book through and through,
And laid it on the seat,
And then a pensive sigh he drew,
And looked completely beat.
An' when they took another bout,
He didn't even rise;
But drawed his red bandanner out,
An' wiped his weeping eyes.

I've been a sister, good an' true,
For five an' thirty year;
I've done what seemed my part to do,
An' prayed my duty clear;
But death will stop my voice, I know,
For he is on my track;
And some day, I'll to meetin' go,
And nevermore come back.
And when the folks get up to sing—
Whene'er that time shall be—
I do not want no patent thing
A squealin' over me!

THE RETORT.

OLD Birch, who taught the village school, Wedded a maid of homespun habit; He was as stubborn as a mule, And she as playful as a rabbit. Poor Kate had scarce become a wife Before her husband sought to make her The pink of country polished life, And prim and formal as a Quaker.

One day the tutor went abroad,
And simple Katie sadly missed him,
When he returned, behind her lord
She shyly stole, and fondly kissed him.
The husband's anger rose, and red
And white his face alternate grew:
"Less freedom, ma'am!" Kate sighed and said,
"O, dear' I did n't know't was you!"

GEORGE PERKINS MORRIS.

DOW'S FLAT.

1866

Dow's Flat. That's its name.
And I reckon that you
Are a stranger? The same?
Well, I thought it was true,
For thar is n't a man on the river as can't spot
the place at first view.

It was called after Dow,—
Which the same was an ass;
And as to the how

That the thing kem to pass, —
Just tie up your hoss to that buckeye, and sit ye down here in the grass.

You see this yer Dow
Hed the worst kind of luck;
He slipped up somehow
On each thing thet he struck.
Why, ef he'd a' straddled thet fence-rail the derned thing 'ed get up and buck.

He mined on the bar
Till he could n't pay rates,
He was smashed by a car
When he tunnelled with Bates,
And right on the top of his trouble kem his wife and five kids from the States.

It was rough, — mighty rough,
But the boys they stood by,
And they brought him the stuff
For a house, on the sly;
And the old woman, — well, she did washing, and took on when no one was nigh.

But this yet luck of Dow's

Was so powerful mean

That the spring near his house

Dried right up on the green;

And he sunk forty feet down for water, but nary

a drop to be seen

Then the bar petered out,
And the boys would n't stay;
And the chills got about,
And his wife fell away;
But Dow, in his well, kept a peggin' in his usual ridikilous way

One day, — it was June, —
And a year ago, jest, —
This Dow kem at noon
To his work like the rest,
With a shovel and pick on his shoulder, and a derringer hid in his breast.

He goes to the well,
And he stands on the brink,
And stops for a spell
Jest to listen and think;
For the sun in his eyes, (jest like this, sir!) you see, kinder made the cuss blink.

His two ragged gals
In the gulch were at play,
And a gownd that was Sal's

Kinder flapped on a bay:

Not much for a man to be leavin', but his all,— as I 've heer'd the folks say.

And — that's a peart hoss

Thet you've got — ain't it now?

What might be her cost?

Eh? Oh! — Well then, Dow —

Let's see, — well, that forty-foot grave was n't his, sir, that day, anyhow.

For a blow of his pick Sorter caved in the side,
And he looked and turned sick,
Then he trembled and cried.
For you see the dern cuss had struck—"Water?"—beg your parding, young man, there you lied!

It was gold, — in the quartz,
And it ran all alike;
And I reckon five oughts
Was the worth of that strike;
And I hat house with the coopilow's his'n, — which the same is n't bad for a Pike.

Thet's why it's Dow's Flat;
And the thing of it is
That he kinder got that
Through sheer contrairiness:
For't was water the derned cuss was seekin', and his luck made him certain to miss.

Thet's so. Thar's your way
To the left of yon tree;
But—a—look h'yur, say,
Won't you come up to tea?
No? Well, then the next time you're passin';
and ask after Dow,—and thet 's me.
BRET HARTE.

JIM.

SAY there! P'r'aps
Some on you chaps
Might know Jim Wild?
Well, — no offence:
Thar ain't no sense
In gittin' riled!

Jim was my chum
Up on the Bar:
That's why I come
Down from up thar,
Lookin' for Jim.
Thank ye, sir! you
Ain't of that crew,—
Blest if you are!

Money! — Not much: That ain't my kind; I ain't no such. Rum! — I don't mind, Seein' it's you.

Well, this yer Jim,
Did you know him?—
Jess 'bout your size;
Same kind of eyes?—
Well, that is strange:
Why, it's two year
Since he come here,
Sick, for a change.

Well, here's to us;
Eh?
The deuce you say!
Dead?—
That little cuss?

What makes you star,—You over thar?
Can't a man drop
's glass in yer shop
But you must rar'?
It would n't take
Derned much to break
You and your bar.

Dead!
Poor — little — Jim!
— Why, there was me,
Jones, and Bob Lee,
Harry and Ben, —
No-account men:
Then to take him!

Well, thar — Good-by, —
No more, sir, — I —
Eh?
What's that you say? —
Why, dern it! — sho! —
No? Yes! By Jo!
Sold!
Sold!
Sold!
Sold!
Why you limb,
You ornery,
Derned old
Long-leggèd Jim'

BRET HARTE.

BANTY TIM.

[Remarks of Sergeant Tilmon Joy to the White Man's Comuittee of Spunky Point, Illinois.]

I RECKON I git your drift, gents—
You 'low the boy sha'n't stay;
This is a white man's country:
You're Dimocrats, you say:

And whereas, and seein', and wherefore,
The times bein' all out o' jint,
The nigger has got to mosey
From the limits o' Spunky P'int!

Let's reason the thing a minute;
I'm an old-fashioned Dimocrat, too,
Though I laid my politics out o' the way
For to keep till the war was through.
But I come back here allowin'
To vote as I used to do,
Though it gravels me like the devil to train
Along o' sich fools as you.

Now dog my cats of I kin see,
In all the light of the day,
What you've got to do with the question
Ef Tim shall go or stay.
And furder than that I give notice,
Ef one of you tetches the boy,
He kin check his trunks to a warmer clime
Than he'll find in Illanoy.

Why, blame your hearts, jist hear me!
You know that ungodly day
When our left struck Vicksburg Heights, how ripped
And torn and tattered we lay.
When the rest retreated, I stayed behind,
Fur reasons sufficient to me,—
With a rib caved in, and a leg on a strike,
I sprawled on that cursed glacee.

Lord! how the hot sun went for us,
And br'iled and blistered and burned!
How the rebel bullets whizzed round us
When a cuss in his death-grip turned!
Till along toward dusk I seen a thing
I could n't believe for a spell:
That nigger — that Tim — was a-crawlin' to me
Through that fire-proof, gilt-edged hell!

The rebels seen him as quick as me,
And the bullets buzzed like bees;
But he jumped for me, and shouldered me,
Though a shot brought him once to his knees;
But he staggered up, and packed me off,
With a dozen stumbles and falls,
Till safe in our lines he drapped us both,
His black hide riddled with balls.

So, my gentle gazelles, thar's my answer,
And here stays Banty Tim:
He trumped Death's ace for me that day,
And I'm not goin' back on him!
You may rezoloot till the cows come home,
But ef one of you tetches the boy,
He 'll wrastle his hash to-night in hell,
Or my name's not Tilmon Joy!

LITTLE BREECHES.

A PIKE COUNTY VIEW OF SPECIAL PROVIDENCE.

DON'T go much on religion, I never ain't had no show; But I've got a middlin' tight grip, sir, On the handful o' things I know. I don't pan out on the prophets And free-will, and that sort of thing, -But I b'lieve in God and the angels, Ever sence one night last spring.

I come into town with some turnips, And my little Gabe come along. -No four-year-old in the county Could beat him for pretty and strong, Peart and chipper and sassy, Always ready to swear and fight, -And I'd larnt him ter chaw terbacker, Jest to keep his milk-teeth white.

The snow come down like a blanket As I passed by Taggart's store; I went in for a jug of molasses And left the team at the door. They seared at something and started, -I heard one little squall, And hell-to-split over the prairie Went team, Little Breeches and all.

Hell-to-split over the prairie! I was almost froze with skeer; But we rousted up some torches, And sarched for 'em far and near. At last we struck hosses and wagon, Snowed under a soft white mound, Upsot, dead beat, - but of little Gabe No hide nor hair was found.

And here all hope soured on me Of my fellow-critter's aid, -I jest flopped down on my marrow-bones. Crotch-deep in the snow, and prayed.

By this, the torches was played out, And me and Isrul Parr Went off for some wood to a sheepfold That he said was somewhar thar.

We found it at last, and a little shed Where they shut up the lambs at night. We looked in, and seen them huddled thar, So warm and sleepy and white; And THAR sot Little Breeches and chirped, As peart as ever you see, "I want a chaw of terbacker, And that's what's the matter of me."

How did he git that? Angels. He could never have walked in that storm. They jest scooped down and toted him To whar it was safe and warm. And I think that saving a little child, And bringing him to his own, Is a derned sight better business Than loafing around The Throne.

JOHN HAY

HANS BREITMANN'S PARTY.

HANS BREITMANN gife a barty, Dev had biano-blayin; I felled in lofe mit a Merican frau, Her name was Madilda Yane. She had haar as prown ash a pretzel, Her eyes vas himmel-plue, Und ven dey looket indo mine, Dey shplit mine heart in two.

Hans Breitmann gife a barty, I vent dere you'll pe pound. I valtzet mit Madilda Yane Und vent shpinnen round und round. De pootiest Frauelein in de House, She vayed 'pout dwo hoondred pound, Und efery dime she gife a shoomp She make de vindows sound.

Hans Breitmann gife a barty, I dells you it cost him dear. Dev rolled in more as sefen kecks Of foost-rate Lager Beer. Und venefer dey knocks de shpicket in De Deutschers gifes a cheer. I dinks dat so vine a barty Nefer coom to a het dis year.

Hans Breitmann gife a barty; Dere all vas Souse und Brouse. Ven de sooper comed in, de gompany Did make demselfs to house; Dey ate das Brot und Gensy broost, De Bratwurst und Braten fine, Und vash der Abendessen down · Mit four parrels of Neckarwein.

 Hans Breitmann gife a barty ; We all cot troonk ash bigs. I poot mine mout to a parrel of bier, Und emptied it oop mit a schwigs. Und denn I gissed Madilda Yane Und she shlog me on de kop. Und de gompany fited mit daple-lecks Dill de coonshtable made oos shtop.

Hans Breitmann gife a barty —
Where ish dat barty now?
Where ish de lofely golden cloud
Dat float on de moundain's prow?
Where ish de himmelstrahlende Stern —
De shtar of de shpirit's light?
All goned afay mit de Lager Beer —
Afay in de Ewigkeit!
CHARLES G. LELAND

RITTER HUGO.

DER noble Ritter Hugo
Von Schwillensanfenstein
Rode out mit shpeer und helmet,
Und he coom to de panks of de Rhine.

Und oop dere rose a meermaid,
Vot had n't got nodings on,
Und she say, "O, Ritter Hugo,
Vare you goes mit yourself alone?"

Und he says, "I ride in de creen-wood, Mit helmet and mit shpeer, Till I cooms into ein Gasthaus, Und dere I drinks some peer."

Und den outshpoke de maiden, Vot had n't got nodings on, "I ton't dink mooch of beebles Dat goes mit demselfs alone.

"You'd petter coom down in de wasser, Vare dere's heaps of dings to see, Und hafe a shplendid dinner, Und trafel along mit me.

"Dare you sees de fish a schwimmin, Und you catches dem efery one." So sang dis wasser maiden, Vat had n't got nodings on.

"Dare is drunks all full mit money, In ships dat vent down of old; Und you helpsh yourself, by dunder! To shimmerin crowns of gold.

"Snoost look at dese shpoons und vatches!
Shoost look at dese diamond rings!
Come down und fill your bockets,
Und I'll kiss you like eferydings'

"Vat you vantsh mit your schnapps und your lager? Coom down into der Rhine! Dere ish pottles der Kaiser Charlemagne, Vonce filled mit gold-red wine!" Dat fetched him, — he shtood all shpell-pound, She pulled his coat-tails down, She drawed him under de wasser, Dis maiden mit nodings on.

CHARLES G. LELAND.

COLLUSION BETWEEN A ALEGAITER AND A WATER-SNAIK.

TRIUMPH OF THE WATER-SNAIK; DETH OF THE ALEGAITER.

THERE is a niland on a river lying,
Which runs into Gautimaly, a warm country,
Lying near the Tropicks, covered with sand;
Hear and their a symptum of a Wilow,
Hanging of its umberagious limbs & branches
Over the clear streme meandering far below.
This was the home of the now silent Alegaiter,
When not in his other element confine'd;
Here he wood set upon his eggs asleep
With 1 ey observant of flis and other passing Objects: a while it kept a going on so
Fereles of danger was the happy Alegaiter!
But a las! in a nevil our he was fourced to Wake! that dreme of Blis was two sweet for him.

1 morning the sun arose with unusool splender Whitch allso did our Alegaiter, coming from the water.

His scails a flinging of the rais of the son back,
To the fountain-head which tha originly sprung,
But having not had nothing to eat for some time,
he

Was slepy and gap'd, in a short time, widely. Unfoalding soon a welth of perl-white teth, The rais of the son soon shet his sinister ey Because of their mutool splendor and warmth. The evil Our (which I sed) was now come; Evidently a good chans for a water snaik Of the large specie, which soon appeared Into the horison, near the bank where repos'd Calmly in slepe the Alegaiter before spoken of, About 60 feet was his Length (not the 'gaiter) And he was aperiently a well-proportioned snaik. When he was all ashore he glared upon The iland with approval, but was soon "Astonished with the view and lost to wonder "from Wats)

(For jest then he began to see the Alegniter)
Being a nateral enemy of his'n, he worked hisself

Into a fury, also a ni position.

Before the Alegaiter well could ope
His eye (in other words perceive his danger)
The Snaik had enveloped his body just 19 Times with "foalds voluminous and vast" (from Milton)

And had tore off several scails in the confusion, Besides squeazing him awfully into his stomoc. Just then, by a fortinate turn in his affairs, He ceazed into his mouth the-careless tale Of the unreflecting water-snaik! Grown desperate

He, finding that his tale was fast squesed Terrible while they roaled all over the iland.

It was a well-conduckted Affair; no noise Disturbed the harmony of the seen, ecsept Onct when a Wilow was snaped into by the roaling.

Eeach of the combatence had n't a minit for holering.

So the conflick was naterally tremenjous '
But soon by grate force the tale was bit completeLy of; but the eggzeration was too much
For his delicate ('onstituotion' he felt a compression

Onto his chest and generally over his body; When he ecspress'd his breathing, it was with Grate difficulty that he telt inspired again onct

Of course this State must suffer a revoloction. So the Alegarter give but one yel, and egspired. The waiter-snark realed hisself off, & survay'd For say 10 minuts, the condition of His fo. then wondering what made his tail huit, He sloly went off for to cool

| W. MORRIS

SWELL'S SOLILOQUY

1 DON'T appwove this hawid waw .

Those dweadful bannahs hawt my eyes ;
And gins and dwums are such a baw, —
Why don't the pawties compwamise?

Of cawce, the twoilet has its chawms.

But why must all the vulgah cwowd
Pawsist in spawting unifawms,
In cullahs so extwemely loud 7

And then the ladies, pwecious deahs'—
I mawk the change on ev'wy bwow.
Bai Jove! I weally have my feahs
They wathah like the hawnd wow!

To heah the chawming eweatures talk, Like patwons of the bloody wing, Of waw and all its dawty wawk,— It does n't seem a pwappah thing!

I called at Mrs. (tweene's last night.

To see her niece, Miss Mawy Hertz,

And found her making -- cwushing sight!—

The weddest kind of flannel shirts!

Of cawce, I wose, and sought the daw,
With fawyah flashing from my eyes!
I can't appwove this hawid waw;—
Why don't the pawties compwamise!

TO THE "SEXTANT."

O SEXTANT of the meetin house, wich sweeps
And dusts, or is supposed to ! and makes fires,
And lites the gass, and sumtimes leaves a screw loose,

in wich case it smells orful, worse than lamp ile; And wrings the Bel and toles it when men dyes, to the grief of survivin pardners, and sweeps paths And for the servusses gets $100 per annum, Wich them that thinks deer, let 'em try it : Gettin up before starlite in all wethers and Kindlin fires when the wether is as cold As zero, and like as not green wood for kindlin i would n't be hired to do it for no sum, But O Sextant! there are 1 kermoddity Wich 's more than gold, wich doant cost nothin, Worth more than anything except the sole of man! i mean pewer Are, Sextant, i mean pewer are! O it is plenty out of doors, so plenty it doant no What on airth to dew with itself, but flys about Scatterin leaves and bloin off men's hatts ! in short, it 's jest as " fre as are " out dores, But O Sextant, in our church its scarce as buty, Scarce as bank bills, when agints begs for mischuns.

Wich some say is purty offten (taint nothin to me, wat I give aint nothin to nobody) but O Sextant

U shet 500 men, wimmin, and children, Speshally the latter, up in a tite place, And every 1 on em brethes in and out, and out and in,

Say 50 times a minnit, or 1 million and a half breths an our.

Now how long will a church ful of are last at that rate,

I ask you — say 15 minits — and then wats to be did?

Why then they must brethe it all over agin, And then agin, and so on till each has took it

At least 10 times, and lef it up agin, and wats

The same individual don't have the priviledge of brethin his own are, and no ones else, Each one must take whatever comes to him. O Sextant, doant you no our lungs is bellusses, To blo the fier of life, and keep it from goin out; and how can bellusses blo without wind And aint wind are? i put it to your conschens

Are is the same to us as milk to babies,
Or water is to fish, or pendlums to clox,
Or roots and airbs unto an injun doctor,
Or little p.lls unto an omepath,
Or boys to gurls. Are is for us to brethe,
What signifies who preaches if i cant brethe?
Wats Pol? Wats Pollus to sinners who are ded?

Ded for want of breth, why Sextant, when we dy
Its only coz we cant brethe no more, thats all.
And now O Sextant, let me beg of you
To let a little are into our church.
(Pewer are is sertain proper for the pews)
And do it weak days, and Sundays tew,
It aint much trouble, only make a hole
And the are will come of itself;
(It luvs to come in where it can git warm)
And O how it will rouze the people up,
And sperrit up the preacher, and stop garps,
And yawns and fights, as effectooal
As wind on the dry boans the Profit tells of.

ARABELLA M. WILLSON

MR. MOLONY'S ACCOUNT OF THE BALL.

GIVEN TO THE NEPAULESE AMBASSADOR BY THE PENIN-SULAR AND ORIENTAL COMPANY.

O, WILL ye choose to hear the news?

Bedad, I cannot pass it o'er:

I'll tell you all about the ball

To the Naypaulase Ambassador.

Begor! this fête all balls does bate,

At which I worn a pump, and I Must here relate the splendthor great

Of th' Oriental Company.

These men of sinse dispoised expinse,
To fête these black Achilleses.
"We'll show the blacks," says they, "Almack's,
And take the rooms at Willis's."
With flags and shawls, for these Nepauls,
They hung the rooms of Willis up,
And decked the walls and stairs and halls
With roses and with lilies up.

And Jullien's band it tuck its stand
So sweetly in the middle there,
And soft bassoons played heavenly chunes,
And violins did fiddle there.
And when the Coort was tired of spoort,
I'd lave you, boys, to think there was
A nate buffet before them set,
Where lashins of good dhrink there was!

At ten before the ball-room door, His moighty Excellency was; He smoiled and bowed to all the crowd,
So gorgeous and immense he was.
His dusky shuit, sublime and mute,
Into the doorway followed him;
And O the noise of the blackguard boys,
As they hurrood and hollowed him!

The noble Chair stud at the stair,
And bade the dthrums to thump; and he Did thus evince to that Black Prince
The welcome of his Company.
O fair the girls, and rich the curls,
And bright the oys, you saw there, was;
And fixed each oye, ye there could spoi,
On Gineral Jung Bahawther was!

This Gineral great then tuck his sate,
With all the other ginerals
(Bedad, his troat, his belt, his coat,
All bleezed with precious minerals);
And as he there, with princely air,
Recloinin on his cushion was,
All round about his royal chair,
The squeezin and the pushin was,

O Pat, such girls, such Jukes and Earls,
Such fashion and nobilitee!
Just think of Tim, and fancy him
Amidst the hoigh gentility!
There was Lord De L'Huys, and the Portygeese
Ministher and his lady there,
And I reckonized, with much surprise,
Our messmate, Bob O'Grady, there;

There was Baroness Brunow, that looked like Juno,
And Baroness Rehausen there,
And Countess Roullier, that looked peculiar
Well, in her robes of gauze in there.
There was Lord Crowhurst (I knew him first When only Mr. Pips he was),
And Mick O'Toole, the great big fool,
That after supper tipsy was.

There was Lord Fingall and his ladies all,
And Lords Killeen and Dufferin,
And Paddy Fife, with his fat wife,—
I wondther how he could stuff her in.
There was Lord Belfast, that by me past,
And seemed to ask how should I go there?
And the Widow Macræ, and Lord A. Hay,
And the Marchioness of Sligo there.

Yes, Jukes and Earls, and diamonds and pearls,
And pretty girls, was spoorting there;
And some beside (the rogues!) I spied,
Behind the windies, coorting there.

O, there 's one I know, bedad, would show
As beautiful as any there;
And I 'd like to hear the pipers blow,
And shake a fut with Fanny there!

WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY.

WIDOW MALONE.

DID you hear of the Widow Malone, Ohone! Who lived in the town of Athlone, Alone!

O, she melted the hearts
Of the swains in them parts:
So lovely the Widow Malone,
Ohone!

So lovely the Widow Malone.

Of lovers she had a full score, Or more, And fortunes they all had galore, In store:

In store;
From the minister down
To the clerk of the Crown
All were courting the Widow Malone,
Ohone!

All were courting the Widow Malone.

But so modest was Mistress Malone, 'T was known

That no one could see her alone, Ohone!

Let them ogle and sigh, They could ne'er catch her eye, So bashful the Widow Malone, Ohone!

So bashful the Widow Malone.

Till one Misther O'Brien, from Clare (How quare! It's little for blushing they care Down there),

Put his arm round her waist, —
Gave ten kisses at laste, —

"O," says he, "you're my Molly Malone,
My own!

O," says he, "you're my Molly Malone!"

And the widow they all thought so shy, My eye!

Ne'er thought of a simper or sigh, —
For why?

For why?
But, "Lucius," says she,
"Since you've now made so free,
You may marry your Mary Malone,
Ohone!

You may marry your Mary Malone."

There's a moral contained in my song, Not wrong;

And one comfort, it is not very long,

But strong, —

If for widows you die, Learn to kiss, not to sigh;

For they 're all like sweet Mistress Malone, Ohone!

O, they 're all like sweet Mistress Malone!

CHARLES LEVER.

BACHELOR'S HALL.

BACHELOR'S HALL, what a quare-lookin' place it is!

Kape me from such all the days of my life! Sure but I think what a burnin' disgrace it is, Niver at all to be gettin' a wife.

Pots, dishes, pans, an' such grasy commodities, Ashes and praty-skins, kiver the floor; His cupboard's a storehouse of comical oddities, Things that had niver been neighbors before.

Say the old bachelor, gloomy an' sad enough,
Placin' his tay-kettle over the fire;
Soon it tips over — Saint Patrick! he's mad
enough,

If he were prisent, to fight with the squire!

He looks for the platter — Grimalkin is scourin' it!

Sure, at a baste like that, swearin' 's no sin; His dishcloth is missing; the pigs are devourin'

Tunder and turf! what a pickle he 's in!

When his male's over, the table's left sittin'

Dishes, take care of yourselves if you can; Divil a drop of hot water will visit ye, — Och, let him alone for a baste of a man!

Now, like a pig in a mortar-bed wallowin',
Say the old bachelor kneading his dough;
Troth, if his bread he could ate without swallowin',

How it would favor his palate, ye know!

Late in the night, when he goes to bed shiverin', Niver a bit is the bed made at all; He crapes like a terrapin under the kiverin';— Bad luck to the pictur of Bachelor's Hall!

JOHN FINLEY.

ST. PATRICK WAS A GENTLEMAN.

O, St. Patrick was a gentleman,
Who came of decent people;
He built a church in Dublin town,
And on it put a steeple.
His father was a Gallagher;
His mother was a Brady;
His aunt was an O'Shaughnessy,
His uncle an O'Grady.
So, success attend St. Patrick's fist,
For he's a Saint so clever;
O, he gave the snakes and toads a twist,
And bothered them forever!

The Wicklow hills are very high,
And so's the Hill of Howth, sir;
But there's a hill, much bigger still,
Much higher nor them both, sir.
'T was on the top of this high hill
St. Patrick preached his sarmint
That drove the frogs into the bogs,
And banished all the varmint.
So, success attend St. Patrick's fist, etc.

There's not a mile in Ireland's isle
Where dirty varmin musters,
But there he put his dear fore-foot,
And murdered them in clusters.
The toads went pop, the frogs went hop,
Slap-dash into the water;
And the snakes committed suicide
To save themselves from slaughter.
So, success attend St. Patrick's fist, etc.

Nine hundred thousand reptiles blue
He charmed with sweet discourses,
And dined on them at Killaloe
In soups and second courses.
Where blind worms crawling in the grass
Disgusted all the nation,
He gave them a rise, which opened their eyes

To a sense of their situation.

So, success attend St. Patrick's fist, etc.

No wonder that those Irish lads
Should be so gay and frisky,
For sure St. Pat he taught them that,
As well as making whiskey;
No wonder that the saint himself
Should understand distilling,
Since his mother kept a shebeen shop
In the town of Enniskillen.

So, success attend St. Patrick's fist, etc.

O, was I but so fortunate
As to be back in Munster,
'T is I'd be bound that from that ground
I nevermore would once stir.

For there St. Patrick planted turf,
And plenty of the praties,
With pigs galore, ma gra, ma 'store,
And cabbages — and ladies!
Then my blessing on St. Patrick's fist,
For he 's the darling Saint O!
O, he gave the snakes and toads a twist;
He's a beauty without paint, O!
HERNY BENNETT.

THE BIRTH OF ST. PATRICK.

On the eighth day of March it was, some people say,

That Saint Pathrick at midnight he first saw the day;

While others declare 't was the ninth he was born,

And 't was all a mistake between midnight and morn;

For mistakes will occur in a hurry and shock,

And some blamed the babby — and some blamed the clock —

Till with all their cross-questions sure no one could know

If the child was too fast, or the clock was too slow.

Now the first faction-fight in owld Ireland, they say,

Was all on account of Saint Pathrick's birthday: Some fought for the eighth — for the ninth more would die.

And who would n't see right, sure they blackened his eve!

At last, both the factions so positive grew,

That each kept a birthday, so Pat then had two, Till Father Mulcahy, who showed them then

Said, "No one could have two birthdays, but a twins."

Says he, "Boys, don't be fightin' for eight or for nine.

Don't be always dividin' — but sometimes combine:

Combine eight with nine, and seventeen is the mark,

So let that be his birthday," — "Amen," says the clerk.

"If he was n't a twins, sure our hist'ry will show That, at least, he's worthy any two saints that we know!"

Then they all got blind dhrunk — which complated their bliss,

And we keep up the practice from that day to this.

SAMUEL LOVEL

THE LOVERS.

SALLY SALTER, she was a young teacher who | "How could you deceive me, as you have detaught.

And her friend, Charley Church, was a preacher who praught,

Though his enemies called him a screecher who scraught.

His heart, when he saw her, kept sinking and

And his eye, meeting hers, began winking, and

While she, in her turn, kept thinking, and thunk.

He hastened to woo her, and sweetly he wooed, For his love grew until to a mountain it grewed, And what he was longing to do then he doed.

In secret he wanted to speak, and he spoke, To seek with his lips what his heart long had soke:

So he managed to let the truth leak, and it loke

He asked her to ride to the church, and they

They so sweetly did glide that they both thought they glode,

And they came to the place to be tied, and were toed.

Then homeward, he said, let us drive, and they drove.

And as soon as they wished to arrive, they arrove.

For whatever he could n't contrive, she controve.

The kiss he was dying to steal, then he stole; At the feet where he wanted to kneel then he knole:

And he said, "I feel better than ever I fole."

So they to each other kept clinging, and clung, While Time his swift circuit was winging, and

And this was the thing he was bringing, and brung:

The man Sally wanted to catch, and had caught; That she wanted from others to snatch, and had snaught;

Was the one she now liked to scratch, and she scraught.

And Charley's warm love began freezing, and

While he took to teazing, and cruelly toze The girl he had wished to be squeezing, and squoze.

"Wretch!" he cried, when she threatened to leave him, and left,

And she answered, "I promised to cleave, and I 've cleft."

PHORRE CARY

DEBORAH LEE.*

'T is a dozen or so of years ago, Somewhere in the West countree, That a nice girl lived, as ye Hoosiers know By the name of Deborah Lee; Her sister was loved by Edgar Poe, But Deborah by me.

Now I was green, and she was green, As a summer's squash might be; And we loved as warmly as other folks. -I and my Deborah Lee, — With a love that the lasses of Hoosierdom Coveted her and me.

But somehow it happened a long time ago, In the aguish West countree, That a chill March morning gave the shakes To my beautiful Deborah Lee; And the grim steam-doctor (drat him!) came, And bore her away from me, -The doctor and death, old partners they, -In the aguish West countree.

The angels wanted her in heaven (But they never asked for me), And that is the reason, I rather guess, In the aguish West countree. That the cold March wind, and the doctor, and death. Took off my Deborah Lee -My beautiful Deborah Lee -

From the warm sunshine and the opening flower, And bore her away from me.

Our love was as strong as a six-horse team, Or the love of folks older than we, Or possibly wiser than we;

But death, with the aid of doctor and steam, Was rather too many for me;

He closed the peepers and silenced the breath Of my sweetheart Deborah Lee,

And her form lies cold in the prairie mould, Silent and cold, — ah me!

The foot of the hunter shall press her grave, And the prairie's sweet wild flowers In their odorous beauty around it wave Through all the sunny hours, -

* See page seg

The still, bright summer hours;
And the birds shall sing in the tufted grass
And the nectar-laden bee,
With his dreamy hum, on his gauze wings pass,
She wakes no more to me;
Ah, nevermore to me!

Though the wild birds sing and the wild flowers spring,

She wakes no more to me.

Yet oft in the hush of the dim, still night,
A vision of beauty I see
Gliding soft to my bedside,—a phantom of light,
Dear, beautiful Deborah Lee,—
My bride that was to be;
And I wake to mourn that the doctor, and

death,
And the cold March wind, should stop the breath
Of my darling Deborah Lee, —

Adorable Deborah Lee, —

That angels should want her up in heaven
Before they wanted me.

WILLIAM H. BURLEIGH.

ONLY SEVEN.*

A PASTORAL STORY, AFTER WORDSWORTH.

I MARVELLED why a simple child, That lightly draws its breath, Should utter groans so very wild And look as pale as Death.

Adopting a parental tone,
I asked her why she cried.
The damsel answered, with a groan,
"I've got a pain inside!

"I thought it would have sent me mad Last night about eleven." Said I, "What is it makes you bad? How many apples have you had?" She answered, "Only seven!"

"And are you sure you took no more, My little maid?" quoth I. "O, please, sir, mother gave me four, But they were in a pie!"

"If that's the case," I stammered out,
"Of course you've had eleven."
The maiden answered with a pout,
"I ain't had more nor seven!"

I wondered hugely what she meant, And said, "I'm bad at riddles, But I know where little girls are sent For telling taradiddles.

See page 87,

"Now if you don't reform," said I,
"You'll never go to heaven!"
But all in vain; each time I try
The little idiot makes reply,
"I ain't had more nor seven!"

POSTSCRIPT.

To borrow Wordsworth's name was wrong, Or slightly misapplied; And so I 'd better call my song, "Lines after Ache-inside."

H. S. LEIGH.

A TALE OF DRURY LANE.*

FROM "REJECTED ADDRESSES."

"Thus he went on, stringing one extravagance upon another, in the style his books of chivalry had taught him, and imitating, as near as he could, their very phrase."—DON QUIXOTE.

To be spoken by Mr. Kemble, in a suit of the Bluck Prince's armor, borrowed from the Tower.

REST there awhile, my bearded lance, While from green curtain I advance To yon foot-lights, no trivial dance, And tell the town what sad mischance Did Drury Lane befall.

As Chaos, which, by heavenly doom,
Had slept in everlasting gloom,
Started with terror and surprise
When light first flashed upon her eyes, —
So London's sons in nightcap woke,

In bedgown woke her dames; For shouts were heard mid fire and smoke, And twice ten hundred voices spoke,—

"The playhouse is in flames!"

And, lo! where Catherine Street extends,

A fiery tail its lustre lends

To every window-pane; Blushes each spout in Martlet Court, And Barbican, moth-eaten fort, And Covent Garden kennels sport,

A bright ensanguined drain; Meux's new Brewhouse shows the light, Rowland Hill's Chapel, and the height

Where Patent Shot they sell;
The Tennis Court, so fair and tall,
Partakes the ray, with Surgeons' Hall,
The Ticket-Porters' House of Call,
Old Bedlam, close by London Wall,
Wright's shrimp and oyster shop withal,

And Richardson's Hotel.

Nor these alone, but far and wide,
Across red Thames's gleaming tide,
To distant fields the blaze was borne,
And daisy white and hoary thorn

An imitation of Sir Walter Scott-

In borrowed justre seemed to sham The rose, or red Sweet Wil-li-am. To those who on the hills around Beheld the flames from Drury's mound,

As from a lofty altar rise, It seemed that nations did conspire To offer to the god of fire

Some vast, stupendous sacrifice!
The summoned firemen woke at call,
And hied them to their stations all:
Starting from short and broken snooze,
Each sought his ponderous hob-nailed shoes,
But first his worsted hosen plied;
Plush breeches next, in crimson dyed,

His nether bulk embraced; Then jacket thick, of red or blue, Whose massy shoulder gave to view The badge of each respective crew,

In tin or copper traced.

The engines thundered through the street,
Fire-hook, pipe, bucket, all complete,
And torches glared, and clattering feet

Along the pavement paced.

And one, the leader of the band,
From Charing Cross along the Strand,
Like stag by beagles hunted hard,
Ran till he stopped at Vin'gar Yard.
The burning badge his shoulder bore,
The belt and oil-skin hat he wore,
The cane he had, his men to bang,
Showed foreman of the British gang,
His name was Higginbottom. Now
'T is meet that I should tell you how

The others came in view:
The Hand-in-Hand the race begun,
Then came the Phænix and the Sun,
The Exchange, where old insurers run,

The Eagle, where the new;
With these came Rumford, Bumford, Cole,
Robins from Hockley in the Hole,
Lawson and Dawson, cheek by jowl,

Crump from St. Giles's Pound:
Whitford and Mitford joined the train,
Huggins and Muggins from Chick Lane,
And Clutterbuck, who got a sprain

Before the plug was found. Hobson and Jobson did not sleep, But ah ' no trophy could they reap, For both were in the Donjon Keep

Of Bridewell's gloomy mound!
E'en Higginbottom now was posed,
For sadder scene was no'er disclosed;
Without, within, in hideous show,
Devouring flames resistless glow,
And blazing rafters downward go,
And never halloo "Heads below!"

Nor notice give at all.

The firemen terrified are slow To bid the pumping torrent now,

For fear the roof should tall.

Back, Robins, back! Crump, stand aloof!
Whitford, keep near the walls!
Huggins, regard your own behoof,
For, lo! the blazing, rocking roof
Down, down in thunder falls!
An awful pause succeeds the stroke,
And o'er the ruins volumed smoke,
Rolling around its pitchy shroud,
Concealed them from the astonished crowd.
At length the mist awhile was cleared,
When, lo! amid the wreak upreared,
Gradual a moving head appeared,

And Eagle firemen knew
'T was Joseph Muggins, name revered,
The foreman of their crew.

Loud shouted all in signs of woe, "A Muggins! to the rescue, ho!"

And poured the hissing tide: Meanwhile the Muggins fought amain, And strove and struggled all in vain, For, rallying but to fall again,

He tottered, sunk, and died!

Did none attempt, before he fell, To succor one they loved so well? Yes, Higginbottom did aspire (His fireman's soul was all on fire)

His brother chief to save;
But ah! his reckless generous ire
Served but to share his grave!
Mid blazing beams and scalding streams,
Through fire and smoke he dauntless broke,

Where Muggins broke before. But sulphury stench and boiling drench, Destroying sight, o'erwhelmed him quite,

He sunk to rise no more.

Still o'er his head, while Fate he braved,
His whizzing water-pipe he waved:

"Whitford and Mitford, ply your pumps!
You, Clutterbuck, come, stir your stumps!
Why are you in such doleful dumps?
A fireman, and afraid of bumps!—
What are they feared on? fools! 'od rot 'em!"
Were the last words of Higginbottom.

HORACE SMITH.

POEMS

RECEIVED IN RESPONSE TO AN ADVERTISED CALL FOR A

NATIONAL ANTHEM.

BY DR. OLIVER WENDELL H-

A DIAGNOSIS of our history proves Our native land a land its native loves; Its birth a deed obstetric without peer, Its growtn a source of wonder far and near.

Fo love it more, behold how foreign shores Sink into nothingness beside its stores. Hyde Park at best—though counted ultra grand—

The "Boston Common" of Victoria's land -

The committee must not be blamed for rejecting the above after reading thus far, for such an "anthem" could only be sung by a college of surgeons or a Beacon Street tea-party

Turn we now to a

NATIONAL ANTHEM.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN B-

THE sun sinks softly to his evening post,
The sun swells grandly to his morning crown;
Yet not a star our flag of heaven has lost,
And not a sunset stripe with him goes down.

So thrones may fall; and from the dust of those New thrones may rise, to totter like the last; But still our country's nobler planet glows, While the eternal stars of Heaven are fast.

Joon finding that this does not go well to the air of "Yankee Doodle," the committee feel justified in declining it, it being further more prejudiced against it by a suspicion that the poet has crowded an advertisement of a paper which he edits into the first line Next we quote from a

NATIONAL ANTHEM.

BY GENERAL GHORGE P M-

In the days that tried our fathers,
Many years ago,
Our fair land achieved her freedom
Blood-bought, you know,
Shall we not defend her ever,
As we'd defend
That fair maiden, kind and tender,
Calling us friend

Yes! Let all the echoes answer,
From hill and vale;
Yes! Let other nations hearing,
Joy in the tale.
Our Columbia is a lady,
High-born and fair,
We have sworn allegiance to her, -Touch her who dare.

The tone of this "anthem" not being devotional enough to suit the committee, it should be printed on an edition of linen cambric undkerchiefs for ladies especially otherce this

NATIONAL ANTHEM

BY N P. W----

ONE hue of our flag is taken

From the cheeks of my blushing pet,
And its stars beat time and sparkle

Like the studs on her chemisette.

Its blue is the ocean shadow
That hides in her dreamy eyes,
And it conquers all men, like her,
And still for a Union flies.

Several members of the committee find that this "anthem" has too much of the Anacreon spice to suit them. We next peruse a

NATIONAL ANTHEM.

BY THOMAS BAILEY A----

The little brown squirrel hops in the corn,
The cricket quaintly sings;
The emerald pigeon nods his head,
And the shad in the river springs;
The dainty sunflower hangs its head
On the shore of the summer sea;
And better far that I were dead,
If Maud did not love me.

I love the squirrel that hops in the corn,
And the cricket that quaintly sings;
And the emerald pigeon that nods his head.
And the shad that gayly springs.
I love the dainty sunflower, too,
And Maud with her snowy breast;
I love them all; but I love — I love —
I love my country best.

This is certainly very benutiful, and sounds somewhat like Tempyon I hough it may be rejected by the committee, it can never love its value as a piece of excellent reading for children. It is calculated to fill the youthful mind with patriotism and natural his tory, beside touching the youthful hear, with an emotion palpitating for all

ROBERT H. NEWELL (Orpheus C. Kerr)

THE COCK AND THE BULL.*

You see this pebble-stone? It's a thing I bought Of a bit of a chit of a boy i' the mid o' the day — I like to dock the smaller parts-o'-speech, As we curtail the already cur-tailed cur (You catch the paronomasia, play o' words?) — Did, rather, i' the pre-Landseerian days. Well, to my muttons. I purchased the concern, And clapt it i' my poke, and gave for same By way, to-wit, of barter or exchange — "Chop" was my snickering dandiprat's own

One shilling and fourpence, current coin o' the

O-n-e one and f-o-u-r four Pence, one and fourpence — you are with me, Sir! —

What hour it skills not: ten or eleven o' the clock, One day (and what a roaring day it was!)

. In imitation of Robert Browning.

In February, eighteen sixty-nine,

Alexandrina Victoria, Fidei

Hm — hm — how runs the jargon? — being on (In secula seculo-o-o-orum;
throne.

I think I hear the Abbate m

Such, sir, are all the facts, succinctly put,
The basis or substratum — what you will —
Of the impending eighty thousand lines.
"Not much in 'em either," quoth perhaps simple Hodge.

But there 's a superstructure Wait a bit.

Mark first the rationale of the thing.

Hear logic rival and levigate the deed.

That shilling — and for matter o' that, the pence —

I had o' course upo' me — wi' me, say — (Mecum's the Latin, make a note o' that)
When I popped pen i' stand, blew snout, scratched ear,

Sniffed — tch ! — at snuff-box; tumbled up, heheed,

Haw-hawed (not hee-hawed, that 's another guess thing .)

Then fumbled at, and stumbled out of, door, I shoved the door ope wi' my omoplat;
And in vestibulo, i' the entrance-hall,
Donned galligaskins, antigropeloes,
And so forth; and, complete with hat and gloves,
One on and one a-daugle i' my hand.
And ombrifuge, (Lord love you') case o' rain,
I flopped forth, 's buddikins' on my own ten toes,
I do assure you there be ten of them,)

And went clump-clumping up hill and down dale
To find myself o' the sudden i' front o' the boy.
Put case I had n't 'em on me, could I ha' bought
This sort-o'-kind-o'-what-you-might-call toy,
This pebble-thing, o' the boy-thing? Q. E. D.
That's proven without aid from mumping Pope,
Sleek porporate or bloated Cardinal,
(Is n't it, old Fatchaps? You're in Euclid now.)

Sleek porporate or bloated Cardinal, (Is n't it, old Fatchaps? You're in Euclid now.) So, having the shilling — having i' fact a lot — And pence and halfpence, ever so many o' them, I purchased, as I think I said before,

The pebble (lapis, lapidis, — di, — dem, — de, — What nouns 'crease short i' the genitive, Fatchaps, eh')

O' the boy, a bare-legged beggarly son of a gun, For one and fourpence. Here we are again.

Now Law steps in, big-wigged, voluminousjawed;

Investigates and re-investigates.

Was the transaction illegal? Law shakes head.

Perpend, sir, all the bearings of the case.

At first the coin was mine, the chattel his. But now (by virtue of the said exchange And barter) vice versa all the coin, Per juris operationem, vests
I' the boy and his assigns till ding o' doom;
(In secula seculo-o-o-orum;
I think I hear the Abbate mouth out that.)
To have and hold the same to him and them . . .
Confer some idiot on Conveyancing,
Whereas the pebble and every part thereof,
And all that appertaineth thereunto,
Or shall, will, may, might, can, could, would, or should,

(Subandr cætera — clap me to the close — For what's the good of law in a case o' the kind?) Is mine to all intents and purposes. This settled, I resume the thread o' the tale.

Now for a touch o' the vendor's quality.
He says a gen'lman bought a pebble of him,
(This pebble i' sooth, sir, which I hold i' my hand)—

And paid for 't, like a gen'lman, on the nail.

"Did I o'ercharge him a ha'penny? Devil a bit.
Fiddlestick's end! Get out, you blazing ass!
Gabble o' the goose. Don't bugaboo-baby me!
Go double or quits" Yah! tittup! what's the

- There 's the transaction viewed, i' the vendor's light.

Next ask that dumpled hag, stood snuffling by, With her three frowsy-browsy brats o' babes, The scum o' the kennel, cream o' the filth-heap — Faugh?

Ale, ale, ale, ale! orororororo,

('Stead which we blurt out Hoighty-toighty now)—

And the baker and candlestick-maker, and Jack and Gill,

Bleared Goody this and queasy Gaffer that.

Ask the schoolmaster. Take schoolmaster first.

He saw a gentleman purchase of a lad A stone, and pay for it rite, on the square, And carry it off per saltum, jauntily, Propria quæ maribus, gentleman's property now (Agreeably to the law explained above), In proprium usum, for his private ends. The boy he chucked a brown i' the air, and bit I' the face the shilling: heaved a thumping stone At a lean hen that ran cluck clucking by, (And hit her, dead as nail i' post o' door,) Then abiit — what's the Ciceronian phrase: — Excessit, evasit, erupit, — off slogs boy; Off in three flea-skips. Hactenus, so far, So good, tam bene. Bene, satis, male, -Where was 1? who said what of one in a quag? I did once hitch the syntax into verse: Verbum personale, a verb personal, Concordat, - ay, "agrees," old Fatchaps - cum

Nominative, with its nominative,
Genere, i' point o' gender, numero,
O' number, et persona, and person. Ut,
Instance: Sol ruit, down flops sun, et, and,
Montes umbrantur, snuffs out mountains. Pah!
Excuse me, sir, I think I'm going mad.
You see the trick on 't though, and can yourself
Continue the discourse ad libitum.
It takes up about eighty thousand lines,
A thing imagination boggles at:
And might, odds-bobs, sir! in judicious hands,
Extend from here to Mesopotamy.

CHARLES S. CALVERLEY.

LOVERS, AND A REFLECTION.*

In moss-prankt dells which the sunbeams flatter (And heaven it knoweth what that may mean; Meaning, however, is no great matter)
Where woods are a-tremble, with rifts atween;

Through God's own heather we wonned together, I and my Willie (O love my love): I need hardly remark it was glorious weather, And flitterbats wavered alow, above:

Boats were curtseying, rising, bowing (Boats in that climate are so polite), And sands were a ribbon of green endowing, And O the sun-dazzle on bark and bight!

Through the rare red heather we danced together,
(O love my Willie!) and smelt for flowers:

I must mention again it was glorious weather,
Rhymes are so scarce in this world of ours:—

By rises that flushed with their purple favors,
Through becks that brattled o'er grasses sheen,
We walked or waded, we two young shavers,
Thanking our stars we were both so green.

We journeyed in parallels, I and Willie, In "fortunate parallels!" Butterflies, Hid in weltering shadows of daffodilly Or marjoram, kept making peacock's eyes:

Song-birds darted about, some inky
As coal, some snowy (I ween) as curds;
Or rosy as pinks, or as roses pinky—
They reck of no serie To-come, those birds!

But they akim over bents which the mill-stream washes.

Or hang in the lift 'neath a white cloud's hem; They need no parasols, no galoshes; And good Mrs. Trimmer she feedeth them.

* In imitation of Jean Ingelow.

Then we thrid God's cowslips (as erst his heather)
That endowed the wan grass with their golden blooms;

And snapt—(it was perfectly charming weather)— Our fingers at Fate and her goddess-glooms:

And Willie 'gun sing — (0, his notes were fluty; Wasts fluttered them out to the white-winged sea) —

Something made up of rhymes that have done much duty,

Rhymes (better to put it) of "ancientry:"

Bowers of flowers encountered showers
In William's carol (O love my Willie!)
When he bade sorrow borrow from blithe Tomorrow

I quite forget what - say a daffodilly :

A nest in a hollow, "with buds to follow,"

I think occurred next in his nimble strain;

And clay that was "kneaden" of course in Eden—

A rhyme most novel, I do maintain;

Mists, bones, the singer himself, love-stories,
And all least furlable things got "furled;"
Not with any design to conceal their glories,
But simply and solely to rhyme with "world."

O, if billows and pillows and hours and flowers,
And all the brave rhymes of an elder day,
Could be furled together this genial weather,
And carted, or carried on wafts away,
Nor ever again trotted out — ay me!
How much fewer volumes of verse there 'd be!
CHARLES S CALVERLEY.

THE ARAB.

On, on, my brown Arab, away, away!
Thou hast trotted o'er many a mile to-day,
And I trow right meagre hath been thy fare
Since they roused thee at dawn from thy strawpiled lair,

To tread with those echoless, unshod feet You weltering flats in the noontide heat, Where no palm-tree proffers a kindly shade, And the eye never rests on a cool grass blade; And lank is thy flank, and thy frequent cough, O, it goes to my heart — but away, friend, off!

And yet, ah! what sculptor who saw thee stand, As thou standest now, on thy native strand, With the wild wind ruffling thine uncombed hair, And thy nostril upturned to the odorous air, Would not woo thee to pause, till his skill might

At leisure the lines of that eager face;

The collarless neck and the coal-black paws
And the bit grasped tight in the massive jaws;
The delicate curve of the legs, that seem Too slight for their burden — and, O, the gleam
Of that eye, so sombre and yet so gay!
Still away, my lithe Arab, once more away!

Nay, tempt me not, Arab, again to stay;
Since I crave neither Echo nor Fun to-day.
For thy hand is not Echoless—there they are,
Fun, Glowworm, and Echo, and Evening Star,
And thou hintest withal that thou fain wouldst shine,

As I read them, these bulgy old boots of mine.

But I shrink from thee, Arab! Thou eatest
eel-pie,

Thou evermore hast at least one black eye;
There is brass on thy brow, and thy swarthy hues
Are due not to nature, but handling shoes;
And the bit in thy mouth, I regret to see,
Is a bit of tobacco-pipe — Flee, child, flee!

CHARLES 5 CALVERLEY

THE MODERN HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT.

BEHOLD the mansion reared by dædal Jack.

See the malt, stored in many a plethoric sack, In the proud cirque of Ivan's bivouac

Mark how the rat's felonious fangs invade The golden stores in John's pavilion laid.

Anon, with velvet foot and Tarquin strides, Subtle grimalkin to his quarry glides, — Grimalkin grim, that slew the fierce rodent Whose tooth insidious Johann's sackcloth rent.

Lo! now the deep-mouthed canine foe's assault, That vexed the avenger of the stolen malt; Stored in the hallowed precincts of the hall That rose complete at Jack's creative call.

Here stalks the impetuous cow, with crumpled horn.

Whereon the exacerbating hound was torn,
Who bayed the feline slaughter-beast, that slew
The rat predactious, whose keen fangs ran through
The textile fibres that involved the grain
That lay in Hans' inviolate domain.

Here walks forlorn the damsel crowned with rue, Lactiferous spoils from vaccine dugs who drew, Of that corniculate beast whose tortuous horn Tossed to the clouds, in fierce vindictive scorn, The harrowing hound, whose braggart bark and stir Arched the lithe spine and reared the indignant fur Of puss, that with verminicidal claw Struck the weird rat, in whose insatiate maw Lay reeking malt, that erst in Ivan's courts we saw.

Robed in senescent garb, that seemed, in sooth, Too long a prey to Chronos' iron tooth, Behold the man whose amorous lips incline, Full with young Eros' osculative sign, To the lorn maiden, whose lac-albic hands Drew albu-lactic wealth from lacteal glands Of the immortal bovine, by whose horn, Distort, to realm ethereal was borne The beast catulean, vexer of that sly Ulysses quadrupedal who made die The old mordacious rat, that dared devour Autecedaneous ale in John's domestic bower.

Lo' here, with hirsute honors doffed, succinct
Of saponaceous locks, the priest who linked
In Hymen's golden bands the torn unthrift,
Whose means exiguous stared from many a rift,
Even as he kissed the virgin all forlorn,
Who milked the cow with implicated horn,
Who in fine wrath the canine torturer skied,
That dared to vex the insidious muricide,
Who let auroral effluence through the pelt
Of the sly rat that robbed the palace Jack had built.

The loud cantankerous Shanghai comes at last,
Whose shouts aroused the shorn ecclesiast,
Who sealed the vows of Hymen's sacrament
To him who, robed in garments indigent,
Exosculates the damsel lachrymose,
The emulgator of that horned brute morose
That tossed the dog that worried the cat that kill
The rat that ate the malt that lay in the house that Jack built.

ANONYMOUS.

JONES AT THE BARBER'S SHOP.

Scene, a Barber's Shop. Barber's man engaged in cutting hair, making wigs, and other barberesque operations.

Enter JONES, meeting OILY the barber.

Jones. I wish my hair cut.

OILY. Pray, sir, take a seat.

(OILY puts a chair for JONES, who sits. During the following dialogue OILY continues cutting JONES'S hair.)

OILY. We've had much wet, sir.

JONES. Very much indeed.

OILY. And yet November's days were fine. JONES. They were.

OILY. I hoped fair weather might have lasted us Until the end.

At one time — so did I. JONES. OILY. But we have had it very wet.

We have. JONES.

(A pause of some ten minutes.)

OILY. I know not, sir, who cut your hair last time:

But this I say, sir, it was badly cut : No doubt 't was in the country.

No! in town! OILY. Indeed! I should have fancied otherwise.

JONES. 'Twas cut in town and in this very room.

OILY. Amazement! - but I now remember well -

We had an awkward, new provincial hand, A fellow from the country. Sir, he did More damage to my business in a week Than all my skill can in a year repair. He must have cut your hair.

JONES (looking at him). No, 't was yourself. OILY. Myself! Impossible! You must mis-

JONES. I don't mistake - 't was you that cut my hair.

(A long pause, interrupted only by the clipping of the scissors.)

OILY. Your hair is very dry, sir.

Oh! indeed.

OILY. Our Vegetable Extract moistens it. Jones. I like it dry.

OILY. But, sir, the hair when dry

Turns quickly gray.

Jones. That color I prefer. OILY. But hair, when gray, will rapidly fall

And baldness will ensue.

JONES. I would be bald. OILY. Perhaps you mean to say you'd like a wig. --

We've wigs so natural they can't be told From real hair.

JONES. Deception I detest.

(Another pause ensues, during which OILY blows down JONES's neck, and relieves him from the linen wrapper in which he has been enveloped during the process of hair-cutting.)

OILY. We've brushes, soaps, and scent of every kind.

JONES. I see you have. (Pays 6 d.) I think you'll find that right.

OILY. If there is nothing I can show you, sir. JONES. No; nothing. Yet - there may be something, too,

That you may show me.

OILY. Name it, sir.

JONES. The door.

OILY (to his man). That's a rum customer at any rate.

Had I cut him as short as he cut me, How little hair upon his head would be ! But if kind friends will all our pains requite, We'll hope for better luck another night.

Shop bell rings, and curtain falls PUNCH.

TO THE TERRESTRIAL GLOBE.

BY A MISERABLE WRETCH.

ROLL on, thou ball, roll on ! Through pathless realms of space Roll on!

What though I'm in a sorry case? What though I cannot meet my bills ! What though I suffer toothache's ills? What though I swallow countless pills?

> Never you mind! Roll on !

Roll on, thou ball, roll on ! Through seas of inky air Roll on !

It 's true I 've got no shirts to wear, It 's true my butcher's bill is due, It's true my prospects all look blue, ---But don't let that unsettle you!

> Never you mind ! Roll on !

> > It rolls on WILLIAM SCHWENCK GILBERT

MY LOVE. *

I only knew she came and went Powell. Like troutlets in a pool; Hood. She was a phantom of delight, Wordsworth. And I was like a fool. Eastman.

One kiss, dear maid, I said, and sighed, Coleridge. Out of those lips unshorn: Longfellow. She shook her ringlets round her head, Stoddard. And laughed in merry scorn. Tennyson.

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky, Tennyson. You heard them, O my heart; Alice Cary. 'Tis twelve at night by the castle clock, Coleridge. Beloved, we must part. Alice Cary

^{*} A specimen o what are called "Cento Verses:" patchwork.

"Come back, come back!" she cried in grief,

Campbell.

"My eyes are dim with tears, —Bayard Taylor. How shall I live through all the days? Osgood. All through a hundred years?" T. S. Perry.

'T was in the prime of summer time
She blessed me with her hand;
We strayed together, deeply blest,
Into the dreaming land.

Hood.

Hood.

Edwards.

Cornwall.

The laughing bridal roses blow, Patmore.

To dress her dark-brown hair; Bayard Taylor.

My heart is breaking with my woe, Tennyson.

Most beautiful ' most rare ' Read.

I clasped it on her sweet, cold hand, Browning.

The precious golden link ' Smith.

I calmed her fears, and she was calm, Coleridge.

"Drink, pretty creature, drink." Wordsworth.

And so I won my Genevieve, And walked in Paradise, The fairest thing that ever grew Atween me and the skies Coleridge. Hervey. Wordsworth. Osgood.

RECIPES

ROASTED SUCKING-PIG

AIR - Soots who had the Cooks who 'd roast a sucking-pig.

Purchase one not over big.
Coarse ones are not worth a fig.
So a young one buy
See that he is scalded well
(That is done by those who sell),
Therefore on that point to dwell
Were absurdity.

Sage and bread, mix just enough,
Salt and pepper quantum suff.,
And the pig's interior stuff,
With the whole combined.
To a fire that 's rather high,
Lay it till completely dry;
Then to every part apply
Cloth, with butter lined.

Dredge with flour o'er and o'er,
Till the pig will hold no more.
Then do nothing else before
'T is for serving fit.
Then scrape off the flour with care,
Then a buttered cloth prepare;
Rub it well; then cut—not tear—
Off the head of it.

Then take out and mix the brains
With the gravy it contains;
While it on the spit remains,
Cut the pig in two.
Chop the sage and chop the bread
Fine as very finest shred;
O'er it melted butter spread,
Stinginess won't do.

When it in the dish appears,
Garnish with the jaws and ears;
And when dinner-hour nears,
Ready let it be.
Who can offer such a dish
May dispense with fowl and fish;
And if he a guest should wish,
Let him send for me!

PUNCH'S Poetscal Sockery Book

A RECIPE FOR SALAD.

To make this condiment your poet begs
The pounded yellow of two hard-boiled eggs;
Two boiled potatoes, passed through kitches sieve.

Smoothness and softness to the salad give,
Let onion atoms lurk within the bowl,
And, half suspected, animate the whole,
Of mordant mustard add a single spoon,
Distrust the condiment that bites so soon;
But deem it not, thou man of herbs, a fault
To add a double quantity of salt;
Four times the spoon with oil from Lucca
crown.

And twice with vinegal, procured from town;
And lastly, o'er the flavored compound toss
A magic sampean of anchovy sauce.
O green and glorious 'O herbaceous treat!
'T would tempt the dying anchorite to eat;
Back to the world he'd turn his fleeting soul,
And plunge his fingers in the salad-bowl;
Serenely full, the epicure would say,
"Fate cannot harm me, — I have dined to-day."

Sydney SMITH

SIEGE OF BELGRADE.

An Austrian army, awfully arrayed,
Boldly by battery besieged Belgrade.
Cossack commanders cannonading come,
Dealing destruction's devastating doom.
Every endeavor engineers essay,
For fame, for fortune fighting, — furious fray!
Generals 'gainst generals grapple—gracious God!
How honors Heaven heroic hardihood!

Infuriate, indiscriminate in ill, Kindred kill kinsmen, kinsmen kindred kill. Labor low levels longest loftiest lines; Men march mid mounds, mid moles, mid murderous mines ;

Now noxious, noisy numbers nothing, naught Of outward obstacles, opposing ought; Poor patriots, partly purchased, partly pressed, Quite quaking, quickly "Quarter! Quarter!" quest.

Reason returns, religious right redounds,
Suwarrow stops such sanguinary sounds.
Truce to thee, Turkey! Triumph to thy train,
Unwise, unjust, unmerciful Ukraine!
Vanish, vain victory! vanish, victory vain!
Why wish we warfare! Wherefore welcome were

Xerxes, Ximenes, Xanthus, Xavier?
Yield, yield, ye youths! ye yeomen, yield your yell!

Zeus's, Zarpater's, Zoroaster's zeal, Attracting all, arms against acts appeal!

ANONYMOUS.

ANONYMOUS.

ECHO AND THE LOVER.

Lover. Echo! mysterious nymph, declare Of what you're made, and what you are. Echo. Air! Lover. Mid airy cliffs and places high, Sweet Echo! listening love, you lie. Echo. You lie! Lover. Thou dost resuscitate dead sounds, -Hark! how my voice revives, resounds! Zounds ! Echo. Lover. I'll question thee before I go, -Come, answer me more apropos ! Echo. Poh ' poh ' Lover. Tell me, fair nymph, if e'er you saw So sweet a girl as Phœbe Shaw. Echo. Pshaw! Lover. Say, what will turn that frisking coney Into the toils of matrimony? Echo. Money! Lover. Has Phosbe not a heavenly brow? Is not her bosom white as snow? Echo. Ass! No! Lover. Her eyes! was ever such a pair? Are the stars brighter than they are? Echo. They are! Lover. Echo, thou liest, but can't deceive me. Echo. Leave me Lover. But come, thou saucy, pert romancer, Who is as fair as Phœbe? Answer! Echo. Ann, sir.

ECHO.

I ASKED of Echo, t' other day,
(Whose words are few and often funny,)
What to a novice she could say
Of courtship, love, and matrimony.
Quoth Echo, plainly, — "Matter-o'-money!"

Whom should I marry?—should it be A dashing damsel, gay and pert, A pattern of inconstancy; Or selfish, mercenary flirt? Quoth Echo, sharply,—"Nary flirt!"

What if, aweary of the strife
That long has lured the dear deceiver,
She promise to amend her life,
And sin no more; can I believe her?
Quoth Echo, very promptly, — "Leave her!'.

But if some maiden with a heart
On me should venture to bestow it,
Pray, should I act the wiser part
To take the treasure or forego it?
Quoth Echo, with decision, — "Go it!"

But what if, seemingly afraid
To Lind her fate in Hymen's fetter,
She vow she means to die a maid,
In answer to my loving letter?
Quoth Echo, rather coolly, — "Let her!"

What if, in spite of her disdain,
I find my heart intwined about
With Cupid's dear delicious chain
So closely that I can't get out?
Quoth Echo, laughingly, — "Get out!"

But if some maid with beauty blest,

As pure and fair as Heaven can make her,
Will share my labor and my rest
Till envious Death shall overtake her?

Quoth Echo (sotto voce), — "Take her!"

JOHN GODFREY SAXE.

NOCTURNAL SKETCH.

BLANK VERSE IN RHYME.

EVEN is come; and from the dark Park, hark, The signal of the setting sun — one gun! And six is sounding from the chime, prime time To go and see the Drury-Lane Dane slain, — Or hear Othello's jealous doubt spout out, — On Macbeth raving at that shade-made blade, Denying to his frantic clutch much touch; Or else to see Ducrow with wide stride ride Four horses as no other man can span; Or in the small Olympic pit sit split Laughing at Liston, while you quiz his phiz.

Anon Night comes, and with her wings brings things

Such as, with his poetic tongue, Young sung; The gas upblazes with its bright white light, And paralytic watchmen prowl, howl, growl About the streets, and take up Pall-Mall Sal, Who, hasting to her nightly jobs, robs fobs.

Now thieves to enter for your cash, smash, crash, Past drowsy Charley, in a deep sleep, creep, But, frightened by Policeman B. 3, flee, And while they 're going, whisper low, "No go!"

Now puss, when folks are in their beds, treads leads.

And sleepers, waking, grumble, "Drat that cat!" Who in the gutter caterwauls, squalls, mauls Some feline foe, and screams in shrill ill-will.

Now Bulls of Bashan, of a prize size, rise In childish dreams, and with a roar gore poor Georgy, or Charley, or Billy, willy-nilly; -But Nursemaid in a nightmare rest, chest-pressed, Dreameth of one of her old flames, James Games, And that she hears - what faith is man's ! -Ann's banns

And his, from Reverend Mr. Rice, twice, thrice; White ribbons flourish, and a stout shout out, That upward goes, shows Rose knows those bows' woes !

THOMAS HOOD

ODE FOR A SOCIAL MEETING:

WITH SLIGHT ALTERATIONS BY A TEETOTALER

COME! fill a fresh bumper, - for why should we go logwood While the nector still reddens our cups as they flow?

Pour out the rich juices still bright with the sun,

Till o'er the brimmed crystal the rubies shall run. The purple globed clusters their life-dews have bled:

taste sugar of lead How sweet is the breath of the fragrance they shed! rank poisons mmes !!! For summer's last reses lie hid in the wines stable-boys smoking long-nines That were garnered by maidens who laughed through the vines. scowi scoff Then a smile, and a glass, and a teast, and a cheer, strychnine and whiskey, and ratsbane and beer For all the good wine, and we've some of it here!

In cellar, in pantry, in attic, in hall, Down, down with the tyrant that masters us all ! Long live the gay servant that laughs for us all OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

LINES WRITTEN IN AN ALBUM.

[A farmer's daughter, during the rage for albums, handed to the author an old account book ruled for pounds, shillings, and pence, and requested a contribution.]

This world 's a scene as dark as Styx, Where hope is scarce worth Our joys are borne so fleeting hence That they are dear at 18 And yet to stay here most are willing, Although they may not have

WILLIS GAYLORD.

METRICAL FEET.

TROCHEE trips from long to short: From long to long in solemn sort Slow Spondee stalks; strong foot! yet ill able Ever to come up with dactyl trisyllable. Iambics march from short to long: -With a leap and a bound the swift Anapæsts throng;

One syllable long, with one short at each side, Amphibrachys hastes with a stately stride; — First and last being long, middle short, Amphimacer

Strikes his thundering hoofs like a proud highbred racer.

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE

SNEEZING.

WHAT a moment, what a doubt ! All my nose is inside out, -All my thrilling, tickling caustic, Pyramid rhinocerostic, Wants to sneeze and cannot do it! How it yearns me, thrills me, stings me, How with rapturous torment wrings me!

Now says, "Sneeze, you fool, - get through it."

Shee — shee — oh! 't is most del-ishi — Ishi - ishi - most del-ishi!

(Hang it, I shall sneeze till spring!) Snuff is a delicious thing.

LEIGH HUNT.

TO MY NOSE.

Knows he that never took a pinch, Nosey, the pleasure thence which flows? Knows he the titillating joys Which my nose knows?

O nose, I am as proud of thee As any mountain of its snows; I gaze on thee, and feel that pride

A Roman knows!

ALFRED A. FORRESTER (Alfred Crompull).

BELAGCHOLLY DAYS.

CHILLY Dovebber with its boadigg blast

Dow cubs add strips the beddow add the lawd,

Eved October's suddy days are past—

Add Subber's gawd '

I kdow dot what it is to which I cligg
That stirs to sogg add sorrow, yet I trust
That still I sigg, but as the liddets sigg —
Because I bust.

Dear leaves that rustle sadly 'death by feet --By liggerigg feet — add fill by eyes with tears, Ye bake be sad, add, oh! it gars be greet That ye are sear! The sud.id sulled skies too early sigks;

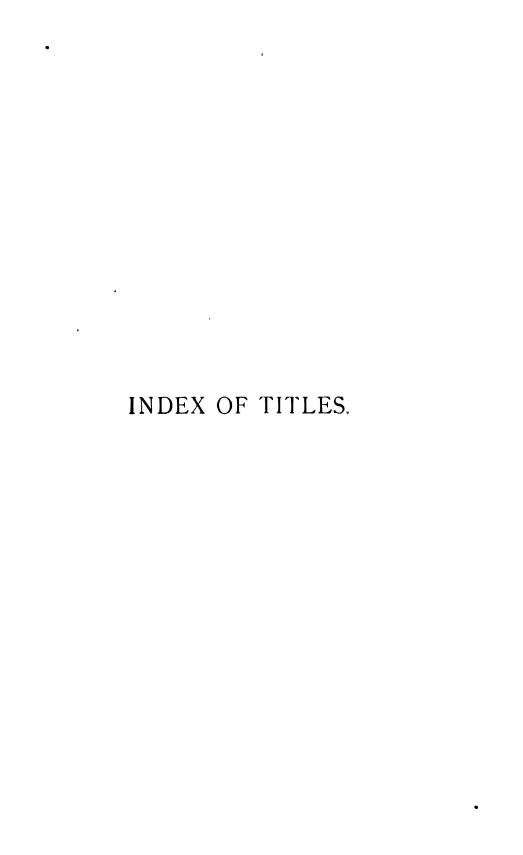

Do trees are greed but evergreeds add ferds;

Gawd are the orioles add boboligks —

Those Robert Burds!

Add dow, farewell to roses add to birds,
To larded fields and tigkligg streablets eke;
Farewell to all articulated words
I faid would speak.

Farewell, by cherished strolliggs od the sward,
Greed glades add forest shades, farewell to you;
With sorrowigg heart 1, wretched add forlord,
Bid you — achew!!!
ANONYMOUS.

INDEX OF TITLES.

"A Mighty Fortress is our God".. .M. Luther 378

Abou Ben AdhemL. Hunt	768	Amos Cottle	949
Abraham CowleyFragments	939	Angel of Patience, The	275
Abraham Lincoln J. R Lowe	930	Angel's Whisper, The S. Lover	81
Abraham Lincoln T. Taylor	931	Angler, The J. Chalkhill	668
Absence Anonymous	247	Angler, The	669
AbsenceF. A. Kemble	244	Angler's Trysting-Tree, The T. T. Stoddard	661
Absence Strengthens Love Fra, ments	248	Angler's Wish, The	668
Abuse of AuthorityFraguscuts	813	Angling Fragments	672
Adam and Eve	711	Angling J. Thomson	669
Adam Describing Eve Milton	200	Animate Nature Fragments	495
Adam to Eva Milton	216	Annabel Lee E. A. Poe	285
Adam's Morning Hymn in Paradise Milton	363	Anne Hathaway Anonymous	904
Addison	910	Annie Laurie	155
Address to the Mummy at Belzoni's Exhibition		Answer to a Child's Question . S. T. Coleridge	474
H. Smith	717	Anthology Fragments	726
Address to the Ocean B W. Procter	611	Antony and Cleopatra W. H. Lytle	296
Address to the Toothacl e R. Burns	952	Antony's Oration over the Jindy of Cæsar	•
"Adieu, Adieu, My Native Shore" . Byron	238	Shakespeare	875
Adventurous Daring Fragments	670	Apollo Belvidere, TheFragments	726
Advice Fragments	215	Approach of Age, The G. Crabbe	323
' Ae Fond Kiss Before We Part" R Burns	233	Approach of Age, The Shakespeare	753
"Afar in the Desert"	319	Après A. J Munby	776
After Death	311	Arab, The
After the Rain T B. Aldrich	430	Arab, to his Favorite Steed, The. C. E. S. Norton	664
Atterwards Fragments	900	Arab to the Palm, The B. Taylor	454
Afton Water R. Burns	447	Are the Children at Home ! M. E. M. Sangster	281
Age of Wisdom, The W. M. Thackeray	202	Argument Fragments	803
Ah, How Sweet J. Dryden	145	Aristocracy	812
"A-Hunting we will go" H Fielding	662	Art of Book-keeping, The T. Hood	989
" Alas! How Light a Cause May Move"		"Art Thou Weary?"St. Stephen	364
T. Moore	264	Arts of Love Fragments	204
"A Life on the Ocean Wave" E. Sargent	630	"As by the Shore at Break of Day" T. Moore	577
Aim of Life, The P. J. Bailey	742	As Slow Our Ship T. Moore	237
Airy Nothings Shakespeare	867	At the Church-Gate W. M. Thackeray	132
Alexander's Feast; or, the Power of Music		Atalanta's Race	164
J. Dryden	77 I	Atheism Fragments	395
Alfred the Harper J. Sterling	645	Athens Fragments	719
All 's Well	627	"A Thing of Beauty is a Joy Forever". J. Keats	675
Almond Blossom E. Arnold	457	Athulf and Ethilda H. Taylor	172
Alnwick CastleFG. Halleck	677	Auf Wiedersehen J. R. Lowell	170
Alonzo the Brave and the Fair Imogine		Auld Lang Syne	118
M. G. Lewis	86 r	Auld Robin GrayLady A. Barnard	249
Alpine HeightsKrummacher	445	Authors	805
"Amazing, Beauteous Change"P. Doddridge	377	Autumn	433
Ambition Fragments	798	Autumn, The	434
America Fragments	603	Aux Italiens	264
America	587	"A Violet in Her Hair"	126
America to Great Britain W. Allston	588	"A Wet Sheet and a Flowing Sea"
American Flag, The	592	A. Cunningham	64

В.	1	Birds J. Montgomery	470
Babie, The J. E. Rankin	79	Birth of St. Patrick, The
Baby Bell	79	Black and Blue Eyes T. Moore	131
Baby Louise	78	Black Regiment, The	-
Baby May	٠.١	Blackbird, The	595
Daby Classes C. Uin J.	76
Baby Sleeps S. Hinds	282	Black-Eyed Susan	235
Baby, The Fragments	107	"Blessed are they that Mourn"W. C. Bryant	743
Baby, TheGeo. Macdonald	78	Blessed Damozel, The	824
Baby, The	78	Blest as the Immortal Gods Sapphe	184
Baby Zulma's Christmas CarolA. J. Requier	81	Blighted Love	261
Baby's Shoes W. C. Bennett	82	Blind Boy, The C. Cibber	34 ;
Bachelor's Hall	1003	Blood Horse, The B. W. Procter	407
Bad News Fragments	346	"Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind". Shakespeare	310
Balaklava A. B. Meek	516	Blue and the Grey, The F. M. Finch	533
Ballad of Agincourt, The M. Drayton	502	Boadicea	572
Ballot-Box, The Fragments	603	Bobolink, The T. Hill	475
Banks o' Doon, The R. Burns	249	Books	7f 7
Bannockburn	573	Books	805
Banty Tim J. Hay	998	Books J. Higgins	768
Barbara Frietchie J. G. Whatteer	596	Boone, Daniel	920
Barclay of Ury		Boston Hymn R. W. Emer son
	536		55 7
Bard's Epitaph, A	917	Bower of Bliss, The E. Spenser	820
	99	Boyhood	87
Baron's Last Banquet, The A. G. Greene	293	Boyish Ambition Fragments	107
Bathing	669	Boys, The O. W. Holmes	978
Battle Fragments	725	Brahma	746
Battle of Blenheim, The R. Southey	538	Brahma's Answer	746
Battle of the Angels Milton	500	Brave at Home, The T. B. Read	563
Battle-Field, The W. C. Bryant	534	Brave Old Oak, The H. F. Chorley	454
Battle-Hymn of the Republic J. W. Howe	594	"Break, Break, Break" A Tennyson	315
Battle-Song of Gustavus Adolphus, The	٠,٠	"Breathes There the Man" Ser W. Scott	563
M. Altenburg	519	Bride, The E. Spenser	212
Bay of Biscay, The . A. Cherry	628	Bride, The Sir J. Suckling	211
Beal' an Dhuine . Sir W. Scott	510	Bridge of Sighs, The T Hood	335
Beautiful Snow J. W Watson	•	Briefness of JoysFragments	347
Beauty E Spencer	334	Briefs R. Crashaw	362
	730	Brier-Wood Pipe, The C. D. Shanly	-
Beauty Lord E Thurlow	730	Brookside, The	525
Bedouin Love-Song B. Taylor	186		140
Before Sedan A. Dobson	529	Brothers, The Goethe	761
Before the Rain T. B. Aldrich	427	Brown of Ossawatomie J. G. Whittier	5 9 9
Beggar, The	340	Bruce and the Spider	573
"Behave Yoursel' Before Folk" A. Rodger	157	Bugle, The	449
Belagcholly Days Anonymous	1016	Building a Home J. Armstrong	445
Belfry Pigeon, The N P. Willis	472	Burial of Moses C. F. Alexander	383
Belief and Doubt Fragments	397	Burial of Sir John Moore C. Wolfe	920
"Believe Me, if all those Endearing Young		"Buried To-day"	272
Charms''	174	Burns E. Elliott	914
Belinda A. Pope	128	Burns F. Halleck	915
Belle of the Ball, The W. M. Praed	971	Burns	914
Belis of Shandon, The T. Makony	715	By the Alma River D. M. M. Craik	516
Bells, The	714	By the Fireside Larcom	227
Ben Jonson Fragments		Byron	918
Ben Jonson's Commonplace Book.	939	Byron's Latest Verses Byron
L. Cary (Lord Falkland)
Benedicite		l c.
_
Benevolence		Caliph and Satan, The J. F. Clark
Beth Gelert		Ca' the Yowes to the Knowes	153
Bethrothed Anew E C. Stedman		i	685
Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping. H. Bonar			414
Bible, The Fragments			920
Bill and Joe O. W. Holmes			388
Bingen on the Rhine C. E. S Norton	521	Canadian Boat-Song, A	6 65
Birch Stream, The A B Averill	692	Canterbury Pilgrims, The G Chancer	80

Cape-Cottage at Sunset W. B. Glasier	412	Comfort	954
Captain Reece W. S. Gilbert	970	Comin' Thro' the Rye Adapted from Burns	187
Caractacus	571	Common Lot, The J. Montgomery	308
Careless Childhood Fragments	108	Completion Fragments	232
Carillon H. W. Longfellow	716	Compleyate of Chaucer to His Purse, Chaucer	904
Carmen Bellicosum G. H. McMaster	590	Compliment, The	126
Casabianca F Hemans	614	Compliments Fragments	133
Casa Wappy D. M. Morr		Compliments from Nature Fragments	134
Castle in the Air, The	279	Compliment to Queen Elizabeth .Shakespeare
	823		835
Castle of Indolence, The Thomson	831	Conception and Execution Fragments	867
Cataract of Lodore, The R Southey	449	Conditions of Life Fragments Connubial Life	722
Catiline to the Roman Army, G. Croly	501	Connubial Life y Thompson	214
Cause of the South, The 1. 7 Ryan	596	Conscience	395
Cavalry Song L. C. Stedman	518	Consolation in Adversity Fragments	347
Cave of Sleep, The E. Spenser	8∡8	Constancy A nonymous	713
Celestial Country, The B De Morlaix	351	Constancy Fragments	206
"Centennial" Echoes Fragments	604	Constancy Sir J. Suckling	124
Certainties Fragments	215	Content	731
Challenge and Defiance Fragments	540	Contentation C. Cotton	734
Chambered Nautilus, The O. W. Holmes	625	Contentment J. Sylvester	73I
Changed Cross, The Hon. Mrs. C. Hobart	374	Contentment O W Holmes	733
Character of a Happy Life, The. Ser II. Wotton	736	Contradiction	780
Character of the Earl of Shaftesbury J Dryden	908	Conversation Fragments	803
Charge of the Light Brigade A Tennyson	517	Cooking and Courting Anonymous	201
Charity Fragments	398	Coral Grove, The J G Percival	624
Charles XII Dr. S. Johnson	909	Coral Insect, The L. H Sigourney	623
Charlie Machree IV J. Hoppin		Coral Reef, The J Montgomery	624
Chaucer Fragments	153	Corn-Law Hymn E. Elliot	•
	938	-	557
Chess-Board, The R. Bulwer	160		283
Chevy Chase R. Sheale	635	Cosmic Egg, The Anonymous	991
Child's Prayer Fragments	107	Cotter's Saturday Night, The. R. Burns	385
Childhood	86	Cottle Amos	940
Childish Days Fragments	108	Countess Laura	886
Children, The	230	Country Life	489
Children's Hour, The H W. Longfellow	98	County Guy Sir W. Scott	194
Choice Friends Fragmeats	120	Courage and Fear	540
Choosing a Name Mary Lamb	76	Course of True Love, The	250
Christian Life, TheFragments	399	Court Lady, A	585
Christmas in the Olden Time Sir W. Scott	698	Courtin', The J. R. Lowell	993
Christopher Marlowe Fragments Chronicle, The A. Cowley	938	Cradle Hymn, A Isaac Watts	76
Chronicle, The A. Cowley	191	Cradle Song Anonymous	77
City Bells R. H. Barham	716	Cradle Song J G. Holland	75
Civil War	525	Craft Fragments
Cleon and I	732	Cricket, The	485
Cleopatra Shakespeare	712	Criminality of War Fragments	541
Clergy and the Pulpit, The Fragments	800	Criticism and SatireFragments	806
Closing Scene, The T B. Read	710	Cromwell, to the Lord GeneralMilton	900
Closing Year, The G. D. Prentice		Cuckoo Clock, The C Bowles (Mrs. Southey)	717
Cloud, The P B Shelley		Culprit Fay, The J. R. Drake	840
Cloud-Visions Fragment		Cupid and Campaspe J. Lyly	186
Cock and the Bull, The C. S. Calverley			195
Colseum by Moonlight. By on	680	Curfew Must Not Ring To-Night R H. Thorpe	195
	081	Carren brust frot King 10-fright A 11, 1207pt	100
Collegian to his Bride, The. Byron Collegian to his Bride, The. Punch		D
	992	·
Collusion Between a Alegaiter and a Water- Snaik		Daffodils	464
		Daffodils W. Wordsworth	463
Columbia	588	Dagger of the Mind, A Shake peare	882
"Come into the garden, Maud" A Tennyson	152	Daisy, The Chaucer	462
Come, Let Us Kiser and Parte M Drayton	239	Daisy, The	463
"Come, Rest in this Bosom" . T. Moore	185	Daisy, The J. Montgomery	463
"Come to Me, Dearest" J. Brennan	247	Dance Light	174
"Come to These Scenes of Peace". W. L. Bowles	403	Dancing of the Air, The Sir J. Davies	451
Comet, The	863	Dangers of Peace Fragments	539

Daniel BooneByron	926	Domestic Birds	470
Daniel Webster	928	Dorothy in the Garret J. T. Trowbridge	25I
"Darkness is Thinning"St. Gregory	360	Doubting Heart, A	318
Darwin	991	Douglas, Douglas, Tender and True
Dawn	409	D. M. M. Craik Dover Beach	289
"Day, in Melting Purple Dying"M. G. Brooks Day in the Pamfili Doria, A	245	Dover Cliff. Skakespeare	611
Day in the Familia Doria, A	682	Dow's Flat	445 996
Daybreak	411	Dream of Eugene Aram, The T. Hogg	895
Dead Czar Nicholas, The D. M. M. Craik	989	Dream, The	764
Dead Friend, The	113	Dreamer, The	330
DeathFragments	794	Dreams and Realities	113
Death and SleepFragments	310	Drifting	684
Death and the Youth L. E. Landon	270	"Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes"
Death-Conventional and Natural Fragments	310	B. Jonson. From Greek of Philostratus	125
Death of Leonidas, The G. Croly	564	Driving Home the Cows K. P. Oegood	531
Death of the Flowers, The	466	"Drop, Drop, Slow Tears"	360
Death of the Old Year, The	753	Drummer-Boy's Burial, The Anonymous	430 528
Death, the Leveller	259 301	Duelling W. Cowper	780
Death's Choice Fragments	309	Duke of Gloster, The Fragments	938
Death-Bed of Bomba, King of Naples Punch	922	Duke of Wellington, The Fragments	940
Death-BedsFragments	309	"Duncan Gray Cam' Here to Woo"R. Burns	196
Deborah Lee	1005	Duty E. S. Hooper	557
Defeat	540	DutyFragments	797
Deity Fragments	394	Dying Christian to His Soul, The A. Pope	365
Delight in Disorder	713	Dying Hymn, A	391
Delight in GodF. Quarles	360	Dying Saviour, The P. Gerhardt	373
Delights of Fancy M. Akenside	819	E.
Departure from Paradise, The	321	Each and All	405
Descent, The	478 446	Eagle, The	483
Descrited Village, The	686	Earl of Marlborough Fragments	939
Desire	359	Earl o' Quarterdeck, TheG. Macdonald Earl of Warwick, TheFragments	646
Despair Fragments	347	Early Death Fragments	638 107
DespairFragments	800	Early Death	300
Destruction of Sennacherib, TheByron	501	Early Friendship A. DeVere	111
Devil at Home, The	951	Early Primrose, The H. K. White	461
Devil, The	396	Earnest Suit, An Sir T. Wyatt	240
Devil's Walk, The	949	Ecclesiasticism Fragments	396
"Die Down O Dismal Day"D. Gray	926	Echo
"Dies Irse"	419	Echo and Silence	865
"Dies Iræ" J. A. Dix. Tr. from Latin	353 353	Eden	-
Different Minds R. C. Trench	388	Edmund SpenserFragments	719 938
Differing TastesFragments	814	Edwin and Paulinus	389
Dinna Ask Me J. Dunlop	161	Effects of Crime and GriefFragments	899
Dirge of Alaric the Visigoth E. Everett	903	Eggs and the Horses, The Anonymous	955
Dirge for a Soldier	5 31	Elegy on Captain Matthew Henderson. R. Burns	917
Dirty Old Man, The	253	Elegy on Madam Blaize O. Goldsmith	949
Disappointed Heart, The Fragments	345	Elegy on the Death of a Mad Dog. O. Goldsmith	948
Disappointed Lover, TheA. G. Swinburne	271 611	Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard. T. Gray Elements of Success	305
DisappointmentFragments		Emmet's Epitaph	802
Disappointment	261	End of the Play, The	921 344
Disaster	990	EnglandFragments	602
Discriminating LoveFragments	205	England Fragments	638
Disdain Returned	141	England W. Cowper	575
Distance Fragments	725	English Robin, The	475
Diverting History of John Gilpin, The		Enid's Song	777
W. Comper Divina Commedia	959	Epigrams	954
Dolcino to Margaret	707	Epitaph	953
to real-motion in the Atapatey	214	Epitaph on Elizabeth L. H B. Jonson	907

Epitaph on the Countess of Pembroke. B. Jonson	907	Fear of Death	310
Eve of St. Agnes, The J. Keats	176	Female Convict, The	330
Evelyn Hope	284	Fetching Water from the Well Anonymous	169
Evening Byron	413	Fiftieth Birthday of Agassiz, The	-
Evening Fragments	490	H. W. Longfellow	935
Evening Cloud, The	692	Fight of Faith, The A. Askewe	366
Evening in Paradise	413	Filial Love Byren	322
Evening Star, The T. Campbell	412	Fine Old English Gentleman, The Anonymous	959
Evening Wind, The	411	Fire of Love, The C. Sackville, Earl of Dorset	203
Eve's Lament	321	Fireside, The N. Cotton	926
Eve to Adam Milton	321	First Kiss, The	185
Evil Times Fragments	601	First Love Byron	16 f
Example	739	First Snow-Fall, The	275
Excelsior	777	First Spring Flowers M. W Howland	289
Exchange, The	192	First Tragedy, The Fragments	899
Execution of Montrose, The W. E. Aytoun	877	Fisher, The Goethe	825
Exile of Erin T. Campbell	5 78	Fisher's Cottage, The H. Heine	69 t
Experience and a Moral, An F. S. Cossens	253	Fitz-Greene Halleck J. G. Whittier	937
F.		Fitz-James and Roderick DhuSir W. Scott	655
	.0.	Flattery Fragments	134
Fair Exchange no Robbery Fragments	489	Flattery Fragments	810
Fairies	868	Fleeting Good	396
Fairies' Lullaby, The Shakespeare	836	Flight into Egypt, The Francis Makony	382
Fairies' Song	835	Flodden Field Sir W. Scott	507
Fairest Thing in Mortal Eyes, The	835	Flood of Years, The W. C. Bryant	750
Charles, Duke of Orleans		Flotsam and Jetsam Anonymous	621
Fairy Child, The	300	Flower o' Dunblane, The R. Tannakill	148
Fairy Song	840	Flower, The	768
Faith F. A. K. Butler	846	Flower's Name, The	147
Faith and Hope	790	Flowers Fragments Flowers T. Hood	494
Faithful Angel, The Milton	231	Flowers Without Fruit	460
Faithful Friends	387	"Fly to the Desert, Fly With Me" . T. Moore	789
Faithful Lovers, The Anonymous	201	Folding the Flocks Beaumont and Fletcher	151
Faithless Nelly Gray	964	Folly and Wisdom, The Fragments	469
Faithless Sally Brown	963	Foolish Virgins, The A. Tennyson	798 754
Fall of Niagara, The J. G. C. Brainard	449	Footsteps of Angels	273
Fall of Terni, The	720	For a Copy of Theocritus	405
False Hope Fragments	271	For a' That and a' That R. Burns	341
FalsehoodFragments	797	For Annie E. A. Poe
Fame A. Pope	780	For Charlie's Sake, J. W. Palmer	277
Fame	781	Forelookings Fragments
Fame Fragments	811	Forest Hymn, A W. C. Bryant
Fancy in Nubibus S. T. Coleridge	822	Forethought of Murder Fragments
Fancy B. Jonson	819	"Forever with the Lord" . J. Montgomery	389
Fantasy J. Keats	819	Forget Thee? J Moultrie
Farewell Fragments	241	Forging of the Anchor, The S. Ferguson	554
Farewell, A C. Kingsley	97	Forgiveness and Resentment Fragments	798
"Farewell: But Whenever" T. Moore	240	Forsaken Merman, The M. Arnold
"Farewell! If Ever Fondest Prayer" Byron	238	Fortune F. Halleck	777
Farewell, Life T. Hood		Fortune Fragments
"Farewell, Thou Art Too Dear" Shakespeare	239	Fra Giacomo
Farewell to His Wife Byron	238
Farewell to the Fairies R. Corbet	847	Freedom Fragments
"Farewell to Thee, Araby's Daughter"		Freedom in Dress
T. Moore	294
Farewell to Tobacco, A C. Lamb	548
Fate		Friar of Orders Gray, The
Father Land and Mother Tongue S. Lover	778	Friend of Humanity and the Knife-Grinder, The
Fatima and Raduan W. C. Bryant	166	G. Canning
Fear and Doubt Fragments	600	_ =-
"Fear No More the Heat o' the Sun"		Friendship Pragments
Shakespeare	301	Friendship	IIS

Friendahlp and Love. Fragments State for the Dead. Annymous From the Farmer's Boy. R. Bloomfield Strom the Farmer's Boy. R. Combis Strom the Farme
Friend paradise Losts	FriendshipSkakespeare	112	GriefSkakespeare	294
From the Church Porch" G. Herbert 54 From the Recesser of a Lowly Spirit" 375 Hallo, My Fancy W. Cleiland 820 Frost, The
From the Cauch Porch" G. Herbert 364 From the Recesses of a Lowly Spirit" M. C. C. G. Fenner 692 From the Recesses of a Lowly Spirit" M. C. Brawing 375 Frost, The		321	Grongar Hill	443
From the Farmer's Boy R. Bloomfield 518 From the Recesses of a Lowly Spirit" A. Cowy 40 From the Recesses of a Lowly Spirit" A. Cowy 517 From the Recesses of a Lowly Spirit"	From "The Church Porch" G. Herbert	364
From the "Hymn to Light"		553
From the Recesses of a Lowly Spirit"
Frost, The			H.
Frost, The		375	Hallo, My Fancy W. Cleland	820
Future, The
Galileo Fragments 973 Galileo Fragments 96 Galileo Fragments 973 Galileo Fragments 973 Gambols of Children, The G. Darky 85 Gambols of Children, The G. Darky 85 Geniu of Death, The G. Croly 76 George Washington Anonymous 98 Girle Odd, The G. Herbert 77 Give Me Dead Fragments 88 Gifts of God, The G. Herbert 77 Give Me More Love or More Disdam' Give Me More Love or More Disdam' Give Me More Love or More Disdam' Give Me the Old K. H. Measenger 18 Give Me Three Grains of Corn, Mother' A. B. Edwards 28 Give Place, ye Lovers. Howard, Earl of Swerry 132 Glove and the Lions, The Colman, Ir 96 Gluggity Glug Colman, Ir 96 Gluggity Glug Colman, Ir 96 Gluggity Glug Anonymous 26 Go Where Glory Waits Thee' Thoore 237 Go to thy Res 1 H. Signamy 256 God Where Glory Waits Thee' Thoore 237 God Arce H. W. Langfellow 26 God's Judgment on a Wicked Bshop R Southy 876 God's Judgment on a Wicked Bshop R Southy 876 God's Judgment on a Wicked Bshop R Southy 876 God's Judgment on a Wicked Bshop R Southy 876 Good Sy. Anonymous 26 Good By. Anonymous 27 Good My Anonymous 27 Good My Minter Good Annuary A. Prayment 28 Good My Minter A. J. Langellow 27 Good My Minter A. J. Langellow 27 Good My Minter A. J. Callanan 27 Good Office Tish, The K. Emerson 27 Good My Minter and Recklessness Fragments 28 Good Night and Good Morning R. M. Milner 28 Good My Minter and Cricket, The Hence 29 Greateness A Pop 27 Greate		-	_	•
Hans Brettmann's Party	Future The Fragments
Galileo Pragments 98 Happiness A. Pope 750 7	a detailed, and the second	175	Hans Brestmann's Party C. C. Leland	000
Gambols of Children, The. G. Dardey 86 Gambols of the Dead Fragments 35 George Washington Anonymons 28 Girls of God, The. G. Herbert 778 Girls of God, The. G. Herbert 778 Girls Me More Love or More Dredam" 778 Girls Me More Love or More Dredam" 778 Girls Me More Love or More Dredam" 77 Careu 14 Hawthorne, Nathannel R. C. Trench 769 Girls Me More Love or More Dredam" 77 Careu 14 Hawthorne, Nathannel R. C. Trench 769 Girls Me the Old R. N. Newscares 18 Hart-Leap Well. N. Nordsworth 660 Hathaway, Ann. Anonymous 904 Hart-Leap Well. N. Nordsworth 660 Hathaway, Ann. Anonymous 904 Hathaway, Ann. Anonymous 905 God and the Lions, The Linds 64 Anonymous 905 God and Nature R. Norman 905 God and Nature Pragments 906 God and Nature Pragments 906 God and Nature Pragments 906 God Scare N. N. Norman 906 God Scare N. N. Norman 906 God Scare N. N. Norman 907 God Scare Norman 907 God Scare N. N. Norman 907 God Scare N.	G.
Gambols of Children, The	Calileo Pragments	0.28	Hanny Heart The T Debber	730
George Washington Ananymons of Chosts of the Dead Fragments of Chosts of C			Harry Lot The Framewate	220
George Washington Ananymons of Chosts of the Dead Fragments of Chosts of C	· ·	-	Hanny Man The W Comber	4.3
Ghost of God, The			Hardened (riminal The Fragments	733
Girle of God, The
Girkhood . Anonymous 711 Girk Me More Love or More Disdain? T Carew 144 Give Me the Old	_
Girle Me More Love or More Disdain" T Carew Me More Love or More Disdain" T Carew Me the Old R // Messenger 18 Give Me the Old R // Messenger 18 Give Me Three Grains of Corn, Mother" A. B. Edwards 38 Give Place, ye Lovers. Howard, Earl of Swrrey 123 Glove and the Lions, The L Hint 652 Giuggity Glug. G Colman. Jr 46 Giuggity Glug. G Colman. Jr 46 Go Feel what I Have Felt" Anonymons 546 Go to thy Rest I. H. Sigourney 237 Go And Nature Fragment 450 God Where Glory Waits Thee" T Moore 237 God and Nature C Wilea. 488 God's Acre H. W. Leng/ellen 754 God's Judgment on a Wicked Bishop R Southey 875 God's Judgment on a Wicked Bishop R Southey 875 Golden Grit, A. B B Procte 180 Godod Ale J Still 94 Good By. Anonymous 233 Good By. R. W Emerson 744 Good Counsel Fragments 175 Good Olden By. R. W Emerson 745 Good Olden By. R. W Emerson 746 Good Night and Good Morning. R M Milner 576 Good Night and Good Morning. R M Milner 577 Good Night and Good Morning. R M Milner 577 Grasshopper, The Anacreon 897 Greece Byron 581 Greece Byron 581 Greece Byron 581 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Cemetery. C. Kennedy 305 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 363 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Southey 365 Greenwood Shrift, The R. R. and C. Sou
Give Me the Old R // Messenger 16 Hauthorne, Nathannel Pragments 940 Give Me Three Grains of Corn, Mother" A. B. Edwards 34 Heart of the Sorverer, The Health, A Beart of the Sorverer, The Health, A Beaven 125 Glove and the Lions, The L Hint 662 Gluggity Glug. C Colman, Jr 946 Goog Roy Place, ye Lovers. Howard Earl of Surrey 123 Glove and the Lions, The L Hint 672 Gluggity Glug. C Colman, Jr 946 Goog Roy Have Felt' Anonymone 546 "Go, Lovely Rose" E Walter 125 Go to thy Rest I. H Signarney 252 God and Nature Fragments 247 God and Nature Fragments 248 God's Acre M. H' Long/ellow 305 God's Messen Servey 305 God's Acre M. H' Long/ellow 305 God's Messen Servey 305 God Messen
T. Carew 14	-	,
Give Me the Old		144	Hawthorne, Nathaniel Fragments	040
"Give Me Three Grains of Corn, Mother" A. B. Edwards Give Place, ye Lovers. Howard, Earl of Surrey Glove and the Lions, The L Hint Gluggity Glug. G Colman. Jr GG Core what I Have Felt" Anonymous GG Cot thy Rest I. H Sigourney GG A core Fragment God and Nature Fragment God's Acre H. W. Long/ellow God's Acre H. W. Long/ellow God's Judgment on a Wicked Bishop R Southey God's Judgment on a Wicked Bishop R Southey Golden Fish, The Golden Fish, The Goden Fish, The God By God Rest R. W. Emerson God By R. W. Emerson Good Counsel Fragments Togood Might and Good Morning. R M Milner Good Night and Good Morning. R M Milner Gorasshopper, The Anacrom Grasshopper, The Anacrom Syron Six Heart of the Bruce, The. Hearth-Cock, The Hearth-Cock, The Hearth-Cock, The Heaven J Togola Hearth-Cock, The Heaven J Togola Heaven J Heaven J Togola Heaven J Heave			Haunt of the Sorcerer, The Millon	820
A. B. Edwards Sare			Health, A L C Pinkney	120
Give Place, ye Lovers. Howard, Earl of Surrey Glove and the Lions, The L Hunt Gluggity Glug. G Colman, Jr "Go Feel what I Have Felt" Anonymous "Go, Lovely Rose". E Walter "Go, Lovely Rose". T Moore "Go Where Glory Waits Thee" T Moore God and Nature Fragments God Swerywhere in Nature C Wiles, God's Acre H. W. Long/ellow God's Judgment on a Wicked Bishop R Southey God's Judgment on a Wicked Bishop R Southey God's Judgment on a Wicked Bishop R Southey Godina. A Tennyson Goden Fish, The G Ar and to Goden Fish, The G Ar and to God By. Anonymous God By. R. W Emerson Good By. R. W Emerson Good By. R. W Emerson Good Counsel. Fragments Good Counsel. Fragments Good Counsel. Fragments Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments Good Night and Good Morning. R M Minec Grase-Vine Swing, The Anacreon Grave, The Fragments Grasshopper, The Anacreon Grave, The Fragments Grave Byron R Byron Sit More Grave H. H. Anacreon Heaven Pragments Heaven M. A. W. Priest Heaven M. A. Werner A. Heaven A. Refuge for the Wretched Fragments 348 Heaven M. A. Werner M. Heaven A. Refuge for the Wretched Heaven M. A. Werner M. Heaven A. Refuge for the Wretched Heaven M. A. Merson M. A. Contain M. A. Tennyson 1956 Heaven M. A. Werner M. Heaven A. Refuge for the Wretched Heaven M. A. Werner M. Heaven A. Refuge for the Riciuculous, The. O. W. Helmes 1957 Heaven M. A. Werner M. Heaven A. Refuge		228	Doom of the Renny The M. F. Autour	FO.4
Go, Lovely Rest			Heart-Rest H. Taylor	220
Go, Lovely Rest		_	Heath-Cock, The 7. Bailte	477
Go, Lovely Rest	Gluggity Glug. G. Colman. Ir	_	Heaven Fragments	300
Go, Lovely Rest	"Go Feel what I Have Felt" Ananymous		Heaven 7 Taylor	367
Got ot hy Rest	"Go. Lovely Rose" E. Waller		Heaven N. A. W. Priest	368
Go Where Glory Waits Thee"	•	_
God and Nature Fragments 489 Hebrew Wedding H. H. Milman 212			-	-
God Everywhere in Nature C H'.ll. 0.1 488 Height of the Ridiculous, The O W. Holmes 976 978 978 978 979 978 978 979 978 978 979 978 9
God's Acre
God's Judgment on a Wicked Bishop R Southey Sort M Scott Godiva	God's Acre .H. W Long fellow		Heine's Grave M. Arnold
Godiva		-	Uall r
Golden Fish, The	- -		Helvellyn Sir W Scott
Golden Fish, The (. Arnold 185 Golden Girl, A B lt Procter 132 Golden Girl, A B lt Procter 132 Good Ale J Still 046 Her Likeness D M. M. Craik 130 Good By Anonymous 233 Hernit, The J Battite 737 Good By R. W Emerson 744 Hernit, The J Battite 737 Good Great Man, The S. T Coleridge 739 Good Counsel Fragments 739 Good Life, Long Life B Jonson 729 Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments 748 Hero to Leander A. Tennyson 235 Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments 748 Hervé Riel R. Brewning 617 Good Night and Good Morning R M Milner 153 Good-Night and Good Morning R M Milner 154 Gougaune Barra J Callanan 757 History of a Life B W. Procter 758 Grape-Vine Swing, The W G Simms 756 Grape-Vine Swing, The W G Simms 757 Grape-Vine Swing, The R G Simms 758 Home Leonidas 259 Grasshopper and Cricket, The Anacreon 758 Home Leonidas 259 Grasshopper, The Anacreon 758 Home Leonidas 259 Green Swing Greec Byron 758 Greece Byron 758 Green Grow the Rashes, O" R. Burns 759 Home They Brought Her Warrior Dead" A Tennyson 259 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthay 363 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 259 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthay 363 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 250 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthay 363 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 250 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthay 363 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 250 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthay 363 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 250 Greenwood Shrift, The R. And C. Sonthay 363 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 250 Greenwood Shrift, The R. And C. Sonthay 365 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 250 Greenwood Shrift, The R. And C. Sonthay 365 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 250 Greenwood Shrift, The R. And C. Sonthay 365 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 250 Greenwoo			Hen, The . Claudius
Golden Girl, A
Good Ale		-	Her Letter B. Harte	100
Good By	- · · · ·		Her Likeness, D M. M. Crazk	110
Good By		•	Hermit, The
Good Counsel Fragments 121 Hero to Leander A. Tennyson 235 Good Great Man, The S. T. Coleridge 739 Hervé Riel R. Browning 617 Good Life, Long Life B Jonson 798 Hester C. Lamb 285 Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments 798 High and the Low, The Fragments 347 "Good Night and Good Morning R. M. Milnes 103 High-Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingclow 286 Gougane Barra J. Callanan 777 Hohenlinden T. Campbell 513 Gouty Merchant and the Stranger H. Smith 962 Holly-Tree, The R. Southey 455 Grape-Vine Swing, The W. G. Simms 456 Holly-Tree, The R. Southey 455 Grasshopper and Cricket, The J. Keats 485 Home O. Goldamith 220 Grave, The Fragments 310 Home Life Fragments 232 Greece Byron 581 Home Pleasures Fragments <	Good By R. W Emerson			,,,
Good Great Man, The S. T. Coleridge 739 Good Life, Long Life B Jonson 729 Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments 798 Good Night" Korner 558 Good Night and Good Morning R Milner 558 Good Night and Good Morning R Milner 558 Gougane Barra J J. Callanan 577 Gougane Barra J J. Callanan 577 Gouty Merchant and the Stranger, H. Smith 962 Grape-Vine Swing, The W G Simms 456 Grape-Vine Swing, The I Keats 485 Grape-Vine Swing, The I Keats 485 Grave, The Anacreon 484 Grave, The Fragments 310 Greece Byron 781 Greece Byron 781 Greece Byron 581 Greece Byron 581 Green Grow the Rashes, O" R. Burns 191 Green Grow the Rashes, O" R. Burns 191 Greenwood Cemetery C. Kennedy 383 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthay 383 Hervé Riel R. Browning 617 Hester C Lamb 285 High and the Low, The F. Hemans 285 High and the Low, The F. Browning 617 Lamb 192 High and the Low, The F. Browning 617 Lamb 192 High and the Low, The F. Browning 617 Lamb 192 High and the Low, The F. Hemans 285 High Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshirte. Ingelow 285 High and the Low, The F. Hemans 285 High and the Low, The F. Lamb				-
Good Life, Long Life B Jonson 729 Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments 798 Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments 798 Good Night and Good Morning. R M Milnes 103 Gouganne Barra J J. Callanan 177 Gouty Merchant and the Stranger. H. Smith 177 Grape-Vine Swing, The W G Simms 177 Grasshopper and Cricket, The J Keats 178 Grasshopper, The Anacreon 178 Grasshopper, The Pragments 178 Grave, The Fragments 178 Greece Byron 781 Greece Byron 781 Greece Byron 781 Green Grow the Rashes, O' R. Burns 191 Greenwood Cemetery C. Kennedy 305 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthay 383 Hester C Lamb 285 High and the Low, The Fragments 234 High and the Low, The Fragments 104 Hohe Life R Sw Procter 105 Home I Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingelow 285 Homel Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingelow 286 Hoteloon Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingelow 286 Homeloon Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingelow 286 Homeloon Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingelow 286 Homeloon Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingelow 286 Hoteloon Coast of Life B W Procter 741 Hoteloon Teacher Ingelow 286 Homeloon Coast of Life B W Procter 741 Hoteloon Teacher Ingelow 286 Homeloon Coast of Life B W Procter 741 Hoteloon Teacher Ingelow 286 Homeloon Coast of Life B W Procter 741 Hoteloon Teacher Ingelow 286 Hoteloon Teacher Ingelow 286 Hoteloon Coast of Life B W Procter 741 Hoteloon Teacher Ingelow 286 Hoteloon Coast of Life B W Procter 741 Hoteloon Coast of Life B W Procter 7	Good Great Man, The S. T Coleradge	739
"Good-Night" Korner 558 High-Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingelow 286 Good Night and Good Morning. R M Milnes 15 Callanan 577 History of a Life B W. Procter 741 Gougaune Barra J. Callanan 577 Hohenlinden T. Campbell 513 Gouty Merchant and the Stranger. H. Smith 456 Holly-Tree, The R. Southey 455 Grape-Vine Swing, The. W. G. Simms 456 Holly-Tree, The R. Herrick 359 Grasshopper and Cricket, The. J. Keats 485 Home O. Goldsmith 220 Grave, The Fragments 310 Home Leonidas 225 Greace Byron 581 Home Pleasures Fragments 232 Greece Byron 581 Home, Sweet Home 7. H. Payne 232 Green Grow the Rashes, O" R. Burns 191 A. Tennyson 292 Green Grow the Rashes, O" C. Kennedy 305 Home, Wounded S. Dobell 325 Greenwood Shrift, The. <td>Good Life, Long Life B Jonson</td> <td>729</td> <td>Hester C Lamb</td> <td></td>	Good Life, Long Life B Jonson	729	Hester C Lamb
"Good-Night" Korner 558 High-Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire. Ingelow 286 Good Night and Good Morning. R M Milnes 15 Callanan 577 History of a Life B W. Procter 741 Gougaune Barra J. Callanan 577 Hohenlinden T. Campbell 513 Gouty Merchant and the Stranger. H. Smith 456 Holly-Tree, The R. Southey 455 Grape-Vine Swing, The. W. G. Simms 456 Holly-Tree, The R. Herrick 359 Grasshopper and Cricket, The. J. Keats 485 Home O. Goldsmith 220 Grave, The Fragments 310 Home Leonidas 225 Greace Byron 581 Home Pleasures Fragments 232 Greece Byron 581 Home, Sweet Home 7. H. Payne 232 Green Grow the Rashes, O" R. Burns 191 A. Tennyson 292 Green Grow the Rashes, O" C. Kennedy 305 Home, Wounded S. Dobell 325 Greenwood Shrift, The. <td>Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments</td> <td>798</td> <td></td> <td></td>	Good Nature and Recklessness Fragments	798
Good Night and Good Morning. R. M. Milner 103 History of a Life B. W. Procter 741 Gougaune Barra J. Callanan 577 Hohenlinden T. Campbell 513 Gouty Merchant and the Stranger. H. Smith 962 Holly-Tree, The R. Southey 455 Grape-Vine Swing, The. W. G. Simms 485 Holly-Tree, The R. Herrick 359 Grasshopper and Cricket, The. J. Keats 485 Home O. Goldsmith 220 Grave, The Fragments 310 Home Leonidas 232 Greace, The Fragments 781 Home Pleasures Fragments 232 Greece Byron 581 Home, Sweet Home 9. H. Payse 282 Green Grow the Rashes, O" R. Burns 191 A. Tennyson 292 Greenwood Cemetery C. Kennedy 305 Home, Wounded S. Dobbil 325 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Southey 383 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 229	"Good-Night" Korner
Gougaune Barra		103
Grape-Vine Swing, The. W G Simms 456 Holly-Tree, The R Southey 455	Gougaune Barra J J. Callanan	577
Grape-Vine Swing, The. W G Simms 456 Holy Spirit, The. R. Herrick 359 Grasshopper and Cricket, The. / Keats 485 Home		962	Holly-Tree, The R Southey
Grasshopper and Cricket, The. / Keats 485 Home O. Goldamith 220 Grasshopper, The Anacreon 484 Home Leonidas 225 Grave, The Fragments 310 Home Life Fragments 232 Greatness A Pope 781 Home Pleasures Fragments 232 Greece Byron 581 Home, Sweet Home 9. H. Payne 285 "Green Grow the Rashes, O" R. Burns 191 A. Tensyson 292 Greenwood Cemetery C. Kennedy 305 Home, Wounded S. Dobell 325 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthey 383 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 220		456	Holy Spirit, The R. Herrick
Grasshopper, The. Anacreon 484 Home Leonidas 225 Grave, The Fragments 310 Home Life. Fragments 232 Greatness. A Pope 781 Home Pleasures Fragments 232 Greece. Byron 581 Home, Sweet Home. 9. H. Payne 232 "Green Grow the Rashes, O" R. Burns 191 A. Tennyson 292 Greenwood Cemetery. C. Kennedy 305 Home, Wounded S. Dobell 325 Greenwood Shrift, The. R. and C. Sonthey 383 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 229		485	Home O. Golds mith
Greatness A Pope 781 Home Pleasures Fragments 232 232 Greece Byron 581 Home, Sweet Home 9. H. Payne 2325 232 Greece Byron 581 "Home They Brought Her Warrior Dead" A. Tennyson 292 292 Green Grow the Rashes, O". R. Burns 191 A. Tennyson 292 305 Home, Wounded S. Dobell 325 Greenwood Chrift, The. R. and C. Sonthey 383 Homes of England, The. F. Hemans 220		484	Home Leonidas	225
Greece Byron 581 Home Pleasures Fragments 232 Greece Byron 581 Home, Sweet Home 9. H. Payne 225 Greece Byron 581 "Home They Brought Her Warrior Dead" A. Tennyson 292 Greenwood Cemetery C. Kennedy 305 Home, Wounded S. Dobell 325 Greenwood Shrift, The R. and C. Sonthey 383 Homes of England, The F. Hemans 220	_ ,	310	Home Life Fragments	232
Greece	_	781		-
Greece		581	Home, Sweet Home	-
Greenwood Cemetery	Greece Byron	581
Greenwood Shrift, TheR. and C. Southey 383 Homes of England, TheF. Heman: 229		191		292
5				325
Greenwood, The				229
	Greenwood, The W. L. Rowles	454	Homesick	222

,
Honesty Fragments	797	In Prison	731
Hood, to the Memory of Thomas A nonymous	923	In State F. Willson	523
Hope Fragments		In the Mist S. Woolsey	823
Hope		Incheape Rock, The	620
Hope Deferred Fragments		Incident of the French Camp R. Browning	513
Hope in Misery Fragments		Inconstancy
Hopefully Waiting A. D F. Randolph		Inconstancy and Jealousy Fragments	207
Horatius at the Bridge T. B. Macaulay		Inconstancy of Man Fragments	271
Horrors of War Fragments		Inconstancy of Woman Fragments	271
Horseback Ride, The S. J Lippincott		Indian Summer	434
Horsemanship Fragments		Indian Summer Fragments	710
Hospitality Fragments		Inner Vision, The W. Wordsworth	767
Hotspur's Description of a Fop Shakespeare		Inscription on Melrose Abbey	30%
Household Sovereign, TheH. W. Longfellow
Housekeeper, The C. Lamb		Insignificant Existence I. Watts Intoxicating Cup, The Fragments	558
How's My Boy? S. Dobell		Invocation	772
How Sleep the Brave W. Collins		Invocation to Light	407
How They Brought the Good News from Ghent	3°3	Invocation to Rain in Summer . W. C. Bennett	428
to Aix R. Browning		Invocation to Sleep	761
Hudibra's Sword and DaggerDr. S. Butler		Iphigeneia and Agamemnon	•
Hugo, To Victor		Ireland D F. MacCarthy	873
Humanity	926	Island	579
	782	"It Kindles all My Soul" .Casimir of Poland
Humanity's Heroes Fragments	602	It Never Comes Again R. H Stoddard
Hunting Fragments
Hurricane, The W. C. Bryant		Italian Ravine, An	720
Husband and Wife's Grave, The R. H. Dana	٠.	Italy
Hussy, To Mistress MargaretJ. Skelton		Ivy Green, The C. Dickens	400
Hymn J. Thomson	417	J.
Hymn R. W. Emerson	• •	-
Hymn S. T Coleridge		Jack Horner A. D. T. Whitney
Hymn to Night G. IV. Bethune		Jackdaw of Rheims, TheR. H. Barham	965
Hymn to the Flowers H. Smith	459	Jaffar	115
Hymn to the Night H. W. Longfellow	416	Jaffier Parting with Belvidera T Otway
Hypocrisy Fragments	396	James Fitz-James and Ellen Sir W. Scott
t.		James Thomson Fragments
	_	Jeanie Morrison W. Motherwell
"I am a Friar of Orders Gray" J. O'Keefe	964	Jenny Kissed Me	98
"I Fear Thy Kisses, Gentle Maiden". Shelley	131	Jester, The	810
"I Knew by the Smoke that so Gracefully		Jester's Sermon, The G. II Thornoury	748
Curled" T Moore	22	Jesus Christ Fragments	397
I Love My Jean R Burns	242	Jewish Hymn in Babylon H H Milman	372
"I Prithee Send Me Back My Heart" Suckling		Jim B. Harte
"I Remember, I Remember" T. Hood	93	Jock Johnstone, the Tinkler	639
I Saw Thee R. Palmer	393	"John Anderson, My Jo" R. Burns	222
'I Saw Two Clouds at Morning" Brainard	137	John Barleycorn
"I Would I Were an Excellent Divine"	_	John Charles Frémont	,,,,
N Breton	362	Jonson, Ben Fragments
Ichabod J. G. Whittier	929	Jolly Old Pedagogue, The G. Arnold
Idle Love Fragments	204	Jones at the Barber's Shop
Idleness and Ennui Fragments	815	Jorasse S. Rogers
'If Doughty Deed My Lady Please"			937
	146	Judge Not	784
'If it be True that Any Beauteous Thing'		June J. R. Lowell
M. Angelo	135	June W. C. Bryant	425
If Thou Wert by My Side, My Love". R. Heber	219	v
'If Thou Wilt Ease Thine Heart"		K.
T. L. Beddoes	303	Kane F. O'Brien	_
Il Penseroso Milion	786		837
magination Fragments	867		940
mmortalityFragments	794	King is Cold, The	884
Impartial Affection Fragments	134	King John and the Abbot of Canterbury
in a Vear R. Browning	260	Anonymous	943
In Praise of AnglingSir H Wotton	667	King of Denmark's Ride, The C. E. S. Norton	393
···

		~
King of Day, TheFragments	719	Lincoln, Abraham	931
King of Thule, The Goethe	862	Linda to Hafed	251
King to His Soldiers Before Harfleur, The		Lines, Written by One in the Tower. C. Tychborn	745
Shakespeare	503	Lines, To the Memory of AnnieH. B. Stowe	273
King's Enemy, The	899	Lines, Found in his BibleSir W. Raleigh Lines on Isabella MarkhamJ. Harrington	745
Kiss, The	186 186	Lines to an Indian Air	268 188
Kissing Her Hair	188	Lines to the Stormy Petrel Anonymous	483
Kinsing's No Sin	187	Lines Written in an Album
Kitty of Coleraine	187	Lion's Ride, TheF. Freiligrath	467
Knight's Tomb, TheS. T. Coloridge	538	Litany	358
Kubla Khan	834	Little Beach Bird, The	483
-	-	Little Bell	88
L,		Little Billee	971
L'Allegro	785	Little Breeches	999
LaborFragmenis	559	Little Cloud, TheJ. H. Bryant	593
Labor Song	556	Little Feet	77
Laborer, The	557	Little Goldenhair	85
Lady Ann Bothwell's LamentAnonymous	269	Little Match-Girl, The H. C. Andersen	336
Lady Barbara	163	Little Milliner, The	181
Lady Lost in the Wood, The	267 829	Living Waters	739
Lady's Chamber, A	726	Lochiel's Warning T. Campbell	237
Lady's Yes, The	144	Lochinvar	573 175
Laird o' Cockpen, The		Locksley Hall	254
C. Oliphant, Baroness Nairne	200	Logic of Hudibras	945
Lambs at Play	469	London Churches	334
Lament, A	322	Longing for Death Fragments	311
Lament of the Border Widow Anonymous	638	Lord Bacon Fragments	938
Lament of the Irish Emigrant		"Lord Divine, All Love Excelling". A. Toplady	392
H. S. Sheridan, Lady Dufferin	292	Lord of Butrago, The J G. Lockhart	507
Lancashire Doxology, A D. M. M Craik	556	Lord Ullin's Daughter T. Campbell	339
Land o' the Leal, The		Lord Walter's Wife E. B. Browning	217
Carolina, Baroness Nairne	296	"Lord, When those Glorious Lights I See"	_
Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers in New Eng-	_	G. Wither	376
land, The	587	Lore-Lei, The	825
Landlady's Daughter, The		Loss of Property Fragments Losses F. Brown	347
J. S. Dwight. Tr. from German Lass of Richmond Hill, TheJ. Upton	142	Lost Chord, A	333 760
Last Leaf, The O. W. Holmes	149 323	Lost Heir, The	94
Late Spring, The	322	Lot of Man, The Fragments	308
Latter Rain, The	433	Lot of Mankind, The Fragments	345
Laus Deo	597	Love Shakespeare	125
Lawyers and the Law Fragments	809	Love Sir W. Scott	202
Lawyer's Invocation to Spring, The	-	Love S. T. Coleridge	162
H. H. Brownell	992	Love	208
Learning Fragments	804	Love Against Love D. A. Wasson	790
Left Behind E. A. Allen	250	Love and Time D. S. MacCarthy	150
Left on the Battle-Field S. T. Bolton	527	Love Dissembled	144
Leper, The	701	Love is a Sickness	•
"Let Not Woman e'er Complain"R. Burus Let the Toast PassR. B. Sheridan	194	Love-Knot, The	190
Letters	131 746	Love Lightens Labor Anonymous	195 220
Life A. L. Barbauld		"Love Me Little, Love Me Long". Anonymous	141
LifeFragments	792	Love Not	320
Life G. Herbert		"Love Not Me for Comely Grace". Anonymous	141
Life R. H. Wilde	743	Love of Country, TheFragments	бот
Life in the Autumn WoodsP. P. Cooke		Love of God Supreme, The	390
Life's Love, A Anonymous		Love of God, The E. Scudder	392
Light F. W. Bourdillon		Love of God, The	388
Light and the SkyFragments
		Love Scorns Degrees	136
Like a Laverock in the Lift	213	Love's Blindness	136 203

Love's Memory Shakespeare	243	Memory in Absence Fragments	248
Love's Pains Fragments	204	Memory of Joys, The Fragments	346
Love's Philosophy P. B. Shelley	188	Memory of Sorrows, TheFragments	346
Love's Silence	144	Memory of the Heart	112
Love's Young Dream T. Moore	262	Men and Boys	583
Loveliness of Love, The Anonymous	141	Men of Old, The	740
Lovely Mary Donnelly W. Allingham	108	Mercenary Matches Fragments	215
Lovers and a Reflection C. S Calverley		MercyFragments	798
Lovers, The P. Cary		Merry Lark, The	280
Low Countries, The Fragments	632	Merry Youth Fragments	108
Low-Backed Car	197	Metrical Feet
Lucius Junius Brutus over the Body of Lucre-	,	Might of One Fair Face, The M. Angelo	135
tia	875	Mignon's Song Goethe	798
Lucy W'. W'ordsworth	104	Milking-Maid, The C. G. Rossetti	132
Lullaby A Tennyson	8z	Milkmaid, The	957
•		Milkmaid's Song, The S. Dobell	168
M.		Milton, John Fragments	939
MacaulayW. S. Landor	922	Milton, To	907
Macbeth's Castle	720	Mind. The Fragments	807
Mahmoud L. Hunt	700	Mind's Eye, The Fragments	867
Mahogany-Tree, The W. M. Thackeray	117	Ministry of Angels, The E. Spenser	373
"Maid of Athens, Ere We Part" Byron	234	Minstrel's Song T. Chatterton	289
Maid's Lament, The W. S. Landor	260	Minute-Gun, The	627
Maid's Remonstrance, The T. Campbell	144	Misadventure at Margate R. H. Barham	966
Maiden With a Milking-Pail, A J. Ingelow	167	Mist	691
Maiden's Ideal of a Husband, A .H Carey	142	Mistletoe Bough, The T. H. Bayly	891
Maidenhood H. W. Longfellow	104	Mitherless Bairn, The	91
Maize, The	458	"Moan, Moan, ye Dying Gales"	315
Make Believe A Cary	188	Mocking Bird, The	470
"Make Way for Liberty" J Montgomery	584	Moderation Fragments	815
Man Dr E l'oung	776	Modern House that Jack Built, The. Anonymous	1011
Man Was Made to Mourn R. Burns	332	Montague, To the Hon. Charles M. Price	730
Man-Woman Fragments	795	Monterey	523
Man-Woman L. H. Sigourney	776	MoodsFragments	725
Man's Mortality	302	Moon, The Fragments	491
Maniac, The M G Lewis	339	Moonlight in Summer	432
Manhood Fragments	793	Moonlight on the Prairie H. W. Longfellow	432
MankindFragments	792	Moore, To Thomas	920
Manners and Customs Fragments	814	Moral Cosmetics	545
March	418	MorningFragments	490
Marco Bozzaris F. Halleck	582	Morning	409
Mariner's Dream, The W. Diamond		Morning	408
Marmion and Douglas Sir W. Scott	648	Morning-Glory, The	280
Marriage S. Rogers	212	Morning in May	418 963
Married State, The Fragments	231	Morning Song	408
Marseillaise, The	584	Mort d'Arthur	642
Martyr's Hymn, The	114	Moss Rose, The	464
Mary Morison	365	Mother and Child	8:
Master's Touch, The H Bonar	149 388	Mother and PoetE. B. Browning	283
Match, A	148	Mother's Heart, The	83
Maud Muller J. G. Whittier	158	Mother's Hope, TheL. Blanchard	84
May	-	Mother's Sacrifice, The	86
May Morning	422	Motherhood	990
May Queen, The	327	Mother-Love Fragments	232
Mazzini L. C Redden		Mowers, The	552
Means to Attain Happy Life, TheH. Howard		Mountains, TheFragments	493
Meeting		Mourning Fragments	311
Meeting of the Ships, The F. Hemans		Mr. Molony's Account of the Ball Thackeray	1009
Meeting, The J. G. Whittner		MuratByron	913
Medicine and Doctors	809	Murder, TheSkakespeare	88:
Melrose Abbey		MusicFragments	726
MemoryFragments		Music	908

Music Shakespeare	775	Noble Living Fragments 799
Musscal Duet, The J. Ford	694	Nobleman and the Pensioner, The Pfeffel 521
Musical Instrument, A E. B. Browning	865	Nocturnal Sketch T. Hood 1014
Mutual Love Fragments	205	Noontide J. Leyden 410
My Ain Fireside E. Hamilton	227	Norham Castle Sir W. Scott 676
My Autumn Walk W. C. Bryant	535	Northern Lights, The
My Brigantine	626	Norval
My Child J. Pierpont	278	Nose and the Eyes, The
My Choice	140	Not on the Battle-Field
My Country	563	Not One to Spare
"My Dear and Only Love, I Pray". J. Graham		Not Ours the Vows
	150
"My Eyes, How I Love You" J G. Saxe	195	1
"My God, I Love Thee"St. Francis Xavier	360
"My Heart's in the Highlands" R. Burns	659	Now and AfterwardsD, M. M. Craik 295
"My Heart Leaps Up" W. Wordsworth	432	Nuremberg
"My Heid is Like to Rend, Willie" Motherwell	269	Nursery Rhymes
My Legacy	770	Nymph of the Severn, The Millon 830
My Little Saint	131	Nymph's Reply, TheSir W. Raleigh 158
My Love	1012	Ο,
"My Minde to Me a Kingdom is" Sir E. Dyer	729	"O Breathe Not His Name" T. Moore 921
My Mother's Bible G. P. Morris	100	"O, Do Not Wanton With Those Eyes"
My Mother's Picture W. Cowper	92	B. Jonson 184
My Native Land J. B. O'Reilley	579	"O, Fairest of the Rural-Maids" W. C. Bryant 130
My Old Kentucky HomeS. C. Foster	238	"O, How the Thought of God Attracts"
My Ship E A. Allen	318	n 112 n t
My Sweet Sweeting Anonymous	123	10 t m 11 t 12 D 11 C 14
My True-Love Hath My Heart Sir P Sidney	-
My Wife and Child H R Jackson	137 522	"O, May I Join the Choir Invisible"
"My Wife's a Winsome Wee Thing" R. Burns		M E. L. Cross 760
My wite sa withoute wee I thing A. Darar	216	O, Mistress Mine"
N,		"O, My Luve's Like a Red, Red Rose"
		R. Burns 234
Nantucket Skipper, The J. T. Fields	988	"O, Nanny, Wilt Thou Gang Wi' Me?"
Naples S. Rogers	683	B. T. Percy 156
Napoleon	911	"O, Saw Ye Bonnie Lesley?" R Burns 242
Napoleon and the British Sailor T. Campbell	616	"O, Saw Ye the Lass?"R. Ryan 149
Narcissa	106	"O, Snatched Away in Beauty's Bloom," Byron 288
Naseby	576	"O, Swallow, Swallow, Flying South"
Nathaniel Hawthorne Fragments	940	A. Tennyson 171
Nature J Very	403	"O, the Pleasant Days of Old" F. Brown 699
Nature's Chain A Pope	405	"O, Winter Wilt Thou Never Go?" D. Gray 441
Nearer Home P. Cary	375	"O, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud?"
"Nearer, My God, to Thee" S. F. Adams	373	W. Knox 302
Nevermore, D. G. Rossetti	744	"O, Yet We Trust that Somehow Good"
New Church Organ, The W. M. Carleton	995	A Tennyson 392
New England in Winter. J. G. Whittier	436	O'Lincoln Family, TheW. Flagg 47
New Jerusalem, The D. Dickson	- 1
	२,इ8 ।	Ucean
The state of the s	358 752	Ocean The C. Turner 621
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson	752	Ocean, The
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman	752 692	Ocean, The
New Year's Eve	752 692 415	Ocean, The
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Fragments	752 692 415 491	Ocean, The
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White	752 692 415 491 415	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 50° Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode W Wordsworth 757
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night Y. Montgomery	752 692 415 491 415 416	Ocean, The
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night J. Monigomery Night P. B. Shelley	752 692 415 491 415 416 415	Ocean, The
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night J. Monigomery Night P. B. Shelley Night and Sleep Fragments	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The. 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 55 Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode W Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn. 9. Keats 718 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night J. Mentgomery Night P. B. Shelley Night and Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding A. Smith	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The. 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 55 Ode 9. Addsworth 757 Ode W Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn. 7. Keats 718 Ode to a Nightingale 7. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrick 907
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night J. Montgomery Night P. B. Shelley Night and Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding A. Smith Nightfall: A Picture A. B. Street	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210 412	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The. 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 50. Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode W Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn. 9. Keats 718 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrick 907 Ode to Peace W. Tennant 534
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night P. B. Shelley Night and Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding A. Smith Nightfall: A Picture A. B. Street Nightingale The Gil Vicente	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210 412 479	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 50. Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode W Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn 9. Keats 718 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrick 907 Ode to Peace W. Tennant 534 Ode to Solitude A. Pope 225
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night P. B. Shelley Night and Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding A. Smith Nightfall: A Picture A. B. Street Nightingale, The Gil Vicente Nightingale, The M. T. Visscher	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210 412 479 4"7	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 50.0 Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode W Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn 9. Keats 316 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrick 907 Ode to Peace W. Tennant 534 Ode to Solitude A. Pope 225 Ode to Tobacco C. S. Calverley 990
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tuckerman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night P. B. Shelley Night P. B. Shelley Night and Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding A. Smith Nightfall: A Picture Nightingale The Nightingale M T. Visscher Nightingale and Glow-Worm The W. Cowper	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210 412 479	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The. 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 55. Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode Wordeworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn 9. Keats 718 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrick 907 Ode to Peace W. Tennant 504 Ode to Solitude A. Pope 225 Ode to Tobacco C. S. Calverley 990 Of a Certaine Man Sir J. Harrington 945
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tucherman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night P. B. Shelley Night P. B. Shelley Night And Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding A. Smith Nightfall: A Picture A. B. Street Nightingale, The Gil Vicente Nightingale, The M T. Visscher Nightingale and Glow-Worm, The W. Comper Nightingale's Song, The R Crashaw	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210 412 479 4"7	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 50.0 Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode W Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn 9. Keats 316 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrick 907 Ode to Peace W. Tennant 534 Ode to Solitude A. Pope 225 Ode to Tobacco C. S. Calverley 990
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tucherman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night P. B. Shelley Night P. B. Shelley Night And Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding. A. Smith Nightfall: A Picture A. B. Street Nightingale, The Gil Vicente Nightingale, The M T. Visscher Nightingale and Glow-Worm, The W. Comper Nightingale's Song, The R Crashaw No! T. Hood	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210 412 479 471 863	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The. 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 50. Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn 9. Keats 718 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrich 907 Ode to Peace W. Tennant 534 Ode to Solitude A. Pope 205 Ode to Tobacco C. S. Calverley 900 Of a Certaine Man Sir 9. Harrington 945 Of Cruelty to Animals M. F. Tupper 782 Of Myself A. Couley 730
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tucherman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night P. B. Shelley Night P. B. Shelley Night And Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding A. Smith Nightfall: A Picture A. B. Street Nightingale, The Gil Vicente Nightingale, The M T. Visscher Nightingale and Glow-Worm, The W. Comper Nightingale's Song, The R Crashaw	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210 412 479 471 863 774	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The. 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 50. Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn 9. Keats 718 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrick 907 Ode to Peace W. Tennant 534 Ode to Solitude A. Pope 225 Ode to Tobacco C. S. Calverley 900 Of a Certaine Man Sir Y. Harrington 945 Of Myself A. Coviley 730 Of the Warres in Ireland Sir Y. Harrington 503
New Year's Eve A. Tennyson Newport Beach H. T. Tucherman Night Byron Night Fragments Night J. B. White Night P. B. Shelley Night P. B. Shelley Night And Sleep Fragments Night Before the Wedding. A. Smith Nightfall: A Picture A. B. Street Nightingale, The Gil Vicente Nightingale, The M T. Visscher Nightingale and Glow-Worm, The W. Comper Nightingale's Song, The R Crashaw No! T. Hood	752 692 415 491 415 416 415 816 210 412 479 471 863 774 435	Ocean, The C. Turner 631 Ocean, The. 9. Montgomery 608 Ode H. Timrod 50. Ode 9. Addison 376 Ode Wordsworth 757 Ode for a Social Meeting, etc. O. W. Holmes 1015 Ode on a Grecian Urn 9. Keats 718 Ode to a Nightingale 9. Keats 316 Ode to Ben Jonson R. Herrich 907 Ode to Peace W. Tennant 534 Ode to Solitude A. Pope 205 Ode to Tobacco C. S. Calverley 900 Of a Certaine Man Sir 9. Harrington 945 Of Cruelty to Animals M. F. Tupper 782 Of Myself A. Couley 730

011
Old Admin The R. G. St. town	323	Palm-Tree, The	455
Old Admiral, The	932	Pan in Love	488
Old Age and Death E. Waller	794	Pantheon, The Byren	735 682
Old Age of TemperanceShakespeare	755 546	Paper	975
Old Arm-Chair, The E. Cook	101	Parrhasius	973 881
Old Familiar Faces, The	274	Parted Friends	114
Old Grimes	976	Parting Lovers	236
"Old Ironsides"	620	Parting Lovers, The W. R. Alger	236
Old Maid, The	790	Passage in the Life of St. Augustine, A
Old Man Dreams, TheO. W. Holmes	979	Anonymous	362
Old Man's Comforts, The	545	Passage, The	291
Old Oaken Bucket, TheS. Woodworth	100	Passionate Shepherd to His Love, The
Old-School Punishment	99	C. Marlowe	157
Oliver Cromwell	939	Passions, The	77 3
Olivia	122	Past, The	793
On a Beautiful Day	406 908	Pastoral, A	245
On a Fan	749	Pauper's Death-Bed, TheC. A. B. Southey	590 341
On a Girdle	125	Pauper's Drive, The T. Noel	341
On a Picture A. C. Lynch	247	PeaceFragments	541
On a Portrait of WordsworthE. B. Browning	914	Peace	533
On an Intaglio Head of Minerva. T. B. Aldrich	749	Peace of Death, The Fragments	311
On an Old Muff	972	Peace on the Sea	631
On His Blindness	366	Pelican, The J. Montgomery	480
On His Own Blindness Milton	735	People, The	813
On Love	140	People's Song of Peace, The	598
On the Picture of an InfantLeonidas	612 81	Perfection	726
On the Portrait of Shakespeare B. Jonson	905	Perseverance	781 477
On the Prospect of Planting Arts and Learning	903	Personal Appearance Fragments	720
ın America G. Berkely	587	Personal Characteristics—Men Fragments	723
On the Rhine	447	Personal Characteristics-Women Fragments	722
On Woman O. Goldsmith	336	Personal Charms Fragments	133
One Gray Hair, The	755	Pet Name, The E. B Browning	89
One-Hoss Shay, The O. W. Holmes	977	Petrified Fern, The M. L. B. Branch	863
Only a Woman D. M. M Craik Only a Year H. B Stowe	258 278	Philip, My King D M Craik	75
Only Seven H. S. Leigh		Phillida and Corydon	136
Only the Clothes She Wore N. G. Shepherd	299	Phillis the Fair	124
"Only Waiting" F. L. Mace	368	Philomela	124 479
Orator Puff T. Moore	962	Philosopher Toad, The	694
Oratory Fragments	803	Philosopher's Scales, The	862
Orient The	451	Philosophy Fragments	808
Origin of the Harp, The T. Moore	865	Physics W. Whewell	992
Origin of the Opal	865	Pibroch of Donul Dhu Sir W. Scott	518
Othello's Defence	145 877	Picket-Guard, The E. E. Beers	524
Other World, The	388	Picture, A	220
Our Roat to the Waves W. E. Channing	630	Pictures of Memory A. Cary	303 80
Our Skater Belle	670	Pied Piper of Hamelin, TheR. Browning
Our Wee White Rose	83	Pilgrimage, The Sir W. Raleigh	361
Outgrown J. C. R. Derr	263	Pilgrims and the Peas, TheDr. J. Wolcott
"Over the Hill to the Poor-House"		Pillar of the Cloud, The J. H. Newman	364
W. M. Carleton Over the River	342	Piper, The W. Blake	85
OverworkFragments	559	Plaide, The C. Sibley
Owl The B. W. Procter	483	Plain Language from Truthful James. B. Harte Planting of the Apple-Tree, The W. C. Bryant
Ozmandias of Egypt	717	Platonic	457 119
		Plea for the Animals
P.		Pleasure Boat, The	666
Pack Clouds Away	409	Pleasures of WarFragments	539
Pain and WearinessFragments	799	Ploughman, The	55I

Poems	1007	Rain and StormFragments 494
Poet of Nature, The P. J. Bailey	766	Rain in Summer H. W. Longfellow 428
Poet of To-Day, the	7 67	Rain on the Roof
Poet's Admiration, The Fragments	134	Rainy Day, The
Poet's Bridal-Day Song, The A. Cunningham	219	Ramon B. Harte 897
Poet's Friend, The A. Pope	911	Raven, The E. A. Poe 852
Poet's Impulse, The	767	Razor-Seller, The
Poet's Retirement, TheFragments	719	Reaper and the Flowers, The. H. W. Lodgfellow 276
Poet's Song to His Wife, TheB. W. Procter	219	Reason and Instinct
Poets and Poetry Fragments Poland T. Campbell	806	Rebecca's Hymn Sir W. Scott 372
Poland	583 615	Recipe for Salad, A
Popular Recollections of Bonaparte F. Mahony	913	Reformer, The J. G. Whittier 600
Portents and Fears Fragments	899	Relief of Lucknow, The R T. S. Lowell 515
Portia's Picture Shakespeare	122	Religion of Hudibras, The S. Butler 387
Portrait, A E. B. Browning	97	Religious Meditation Fragments 399
Portrait, The	265	Remonstrance with the Snails Anonymous 406
Portrait, The	127	Remorse Fragments 396
Possession	218	Remorse and Retribution Fragments 799
Possession	207	Renunciation, A E. Vere, Earl of Oxford 790
Possession	202	Reputation Fragments 811
Possibilities Fragments	215	Resignation Fragments 348
Poverty	802	Resignation H. W. I ong fellow 272
Power of Love and Beauty Fragments	203	Respectability
Praise Fragments	810	Rest M W. Howland 295
Praise G. Herbert	363	Retirement T. Warton 400
Praxiteles From the Greek	903	Retirement, The
Prayer Fragments	398	Retort, The
Prayer Mary, Queen of Hungary	365	Retribution F. Von Logan 747
Prayer for Life, A G. S. Burleigh	380	Retrospection A Tennyson 315
Prayer of Agassiz, The J. G. Whittier Pre-Existence P. H. Hayne	936 760	Return of Spring. From the French of P Ronsard 421
Preaching and Missions Fragments	395	Rêve Du Midi
Preparation and Battle Fragments	540	Revelry of the Dying . Anonymous 898 Revenge
Presence in Absence Fragments	248	Revenge
Present. The Fragments	793	Rhine, The Byron 446
Press. The	810	Rhodora, The R. W. Emerson 461
Pretty Girl of Loch Dan, The S. Ferguson	105	Richard Brinsley Sheridan Fragments 940
Pride and Vanity Fragments	799	Riches Fragments 802
Primeval Forests, The H W. Longfellow	453	Riddle, A
Prince Adeb G. H Boker	652	Riding Together
Prisoner of Chillon, The . Byron	703	Rienzi to the Romans M R Mitford 572
Private of the Buffs, The, et Sir F II. Doyle	514	Right Must WinF. W. Faber 390
Problem, The R. W. Emerson	735	Rime of the Ancient Mariner S. T. Coleridge 854
Procrastination Dr E. Young	748	Ritter Hugo C G Leland 1000
Prophecies Fragments	107	Rivalry in Love II'. Walsh 147
Prophecy of Enterprise, A Fragments Proud Miss Macbride, The J. G. Saxe	802	River of Life, The T Campbell 741
Prudence Fragments	985	River Thames, The 720
Prudent Speech Fragments Fragments	559 815	Roast Beel of Old England, The
Psalm of Life, A	769	II. Fielding and R Loveridge 575 Robert of Lincoln W C. Bryant 476
Pumokin, The	459	* 1 41
_	737	Robin Hood and Allen-a-Dale Anonymous 638
Q. Qua Carsum Ventus A. H. Clough	233	Rock Me to Sleep
Quack Medicines G. Crabbe	783	"Rock of Ages" Prof. E H. Rue 367
Quakerdom C. G. Halpine		Roman Father's Sacrifice, The T. B. Macaulay 875
Quartel of Friends, The S T. Coleridge		Romance of the Swan's Nest, The
Quarreling		E. B. Browning 102
Quarrelling Fragments		Romaunt of the Rose, The A. Dobson 265
Quarrels of Friends Fragments	121	Rome Fragments 720
Queen Mah Skakespeare	836	Rome
P		Rory O'More S. Lover 196
Cantast Rhy ne J. G. Saxe	980	Rosalie W. Allston 317
•		L.

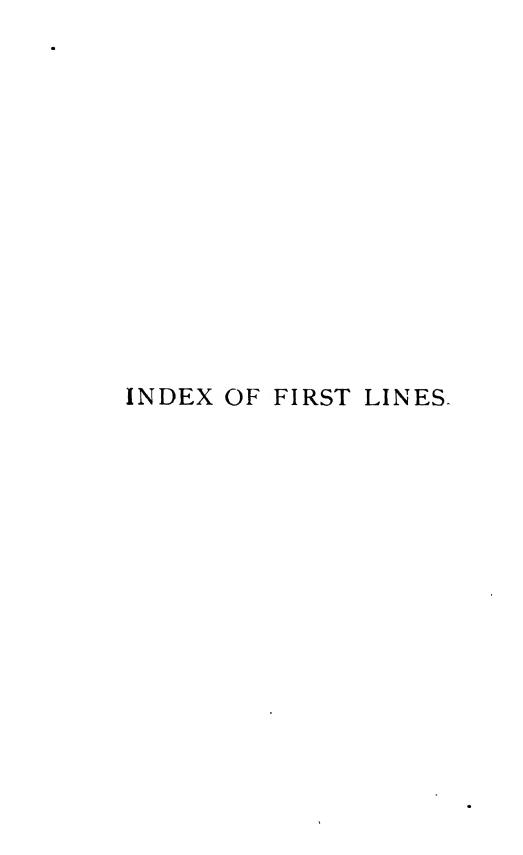

Rosalind's Complaint.
Roasiline	Rosalind's Complaint	TOJ	Shaded Water The W. G. Simms 448
Roser of My Tears, The	Rosaline	• •
Rose Bush, The	Rosary of My Tears, The	•
Rose of the World, The	Rose and the Gauntlet, The	• •
Rose, The	Rose Bush, The
Rose, The	Rose of the World, The C. Patmore	• •
Rose, The
Salor's Consolution, The			"She Walks in Beauty"
C. Kingelog 31 W. Wordsworth 128 Rudolph the Headsman. J. W. Wordsworth 128 Rudolph the Headsman. O. W. Holmes 978 Rule Britannia J. Thomson 978 Shepherd's Life, A Shakespeare 225 Shepherd's Life, A Shepter 225 Shepter 225 Shepherd's Life, A Shepter 225 Sh	Rough Rhyme on a Rough Matter, A	7-7
Royal Guest, The.		331
Rudolph the Headsman. O. W. Holmes 98 Rule Britannia			Shepherd and the King, The R. Greene 136
Rule Ritannia	Rudolph the HeadsmanO. W. Holmes	_
Ruling Passion, The	Rule Britannia J. Thomson		Shepherd's Resolution, The G. Wither 193
Rural Life		779	Sheridan, Richard Brinsley Fragments 940
Rustic Lad's Lament in the Town, The. D. M. Moir D. M. Morrer D. M. Moir D. M. Morrer D. M. Mo	Ruling Passion, The Fragments	799	Sheridan's Ride T. B. Read 594
Rustic Lad's Lament in the Town, The. D. M. Moir D. M. Morrer D. M. Moir D. M. Morrer D. M. Mo	Rural Life Fragments	672	Ships Fragments 631
Sabbath Morning, The. J. Leyden Signs of Rain Dr. E. Jenner 204	Rustic Lad's Lament in the Town, The	-	Ships at Sea
Sabbath Morning, The	D. M. Moir	243	Shipwreck, The W Falconer 612
Sabbath Morning, The	Ruth T. Hood	106	Shooting Fragments 671
Sabbath Morning, The.
Sabbath of the Soul, The A. L. Barbauld 385 Sidney, Str Philip Fragments 938 Sabk of Baltimore, The T. Davus 886 Stepe of Belgrade An Neyden 904 "Sad is Our Youth" A. DeVery 316 Sighs, Tears, and Smiles Fragments 205 Sailor's Consolation, The W Putt 630 Siller Croun, The S Banson Siller Croun, The S Banson Sally in Our Aney H. Carey 198 Samon on His Blindness Millon 321 Siller Croun, The S Banson on His Blindness Millon 321 Siller Croun, The S Banson on His Blindness Millon 321 Siller Croun, The S Banson on His Blindness Millon 321 Siller Fair W Congreve 713 Siller Fair W Congreve 715 Siller Croun, The S Siller Yand Siller Fair W Congreve 715	8.
Sabbath, The J Grahame 378 Sidney, Sir Philip M Royden 904 Sack of Baltumore, The T Davis 386 Sidney, Sir Philip M Royden 904 Sad I not So? G Herbert 316 Sighs, Tears, and Smiles Fragments 265 Sailor's Wife, The W 7 Mickle 46 Siller troun, The S Blamire 155 Sailly in Our Aney H Carey 198 Siller Youn, The S Blamire 155 Sally in Our Aney H Carey 198 Siller Youn, The S Blamire 155 Sands or Dee, The C. Thaxter 82 Sin Sill Fair W Congreve 71 Sands or Dee, The C. Thaxter 82 Sin Sin Marmaduke G Column, the Younger 95 Scandal A Pope 82 Statum G Column, the Younger 95 Scandal A Pope 83 Statum Statum B W Footers 36 School-Days Fragments 51 Stavery 15 Stavery <td>Sabbath Morning, The J Leyden</td> <td>410</td> <td></td>	Sabbath Morning, The J Leyden	410
Sack of Baltumore, The T. Davis Sade I not So? A DeVera 365 Stade I not So? 365 Stade I not So. 365 Sta	Sabbath of the Soul, The A. L Barbauld	389
"Sad is Our Youth" A DeVere Said I not So? G Herbert 565 Sighs, Tears, and Smiles Fragmentz 204 Said I not So? G Herbert 565 365 Silent Baby Mrs E.B. Currier 78 78 Sailor's Wile, The W. 7 Mickle 246 Siller Croun, The S Siller Croun, The		378	1
Sailor's Consolation, The W P Mickle Sailor's Wife, The W Congreve 713 Sailor's Wife, The W Congreve 714 Sailor Sailor's Wife, The W Congreve 715 Sailor's Wife, The Sailor	Sack of Baltimore, The	880
Sailor's Consolation, The W P Mi		316	1
Sallor's Wife, The W. J. Mickle 246 Sally in Our Aisey H. Carry 198 Sin Fragments 395 Samson on His Blindness Milton 321 Sin Marmaduke G. Colman, the Vounger 958 Sands o' Dee, The C. Thaxter 482 Sir Marmaduke G. Colman, the Vounger 958 Sands o' Dee, The C. Kingaley 621 Sands o' Dee, The C. Kingaley 622 Sandal A. Pope 785 Scandal A. Pope 785 Skatung Fragments 672 Scandal and Slander Fragments 815 Skatung Fragments 672 Scandal A. Pope 785 Skatung Fragments 672 Scandal A. Pope 785 Skatung Fragments 672 Scandal A. Pope 785 Skatung Fragments 672 Skatu	Said I not So? G Herbert	366
Samson on His Blindness		630
Samson on His Blindness	Sailor's Wife, The W. J Mickle	246	Silly Fair W Congreve 713
Sandpiper, The C. Thaxter 482 Sands o' Dee, The C. Kingsley 621 Scandal A. Pope 781 Scandal A. Pope 781 Scholar, The H. Taylor 766 School-Days Fragments 107 Scotland Sir W. Scott 575 Scalpture Fragments 803 Sae Fight, The Anonymous 582 Sea Life J. Montgomery 623 Sea, The B. B. W. Procter 625 Sea, The R. W. Emerson 631 Sea Weed H. W. Longfellow 632 Sea-Shore, The Fragments 633 Seaside Well, The Anonymous 582 Secret of Death, The Fragments 633 Seepen Sir P. Sidney 763 Seasons, The Fragments 634 Seepen Sir P. Sidney 763 Sleeph Song G. W. Wordsworth 763 Sleeph Song G. W. Petter 670 Solicy G. W. Wordsworth 763 Sleeph Song G. W. Petter 670 Smack in School, The W. P. Palmer 99 Small Beginnings C. Mackay 779 Smow-Eller, The A. B. Street 799 Seletters G. G. Arnold 433 September G. G. Arnold 433 Seven Times Four J. Ingelow 86 Seven Times One J. Ingelow 87 Social Pleasures Fragments 814 Society upon the Stanislaus, The 8 Harte 988 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 1772 Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er''.		198	Sin Fragments 395
Sands o' Dee, The C. Kingaley 621 Sat Down, Sad Soul B. IV Procter 369 Scandal A. Pope 781 Scandal and Slander Fragments 811 Skylark, The Taylor 766 Skylark, The Taylor 762 Skeep. D / I Wold tof 761 Skeep. Taylor 762 Skeep. Taylor 763 Skeep. Taylor 764 Skeep. Taylor 764 Skeep. Taylor 764 Skeep. Taylor 762 Skeep. Taylor 763 Skeep. Taylor 764 Skeep. Taylor 762 Skeep. Taylor 762 Skeep. Taylor 763 Skeep. Taylor 764 Skeep. Taylor 762 Skeep. Taylor 762 Skeep. Taylor 763 Skeep. Taylor 762			1
Scandal A. Pope 781 Skaung Fragments 672 Scandal and Slander F-agments 811 Skylark, The J Hogg 473 Scholar, The H. Taylor 765 Skylark, The J Hogg 473 Scholar, The H. Taylor 765 Skylark, The J Hogg 473 Skep 1		482	la —
Scandal and Slander Schoolar, The H. Taylor School-Days Fragments School-Days Fragments Scotland Sir W. Scott Scotland Scotland Sir W. Scott Scotland Sir W. Scott Scotland Sco
School-Days Fragments 107 School-Days Fragments 107 Scotland Sir W. Scott 575 Sculpture Fragments 805 Sea Fight, The Anonymous 612 Sea Fight, The Anonymous 612 Sea, The B. Barton 607 Sea, The B. W. Procter 625 Sea, The B. W. Procter 625 Sea, The B. W. Procter 625 Sea, The R. W. Emerson 610 Sea, The R. W. Emerson 610 Sea, The R. W. Emerson 610 Sea-Shore, The Fragments 622 Seasnde Well, The Anonymous 729 Seasons, The Fragments 625 Secret of Death, The E. Arnold 298 Selections from "In Memoriam" A. Tennyson 290 Selif-Conceit Fragments 920 Sempronius's Speech for War J. Addison 580 Sempronius's Speech for War J. Addison 691 September G. A. Arnold 430 Settler, The A. B. Street 790 Seven Times Four J. Ingelow 805 Seven Times One J. Ingelow 170 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 170 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 170 Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er".	Scandal A. Pope	- 1
School-Days Fragments Scotland Sir W. Scott Scep. Sleep. Shakespeare 762 Sleep. Sleep. Sleep. Shakespeare 762 Sleep. Sleep. Sleep. Shakespeare 762 Sleep. Sleep. Shakespeare 762 Sleep. Sleep. Shakespeare 762 Sleep. Sleep. Shakespeare 762 Sleep. Shakespeare 763 Sleep. Shakespeare 764 Sleep. Shakespeare 762 Sleep.			1
Scotland Sir W. Scott Sculpture Fragments Sculpture Fragments Sculpture Fragments Sculpture Fragments Sca Fight, The Anonymous 612 Sea Fight, The Anonymous 612 Sea Life 9, Montgomery 623 Seep Sleep Start F. Stakespeare 762 Sea, The B. Barton 607 Sea, The B. W. Frocter 625 Sleeping Beauty, A S. Rogers 130 Sleeping Beauty, The A Tennyson 174 Sea, The B. W. Emerson 607 Sea, The 607 Sea, Th		•
Sculpture Fragments 800 Sea Fight, The Anonymous 612 Sea Life J. Montgomery 623 Sea, The B. Barton 605 Sea, The B. W. Procter 625 Sea, The B. W. Procter 625 Sea, The B. W. Procter 625 Sea, The R. W. Emerson 610 Sea, The R. W. Emerson 610 Sea, The R. W. Emerson 610 Sea Weed H. W. Longfellow 622 Sea-Shore, The Fragments 631 Seasons, The Anonymous 739 Seasons, The Anonymous 739 Seasons, The Fragments 631 Secret of Death, The E. Arnold 202 Selections from "In Memoriam" A. Tennyson 739 Selections from "In Memoriam" A. Tennyson 730 Smole Beginnings C. Mackay 770 Smoke H. D. Thoream 631 Snow—A Winter Sketch R. Hopt 440 Snow—A Winter Sketch R. Hopt 440 Snow—Shower, The W. C. Bryant 440 Snow—Storm, A. C. G. Eastman 440 Snow—Storm, A. C. G. Eastman 440 Snow—Storm, The R. W. Emerson 430 Snow—Storm, The R. W. Lon		•
Sea Fight, The Sea Life Sea Life Sea, The B. Barton Sea, The B. W. Procter Sea, The B. W. Procter Sea, The B. W. Frocter Sea, The B. W. Frocter Sea, The B. W. Emerson Sea, The R. W. Emerson Sea Shore, The R. W. Emerson Sea Shore, The Fragments Sea-Shore, The Fragments Seasons, The Fragments Seasons, The Fragments Seasons, The Fragments Secret of Death, The E. Annoymous Selections from "In Memoriam" A. Tennyson Somile and Never Heed Me C. Savasin 156 Smoke H. D. Thoreau Sonow-A Winter Sketch R. Hopt 440 Snow-Flakes Snow-Flakes Snow-Flakes Snow-Storm, A. C. G. Eastman A. C. Sangster Sonow-Storm, The R. W. Emerson Snow-Storm, The R. W. Emerson Sonow-Storm, The R. W. Emerson Sonow-Storm, The Snow-Storm, The Snow-Storm, The Snow-Storm, The Social Pleasures Fragments So
Sea Life		-	,
Sea, The
Sea, The	Sea Life
Sea, The Byron 607 Sea, The R. W Emerson 610 Sea Weed H. W. Longfellow 622 Sea-Shore, The Fragments 635 Seashore, The Fragments 636 Seashore, The Anonymous 739 Seasons, The Anonymous 739 Seasons, The Fragments 637 Secret of Death, The E. Arnold 298 Selections from "In Memoriam" A. Tennyson 290 Senoke H. D. Thoreau 691 Snooke H. D. Thoreau 692 Snooke H. D. Thoreau 693 Snooke H.
Sea, The R. W Emerson 610 Sea Weed H. W. Longfellow 622 Sea-Shore, The Fragments 631 Smack in School, The W P Palmer 99 Seasons, The Anonymous 739 Seasons, The Fragments 631 Smack in School, The W P Palmer 99 Small Beginnings C Mackay 779 Smile and Never Heed Me C Swain 156 Smoke H. D. Thoreau 691 Smoke Selections from "In Memoriam" A. Tennyson 290 Selections from "In Memoriam" A. Tennyson 290 Selections from "In Memoriam" Fragments 799 Self-Conceit Fragments 799 Snow-A winter Sketch R Hopt 440 Sentinel Songs A T Ryan 573 Snow-Flakes H. W Longfellow 440 Snow-Flakes H. W Longfellow 440 Snow-Storm, A. C G Eastman 440 Seven Times Four J. Ingelow 87 Snow-Storm, The R. W Emerson 439 Snow-Storm, The R. W Emerson 439 Society upon the Stanislaus, The B Harte 98 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 171 Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er".	·	-
Sea-Shore, The
Sea-Shore, The	Sea, The K. W. Emerson
Seasons, The
Seasons, The		- 1	A 11 B
Secret of Death, The Selections from "In Memoriam" A. Tennyson 290 Self-Conceit Fragments 799 Self-Conceit Speech for War Fragments 799 Sempronius's Speech for War Fragments 799 Sentinel Songs A 7 Ryan 532 September G. Arnold 430 Settler, The A B. Street 790 Seven Ages of Man Shakespeare 711 Seven Times Four J. Ingelow 86 Seven Times One J. Ingelow 87 Seven Times Six J. Ingelow 87 Seven Times Six J. Ingelow 87 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 171 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 171 Seven Times Two J. Ingelow 171 Seven Times Two J. Ingelow 171 Seven Times Two J. Ingelow 171 Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er".
Self-Conceit Fragments 799 Sempronius's Speech for War . J. Addison 570 Sentinel Songs . A J. Ryan 533 September	Selections from "In Memoriam" A Tennusum
Sempronius's Speech for War		- 1
Sentinel Songs A J Ryan 533 Snow-Flakes H. W Longfellow 440 September G. Arnold 433 September Solution A B. Street 709 Seven Ages of Man Shakespeare 711 Seven Times Four J. Ingelow 86 Seven Times One J. Ingelow 87 Seven Times Six J. Ingelow 137 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 137 Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er''.			G . A 777 . G1 . 1
September			l
Settler, The			C C1 M1
Seven Ages of Man Shakespeare 711 Seven Ages of Man Shakespeare 711 Seven Times Four J. Ingelow 86 Seven Times One J. Ingelow 87 Seven Times Six J. Ingelow 213 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 172 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow 172 Seven Times Two J. Ingelow 172 Seven Times Two J. Ingelow 171 Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er"			C C A
Seven Times Four J. Ingelow 86 Snows, The C. Sangster 666 Seven Times One J. Ingelow 87 Social Pleasures ragments 814 Seven Times Six J. Ingelow 213 Society upon the Stanislaus, The B Harte 988 Seven Times Three J. Ingelow "Softly Woo Away Her Breath" B W Procter 296 Seven Times Two J. Ingelow "Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er" "Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er"			Communication of the Communica
Seven Times One J. Ingelow 87 Social Pleasures Tragments 814 Seven Times Six Seven Times Six
Seven Times Three		- 1
Seven Times Two J. Ingelow 101 "Soldier Rest! Thy Warfare O'er"		-
Sevigné, To Madame de De Montreuil 914 Sir W. Scott 520	Seven Times Two J. Ingelow	101
	Sevigné, To Madame de De Montreuil	914	•

Catalanta Dansam Who		St. Datelah mas a Contlemen U Banadi sasa
Soldier's Dream, The T. Campbell	529	St. Patrick was a Gentleman
Soldier's Return, The	530	St. Peter's at RomeFragments 726
Soldiers of Freedom	602	"Stabat Mater Dolorosa"
Soliloquy, A	484	Tr. from Latin. A. Coles 355
Soliloquy on DeathShakespeare	297	"Stabat Mater Dolorosa" Fra Jacopone 355
Soliloquy: On Immortality	759	Stag Hunt, The
Solitude	813	Stag Hunt, TheSir W. Scott 658
Somebody	173	Stage, The
Somebody's Darling Anonymous	531	Star-Spangled Banner, TheF. S. Key 592
Song	161	Stars, The Fragments 491 State-Craft Fragments 812
Song B. Jonson	183	Still Day in Autumn, AS. H. Whitman 692
Song J. Wilmet	711 160	Storm, The
Song	120	Storms and Shipwreck
Song Sir W. Scott	234	Stormy Petrel, The
Song for St. Cecilia's Day, 1687, A J. Dryden	775	Story of a Summer Day, The
Song of Clan-Alpine Sir W. Scott	519	"Strong Son of God, Immortal Love"
Song of Marion's Men W. C. Bryant	589	A. Tennyson 393
Song of Steam, The	555	Suicide Fragments 900
Song of the Brook	446	Sum of Life, The W. Cowper 790
Song of the Camp, The B. Taylor	155	Summer Days
Song of the Emigrant in Bermuda. A. Marvell	625	Summer Evening, A
Song of the Greek Poet Byron	58o	Summer Evening's Meditation, A
Song of the Lightning	864	A. L. Barbauld 430
Song of the Milkmaid	168	Summer FriendsFragments 120
Song of the River	448	Summer Longings D. F. McCarthy 419
Song of the Rover	626	Summer Moods J. Clare 427
Song of the Shirt, The	337	Summer Noon, A
Song of the Summer Winds G. Darley	425	Summer Storm
Song of Wood-Nymphs	835	Sun-Dial, The A. Dobson 184
Songsters, The J. Thomson	469	Sunken City, The
Sonnet	135	Sunset
Sonnet	301	Sunset City, The H. S. Cornwell 823
Sonnet Shakespeare	208	Sunset in the Mountains Fragments 719
Sonnet Sir P. Sidney	249	Swallow, The
Sonnet	593	Sweet, Be Not Proud
Sonnet	403	Sweet Meeting of Desires C. Patmore 170
Sonnet, The	678	Sweet Stream that Winds
Sonnet Upon a Stolen Kiss G. Wither	907	"Sweetly Breathing, Vernal Air" T. Carew 422
Sonnets J. R. Lowell	x86	Sweets of Love, The Fragments 205 Swell's Soliloquy Anonymous 1001
Sonnets from the PortugueseE. B. Browning	216
Sonnets to George Sand E. B. Browning	189	Swimming
Sorrows of Werther	923	SwitzerlandFragments 603
Soul of Adventure, The Fragments	972 670	Switzerland
Soul, The	368	Sword Song C. T Korner 519
Soul's Cry, The R. Palmer	394	Sympathy Sir T. N. Talfourd 770
Soul's Errand, The Sir W. Raleigh	745	Sympathy and Scorn
Sounds of NatureFragments	493	Syria T. Moore 451
Spice-Tree, The	456
Spinning-Wheel Song, The	173	T.
Spinster's Stint, A	172	Tacking Ship Off Shore
Spirit-Land, The	368	"Take, O, Take Those Lips Away"
Spirits Fragments	868	Shakespeare and J. Fletcher 263
Splendid Shilling, The	947	Tale of Drury Lane, A H. Smith 1006
Sporus	909	Tam O'Shanter
Spring	418	Tear, A
Spring Charles of Orleans	421	Tell Me, My Heart, if this be Love
Spring	421	George, L'd Lyttelton 137
Spring	42I	"Tell Me, Ye Winged Winds" C. Mackay 309
Spring in Carolina	422	Telltale, The
"Spring, the Sweet Spring" T. Nask	422	Temperance on the Cheen Physician P. Country
	428	Temperance, or the Cheap Physician . R. Craskaw 546

Tempest, The	627	To Althea from Prison C. R. Lovelace	146
Temple of the Clitumnus	720	To an Insect	485
Temple of Friendship, A T. Moore	120	To Augusta Byron	2/3
Temptation Fragments	815	To Blossoms	456
Tender Affection Fragments	206	To Campbell	920
Thanatopsis	307	To Chloe Dr. Wolcott	192
"The Day Returns, My Bosom Burns". R. Burns	218	To Death From the German of Gluck
"The Dule's i' this Bonnet o' Mine" E. Waugh
"The Forward Violet Thus Did I Chide"	196	To Delia	414
		"To Heaven Approached a Sufi Saint"
Shakespeare	123	D, Rumi	365
"The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls"		To Henry Wadsworth Longfellow J. R Lowell	937
T. Moore	577	To Her Absent Sailor	241
"The Kiss, Dear Maid" Byron	234	To His Mistress Str H. Wetten	124
"The Midges Dance Aboon the Burn"		To Ianthe, Sleeping	714
R. Tannahill	411	To Labor is to Pray F S. Osgood	556
"The Moth's Kiss First" R. Browning	188	To Lucasta	942
"The Sun is Warm, the Sky is Clear"		To Lucasta
P. B. Shelley	317	To Madame De Sevigné De Montreuil	014
The Way, the Truth, and the Life T. Parker	380	To Mary in Heaven R. Burns	288
"The Winter Being Over" Collins		To Milton	907
Theele my	420	To Mistress Margaret Hussy J. Skelton
Theology Fragments		To My Infant Son T Hood
"There is a Garden in Her Face" . R. Allison	123		93
They are All Gone H. Vaughan	274	To My Nose	_
"They are dear Fish to Me" Anonymous	282	To-Night	414
"They Come! The Merry Summer Months".		To Sea T L Beddoes To Seneca Lake 9 G. Percival To the Cuckoo J. Logan	630
W Motherwell	423	To Seneca Lake J G. Percival	449
"Those Evening Bells" T. Moore	716	To the Cuckoo J. Logan	471
"Thou hast Sworn by Thy God, My Jeanie"		To the Cuckoo	472
A. Cunningham	208	To the Earl of Warwick on the Death of Addi-
	731	son T. Tickell	910
Thread and Song 7 Il Palmer	104	To the Fringed Gentian W. C Bryant	465
Thought P Cranch Thread and Song IV Palmer Three Days	751	To the Grasshopper and Cricket . L. Hunt	485
Three Fishers, The	621	To the Harvest Moon H. K. White	550
Three Loves		To the Hon Charles Montague M Price	730
		To the Humble Bee R. W Emerson	484
Three Sons, The J. Moultrie	90	To the Lord General Cromwell . Milton	909
Three Warnings, The If L Thrale		To the Memory of Ben Jonson . J. Cleveland	906
Three Years She Grew . W. Wordsworth	103	To the Memory of Fletcher Harper	900
Thy Braes Were Bonny J Logan	288
Thy Will be Done J G Whittier	375	D M, M Craik
Tiger, The W Blake	468	To the Memory of Thomas Hood Anonymous
Time	747	To the Nightingale R Barnfield	480
Time Fragments	79 I	To the Pliocene Skull B Harte	99 t
Time in Absence Fragments	248	To the "Sextant" A. M Wilson	1001
Tintern Abbey W Wordsworth	403	To the Skylark	474
"'Tis the Last Rose of Summer" . T. Moore	465	To the Skylark	474
To P. B Shelley		To the Terrestrial Globe W. S. Gilbert
To a Bird E Hovel, Lord Thurlow	482		784
To a Child	80	To the Unco Guid	754
To a Child During Sickness L Hunt	88	To Thomas Moore Byron	925
To a Highland Girl W. Wordzworth	-00	To Toussaint L'Ouverture . W Wordsworth	921
To a Highland Girl W. Worldstoorth	105	1
To a Lady Admiring Herself in a Looking-			•
Glass T. Randolph	125	To-Morrow	754
To a Lady Before Marriage T. Tickell	209	Toad's Journal, The	851
To a Lady With Some Painted Flowers		Tobacco Smokers	558
A. L. Barbauld		Toby Tosspot G. Colman, Fr.	958
To a Louse	486	Toilet, The	71
To a Mosquito	187	Tom Bowling	620
To a Mountain Daisy	462	Tonis ad Resto Mare J. Swift	993
To a Mouse R. Burns	468	Too Late F. H. Ludlow	755
To a Nightingale	479	Too Late I Stayed W. R. Spencer	11
To a Skeleton	761	Touchstone, The	73
To a Very Young Lady Sir C. Sedley	147	Transient Beauty	267
To a Waterfowl W, C. Bryant	48r	l
for Marcroat	4	1
		7

TreesFragments	494	Virtue Immortal	301
Tribute, The	136	Virtuoso, The	946
Trifles Fragments	815	Vision of Beauty	123
Trooper's Death, The	518	Visit from St. Nicholas, A	96
True Lent, A	361	Voice, and Nothing Else, A Anonymous	923
True Love Fragments	206	Voice of the Grass, The	465
True Rest	557	Vow, The Meleager	268
True Soldier, TheFragments	539	Voyage of Life, The	742
Trumpets of Dool Karnein, TheL. Hunt	699
Truth Fragments	398
Tubal Cain C. Mackay	537	w.
Twilight at Sea	610	Waiting for the Grapes W. Maginn	190
Two Mysteries, The M. M. Dodge	297	"Waken, Lords and Ladies Gay" Sir W. Scott	658
Two Pictures	229	Walton's Book of Lives W. Wordsworth	908
Two Writings, The J. W Chadwick	277	Waly, Waly, But Love Me Bonny .Anonymous	268
Two Women	333
Tyrant's Plea, TheFragments	691	Wants of Man, The 9. Q. Adams	732
1 frant of ica, 120	Oy.	War P. B. Shelley	499
U.		War for the Sake of Peace J. Thomson	499
	0-0	Warfare	539
Una and the Lion E. Spenser	828	WarningsFragments	214
Una and the Red Crosse Knight E. Spenser	827	Warren's Address J. Pierpont	590
Under My Window	85	Washington	927
Under the Portrait of John Milton J. Dryden	907	Washington, George Anonymous	928
Universal Prayer, The A. Pope	370	Watching	763
Unknown Poets	766	WaterFragments	493
Unrequited Love Shakespeare	251	Water Sprites Fragments	86g
Unsatisfactory	194	Water-Drinker, The E. Johnson	545
Unwelcome Lover, The Fragments	248	Waterloo Byron	511
Up H:ll	363	We are Brethren a'	117
Use of Flowers, The	466	We are Seven	87
Useful Plough, The	551	"We Have Been Friends Together"	-,
ST A A Samuel Miles
Uses of Adversity. The Fragments	348	C. E. S Norton	116
Uses of Adversity. The Pragments	348	C. E. S Norton We Parted in Silence I. Crassford	116
Uses of Adversity, 1 nz Pragments V.	348	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford	240
V.		We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes	240 928
V. Vagabonds, The	547	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck	240 928 685
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The T. Davis	240 928 685 152
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The T. Davis Welcome to Boz, A W. H. Venable	928 685 152 925
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The T. Davis Welcome to Boz, A W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne	240 928 685 152 925
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Wechawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey	928 685 152 925
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome to Boz, A W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain"	240 928 685 152 925 126 955
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester	240 928 685 152 925 126 955
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire	240 928 685 152 925 126 955
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" S. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" 1. Hood	240 928 685 152 925 126 955
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" 1. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W. Jones	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 135 245 322 599
V. Vagabonds, The J. T. Trowbridge Vale of Avoca, The T. Moore Vale of Casamere, The T. Moore Valley Brook, The J. H. Bryant Vanity H. P. Spofford Vanity of the Beautiful, The G. Gascoigne Vanity of the World, The F. Quarles Varied Misery Fragments "Veni Creator Spiritus" St. Gregory the Great "Veni Creator Spiritus" Tr from Latin. J. Dryden	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome to Boz, A W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" 1. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W. Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 135 245 322
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome. Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" 1. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson What is Time? W Marsden	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 135 245 322 599
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome. Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" T. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson What is Time? W Marsden What Mr. Robinson Thinks J. R. Lowell	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 135 245 322 599 8c
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome to Boz, A W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome. Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" J. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson What is Time? W Marsden What Mr. Robinson Thinks J. R. Lowell What the Winds Bring E. C. Stedman	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 599 8c 748
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 357	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome. Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" T. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson What is Time? W Marsden What Mr. Robinson Thinks J. R. Lowell	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 599 8c 748 994
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome to Boz, A W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome. Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" J. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson What is Time? W Marsden What Mr. Robinson Thinks J. R. Lowell What the Winds Bring E. C. Stedman	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 135 245 322 599 8c 748 994 451
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 356 720	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" 1. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W. Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?". A. Tennyson What is Time? W. Marsden What Mr. Robinson Thinks J. R. I.owell What the Winds Bring E. C. Stedman When S. Woolzey	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 135 245 322 599 8c 748 994 451 381
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 135 245 322 599 8c 748 994 451 381
V. Vagabonds, The J. T. Trowbridge Vale of Avoca, The T. Moore Vale of Casamere, The T. Moore Valley Brook, The J. H. Bryant Vanity H. P. Spofford Vanity of the Beautiful, The G. Gascoigne Varied Misery Fragments "Veni Creator Spiritus" St. Gregory the Great "Veni Creator Spiritus" Tr from Latin. J. Dryden "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Venic Fragments Venice S. Rogers Venice S. Rogers Verses Written in an Album T. Moore	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738 133	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome to Boz, A W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome, Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" "Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" 1. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson What is Time? W Marsden What Mr. Robinson Thinks J. R. Lowell What the Winds Bring E. C. Stedman When S. Woolsey "When Icicles Hang by the Wall" Shakespeare	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 599 8c 748 994 451 381 439
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738 133	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome. Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" 7. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W. Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson What is Time? W. Marsden What the Winds Bring E. C. Stedman When S. Woolsey "When Icicles Hang by the Wall" Shakespeare "When the Hounds of Spring" A. C. Swinbarne	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 599 8c 748 994 451 381 439
V. Vagabonds, The J. T. Trowbridge Vale of Avoca, The J. Moore Vale of Casamere, The T. Moore Valley Brook, The S. H. Bryant Vanity H. P. Spofford Vanity of the Beautiful, The G. Gascoigne Vanity of the World, The F. Quarles Varied Misery Fragment: "Veni Creator Spiritus" St. Gregory the Great "Veni Creator Spiritus" Tr from Latin. Y. Dryden "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Venice Fragments Venice S. Rogers Verses W. Cowper Verses Written in an Album T. Moore Vicar of Bray, The Anonymous	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738 133 945	We Parted in Silence J. Crawford Webster, Daniel O. W. Holmes Weehawken and the New York Bay. F. Halleck Welcome, The W. H. Venable "Welcome, Welcome. Do I Sing" W. Browne Well of St. Keyne, The R. Southey "Were I as Base as is the Lowly Plain" J. Sylvester "What Ails this Heart o' Mine?" S Blamire "What Can an Old Man Do But Die?" 7. Hood What Constitutes a State? Sir W. Jones "What Does Little Birdie Say?" A. Tennyson What is Time? W. Marsden What the Winds Bring E. C. Stedman When S. Woolsey "When Icicles Hang by the Wall" Shakespeare "When the Hounds of Spring" A. C. Swinbarne	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 8c 748 994 451 381 439
V. Vagabonds, The J. T. Trowbridge Vale of Avoca, The J. T. Moore Vale of Casamere, The T. Moore Valley Brook, The J. H. Bryant Vanity H. P. Spofford Vanity of the Beautiful, The G. Gascoigne Vanity of the World, The F. Quarles Varied Misery Fragments "Veni Creator Spiritus" St. Gregory the Great "Veni Creator Spiritus" Tr from Latin. J. Dryden "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robt. II. of France "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robt. II. of France "Venice Fragments Venice S. Rogers Verses Verses Written in an Album T. Moore Vicar of Bray, The Anonymous View Across the Roman Campagna, A E. B. Browning	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738 133 945	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 599 8c 748 994 451 439 122 419
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738 133 945 683	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 599 8c 748 994 451 439 122 419 163
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738 133 945 683	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 259 8c 748 994 451 439 122 439 123 449 163 262
V. Vagabonds, The J. T. Trowbridge Vale of Avoca, The T. Moore Vale of Casamere, The T. Moore Valley Brook, The F. II. Bryant Vanity H. P. Spofford Vanity of the Beautiful, The G. Gascoigne Vanity of the World, The F. Quarles Varied Misery Fragments "Veni Creator Spiritus" St. Gregory the Great "Veni Creator Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Venice Fragments Venice S. Rogers Verses Written in an Album T. Moore Vicar of Bray, The Anonymous View Across the Roman Campagna, A E. B. Browning View from the Euganean Hills, North Italy P. B. Shelley Village Blacksmith, The H. W. Longfellow	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738 133 945 683 441 550	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 748 994 451 439 122 419 163 262
V. Vagabonds, The J. T. Trowbridge Vale of Avoca, The T. Moore Vale of Casamere, The T. Moore Valley Brook, The S. H. Bryant Vanity H. P. Spofford Vanity of the Beautiful, The G. Gascoigne Vanity of the World, The F. Quarles Varied Misery Fragments "Veni Creator Spiritus" St. Gregory the Great "Veni Creator Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Veni Sancte Spiritus" Robi. II. of France "Venice Fragments Venice S. Rogers Verses W. Cowper Verses Written in an Album T. Moore Vicar of Bray, The Anonymous View Across the Roman Campagna, A E. B. Browning View from the Euganean Hills, North Italy P. B. Shelley Village Blacksmith, The H. W. Longfellow Village Schoolmistress, The W. Shenstone	547 116 452 447 769 712 336 357 356 356 679 738 133 945 683 441 550 707	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 748 994 451 381 439 182 419 163 262 115 165
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 356 720 679 738 133 945 683 441 550 707 461	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 45 994 451 381 439 122 419 163 262 115 175 175 175 175 175 175 175
V. Vagabonds, The J. T. Trowbridge Vale of Avoca, The T. Moore Vale of Casamere, The T. Moore Valley Brook, The J. H. Bryant Vanity H. P. Spofford Vanity of the Beautiful, The G. Gascoigne Vanity of the World, The Fragments "Veried Misery Fragments "Veni Creator Spiritus". St. Gregory the Great "Veni Creator Spiritus". Tr from Latin. J. Dryden "Veni Sancte Spiritus". Robi. II. of France "Veni Sancte Spiritus". Tr. from Latin. C. Winkworth Venice Fragments Venice S. Rogers Verses W. Cowper Verses Written in an Album T. Moore Vicar of Bray, The Anonymous View Across the Roman Campagna, A E. B. Browning View from the Euganean Hills, North Italy Village Blacksmith, The W. Longfellow Village Schoolmistress, The W. Story Violets R. Herrick	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 720 679 738 133 945 683 441 550 707 461 461	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 133 245 322 748 994 451 381 439 182 419 163 262 115 165
V. Vagabonds, The	547 116 452 447 769 712 743 346 357 356 356 720 679 738 133 945 683 441 550 707 461	We Parted in Silence	240 928 685 152 925 126 955 135 245 322 259 8c 748 994 451 439 122 419 163 262 175 175 175 175 175 175 175 175

'Whistle, and I'll Come to You, My Lad"		WitchesFragments	8
R. Burns	156	Without and Within	7
Whistle, The R. Story	156	Wolsey's Advice to Cromwell, Shakespeare	3
White Rose; The	123	Wolsey's Fall	3
White Squall, The B. W Procter	629	Wood-NympsFragments	8
Whittling J Prespont	979	"Woodman, Spare that Tree" G. P. Morris	1
Why? M. L. Ritter	148	Woman	(
Why, Lovely Charmer? Anonymous	146	Woman Calidasa	7
Why so Pale and Wan?"Sir J. Suckling	263	Woman Fragments	2
Why Thus Longing?	302	Woman Fragments	1
Vickliffe, John Fragments	939	Woman's Answer, A	1
Vidow Bedott to Elder Sniffles F. M. Whitcher	995	Woman's Inconstancy	5
Vidow Machree	200	Woman's Love, A J. Hay	•
Vidow Malone	1003	Woman's Question, A A. A. Procter
Vidow's Mite, The	282	Woman's Will 7 G. Saxe
life, A	213	Woman Fo'k, The 7. Hogg
life, Children, and Friends W. R. Spencer	220	Wordsworth, WilliamFragments
Vife, The Frag. sents	231	Work and Play Fragments
Vife to Her Husband, The Anonymous	244	Work and Song
Vill, The	791	World, The Fruncis, Lord Bacon
Villiam Hogarth Fragments	040	World-Weariness
Villiam Lloyd Garrison		Worn Wedding-Ring, The W. C. Bennett
Villiam ShakespeareFragments	939	Wounded to Death
Villie Winkie W. Miller	939	Wrestling Jacob
Vinds and Waves Fragments	631
Vinged Worshippers, The C. H. Sprague	478	7
Vinter 7. H. Bryant	438
Vinter-Evening Hyma to My Fire, A	430	Yarn of the Nancy Bell. The Gilbert
J. R. Loweil		"Ye Marine's of Englan 1 ' ampbell
Vinter Morning W. Conuper		Young Gray Head, The
Vinter Noon	475	YouthFragments
-	437	Yussouf J R Lowell
Vinter Pictures	438
Vinter Scenes	439
Vinter Song L. Holty	434
Wish, A S. Rogers	•	Zara's Earrings F G Lockhart
Wishes to His Supposed MistressR. Craskaw	192	Zimri J. Dryden	-

INDEX OF FIRST LINES.

PAGE	rada
A baby was sleeping	All things that are on earth shall wholly pass 398
Abou Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase!) 768	All thoughts, all passions, all delights 163
Above the pines the moon 926	Aloft upon an old basaltic orag 988
A brace of sinners for no good 958	Along the frozen lake she comes 670
A chieftain, to the Highlands bound	Although I enter not
A child sleeps under a rose-bush fair 741	A man there came, whence none could tell 785
A cloud lay cradled near the setting sun 692	Amazing, beauteous change!
A country life is sweet! 551	A mighty fortress is our God 871
Across the narrow beach we flit 482	A mighty hand, from an exhaustless urn 750
A dew-drop came, with a spark of flame 865	A milkmaid, who poised a full pail
A diagnosis of our history proves1007	A moment then Lord Marmion stayed 507
Adieu, adieu, my native shore 298	Among the beautiful pictures 89
A district school not far away 99	Among their graven shapes 987
Ae fond kiss and then we sever 233	Among thy fancies tell me this 186
A fair little girl sat under a tree 108	A Monk, when his rites sacerdotal were o'er 862
A famous hen 's my story's theme 991	An ancient story I'll tell you 948
Afar in the desert I love to ride	An Austrian army awfully arrayed
A fellow in a market-town	And are ye sure the news is true? 246
A flock of merry singing-birds 475	And hast thou sought thy heavenly home 279
A flock of sheep that leisurely pass by 763	And is the swallow gone?
A footstep struck her ear 648	And is there care in heaven?
Again the violet of our early days 421	And now behold your tender nurse, the air 451
A gentle knight was pricking on the plaine 827	And now, unveiled, the toilet stands displayed 718
A girl who has so many willful ways 130	And said I that my limbs were old 202
A good wife rose from her bed one morn 220	And there two runners did the sign abide 164
A happy bit hame this auld world would be 117	And thou hast walked about
Ah Ben! say how or when 907	And wilt thou leave me thus ? 240
Ah! County Guy, the hour is nigh 194	And ye sall walk in silk attire 155
Ah, Chloris, could I now but sit	An exquisite incompleteness 711
Ah, how sweet it is to love!145	An exquisite invention this
Ah! little they know of true happiness 556	A nightingale, that all day long 963
Ah! my heart is weary waiting 419	Announced by all the trumpets of the sky 439
Ah, my sweet sweeting	An old farm-house with meadows wide
Ah, sweet Kitty Neil!	A poet loved a star
Ah, then, how sweetly closed those crowded days 87	Appeared the princess with that merry child 173
Ah, the world hath many a Horner	Arches on arches! as it were that Rome
	Art thou poor, yet hast thou golden slumbers ? 550
Ah! whence you glare	Art thou weary, art thou languid
	'A ruddy drop of manly blood
A jolly fat friar loved liquor good store 946	As beautiful Kitty one morning was tripping 187 As by the shore, at break of day 577
Alas, Fra Giacomo	A sentinel angel sitting high in glory
Alas, how light a cause may move
Alas! they had been friends in youth	A simple child
A life on the ocean wave	As it fell upon a day
A lighter scarf of richer fold	As Memnon's marble harp renowned of old 819
A light is out in Italy984	A soldier of the Legion lay dying in Algiers 521
A little more toward the light	As once a Grecian maiden wove
All day long the storm of battle through the start-	A song for the plant of my own native West 458
led valley swept	A song to the oak, the brave old oak
All grim and soiled and brown with tan 600	As, rising on its purple wing.
All hail! thou noble land	As ships becalmed at eve, that lay
All hall to the ruins, the rocks, and the shores! 608	As slow our ship her foamy track
All in our marriage garden83	A stranger came one night to Yussouf's tent 78
All in the Downs the fleet was moored,	A swallow in the spring
"All quiet along the Potomac"	A sweet disorder in the dress
All the world 's a stage	As when, on Carmel's sterile steep

At Bannockburn the English lay 578	But now our quacks are gamesters
At early dawn I marked them in the sky 480	But where to find that happiest spot below 229
'A temple to friendship," cried Laura 120	But who the melodies of morn can tell? 409
A thing of beauty is a joy forever 675	"But why do you go?" said the lady thousand miles from land are we 483	By broad Potomac's silent shore.,
At midnight, in his guarded tent 582	By Nebo's lonely mountain
At noon, within the dusty town	By the flow of the inland river
At Paris it was, at the opera there	By the rude bridge that arched the flood 589
A traveller through a dusty road 779	By the wayside, on a mossy stone
At setting day and rising morn 161
At the close of the day, when the hamlet is still 787	Calm is the morn without a sound 290
Ave Maria! o'er the earth and sea 418	Care-charmer Sleep, son of the sable night 414
A violet in her lovely hair 126	Ca' the yowes to the knowes 153
Awake, awake, my Lyre 772	Cease, rude Boreas, blustering railer
A warrior so bold, and a virgin so bright 861	Charmer, on a given straight line
Away away through the sightless air 864	Cheeks as soft as July peaches
A weary weed, tossed to and fro 622	Chicken-skin, delicate, white
A well there is in the West country 955	Child of the later days 1
A wet sheet and a flowing sea	Chilly Dovebber with its boading blast1016
A widow—she had only one!	Chloe, we must not always be in heaven 192
A wind came up out of the sea	Christ! I am Christ's! and let the name,
Ay, but I know	Christmas is here
Ay, tear her tattered ensign down! 620	Clear and cool, clear and cool
	Clear, placid Leman! thy contrasted lake 685
Bachelor's hall, what a quare-lookin' place it is!1008	Clear the brown path to meet his coulter's gleam 551
Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight 222	Cleon hath a million acres
Balow, my babe, ly stil and sleipe!	Clime of the unforgotten brave 1
Beat on, proud billows, Boreas, blow	Cling to thy home! if there the meanest shed 225
Beautiful Evelyn Hope is dead	Close his eyes; his work is done
Beautiful, sublime, and glorious	Columbia, Columbia, to glory arise 588
Beautiful was the night	Come a little nearer, doctor 541
Because I breathe not love to everie one 144	Come, all ye jolly shepherds
Before I sigh my last gasp, let me breathe	Come as artist, come as guest
Before I trust my fate to thee	Come, brother, turn with me from pining thought. 368
Behave yoursel' before folk	Come, dear children, let us away
Behold, I have a weapon 877	Come, dear old comrade, you and I
Behold the mansion reared by dædal Jack1011	Come ' fill a fresh bumper, for why should we go. 1015
Behold the sea	Come from my first, ay, come! 920 Come, gentle sleep, attend thy votary's prayer 761
Behold the young, the rosy Spring	Come here, come here, and dwell
Delicite me if all these and coving young charms 174	Come hither, Evan Cameron
Believe me, if all those endearing young charms 174 Ben Battle was a soldier bold 964	Come, hoist the sail, the fast let go ' 666
Beneath a shivering canopy reclined 410	Come in the evening, or come in the morning 152
Beneath our consecrated elm	Come into the garden, Maud
Beneath this stony roof reclined	Come, let us plant the apple-tree
Better trust all and be deceived	Come, listen to me, you gallants so free
Between Nose and Eyes a strange contest arose 951	Come live with me, and be my love
Between the dark and the daylight98	Come, now a roundel, and a fairy song 835
Be wise to-day; 't is madness to defer	Come on, sir: here's the place
Beyond the smiling and the weeping	Come, O thou Traveller unknown
Beyond these chilling winds and gloomy skies 368	Come over, come over 153
Bird of the wilderness	Come, rest in this bosom
Birds, the free tenants of land, air, and ocean 470	Come, see the Dolphin's anchor forged
Blessings on thee, little man 99	Come, Sleep, and with thy sweet deceiving761
Blest as the immortal gods is he 184	Come, Sleep, O Sleep, the certain knot of peace 762
Blossom of the almond-trees	Come then, my friend! my genius! come along 911
Blow, blow, thou winter wind 816	Come to me, dearest
Blue gulf all around us	Come to me, O my Mother!
Bobolink that in the meadow	Come to these scenes of peace
Bonnie wee thing 'cannie wee thing 123	Comrades, leave me here a little
Bonny Kilmeny gaed up the gien 837	Cooks who 'd roast a sucking pig1018
Break, break, break 815	Could I pass those lounging sentries 922
Break, Fantasy, from thy cave of cloud 819	Could ye come back to me, Douglas, Douglas 299
Breathes there the man with soul so dead 568	Cromwell, I did not think to shed a tear
Buried to-day	Cromwell, our chief of men
Burly, dosing humble-bee! 484	Cupid and my Campaspe played 186
But chief-surpassing all - a cuckoo clock 717	Cursed be the verse, how well see'er it flow 781
But Enoch yearned to see her face again	Cyrices, this three years' day 785
But Fortune, like some others of her sex 777	•
But happy they! the happinst of their kind 214	Dark as the clouds of even
Rut I remember, when the fight was done 508	Dark fell the night, the watch was set 645
But look! o'er the full see the angler stand 660	Darkness is thinning.

·
Jaughter of God! that sitt'st on high 584	Father I thy wonders do not singly stand,
Day dawned;—within a curtained room 741	Fear no more the heat o' the sun
Day in melting purple dying 245	Fear not, O little flock! the foe 519
Day is dying! Float, O song	First time he kissed me, he but only kissed 190
Day set on Norham's castled steep 676	Five years have past : five summers
Day stars ! that ope your frownless eyes 459	Fled now the sullen murmur of the north 568
Dead! one of them shot by the sea 288	Flowers are fresh, and bushes green
Dear Chloe, while the busy crowd	Flowers to the fair: to you these flowers I bring 126
Dear friend, whose presence in the house 388	Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green bracs 447
Dear hearts, you were waiting a year ago 277	Flung to the heedless winds 865
	"Fly to the desert, fly with me"
Dear Ned, no doubt you 'll be surprised 201
Deep in the wave is a coral grove 634	For aught that ever I could read 200
Der Noble Ritter Hugo1000	For close designs and crooked councils fit 908
Deserted by the waning moon 627	For England when with favoring gale
Did you hear of the Widow Malone, Ohone !1003	Forever with the Lord 389
Die down, O dismal day, and let me live 419	Forget thee? If to dream by night 161
	For many, many days together
Dies irse, dies illa '
Dip down upon the northern shore	For Scotland's and for freedom's right 578
Does the road wind up-hill all the way i 363	For why, who writes such histories as these 768
Down deep in a hollow so damp 694	Fresh from the fountains of the wood 447
Down, down, Ellen, my little one	Friend after friend departs 114
Down swept the chill wind from the mountain	Friends! I came here not to talk
Down the dimpled greensward dancing 85	From harmony, from heavenly harmony 775
Down to the wharves, as the sun goes down 318	From his brimstone bed at break of day 949
Dow's Flat. That 's its name 996	From the desert I come to thee
Do you ask what the birds say ?	From the recesses of a lowly spirit
Drink to me only with thine eyes 125	Full knee-deep lies the winter snow
Drunk and senseless in his place 897
	0 to - A-tto -to -1
Drop, drop, slow tears	Gamarra is a dainty steed
Duncan Gray cam' here to woo 196	Garçons et filles, venez toujours 998
	Gather ye rosebuds as ye may 754
Each day, when the glow of sunset 281	Gay, guiltless pair
Earl Gawain wooed the Lady Barbara 163	Genteel in personage 142
Early on a sunny morning	Gin a body meet a body 187
Earth gets its price for what Earth gives us 424	Give me more love or more disdain 144
Earth has not anything to show more fair 678	Give me my scallop-shell of quiet
Earth with its dark and dreadful ills	Give me three grains of corn, mother
Echo! mysterious nymph, declare1014	Give place, ye ladies, and begone 127
E'en such is time; which takes on trust 745	Give place, ye lovers 128
	"Give us a song!" the soldiers cried 155
England, with all thy faults, I love thee still 575
Ensanguined man 783	God makes sech nights, all white an' still 998
Erratic Soul of some great Purpose, doomed 363	God might have bade the earth bring forth 466
Eternal spirit of the chainless mind	God of the thunder I from whose cloudy seat 872
Ethereal minstrel! pilgrim of the sky! 475	God prosper long our noble king 685
Even is come; and from the dark Park, hark1014	God shield ye, heralds of the spring
Ever let the Fancy roam 819	God's love and peace be with thee 111
Every day brings a ship 746	Go, feel what I have felt 546
Every one, by instinct taught 624	Go from me. Yet I feel that I shall stand 189
	Going—the great round Sun 754
Faintly as tolls the evening chime 665	Golden hair climbed up on Grandpapa's knee 85
Fair daffodils, we weep to sec 464	Go, lovely rose !
Fair Greece! sad relic of departed worth! 581	Gone at last 932
	Go now! and with some daring drug 546
Fair insect, that, with thread-like legs 487
Fair lady, when you see the grace 125	Good-by, proud world, I'm going home 744
Fair pledges of a fruitful tree	Good Hamlet, cast thy nighted color off 294
Fair Portia's counterfeit? 122	Good morrow to thy sable beak
Fair ship that from the Italian shore	Good night !
Fair stood the wiad for France 502	Good people all of every sort
False diamond set in flint'	Good people all, with one accord
Malor mould thou lude a the consistent to a
False world, thou ly'st; thou canst not lend 748	Go, patter to lubbers, and swabs, do ye see 615
Fare thee well! and if forever 238	Go, soul, the body's guest
Farewell, a long farewell, to all my greatness! 321	Go to thy rest, fair child
Farewell! but whenever you welcome the hour 240	Go where giory waits thee,
"Farewell! farewell!" is often heard	Great ocean ! strongest of creation's sons 610
Farewell, farewell to thee, Araby's daughter ! 294	Green be the turf above thee
Farewell: if ever fondest prayer	Green grow the rashes O
Farcwell, life! my senses swim 827	Green little vaulter in the sunny grass
Farewell rewards and fairles !	Grief hath been known to turn
Farewell! thou art too dear for my possessing 289	Guvener B. is a sensible man
FareWell, thou busy world, and may
Farewell to Lochaber, and farewell, my Jean 287	Ha! bully for me again when my turn for picket is
Pather of all! in every age 370	O.A.L

Hail, beauteous stranger of the grove !	471	How fine has the day been ' how bright the sun !	-
ATMIT DEBUTOORS STREETED BY THE BLOAD.	412
Hall, holy Light, offspring of Heaven!	401	How fresh, O Lord, how sweet and clean
Hali to the Chief who in triumph advances!		How happy is he born and taught
Hail to thee blithe spirit '	473	How hard when those who do not wish'	98
Haif a league haif a league	517	How many a time have I	66
Hamelin Town s in Brunswick	848	How many summers love	219
Hans Breitmann gife a barty	990		76
Denny insuct over blest	425		71
Happy insect what can be	444		77
Happy the man whose wish and care		•	29
Happy the man who void	947		73
	479		27
Hark' hark the lark at heaven's gate sings .	474	How sleep the brave who sink to rest	5.
Hark the faint bells of the sunken city	825	How still the morning of the hallowed day .	., 9
Harness me down with your iron bands .	535		5.,
Has there any old fellow got mixed with the boys.			33
Hast thou a charm to stay the morning star.	376	How sweet the harmonies of afternoon
Have other lovers—say my love	194	How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank '
Have you heard of the wonderful one-hoss shay		Low wouderful is death!
Have you not heard the poets tell	79	Husband and wife i no converse now ye hold	30
Ha' whare ye gaun ye crawlin ferlie?	486	Hush, my dear, lie st.ll and slumber	7
Heap on more wood ' the wind is chili	698
Hear the sledges with the belis	714	I am a friar of orders gray	96
Heaven what an age is this
He clasps the crag with hooked hards .	488	I am by promise tied	-00
		I am in Rome! Oft as the morning ray	en en
He had no times of study and no place	766
Heigh-ho daisies and buttercups	86	I am monarch of all I survey
He is gone on the mountain	283	I am undone there is no living none
He is the freeman whom the truth makes tree .	600	I am watching for the early buds to wake	28
He is the happy man whose life even now	735	I arise from dreams of thee	19
He making speedy way through spersed ayre		I asked an aged man with hoary hairs
Hence all ye vain delights	815	I asked of echo t'other day
	785	I bring fresh showers for the thirsting flowers
Hence loathed Melanchely		I bring fresh showers for the thirsting nowers	84
	786	I cannot eat but little meat
"Henri Heine"—'t is here '	923	I cannot make him dead '
Here a sheer hulk, lies poor Tom Bowling	629	I cannot think that thou shouldst pass away	21
Here I come creeping creeping everywhere	465	I care not though it be	13
Here in this leafy place	529	I climbed the dark brow of the mighty Helvellyn	65
Here is one leaf reserved for me	133	I come from haunts of coot and hern
Here rests and let no saucy knave	953		20
Here rests his head upon the lap of earth	307
		I do not love thee for that fair
Here's the garden she walked across	147	I don't appwove this hawld waw1
Here's to the maiden of bashful fifteen	131	I don t go much on religion
Her hair was tawny with gold	585	If all the world and love were young	15
Her house is all of echo made	781	If doughty deeds my lady please	14
Her window opens to the bay	241	I bear thy kisses, gentle maiden
He's gane, he's gane '	917	If dumb too long the drooping muse hath stayed
He that loves a rosy cheek		I feel a newer life in every gale
		If every man's internal care	74
He man in leads a second settle	767
He was in logic a great critic		I fill this cup to one made up
He was of that stubborn crew	387	If it be true that any beauteous thing
He who hath bent him o'er the dead	303	If I were told that I must die to-morrow
High walls and huge the body may confine		If love were what the rose is
His schoing axe the settler awing	709	If sleep and death be truly one	290
His learning such no author, old or new :	907	If solitude hath ever led thy steps	41
His puissant sword unto his side	506	If stores of dry and learned lore we gain	115
Home of the Percy's high-born race	677	If the red slayer think he slays	741
Home they brought her warrior dead	200	If this fair rose offend thy sight	171
Honor and shame from no condition rise		to the same less me les to be de servered.	12
	101	If thou must love me. let it be for naught	181
Ho pretty page with the dimpled chin	202	If thou shouldst ever come by choice or chance	USA U
		If thou wert by my side, my love
Ho sailor of the sea '		If thou wilt ease thine heart
How beautiful is the rain '	428	If thou wouldst view fair Melrose aright
How beautiful this night the balmiest sigh	415	If to be absent were to be
How calm they sleep beneath the shade	305	If women could be fair and never fond
How dear to this heart are the scenes of my child		If you're waking, call me early
bood	10n
How delicions to the winning	100	I gazed upon the glorious sky	42
How delicious is the winning	185	I gazed upon the glorious sky	12
How delicious is the winning	185 488	I gazed upon the glorious sky	170 170 119
How delicious is the winning	185 488 449	I gazed upon the glorious sky I grew assured before I asked. I had sworn to be a bachelor I has seen great anes and set in s ^d sat ha's.	17 17 11 22
How desclate were nature How does the water come down at Lodore How do I love thee? Let me count the ways	185 488 449 190	I gazed upon the glorious sky	17 17 11 22

INDEX OF FIRST LINES.

i have got a new-born sister 78	I prithee send me back my heart 146
I have had playmates	I reckon I git your drift, gents
I have ships that went to sea 261	I remember, I remember 93
I heard the trailing garments of the night 416	I reside at Table Mountain
I in these flowery meads would be 668	I saw him kiss your cheek 198
I knew by the smoke that so gracefully curled 228	I saw him once before 323
1 know not that the men of old	I saw thee when, as twilight fell 303
I know not whence it rises	I saw two clouds at morning
I lay me down to sleep 295	Is it the palm, the cocoa palm
I leaned out of window, I smelt the white clover . 172	I slept and dreamed that life was Beauty 557
I lent my girl a book one day 253	I sometimes hold it half a sin 290
I like s church ; I like a cowl	I sprang to the stirrup, and Joris and he 578
I like that ancient Saxon phrase 305	Is there a whim-inspired fool
I'll sing you a good old song	Is there for honest poverty
I love, and have some cause to love, the earth 360	Is there when the winds are single 84
I love at eventide to walk alone 427	Is this a dagger which I see before me 882
I love contemplating—apart 618	Is this a fast,—to keep
I loved him in my dawning years 972	I stood, one Sunday morning
I loved nim not; and yet, now he is gone 260	I stood, one Sunday morning
l loved thee once, I'll love no more 267	I thought our love at full, but I did err 216
I love it, I love it and who shall dare., 101	I thought to pass away before 329
I love thee, love thee, Giulio!	It is an Ancient Mariner 854
I love to hear thine earnest voice 485	It is done!
I love to wander through the woodlands hoary 692	It is not beauty I demand
I made a posie, while the day ran by	It is not growing like a tree 729
I marvelled why a simple child 1006	It is the miller's daughter
I met a traveller from an antique land,	It kindles all my soul
I'm in love with you, baby Louise '	It lies around us like a cloud
I'm sitting alone by the fire 199	It must be so. Plato, thou reasonest well'. 759
* *	It's we two, it's we two for aye
	It was a beauty that I saw
I'm wearin awa', Jean	It was a dreary day in Padua 886
	• • •
	It was a friar of orders gray 137 It was a summer evening. 538
In a valley, centuries ago 863	It was a time of sadness, and my heart 374
In Broad Street building (on a winter night) 962	It was fifty years ago 935
Indeed this very love which is my boast . 189	It was many and many a year ago 285
In eddying course when leaves began to fly . 865	"It was our wedding day" 218
I need not praise the sweetness of his song	It was the autumn of the year 250
In either hand the hastening angel caught 321	It was the wild midnight
I never gave a lock of hair away	It was upon an April morn
In every village marked with little spire	I've wandered east, I've wandered west
In facile natures fancies quickly grow 781	I wandered by the brookside 149
In good King Charles's golden days 945	I wandered lonely as a cloud
In heavy sleep the Caliph lay 866	I was a stricken deer, that left the herd 790
In holy might we made the vow 268	I was in Margate last July
In Koln, a town of monks and bones 954	I weigh not fortune's frown or smile 781
In May, when sea-winds pierced our solitudes 461	I will go back to the great sweet mother 611
In melancholic fancy 820	I will not have the mad Clytie
In moss-prankt dells which the sunbcams flatter1010	I will not let you say a woman's part 143
In my poor mind it is most sweet to muse 86	I will paint her as I see her 97
In Sana, O, in Sana, God, the Lord 652	I wish my hair cut
In g'umbers of midnight the sailor-boy lay . 614	I wonder if Brougham 93
In summer, when the days were long	I would I were an excellent divine
In the ancient town of Bruges	I would not enter on my list of friends
In the barn, the tenant cock	I wrote some lines
In the days that tried our fathers 1008	Toffen Ale Democatile Alexand Wildon
in the fair gardens of celestial peace	Jaffar, the Barmecice, the good Vizier 115
In the hollow tree in the old gray tower 483	Jenny kissed me when we met
In the hour of my distress 859	Jingle, Jingle, clear the way 670
In the low-raftered garret	Johannes, Johannes, tibicine natus
In the merry month of May 138	John Anderson, my jo, John
In their ragged regimentals 500	John Brown of Ossawatomie spake on his dying
In the region of clouds	day
In the still air the music lies unheard	John Dobbins was so captivated 955
In the valley of the Pegnitz	John Cilpin was a citizen
Into a ward of the whitewashed walls 531	Jorosse was in his three-and-twentieth year 651
In Kanadu did Kubia Khan	Judge not, the workings of his brain
In vain the cords and axes were prepared 612	Just in the dubious point, where with the pool 669
I only knew she cor and went	Just in thy mould and beauteous in thy form 626
lphigeneia, who rd her doom 873	What There do not be seen to t registed the st. t cannot now abide it 503	King Francis was a hearty king

Kissing her hair, I sat against her feet 188	Maxwelton banks are bonuie	15
Kiss me, though you make believe 188	May the Babylonish curse	54
Knows he that never took a pinch	Meantime, the moist malignity to shun
Know'st thou the land where bloom the citron	Mellow the moonlight to shine is beginning
bowers	Men dying make their wills-but wives.
Know ye the land where the cypress and myrtle 451	Merrily swinging on brier and weed
Willow he tire time a more mo character and indirective and	Merry Margaret
Y - d- Olone Word de Word	Methinks it were no pain to die
Lady Clara Vere de Vere
Lars Porsena of Clusium	Mica, mica, parva stella
Last night, among his fellow roughs	Michael bid sound the archangel trumpet
Lay him beneath his snows	Midnight past! Not a sound of aught
Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom 364	Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam
Let me be your servant	Mild offspring of a dark and sullen sire !	46
Let me not to the marriage of true minds 208	Milton ! thou shouldst be living
Let no man write my epitaph	Mine be a cot beside the hill	22
Let not woman e'er complain 194	Mine eyes have seen the glory	50
Let Sporus tremble	Mine eyes he closed, but open left the cell
Let Taylor preach, upon a morning breezy 963	Miss Flora McFlimsy
Life! I know not what thou art	Moan, moan, ye dying gales!
Life may be given in many ways 930	More than the soul of ancient song
Light as a flake of foam upon the wind	Most potent, grave, and reverend Light-winged smoke Icarian bird
	Most sweet it is with unuplifted eyes
Like as the armed Knighte 366	Mr. Orator Puff had two tones in his voice
Like as the damask rose you see	Muses, that sing Love's sensual empiric
Like to the clear in highest sphere 127	Music, when soft voices die
Like to the falling of a star 301	My beautiful, my beautiful!
Linger not long. Home is not home without thee 244	My boat is on the shore
Listen, my children, and you shall hear 590	My curse upon thy venomed stang
Lithe and long as the serpent train 456	My dear and only love, I pray	150
Little Ellie sits alone	"My ear-rings, my ear-rings"	171
Little Gretchen, little Gretchen wanders 836	My eyes! how I love you	190
Little I ask; my wants are few 733	My fairest child, I have no song
Little inmate, full of mirth	My gentle Puck, come hither
Little thinks, in the field, you red-cloaked clown 405	My girl hath violet eyes and yellow hair,
Lochiel, Lochiel! beware of the day 573	My God, I love thee ! not because
Long pored St. Austin o'er the sacred page 362	My heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains
Look at me with thy large brown eyes	My heart leaps up when I behold
Look in my face; my name is Might-have-been 744	My heart's in the Highlands.
Look round our world; behold the chain of love 405
Lord call thy pallid angel	My held is like to rend, Willie
Lord of the winds! I feel thee nigh	My letters! all dead paper, mute and white
	My life is like the summer rose
Lord I when those glorious lights I see	My little love, do you remember
Lo, when the Lord made north and south 128	My loved, my honored, much-respected friend
Lo! where she comes along with portly pace 212	My love and I for kisses played
Lo ! where the rosy-bosomed Hours	My love he built me a bonnie bower
Loud and clear	My love, I have no fear that thou shouldst die
Loud roared the dreadful thunder	My minde to me a kingdom is
Love divine, all love excelling	My mule refreshed, his bells	44(
Love in my bosom like a bee	My prime of youth is but a frost of cares	74
Love is a little golden fish	My sister! my sweet sister! if a name
Love is a sickness full of woes 136	My soul to-day	684
Love me little, love me long! 141	Mysterious night! when our first parent knew
Love not, love not! ye hapless sons of clay! 320	My time, O ye Muses, was happily spent	24.
Love not me for comely grace	My true love hath my heart, and I have his
Love scorns degrees; the low he lifteth high 136	My voice is still for war.
Low-anchored cloud
Low burns the summer afternoon 412	Nae shoon to hide her tiny taes	71
Low on the utmost boundary of the sight	Naked on parent's knees.
	Nay! if you will not sit upon my knee
Lucy is a golden girl	Nay, you wrong her, my friend
Wolfer Landshill Alice and In Superior	Nearer, my God, to thee
Maiden! with the meek brown eyes	Needy knife-grinder! whither are you going?
Maid of Athens, ere we part	Never any more
" Make way for Liberty!" he cried 584	Never wedding, ever wooing
Man's home is everywhere. On ocean's flood 776	Next to thee, O fair gazelle
"Man wants but little here below" 782	Night is the time for rest	416
Many a green isle needs must be 441	No baby in the house, I know
Many a long, long year ago 998	No more these simple flowers belong
Many a year is in its grave	No soldier, statesman
Margarita first possessed	No splendor 'neath the sky's proud dome
Martial, the things that do attain	No stir in the air, no stir in the sea
Maud Muller on a summer's day. 15k		498

INDEX OF FIRST LINES.

Not a damma was board man a familiary	O Warm and Abru mulandarm had
Not a drum was heard, nor a funeral note 920	O Mary, at thy window be! 16
Not as you meant, O learned man. 391 Not far advanced was morning day 648	O Mary, go and call the cattle home
Not tar advanced was morning day 648	O, may I join the choir invisible
Nothing but leaves : the spirit grieves	O melancholy bird, a winter's day
Not in the laughing bowers	O mighty Cæsar ' dost thou lie so low 87
Not only we, the latest seed of Time	O Mistress mine, where are you roaming? 12
Not ours the vows of such as plight 213	O mortal man, who livest here by toil 83
Not yet, the flowers are in my path	O mother dear, Jerusalem, 25
Now came still evening on, and twilight gray 413	O mother of a mighty race
Now gentle sleep hath closed up those eyes 186	O, my love's like the steadfast sun 21
Now the bright morning star, day's harbinger . 422	O, my love's like a red, red rose
Now the bright morning star, day a maroinger . 422
Now the third and fatal conflict	On a hill there grows a flower 12
Now upon Syria's land of roses 451	On Alpine heights the love of God is shed 44
Now went forth the morn 500	O Nancy wilt thou go with me 15
Now westward Sol had spent the richest beam 774	Once in the flight of ages past 80
O a dadada alamata da da da	Once more unto the breach, dear friends 50
O. a dainty plant is the ivy green	Once more upon the waters ' yet once more ' 56
O beauteous God uncircumscribed tressure 367	Once on a golden afternoon
O blithe new-comer I have heard 472	Once, Paumsnok, when the snows had melted 47
O, breathe not his name! 921	Once Switzerland was free! 58
O Caledonia ' stern and wild	Once this soft turf, this rivulet's sands 58
O, came ye ower by the Yoke burn Ford 639	Once upon a midnight dreary 85
O. deem not they are blest alone	Once when the days were ages 74
O. dinna ask megin I lo'e ye	One day, as I was going by
O. don't be sorrowful, darling' 231	One day I wandered where the salt sea-tide
O, do not wanton with those eyes 184	One day, nigh weary of the yrksome way 92
O'er a low couch the setting sun	One eve of beauty, when the sun
O'er the glad waters of the dark blue sea 626	One hue of our flag is taken
O, ever from the deeps	One more unfortunate
O faint, delicious, springtime violet! 461	One night came on a hurricane 69
O fairest of creation, last and best 216	One sweetly solemn thought
O fairest of the rural maids	One year ago,—a ringing voice
Of all men, saving Sylla the man-slayer 926	On her white breast a sparkling cross she wore 12
Of all the flowers in the mead	On Linden, when the sun was low 51
Of all the girls that are so smart	Only waiting till the shadows
Of all the ships upon the blue 970	On, on, my brown Arab
Of all the thoughts of God that are 762	O no, no,—let me lie
Of all the torments, all the cares	On Richmond Hill there lives a lass 14
Of a' the airts the wind can blaw	On the cross-beam under the Old South bell 47
O Father, let me not die young! 380	On the eighth day of March it was, some people
O first of human blessings, and supreme! 499	say
O for a lodge in some vast wilderness 503	On the isle of Penikese
O forest dells and streams 'O Doriantide 282	On the sea and at the Hogue
O, formed by nature, and refined by art 209	On thy fair bosom, silver lake
O for one hour of youthful joy	On what foundations stands the warrior's pride 90
Oft have I seen, at some cathedral door 707	On woodlands ruddy with autumn 59
Oft in the stilly night	O perfect Light, which shaid away 42
O gentle, gentle summer rain	O, pour upon my soul again 31
O God, methinks, it were a happy life 225	O reader, hast thou ever stood to see 45
O God ' though sorrow be my fate	O, reverend sir, I do declare
O go not yet, my love 235	011. 1010114 104 1 100 1100 1110 1110 11
O Bo mot you my love	O Rosamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun 459	O Rosamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun 459 O happiness' our being's end and aim! 786	O Rosamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun 459 O happiness' our being's end and aim! 736 O hearts that never cease to yearn 272	O Rosamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun .459 O happiness' our being's end and aim! .736 O hearts that never cease to yearn .272 O how the thought of God attracts .874 O Italy, how beautiful thou art! .679 O, it is hard to work for God .390 Ot t is negagant, with a heart at ease .822	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun 459 O happiness' our being's end and aim! 786 O hearts that never cease to yearn 272 O how the thought of God attracts 874 O Italy, how beautiful thou art! 679 O, it is pleasant, with a heart at ease 822 O keeper of the Sacred Key 528	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun 459 O happiness' our being's end and aim! 786 O hearts that never cease to yearn 272 O how the thought of God attracts 374 O Italy, how beautiful thou art! 679 O, it is hard to work for God 390 O, it fa pleasant, with a heart at ease 822 O keeper of the Sacred Key 523 O land, of every land the best 533	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun 459 O happiness' our being's end and aim! 736 O hearts that never cease to yearn 272 O how the thought of God attracts 374 O Italy, how beautiful thou art! 679 O, it is hard to work for God 390 O, it fa pleasant, with a heart at ease 822 O keeper of the Sacred Key 528 O land, of every land the best 583 O, lay thy hand in mine, dear' 221 Old Birch who taught the village school 996	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun 459 O happiness' our being's end and aim! 736 O hearts that never cease to yearn 272 O how the thought of God attracts 374 O Italy, how beautiful thou art! 679 O, it is hard to work for God 390 O, it is pleasant, with a heart at ease 822 O keeper of the Sacred Key 528 O land, of every land the best 523 O, lay thy hand in mine, dear' 221 Old Birch who taught the village school 996 Old Grimes is dead 976 Old Master Brown brought his ferule down 99 Old Tubal Cain was a man of might 587	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun O happiness' our being's end and aim! 786 O hearts that never cease to yearn 272 O how the thought of God attracts 974 O Italy, how beautiful thou art! 679 O, it is pleasant, with a heart at ease 282 O keeper of the Sacred Key 283 O land, of every land the best 283 O lay thy hand in mine, dear! 291 Old Birch who taught the village school 996 Old Grimes is dead 976 Old man, God bless you! 580 Old Master Brown brought his ferule down 997 Old Tubal Cain was a man of might 587 Old wine to drink! 118	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good
O, greenly and fair in the lands of the sun	O Rusamond, thou fair and good

O the snow, the beautiful snow	Saviour, when in dust to thee
O, those littel, those little blue shoes	Say, from what golden quivers of the sky
O thou, great Friend to all the sons of men 389	Say over again, and yet once over again
O thou of home the guardian Lar	Say there! P'r'aps
O thou vast Ocean '	Scorn not the sonnet; critic, you have frowned
O unseen spirit ' now a calm divine	Search thou the ruling passion; there alone
Our band is few, but true and tried	Seated I see the two again
Our boat to the waves go free	Seated one day at the organ
Our bugles sang truce, for the night-cloud had low-	See, from this counterfeit of him
ered	See how the orient dew	480
Our Fatherland ' and wouldst thou know 778	See you robin on the spray
Our good steeds snuff the evening air 518	Shall I tell you whom I love?
Our hopes, like towering falcons 790	Shall I, wasting in despair
Our life is twofold sleep has its own world 784	Shame upon thee, savage monarch—man
Our love is not a fading earthly flower 216 Our revels now are ended	Shame upon you, Robin
Out of the bosom of the Air	She dwelt among the untrodden ways
Out of the clover and blue-eyed grass	She is a winsome wee thing
Outstretched beleath the leafy shade	"She is dead!" they said to him
Out upon it. I have loved 124	She is not fair to outward view
Over the dumb campagna sea 683	She laid it where the sunbeams fall
Over the hill to the poor-house	Shepherds all, and maidens fair	469
Over the river they beckon to me	She says, "The cock crows,—hark!"
Over the snows	She shrank from all, and her silent mood
O, wad that my time were owre but 243	She stood alone amidst the April fields
O, waly, waly up the bank	She stood breast high amid the corn
	She walks in beauty, like the night
O, when 't is summer weather	She was a phantom of delight
O whistle, and I'll come to you, my lad 156	Should auld acquaintance be forgot
O, why should the spirit of mortal be proud? 302	Silent nymph, with curious eye!
O, will ye choose to hear the news?	Simple, erect, severe, austere, sublime
O winter' wilt thou never, never go? 441	Since there's no helpe,-come, let us kisse and parte
O World ' O Life ' O Time! 322	Sing, sweet thrushes, forth and sing!	667
O ye wha are sae guid yoursel' 784	Singing through the forests	986
O yet we trust that somehow good 392	Sir Marmaduke was a hearty knight
O, Young Lochinvar is come out of the west 175	Sit down, sad soul, and count
Pack clouds away, and welcome day 409	Sitting all day in a silver mist
Pale is the February sky	Six skeins and three, six skeins and three
Paris, Anchises, and Adonis, three	Sky, mountains, river, winds, lake, lightnings
Parrhasius stood, gazing forgetfully 831	Slayer of winter, art thou here again ?
Passing from Italy to Greece 694	Sleep breathes at last from out thee
Pause not to dream of the future before us 556	Sleep, little baby of mine
Peace to all such ! 910	Sleep, love, sleep !	763
Phillis is my only joy 124	Sleep on ' and dream of Heaven awhile !
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu	Sleep, sleep to-day, tormenting cares	38
Piped the blackbird on the beechwood spray 88	Sleep sweetly in your humble graves.
Pity the sorrows of a poor old man	Slowly England's sun was setting
Pleasing 't is, O modest Moon '	Slumber, Sleep,—they were two brothers
Poor Rose' I lift you from the street 266	So all day long the noise of battle rolled
"Praise God from whom all blessings flow" 556	So every spirit, as it is most pure.
Prune thou thy words	So fallen! so lost! the light withdrawn
Prize thou the nightingale 479	Softly woo away her breath
	Soldier, rest! thy warfare o'er	53
Quivering fears, heart tearing cares 667
Data Ala and and Manual and a	Somebody's courting somebody	17
Rake the embers, blow the coals	Some murmur when their sky is clear	88
Rest there awhile, my bearded lance	Some of their chiefs were princes of the land	90
Ring out wild bells, to the wild sky	Some reckon their age by years	10
Rise, said the Master; come unto the feast 301	Some wit of old	977
"Rock of Ages" 367	So much to do so little done!	75
Roll on, thou ball, roll on 1012	So spake the Son, and into terror changed	50
"Room for the leper! Room!"	So the truth's out. I'll grasp it like a snake	20
Rudolph, professor of the headsman's 978	Sound all to arms !	50:
Red to our worth doubt to account	Speak, O man, less recent! Fragmentary fossil!	99:
Sad is our youth, for it is ever going	Spirit that breathes through my lattice	41
Said I not so,—that I would sin no more?	Spring it is cheery	82
	I AVAIA AAAMA MARD B W DDB BLUTTINK	4.00

	_
Spring with the nameless pathos in the air 422	The dreamy rhymer's measured snore	4
Stabat mater dolorosa	The dule 's i' this bonnet o' mine	~
Stand here, by my side and turn, I pray 440	The earth goes on, the earth glittering in gold 3	o
Stand the ground's your own, my braves ! 590	The elder folk shook hands at last 8
Star of the mead ' sweet daughter of the day 463	The fairest action of our human life 2
Star that bringest home the bee 412	The fallen cause still waits 5	91
Stay, jailer, stay and hear my woe	The farmer sat in his easy chair 2
Steady, boys, steady!	The farmer's wife sat at the door
Steer hither, steer your winged pines	The fire of love in youthful blood
Still to be neat, still to be drest	The forward violet thus did I chide
Stop, mortal ' here thy brother lies914	The fountains mingle with the river 1
Straightway Virginius led the maid 873	The Frost looked forth, one still, clear night
Summer has gone 663	The frugal snall, with forecast of repose 4
Summer joys are o'er 434	The glories of our birth and state 8
Sweet and low, sweet and low	The gorse is yellow on the heath 4
Sweet are the thoughts that savor of content 731	The grass is green on Bunker Hill
Sweet Auburn loveliest village of the plain 686	The gray sea and the long black land
Sweet, be not proud of those two eyes	The half-seen memories of childish days 1
Sweet day, so cool, so calm, so bright	The harp that once through Tara's halls
Sweeter and sweeter 104	The heart of man, walk it which way it will 2
Sweet Highland Girl, a very shower 105	The heath this night must be my bed 2	34
Sweet is the pleasure	The hollow winds begin to blow
Sweet is the voice that calls 433	The island lies nine leagues away 6
Sweetly breathing vernal air 422	The isles of Greece, the isles of Greece!
Sweet stream that winds through yonder glade 106	The Jackdaw sat on the Cardinal's chair
Swiftly walk over the western wave	The jester shook his hood and bells
Sword, on my left side gleaming 519	The kiss, dear maid, thy lip has left 2
Take back into thy bosom, earth 922	The knight had ridden down from Wensley Moor 6
Take one example to our purpose quite	The laird o' Cockpen he 's proud and he 's great 2
Take, O, take those lips away	The lark sings for joy in her own loved land 4
Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean 815	The latter rain,—it falls in anxious haste 4	85
Tell me not in mournful numbers	The lion is the desert's king 4
Tell me not, sweet, I am unkinde 285	The little brown squirrel hops in the corn10
Tell me where is fancy bred 125	The little gate was reached at last
Tell me, ye wingèd winds	The maid, and thereby hangs a tale
Thank Heaven' the crisis	The melancholy days are come
That I love thee, charming maid 190	The merry brown hares came leaping
That which hath made them drunk	The merry, merry lark was up and singing 2
That which her slender waist confined 125	The midges dance aboon the burn 4
The angel of the flowers, one day 464	The might of one fair face sublimes my love 15
The Assyrian came down like the wolf on the fold. 501	The mistletoe hung in the castle hall 8
The autumn is old 433	The moon it chines
	The moon it shines
The Autumn time is with us	The more we live, more brief appear?	41
The baby sits in her cradle 433	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86
The baby sits in her cradle	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 61
The baby sits in her cradle 483 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261	The more we live, more brief appear. ? The Moth's kiss, first! 11 The moving accident is not my trade. 6 The muse disgusted at an age and clime. 5	41 86 61 87
The baby sits in her cradle	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 61 87 06
The baby sits in her cradle	The more we live, more brief appear. 7 The Moth's kiss, first! 11 The moving accident is not my trade. 6 The muse disgusted at an age and clime. 5 The Muse's fairest light in no dark time. 9 Then before all they stand, the holy vow. 2 Then hear me, bounteous Heaven! 2	41 86 87 06 11 39
The baby sits in her cradle	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 87 87 87 88 88 84
The baby sits in her cradle	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 81 87 06 11 86 88
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black haired gaunt Paulinus 389 The blessed damozel leaned out 224 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 81 87 06 11 86 85 77
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black haired gaunt Paulinus 889 The blessed damozel leaned out 524 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The breaking waves dashed high 567	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 61 87 06 13 64 85 77
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black haired gaunt Paulinus 889 The blessed damozel leaned out 824 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The breaking waves dashed high 557 The brilliant black eye 131	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 61 87 06 11 86 64 85 77 09
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black haired gaunt Paulinus 884 The blessed damozel leaned out 824 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The brilliant black eye 131 The bubbling brook doth leap when I come by 403	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 87 06 11 86 64 85 77 81
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black haired gaunt Paulinus 889 The blessed damozel leaned out 824 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The breaking waves dashed high 557 The brilliant black eye 131	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 61 87 06 11 86 64 85 77 81 86
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung. God never formed a soul 281 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black haired gaunt Paulinus 824 The blessed damozel leaned out 824 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deok 614 The brilliant black eye 131 The bubbling brook doth leap when I come by 408 The busy larke, messager of daye 418 The castle crag of Drachenfels 446	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 87 87 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black halred gaunt Paulinus 889 The blessed damozel leaned out 824 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The breaking waves dashed high 587 The billiant black eye 181 The busy larke, messager of daye 418 The careful hen 470 The careful crag of Drachenfels 446 The cold winds swept the mountain's height 86	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 61 87 87 88 88 87 81 81 81 81 81 81
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black haired gaunt Paulinus 389 The blessed damozel leaned out 224 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The braking waves dashed high 587 The brilliant black eye 131 The bubling brook doth leap when I come by 408 The castle crag of Drachenfels 418 The castle crag of Drachenfels 450 The conscious water saw its God and blushed 862	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 87 86 87 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88
The baby sits in her cradle	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 87 86 87 87 87 87 88 88 88 88 88 88
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black haired gaunt Paulinus 824 The blessed damozel leaned out 824 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The braking waves dashed high 567 The brilliant black eye 131 The bubbling brook doth leap when I come by 408 The careful hen 470 The castle crag of Drachenfels 445 The cold winds swept the mountain's height 86 The conscious water saw its God and blushed 86 The country ways are full of mire 210 The cunning hand that carved this face 749	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 61 87 06 13 84 85 81 81 81 81 81 81 81
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black halred gaunt Paulinus 389 The blessed damozel leaned out 224 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The breaking waves dashed high 587 The billiant black eye 181 The busy larke, messager of daye 418 The careful hen 470 The cand crag of Drachenfels 446 The cold winds swept the mountain's height 86 The country ways are full of mire 210 The current hand that carved this face 749 The currew tolls the knell of parting day 305	The more we live, more brief appear	41 86 87 87 86 87 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88 88
The baby sits in her cradle	The more we live, more brief appear	41 88 66 66 66 66 66 66 66 66 66 66 66 66
The baby sits in her cradle 433 The baby wept 282 The bard has sung, God never formed a soul 261 The barge she sat in, like a burnished throne 712 The bell strikes one; we take no note of time 747 The black halred gaunt Paulinus 389 The blessed damozel leaned out 224 The blessed morn has come again 440 The boy stood on the burning deck 614 The breaking waves dashed high 587 The billiant black eye 181 The busy larke, messager of daye 418 The careful hen 470 The cand crag of Drachenfels 446 The cold winds swept the mountain's height 86 The country ways are full of mire 210 The current hand that carved this face 749 The currew tolls the knell of parting day 305	The more we live, more brief appear	41 88 61 87 06 12 89 64 85 77 81 86 18 86 18 80 81 80 81 80 81 81 81 81 81 81 81 81 81 81 81 81 81

	I
There came a man, making his hasty moan 700	Thou still unravished bride of quietness 71
There came to the beach a poor exile of Erin 578	Thou who dost dwell alone
There in the fane a beauteous creature stands 776 There is a dungeon in whose dim drear light 222	Thou who, when fears attack
There is a flower, a little flower	Thou whose sweet youth
There is a garden in her face	Three poets, in three distant ages born 90
There is a niland on a river lying 1000	Three students were travelling over the Rhine 14
There is no force, however great 992	Three years she grew in sun and shower 10
There was an ape, in the days that were earlier 991	Through her forced, abnormal quiet
The summer and autumn had been so wet 879	Thus, then, I steer my bark
The summer sun is falling soft 880	Thy braes were bonny, Yarrow stream 28
The summer sun was sinking 840	Thy error, Fremont 98
The sunburnt mowers are in the swath 552	Tiger! tiger! burning bright 46
The sun comes up and the sun goes down 769	Time has a magic wand 97
The sun has gane down o'er the lofty Ben Lomond. 148	Tis a dozen or so of years ago100
The sun is warm, the sky is clear	Tis a fearful night in the winter time 44
The sunlight fills the trembling air	Tis an old dial dark with many a stain 18
The sunlight glitters keen and bright	'Tis a little thing
The sun shines bright in our old Kentucky home 238	"Tis beauty truly blent, whose red and white 12
The sun sinks softly to his evening post	Tis believed that this harp
The sun that brief December day	'Tis midnight's holy hour
The thoughts are strange that crowd into my brain 449	'Tis much immortal beauty to admire
The time hath laid his mantle by	'Tis night, when Meditation bids us feel
The tree of deepest root is found	'Tis past,—the sultry tyrant of the South 43
The twilight hours, like birds, flew by 610	Tis sweet to hear
The wanton troopers, riding by 259	Tis the last rose of summer
The waters puried, the waters swelled 825	'Tis the middle watch of a summer's night 84
The weary night is o'er at last 518	'Tis time this heart should be unmoved 25
The weather leach of the topsail shivers 619	To bear, to nurse, to rear
The wind blew wide the casement 81	To be, or not to be,—that is the question 29
The wind it blew, and the ship it flew 646	To claim the Arctic came the sun
The winds transferred into the friendly sky 414	To draw no envy, Shakespeare, on thy name 90
The winter being over	To heaven approached a Sufi saint 96
The wisest of the wise	To him who, in the love of Nature, holds 30
The word of the Lord by night 597	Toiling in the naked fields 55
The world goes up and the world goes down 214	Toil on! toil on! ye ephemeral train
The world is too much with us	Toll for the brave 61
The world is very evil	To make my lady's obsequies
The world's a bubble, and the life of man 320	To make this condiment your poet begs
The Yankee boy before he's sent to school 979 They are all gone into the world of light 274	To-morrow's action! can that hoary wisdom 75 Too late, alas! I must confess 16
They are dying! they are dying '	Too late I stayed,—forgive the crime!
They come! the merry summer months 423	To sea! to sea! the calm is o'er
They course the glass, and let it take no rest 712	To sea! to sea! the calm is o'er
The year stood at its equinox	To the sounds of timbrels sweet
They'll talk of him for years to come 913	Toussaint! the most unhappy man of men 92
They told me I was heir: I turned in haste 770	To weary hearts, to mourning homes 27
They tell me I am shrewd with other men 116	To write a verse or two is all the praise
They've got a bran new organ, Sue 995	To you, my purse, and to noon other wight 20
Think not I love him, though I ask for him 144	Tread softly,—bow the head 84
This figure, that thou here see'st put 905	Tres Philosophi de Tusculo
This book is all that's left me now 100	Trochee trips from long to short
This is the forest primeval	True bard and simple,—as the race 92
This is the ship of pearl which poets feign 625	True genius, but true woman! dost deny 92
This life, and all that it contains	Turn, Fortune, turn thy wheel
This region, surely, is not of the earth	Turn, turn, for my cheeks they burn
This way the noise was, if mine ear be true 829	Twas a jolly old pedagogue, long ago
This world's a scene as dark as Styx 1015	Twas at the royal feast, for Persia won
Those evening bells those evening bells ! 716	'Twas in heaven pronounced, and 'twas muttered
Thou blossom, bright with autumn dew 465	in hell
Though the mills of God grind slowly 747	'Twas ever thus from childhood's hour 99
Thought is deeper than all speech	Twas in the prime of summer time
Though when other maids stand by 156	Twas morn, and beautiful the mountain's brow 44
Thou Grace Divine, encircling all 392	Twas on the shores that round our coast 98
Thou happy, happy elf '	'Twas the night before Christmas 9
Thou hast sworn by thy God, my Jeanie 208	Two barks met on the deep mid-sea
Thou hidden love of God, whose height 890	Two hands upon the breast
Thou large-brained woman	Two little feet, so small that both may nestle 7
Thou lingering star, with lessening ray 288	Two mites, two drops, yet all her house and land 36
Then little hird then dweller by the sea	TWO OF IST nobler shape, erect and tall

Two pilgrims from the distant plain 1	130	When a ther bairnies are hushed to their hame	91
Two went to pray? O, rather say 8		Whenas in silks my Julia goes,
Tying her bonnet under her chin 1		When Britain first, at Heaven's command
		Whence comes my love? O heart, disclose
Under a spreading chestnut-tree 5		When chapman billies leave the street
Under my window, under my window		When chill November's surly blast.
Underneath this marble hearse 9		When Delia on the plain appears.
Unfading Hope! when life's last embers burn?		When descends on the Atlantic
Untremulous in the river clear 4		When Eve brought woe
Up from the meadows rich with corn 5		When falls the soldier brave
Up from the South at break of day	594	When first I saw sweet Peggy
Upon ane stormy Sunday 1	187	When first thou camest, gentle, shy, and fond	83
Upon a rock yet uncreate	991	When Freedom, from her mountain height	592
Upon the white sea-sand 8	388	When God at first made man	778
Up! quit thy bower! 4		When I am dead, no pageant train	90:
Up springs the lark 4		When icicles hang by the wall
Up the airy mountain		When I consider how my light is spent
Up the dale and down the bourne		When I do count the clock that tells the time
Up the streets of Aberdeen		When in the chronicle of wasted time
op me serects of Abertace		When in the storm on Albion's coast
Word Court of Calebon	_
Veni, Creator Spiritus		When Israel, of the Lord beloved
Veni, Sancte Spiritus		When I think on the happy days
Victor in poesy 'Victor in romance		When Learning's triumph o'er her barbarous foes
Vital spark of heavenly flame!	965	When leaves grow sere all things take sombre hue.
	- 1	When Lesbia first I saw so heavenly fair	71
Waken, lords and ladies gay	658	When lovely woman stoops to folly	33
Warsaw's last champion from her height surveyed 5		When Love with unconfined wings	144
	892 i	When maidens such as Hester die	28
We are two travellers, Roger and I	547	When mighty roast beef was the Englishman's
Weehawken! In thy mountain scenery yet		food	57
Wee, modest, crimson tipped flower		When Music, heavenly maid, was young
Weep ye no more, sad fountains!		When o'er the mountain steeps
		When on my bed the moonlight falls
Wee, sleekit, cow'rin, tim'rous beastie 4		When stricken by the freezing blast
Wee Willie Winkie rins through the town
We have been friends together		When Summer o'er her native hills
We knew it would rain, for all the morn		When that my mood is sad and in the noise	44
We know not what it is, dear, this sleep so deep		When the black-lettered list to the gods was pre-
Welcome, maids of honor'	461	sented
Welcome, welcome, do I sing 1	126	When the British warrior queen
We live in deeds, not years	742	When the hounds of spring	413
We meet 'neath the sounding rafter 8	998	When the hours of day are numbered
We parted in silence, we parted by night	240	When the humid shadows hover	91
We pledged our hearts, my love and I		When the lamp is shattered	26
Were I as base as is the lowly plain		When the lessons and tasks are all ended	28
Werther had a love for Charlotte		When the sheep are in the fauld
We sat by the fisher's cottage		When to the sessions of sweet silent thought
We scatter seeds with careless hand		When troubled in spirit, when weary of life
		When your beauty appears
We see not, know not all our way
We stood upon the ragged rocks	121	Where are the men who went forth in the morning
We the fairies blithe and antic	885	Where are the swallows fled?
We were crowded in the cabin	627	Where are you going, my pretty maid
We were not many, - we who stood	528	Whereas, on certain boughs and sprays
We wreathed about our darling's head	280	Where did you come from, baby dear?
Whan that Aprille with hise shoures soote	695	Where is the grave of Sir Arthur O'Kellyn?
What a moment, what a doubt!	015	Where the remote Bermudas ride	65
What ails this heart o' mine	245	Whether with reason or with instinct blest	78
What change has made the pastures sweet		Which is the wind that brings the cold?	45
What constitutes a state /		Which I wish to remark, and my language is plain.
What does little birdle say		Which shall it be? which shall it be?
	619	While on the cliff with calm delight she kneels
	291	While sauntering through the crowded street
	744
		Whither, midst falling dew
	75	Whoe'er she be
What needs my Shakespeare for his honored bones.			410
	780	Who has not heard of the Vale of Cashmere
	244
What's hallowed ground? Has earth a clod	788	Why came the rose? Because the sun is shining	14
What's this dull town to me?		Why, lovely charmer, tell me why	14
	865	Why sits she thus in solitude?	79
What, was it a dream? am I all alone	527	Why so pale and wan, fond lover?
Wheel me into the sunshine		Why thus longing, thus forever sighing

INDEX OF FIRST LINES.

Widow Machree, it's no wonder you frown 200	Ye mariners of England	À
Wild rose of Alloway! my thanks 915	Ye powers who rule the tongue 7	80
Willie, fold your little hands 516	Yes! bear them to their rest	168
With awful walls, far glooming, that possessed 699	"Yes," Í answered you last night 1	44
With deep affection 715	Ye sons of freedom, wake to glory ! 5	84
With fingers weary and worn	Ye who would have your features florid 5	45
With how sad steps, O moon thou climb'st 249	Yield to me now, for I am weak	71
Within the navel of this hideous wood	"You are old, Father William," the young man
Within these walls of Arcadie 904	cried 5	45
Within the sober realm of leafless trees	You bells in the steeple	01
With silent awe I hail the sacred morn 410	You charm when you talk 9	14
With sorrow and heart's distress
Woodman, spare that tree! 101
		24
Wouldst thou hear what man can say 907	You must wake and call me early 3
Would ye be taught, ye feathered throng 904	Young Ben he was a nice young man 9
Would you know why I summoned you together? 875	"Young, gay, and fortunate!" Each yields a theme. 1
	Young Rory O'More courted Kathleen Bawn I	96
Year after year unto her feet	Your fav'rite picture rises up before me	81
Years, years ago, ere yet my dreams 971	Your horse is faint, my king, my lord	07
Ye banks and bracs o' bonnie Doon 249
	Vou see this nabble stone ? It's a thing I hought 10

•
•	INDEX	OF FAMO	OUS QUOTA	ATIONS.

ANALYTICAL INDEX

OF FAMOUS AND APT POETICAL QUOTATIONS.

THE Poetical Quotations referred to in this Index will be found—as indicated by the page-number following the line or phrase indexed—either in the body of some poem, or as a brief or "fragment' in its appropriate Division. The key-words, under which these are indexed, will ordinarily be the nonne of the quotation, although there is many a "bold expressive phrase." the essential peculiarities of which are indexed, whatever they may be Take two familiar matances, the key-words being here italicised:

" Truth crushed to earth shall rise again."

is found in Wm. Cullen Bryant's poem entitled "The Battle-Field," on page 534; while "Sighed and looked unutterable things" on page 204 is found to be a fragment from "The Seasons: Summer," by JAMES THOMSON. Thus the reader may ascertain the position in this volume, the original source or poem, the name of the author, and the correct reading of the thousands of poetical quotations given in the book.

AARON'S serpent, like 700
Abandon, all hope, ye who enter here, 396. Abashed, the devil stood, 398.
Abashed, the devil stood, 398.
Abdele, the seraph, fathful found, 397
Abode, draw his frailites from their dread, 397
Abode, draw his frailites from their dread, 397
Abou Ben Adhem, may his tribe increase, 768
Abou the reach of ordinary men, 807.
Abridgment of all that was pleasant in man, 768
Above the reach of ordinary men, 807.
Abridgment of all that was pleasant in man, 768
Above the reach of ordinary men, 807.
Abridgment of all that was pleasant in man, 768
Above the reach of the service of the same service of s

Actions of the just, only the, 301, speaker of my living, 84, virtuous, are but born and die, 812. Actors, these our, 867
Acts being seven ages, his, 711. graceful, those thousand decencies, 209, little nameless unremembered, 404, our, our angels are, or good or ill, 797 the best, he most lives who, 743. Ad infinitum, and so proceed, 496. Adage, like the poor cat i' the, 800. Adam could find no solid peace, 232. dolve and Eve span, 559. goodliest man of men, 712. waked, so customed, 490. whipped the offending, out of hin, 395. Adam's fail, we sinned all, in, 397. Added pudding, 802. Adam's fail, we sinned all, in, 397. Added pudding, 802. Addis a precious seeing to the eye, 203. Addis a precious seeing to the eye, 203. Addis a precious seeing to the eye, 203. She cried and waved me! Hy hand, 235. she cried and waved me! Hy hand, 235. she cried and waved me! Addis a precious peeing to the eye, 203. Addis a precious seeing to the eye, 203. Admire, useless to excel where none, 133. Admire, no, greatest works of, 248
Admire, useless to excel where none, 133. Admire, the nice, 273. Admire, the nice, 273. Admired to that equal sky, 399. Adoption, their, tried, 121. Adore delify the things that we, 232 the hand that gives the blow, 312. Adores and burns, rap teraph that, 394. Adores and fine the work on wuch art, 795. Adorns and cheers the way, 800. Adventuring both, 1 oft found both by, 802. Adventuring both, 1 oft found both by, 80

Affects to nod, 772.

Affectson, of all, taught the lover yet, 248.

Affectson, of all, taught the lover yet, 248.

Affectson, the heavies shower, 398.

Affectson is heavies shower, 398.

Afford, fear 18, and Jealousy mjustice, 795.

well-bred man will not, me, 780.

Afraid to trike, 900.

Afraid to trike, 900.

Afric's sunny fountains, 395.

After-loss, drop in for an, 271.

Agate-stone, in shape no bigger than an, 830.

Age, accompany old, that which should, 794.

ache, penury, and imprisonment, 347.

cannot wither her, 712.

comfort to my, be, 394.

decreptr, childhood nanhood and, 792.

exempt from scorn or crime, 794.

graping, holds its warped mirror to a, 894.

graping, not an in piled stones, 506.

and the stone mine own, 517.

not of an, but for all time, 905.

of ease, 687.

of ease, 687.

of ease, 687.

of ease, 687.

it in piled stones, 506.

talking, and whispering lovers, 686.

that melts with unsperceived decay, 794.

'twith boy and youth, 108.

Ages, alike all, 232.

fight of past, 308.

heir of all the, 236.

his acts being seven, 711.

on ages thy splendors unfold, 588.

slumbering, wakens the, 812.

three poets in three, 907.

through the, one increasing purpose runa, 257.

year, and the eart from the, 498.

Agen, all we know of, 539.

deep and utter, 800.

distrest, of to, 203.

of prayer, by thine, 326.

strong swimmer in his, 632.

Agree, aamine and the, eat them up, 540.

Alia, patientre, ate'n a turt from the, 496.

Alra, butterfer, at a mir trom the, 496.

Alra, a chartered libertine, 723.

a diviner, an ampler ether 399.

a volemn etiliness holds, 305.

```
Air and harmony of shape express, 982.
Aurora of the, a young, 893.
benediction of the, 807.
bites shrewly, 401.
cool cisterns of the midmight, 486.
desert and illimitable, 481.
desert and illimitable, 482.
desert, waste its sweetness on the, 306.
dewy freshmes fills the allent, 401.
every flower enjoys the, 405.
fairer than the evening, 134.
fleeting, desert rocks and, 801.
heaven's sweetest, 782.
hurties in the darkened, 540.
is delicate, 780.
                                                                  hurtles in the darkmen, 540, is delicate, 750, is delicate, 750, is full of farewells to the dying, 572, light as, a something, 564, love free as, 215, lungs receive our, if their, 594-melted into thin, 867, mimbly and sweetly recommends itself, nimbly and sweetly recommends men 700-nipping and an eager, 4px.
of glory, walking in an, 974-outward lines and, 771.
pure the, and hight the soil, 779-raine in the, 483-rastic woodland, 87-scent the morning, methinks I, 489-sweet as English, could make her, 782.
that awill, 1782.
     sweet as English, could make her, 782, that swill, 752, trifees light as, 207, vocal, 726, wantons as well be lovesick, 132. Air drawn dagger, 868. Airs, genile, fresh gales and, 209, 200 Lydian, lap me in, 786. Airy nothing, 869, purposes, execute their, 868. tongues that syllable men's names, 830-Alsie, long-drawn, and fretted vault, 306. Alse of Christian Rome, ground the, 736. Alax strives to throw, 806. Alax strives thin, smooth as, 721. Aladdin's tower, unfinished window in, 940. Alarums, stern, 541 Aladdin's tower, unfinished window in, 944 Alarums, atem, 244 Alderman, foreninger of an, 836. Ale, God send thee good, enough, 946. spicy, nut-brown, 789. Alexandrine, needless, ends the song, 806. Allic, all 1826, 323 as if we had them not, 't were all, 797, fantastic if too new or old, 806. All regions, the old familiar faces, 874. chance direction, 489. discord harmony, 489. Father of, 370.
chance direction, 485,
discord harmony, 485,
discord harmony, 485,
hope abandon who enter here, 396,
I give thee, I can no more, 795,
hope abandon who enter here, 396,
I give thee, I can no more, 795,
in all, take him for, 721.
in the Down the fleet was moored, 235,
'a fish they get that-cometh to net, 672,
is not lost, 540.
mankind's concern is charity, 398,
of desth to the 311,
places shall be hell, 396,
assessus fish the own, O Death, 398, that is bright must fade, 793, that we believe of heaven, 133,
the world's a stage, 711,
things differ, all agree though, 815, thy end 's thy country's, 322,
want sense, fil, 394,
we know or dream or fear, 583,
went merry as a marriage bell, 51
went merry as a marriage bell, 51
Allsying Thames, cups with no, 147.
All-bedding sun shall see no more, 307.
All-bedding see see see shell in tempesta, 607.
     Almighty's form glasses itself in tempesta, 657, orders to perform, pleased the, 539.

Alms for oblivion, 722.

Alort, cherub that six up, 612.

Alort, all, all alone, 826.

doubty feel ourselves, 488.

fair or good, sothing is, 406.

least, in solitude, 812.

on a wide, wide sea, 856.

that worn-out word, 813.

with his glory, we left him, 920.

Alort they stood, the scars remaining, 116.

Alop, the mighty chain, 492.

though perched on, 398.

Altar, I Dow before thine, Love, 203.

Altars, strike for your, 224.

Altars, strike for your, 224.

Altars, strike for your, 224.

Altars, strike for your, 224.
```

```
Amarinhine flower of faith, pluck the, 398.
Amarylla, sport with, in the shade, 503.
Amazylla, sport with, in the shade, 503.
Amazylla sport with, in the shade, 503.
Amazylla sport with, in the shade, 503.
Amazing brightness, purity, sad truth, 133.
Amber, pretty in, to observe, 813.
Secart of odorous perfume, 631.
Stipped with, 814.
Amber, 504.
Amber, 756.
Amber, 504.
Amber, 505.
Amber, 504.
Amber, 504.
Amber, 505.
Amber, 505.
Amber, 505.
Amber, 505.
Amber, 506.
Amber, 507.
Amber, 504.
Amber, 505.
Amber, 507.
Amber, 504.
Amber, 505.
Amber, 506.
Amber, 507.
Amber, 506.
Amber, 507.
Amber,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            Apothecary, I do remember an, 809.
Apparel, fashion wears out more, than man.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                Appared, Isamon wears out more, usen mean 799.

Appared queen, 432.

Appared queen, 433.

real and, are the same, 310.

Apparition, a lovely, 188.

Appetites, of the 188.

Appetites, 188.

Appetite
         whiteness, 783, wrote and vanished, 330, 769. Angel's wings, freshfer from an, 506. Angel's wings, philosophy will city an, 806. Angels, agree as, do above, 399. alone cajoy such liberty, 149. are painted fair to look like you, 133-by that as fell the, 32. fools rush in where, I car to tread, 796, forget-mend of the, stars, 498. guardian, sung the strain, 376, help, make assay, 399. his virtues will plead like, 900. holy, guard thy bed, 76. laugh too, 579. listen when she speaks, 134. our acts our, acre or good or 11, 797. sad as, for are or good or 11, 797. sad as, for the good man's sin, 335-say sizer spirit come away, 365-team such last, weep, 366, thousand liveried, sacky her, 796, tremble while they gaze, 939-trumpet-tongued, 900.
tremble while they gaze, 939-tremble weep, make the, 813-
Anger to higher than may sweeten wrath, 141-Anger to her tell your, 342-pam and, wring the brow, 500-
Anmal where tell your, 342-
pam and, wring the brow, 500-
Anmal while the poor, short and simple, 300-
Annial with o'er the globe, 472-
Annother and the same, 404-
Annother weakness, moulds, 812-
Monther and the same, 404-
Annother weakness, moulds, 812-
Monther weakness, 1004-
Annother weakness, 1004-
Anthropophagi, the, 145-
Anthropophagi, the 145-
Anthropophagi, the 160-
Anthropophagi, the 1
```

```
Arizarexes' throne, to-Macodon and, So4.
Ariful aid, apt alliteration's, So5.
Arificer, lean unwashed, pae.
Aritical can unwashed, pae.

Michael can unwashed, pae.

Michael can unwashed, pae.
Ashet, bast these, into the Avon, 939.

e'en in our, live their wonted fires, 506.
from his, made the violet, 311.
Of his fathers, 557.
Askide, last to lay the old, 806.
Ask of the winds, 614.
Asking, only God may be had for the, 424.
Asking, only God may be had for the, 424.
Asking, only God may be had for the, 424.
Asking, only God may be had for the, 424.
Asking, only God may be had for the, 424.
Asking, only God may be had for the, 424.
Asking, only God may be had for the, 506.
Asked, last to lay the old, 806.
Asked, last of pae.
Asked, be bright earth, 712.
Asked, last of princes, 237.
Aspen, quivering, shade made by the, 509.
Assay, help angels! make, 399.
Assume a pleasing shape, 396.
A virtue if you have it not, 394.
Assumes the god, affects to nod, 771.
Assumance doubly sure, I'll make, 793.
full, given by lookes, 504.

of a man, to give the world, 721.
Assyrana cane down like the wolf, 501.
Astronomy, devotion daughter of, 492.
Atheism, the owlet, 395.
Athens, mad of, ere we, paera, 894.
the eye of Greece, 719
truth, refined as ever, heard, 809.
Atoms or systems into ruin hurled, 394.
Athens, mad of, ere we, paera, 894.
the eye of Greece, 719
truth, refined as ever, heard, 809.
Attentive, to his own applause, sit, 910.
Attentive to his own applause, sit, 910.
Attent
         489.
Attractive kinde of grace, a sweet, 904.
         metal more, here's, 133.

Attribute to law and majesty, 798.

Auburn, sweet, loveliest village of the plain, 686
   680
Authority, base, from others' books, 804, Authority, choose an as you choose a friend, 805, Authority, choose an as you choose a friend, 805, Authority, base, from others' books, 804, drest in a little brief, 813, Authum fruit that mellowed long, fell like, 300.
         309.
nodding o'er the yellow plains, 492.
of adversity, 120.
Autumne all in yellow clad, then came the,
   Avon, sweet Swan of, 905.

to the tide of Severa, 939.
Awake arise or oe forever fallen, 540.
Away you're all the same, 271.
Awe, attribute to, and majesty, 768.
the soul of Richard, fate could, 542.
A-westy of the sun, I gin to be, 346.
Awill volume, vibin that, 397.
Ay, proferer construe, would have the, 794.
Asure main, 376
robe of night, 592.
         Babbling dreams, hence, 541.
Babe in a house a well-spring of pleasure,
      Babe in a nouse a wourspans of 107, she lost in infancy, 300, sinews of the new-born, soft as, 350. Babes fearer wordes, 540. Babel, sir of the great, 540. Baby, who can tell what a, thinks, 75. Babyhood's royal diguities, 75. Babchus ever fair and young, 771. that first from out the purple grape, 552.
```

```
Back and side go bare, 946.
harness on our, die with, 541.
resounded Death, 310.
           thumping on your, 121.
to the field and feet to the foe, 574.
Backward, turn, O Time in your light, 222.
Backwards, yesterdays look, with a smile,
Backwards, yesterdays look, with a smile, 720.

Bacon, think how, shined, 998.
Bad, afright the, 345.
eminence, 722.
Badge, noblity's true, sweet mercy is, 798, of all our tribe, sufferance the, 346.
Baffied oft is ever won, 522.
Balad, wheren's lust, 500.
Baldric, milky, of the sicles, 920.
Baladric, milky, of the sicles, 920.
Baladric, milky, of the sicles, 920.
Balad word, made to his mistress' eye-brow, 711.
Ballad mongers, these same metre, 807.
Balm of hurt minds, 833.
wash the, from an anointed king, 722.
Ballad word, from an anointed king, 722.
Ballad word, 623.
Banditti, blue-cryed, 98.
Bane and antidote, death and life my, 750-Banditti, blue-cryed, 98.
Bane and antidote, death and life my, 750-Banditti, blue-cryed, 98.
Bane and antidote, death and life my, 750-Banishment, bitter bread of, 346.
Bank and bush, both over, 671.
and shool of time, 900.
I know 1, 495.
and shool of time, 900.
I know 1, 495.
and shool of time, 900.
I know 1, 495.
and shool of time, 900.
I know 1, 495.
Bank and bush, both over, 677.
Banners, freedom's, streaming o'er us, 992.
In the stry, 620.
Bank-note world, this, 677.
Banners, bright, waving arms and, 491.
hang out our, 520.
Bank-note world, this, 677.
Banners, bright, waving arms and, 491.
hang out our, 520.
Bank-note world, this, 677.
Banners, bright, waving arms and, 491.
hang out our, 520.
Bank-arms, young, all at play, 681.
Bary powerty's unconquerable, 812.
Barbaric pearl and gold, 722.
Barbaric pearl and gold, 723.
Barbaric pearl and gol
       Baskin west-wind pure contented, 493-
Baskard valor, 900.
Bat, the black, night, 132.
Bat's back, I do fly on the, 869.
Bate a jot of heart or hope, 735-Bated breath and whisp ring humbleness, ath, sore labor's, 883.
   Bath, sore labor's, 883.
Battalons, sorrows come in, 345.
Battle, feats of broll and, 145-for the free, 583.
freedom's, once begrun, 583.
front o', lour, see the, 573.
gret prize o' death in, 539.
in the lost, 500.
leaving in, no blot on his name, 574.
perilous edge of, 540.
world's broad field of, 770.
Battle's magnificently stern array, 512.
van, 602.
Battlements, sheer o'er the crystal, 795.
   Wan 602.
Battlements, sheer o'er the crystal, 795.
Battles, fought all his, o'er again, 772-sieges fortunes, 145.
Bawl for freedom in serseless mood, 60r,
Bay of Biscay, 0, 668.
Be just and fear not, 322-not worldly-wise, 798-nothing which thou art not, 796
she fairer than the day, 139-to, no more, sad cure, 794-to, or not to be, 397.
```

```
Be wise to-day, 748,
wise with speed, 793,
wisely worldly, 793.
Beach, came to the, a poor exile of Erm
    Beach, these to the, a poor exile of Erm
Beach, these's eternall, egg.
Beach, to litheir, in drops of rain, 494.
Beach, to litheir, in drops of rain, 494.
Beach, take thy, from out my heart, 553.
Beaker of the warm Bouth, 316.
Beach and the end-all, 900.
Beam, morning's, is glancing, 539.
that smiles the clouds away, 134.
Beams, candle throws his, how far that, 797.
Orient, spreads his, 490.
Bear like the Turk no brother near the throne, 910.
those like we have, 297.
up and steer right onward, 735.
Beard of formal cut, 711.
Bears his blushing homors thick upon him, 321.
      Bears his blushing honors thick upon him, 321.

Beast that wants discourse of reason, 723.

Beasts that wants discourse of reason, 723.

Beasts that wants discourse of reason, 723.

Beast to the hip, our enemies have, 500.

Beating of my own heart, 149.

Beaumont, bid, lie a little further off, 905, rare, lie a little nearer Spenser, 339.

Beauteous, all that is most, imaged there, 399-eye of heaven, 726.
idiot, 712.
run lay, lovely in death the, 794-
Beauties, just see in small proportions, 729.
thy naked, 874-
you meaner, of the night, 124.
Beautiful, and therefore to be wooed, she's,
                               795-beyond compare, paradise how, 399.
    beyond compare, paradise how, 399, exceedingly, 721. Is night, how, 491. Is night, how, 491. Is night, how, 491. Is night, how, 491. Is night, how, 492. Is night, how, 492. Is night, how, 492. Is night, and her chivalry, 511. as much, as could dye, 907. bereft of, 725. born of murmuring sound, 192 changing with the changeful day, 223, doth shine alike to all like the sun, 796. draws us with a single hair, 293. dwells in deep retreats, 206. Elysian, 206.
                               Elysian, 206.
face best dressed by its own, 193.
fadeth by too much possession, 192.
                               panetr by too man possession, system of might, 721. hangs on the check of might, 721. homely, of the good old cause, 814. imaged in happier, 399. immortal, awakes from the tomb, 737.
    imaged in angler, 399.

immortal, awakes from the tomb, 737.

is its own excuse for being, 461.

is truth, truth beauty, 60, 719.

isle of, fare thee well, 248.

lines where, lingers, 300.

making beautiful old rhyme, 1320.

mind diseased of its own, 867.

more than, 197 grace thy, 796.

of a thousand stars, clad in, 134.

on the shore, left their, 406.

ornament of, is suspect, 722.

provoketh thieves, 133.

she walks in, 130.

shot forth peculiar graces, 203.

smile from partial, won, 795.

teaches such, as a woman's eye, 795.

truly blent, 132.

Beauty's chains, sport an hour with, 816.

heavenly 134, 730.

Beaux, where none are, vain to be a belle,

133.
```

```
Beggared all description, 72a.
Beggarty account of empty boxes, 80a.
Beggart, no comets seen when, die, 89a.
Beggart, in the love that can be reckoned,
Begramme the Beguning late, long-choosing and, so4.
still, never ending, 77s.
Begot, by whom, to whom related or, 31s.
Beguile her of her tears, 12s.
many and be beguiled by one, so7.
the thing I am, 347.
Behold the Child, 107.
                Benond the canda, 107.

Benond the state of proved by the ends of, to nave been, 797.

Beliaal, sons of, flown with insolence, 558.

Belie all comers of the world, 811.

Belie had ripened into faith, 397.

Belleve a woman or an epitaph, 800.

Bell, churchgoing, 738.

each matin, knells us back, 308.

in a cowslip's, I lie, 869.

marriage, all went merry as a, 511.

sullen, knolling a departed friend, 346.

the sexton tolled the, 564.

Belle, vain to be a, where none are beaux, 133.
        Belling, tall the owl the, 882.

Belling, fatal, the owl the, 882.

Bellinan, fatal, the owl the, 882.

Bellin have knolled to church, 547 ring out wild, to the wild sky, 752 rung backwards, like, 708.

sweet, jangled out of tune, 808.

those evening, 716.

Belly, fair round, with good capon lined,
            711.
God send thee good ale enough, 946.
that shook like a bowl full of Jelly, 96
Beloved from pole to pole, 837
Ben Adhem's name led all the rest, 350,
        Ben Adhem's name led all the rest, 350, 769.

Jonson, O rare, 939.
Bench of heedless bishops, 107.
Bend a knotted oak, 809.
Beneath the churchyard stone, some lie, 309 the milk-white thorn, 385-the rule of men entirely great, 805.
Benediction of the air, 807.
perpetual, 758.
Benighted walks under the nud-day sun, 256.
Benighted walks under the mud-day sun, perpetual, 798.

Benighted walks under the mud-day sun, hold the, thy affection cannot, 215

Bequeathed by bleeding sire to son, 582.

Berkelev saud there was no matter, 508.

Best, a man s, things are nearest him, 741.

administered is best, 397.

companions innocence and health, 687 fools, who are a little wise, 798.

laid schemers of mice and men, 468.

of all ways to lengthen our days, 205.

of dark and bright, all that is, 130.

of men was a sufferer, 723.

of what we do and are, 396.

riches guorance of wealth, 687 society, solitude is sometimes, 814-

B ceem the winds of heaven, 206.

Betray, nature never did, 404.

the heart that loved her, 404.

Betrayed the Capitol, who, 795.

Better be with the dead, 311 days, we have seen, 347.

fifty years of Europe, 28.

future views of, or of worse, 800 had they ne'er been born, 397 knot leedge, against his, 807.

spaced a better man, 312.

than his dog, something, 255.

that the best that she can do, 942.

to be lowly and 347.

to have loved and 347.

be after and the suitable of to near in held than serve in hear 799.

Between, few and far, 347, the dark and the daylight, 96, the little and the great, 825, two dogs, 820, two dogs, 820, two hawks, 810, two hawks, 810, two horses, 820.

Betwart the wind and his nobility, 506.

Betwart of desperate steps, 793, of entrance to a quarrel, 540, of calousty, 207, the ides of March, 899.

Bewidder, leads to, 737,

Beways incre woe, silence in love, 204.

B, yond a mortal's share, 813, all use, 899 the flight of time, 114, the smiling and the weeping, 296, this vale of tears, 114.
```

```
Beconian, under which king, 540.
Bible, burdens of the, old, 735-known her, true, 397.
Bid me discourse, 303-
time return, call back yesterday, 792.
Bidding, thousands at his, speed, 366.
Bids expectation rise, 367.
Big maily voice, 711.
round tears coursed one another, 496.
Bigger, in shape no, than an agate-stone, 368.
Big manly voice, 711.

Fround tears coursed one another, 496.

Bigger, in shape no, than an agate-stone, 696.

Bigness which you see for length and breadth the, 805.

world us, as a star, 492.

Billows distinct as the, yet one as the sea, 696.

Swelling and limitless, 691.

trusted to thy, tar and near, 607.

Binding nature fast in fate, 370.

Binding nature fast in fate, 370.

Binding nature fast in fate, 370.

Binding harter fast in fate, 370.

Binding the broken heart, 809.

Attle, trills thick-warbled notes, 780.

call thee, or but a wandering voice, 472.

night with this far soleman, 304, 491.

of dawning singeth all night, 397.

of the wilderness, 479.

of the wilderness, 479.

that sum is the noise of folly, 786.

watchil, sings darkling, 409.

Birdie, what does little, 383, 80.

Birdie, what does little, 384, 80.

Birdie, what does little, 384, 80.

Birdie, what does little, 384, 80.

Birdie, what fore little, 384, 80.

Birdie, what fore little, 384, 80.

Birdie, sold of birdie, 398.

Biscuit, remainder, dra as, 809.

Bistopa, little bench of heedless, 107.

Biser semed, than he was, 697.

Bitt, the man recovered of the, 549.

Bitter bread of bandshment, 346.

s a sconntul 1981, 348.

Bivouac of life, 770.

Biscuit and the sum on, 381.

Bladders, wanton boys that swun on, 381.

Bladder, carried a heart-stain away on its, 940.

trenchant, Toledo trusty, 597.

Bladder, wanton boys that swun on, 381.

Bladders, wanton boys that swun
    Blast, of no distemper, ot no, ne queq, 309.

Blast of war blows in upon our ears, 503 rushing of the, I hear, 492.

upon his bugle-horn, one, 517

Blasted with excess of light, 939.

Blaze of noon, dark amid the, 321.

Blazoning pens, quirks of, 722.

Bleeding country save, my, 533.

Blend our plassure or our pride, 663.

Bless, none whom we can, 415.

Blessed mod, that, 404.

them unaware, 857.

twice, 798.
        them unaware, 257.
twice, 798.
what the, do above, 399.
what the, do above, 399.
Blessedness, single, 495.
Blesseth him that gives and him that takes.
        Blessing, expectation makes a, dear, 801 for the eyes that weep, 743 I had most need of, 883, whate'er we call a, 602 Blessings be with them and eternal praise, Blessings be with them and eternal prais 42.

brighten when they take flight, 801. children, seem, 106 heavenly, without number, 76. of the brave, unworthy the, 601 wait on virtuous deeds, 398.

Blest, I have been, come what may, 207. man never is always to be, 801.

Blight of life the demon Thought, 306.

Blight of life the demon Thought, 306. flind bard who on the Chian strand, 822. dazzles to, 737.

fury with the abhorred shears, 812. love is, 203.

waysed Capild painted, 203.

Blindly, loved sae, had we never, 233.

Bliss, all he knows of, falls from, 271. bowers of, 320. domestic happiness thou only, 232. his scanty fund supplies, 603.
```

```
Bilss, hues of, more brightly glow, 345.

gnorance is, folly to be wise, 105,
in that dawn to be alive, 490.
momentary, bestow, 105,
of paradhs, 93.
of solitude, 494.
Bilthesome and cumberless, 473.
cold in clame are cold un, 505.
driszled, upon the capitol, 899.
earth's first, 602.
faithful English, 541.
felt in the, sensations sweet, 403.
freeze thy young, 795. glories of our, and state, 301.
hand just raised to shed his, 496.
hot and rebellious liquors in my, 546 is liquid fiame, 899.
more strus to rouse a lion, 690.
never dies the' it sleep a tune, 500.
hot and rebellous liquors in my, 546 is liquid fame, 899
keen Remorse with, defiled, 899,
more strus to rouse a lion, 690
never dies tho it sleep a time, 900
never dies tho it sleep a time, 900
of all the Howards, 182, poor cold part o' th', 899, summon up the, 893
thy, is cold, 868,
weltering in his, 771,
whose, is the reddest, 722
Bloody instructions, we but teach, 800.
Mary, image of, 802,
treason 80 sunshed over us, 876.
Blooun of young Desire, 205,
vernal, sight of, 407,
Blossom in their dust, 307
painted, arborett drest with, 494-
Blossomed the lovely stars, 492.
Blossomed the lovely stars, 492.
Blossoms in the trees, 489, of my sin, cut off in the, 310.
Bot, art to, the last and greatest art, 806 creation's, creation blank, 797 discreetly, 806
line which dying he could wish to, 80, 606,
on his name, in battle no, 574.
Blotted from the things that be, 308.
Blow bugle, answer echoes, 449,
death loves a signal, 309,
hand that gives the, adore the, 312.
liberty's in every, 573.
hand that gives the, adore the, 312.
liberty's in every, 573.
on whom i please, liberty to, 602.
themselves must strike the, 581.
thou winter wind, 306.
wind come wrack, 541.
winds and crack your cheeks, 494.
Blows and buffets of the world, 347.
apostolic, and knock, 387.
Blue above and the blue below, 625, darkly deeply beautifully, 490.
ethereal sky, 376
the frea monie a, free us, 486,
in men this, still you find, 812.
Blush, grandeur blush, 797 of maden shame, 494 thame where a thy, 395
to find it fame, 797
to give it in, 395
unseen, flower born to, 3.66,
where is thy, 0, 4 hame, 395 shame where is thy, 395
to find it fame, 797
to give it in, 395
unseen, flower born to, 3-6.
where is thy, O shame, 395
Blushes, beat away those, 793
Blushful Hippocrene, 316.
Blushing apparitions, a thousand, 723-
honora, bears his, 321.
Blushing apparitions, a thousand, 723-
honora, bears his, 322.
Blushing apparitions, 296
Boast, can magmation, 489.
not of wiles more unexpert, I, 539 of heraldry the pomp of power, 306.
patriotis, 299
Boat is on the shore, my, 920.
Boatman take thrice thy fee, 292.
Bodiec, thy, aptly-laced, 721
Bodiec, thy, aptly-laced, 721
Bodiec, thendless, of unburled men, 495, soldiers bore dead, by, 506.
Boding tremblers learned to trace, 688.
Bodkin, queetus make with a bare, 297
Body, form doth take, of the soul the, 730.
gin a, meet a body, 187
here in the, pent, 369.
naught cared this, for wind or weather 108.
Boll in endless torture, 720.
       roß.
whose, nature is, 489.
Boll in endless torture, 720.
Boll in endless torture, 720.
Boll symbol me nation, 873.
Bold John Barleycorn, 848
peassarty their country's pride, 687.
Bolt from steel cross-bow, like a, 671.
of Cupul, 836
sharp and sulphurous, 813.
Bond of Pate, take a, 793.
Bondman, let me live thy, 797.
```

```
Bondman's key, in a, 724.

Bondmen, hereditary, £87.

Bones are coral made, of his, £69.

are marrowless, thy, £86.

good is oft interred with their, £75.

kinght's, are dust, £99.

lay his weary, among ye, 346.

paste and cover to our, 310.

Ratio his, over the stones, 341.

Booby, give her, for another, 323.

Book and heart must never part, my, 397.

and volume of my brain, £01.

credit of his, confounds, £05.

is a book althe' there's nothing in 't, £05.

judgment, unfold, £66.

modern, shelves admit not any, £05.

of fate, heaven hides the, 931.

of fate, heaven hides the, 932.

of knowledge fait, 477.

Bookes, Gospell, theatments of, 504.

twenty, clad in blad or reed, £96.

Books, base authority from others', £04.

currous in, not authors, £05.

in the running brooks, £95.

my only, were woman's books, 504.

not such as, but practice taught, 798.

of honor, razêd quite from the, 540.

old, to read, 118.

tenets with, £14.

toil o'er, £04.

Bo-beep, playêd st, 721.

Boreas, cease rude, £08.

Born, being, to die, 330.

better had they ne'er been, 397

for immortality, £00.

happy is he, and taught, 136

lowly, better to be, 347.

names not, to die, £93.

to be a slave, £01.

to the manner, £14.

where to be, and die makes all the history, 797.

Borne and yet must bear, 317.

down by the flying, 550.
               where to Der, and a tory, 797.

Borne and yet must bear, 317, down by the flying, 510.

like thy bubbles onward, 602.

Borrower nor a lender be, neither a, 121.

Borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry,
               507 ours fall to be seen or husbandry, 559
who goeth a, goeth a sorrowing, 347.
Bosom beats not in his country's cause, 602.
come rest in this, 185
deep, of the ocean buried, 541.
of his Father and his God, 307.
stuffed, cleanse the, 347
thorns that in her, lodge, 395.
          stuffed, cleanse the, 347
thorns that in her, lodge, 395-thy frozen, 263,
was young, when my, 529,
Bosomed high in turted trees, 785
Bosoms, quiet to quick, is a hell, 912,
Both, found, by adventuring both, 802,
in the wrong, brother we are, 121 sides, much may be said on, 803, thanks and use, 797,
were young one was beautiful, 764.
Bottom of the deep, dive into the, 670,
ooze and, of the sea, 632,
search not his, 720.
Bough, touch not a single, 101.
Boughs, mossy leafless, shadows of, 721
Bound in shallows and in miseries, 802 in those icy chains by thee, 262, in to saucy doubts and fears, 800
Boundless contiguity of shade, 593 his wealth as wish cas claim, 563, wastes and wilds of man, 506,
Bounds, faming, of place and time, 593 of modesty, stepping o'er the, 723, set, between their love and me, 232.
Bounties of an hour, poor pensioner on the, 747.
Bounty, heree was his, 307.
                    747.
Bounty, large was his, 307.
those his former, fed, 77x.
Bourn, from whose, no traveller returns,
          Bourn, from whose, as 25.

37.

Bowstrings when relaxed by rain, as, 899 Bout, many a winding, 796.

Bow before thine aftar, Love, 203 lord of the unerring, 726.

stubborn knees, 399.

Bowls of the harmiess earth, 506.

Bowers of bliss, 910.

Bowl, friendly, St. John mingles with my, 814.
               Bowl, friendly, St., John Hanges walkers where sweets compacted its, 202.

Box where sweets compacted its, 202.

Boxe, beggarly account of empty, 803.

Box, beggarly account of empty, 803.

Box of the st. of empty, 803.

Box of the st. of the
```

```
Boyhood's years, the smiles the tears of, 3rs.
Boyho days, even from my, 145.
Boys, little wanton, that swim on bladders,
 Boys, little wanton, that swim on bladders, 381.
wooling in my, I' B go, 215.
Braggart with my tongue, play the, 346.
Braids, twisted, of lilies, 260.
Brain, book and volume of my, Bor.
Carvar's figures made out of the, 726
each frail fibre of her, 269.
heat-oppresseld, 282.
madness in the, work like, 116.
noise turns up my griddy, 269.
poet's, madness which should possess a, 258.
  poet's, madness which should possess a, 328.
shallow, behind a sensor's mask, 724, the very comage of your, 868.
vex the, with no deep researches, 805 woman's gentle, 795.
written troubles of the, 347.
Brains, lovers have such seething, 806.
were out the man would die, 868.
Branch-charmèd by the starts, oaks, 404.
Branded o'er and o'er yet still believed, 468.
 Branded o'er and u as you age. 35.
Branksome Hall, such is the custom of, 814.
Brave, blessings of the, 602.
clime of the unforgotten, 581 days of old, 562.
home of the, 503, 593,
how sleep the, 503,
none but the, deserves the fair, 771.
thou tamer of the human, 345.
tumults in my, 184.
two hands upon the, 395.
weariness may toss him to my, 395.
where learning iles, 805.
Breastplate, what stronger, 796.
Breasth, bated, and whispering humbleness, 857.
truth that breathe their words in pain.
  gro.
Breathes there the man with soul so dead,
```

```
Bride-bed, I thought thy, to have decked,
Boyhood, conceive in, and pursue as men.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     Brief as the lightning in the collied night,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   Brief as the flightning in the collied night,

290.

as woman's love, 207.

authority, drest in a little, 613.

'tis, my lord, 200.

Bridge, how well Horatius kept the, 568.

of sighs, in Venice on the, 720.

Bright, all that's, must fade, 793.

and yellow hard and cold, 800.

as young diamonds, 345.

exhalation, fall little a, 346.

houor from the pale-faced moon, 670.

names will hallow song, 512.

particular star, 242.

Brighten, blessings, as they take their flight,

801.

Brightens, how the wit, 612.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        Brightens, how the wit, 812.
Brighter ray, emits a, 800.
Brightest and best of the sons of the morasing 322.

Bright-eyed Fancy hovering o'cr, 867
Brightness, amazing, 133.
Bright-eyed Fancy hovering o'cr, 867
Brightness, amazing, 133.
Battle, exalt her, 867.
Britan courts the western spring, 607
Britan needs no bulwarks, 629.
rule the waves, 576.
Brither, Tam lo'ed him like a vera, 847
Britons never will be slaves, 576.
Britons never will be slaves, 576.
Broda-based upon her people's will, 632.
Broda-based upon her people's will, 632.
Broda based upon her people's will, 632.
Broden with the storms of state, 346
Broken-hearted, half, 241.
we had ne'er been, 333
Brokelny live on, heart will break, yet 512.
Brook and river meet, where the see ing, 397.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                Brokenly live on, heart will break, 512.

Brook and river meet, where the, 104-can see no moon but this, 491. noise like of a hidden, 552.

Sparkling with a, 499.

Willowy, that turns a mill, 225.

Brooks, books in the running, 499.

gushing, on whose freah lap, 494-make rivers, rivers run to seas, 493-nooks sloping mto, 493-send up a cheerful tune, 68.

Brother followed brother, how fast, 309 hurt my, 121.

man, gently scan your, 784-near the throne, bear no, 910.

of faith, hope, 800.
to death, sleep, 816.

Brother's murder, 900.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          to death, sloep, 876.

To death, sloep, 876.

To are both in the wrong, 121.

Brother bounder, 900.

Brother bounder, 900.

Brother bounder, 900.

Brothers, forty thousand, 906.

Brow, azure, Time writes no wrinkles on thine, 607.

pain and anguish wring the, 500.

what a grace was seated on this, 721.

Brows bound with victorious wreaths, 541.

Brows bound with victorious wreaths, 541.

Bruise, parmecoti for an inward, 506

Bruised with adversity, 345

Bruishing with hasty steps the dew, 306.

Brutius, 1 am no orator as, 18, 876

Is an honorable man, 975.

Brutes, we had been, without you, 133.

Bubble, honor but an empty, 772

now a, burst and now a world, 394.

on the fountial, like the, 863.

reputation, seeking the, 711

the world's a, 330.

Bubbles, borne like thy, onward, 607 earth hath, as the water has, 868.

Bubbling and loud-hissing urn, 870.

cry of some strong swimmer, 63a.

groan, sinks with, 607,

Buccancers, high-hearted, children, 495-

Bucket, moss-covered, 100.

old oaken, which hung in the well, 100.

Buckingham, so much for, 899.

Bud, concealment like a worm i' the, 251.

of youth, a worm is in the, 368.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             Bud, concealment like a worm 't the, 251.
of summer's ripcaling breath, 492.
of youth, a worm is in the, 304.
opening, to heaven conveyed, 107,
rose should shut and be a, agam, 179.
Budding, rose is fairest when 't is, 204.
Buds the promise of celestial worth, 398,
Buffer it with saty sinews, 571.
Buffeta, fortune's, and rewards, 112.
of the world, blows and, 347.
Bugle, blow, answer echoes, 449.
Budd me straight O worthy master, 632.
not boast a generous sacc, 812.
Builded better than he knew, 736.
```

Baildung, life o' the, stole the, 900.

Wilderness of, 807.

Build a church to God, who, 797

Built God a church, 905.

Is mind a gunt a height, 808.

Bullen's eyes, gespel-light first from, 397
Bulwark, first connected, 628

Bulwarks, Britannia needs no, 699.

Bulwarks, Britannia needs no, 699.

Burden of his song, 816.

of my song, 144.

of the mystery, 404.

of the Burdersong, 328.

Burdens of tie Biblie old, 735.

Burn, words that, 807.

Burning deck, the boy stood on the, 614.

Sappho loved and sung, 580.

Burns with one love, 120.

Bush, man in the, with God may meet, 744.

thief doth fear each, an officer, 725.

through, through brier, 859.

Bust, animated, storied urn or, 306.

of Pallas, perched upon a, 592.

But y companies of men, 719.

bee, how doth be little, og.

hum of men, 780.

Burns this was a Roman holiday, 682.

Butterflies, men like, 121.

Butterflies, men like, 122.

Buttoned down before, coat all, 396.

Buttoned down before, coat all, 396.

But with much care, they lose it that do, 693.

Cablned cribbed confined. 800. Cabined cribbed confined, 800. Cadmus, letters, gave, 581. Cassar, great, fell, 876. hath wept when the poor have cried, 875. I come to bury, not to praise him, hath wept whout the poor have cried, 875. I come to bury, not to praise him, I come to the com where we can, be, 807.

Candied tongue lick absurd pomp, let the, Candied tongue lick absure pomp, see one,
III.
Candie, brief, out out, 792.
throws his beams, how far that, 797.
Candies, night's, are burat out, 490.
Cane, clouded, nice conduct of a, 490.
Canker, worm the, and the grief are mine alone, 250.
Cannibals, that each other eat, 145.
Cannon to right of them, 517.
Cannon's mouth, seeking reputation in the,
711. Cannon's mouth, seeking reputation in the, 711
Canon' gainst self-slaughter, 371.
Canopied by the blue sky, 765.
Canopy, roseate, 494.
Cans' rot say I did it, 268.
Cans' not say I did it, 268.
Cap far whiter than the driven snow, 708.
fortune's, the very button on, 347.
Capability and god-dike reason 808.
Capers nimbly in a lady's chamber, 541
Capitol, drizeled blood upon the, 899.
who betrayed the, 795.
Canon, belly with good, Inned, 711.
Captive good attending captain ill, 398
Caravani, innumerable, 307.
Cargase fit for hounds, hew him as a, 900.
Card, reason the, but passion is the gale, 798.

Care adds a nall to our coffin, 798. for nobody, 1, 8x6. friendly death came with, 107 harmonist of, on earth, 940. in heaven, is there, 273. leader footstep of, 6x6. make pale my cheeks with, 193. ravelled sleave of, 893, weep away the life of, 317. will kill a cat, 816. wrinkled, 785. Care-charmar sleep, 4x6. Care-charmar sleep, 4x6. Care-charming sleep, 8x6. Careless childhood strayed, 106. ahoestring in whose tie, 773. their ments or faults to scan, 688, trifie, as 1 were a, 300. Cataract, sounding, haunted me, 404.
Cataracts, slient, 377.
Catch the conscience of the king, 804.
him tripping if you can, 724.
the manners living as they rise, 807.
Caters, providently, for the sparrow, 394.
Cathay, a cycle of, 936.
Cato give his little senate laws, 602, 910.
knows nether of them, 910.
Cattle, be not like dumb driven, 770.
Cauchaus, frosty, thinking on the, 346.
Caught by glare, maldens like moths, 915.
Cauld nor care, Jean, 396.
Cause, country's, boson beats not in his, 602.
good old, homely beauty of, 814. 60.2. do homely beauty of, 814.
grace my, in speaking, 145.
how light a, may move, 304.
magnificent and swill, 375.
make it your, 794.
Cause of policy, turn him to any, 723.
report me and my, aright, 811.
thou great First, 970.
Causes which conspire to blind, 790.
Causes which conspire to blind, 790.
Causes which conspire to blind, 790.
Caution's, cold-pausing, leason, 108.
Caves, hell sighed from all her, 310.
unfathomed, of ocean, 306.
Caverns measurcless to man, 834.
Cease every Joy to glimmer on my mind, 800. rude Boreas, 698. Celestial harmony of likely hearts, love is a Chamber, capers ninsby in a lady's, 5/s. come to the bridal, death, 58a in the silent halls of death, 59a. In the silent halls of death, 59a. In the silent halls of death, 59a. Where the good man meets his fate, 59a. Chance, build it up as, will have it, 567a. by happy, we saw a twofold image, 49a direction, all, 48a. Chancelor in embryo, 107a. Chancelor in embryo, 107a. Chances, disastrous, 145. Change, 50a auto constant to the constant, 503a. oame o'er the spirit of my dream, 765a. changed and such a, 58a. down the ringing grooves of, 55a. of many-colored life, 505. old love for new, 507b. Changed idream, fiche as a, 57a. Changed, monthly, in her circled orb, 507b. Changes, monthly, in her circled orb, 507b. To their, half their charms we owe, 733b. Chanteleer, crow like, my lungs, 50c. Chaos and eternal night, sung of, 407b. reign of, and old Night, 735b. Characters, high, from high life are drawn, 53a. State of the control dear woman's chiefest, gentle voice, 795, female, fondly overcome with, 899, from the sky seems to hallow it, 118, ezg. of earliest birds, soc, 490. of earliest birds, soo, 490.

one native, 689.
power to, nor witch hath, 397.
remoter, by thoughts supplied, 404.
tender, of poetry and love, 495.
the certainty to please, 212.
that lulls to sleep, 139.
that with distant views of happiness,
Charmed with distant views of happiness, Charmed with distant views of happlness, Bot.

Charmer, free from every other, 796, sinner it or saint it, 805, were t'other dear, away, 134.

Charmers, like other, 514,

Charmins, like other, 515,

freedom has a thousand, 602,

half their, we owe to their changes, 723, music hath, to soother, 802,

nameless, 133,

solitude where are the, 738, strike the sight, 203,

that dazzle and endear, 603,

to win and sense to fix the heart, 202,

we dare conceive in boyhood, 805.

Chartered libertine, the air a, 723,

Chae, piteous, big round tears in, 496.

Chae, piteous, big round tears in, 496.

Chae, of the land, 576.

Chaste as morning dew, 106.

as the icclic curded by the frost, 493, muse, 806.

Chasties most whom most he likes, heaves,

347

Chasticy, clothed on with, 697. Chastity, clothed on with, 697, saintly, so dear to heaven is, 796, t is, my brother, 796, unblemished form of, 830.
Chatham's language his mother tongue, 575.
Chaucer, learned, a thought more night to, Chaucer, learned, a thought more night 999.
Oddre thee by, or Spenser, 905, well of English underlyled, 948.
Chest, when I conside. It's 't all a, 793.
Checkered shade, dancing in the, 785.
Check, damask, feed on her, 95.
Check, damask, feed on her, 95.
In the that loves a rosp, 195.
In the that loves a rosp, 195.
In the property of the property of

```
Cheerful godliness, 907.

ways of men, 407

Cheers the tar's labor, 814.

Cherish those hearts that hate thee, 322.

Cherise, there, grow that none can buy,
               Cherries, there, grow that hone can buy 123,
Cherry-isle, there's the land or, 134.
Cherry ripe ripe in pr. i cry, 134.
Cherry ripe themselves do cry, 132.
Cherub that sits up aloft, sweet little, 615.
Cherublins, young-cyed, quiring to the, 775.
Chest contrived a double debt to pay, 689-of drawers by day 689.
Chester, ctrusture, 510.
                   Chester, charge, 510.
Chewing the cud of sweet and bitter fancy,
           Chewing the cut of sweet and the state of th absent, grief his the room up of my, 104 behold the, 107, currous, I have seen a, 631, in simplicity a, 724, is father of the man, 432, he down like a tired, 317, histen like a three years, 854, make me a, again, 222, mek mek nature's, 040 naked new-born, on parents' knees a, 78 of suffering, 347.
of the skits, 588
poetic, meet nurse for a, 575
Shakespeare Fancy's, 786.
       Shakespeare Fancy's, 786.

smple, 87.

spoil the, spare the rod and, 108
thankless, 10 hat a. 128.
three years, listens like a. 108.
waters wild went o'er har, 339 Childhood, careless, strayed, 108
thas of, 274.
ficted by, how my, 108
manhood and decrepit age, 792.
scenes of my, 100
shows the man, 107
womanhood and, feet, 104
Childhood's hour, ever thus from, 25t
Childish treller, 711
Childishacs, second, and mere oblivion, Childhess and roundess, 720 Childhess and roundess, 720 Childhes and round, unto that was, 987. Childhen the songs seem, 108, gath ring pebbles on the shore, 108, of a larger growth, men are, 107 Chill penury represed their noble rage, 300 pointy represent their holde rage, 300 (huntars dire, gorgons hydras and, 868. Chaint y-sweepers, coinc to dust as, 301. Chin, coulpared with that was next her, 211, new reaped, 300 pretty dimples of his, 107. China, mistress of herself though, fall, 231. Chine, the heathen, is peculiar, 967. Chine, the heathen, is peculiar, 967. Chinel, Grecian, ne'er did trace, 721. Chinel, Grecian, ne'er did trace, 721. Chirel, Grecian, with all thy, 513. Choice, indifferent in his, to sleep or dle, 310.
charge with all thy, $13.

Choice, indifferent in his, to sleep or die, $10.
quiver's, devil hath not in his, 204.
word and measured phrase, 807.
Choke one with unutterable joy, 725.
Cholse one with unutterable joy, 725.
Choose an author as you, a friend, 805, not alone a proper mate, 215.
which of the two to, 570
Choosing long and beginning late, 204.
Chord of self, smote the, 255.
Chords, smote on all the, with might, 255.
that vibrate sweetest pleasure, 204.
Chorus, landlord's laugh was ready, 847.
Christ that is to be, ring in the, 752.
Christend Jove, Peter's keys adorn some, 396.
Christian charity, alas for the rarity $6, 335.
is the highest style of man, 390.
Christian charity, alas for the rarity $6, 375.
is the highest style of man, 390.
Christian comes but once a year, 816.
pie, bury it in 8, 876
t was the night before, $6.
Chronicle of wasted time, 122
small beer, 723
Chronicler, such an honest, as Griffith, 811.
Chrysolite, one entire and perfect, 723.
Church, bells have knolled to, 347.
built God a, 396.
constant at, and change, 803.
unseen at, 724.
Church-going bell, 738.
```

```
Churchyard mould, to the very verge of
                                      the, 802,
stone, some lie beneath the, 50
            Churchyards yawn, time when, 971.
Cicero, Demosthenes or, fall below, 107.
  Churchyards yawn, time when, 971.
Cicero, Demosthenes or, fall below, 107.
Cigar, give me a, 814.
Cimmeran darkness, 743.
Cinnamon, lucent syrops time twith, 279.
Circle, long as the year's dull, 793.
Circled orb, monthly changes in her, 207.
Circled orb, monthly changes in her, 207.
Circled orb, monthly changes in her, 207.
Circlut, runs the great, 810.
Circumstance, pride pomp and, of war, 722 without more, at all, 241.
Cisterns of the midnight air, cool, 416.
Citles, far from gay, and the ways of man, 489.
hum of human, 493.
towered, please us then, 796.
City of the soul, Rome, 720.
Civilty, wild, 713.
Clad in beauty of a thousand stars, 734.
Clams of long descent, snule at the, 268.
Clamors, Jove's dread, counterfeit, 722.
Classic ground, seem to tread on, 807.
Clay, preclous porcelain of human, 309.
tenement of, o'er informed the, 508.
turf that wraps their, 563.
Cleanse the stuffed bosom, 347.
Clear in his great office, 80, 900.
six hundred pounds a year, 121.
sppirt, 812.
though deep yet, 723.
     six hundred pounds a year, 121.
spirit, 812
though deep yet, 723
Clerk ther was of Oxenford, 696.
Chiff, tall, that lifts its awful form, 688.
Chiffs that had been rent asunder, 110.
Climber-upward turns his face, 799
Cloud in, are cold in blood, 205.
deeds that are done in their, 451.
each, hath charms, 206.
golden, poet born in a, 807
in some brighter, bid me good morning, 304. of the unforgotten brave, 58z of the uniorgotten brave, 537
rowy steps in the Lasterin, 490 soft as her, 721
Climes, cloudless, and starry skies, 130
humors turn with, 814
Clip an angel's wings, philosophy will, 808.
Clock, martial, ground hina, 920
Clock, fancy like the finger of a, 810
varinshed, that tucked behind the door, varmshed, that tricked behind the door

669.

Close design, work in, 815 of the day when the hamlet is still, 737.

Closing hour of day, 490.

Clothed on with clustry, 793.

Clothes, kindles in, a wantonness, 713.

Identification of her, 120

tattered, vices appear through, 802.

Clothing the palpable and familiar, 490.

Cloth of the palpable and familiar, 490.

Cloud and ever-during dark, 407.

turn forth her silver lung, 491.

Cloud-capped towers, 867.

Clouds all other clouds dispel, 814.

and changing skies, 492.

heam that smiles the, away, 134.

castles in the, that pass, 831.

first beholds those everlasting, 493.

hooded like frast, 494.

looks in the, 797, 16, 86.
  hooded like friars, 494-
looks in the, 795-
phighted, play? th, 865, pure and white as flocks new-shorn, 490, robe of, 493-rolling, soar again through, 800, sees God in, 395-
that gather round the setting sun, 759, that lowered upon our house, 541-warnors fought upon the, 890-
Cloy the hungry edge of appetite, 346,
Clustering hung, 721.
Coat, stern and rock-bound, 587.
Coat, long black, all buttoned down before,
766
Coat, bong black, all Duttoneu common cooperations, both and your, 805.
Cohwebs, laws like, in all ages, 8to.
Cock that is the trumpet to the morn, 868
Codeless myriad of precedent, 8to.
Coffin, care adds a nail to our, 798.
my heart is in the, there, 876.
Coffre, litel gold in, 656.
Cogitation, cogibundity of, 808.
Cogitation, cogibundity of, 808.
Cogitation, cogibundity of, 808.
Cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold,
501.
  Conorts were greating in party of the colling of your brain, the very, 868. Cold, chastely, the morning pearls, 796. if for, it hap to die, 876. in clime are cold in blood, 205.
```

```
Cold medium knows, friendship no, 120.
sweat thrils down my limbs, 725,
the changed perchance the dead, 271.
Colder thy kins, 241.
Coldly sweet, so, 393.
Cold-pausing caution's lesson scorning, 108,
Colseum, where stands the, 682.
Collied night, brief as the lightning in the,
                          Colorge, the River Rhine doth wash, 954
Colorge, the River Rhine doth wash, 954
Color, cast thy nighted, off, 994
Imbues with a new, each pang, 490.
Colorng, sober, 759
Colors and forms were to me an appetite
                      Colors and forms were to me an app

404.

of the rambow, live in the, 869.
Columba, hal, happy land, 603,
to glory arise, 588.
Combat deepens, 513,
wit in the, as gentle as bright, 940.
Comband and a form indeed, 721.
Come and trip it as you go, 785.
as the waves come, 518.
cry is still, they, 500.
death will, when it will come, 310 gentle spring, ethereal midness, 49 into the garden Maud, 152 like shadows so depart, 588.
live with me and be my love, 157-one come all, 655.
                 here with me and be my love, 157, one come all, 655, rest in this bosom, 185 the foe they, 512 to the bridal chamber death, 582, unto these yellow sands, 865 what come may, 79; what may, I have been best, 207, will they, when you do call for them, 812 Comes to neere that, to be dende, 232, unlooked for if at all, 817 Comets, no, seen when beggars die, 809 Comfort be, to my 267, 294 continuall, in a face, 504, from gnorance our, flows, 797 in himself and in his cause, 540, 't is for lighter ills, 800, Comin' thro the rye, 187 Coming events cast their shadows before, 554
This for inginer in a constraint of the property of the proper Composture stolen from general excrement, 489
Compound for sins they are inclined to, 387, Compunction, strong, in me wrought, 797, Compunction visitings of nature, 900 compute, what's done we partly may, 784, Concave, hell's, shout that tore, 785, Conceal the mind, men talk only to, 804, Concealment like a worm i' the bud, 251, Conceil, what are they all in their high, 744, Conceive in boyhood and pursue as men 867.
             Conceive in boyhood and pursue as m 867.

867.

nor name thee, cannot, 900 e.

Concentred all in self, the wretch, 563.

In a life intense, 813.

Conception, wretched in his, 320.

Concern, all mankind's, is charity, 398.

Concerns, vast, fluctuations and its, 810.

Concerted harmonies, 323.

Conclusion, most lame and impotent, 723.
```

sweet, of some heart, Egeria, 869.

```
Concord, firm, holds, 815 heart with heart in, beats, 206.
of sweet sounds, 796.
Concur to general use, extremes in man, 799.
Condemned to have an itching palm, much,
Condemned to have an itching palm, much, 797.
wretch, on hope relies, 347.
Condense thy soul, 726.
Condescend to take a bit, 81c.
Condition, honor and shame from no, rise,
    Condition, honor and sname from no, race, 784.
Conduct, nice, of a clouded cane, 799.
Confabulate, if birds, or no, 495.
Confidence, fibal, inspired with, 600.
of heaven's applause, 540.
of reason, 797.
Confine, hies to his, 868.
Confined, cabined cribbed, 800.
Confirm the tidings as they roll, 376.
Confirmations, strong as proofs of holy writ,
             207.
Conflict, dire was the noise of, 500.
        Conflict, dire was the noise of, 500, heat of, 540.
Conflued, harmonlously, 815.
Confluen hash made his master-piece, 500, worse confounded, 725.
Congenial to my heart, 685, with the night, 401.
Conjectures, I am weary of, 759.
    Conjectures, I am weary of, 759.
Conjugal petard, I am weary of, 759.
Conjugal petard, 190.
Conjugal petard, 190.
Conjugal petard, 190.
The wear wear of the surface of the Consent, whispering I will ne'er, consented, 20 Consequence, deepest, betray us in, 396. tranuel up the, 90 Consderation like an angel came, 395. Constancy in wind, hope, 806. hives in realms above, 116 Constant as gliding waters roll, 796. as the northern star, 490. at their and change, 873. become more, as they cool, 795. friendable is, save in love, 121 to one thing, never, 128, 271. Constellations, happy, 200. Consume as they kins, 815. Constellation devoluty to be wished, 297. Consumption's ghastly form, 522. Contagnon to this world, 497. Contemplation and valor formed, for, 711. Contemplation and valor formed, for, 711. Contemplation and valor formed, for, 712. Contemplation and valor formed, for, 714. farewell, 722. humble livers in, range with, 347. in externals, 815. thyself to be obscurely good, 607. to dwell in decencies forever, 322. Contents, mighty, rise from trivial things, 815. Conthraires, dhrames go by, 197.
             Continual posterior solution of his face, shrugs and strange, Coningencies or pomp, 807.

Contortions of his face, shrugs and strange, 793.

Contradiction, woman's at best a, still, 795.
Control stops with the shore, 607.
Controls them and subdues, 539.
Control stops with the shore, 607.
Controls them and subdues, 539.
Control stops, hearts of, 672.
Contournely, proud man's, 297.
Contournely, proud man's, 297.
Conversation's burrs, 809.
Conversation's burrs
```

```
Coral lip admires, 141.

of his bouse are, made, 869.

stems, steatfield, 867.

cordular gold in plaisit is a, 802.

hope like a, 802.

core, fine you are the more than, 268.

Corrocats, kind hearts are more than, 268.

Corrupted, considence with injustice is, 796.

Corruption, keep mine honor from, 811.

wins and more than honestry, 322.

Corse, slovenly unhandsome, 306.

Cortes, like stout, 805.

Costedy thy habit as thy purse can buy, 722.

Cot beside the hill, mine be a, 225.

Cottage, modest looks the, might adorn, 409.

the soul's dark, 725.

Couch, drapery of his, 208.

froway, in sorrow steep, 346.

grassy, they to their, 413.

of war, finnty and steel, 339.

Couched with revenge, 396.

Counsel, sometimes, sometimes tea, 814.

Counstell, harmonic, sweet, 847.

maturest, perplex and dash, 724.

Counterfeit a gloom, teach light to, 787.

presentment, 721.

Country did but once to save our, 607 for his, he sighed, 578.

God made the, man the town, 672.

his first best, ever is at home, 229.

meases, herbs and other, 785.

my bleeding, save, 583.

touch our, and their shackles fall, 594.

undiscovered, from whose bourn, 297.

Country field was there my, 876.

Courage mounteth with occasion. 247
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         Creation's blot creation's blank, 797.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 Creation's blot creation's blank, 797.
dawn, 607.
Creator, his great, drew his spirit, 300.
Creature, blank misgivings of a, 750.
not a, was sturing, 50.
not too bright or good, 128.
Creature, call these delicate, ours, 207.
gay, of the element, 800.
millions of spiritual, 808.
Credit his own ile, 797.
of his book confounds, 805.
who breaketh his, 802.
Creditor, glory of a, determines the, 797.
Creed outworm, pagan suckled in s, 403.
Creeds, more faith in doubt than half the, 337.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         Creep 37.

Creep into his study of imagination, 80r, wit that can, 910.

Creeping like snall, 71r, where no life is seen, 466.

Creeps in this petty pace from day to day,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         Crest, snaky, fierce Repentance rears her,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 Crew, helpess, sunk in the roaring main, 632.
Cribbed, cabined, confined, 800.
Cricket chirrups on the hearth, 139.
On the hearth, 187.
Crime, forgive the, too late I stayed, 117.
madden to, 451:
numbers sanctified the, 541:
untold, price of many a, 802.
Crisis, mortal, doth portend, 309.
Crists, mortal, doth portend, 309.
Critic, an logic a great, 045.
Critic, an logic a great, 045.
Critic, and the sund the with a, 107.
Critical, I am nothing if not, 723.
Criticis, or c'en critics, 810.
Criticisung clves, spite of all the, 804.
Critique, each day a, on the last, 708.
Cromwell dainned to everlasting faine, 939.
guilleless of his country's blood, soune, 500.
Treather could not seen.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             Crew, helpless, sunk in the roaring main,
        Country's cause, bosom bests not in his, 622.

Countrymen, friends Romans, 875.

O what a fall was there my, 876.

Courage mounteth with occasion, 541 never to submut or yield, 540 screw your, to the sticking place, 802, unbounded, and compassion, 539.

whisting to keep his, up, 107.

Course, fair, is not hin dered, 403, great Nature's second, 883 of empire, westward the, 587, of love, my whole, 145, of nature is the air of God, 489 of one revolving moon, 909, of true love never did run smooth, 250 wheels her pale, the moon, 491 Courses of my life do show, 812, steer their, like ships, 807 Court camp church, 205, love rules the, the camp, 203, the vaporty god, 816 Courted by all the winds, 631 in your girls again be, 215 Courtesy, pink of, I am the very, 724, scant this breathing, 121.

Courts, other, o'th' nation, 395.

Cover friendless bodies of unburied men, 495.

Covert, in shadiets, hild, 407.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     Cromwell canned to everacting tame, 1939 guiltless of his country's blood, some, 306
restless, could not cease, 539
Crony, ancient trusty drouthy, 847.
Crous, by hook or, 671
the pregnant hinges of the knee, 111.
Crops the flowery food, 496
Cross, bitter, nailed for our advantage on the, 397 e'en tho it be a, that raiseth me, 373.
last at his, earliest at his grave, 795
sparkling, in her white breast, 128
Cross-how, hold from stell, 671
Crossed with adversity, 345.
Crossed, 1958 and, 348
relice crucifixes, 396
row doth sing sweetly as the lark, 496 like chanticleer, my lungs, 810 that flies in heaven's sweetest air, 722.
Crowd, far from the madding, 306.
not on my soul, 868
of common men, death calls ye 10, 308
the hum he shock of men, 425.
Crowd, a surrow's, of sorrow, 255.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         the hum the shock of men, 415.

Crown, a surrows, of sorrow, 455.

fruitless, placed upon my head, 345.
head that wears a, uneasy less the, 763 old Winter's head with flowers, 193.
the god of sleep, 816 thince, presented him a, 96 Crowning good repressing ill, 590.
Crowning hood repressing ill, 590.
Crowns, bloody, of mother's 5018, 541 twenty mortal murders on their, 868, Crow-toe, tuffed, 494.
Crucinses crosses relics, 396
Cruel as death, hungry as the grave, 310.
Crush of worlds, 750.
Crush of worlds, 750.
Crush of worlds, 750.
Crush of worlds, 750.
Crush of worlds, 593.
Cry, bubbling, of some strong swimmer, 593.
                Cover includes 45.

Covert, in shadlest, hid, 407.

Covert honor, if it be a sin to, 811.

Covetous for gold, I am not, 811.

Cowards, all mankind is one of these two, 900,
and wicked livers, 809
conscience does make, of us all, 297, die many times, 310,
Cowslip's bell I lie, in a, 869
Cowslip's wan that hang the pensive head,
        Cowslips Bell I ie, in a, 895
Cowslips wan that hang the pensive head, 494
Coy submission, yielded with, 711.
uncertain, and hard to please, 509.
Cozenage, strange, 793
Crack of doom, 725
your cheeks, blow winds and, 494.
Cradled curst from his, 320.
Cradled fine poetry by wrong, 806.
Cradled into poetry by wrong, 806.
Cradled into poetry by wrong, 806.
Crag, castled, of Drachenfels, 446.
Crags, the rattling, among, 686.
Crammed with observation, 803.
Cranks, quips and, and wanton wiles, 785.
Cranny, every, but the right, 803.
Crape, saint in, twice a saint in lawn, 812.
Craw my mind forbids to, 729.
Craw orrow, 506.
Crass our order to rise and half to fall, 792.
Creation, amd its gay, 489.
a new, rescued from his reign, 639.
essential vesture of, 728.
fevers mto false, 867.
a false, from the heat-oppressed brain, 882.
Sweet, of some heart, Egeria, 860.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  for being born, 320.
Havock and let slip the dogs of war,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             for Deing Dorn, 3-12.
Havock and let slip the dogs of war, 539, 18 still: They come, 540 mew, be a kitten and cry, 807 no language but a, 93 war is still the, 54?

Cun of sweet and bitter fancy, 813 Cunning of the scene, struck by the very, 804, 1814, 1815, 1816, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817, 1817,
```

Curfew toils the knell of parting day, 305.
Curious child, I have seen a, 632.
In books not authors, 605.
Curied darlings of our nation, 722.
Curis, Hyperion's, 722.
Curis of commercial of the soul, 306.
Simooth, of domestic Joy, 807.
take the, when it serves, 802.
Curient sum awry, 307.
Curis of low degree, 949.
Curise not loud but deep, 749.
Curise not loud but deep, 749.
Curising like a very drab, 735. Cursed be the verse, 781.

Curses not loud but deep, 794

Cursing like a very drab, 725

Curse by heaven's decree, luxury thou, 690.

from his cradle, 32^*.

Cushino and soft dean invite to rest, 366.

Custom more honored in the breach, 814.

of Branksome Hall, such is the, 814.

stale her infinite variety, 712.

the tyrant, 539.

Customed hill, innised him from the, 306.

Cut, beard of formal, 711.

most unkindest, of all, 876.

off even in the blossoms of my sin, 310

Cut-purse of the enipure and the rule, 873

Cycle, let the new, shame the old, 604.

of Cathay, 258

Cynosure of neighboring eyes, 385

Cynosure of neighboring eyes, 385

Cypress droops to death, the very, 312 land where the, and myrtle, 451

Cytherea's breath, 495 Dacian mother, 681 Daffed the world aside, 793. Daffodils, faire, 464 that come before the swallow, 495. Daffodis, faire, 464 that come before the swallow, 495Dagger, air-drawn, 868, drawn, the soul similes at the, 759 is this a, which I see before me, 882of the mind, 882Daily life, what before us lies in, 798
Dainte flower or herbe, 494
Daisie or els the eye of the day, 462
Daise pied, meadows trim with, 785men callen in our town, 462 myrads of, 495Daisy protects the dewdrop from the sun, 89Sale, hawthorn in the, under the, 785Dalsa and fields, 137Daillaince, printrove path of, 809Dailles with the innocence of love, 205
Daillaines, printrove path of, 809Dailles with the innocence of love, 205
Damask cheek, feed on her, 251Dame of Ephesus so mourned her love, 204sullen sulky, 847Dames of ancient days, 232Dame of ancient days, 232Damn with faint praise, 910Damnable deceliful woman, 705Damnaton, deal, round the land, 370deep, of his taking-off, 900
dirink, 558
Demmed be him that first cries Hold, 540devil with devil, 815I will see thee, first, 553-Danned De him that hist cries Hold, 540.
devil with devil, 815.
I will see thee, first, 953.
minutes, tells he o'er, what, 207 to everlasting fame, 939.
Danning those they have no mind to, 387
Dansel with a dulcimer, 834.
Dan Chaucer well of English undefyled,
288. Dan Chaucer well of English undefyled, 938
Dance, Gill shall, Jack shall pipe and, 816 on with the, 511.
Pyrrhic, 581.
respondent, 672
when you do, 734
who learned to, move easiest, 806
Dances, midnight, and the public show, 312.
on the green, in hamlets, 202.
such a way, she, 211.
Dancing in the checkered shade, 785.
Danger, brave the, and to bear the harm, 795. Danger, brave the, and to bear the harm, 795.

knows Cresar is more dangerous, 899.
on the deep, there 's, 639.
out of this nettle, 671.
send, from east to west, 670.
Danger's troubled night, 639.
Dangerous, delays are, in war, 539.
something, have I in me, 733.
such men are, 722.
thing, a little learning is a, 805, Dangers, loved me for the, I had passed, 1245 of the seas, 632
Daniel, a second, a Daniel Jew, 804.
come to judgment, 723.
Expled morn, greets the, 671
Dare de all that may become a man, 800.
not wait upon I would, 800.

Dares think one thing another tell, 797.
who, greatly does greatly, 671.
Darien, silent upon a peak in, 805.
Darien, in full dress, 814.
Dark amid the blaze of noon, 221.
and doubful, loves to run from the, 805.
and lonely hiding-place, 395.
as Erebus, affections, 796 between the, and the daylight, 98 blue sea, o'er the gind waters of the, 626.
ever-during, 407.
eye in woman, light of a, 686.
mourful rusting in the, 801.
o'er the, her silver mantle threw, 413.
shuning nowhere bur the, 274.
unfathomed caves of ocean, 306.
ways that are, and tricks that are vain, 900. unfathemed caves of ocean, 306.
ways that are, and tricks that are vain, 987.
what in me is, illumine, 395.
Darkest day will have passed away, 793
Darkest day will have passed away, 793
Darkly deeply beautifully blut. 490
Darkness, Cimmerian, 743dawn on our, 397 falls from the wings of night, 490.
instruments of, 396.
jaws of, do devour it up, 250.
ring out the, of the land, 732
moothing the raven down of, 726
Darling sin is pride that apes humility, 396
the Frenchman's, 495
Darlings, wealthy curled, 722.
Dart, fatal, viewed his own feather on the, 800
how cruel is thy, 204.
Doisoning of a, hke the, 795.
Time shall throw a, at thee, 907.
Date, what tho' short thy, 794.
Daughter of astronomy, devotion, 492 of Jove, relentiess power, 345.
of the Voice of God, duty, 797.
still harping on my, 203
ta'en away this old man's, 145
Daughters, fairest of her, hve, 712
Dawn, belong not to the, 563
Diss to be alive in that, 490.
May-time and the cheerful, 128.
on our darkness, 397
Dawn's early light, can you see by the, 560,
Spanning, brd of, singeth all might, 397 Dawn's early light, can you see by the, 560, 592
Dawning, bird of, singeth all night, 397 gentle, of a bright success, 800 of morn, sorrow returned with the, 529.
Day, as it fell upon a, 420, 492.
beauty changing with the changeful, 223
he she fairer than the, 193
break of, eyes like, 263,
close of the, when the hamlet is still,
737. break of, eyes like, 263.

close of the, when the hamlet is still,

737.

closing hour of, 490

count that, lost, 398

darkest, will have passed away, 793 dawn on the might of the grave, 737 drowsy summer, pastime of a, 70

entertains the harmless, 737

eve of, liquid notes that close the, 496, eye of the, the darsie, 462

fight another, live to, 520 from busy, the peaceful night, 559 in June, what is so rare as a, 494 is aye fair in the land o' the leal, 396 is done and the darkness falls, 490

jocund, stands on tiptoe, 490

life's young, lure o', 242 light of common, fade into the, 758

maddest merriest, 377

make each, a critique on the last, 798

merry as the, is long, 794 night joint-laborer with the, 559 not to me returns, 407

now's the, and now's the hour, 573 of death, first dark, 303.

of nothingness, first dark, 303.

of woe, 390

open as, for melting charity, 794 parting, currew tolls the knell of, 305 parting, dies like the dolphin, 490.

peep of, in its nest at, 80.

powerful king of, 490.

raineth every, the rain it, 494 roughest, time and the hour runs through

the, 792

sheds the shining, 719 sheds the way to heaven, 546 roughest, time and the hour runs through the, 792, sheds the shining, 719, summer's, all the way to heaven, 546 sure pledge of, 363 sweet Phosphor bring the, 489, sweet, so cool so calm so bright, 301, that comes betwirt Saturday and Monday, 198

that is dead, tender grace of a, 315uncertain glory of an April, 492.
uaherest in the, 288,
warm precincts of the cheerful, 306.

Day's disasters, learned to trace the, 688 life, the desth of each, 883, march neurer home, 389 Dayles, spring full of sweet, and roses, 302 Daylight, between the dark and the, 98 Days among the dead are passed, 306 are in the yellow leaf, 350, begin with trouble here, 308, boyish, even from my, 145, brave, of old, 588, degenerate, men that live in these, 794 fullen on evil, 348 fight of future, never-ending, 801, happy mixtures of more happy, 108, laborious, live, 812 lengthen our, best of all ways to, 205, light of other, 318, long as twenty are now, 108, melancholy are come, 460, o' auld lang syne, 118 of childhood, 274 one of those heavenly, 490, perfect, then if ever come, 424, pride of former, 537, seen better, 347, shuts up the story of our, 745 sweet childish, 108, that are no more, 315, 350, that need borrow, 103, winding up, with full, 559, with God he passed the, 399, Daystar sinks in the occasi-bed, 490 Daze the world, sudden visitations, 812, lazeles to blind, 737, Dead, bent him o'er the, he who hath, 303, better be with thit, 311 but sceptred sovereigns, 681, day that is, tender grace of a, 315, days among the, are passed, 800 linglish, close the wall up with our, 502, fading honors of the, 576 Horatio I am, 811 life from the, is in that word, 389 mighty, high converse, with the, 806, mourrangs for the, 272 mourns. but come before, 311, of midnight is the noon of thought, 431 and 512 for an anong for the, 272 mourns. Our flee or an anong for the, 272 mourns to the original of thought, 431 for an anong the are an anong for the part of thought, 431 for an anong for the part of thought, 431 for an anong for the part of thought, 432 for an anong for the part of thought, 432 for an anong for the part of thought, 432 for an anong for the part of thought, 432 for an anong for the part of thought, 432 for an anong for the part 312 not, but gone before, 311.
of midnight is the noon of thought, 431
quaff a cup to the, already, 898 past bury its dead, let the, 770 vast and middle of the night, 491. of midnight is the noon or increasing, 97quaff a cup to the, drieady, 88
past bury its dead, let the, 770 vast and middle of the might, 491.
Deadly fair, 50, 933.
Dead damination round the land, 370
Dean, cushion and soft, invite to rest, 396.
Dear as reniembered kisses after death, 315
as the light, 20
as the ruddy drops, 266, as the vital warmth, 206
as these eyes that weep, 206, beauteous death, 274.
chariner away, were to ther, 174.
common flower, 495.
departed shade, 288
discretion, 803,
five hundred friends, 814.
son of memory great heir of fame, 906, to heaven is saintly chastity, 796 to me more, congenial to my heart, 689too, for my possessing, 239
Valena, 493.
Dearer than his horse, 255, than self, 415
Dearest thing he owed, throw away the, 309Dearly let or let alone, must be, 214.
Dears, nature swears the lovely, 191.
Death a necessary end, 310
anns with fouler spite, 309
all of, to die, 311.
and his brother Sleep, 714 and life my bane and antidote, 759, bad man's, is horror, 311 back resounded, 310
be laid low, m, 574
birth is nothing but our, begun, 308, hrought, into the world, 395.
calls ye to the crowd of common meta, 308 came with friendly care, 107, can this be, 305
closed hips seem to smile at, 69,
cometh soon or late, 507,
crued out, I fled and, 310, cruel as, hungry as the grave, 310, cruel, is always near, 308
dear beauteous, 274,
dread of something after, 297,
dull cold ear of, 306
let are facilities and the server of the seateness, 274,
dread of something after, 297,
evil, can show, I know no, 794, faith that looks through, 759, fell sergeant, 309
gret prize o', in battle, 539,
gret prize o', in battle, 539,

```
Death, grim, in opposition sits, 31c.
grianed horrible a ghastly smile, 899,
how wonderful is, 714.
I woo thee, 311.
If m, still lovely lovelier there, 794.
In life, 315.
Is a thing that makes men weep, 310.
Is but the sounder sleep, 310.
In life slee
                                                 man makes a, which nature never mace, 370, nothing call our own but, 310, of each day's life, 883 of kings, sad stories of the, 310 of princes, the heavens blaze forth the, 890, paradles to what we fear of, 347 reaper whose name is, 276 remembered kisses after, dear as, 315, ribs of, create a soul under the, 831 ruling passion strong in, 780, sense of, most in apprehension, 310, silent halls of, 307, slavery or, 570.
sleep brother to, 816.
sleep is a, 310.
sleep of, what dreams may come in that,
                                                 sleep ot, what may quiet us in a, 794.
297.
so noble, what may quiet us in a, 794.
song whose breath may lead to, 539 speak me fair in, 312.
studied in his, 399.
studied in his, 399.
the great teacher, wait, 801.
thou hast all seasons for thine own, 308
                                                            there is no, 272
to us, tho' play to you't is, 208 to us, tho play to you are so you surges, 395 valiant taste of, but once, 310, what should it know of, 87, what we fear of, 347 where is thy sting, 0, 355, will come when it will come, 310, whose portal we call, 272

Death-bed's a detector of the heart, 310 of fame, 574.
whose portal we call, 272
Death-bed's a detector of the heart, 310 of faine, 574.
Beaths, feels a thousen, fearing one, 310
Debate, Rupert of, 723-tempest of, 215.
Debauchee, tremulous, give wine to the, 545
Debt, chest contrived a double, to pay, 689 slender, to nature's quickly padd, 300
Decay, muddy vesture of, 775
unperceived, age that meits with, 794
Decay's effacing fingers, 303
Decays, mere glummering and, 274.
Deceit, men favor the, 793
rumor of oppression and, 593
Deceiverial ship desceitful flow, 309.
woman, destructive damnable, 795
Deceivers, men were, ever, 198, 271.
December, mith of its, 108.
seek roses in, ice in June, 806.
when they wed, 214
Decences, dwell in, forever, 232.
thousand, that daily flow, 200.
Decency, emblem right meet of, does yield, 708.
want of, is want of sense, 805.
Deced when december the seasons.
                  708.
want of, is want of sense, 805.
Decide when doctors disagree, who shall,
               Beck, boy stood on the burning, 614.
Deckvity, mild, of hill, 720
Decorations, solemn, of the great tomb of Declavity, mild, of hill, 720
Decorations, solemn, of the great tomb of man, 307
Decrease, like is in, 308.
Decree, luxury curst by heaven's, 600.
Declaven, wild, of yourselves, 800.
Decl. river, lived on the, 550.
Decd, a little water clears us of this, 883, attempt and not the, confounds us, 883, doer's, dignified by the, 813, good, in a naughty world, 797.
Intent and not the, is in our power, 672.
of dreadful note, 900.
of ahame beneath our feet, 3990.
unless the go with it, 797.
Deeds, devillah, 601.
cmblems of, done in their clime, 451.
foul, will rise, 900.
if doughty, my lady please, 146.
ill, sight of means to do, 815.
makes ill, done, 815.
pure in, perplexed in fakth, 397,
unlucky, relate, 794.
virtuous, blessings wait on, 398.
we live in, not years, 742.
Deen not they are blessed alone, 743.
Deep and dark blue ocean, 607.
and gloomy wood, 404.
```

```
Deep and utter agony, &o...
as first love, 315,
contemplative, fools so, &ro.
curses not loud but, 7944
damnation of his taking-off, 900, dive into the bottom of the, 670, druk, or taste not, &o5
embosoused in the, 622, fishes that tipple in the, 147,
her home is on the, 629,
hollow, of hell resounded, 540,
home on the rolling, 630
lowest, a lower deep in the, 396, malice to conceal, 396
researches, year the brain, 805, there's danger on the, 672,
through the fighted fied, 725, vasty, spirits from the, 872,
yet clear, 723
Deeper than all speech, thought is, 731.
Deepest consequence, betrays us in, 396
Deep-mouthed welcome, 156.
Deer, let the strucken, go weep, 671.
Deeper than all speech, thought is, 731.
Deepest consequence, betrays us in, 396
Deep-mouthed welcome, 166.
Deer, let the strucken, go weep, 671.
my own stricken, 185.
Defamed by every charlatan, 797
Defeatures, strange, in my face, 799
Defect, fine by, and deletately weak, 723.
Defence, endeavor for, 541
mmodest words admit of no, 805.
Defend from Jealousy all my tribe, 207.
your departed friend, 120.
Defender, faith's, name of, 602
Defern at till to-morrow to be wise, 793
't is madness to, 748.
Defance in their eye, 603
Deformed unfinished, 939
Defance in their eye, 603
Deformed unfinished, 939
Degenerate days, men that live in these, 794
Degrees, grows up by, 395
Begenerate days, men that live in these, 794
Degrees, fine by, and beautfully less, 721.
Degrees, grows up by, 395
Bil habits gather by unseen, 493
scorning the base, 790
Deify the things that we adore, 232.
Deity, felt presence of the, 491 offended, 395.
Dejected eye, 802.
Delay, law's, 207,
reproved each dull, 688
sweet reductant amorous, 711.
Delays are dangerous in war, 539
Deliberates, woman that, is lost, 796
Delicated ereatures ours, call these, 207.
Delicated weak, 273.
Deliclous to hate you, 204
Delight, Yoly calin, 273. lap me in, 814.
my ever new, 215.
never too late for, 305.
over-payment of, 309.
oshe's my, all mankind's wonder, 134
she was a phantom of, 128 to pass away the time, 938 turn, nuo a sacrifice, 364 war thou hast thy fierce, 539 with libertie enjoy, 480.
Dellights, man, me not nor woman neither, 336.
      Delights, man, me not nor woman neither,
                                               346.
soft, that witchingly instil, 831 soft, that witchingly instil, 83r to scorn, 212. vain, hence all ye, 315. violent, have violent ends, 815. Delphian vales, 917. Demi-paraduse, this other Eden, 603. Democratic, ferce, wielded at will that, 804. Democrats, wrinkles the d—d, won't flatter, 125.
      794.
Demon thought, the, 396.
Demosthenes, or Clcero, fall below, 107
Den, beard the lion in his, 648
Denide, comes to neere that comes to be, 232.
Denied him with unholy tongue, 795.
Denizen, world's tried, 415
Deny, poor heart would fain, and dare not,
      Denty, poor heart would fain, and dare no 794.

Denth, far beyond my, 321 self-withdrawn into a boundless, 867 bepths and shoals of honor, 322. rolls through the dark blue, 491. Descant, amorous, sung, 413 Descent, claims of long, smile at the, 268 Description, beggared all, 722 paragons, a maid that, 722 pesdemona seriously incline, 145. Desert air, waste its sweetness on the, 306, and illimitable sir, 481. dry, of a thousand lines, 807. leafless, of the mind, 816 my dwelling-place, 206. rocks and feeting air, 801. Deserted at his utmost need, 771 Desert-circle spreads, 492. Deserts are small, 150. idle, centres vast and, 145.
```

```
Designs, intent on high, 609, our slow, doth backward pull, 793. Our slow, doth backward pull, 793. Our slow hot die with dead, 203. liveth not in fierce, 203 and 204. Speed of my, 186 thas fond, 759. young, bloom of, 205. young, hope thou nurse of, 800. Desires, calm, greate thoughts and, 141. present in, though absent, 248. Desolate, none are 80, but something deas, 445.
     415.
utterly, none so, 345
Despair, conscience wakes that slumbered,
                         396. depth of some divine, 315, 350. fiercer by, 348.
                         fiercer by, 348.
huge as, 750.
hurried question of, 300
hurried question of, 300
infinite wrath and infinite, 396 message of, wark home the, 397 nympholepsy of some fond, 869, pangs and fury of, 800.
reason would, love can hope where,
                                  204.
inreached Paradise of our, 867.
904.
unreached Paradise of our, 867.
wasting in, 193.
Despairing agonies destroy, 800.
of his fee to-morrow, 809
sweeter for thee, 'ti, 134.
Despatchful looks, turns in haste with, 232.
Despatchful looks, turns in haste with, 232.
Destined to that good hour, 809.
Destiny, shadows meet of, 603.
shady leaves of, 193.
Destroy one, to, is murder, 541.
Destroying still, fighting still and, 772.
Destroying still, fighting still and, 772.
Destructive damnable deceifful woman, 705.
Detector of the heart, a death-bed's a, 310.
Detests him as the gates of hell, 797.
Device, banner with the strange, 777.
Devil, abashed the, stood, 398.
can cite Scripture, 797.
did grin, 396.
God or, every man was, 909.
hath not in all his quiver's choice, 204.
hath power to assume a shape, 396.
how the, they got there, 81c.
piqued such saintship to behold, 803.
play the, seem a saint, 396.
stole livety of heaven to serve the, 797.
sugar o'er the, himself, 396.
 stole livery of heaven to serve the, 797 sugar of or the, himself, 396 take her, 263, tell truth and shame the, 398 with devil damned, 815 Devils being offended, 723 Devold of sense and motion, 794-Devotion's visage, 396 Devour all it sees, 798 Devoutly to be wished, a consummation, 207.
 297. Dew, chaste as morning, rocfalling like, upon a thought, 80s, from the heath-flower dashed the, 721 from the heath-hower dashed the, 721 glistering with, 205, 409 infant, young diamonds in their, 345 on his thin robe, 578.

on the mountain, like the, 283, resolve itself into a, thaw and, 311, shall weep thy fall, 302, sunlight drunketh the, 205, washed with morning, rose is sweetest, more tedious than the, a48. to the sun, the, 706. Diamonds, bright as young, 345. Diamonds, bright as young, 345. Dian stemple, hangs on, 493. Diapason cloving full in man, 775. Die, all that live must, 30. Die, all that live must and properties a woman's fair, 193. before I wake, if I should, 197. better, how can man, 507. Dut once to save our country, 602. cowards, many times, 310. do or, let us, 573.
```

Die, httest place where man can, 602hazard of the, 802.
is landing on some silent shore, 309longing yet afraid to, 345love can, they sin who tell us, 206.
names not born to, 582nature broke the, 540not valiant that dares, 900 swan-like let me sing and, 581
taught us how to, 971.
try by sleeping what it is to, 320uniamented let me, 225what can an old man do but, 322.
where to be born and, makes all the history, 797what can an old man do but, 322.
where to be born and, makes all the history, 797, wish to, when he should live, 900.
with harness on our back, 541.
without dying, how sweet to, 761.
young, whom the gods love, 107
Died, 50 groaned and, 794.
the dog it was that, 949
Dies among his worshippers, 534.
nothing, but something mourns, 414.
nothing, but something mourns, 414.
noffer, all things, all agree though, 815.
Difference betwirk wake and sleep, 816.
O the, to me, 105.
Different men directs to different ends, 799 mands to different objects, 814.
views engage, 804
Digatific from pure, bred, 400
Diganified by the doer's deed, 813.
Diganified by the doer's deed, 813.
Diganified humanity, anght that, 348.
Diguity and love in every gesture, 209.
Diligently slow, 632
Dim and penlous way, 808.
religious light, 797
the sweet look nature wears, 490
Diminished heads, hide their, 719rays, hide your, 797
Dimines, faints into, with delight, 720.
Dimple, pretty, of his chin, 107
Dined, fate cannot harm me I have, to-day, 1013.
Die offence from amorous causes, 815 Direct to torin, 290
Directed by a wife, 230
Directed the torin, 230
Directs the torin, 230
Directs the familiar to my slaughterous Direness familiar to my slaughtere thoughts, 900
Dirge is sung by forms unseen, 563
Dirf, loss of wealth is loss of, 347.
Disarcer, men only, 875.
Disarcer, laugh at all, 631
Disacrontent, now is the winter of our, 547
what more unserable than, 799
Discort annon, all, 489
horrible, 900
Discourse, but me, 893.
hold, at least in fable, 495
large, inade us with such, 808.
more sweet, in, 808 large, made us with such, 868, more sweet, in, 868 of reason, a beast that wants, 723, weet and voluble is his, 723 yednetian showers of sweet, 193. Discourses, sweet, woes shall serve for, 241. Discredit more in hiding of the fault, 815 Discreets bust, 205 Discreets bust, 205 Discreets bust, 205 Discreetion dear, 803. Discreetion dear, 803. Discreetion dear, 803. Discreeting sight, keen, 806. Disclain, beautiful, 726 calin, 204. Disdati, beautiful, 726 calin, 940.
Disease, old shapes of foul, ring out, 752.
Dish fit for the gods, carve him as a, 900
Dishike, hestiate, 910.
Dismal tudings when he frowned, conveyed
the, 688
Dismissing the doctor don't always succeed, Dismissing the doctor don't always succeed, Boo.
Disobedience, man's first, 395.
Disorder, a sweet, in the dress, 713.
Dispensations and gifts, 396
Disprassed, to be, were no small praise, Brt Dispute, forbear, and practise love, 390.
Dissembling subtle cruel and inconstant, 232.
Dissembling subtle cruel and inconstant, 232.
Dissembling between hearts that love, 460.
Dissimulation, tired, drops her mask, 310.
Dissonance, barbarous, 827
Distance lends enchantment to the view, 248 notes by, made more sweet, 773.
Smooth at a, rough at hand, 204.
Distant prospects please us, 8.1.
views of happiness, 807
Distemper, of no, of no blast he died, 65, 399. Distemper, ot no, of no blast he died, 65, 309.
Distinct as the billows yet one as the sea, 668.
Distinguish and divide a hair, 945.
Distinguished merit, displays, 812.
Distracted globe, memory holds a seat in this, 801.
Distraction, fine, 713 soothe, and almost despair, 809, waft me from, 685

Distressful stroke, when I did sp.
Distress by poverty no more, 802.
griefs that harsas the, 345.
oft to agony, 203.
Ditties of no tone, 718
Diver, adventure of the, 801.
Divide a hair, distinguish and, 945.
Divine, aught, or holy, 803.
enchanting ravishment, 726.
hand that made us is, 376.
how, a thing a woman, 723.
human face, 407.
in hookahs, 814.
philosophy, 297.
to forgive, to err is human, 798.
vision and the faculty, 760.
Diviner air, a, 393. Distressful stroke, when I did speak of vision and the faculty, 760.

Diviner air, a, 399.

Diviner air, a, 399.

Diviner air, a, 399.

Diviner air, a, 399.

Divinity, such, doth hedge a king, 722.

that shapes our ends, there's a, 793.

that stris within us, 759.

Diann's wild-streaming swarm, 869.

Do and die, theirs but to, 517 good by stealth, 797

or die, let us, 573.

well and right, 398.

Doctor, dusmissing the, don't succeed, 809.

fee the, for a nauseous draught, 671.

silent, shook his head, 809.

Doctors', learned, spite, 814.

Doctors dissagree, who shall decide when, 803. 803.
Doctour of phisik, with us ther was a, 809.
Doctrine, from women's eyes this, I derive, 133 prove their, orthodox, 387 sanctified by truth, 393
Doctrines plain and clear, what makes all, 809
Doctrines plain and clear, what makes all, 809
Docr's deed, place dignified by the, 813
Dog, faithful, shall bear him company, 399 he hunts in dreams, like a, 250
it was that died, the, 949 something better than his, 255, to gain his private ends went mad, 949
Dogs bark at me as I halt by, 938 between two, 810
delight to bark and bite, 108, little and all, 346
of war, let's hy the, 539Dog-5atr rages, 805 little and all, 36 of war, let slip the, 539.

Dog-star rages, 805.

Doleful sound, hark from the tombs a, 310

Dolphin, dies like the, parting day, 490.

Dome, haughty, 720

Peter's, hand that rounded, 736 welkin, thy stars have lit the, 592.

Doneste happiness thou only bliss, 323.

joy, smooth current of, 807 malice, foreign levy, 311.

Done, if it were, 't were well it were done quickly, 900.

what is, is done, 792.

what 's, we partly may compute, 784.

Doon, crack of, 725

had an early, love that, 271.

Door, clock that ticked behind the, 689

Doors of breath, hips O you the, 899

pictures out of, 723

Dote on his very absence, 1, 248.

Dotes yet doubts, 207.

Doublet, fashon of a new, carving the, 203.

Doublong his pleasures and his cares dividing, 212

Doubly, feel ourselves alone, 248.

Doubly, feel ourselves alone, 397.

most m, when best resolved, 207

soundest cassusts, 803.

truth to be a lar, 206.

who read to, or read to scorn, 397. once in, is once to be resolved, 207 soundest casuists, 803 truth to be a lart, 205. who read to, or read to scorn, 397. Doubts, dotes yet, 207. our, are traitors, 800. saucy, and fears, 800. loughty deeds my lady please, if, 146. Douglas, hand of, is his own, 648. Dove, beside the springs of, 104. burnished, 254. boves, in immemorial elms, moan of, 493. will peck in safeguard, 708 Dover, human nature's highest, 539. Dowered with the hate of hate, 807. Down, he that is, needs fear no fall, 347. raven, of darkness, 726. the glowing side, 814. thrice-driven bed of, 539. Downs, all in the, the feet was moored, 235 Downy pinions, swift on his, 816. Drab, cursing his a very, 725. Drachenfels, casiled crag of, 446. Drag the slow barge, 802. Drag the slow barge, 802. Drag the slow barge, 802. Drags at each remove a lengthening chain, 488. Its slow length along, 806. its slow length along, 806. Drapery of his couch, 308.

Draught, bitter, that life holds out to all, 494.

494.

494 tee the doctor for a nauseous, 571.

gifts that make sweet the bitter, 672, of cool refreshment, 700.

Draughts, shallow, intoxicate the brain, 805.

Draw folk to heven by fairnesse, 805.

Drawers, chest of, by day, 685.

Dread and fear of kings, 708.

of something after death, 297.

secret, whence this, 759.

Dreaded as thou art, 492.

Dread all might without a stir, 494.

changeful, fickle as a, 873.

forgotten, hunt half a day for a, 661.

hideous, like a phantasma, or a, 900.

life is but an empty, 759.

love's young, 262.

of things that were, 792

perchance to, 297.

slently as a, the fabric rose, 493.

something fashioned in a, 195.

spirit of my, a change came o'er the, 765.

Dreamed that Greece might still be free. 480. Draught, bitter, that life holds out to all, spirit to my, a campe of the free, $80. Dreamed that Greece might still be free, $80. Dreams books are each a world, 805 empty dreams, 791 hence habbling, $41 hunts in, like a dog he, 256 he down to pleasant, 208 hunts in, like a dog he, 286.
he down to pleasant, 398
pleasing, and slumbers light, 816.
such stuff as, are made on, 867 that wave before the half-shut eye, 832.
what, may come, 297
Dream tof in your philosophy, 808
Dreary intercourse of daily life, 404.
void, rapture to the, 816.
Dress, a sweet disorder in the, 713.
daring in full, 814
pomp of, beyond the, 795
Drest in a little brief authority, 813.
still to be, 713 Drest in a little brief authority, 813.
still to be, 713
Drew an angel down, 772
my whole soul with one long kiss, 205.
Drink damnation, we, 558.
deep or taste not, 805
never taste who always, 803.
nor any drop to, 855,
to me only with thine eyes, 125 to the lass, 131
with him that wears a bood, 946 who had think each lose, 195 with him that wears a bood, 946 ye to her that each loves best, 205 Drinking, constant, fresh and fair with, 494 largely sobers us again, 805.
Drinks and gapes for drink again, 494
Drip of the suspended oar, drops the light, 685.
Droght of March, 695.
Drop, every, hinders needle and thread, 338 338 in for an after-loss, 271. into thy mother's Lip, like ripe fruit thou, 310 last, in the well, 920 of patience in some part of my soul, 725 that falls cold and ceaseless, 248. to drink, nor any, 855
Droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven, 798 Drops, like kindred, been mingled into one. 504 minute, from off the caves, 787 of rain, tell their beads in, 494 ruddy, that warm in heart, 206
ruddy, that visit my sad heart, 206
ruddy, that visit my sad heart, 206
the light drip of the suspended oar, 689, what precious, are those, 345.
Dropt from the zenth like a falling star, 725,
Drowshed, a pleasing land of, 832.
Drud hes, in yonder grave a, 940.
Druids of eld 453
Drun, not a, was heard, 920
the spirit-stirring, 722.
Drums, like muffled, are beating, 770.
Drunkard clasps his teeth, 558.
Dry as remainder biscuit, 803
as summer dust, hearts, 390 desert of a thousand lines, 807.
Dryden, even copious, wanted or forgoe,
Duck or plover, 112. minute, from off the eaves, 78 Duck or plover, muskets aimed at, 671. Dukedom, my library was, large enough, 805.
Dulcimer, damsel with a, 834.
Dull as night, the motions of his spirit are, 776 cold ear of death, 306
cold marble, sleep in, 321.
gentle yet not, 723.
tame ahore, 635.
Dulness, gentle, ever loves a joke, 803.
Dumb, beggar that is, may challenge doub pity, 204.

Dumb driven cattle, 770. torgettuiness, a prey to, 306. Duncan hath borne his faculties so meek, Duncan nath borne his factures so meek, 900.

Dunce that has been kept at home, 793.
that has been kept at home, 793.
that has been sent to roam, 793.
Dungeon, scourged to his, 304.
Durance vile, 10, 304.
Durance vile, 10, 304.
Dusky race, she shall rear my, 257.
Dust, blossom in their, 307.
come to, as chunney-sweepers, 301.
dry as summer, hearts, 309.
heap of, alone remains of thee, 311.
keeps something of his glory in the, 312.
kinght's bones are, 339.
mysteries do lie beyond thy, 274.
pride that licks the, 910.
resugn his very, 794.
seek for thy noble father in the, 308 silent, can honor's volce provoke the, seek for thy more same, a man, a silent, can honor's voice provoke the, 301, that is a little gilt, 811. thou art to dust returnest, 769, vile, from whence he sprung, 563. Dusty death, the way to, 792. Dusty, I ve done no help, know, 599, primal, shine aloft like stars, 398. Duty, I ve done no more, 799-love a simple, 796. The done no more, 799-love a simple, 796. Subject owes the prince, 215. Dwelling in the light of setting suns, 404. On the thought of setting suns, 404. Duty and the light of setting suns, 404. Duty and the light of setting suns, 404. Duty eyes, when unto, 315. Sall, it had a, 808. Fall in thad a, 808. Fall in thad a, 808. Sall it had a, 8 sweet to die without, 701.

EACH particular hair to stand on end, 725.
Eager for the firsy, 542.
Eager for the struck, 562.
Eagle so the struck, 562.
Eagle so the struck, 562.
Eagle so the struck on e. 234.
wings to deal sy on, 812.
Ear, 562.
Early on early, 162.
Early on early, 162.
Early on early like the sweet south, 808.
Canning, voice in my, 520.
dull cold, of death, 306.
dull, of a drowsy man, vexing, 790.
enchant thine, I will, 803.
give every man thine, 815,
I was all, 831.
jewel in an Ethiop's, 721.
keep the word of promise to our, 345.
of faith, 631.
more is meant than meets the, 767.
sensual, 718.
Earl, one, it heard, 108.
Earliest at his grave, 795.
Early bright transient chaste as dew, 106.
Earl, aged, play truant at his talea, 723.
lend me your, 875.
lend me your, 875.
of fieth and blood, 775.
of fieth and blood, 105.
portcullises of, 215.
with ravished, the monarch hears, 771. portculises or, 215,
she gave me, 231,
with ravished, the monarch hears, 771.
Earth a stage, the world's a theatre, 792,
asiant the dew-bright, 710,
barren, small model of the, 310, bowels of the harmless, 506, bridall of the, and skie, 301. bridail of the, and skie, 301. elysum on, 202. felt the wound, 809. fummy wanties of, 401. gave sign of gratulation, 209. give him a little, for charity, 345. has no sorrow Heaven cannot heal, 348 heaven on, 348. has bubbles as the water has, 868, has no sorrow Heaven cannot heal, 3 heaven on, 779, heaven on, 779, heaven ries the, if it be in tune, 424, whabitants o' the, 808. 's a thief, the, 489, lap of, head upon the, 307, lards the lean, 722. lay her i' the, 311 listening, nightly to the, 376 man marks the, with ruin, 607 ment heaven by making, a hell, 306, more things in heaven and, 808, naught beyond O, 312. of majesty, this, 603, pootty of, is never dead, 485, proudly wears the Parthenon, 736, sowered the, with orient pearl, 4902 teaming, 339, thou sure and firm-set, 80a, this, this grave this dust, 749, thirsty, acase up the rain, 494, trembled from her entrails, $99.

Earth, truth crushed to, shall rise again, 534.
two paces of the vilest, 330.
walk the, unseen, 866.
Earth's chief structures, 736.
firmament, stars that shine in, 494.
578 blood, spring from, 602.
mould, mortal mixture of, 736.
noblest thing, a woman perfected, 723.
rich, ample round, 495.
Earthlier halp py is the rose distilled, 495.
Earthly godiathers of heaven's light, 804, power doth then show likest Lod's, 786.
Earthquake shock the ocean storm, 562.
Ease, an age of, 667.
and alternate labor, 214.
artless, accents flow with, 807. and alternate labor, 214, artless, accents flow with, 807,
hours of, O woman in our, 509, in writing from art not chance, 806,
live at home at, 652,
Easter of all woes, sleep, 816,
East, gorgeous, with richest hand, 722
I 've wandered, I 've wandered west, 242, rejoleing in the, king of day, 490,
East and drink as friends, 121.
but little meat, I cannot, 046, scrupled not to, against his knowledge,
899. scrupied not to, against his knowledge, 809.
Eating time, clock worn out with, 309. Eaves, minute drops from off the, 707. Echo answers where, 309 to the sense, sound seem an, 806 Echoes, answer, blow bugle, 449. roll from soul to soul, 449. set the wild, flying, 449. Ecstasy of love, the very, 209, resites, lie in, 311. waked to, the living lyre, 306. seeraph-wings of, 939. Eden, thus other, demi-paradise, 603 through, took their solitary way, 321 Edge, borrowing dails the, of husbandry, 559. 559, is sharper than the sword, 811 of appetite, cloy the hungry, 346 perilous, of battle, 540, set my teeth on, 807.
Educing good, from seeming evil, 418.
Education forms the common mind, 804
Education forms the common mind, 804 Education forms the common mind, So.
Effscons they heard a most melodious sound,
Segrata sweet creation of some heart, 869
Eglantine, sweet musk-roses and, 469
Ele, mas ever, did see that face, 904
Eld, Druids of, 453
Elder, I the, and more terrible, 890.
Elder, I the, and more terrible, 890.
Elder, I the, and more terrible, 890.
Eldern the search of the 869
one God one law one, 394
Element, 394 creatures of the, 869
one God one law one, 394
the lowering, scowls, 494
Elements, war of, 759.
Elevate, thoughts more, 808.
Elf, thou happy happy, 93.
Elim, cooling shadow of a stately, 493Elims, above the green, 298 innimemorial, moan of doves in, 493.
Eloquence charms the soal, 803.
men of wit and social, 940.
mother of arts and, 719.
resistless, those ancient whose, 804truth denies all, to woe, 348.
Eloquent, old man, 939.
Elves, critecising, spite of all the, 804.
facety, whose midnight revels, 491 whose little eyes glow, 134.
Elysian beauty, 206.
Elife, suburb of the, 272.
Elysium on earth, if there be an, 203.
Embalmed in tears, 100 is lovelliest when,
204.
Embattlef farmers, 369 Eftsoons they heard a most melodious sound, 204. Embattled farmers, 589 Embers, glowing, 787. Emblem right meet of decency does yield, Embers, glowing, 79.
Emblem right meet of decency does yield, 708.
Emblems of deeds done in their clime, 451.
Embosomed in the deep, 632.
Embrace, arms take your last, 899.
silent in a last, 895.
Embroidery, flower that sad, wears, 494.
Embryo, chancellor in, 109.
Emelie, up rose the sonne and, 490.
Emelie, up rose the sonne and, 490.
Emits a brighter ray, 800.
Empire, course of, westward the, 587 cut-purse of the, 813, rod of, 306.
scoops out an, 522.
rod of, 306.
Empires, lone mother of dead, 790.
Employments, wishing the worst of all, 801.
Empress and floure of floures all, 460.
sits, crowning good repressing ill, 599.
Emptiness, eternal smiles his, betray, 910.

Empty boxes, begyarly account of, 809. Empty-raulted night, 726. Enamelled eyes, all your quaint, 494. Enamored, hung over her, 209. Enchant thine ear, 1 will, 809. Enchanting ravishment, divine, 726. Enchantinent, distance lends, to the view, Encounter, keen, of our wita, 804.
End, appropinque an, my daya, 309.
attempt the, 800
by opposing, them, 895,
death a necessary, 910.
forsake me at my, 394.
lamented in thy, 724.
life's great, life that answers, 794.
means unto an, life is but a, 742.
original and, 394.
served no private, 120.
there's an, on 't, 795.
End-all, be all and the, 500
Endearment, each fond, tries, 688.
Endeavor, virtue too painful an, 232.
for defence, 541.
Ending, never, still beginning, 772.
Endless error hurled, fin, 792 might, closed his eyes in, 939.
ends, different men to different, 599.
divinity that shapes our, there is a, 793.
of being, proved by the, to have been Encounter, keen, of our wits, 8 divinity that sanges out, there is a, 793, of being, proved by the, to have been, 797.

of verse, cheered up with, 347 thou aim'st at be thy country's, 322, private, the dog to gain his, 549, violent delights have rolent, 815.

Endurance foresight strength and skill, 128.

Enemen have beat us to the hip, 500, make, of nations, 594.

Enemy, a weak invention of the, 539

Energies, gathering, toil of, 807.

Engrey, a weak invention of the, 539

Energies, gathering, toil of, 807.

Engrey, a weak invention of the, 539

England, meteor flag of, 629.

never at proud foot of conqueror, 603 roast beef of old, 575 slaves cannot breathe in, 594

the end of the strength of the str 253 gentleman, a fine old, 959 gentleman, a fine old, 959 gentleman, a fine old, 959 well a multicyled, Enjlyyed in vision beatthe, 863, Enmity, works of love or, 868, Eurobe the roaring waters with my silks, Enrobe the rousing water for to give, 809.
Ensample, prest oughte, for to give, 809. to his sheepe he gaf, 697 Ensign, imperial, from the glittering staff unfurled, 795.
tear her tattered, down, 609. tear her tattered, down, 628. Enterprises of great pith and moment, 297. Entertains the harmless day, 737. Enthronèd in the hearts of kings, 798. Entralls, earth trembied from her, 899. web from their own, 5pin, 200. Entrance the raptured soul, sweet to, 200. wisdom at one, quite shut out, 407. Entrances, they have their exits and their, 711. 713
Envious Casca, 876
Envy, here no, swells, 31
of less happer lands, 603
Ephesus, dame of, so mourned her love, 204. Epic's stately rhyme, blot out the, 915. Epicure, live while you live the, would say, Epicure, live winic you live inc, would say, 7944

Epitaph, beheve a woman or an, 806.

Epitaphs, let's talk of graves, worms, and, Epitaphs, let's talk of graves, worms, and, Epitaphs, and an ankind's, 909

Equable as infant's breath, calm thoughts, Equable as infant's breath, caim thoughts, T-grebus, affections dark as, 776. Erect himself above himself, 808 Erected look, men met each other with, 725 spirit, Mammon least, 803. Ern mavourneen, Erin go bragh, 579-por exile of, 578. Ern, art may, nature cannot miss, 489. human to, to forgive divine, 798. Erring sister's shame, 807. Error fills him with faults, that one, 271. in endless, hurled, 729 in reasoning pride, 799. wounded writhes in pain, 534. Exsor's weetch, 338.

Errors, female, 198. CHTUIN, IGNAMO, 1900.
OWN YOUT, DARK, 708.
Esplied a feather of his own, 134.
Essence, his gasey, 8:2.
Estate, failen from his high, 771.
files of, and sunneshine, 121.
Eternal blazon must not be to ears of fiesh, 1735.
hills that look, 794 hope springs, in the human breast, 801 amiles his emptiness betray, 910.
summer glids them yet, 50.
summer shall not fade, 134.
sunahme settles on its head, 668 years of God, 534.
Eternities, he Past the Future, two, 793
Eternity, image of, friendship, 120
mitimates, to man, 780. Eternities, the Past the Future, two, 793
Eternity, Image of, friendship, 120
Intimates, to man, 759 mourns that, 328
of moments, make an, 245 passing through nature to, 295 thou pleasing dreadful thought, 759 thoughts that wander through, 794
thoughts that wander through, 794
thoughts that wander through, 794
Ethers, an ampler, 399
Ethers and middless, come gentle spring, 492
Ethers and middless, 693
Eve, Adam dolve and, span, 559
dews, from noon to, 725
Even, gray-hooded, like a sad votarst, 830 star that ushers in the, 491
staffers of a summer, 807
Even, brown of the class of the sky, 491 grateful, mid, 205, 491 never norming wore to, 345
now came still, on, 413 peaceful, welcome in, 810 shades prevail, soon as the, 376
Evenling's close, line him home at, 237
Event, one far-off divine, 394
Events, coming, cast their shadows before, 574 sprint of gratat, 800. 909. 15 naught, 808. 99919 In naught, 808.

sans, 711.

Sans, 712.

Sans, 713.

Sans, 714.

Sans, 714.

Sans, 714.

Sans, 716.

Sans, wasteful and ridiculous, 726
Excrement, general, composture stolen from, 489.
Excuse, beauty is its own, for being, 461, fault the worse by the, 815 for the glass, she 'll prove an, 131.
Excused his devilish deeds, 601.
Excusing of a fault makes worse, 815.
Execute their arry purposes, 868.
Exempt from public haunt, our life, 489
Exercise, depend on, for cure, 671.
hunting is the noblest, 671
Exchalation, bright, in the evening, 346.
Exhalations, golden, of the dawn, 490.
Exhalation, bright, in the evening, 346.
Exhalations, golden, of the dawn, 490.
She was, and went to heaven, 106.
Exhausted worlds and then imagined new, 905 Exile from himself can flee, what, 396. of Erin, poor, 578.
Existence, woman's whole, 796.
Exist and their entrances, they have their, 711. Expatiate free o'er all this scene of man, Expetiates, rests and, in a life to come Expect, you 'd scarce, one of my age, 107. Expectation, bids, rise, 347. mattes a blassing dear, 801. of fails, 801. Expectes his evening prey, 108. Expeties, 1911 Expatiates, rests and, in a life to come. critic's, views me with a, 107 defance in their, 603, dejected, 802. fringed curtains of thine, 721, glad me with its soft black, 251, great, of heaven, 826, great taskmaster's, 395, half hidden from the, 105, half-shut, dreams before the, 831, hard Unkindness' altered, 899. heaven in her, 200 hard Unkindness aftered, 899.

heaven in her, 2009 in a fine frenzy rolling, poet's, 722.
in my minds, Horatio, 867.
interest unborrowed from the, 404 inward, cleared then, 814.
inward, the bliss of solitude, 464.
light of a dark, in woman, 686.
like Mars to threaten and command, 721.

Tooking with lack-lustre, 791
love-light in her, 129

many an, liast danced to see, 620,

nature's walks, 807,

of day, liquid notes that close the, 496,

of treece, Athens, 719,

of nature, lived in the, 489

of the day, the dasse, 462

rapt soul stuting in thine, 786, sees with equal, 394,

slepen with open, 695

sindle in her, 1297,

subhime, 711. 721. sinhine, 711.
tear in her, smile on her hips and a, 176 thief in either, 146 threatening, looks upon them with a 801.
unpresumptuous, lift to heaven an, 600.
visionary, lords of the, 868.
was in itself a soul, that, 133.
where feeling plays, 721
white wench's black, 721.
woman's, teaches such beauty as a. 795
Lyebrows, ballad made to his mistress', 711.
Lyelds, crown the god of sleep on your,
816.
heavy and sad, 114. 327 oro, heavy and sad, 314, 337 of the morn, opening, 490, weigh my, down, 752, weigh my, down, 752, weigh my, down, 752, are made the fools of the other senses, are made the fools of the other senses, are made the fools of the other sense gas made the fools of the other sense gas Bullen's, gospel-light first from, 997 cavual, 805 closed his, not a friend to, 773 cyto-good of heighboring, 785, dear as these, that weep, 205, dear as these, that weep, 205, dear that to me only with hine, 125 history in a nation's, read their, 306 kind, that have wept, 795, hight that less in woman's, 203, light that visits these sad, 205, light that visits these sad, 205, light that visits these sad, 205, like break of day, 203, like break of day, 203, like break of the first from their spheres, 725 love looks not with the, 203 maiden with the meek brown, 104-make pictures, my, 807, meek intelligence of those dear, 92, meet in her aspect and her, 230, night has a thousand, 135, no speculation in those, 808, ope their golden, 474, pears that were his, 809, poorly satisfy our, 124, quamt enamelied, 494

1065 Eyes, ravished, wheresco'er I turn my, 807, rain influence, ladies whose, 786, read in the, of others, xsz., revengeful, gods on murderers fix, 908, 8818, 711, account. sans, 711.

she gave me, she gave me cars, 221.

she gave me, she gave me cars, 221.

show his, and grieve his heart, 865.

so bright and awful air, 773.

soft, looked love, 211.

sought the west afar, her blue, 491.

soul within her, 721.

souls see further than our, 245.

starlike, seek fuel from, 141.

strike mue, but not my heart, 713.

tear each other's, 108.

that weep, a blessing for the, 743.

the glow-worm lend thee, 134.

unto dying, the casement slowly grows, 335. unto dying, inc. common of the state of the Eyesight lost, precious treasure of his, 346.
Fablica, worse than, yet have feligined, 868
Fabric, baseless, of this vision, 867.
Toes elicitly as a dream, 463.
Face best by its own beauty dressed, 193.
Continual comfort in a, 504.
finer form or lovelier, 721
foolab, transmitter of a, 812.
give me a, 713.
heaven reflected in her, 106.
her angels, 828,
her, O call it fair not pale, 721.
honest labor bears a lovely, 530.
human, divine 407.
look on her, and you'll forget them, 128.
mighty mother did univel her awful, 399.
morning, day's disasters in his, 688 music breathing from her, 133.
my, is my fortune, 958.
nose upon his, assert his own, 724.
of heaven, make so fine the, 134 recalls some face, 802.
round unthinking, 799.
saw the manners in the, 940.
shining morning, 711.
strange contortions of his, shrugs and, 703.
strange defeatures in my, 799. shrining morning, 711.

strange contortions of his, shrings and, 793strange defeatures in my, 790there is a garden in her, 123truth has such g, and such a men, 398 visit her, too roughly, 206.
was ever eie citi de set hat, 904.
Faces, the old tamihar, 274.
Faces of the, and the laws, 810.
Factins, Judges of the, and the laws, 810.
Factins, Jorne his, 30 meeks, 900.
Faculty, dvinne, vision and the, 766.
within the soul a, abides, 867.
Fade, all that 's bright must, 793.
Fades of er the waters blue, 238.
Fading are the Joys we doee upon, how, 347.
honors of the dead, 676
Faery elves whose midnight revels, 491.
vision, 1 took it for a, 869.
Fail, if we should, 802.
no such word as, 802.
Failings leaned to Virtue's side, 688.
Failis, oft expectation, 802.
Fail and faer to live alone, 303.
Fair and faerer than that word, she is, 133.
and unpolluted fiesh, 311.
as a star when only one is shining, 105
call it, not pale, 721.
divided excellence, 202.
ever, and never proud, 723.
good-night, to all to each a, 816.
guerdon, 812.
how near to good is what is, 711.
large front and eye subbine, 712.
laughs the morn, 108
Melrose, view, aright, 675.
none but the brave deserves the, 771.
nothing is, or good alone, 406.
passing, is she not, 133 proportion, curtailed of this, 928.
sceak me, Indeath, 322.
soeak me, Indeath, 322. so deadly, 303.
speak me, in death, 312.
to outward view, she is not, 129,
what care I how, she be, 123.
women and brave men, 511. women and brave name, 344.
young and 80, 335.
Faire daffields, 464.
Fairer than that word, she is, 133than the day, be she, 193than the evening air, 134.

```
Fairest of her daughters Eve, 712.
      Fairest of her daugners live, 712.
of stars, 563.
of stars, 563.
Faires use flowers for their charactery, 869.
Faires midwife, she is the, 856.
Fairnesse, flower foll to heven by, 809.
Fair-proportioned, native grace sat, 795.
Fairly hands, their knell is rung by, 803.
Faith, amaranthine flower of, pluck the,
                                            398.

and hope, world will disagree in, 394 and morals which Milton held, 602 become a passonate intuition, 397
brother of, hope, 800.
                                         brother of, hope, 800.
ear of, 631.
fanatic, wedded to falsehood, 397.
has centre everywhere, 397.
has centre everywhere, 397.
in honest doubt ther lives more, 397.
in some nice tenets wrong, 398.
law morals all began, where, 808.
modes of, let zealouts fight for, 397.
of many made for one, 397.
pain and simple, no tricks in, 300
pure-eyed, 890.
ripened into, persuasion and belief had,
397.
      ripened into, persuasion and belief hat 397, simple, more than Norman blood, 268, that looks through death, 759.
Faith's defender, name of, 650
Faith'al among the faithless, 387, dog sha'l bear hun company, 399-in action and in honor clear, 120
Faithless, faithful among the, 397,
Falcons, towering, our hopes like, 730.
Fait dying, it had a, 868, fear no, he that is down needs, 347,
in Adam's, we sinned all, 397,
no lower, he that is down can, 347,
only bilss that survived the, 22,
successive and successive rise, 792.
what a, was there my countrymen, 876
what a, was there my countrymen, 876
no lower, he that is down can, 347-
only bilss that survived the, 232-successive and successive rise, 792-
what a, was there my countrymen, 876.
Fallen, awake arise or be forever, 540-from his high estate, 771-great though, 58t into the sear the yellow leaf, 794-on evil days, 348.
Falling into naught, horror of, 739-with a falling state, 602.
Fallings from us, vanishings, 759.
Falls as I do, 321-carly or too late, nothing to him, 793-like Luctier never to hope again, 321-False, all was, and hollow, 724-philosophy, vain wisdom all and, 808.
science, betrayed by the glare of, 737-to any man, canst not then be, 797-woman's love is, lightly thou say st, 207.
Falschood, faith wedded to some dear, 397-of extremes, 602.
practised, under saintly shew, 396.
sstings of, those shall try, 899.
what a goodly outside, hath, 797.
Falstaff sweats to death, 722.
Fame, blush to find it, 797 damned to everlasting, 939 death-bed of, 574-clates thee, 397.
field of generous, 601.
field of his, 900.
fool to, 107.
glory but the blaze of, 821.
great her of, 906.
is foreign, 781.
in heaven expect thy meed, of so much, 812 is no plant that grows on mortal soil,
                                                  is no plant that grows on mortal soil,
      is no plant that grows on mortal soil, $22.

is the spur, $12.

nor, I slight, $21.

so truly circular, $23.

what is the end of, $12.

youth to fortune and to, unknown, 307.

Fame's eternal beadroil, $28.

proud temple shines afar, $22.

proud temple shines afar, $23.

be, but by no means vulgar, $22.

faces, all are gone the old, $274.

Faminar as his garter, $23.

be, but by no means vulgar, $22.

faces, all are gone the old, $274.

Famine and the ague eat them up, $40.

should be filled, $99.

Famous by my sword, $20.

victory, twa a, $254.

Famous faith, wedded to falsehood, $37.

Fancies are more giddy and unfirm, $25.

Fancy, a young man's, $24.

bright-yed, $507,

cud of sweet and bitter, $13.

draw whate'er the Grecian Venus was,

draw whate'er the Grecian Venus was, 795-fies to men of other minds, 632.
free, in maiden meditation, 836.
gay hope is theirs by, fed, 793.
hallo my, 800.
```

```
Fancy, home-bound, runs her bark ashore
Fancy, home-bound, runs her bark ashore, 857,
hopeless, 315,
like the finger of a clock, 810,
not expressed in, 720,
point of his own, falls in the, 310,
where it, bred, 126,
Fancy's child, Shakespeare, 786,
young, 1878, 108,
Fantasies, shaping, 806,
Fantasies, shaping, 806,
Fantasies as woman's mood, 823, fickle fierce and vain, 813,
fit too new or old, 806,
summer's heat, 346,
toe, light, 785,
tricks, plays such, 813,
tyrant of the amorous heart, 804,
Fantastically set with cupola or minaret,
    730.
Fantasy's hot fire, 303.
Far as the solar walk or milky way, 399.
from gay cities and ways of men, 489 from the madding crowd's ignoble strife, 306.
Fardels, who would, bear, 297.
Fare thee well and if forever, 238.
Farewell, a long, to all my greatness, 321.
a word that must be, 241.
  a word that must be, 241.
content, 722
goes out signing, 792 hope bade the world, 583.
I only feel, 258
king, 393.
the neighing steed, 722.
the plumed troop, 722.
the tranqui mund, 722
to thee Araby's daughter, 294.
Farewells should be sudden, 241 to the dying, 272.
Farmers, embattled, 589.
Far-off dynne event, 389.
Far-off from heaven than when I was a boy, 93.
      Partner on non mercan
boy, 9,
Farthings to the poor, 803-
Fashion, fool in, 799 ideas of, and mould of form, 722.
of a new doublet, carving the, 203.
wears out more appared than the man, 799.
Fashion's brightest arts decoy, 689.
    Fashion's brightest arts decoy, 689.
Fashioned so slenderly, 315.
Fashiones so slenderly, 315.
Fashions, same rule in words as, 806.
Fast and furious, muth and fun grew, 848.
by the oracle of God, 399.
by their native shore, 612.
Fat, a bard more, than bard beseems, 940.
Fatal beliman, the owl the, 882.
Fate, a heart for any, 770.
a heart for every, 90.
a coursed by, 345.
binding nature fast in, 370
book of, heaven from all creatures hides the, 702.
                              the, 793.
                            1013.
could awe the soul of Richard, 541.
fears his, too much, 150.
fixed, free will, 808.
good man meets his, chamber where the,
  man is master of his, 777.

no armor against, 301.

providence foreknowiedge will, 808.
sceemed to rund him up, 65, 309
sceemed to rund him up, 600, 500
Fattes, men are masters of their, 793.
If tell fattom $67, my, and my Friend, 394.
of all in every age, 770.
of the man, the child is, 432.
whole matter and copy of the, 107 wish was, to that thought, 800.
Fathers, ashes of his, 697,
Fathom, full, nve thy father hes, 869.
Fault, does one, and less to hide it, 395-excusing of a, makes worse, 815.
hide the, I see, 370.
Is not in our stars, dear Brutus, 793.
just him a, 910.
Faults, carcless their ments or, to scan, 688,
his, lie gently on him, 312.
one error fills him with, 271.
with all thy, I love the et all, 575.
Favors, princes', man that hangs on, 321.
secret sweet and preclous, 847.
Fawining, thrift may follow, 117
Fear and bloodshed miserable train, 530.
be just and, not, 522.
drad and, of kings, 798.
                              309
man is master of his, 777.
                                be just and, not, 322.
dread and, of kings, 798.
```

```
Fear is affront and jealousy injustice, 795.

no fail, he that is down needs, 347.

no, where no hope is left, floo painting of your, the very, 862.

soul deceives with groundless, 807.

taste of, forgot the, 900.

thy nature, yet do 1, 724.

to die, let no man, 3010 we, 399.

Fearful innocence, 834.

odds, facing, 507.

lovely and a, thing, 203.

summons, upon a, 868.

Fearing to attempt, lose good by, 800.

Fearin, delicate, humble cares and, 231.

his fate too much, 150.

more pangs and, than wars or womea, 321.
          more pangs and, than wars or women, 331.

no, to beat away, 206.
saucy doubts and, 800.
Feast, bare imagination of a, 346.
life's, chief nourisher in, 883.
or reason and flow of 2011, 814.
Feasts, wedlock oft compared to public, 231.
Feather, a wit's a, 780.
espied a, of his own, 134.
fowls of a, 820.
is wafted downward, 490.
viewed his own, on the fatal dart, 800 whence the pen was shaped, 908.
Feathered minstrel of the sky, 210
Feats of broul and battle, 145.
          Feathered minstrel of the sky, 210
Feats of broil and battle, 145
Federation of the world, 257
Fee, desparing of his, to-morrow, 809 the doctor for a nauseous draught, 671 thrice thy, take O boatman, 392 wag without a, could not, 809.
Feed fat the ancient grudge I bear him, 899.
my reports 800.
          Feed fat the ancient grudge I boar him, 899.
my revenge, 899.
Feel another's woe, teach me to, 370.
like one who treads alone, 318 must, themselves who make us, 864, what wretches feel, 802
Feeling and a love, 404 deeper than all thought, 731 high mountains are a, 433
unfante, stirs the, 813 of sadness and longing, 813.
petrifies the, 396.
Feelings, unemployed, waste of, 816
Feels a thousand deaths in fearing one, 310.
                                            310.
at each thread and lives along the line, 496
the noblest acts the best, 742
Feet beneath her petricoat like little mice, every turf beneath their, $13. her pretty, like snailes did creep, 721. slippers upon contrary, 722 standing with reluctant, 104. those blessed, 397. through fathliers leather, 347. to the foe, back to the field, 574. two pale, crossed in rest, 295 Felicite, what more, can fall to creature, 489 Felicity, absent thee from, awhile, 811. our own, we make or find, 807. Fell like autumn fruit that mellowed long, 65, 300 Fell like autumn fruit that meliowed roug, 65, 309 of hair, 900 purpose, shake my, 900, sergeant, death, 300, swoop, at one, 300, upon a day, 480 Fellow in a market town, 954, in the firmament, no, 422 many a good tall, 900 of the self-same flight, 802, touchy teaty plensant, 724 want of it the, 781 Fellow-feeling makes one wondrous kind, 804.
want of it the, 701
Fellow-feeling makes one wondrous kind
So4.
Fellow-feeling makes one wondrous kind
So4.
Feth how awful goodness is, 968.
In the blood and, along the heart, 403.
Female charm, fondly overcome with, 809.
eerrors, 1969.
Festus I plunge, 800
Fever, life's fiftul, 312.
of the world, 404.
raging, burns, 799.
Fevers into false creation, 867.
Few and far between, 347.
shall part where many meet, 513.
Fibre, each frail, of her brain, 899.
Filckle as a changeful dream, 813.
Filction, truth is stranger than, 805.
Fie upon this single life, 322.
Filed, accidents by 800 and, 145.
beat this sample, 702.
of battle, the world's broad, 77a.
of generous fame, 602.
of his fame, 502.
```

```
Field, tented, descret action in the, 145.
what though the, be lost, 540.
Fields beloved in vain, 108.
hmst in, for health unbought, 671.
invested with purpured gleams, 399.
little tyrant of his, 500,
poetic encompass me, 507, showed how, were won, 688
those holy, 397.
Flends, sport of mocking, 558,
these juggling, no more believed, be,
345
Flends, sport of mocking, 558.
these juggling, no more believed, be,
362. these juggling, no more believed, be,
362. these juggling, no more believed, be,
362. democratic, wielded that, 804.
desire, liveth not in, 203.
forly warriors, 893.
ferry begasis, 436.
Flery Pegasis, turn and wind a, 672.
Fife, ear-piercing, 722.
Fifteen, bashful, maden of, 134.
Fight again, those that fly may, 540.
another day, 540.
for love as men may do, 795
warrior famoused for, 540.
Fighting, rusty grown for want of, 597 still and still destroying, 773.
Fights and run away, he who, 540.
Figures, carved with, strange and sweet, 726.
Filches my good name from me, 811
Files arrayed with helm and blade, 539 foremost, of time, 238
Filled with fury rapt inspired, 773.
Final goal of Ill, good the, 392.
Find the other forth to, 802
File by defect and delicately weak, 723
by degrees and beautifully less, 721
Fine by defect and delicately weak, 723
by degrees and beautifully less, 727
frenzy rolling, poet's eye in a, 722
Sauses, 797
Inner form or loyeller face, 721
   frenzy rolling, poet's eye in a, 722
frenzy rolling, poet's eye in a, 722
Finger, fortune's, not a pipe for, 112 of a clock, fancy like the, 8rc, slow unmoving, 725
'twixt his, and his thumb, 506
Fingers, decay's effacing, 303 silent, point to heaven, 396 weary and worn, 314, 337
Ire, fantasy's hot, 203 hold a, in his hand, 346 in antique Roman urns, 205 kindle, with snow, 203 little, is quickly troddea out, 815 more smoke than, 558 motion of a hidden, 398 muse of, 867
      motion of a hidden, 398 muse of, 867 of light, an unconsuming, 867 pale his uneffectual, 490 pale, snatches from the sun her, 489, Phoebus', scarce thaws the leicles, 782. Promethean, sparkle still the right, 133 stir the, close the shutters, 810 whether in sea or, 868 Fireight, shadows from the fiftul, 273 Fires, wonted, e'en in our ashes live their, 206 306
Fireside happiness, 212.
howsoe er defended, no, 272
Firm concord holds, 815
          Firm concord holds, 815
connected bulwark, 622
united let us be, 603
Firmament, earth's stars that shine in, 494 glowed with living sapphires, 413-no fellow in the, 492
spacious, on high, 376
Firmset earth, thou sure and, 882
First by whom the new are tried, 806.
Cause, thou great, 300
   Firm-set earth, thou sure and, 882
First by whom the new are treed, 806.
Cause, thou great, 370
he wroghte afterward he taughte, 697.
I have possessed, 207
I was the, who came away, 215 law, order is heaven's, 812 man's, disobedience, 395
sure symptom of a mind in health, 232.
rrue gentleman, 725.
Fir-trees dark and high, 93
Fish, all's, they get that cometh to net, 672.
Fishermen appear like mice, 445
Fishers that tipple in the deep, 147
Fit audence hind shough few, 807
Fits and stirs of his mind, 241.
sad by, by starts 'was wild, 773
Fittest place where man can die, 602
Five hundred friends, her dear, 814.
Fixed fate free will, 808.
figure, alss to make me a, 725.
Figg., meteor, of England, 629,
nall to the mast her holy, 620.
of the free heart's hope and home, 592.
Flame, heavenly, vital spark of, 395.
Hquid, my blood is, 899.
lov's devoted, 122.
narse a, if you, 205.

ef love, lives within the very, 271 nurse a, if you, 205.
of love, lives within the very, 271
```

Flame that lit the battle's wreck, 624.
Flaming minuster, 900.
Flat, stale, and unprofitable, 346.
Flatter, wrinkles the d—d democrat won't, 294.
Flattered always takes your word, the, 810 being then most, 810.
Flattered always takes your word, the, 810 being then most, 810.
Flattered always takes your word, the, 810 being then most, 810.
Flattered always besieged by, 910 hattes, when I tell him he, 810
Flattering tale, hope tells a, 272.
Flattery's the food of fools, 810.
never seems absurd, 810.
never seems absurd, 810.
never seems absurd, 810.
south the dull cold ear of death, 396.
Flaunting extravagant quean, 331. me that lit the battle's wreck, 624. Flaunting extravegant quean, 13t.

Flaunting extravegant quean, 13t.

Fles has smaller fless, 466

Fled and creed out Death, I, 310 fast through sun and shade, 72t.

from her wish and said Now I may, 723.

"I light away, 200. fast through sun and shade, 721.
from her wash and said Now 1 may, 793.
in light away, 290.
murmuring, 490
Fleet, all in the Downs the, was moored, 235
Fleetest, brightest still the, 793.
Fleetung good that mocks me, 396.
show, this world is all a, 399.
Fleets, mailed, and armed towers, 541 sweep over thee in vain, 607.
Flesh and blood, ears of, 795.
fair and unpolluted, 311
is helr to, shocks that, 297.
this too too solid, would melt, 311.
Fles of estate and sunneshine, 121 o'er the unbending corn, 856 with swallows' wings, hope, 806.
Flight, afar off to view the, 730.
of ages past, 398
of future days, never-ending, 801.
of time, beyond the, 114.
of years, unmeasured by the, 399
self-same, his fellow of the, 802
Flighty purpose is never o'ertook, 797
Liter away ambuton, 222 self-same, his fellow of the, 802
Flighty purpose is never o'ertook, 797
Fling away ambition, 322
Flint, snore upon the, weariness can, 816.
Flinty and steel couch of war, 539
Float double, swan and shadow, 493
Flock however watched and tended, no, 272 tainted wether of the, 348
Flocks, my father feeds his, 650 or herds or human face, 407
Flood and field, accidents by, 145
m the crystal, another and the same, 494
leap with me into this angry, 670
of years, a never-ending, 750 Flood and field, accidents by, 145.

In the crystal, another and the same, 494.

leap with me into this angry, 670

of years, a never-ending, 750

taken at the, leads on to fortune, 802

Floor of heaven is thick mlaul, 775

the nicely sanded, 689

Flour of wifely patience, 231.

vertue engendred is the, 695

Floure of floures all, 452

Flourish in immortal youth, 259

Flourish in immortal youth, 269

Flower, amanuthme, of faith, 398

born to missen, 306.

derormon 165

derormon 165

certification of the same and 492

little western, 826.

may prove a beauteous, 492

meanest, that blows, 759

of frailest revery, 228

safety, out of this nettle danger, 671.

seize the, its bloom is shed, 848 that sad embroidery wears, 494

that smiles to-day, 754

Flowere, meanest, of the vale, 489.

Flowers and fruits of love are gone, 390.

are lovely love is flower-like, 120.

call the, its poetry, 494 called the, stars, 494

challeed, 474

crown old winter's head with, 193.

fairies use, for their charactery, 869, that skirt the eternal frost, 377.

vernal, purple the ground with, 494.

wither at North-wind's breath, 398.

Flower, meads in May, 193.

Flower meads in May, 193.

Flower would make any signification of the stars, 494.

Flower meads in May, 193.

Flower old winter's head with, 494.

wither at North-wind's breath, 398.

Flower meads in May, 193.

Flower old ainte, or herbe, 494.

Fluctuations and its vast concerns, 810
Flushing round a summer sky, 831.

Fly betimes, 305.

could I, 1'd fly with thee, 472.

let me, says little birdie, 80.

on the bat's back I do, after summer

merrily, 869.

could I, 1'd fly with thee, 472.

let me, says little birdie, 80.

on the bat's back I do, after summer

merryly, 869.

could I, 1'd fly with thee, 472.

let me, says little birdie, 80.

on the bat's back I do, after summer

merry

Foam is amber and their gravel gold, 720-on the river, like the, 263. Foe, feet to the, back to the field and, 574-insolent, 145, last armed, expires, 552, manly, give me the, 121. one worthy man my, 782. overcome but half his, by force hath, manly, give me the, Iss.
one worthy man my, 782.
overcome but half his, by force hath, 813.
to love, fortune an unrelenting, 805.
tyrants fall me wery, 573.
where breathes the, but falls, 592.
Foemen worthy of their steel, 685.
Foes, long-invererate, saluted, 795.
thrice he routed all his, 771.
Fold, like the wolf on the, 501 their tents like the Arabs, 816
Folio of four pages, 810.
Foliols, pretty, they themselves commit, 203.
Foliols, them unhappy, on shore, 650.
Foliols, pretty, they themselves commit, 203.
Foliols as the night the day, 797.
what to, is a task, 808.
Folly, from coral lips such, broke, 713.
grow romantic, if, 805
mirth can into, gide, 595.
ulghts wherem you spend your, 315, 105e of, bird that shun'st the, 786.
shoot, as it files, 807, to be wise where ignorance is blass, 108.
when lovely woman stoops to, 336.
Folly's all they 've taught me, 204.
Fond despair, nympholepsy of some, 865, 108.
Folly and they 've taught me, 204.
Fond despair, nympholepsy of some, 869.
Fond, crops the flowery, 496.
human nature's daily, 138 of fooks, flattery's the, 810 of love, if music be the, 808.
of love, smiles the, 204.
Fool at forty is a fool indeed, 793.
imagination's, 310.
in fashion, 799.
Life time's, 792.
live a, the rest of his life, 239.
motley, thus moral' on the time, 810.
noble, 0 worthy fool, 810.
play the, because they 're men of sense, 798.
rght by chance, must now and then be, 780. 798. right by chance, must now and then be, right by chance, must now and then be, 780.

suspects himself a, at thirty, 478.
Time's, love is not, 208
to fame, 107.
wise enough to play the, 798
with judges, 724.
Fooled with hope men favor the deceit, 793.
Fooled with hope men favor the deceit, 793.
Fools all our yesterdays have lighted, 792. are my theme let satire be my song, 866. Fools, all our yesterdays have lighted, 792. are my theme let satire be my song, 805. contest for forms of government, 397. flattery's the food of, 810. for arguments use wagers, 802. I laugh at, not fear them, 798. mk of, nothing blackens like the, 811. little wise the best, be, 798, never-failing vice of, pride, 799. o' the other senses, my eyes the, 882. positive persisting, 798. rush in where angels fear to tread, 798, so deep contemplative, 810 suckle, and chronicle small beer, 723. supnetly stay in (ide wishes, 798. thrive on, at Westminster, 810. who came to scoff, 688. Foot and hand go cold, 945. it featly here and there, 859 more light a step more true, 721 one, in sea and one on shore, 371. one, on sea, and one on land, 138 Footprints on the sands of time, 770. Footstep, leaden, of Care, 644, plants his, in the sea, 632. For bladdance, strict, 217, Forbear dispute and practuse love, 399. occasion to, find, 315. Forbiddance, strict, 217, Force of nature could no further go, 907. overcomes by, 815. spent its novel, 925. Forefathers, rude, of the hamlet, 905. Forefathers, rude, of the hamlet, 905. Forefather, rude, of the hamlet, 905. Forefather, rude, of the hamlet, 905. Forefather, do all time, 807. Foreland and wantage of a king, 559 Forehand and vantage of a king, 559 Forehand and vantage of a king, 559 Forehand and wantage of a 490. strand, wandering on a, 563. Foreknowledge absolute, 808. will and fate, 808.

```
Forelock, round from his parted, 721.
Foresight, blest son of, applause to that, 760.
Fore-spent night of sorrow, 193.
Forest, he is lost to the, 433.
Forest are rended, 518.
Forests are rended, 518.
Forests are rended, 518.
Forests are rended, 518.
Forest with the Lord, 390.
Forgure the offence, hugged the offender, 300.
  206.
Forget all time with thee conversing, 206.
do all things but, 248.
hardest science to, 248.
                                   men's names, new-made honor doth, men's names, new-made honor doth, fire the human rare, soc. what graf I should, 89 Forgetfulness, dumb, a prey to, 306, not in entire, 798 steep my senses in, 762 sweets of, 377.
Forget-me-nots of the angels, stars, 492.
Forgetting, birth but a sleep and a, 758.
Forgetting, birth but a sleep and a, 758.
Forgetting, birth but a sleep and a, 758.
Forgetting, birth but a sleep shad a, 758.
Forgetten in to, to the I stayed, 117.
Forgiveness to the injured does belong, 798.
Forgetten fream, hunt half a day for a, 601.
Form consumptions ghastly, 592.
Ills its awful, tall cliff that, 688.
mould of, 722.
of grace, the essential, 940.
of war, right, 899.
soul is, and doth the body make, 730.
the Almight's, glasses itself in tempesis, 607.
Formal cut, beard of, 211.
     the Almighty's, glasses itself in tempes

607

Formal cut, beard of, 711

Formed by nature and refined by art, 209
by thy converse, 912.

Former days, pride of, 577.

Forms, all, all pressures past, 801 communion with her visible, 307 communion with her visible, 307 mangled, vents in, 803 new, arise, 804, of government, let fools contest for, 307, of things unknown, 867 the sculptor's soul hath seized, 867 unfashioned, by, 603 unseen their dirge is sung, by, 953 were to me an appetite, 404.

Forsake me at my end, 394.

Forsworn, lips that so sweetly were, 263 Forted residence 'gainst the tooth of time, 811.
                                                Brr.
          Fortress built by nature for herself, 603.
Fortune and to fame unknown, a youth to,
                                      307,
doth give too much to many, 801,
her gits may variously dispose, 800
I care not, what you me deny, 480 leads on to, taken at the flood, 802.
                                   leads on to, taken at the flood, 80.2 my face is my, 93. outrageous, alings and arrows of, 297 unrelenting foe to love, 205. trune's buffets and rewards, 112, cap, the very button on, 347. finger, not a pipe for, 12 ice prefers to Virtue's land, 798 cap, the very author of, 127, finger, not a pipe for, 172 ice prefers to Virtue's land, 798 power, 1 am not new in, 347.

Fortunes, manners with, 814, pride fell with my, 347

Forty, fool at, is a fool indeed, 793 parson power, 0 for a, 809 pounds a year, passing rich with, 688 thousand brothers, 200.

Forward and frolic gice, 670.

Foster-child of Silence and slow Time, 718

Fou for weeks tegither, 847.

Fought all his battles of er agun, 771 and bled in freedom's cause, 603

Found both by adventuring both, 1 oft, 80s.

Foundain heads and pathless groves, 316.

like a summer-dried, 883, like the bubble on the, 883, like the bubble on the, 883, of sweet tests, a heart the, 231, woman moved is like a, 795.

Fountain's nurmuring week, 493.

Fountains, Afric's summy, 395.

Large streams from little, 207.

Fowles of a feather, 80c.

Fox barks not when he would steal, 724.

Fragiance after showers, 306.

Fright, 30s, a thing is man, 308.

women are, as glasses, 829.

Frailt, 80s, a thing is man, 308.

Women are, as glasses, 829.

Frailt, 80s, a thing is man, 508.
            407.
Frailty thy name is woman, 207.
Frame of his resolved powers, 208.
quit this mortal, 265.
```

```
Frame, rapture-mitten, 810.

shiaing, spaagied heavens a, 376.
this universal, began, 775.
universal, then this, 376.
Framed in the prodigality of nature, 721.
to make women false, 207.
Framing of a deathess lay, 70.
Fraud of men was ever so, the, 21
Frauds, plous, and holy shifts, 306
Fray, eager for the, 521
Free, battle for the, 630
from matrimonial chains, 232.
Greece might still be, dreamed that, 580 land of the, and home of the brave, 500, 553.
                                     593 left, the human will, 370
mund alone keeps nun, 602.
nature's grace, you cannot rob me of,
     nature's grace, you cannot rob me of, 489
that moment they are, 594, the hollow heart from paning, 116
we must be, or clee, 622 who would be, themselves must strike, 581, will fixed fate, 868
Freedom, bawl for, in senseless mood, 601
broadens slowly down, 603, faurest of all the daughters of time, 604, from her mountain helpit, 592 has a thousand charms, 602, in my love, 147.
     has a thousand charms, 602, in my love, 147, is the pledge of all, 602 kingliets act of, is the vote, 603, of old sat, on the heights, 602 shall a while repair, 503 shricked as Kosciusko fell, 583, to working God, 587 Freedom's banner streaming o'er us, 592 battle once begun, 582, ause, fought and bled in, 603, soil beneath our feet, 502 Freeman whom the truth makes free, 600 Freeman's will, executes a, 604.
     Freeman whom the truth makes free, 600 Freeman's will, executes a, 604, Freeze thy young blood, 725 French, how many thousand warhke, 722. French, how many thousand warhke, 722. Frenchman's darling, the, 495. Frenchman's darling, the, 495. Frensh of Parys was to hure unknowe, 696 she spak ful faure and fettsly, 696 Frenzy, poet's eye in fine, rolling, 722. Frenzy's fevered blood, 813, Fresh as a bridegroom, 506 gales and gentle sure, 209 Freshness, dewy, fills the stlent air, 491 Freshu porcupine, quills upon the, 725. stir unprofitable and fever of the world, 404.
          Frets his hour upon the stage, struts and,
     Prets ins more upon the stage, struts an 792
Fretted vault, long-drawn aisle and, 306
Friars, the hooded clouds like, 494
Friend, absent or dead let a, be dear, 801, after friend departs, 114, candid, save me from the, 121. choose an author as a, 805, defend your departed, 120, gained from heaven a, 307
grant me still a, 120
                                        grant me still a, 120
guide philosopher and, 911
handsome house to lodge a, 121.
knolling a departed, sullen cell, 346 handsome nouse to make, "..."
knolling a departed, sulten cell, 346 lost no, 120.
of all who have no friend, 311 of my better days, 937 of pleasure wisdom's aid, 774-of wee, sleep, 816
rarely find a, who depend on many, 121 should bear a friend's infirmities, 121-thou art not my, and 1 m not thine, 744-to close his eyes, not a, 771 to himself that would be, to thee, 121 to none that 's too much that, 121-to ruth, statesman yet, 120.
who hath not lost a, 114
Friend's infirmities, friend should bear a 121,
Friend's himmities, friend should bear a 121,
Friend's always, treasures always, 739.
are exultations agontes, 922
dear five hundred, 814-eat and drink as, 121.
heaven gives us, 120.
in youth, they had been, 116.
juggling, 345-
lose, out of sight, 120.
                                   in youth, they had been, 116. juggling, 345, lose, out of sight, 120. multitude of, happiness not un, 120. never-falling, are they, 806, of humblest, scorn not one, 89, old, like old swords trusted best, 121. old, to talk, 118 poor make no new, 892. Romans countrymen, 875, summer, like, 121. thou hast, grapple the, 122. to congratulate their friends, 725.
```

```
Friends, troops of, honor love chediance, 794.
were poor but honest, my, 956.
were poor but honest, my, 956.
were book but honest hones
Frisked beneath the burden of threescore, 323.

Frivolous things and light, 795.
Front, fair large, and eyes sublime, 721.
head and, of my offending, 145.
o' battle lour, see the, 573.
o' love himself, 732.
Frost, Carded by the, from purest snow, 493.
flowers that skirt the eternal, 377.
killing, 321s, thinking on the, 346.
Frown, at a, they in their glory die, 540.
at pleasure snale in pain, 799.
trick of his, 107.
I rowns, her, are fairer far than smiles of other maidens, 139.
Frowy couch in corrow steep, 346.
Frauds, pious, and holy shifts, 396.
Frugal mind, she had a, 959.
wwan whose constant cares, 650.
Fruit, fell like autumn, that incllowed long, 65, 390.

Constants.
                                                              65, 309.
from such a seed, 800
    from such a seed, 800 like npe, drop into thy mother's lap, 340 of sense beneath, 803. of that forbudden tree, 395 ripest, falls first, 300, that can fall without shaking, 205, time that bears no. 794. which the earth had yold, 498. Fruitless crown, upon my head they placed 4. 345.
        I ruttess crown, upon my nead they placed 4, 345
Frutts of love are gone, the flowers and, 250 of peace, gathering all the, 541
Full dress, daring in, 824 fathom five thy father lies, 869
many a flower is born to blush unseen, hahly d nower is both to 306. many a gem of purest ray serene, 306.
of sound and fury, 792,
of strange oaths, a soldler, 711
of sweet dayes and roses, sweet Spring, 302 302 without o'erflowing, 723
Full-orbed glory, yonder moon divine is, 491
Full-throated ease, 316, Full-throated ease, 316, Full-throated over Greece, 80
Fulness of perfection fles in hun, 232
Funing vanities of earth, 491, Funing vanities of earth, 491, Fund, blass his canty, supplies, 603, Fund, blass his canty, supplies, 603, Funeral marches to the grave, 770.
        Funeral marches to the grave, 770.
note, not a, 200
Furnous, fast and, murth and fun grew, 848.
Furnace, sgining like, the lover, 711.
Fury, blind, with the abhorred shears, 812 filled with, rapt inspired, 773.
full of sound and, 792
no, like a woman scorned, 207.
of despair, pangs and, 800.
Future, best of prophets of the, 18 the Past, 793 days, never-ending flight of, 8or past the, two eternities, 793 trust no, howe'er pleasant, 770, Cadding vine, suid thyme and the, 495 Gain, hapless, if haply won, so4 or lose it all, 150 the timely inn, 495. Gains were sure, his giving rare, 803. Gains were sure, his giving rare, 803. Gait, forced, of a shuffing ang, 807. Gale, lightning and the, on, partake the, 917. passion is the, reason the card, 792. sumplest over thing, 395. Samplest over the sure in t asure of the, 730.
```

```
Came, war's a, kings would not play at, 541.
(ames confederate imitative of the chase,
Gang aft a-giey, best-laid schemes, 468 (asping age, lood its warped mirror to 8, 804, arden, come into the, Maud, 178 in her face, there is a, 133 paradise of God the, was, 719, rosebud, of grils, 133
(arden's end, river at my, 121,
Gardener, grand old, 366
Gardens trim, takes his pleasure in, 786
Gardenstet, happy, 817
Garish sun, pay no worship to the, 124, carlaind, call him vile that was your, 813, sweetest, to the sweetest maid, 124 well be-seene, on his head 8, 492
Garlands, dead, 318
Garmen's, training, of the night, 416, vatant, stuffs out his, 107 (attrine greet, 247
Garlands dead, 318
Garlands dead, 318
Garments, training, of the night, 476.
vacant, stuffs out his, 107 cars me greet, 847
Garter, familiar as his, 723
Gate, at heaven's, she claps her wings, 495
Gate, of light, unbarred the, 450 of heli, my heart detects hum as the, 797.
of mere, y, shut the, 506
Gather ye rosebuds while ye may, 754-
Gathering energies, toil of, 807.
Gaudy, rinn frost 1, 222
Gawkis, new-born, 811
Gay, from grace to, 511
hope is theirs, by fancy fed, 793.
Gaze, of other men, shuis, the, 205
Gaze, of other men, shuis, the, 205
Gaze in the start of the start of the start of purest ray series, 306
Gaze in the start of the start of the start of purest ray series, 306
Gaze in the start of the start Centil vot inding it, hand upon my heart, 704-canty not smitting it, hand upon my heart, 704-can your brother man, 784 (*corge, if his name be, 812,
Gestic lore, skilled in, 244-
Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skilled in, 246-

Gestic lore, skill
                            672
Gild refined gold, 726.
              Gi2
Gid refined gold, 726.
Gid id weenes, 183, 807.
Gild id weenes, 183, 807.
Gill hall dimee, Jack shall pipe and, 816.
Gilp hin long hive he, 626
Gilt, dust that is a little, 811 or distribution of girlded with the sky, round ocean, 491.
Girls, between two, 810 courted again in your, 215.
golden lads and, 307.
or all the, that are so smart, 198.
rosebud garden of, 153
Gir with golden wings, 830
Give every man thine ear, 815 him a hittle senate laws, 602, 910
it an understanding, 815.
lettered pomp to teeth of time, 915.
me a clogar, 814.
me a look give me a face, 713 me another horse, 549
me excess of it, 808.
not a windy night a rainy morrow, 271.
sorrow words, 312
'hee all I can no more, 795.
```

```
God himself scarce seemed there to be, 860 in him, she for, 711.
in, is our trust, this be our motto, 593.
                 Give thee sixpence, I will see thee d-d first,
          Give thee sixpence, I will see thee a—a dris, 953.
the world assurance of a man, 721. to God each moment as it files, 794. what thou canst, 394. Given unsought is better, love, 205. Giver, all-gracious, gift sent by the, 795. Giver, much receives but nothing, 797. Glad me with its soft black eye, 251. waters of the dark blue sea, o'er the, 656.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         in, is our trust, this be our morto, 593, is love, 394, love of, and love of man, 868, made the country man the town, 672 man in the bush with, may meet, 744 mills of, grand slowly, 747, moves in a mysterious way, 632 my Father and my Frend, my, 394, nature's, looks through nature up to, 8,89
Glad me with its soft black eye, ast, waters of the dark blue sea, o'er the, 6x6.

Glade, unfathomable, 7t9
Gladilier grew, touched by her fair tendance, 205, Glance, intermingling, 206,
of the mind, 739,
sparking, 300 blown to fire, 670.
Glancing in the mellow hight, 491
Glare, caught by, madens like moths, 215 of false science, 737
Glass of fashion and mould of form, 722
she 'll prove an excuse for the, 731.
Glasses itself in tempests, 607
Glassy cool translucent wave, 869 essence, 813
Gleam over this furfied grove, cast a, 491.
Gleams of joy intensely bright, 539, purpureal, fields invested with, 939,
such, as from thy polished shield, 539
Glec, counterfeited, laughed with, 688, forward and frohe, 670
Glades in modest innocence away, 794-the emooth current, 807 nearer my, to thee, 373-never made work for man to mend, 671, noblest work of, an honest man's the,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     noblest work of, an nones, 780.
of storms, 620
only, may be had for the asking, 424.
or devil, every man was, 909.
save the king, 603.
sees in clouds, 399 send thee good ale enough, belly, 946 sendeth and giveth both mouth and the meat. 304 meat, 394
servant of, well done, 395 served my, with half the zeal, 322, strong son of, immortal Love, 393, sunflower turns to her, when she sets, 174 takes a text and preaches l'a trence, 364.
the Father God the Son, 394
the jolly, in trumpli comes, 771.
to scan presume not, 792 trust in, and keep your powder dry, 602
vapory, court the, 816.
varied, these are but the, 417.
vengeance to, alone belongs to, 899 voice of, Duty stern Daughter of, 797 ways of, to man, Justify the, 395 who is our home, we come from 758.
will be our King this day, 602 with, he passed the days, 399
God's dear power, hoving, 877 first temples, the graves were, 452.
providence, seening estraiged, 335
Goddess, night, sable, 491
God'lathers of the 4027 is light, 804
God'lathers of 161.
God'l
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                174 takes a text and preaches l'a ti-ence, Glides in modest innocence away, 794.
the smooth current, 807
Glimmer on my mind, cease every joy to, 800
       Soo
Chimmering, mere, and decays, 274.
square, casement grows a, 315
taper's light, hope like a, 800.
tapers to the sun, hold their, 805 through the dream of things that were,
          Through the uccan is things that are, 792
Ghstering grief, perked up in a, 347 with dew, 206, 490
Globe, distracted, sent in this, 801
Globe, our annual visit o'er the, 472.
Adamt line that girts the, beneath the,
   Globe, our annual visit o'er the, 472.
radiant line that grix the, beneath th 631 the great, itself shall dissolve, 867
Gloom, amid the encircing, 364 counterfort at, teach light to, 767
Glories of our blood and state, 301
Glorious by my pen, I'll make thee, 150.
in a pipe, 814
works, these are thy, 363
Glory beyond all glory ever seen, 867 but the blaze of fiame, 811
Columbia to, arise, 588
full meridian of my, 346 full orlied, yonder moon divine. in, 491 go where, waits thee, 237 inest and collection of the world, 792 left him alone with his, 590 of a creditor, determines the, 797 of this world, vain pomp and, 321 or the grave, rush to, 513, paths of, lead but to the grave, 306
sea of, 321
set the stars of, there, 592
trailing clouds of, 758
uncertain, of an April day, 492
uncertain, of an April day, 492
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           Goth a sorrowing, who goth a 'orrowing '47',
Gold bright and yellow hard and cold, 802.
Goth a sorrowing, who goth a 'orrowing for, I am not, 811.
Gother than the state of th
       sea of, 321
set the stars of, there, 592
trailing clouds of, 758
uncertain, of an April day, 492
visions of, spare my aching sight, 868, walking in an air of, 294 ways of, once trod the, 322
Glory's thill is o'er, 577
Gloss of art, 680,
Glows in every heart, love of praise, 810, in the stars blookoms in the trees, 489 with one resentinent, 200
Glow-worm, her eyes the, lend thee, 134 shows the matin to be near, 490
Glut your ire, arise ye Goths and, 681,
Gnarléd oak, unwedgeable and, 813
Go boldly forth my simple lay, 807,
lovely rose, 135,
where glory wats thee, 237.
Goal of ull, good the final, 392
the grave is not its, 769.
Goal consense the, affects to nod, 771, attribute to, himself, 798
bids us to do good for evil, tell them, 396.
borom of his Father and his, 307 opinions, or the cast, 816 progress in the east, 816
progress in the east, 816
progress in the east, 817
Good hefore, not deal but, 317, he is, and forever, 28
Good and evil, much they argued of, 868 and ill together, 792 apprehension of the, 346 better made by ill, the, 348, by proud world 1 m going home, 756 captive, attending captam ill, 398 crowning, repressing ill, 599 deed in a naughty world, 797 die first, the, 309
do, by stealth, 797 educing, from seeming evil, 418, evil be thou my, 395
finds his own in all men's, 541 gray head which all men knew, 65, 942 great man, 739
hold thou the, 397,
impious in it, man to be said, 348,
in everything, 488,
                                                        bids us to to good at the same and his, 307 bosom of his Father and his, 307 built, a church, 306 builds a church to, and not to fame, 797 conscious water saw its, and blushed, conscious water and one of the state of the state of the oracle of 339 for Harry England and St. George, 503 freedom to worship, 597, garden of, paradise, 712, hath made them so, 108 hath made thus world so fair, 399.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         impious in s, man to be sad, 348, in everything, 489, is oft interried with their bones, 875, lose the, we off might win, 800, loves the, he does, 720, luxury of doing, learn the, 398, man's sin, 395 man's sin, 395 man's smile, share the, 682.
```

Good name, filches from me my, 811. name in man or woman, 811. nature and good sense must ever join, name in man or woman, 81.7 nature and good sense must ever join, 798.
near to, is what is fair, 711.
night, a fair, to each to all, 816 night, my native land, 238 night, say not, 304.
night till the iso-morrow, say, 241.
night till the iso-morrow, say, 241.
night till the iso-morrow, say, 241.
night till the joint to be, 608.
obscurely, content to be, 601.
old cause, homely beauty 67, 844.
or bad for human kind, issues, 539.
Parent of, 363
present, or ill the joy or curve, 800 scrupulous, man, 724
sense, only is the grit of heaven, 798.
some fleeting, that mocks inc, 396 sword rust, his, 539
the gods provide, 772
the, he scorned, 396
the more communicated, 398
universal, 480.
universal, 480.
Goodhest man of men, Adam the, 712
Goodlest man of men, Adam the, 712
Goodness man greatness not means but ends, 739 felt how awful, 19, 398. Goodly outside raisemous main, mine as 779 Goodness and greatness not means but ends, 779 felt how awful, 1s, 398.
If, lead him not, 395 soul of, in things evil, 802
Goose, painpered, 495
ang by day when every, is cacking, 496.
Gortlian knot of it he will unloose, 723
Gorgons and hydras and chunæra, dire, 868
Gory locks, never shake thy, at me, 868
Gory locks, never shake thy, at me, 868
Goryled bookes, lineament of, 904
Gospel-light first from Bullen or 928, 396
Gortlian knot of the 108
Governess, whipping virule's, 108
Government, a land of settled, 603
Government, a land of settled, 603
Government, a land of settled, 603
Gorn, honors of the, 108 plucked lus, 688
Grace, esvential form of, 940 free nature's, you cannot roli inc of, 489 hving, 807
melanchicids, 206 free nature's, you cannot roli nic of, 489 living, 807 melanchioly, 200 my cause in speaking for myself, little shall i, 145.
native, sat fair proportioned 705 power of, the magic of a name, 810 proclaims by many 1, 793 purity of, 133, rule of courtly, 721. rule of courtly, 711.
simplicity a, 713.
swears with 50 inuch, 204,
sweet attractive, softness, and, 711 sweet attractive kindic of, 904 tender, of aday that is dead, 315 tily more than beauty, thy, 796.
was in all her steps, heaven in her eye, thy more than beauty, thy, 795.

was in all her steps, heaven in her eye,
was in all her steps, heaven in her eye,
was a was scated on this brow, 721 which love makes for thee, 495
Gracies sealots fight, let, 397
Gracies, shor forth peculiar, 203
Grain, reaps the bearded, at a breath, 296,
Granich hills, feeds his docks on the, 650
Granich old nation, 1986.
Granich old some of the steps, 1986.
Granich old some or none, 811,
ine stil a friend, 1986.
Granich old some or none, 811,
ine stil a friend in gestic love, 232
Graphe the to thy soul, 221
Graphe the to the soul, 232
Graphe the soul, 232
Graphe the the soul, 232
Graphe t 137 137 or mellow, humors, 724, paths of glory lead but to the, 306 poet's sylvan, 940. rush to glory or the, 513 shall bear the chiefest prize away, 725. strewed thy, 311.
sun shine sweetly on my, 493.
to gay from lively to severe, 911.

Grave, where is thy victory, O, 365, without a, unknelled uncoffined, 607. Graves, green, of your stres, $2 of memory where sleep the Joys, 410 such, as his are pilgrim-shrines, 917 worms and epitaplis, let's talk of, 310. Gray, amice, morning came forth in, 490 t is gone and all is, 490 manited o'er with sober, 490 Gray-hooded even like a sad votarist, 830. Great and small, all things both, 800 First Cause, 370. lord of all things a prey to all, 792 men all remind us, lives of, 770 none think the, unhappy but the great, men all remind us, lives of, 770 none think the, unhappy but the great, 347 of old, silent worship of the, 681
Original, proclaim their, 370.
princes have, playthings, 541.
taskmaster's eye, as ever in my, 395
though fallen, 581.
with are sure to madness near alhed,
990
Greathiess, a long farewell to all my, 321
grootness and, not means but ends, 749 highest point of all my, 346 vs a ripening, 321
Greeca, Athens the eye of, 721
Greeca, Athens the eye of, 722
but hving Greece no more, 303.
tulmined over, 804
her knee in suppliance bent, 582
in early, sile sung, 773.
vises of, where burning Sappho loved and sung, 580
might will be free, 580.
sure the suppliance bent, 587
Greek, sinall Latin and less, 505
Greeks, joined Greek, when, 541
Greet and Latin and less, 505
Greeks, joined Greek, when, 541
Greet and Lulian and less, 505
Greeks, joined Greek, when, 541
Greet and Lulian and less, 505
Greeks, joined Greeks, when, 541
Greet and Lulian and less, 505
Greeks, joined Greeks, when, 541
Greet and Lulian and less, 505
Greeks, joined Greeks, when, 541
Greet and Julian with maniets, 202 grassy turf, 403
in youth, now withering on the ground, grassy turf, 403 in youth, now withering on the ground, grassy turf, 403 in youth, now withering on the ground, 792 keep his incinory, 921 making the, one red, 883 thy leaf has perished in the, 309
Greenland's 14y mountains, 305
Greenland's 14y men, 624
Greet the dappled morn, 671
Greet and hann, naught but, 408
havery of his, 722
hils the room up of my absent child, 107 gave but when he died, 120 gistering, perked up in 4, 347 master 4, every one cam, 345 no greater, than to remember 10y, 346 patch, with proverbs, 372
selent maniness of, 600 smiling at, 581 like patience on a monument, 251 that does not speak, 312
treads upon heels of pleasure, 214 what, I should forget, 809 worm the canker and the, are mine alone, 750
Greefs that harass the distrest, 245 worm the canker and the, are mine acces, 250
Griefs that hards the distrest, 245
what private, they have I know not, 876
Grieve for an hour, mourn for a year, 312 his heart, show his eyes and, 880
Grieve, if aught inanimate etc., 532
criftlish, such an honest chrome for as, 811
Grain death in opposition sits, 310 repose, hushed in, 108
Graines, old, is dead that good old man, 976,
Graines, old, is dead that good old man, 976,
Graines, old, is dead that good old man, 976,
Graines and war, 541 Grimac, bif. 's, 3to 'Grimes, old, is dead that good old man, 976 Grimes, old, is dead that good old man, 976 Grimeswayed war, 544 Grid, devil did, for his darling sin, 396 every, 50 merry, 798 owned with a, that his favorite sin, 949 sit and, at an for me to, 373, the second man and the second man and the second man and second sec

Grove, tufted, cast a gleam over this, 491. Groves, pathless, 316. were God's first temples, 482. Grown by what it fed on, appetite, 805. Grows in paradise our store, 220. Growth, children of a larger, men are but, Grows in paradise our store, 120.
Growth, children of a larger, men are but, 120.
Growth, children of a larger, men are but, 120.
Growth, children of a larger, men are but, 120.
Grudge, I will feed fat the ancient, I bear him, 120.
Grudges, here grow no damned, 311
Grunt and sweat under a weary life, 297
Guardian angel o'er his life presiding, 212.
angels sung the strain, 576.
Gudeman's awa, when the, 246
Guerdon, farr, 822.
Guest, speed the parting, 122.
welcome, though unexpected here, 92.
Guestis praise it, not the cooks, 805.
Guide path motive, original and end, 394 philosopher and friend, 911.
Frowdence their, 327
Guid-willle waught, tak a right, 119
Guilt's in that heart, I know not it, 185.
on's fear disturb main's rest, 310
Guilty creatures sitting at a play, 804.
thing, started like, a, 886
thing surprised, tremble like a, 750.
Guinea, lingting of the, helps the hurt, 295.
Guinea, lingting of the, helps the hurt, 295.
Guine, a solder but for these, 506.
Habit, costly thy, as thy purse can buy, 722. Habit, costly thy, as thy purse can buy, 722. Habitation, a local, and a name, 867. Habits, ill, gather by unseen degrees, 493. Hackney sonneteer, starved, 812 Hail Columbia happy land, 603 holy light, 407 to the Chief who in triumph advances, holy light, 407 to the Chief who in triumph advances, 519.
Halls you Tom or Jack, man that, 121.
Hair, amber-dropping, 809 beauty draws us with a single, 203.
distinguish and divide a, 945 cach particular, to stand on end, 725 cvery, a soul doth bind, 203 gems entangled in her, 721 iny fell of, 200
tangles of Nesera's, 202
Hair breadth 'scapes i' the imminent deadly breach, 145.
Half a league onward, 517, broken-hearted, 241
his fue, overcome but, 815 man is but, without woman, 232.
made up, scarce, 938.
part of a blu-wed man, 232
Hailo my fancy, 820
Hails of death, stent, 307.
Tara's, harp that once through, 577.
Hame, whaur his, what his name or, 187.
Haulet, close of the day when the, is still,
737,
rude forefathers of the, 305. 737.
rude forefathers of the, 305.
Hammer, no sound of, or of saw, 493.
smith stand with his, 722 Hammer, no sound of, or of saw, 493. smith stand with his, 722
Hammers, busy, closing rivets up, 540. Hampden, some village, 306
Hand, death lays his icy, on kings, 301 her rash, in evil hour, 899.
I see a, you cannot see, 311.
in thy right, carry gentle peace, 322.
laid my, upon thy mane, 607
liks the, raised to shed his blood, 496.
may no rude, deface it, 312.
mortality's strong, 309.
nature's own sweet and cunning, 122.
of Douglas is his own, 648 of war, infection and the, 602, open as day for melting charity, 724.
that gives the blow, adore the, 312.
that made us is divine, 376.
the kindler, 756.
that rounded Peter's dome, 736.
the kindler, 790.
touch of a vanished, 312
unlineal, wrenched with an, 345rosy, unbarred the gates with, 490.
upon the ocean's mane, laid his, 919very mould and frame of, 107.
waved her illy, adieu she cried and, 235 with my heart in 't, here 's my, 205. waved ner my, anieu sne cried and,

235 with my heart in 't, here 's my, 205, wizard, lies cold, 960
Hands, by farry, their knell is rung, 563 idle, Stara finds mischnef for, 108.
little, were never made to tear, 108.
promiscuously applied, 814,
shake, with a king upon his throne,

Heart with heart in concord beats, 206

```
Hands that the rod of empire might have Hands that the rod of empire might haw wayad, 305.

two, upon the breast, 205.
washing his, with invisible soap, 724.

It mig out our banners, 405.
werethest, that jurymen may dine, 870.
Hangs a tale, thereby, 701.
Hans Brelimann gife a barty, 1000.
Happlest pair, the kindest and the, 215.
Happlness and final misery, 808.
consists not in the multitude of friends, 120.
                         t20
distant views of, charmed with, 801.
domestic, thou only bliss, 232.
                         fireside, 212.
hope thou first-fruits of, 800.
meant to all men, 815
 neam to an men, ers
too writh files, ros.
virtue alone is, below, 398.
Happy called, these be, 800.
death to the, thou art terrible, 311.
earthler, is the rose distilled, 495.
                       earthier, is the rose distilled, 495-garden-state, 872 endistilled, 495-
garden-state, 872 endistilled, 495-
garden-state, 872 endistilled, 198.
is he born and taught, 290-inu. h. Lt a lord once own the, 872 make two lovers, 205,
maxtures of more happy days, 108, soul that all the way to heaven, 546-the man and happy he alone, 793-the man whose with and care, 225-thruce, he whose name, 871.
with cuther were 't other away, 134
with cuther were 't other away, 134
mass the dispress, greefs that, 445 with other were 't other away, 134
Haras the distrest, greefs that, 345
Hard, nothing 50, but search will find, 800
Hardens a wittim, 396.
Hark from the tombs a doleful sound, 310
the lark at heaven's gate, 474
they whaper, 365
Harm, brave the danger and brave the, 795 win us to our, 306
Harmless necessary cat, 496
Harmless necessary cat, 496
Harmless necessary cat, 496
Harmonies, concerted, we with nature's heart in tune, 243
Harmonious numbers, 407
 Harmonious numbers, 407
sound, 200
whole, 417
Harmoniously confused, 815
Harmonist of care on earth, 940
Harmony, air and, of shape, 721
heavenly, 775
hidden soul of, 780
 hidden soul of, 780
like deep, 300
love is a celestial, of likely hearts, 206 not understood, 489
sighs for, and grace, 814 such, is in immortal souls, 775 to behold in wedded pair, 209 touches of sweet, 775
Harnes, die with, on our back, 541.
Harp of a thousand strings, strange that a,
   of life, love took up the, 255 sings to one clear, in divers tones, 399 that once through Tara's halls, 577
Harper lays his open palm upon his harp, 794 wind that grand old, the, 493
Harping on my daughter, still, 203
Harrow up thy soul, 725.
Harry, God for, England and St George,
 Harrow up thy soul, 725.

Harry, God for, England and St George, 503
young, with his beaver on, 671.

Harr ungalled play, 671
Harr ungalled play, 671
Harrest, rupe, of the new-mown hay, 492
eved time and, 493
Harvest-time of love is there, 806
Haste, hot, there was mounting in, 512 married in, repent at leisure, 224.
now to my setting, 346.
Hate mymph and bring with thee, 785
Hastening ills, ill fares the land a prey to, 687
Hat not much the worse for wear, 961.
the, delicious to, you, 304.
immortal, 540
in like extreme who love too much, 207.
of hate, dowered with the, 807 of those below, look down on the, 913
Hates flatterers, when I tell him he, 810.
Hath a part of being, 873.
Hating no one love but only her, 206.
Hatrefa, no rage like love to, turned, 207.
Haughliness of Soul, rank pride and, 799.
Haunten like a passon, the sounding entaract, 604.
Having and his holding, finds all his, 215
     cataract, 404.
Having and his holding, finds all his, 215
nothing yet hath all, 737.
Hawock, cry, and let alip the dogs of war,
```

Hawks, between two, 810.

```
Heart with heart in concord beats, 206, with strings of steel, 309, will break yet brokenly live on, 513, whose softness harmonized, 133 would fain deny, but dare not, 794 Heart's core, wear him in my, 112, flag of the free, hope and home, 502. Heart-sche, end the, by a sleep, 297. Hearth, cricket chirrups on the, 139, cricket on the, 797, ericket on the, 797, Heart-stain, carried a, away on its blade, 248 Hearts, a thousand, beat happily, 511. cheerful, now broken, 318, diasenson between, that love, 264, dry as summer dust, 309, here bring your wounded, 348, kind, are more than coronets, 368, helely, love a celestial harmony of, 226 no union here of, 114, of controversy, stemming it with, 671. of kings, enthroned in the, 798, of oak are our ships, 631. steal away your, 876. that have sorrowed, 795 that once beat high for praise, 577, that the world in valin has tried, 264, two, that beat as one, 205, with equal love combined, 141. Heart-throbs, count time by, 742. Heat, fantants usummer's, 346 of conflict, 540 promethean, 900. Heath, land of brown, 575. Heaten-oppressed brain, 882. Heaven, all, and happy constellations, 209, all that we believe of, 133, all the way to, hath a summer's day 546 alone that is given away, 424, approvents, 214.
Hawthorn bush with seats beneath the shade, 696.
in the diae, under the, 785.
Hay, ripe harvest of the new-mown, 492 Hazard of concealing, 395.
He for God only, she for God in him. 717 he knew what's what, 808 that compiles against his will, 801 that compiles against his will, 801 that look the ravens feed, 394 that lowes a rosy check, 141 that runs may read, 398.
was the Word that spake it, 398 who fights and runs away, 590 Head, all my imperfections on mv. 310 and front of my offending, 145 crown old winter's, with flowers, 193 eternal sunshine settles on its, 688 fruitless crown upon my, 345 good gray, which all men knew, 65, 940 one small, could carry all he knew, 688 pensive, cowslips that hang the, 494, plays round the, 781 precious jewel in his, wears a, 348 repairs his drooping, 490 sacred, now wounded, 373. tall the wase the reverend, 308. that wears a crown, uneasy lies the, 763 Head, grow beneath their shoulders, 145 hide their diminished, 710 hills whose, touch heaven, 145 houseless, and unfed sides, 494 Health and virtue, gifts, 672 consentment springs from, 559 unboughts, hunt in helds for, 67. Health adecay, philosophy's reverse and, 801 Heart then the truth, 799 to see to feel and to possess, 415, Hearnga, younger, are quite rarvished, 723 Heart melodies are sweet, 718. Hearnga younger, are quite rarvished, 723 Hearne, underneath this sable, 907 Heart and there are all the store, 795 arrow for the, 186 congeniate ony, 689 detector of the, 38 congeniate ony, 680 fantastic typant of the amorous, 204 felt along the, sensations sweet, 403. for any site, 790. for every fate, 300. fountain of sweet tears, 331. free the hollow, from paining, 116 give O give me back my, 274. glows in every, love of pralse, 810. fountain of sweet tears, 331. free the hollow, from paining, 116 give O give me back my, 274. glows in every, love of pralse, 810. fountain of sweet tears, 331. free the hollow, from paining, 116 give O give me back my, 274. glows in every, love of pralse, 810. how is man's, by vanity drawn in, 7 all that we believe of, 133.

all the way to, hath a summer's day 546

546 alone that is given away, 424.

approving, 214.
beauteous eye of, to garnish, 726 break the serene of, 492.
care in, is there, 373.
commences ere his world be past, 687
each passion sends, 't is, 793.
face of, make so fine the; 124.
farther off from, than when a boy, 93.
fercest spirit that fought in, 348.
first-born, off-spring of,497.
floor of, is thick iniald, 797.
gems of, her starry train, 597.
gemtle rain from, droppeth as the, 798.
gives us friends, 120.
gives us friends, 120.
for all one was to be veen in, 765.
good sense only is the gift of, 798.
great eye of, 628
had made her such a man, 145.
has no rage like love to harred turned,
207.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      has no rage like love to manage 207, hell I suffer seems a, 396 hides the book of Fate, 793 high, fantastic tricks before, 813, hills whose heads touch, 145 his blessed part to, 3tr hues were born in, all thy, 592, invites, hell threatens, 395 in her eye, 200 is love and love is heaven, 203 is not always angry when he strikes 347 347 kind of, to be deluded, 204 kindred points of, and of home, 474 knell that summons thee to, or hell, 882, of a maiden is stolen, when once the, 205 of endless agritation, 631. of hearts, wear him in my, 112. on her lips, 721. ence pregnant with celestial fire, 306. orphans of the, 720 o'er-fraught, whispers the, 312 pang that rends the, 347. prithee send me back my, 146. responds unto his own, 80me, 345 rotten at the, a goodly apple, 797 ruddy drops that visit my sad, 206. ruddy drops that sam my sad, 206. ruddy drops that sam kinell that summons thee to, or hell, 88a, leave her to, 392, thes about us in our infancy, 758, livery of the court of, stole the, 707, manuscript of, 494, merit, by making earth a hell, 396, more things in, and earth, 808, nearest kin to, of all the virtues, 723, no corrow that, cannot heal, 348, nothing true but, 399, of hell, a hell of heaven, 799 of invention, the brightest, 867, on earth, 790, opening bud to, conveyed, 107 points out a hereafter, 1 is, 759, reflected in her face, 106, remedies which we ascribe to, 793, saints who taught and led the way to, 910.
                                                                                             gio.
serve in, better to reign in hell than, 799, sileat fingers point to, 396 smells to, my offence is rank it, 900, so merciful in wrath, 599 steep and thorny way to, 809
steep and thorny way to, 809
steep and thorny way to, 809
that points out a hereafter, 759, to be young, 400, trues the earth if it be in tune, 484.
```

```
Heaven, use his, for thunder, $1.3
verge of, down from the, $0.1
verge of, quite in the, $0.0
verge of, quite in the, $0.0
verge of, quite in the, $0.0
was all tranquility, $6.4
were not heaven if we knew, $0.1
will bless your store, $4.0
winds of, beteem the, $0.0
the series of the series of the series of $4.0
best treasures peace and health, $5.9 heath smells wooingity, $7.0
decree, Luxury curst by, $6.0
etermal year is thine, $11.
extremest sphere, $1.2
first law, order is, $12.
gate she claps her wings, at, $9.5
gate sings, the lark at, $474 just balance equal will appear, $0.0
last best $11, $12
lights, earthly godfathers of, $0.4 own light, hide themselves in, $1.4 pavement, riches of, $0.3 sweetest air, $7.2
wide pathless way, $7.9
fleaven-born band, hall ye heroes, $0.3
fleaven, bleasings without number, $7.6
spirits, love in, $7.3
fleavenly-harnessed team, $1.6
fleaven blaze forth the death of princes, $9.0
on high perpetually do move, $70.1
             Heavens Dazze was a second of the second of
                   with 816.
Heavy to get and light to hold, 802
Head, beddes, levere have at his, 696.
Heel, one woe doth tread upon another's,
Heels, obedoes, severe nave at ms, 950.
Heels, one woe doth tread upon another's,
Heels, Cassar with a senate at his, 781.
of pleasure, grief treads upon, 214.
Helgin, bulk his mind of such a, 68.
mind's, measure your, 808.
objects in an airy, 790.
Heights, other, in other lives, 399.
Heir of all the ages, 25.
of fame, great, 90.
else of such and the such as the summons the contact on the such as the summons the sum as the sum of the com of, prepare, 540 sords of, procuress to the, 397 sords of, procuress to the, 397 sords of, procuress to the, 397 sords any 396 sords name of the sord of waters, the, 790.

of witchcraft in the small orb of one tear, of witchcraft in the small orb of one tear, so4, and the to quick bosoms is a, 912, reign in, better to, 792, threatens, heaven invites, 395 trembled at the hideous name, 310, way out of, to light, 395 which way I fly is, 395 rell's concave, shout that tore, 725, relm and blade, files arrayed with, 539, pleasure at the, youth on the prow, 108, rielp angels! make assay, 399, lence all ye vain delights, 315 babbling dreams, 541. horrible shadow, 868 lender, no one night to, 942, 993, ferald, I wish no other, fir Mercury, a station like the, 721. leraldry, the boast of, 305. Herba and other country messes, 785, Herd, lowing, winds alowly o'er the lea, 395, at the 32-
             Herd, lowing, winds slowly o'er the le 305
yes, and the star wounded hearts, 348
I and sorrow sit, 345.
In the body pent, 355,
hes our sowerigal lord the king, 940.
will we sit, 775.
Here s metal more attractive, 133, to the malden of bashful fifteen, 131
to the widow of fifty, 131.
Hersafter, Heaven that points out a, 759.
Hereditary bondsman, 358
Herltage, noble by, 141.
of woe, lord of himself that, 346.
the sea, our, 656.
Hermit, man the, sighed, 304
weeping, 563
                                                                                                                                  weeping, 563
```

```
Hero and the man complete, 539.
in the strife, be a, 770.
one murder made a villain, millions a,
in the strife, be a, 770.

in the strife, be a, 770.

so we murder made a villain, millions a, 541.

perish or a sparrow fall, 374.

Heroes, hall ye, heaven-born band, 603.

Herte, the seson priketh every gentil, 498.

Hesistate dishiee, just him a fault and, 910.

Hesistation admirably slow, 780.

Hesperas that led the starry host, 413.

Heeven, draw folk to, by fairnesse, 809.

Hew and hack, somebody to, 507.

down the hardest timbered oak, 808.

him as a carcase fit for hounds, 900.

He sacri, its foriorn, 411.

Hidden soul of harmony, 786.

Hidden soul and foul thoughts, 796.

reveals white she, her beauties, 795.

Hidden of the fault, discretit in, 815.

Hidden got the fault, 81
        cot beside the, mine be a, 225 heaven-kissing, 721.
mild declivity of, 720.
over, over dale, 850
retired, apart sat on a, 808 which lifts him to the storms, 603.
wind-beaten, wander alone by the, 578
Hills and valleys dales and fields, 157.
        Hills and valleys dales and fields, 157, beats strong amid the, 489, Grampian, 650, happy, at pleasing shade, 108 of snow, hide those, 263 over the, and far away, 493 that look eternal, 724, whose heads touch heaven, 145. Hind that would be mated with a hon,
                 Hinders needle and thread, every drop,
                 338
Hinges, crook the pregnant, of the knee,
            Hint a fault and hesitate dislike, 910
Hint a fault and hesitate disilke, 910
It was my, to speak, 145
Iupon this, I spake, 145
Hip, beat us to the, our enemies have, 900
I have thee on the, now infidel, 804
Hippocrene, the true the blushful, 316
His, 't was mine' '15, 817
Hissed along the polished ice, 672
History, portance in my travel's, 145, read their, in a nation's eyes, 306, rich and poor makes all the, 01, 797 strange eventful, 711.
Hoard of marmis, little, 256,
Hoarded bartered stolen and sold, 802,
Hoder of marmis, little, 256,
Hoard youth, Methusalems may die in, 794
Hold enough, damined that first cress, 540, high converse with the mighty dead, 806,
thou the good, 397.
Hole in a' your coats, if there's â, 805
thould any butchered to make a Roman, 681,
Holland, deep where, les, 652
Holland, deep where, les, 652
Holland deep where, les, 652
Holland deep of hell resounded, 540, murmurn, 773
pauses of the storm, 522.
            murnuring wind, 816.
murnuri, 773
murser, 773
Holy angels, guard thy bed, 76 fields, those, 997
ground, ay call it, 587.
writ, confirmations strong as proofs of, writ, confirmations strong as proofs and writ, stol'n forth of, 356

Writ, stol'n forth of, 356

Home, a day's march nearer, 380.

God who is our, we come from, 758

he him, at evening's close, 359 his first best country ever is at, 259.

is on the deep, 350

kund of points of heaven and of, 474-hiver of, poor conserrated, 601 love of, poor conserrated, 602 of the burle, 356, 359

on the polity of poor see and the polity of poor

on the polity of po
```

```
Home, there's no place like, 210, 225.
warm wonted, 320.
Home-bound I ancy runs her bark ashore,
Home-bound I sarcy runs her bark asnore to the good old cause, $24 Homes of sleat prayer, her eyes are, 399 Homes fame, grant an, or none, $22 labor wears a lovely face, 329 man, aboun his might, 362 man, about his might, 362 man, about his might, 362 man, about his might have been seen to the seen and Honey, dew, he on, hath fed, 835
Honeyd middle of the night, 177.
Honled showers, suck the, 494.
Honor and shame from no condition rise,
                                                 or and small of the first of th dangerous, 54x
from the books of, razed quite, 540.
hurt that, feels, 256
                                                 jealous in, 711.
keep inine, from corruption, 811
love obedience friends, 794 loved I not, more, 23
new-made, doth forget men's names, pluck bright, from the pale-faced moon, for pluck up drowned, by the locks, 670. post of, is a private station, 621. praise and glory given, 394. she was what, knew, 200 sin to covet, if it be a, 821. there all the, lies, 781. Honor's vince provoke the silent dust, 306. Honored in the breach, more, 824. Honors, bushing, bears his, 322. fading, of the dead, 676. gave his, to the world again, 312. of the gown, 108. Hood, drink with him that wears a, 946. Hooded clouds like friers tell their beads, pluck bright, from the pale-faced moon,
       Hook baited with a dragon's tail, 672.
Hook Saited with a dragon's tail, 692, or crock, 692
Hookahs, divine in, 814.
Hoop's bewitching round, 234
Hoops of steel, grapple them with, 222
Hope, all, abandon ye who enter here, 396, bade the world farewill, 583 balm and life-blood of the soul, 347.
break it to our, 345
brightest when it dawns from fears, 204 constancy in wind, 806 farewell, and with hope farewell fear, 385 farewell, and with hope farewell fear, 385, first-fruits of happiness, thou, 800, flag of the free hear's, and home, 592, flies with swallow's wings, 800, fooled with, men favor the decelt, 793, gay, is thers by fancy fed, 793 is coldest and despair most fits, 801, is there no, the suck man sund, 809, light of, leave behind the, 800, like a grimm'ring taper's light, 800 love can, where reason wid despair, 204, lover's heart doth fill, with fresh, 496 never comes that comes to all, 348 never to, again, 322.
                                                 never to, again, 321
no fear where no, is left, 800.
no other medicine but, the miserable
                                                 have, 347
none without, e'er loved the brightest
          have, 347
none without, e'er loved the brightest fair, 304.
nurse of young desire, thou, 800.
only cheap and universal cure, 800.
springs eternal in the human breast, 801 still on, rehes, 347.
tells a fattering tale, 371.
tender leaves of, 321.
tender leaves of, 322.
tender leaves of, 325.
this pleasing, this fond desire, 759.
though hope were lost, 800.
virue, is swift, 800.
while there is life there's, 794
white-handed, 830.
White though the fair, 395.
Hopes, humbly, presumes it may be 30, 724.
like towering falcons, 730.
total of their, and fears — empty dreama, 791.
              total of their, and lears — empty dreama, 79.1.

Horatic, in my mind's eye, 867 more things in heaven and earth, 808.
thou art e'en as just a man, 217.

Horatius kept the bridge, how well, 568.

Horn, Pan to Moses lends his pagan, 396.
wreathed, Triton blow his, 469.
you moon had filled her, 495.
```

```
Horrible discord, brayed, 500.
Horror, bad man's death is, 321
mward, of falling into naught, 759
O horror horror, 500.
Horse, dearer than his, 325 give ine another, 540
my kingdom for a, 540.
Horsenanship, which the world with, 671
Horse, between two, 810
Hose, between two, 810
Hose, between two, 810
Hose, between two, 810
Hose, between two, 810
Mones, between two, 8to
Hose, youthul, well saved a world too wide, 711.
Hosyntable thoughts intent, on, 232.
Host innumerable as the stars, 492.
starry, Hesperus that led the, 433 time is like a fashionable, 792 universal, set up a shout, 295
Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood, 546.
haste, there was mounting in, 512.
Hounds, carcase fit for, hew him as a, 900
Hour by ha fud, 830
childhood's, ever thus from, 251 closing, of day, 490
destined to that good, 899
foretold sorrow to this, that, 241.
friendliest to sleep and silence, 816 her rash hand in evil, 899
I have had my, 792
unprove each shinning, 108
in their natural, have passed away, 495.
now's the, now's the day and, 573
o' ught's black arch the keystane, 848
one self-approving, 781
toesnomer on the bounties of an, 747
                               one self-approving, 781
pensioner on the bounties of an, 747 to hour we ripe and ripe, 791 to hour we rot and rol, 791 une and the, runs through the roughest wine and the, runs through the roughest day, 791 which lovers' vows seem sweet, 491, wonder of an, a school-boy stale, 792 Hours, chasethe glowing, with flying feet, 511, circling, morn waked by the, 490 love reckons, for months, 248 lovers', are long, 505 lovers' absent, 248 mountful indinght, 348 of case, O woman in our, 509, indirectled flew the, 117 winged, of bilss, 347 House, babe in 4, is a well-spring of pleasure, 107.
                             347
Household laws, religion breathing, 814
Houseless heads and unfed sides, 494 Houses fer a sonder, 697 scem askep, the very, 678
Housewife that 's thinty, here's to the, 131
How doth the little busy bee, 108 happy could I be with either, 131 happy could I be with either, 13; sleep the brave, 563 the devil they got there, 815 the style refines, 812 the with brightens, 812 the world wags, 79; Howards, not all the blood of all the, 781 Hue, add another, unto the rambow, 736 tiue, and another, unto the rainow, 720 love's proper, 203, native, of resolution, 297 lites of birs more brightly glow, 346 were born in heaven, all thy, 592 Huge as despair, 720 Hugeged by the old, spurned by the young, 802 the offender, forgave the offence, 206
Huldy, there sot, all alone, 242, 993.
Hum, a bechive's, shall soothe my ear, 225 of human crites, 493 of men, busy, 786
Human creature's lives, you're wearing out,
      Hunan creature's lives, you re wearing of 398 face divine, 407 hearts endure, small of all that, 807 hindiness, milk of, 724 nature's daily food, 128 to err is, to forgive divine, 798 to step aside is, 784 will, left free the, 300 Hunanity, aught that digmines, 348 till sad music of, 445 Hunanized a world, 806 Humankind, issues good or bad for, 539 lords of, 603
```

```
Humble, be it ever so, 110, 225.
cares and delicate fears, 231.
livers in content, range with, 347.
Humbleness, whisp ring, bated breath and,
  Humbleness, whisp'ring, 'bated breath is 724.
Humfilty, modest stillness and, 503 pride that apes, 305, 549.
Humor gay as freely's light, 940.
won, was ever woman in this, 796 woocd, was ever woman in this, 796 woocd, was ever woman in this, 796 lumors, in all thy, grave or mellow, 724 long peace nurses dangerous, 539 turn with climes, 814.
Hump clustering, 717.
turn with climes, 814.
Hung clustering, 711
Hunger, glad that he had banished, 492
Hunger, glad that he had banished, 492
Hungery as the grave, 330
lean-faced villan, 722.
makes, where most she satisfies, 711
Hunt half a day for a forgotten dream, 601 in fields for health unbought, 671.
Hunter's am, tean a hurt from the, 495.
moon hangs white and calm, 719
Hunting is the noblest exercise, 671
Hunts in dreams, like a dog he, 295.
Hurt hat he the next that dies, 898
Hurt my brother, 121
that honor feels, 296
Hurtles in the darkened air, 540
Hurts not him that he is loved of me, 795.
Husband cools, ne'er answers till a, 215 lover in the, may be lost, 214
my means, 539
  my means, 559
my means, 559
truant, should return, 215
Husband's heart, sways level in her, 215
Husbandry, borrowing dulls the edge of,
      Hush my dear lie still and slumber, 76,
  Hushed in grim repose, ros.
Hut, love in a, with water and a crust, 205.
Hyacinthine locks, 711
Hydras and chimæras dire, gorgons and,
868
    Hyperion's curis. 721
  Ice, Fortune's, prefers to Virtue's land, 798. htssed along the polished, 072 in June, roses in December, seek, 806, to smooth the, 726.
    upon ice, 49;
Icicle, chaste as the, curded by the frost,
  lcicle, chaste as the, curded by the frost, 493
lcicles, Phoebus' fire scarce thaws she, 722 ldas of her life shall sweetly creep, 801.
teach the young, how to shoot, 214
ldes of March, beware the, 899 ldiut, beauteous, 713 tale told by an, 79'
ldle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean, 8ec'
Idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean, 85c hands to do, mischief for, 108 waste of thought, thinking is an, 808 wind, pass by me as the, 797 wishes fools supinely stay, m, 798. Idleness, pains and penalities of, 724 Idler is a watch that wants both hands, 724 Idler is a watch that wants both hands, 724 Idley spoken, Alone that worn-out word so, 813 Ignoble use, solled with all, 797 Ignorance is bliss, folly to be wise where, 108.
Ignorance is Diffs, four to be wise where, 108. of wealth, his best riches, 687
our comfort flows from, 730
Ignorant, most, of what most assured, 813
Illad, beheld the, and the Odyssey, 822
Ill, captam, captive good attending, 398 (deeds done, sight of means to do makes,
207
Ill. captum, capture good attending, 398 decds done, sight of means to do makes, fares the land to ills a prey, 687 final goal of, good the, 392 habits gather by uniseen degrees, 493 nothing, dwell in such a temple, 133 repressing, crowning good, 399 spirit have so fair a house, 133 the good are better made by, 348 will looking, prevail, 562 wind turns none to good, 802. Illimitable air, desert and, 481 lills, bear those, we have, 397 lills, bear those, we have, 397 lills bear those, we have, 393 o'er all the, o'll fe victorious, 848 to hastening, a prey, 687, what mighty, done by woman, 795 lillumination of all gems, 867, lillumine what in me is dark, 395 lilluved ghost, hie an, 396 lilluved ghost, hie an, 396 lilluved good, good good goven less, 802 of war without its guilt, 671. saw a twofold, 494. tiny, of myself, 93. Inaged here in happier beauty, 399. Imaged ser in happier beauty, 399. Imagery, fair trains of, before me rise, 867,
```

```
Imagination bodies forth forms of things unknown, 867.
can, boses, 859.
of a feast, bare, 346.
of, all compact, 806.
Imagination's fool and error's wretch, 310.
Imagination's fool and their souls, 811.
Immementate lewel of their souls, 811.
Immementate, all musical in its, 726.
Immiment deadly breach, scapes i the, 145.
Immodest words admit of no defence, 805.
Immodest words and the first fool to the fool the fool to the fool to the fool to the fool the fool to the fool to the fool to the fool the Imagination bodies forth forms of things whom, gto
Impearis on every leaf and flower, 492.
Impediments, admit, 208
Imperceptible water, washing his hands in,
       impediments, adinit, 308
imperceptible water, washing his hands in, 724
imperfect offices of prayer and praise, 399 imperfections on my head, all my, 310.
pass my, by, 107
imperial ensign from the glittering staff unfurled, 725 votaress passed on, 836
impost in a good man to be sad, 348 men bear sway, 607 important triflers, 528
impostable, that not, 102
impostable, that not, 102
impostable she, that not, 102
impostable she, that not, 102
impostable she, that not, 103
impostable she, 104
impostable she, 105
imp
              205
Ind, wealth of Ormus and of, 722
Ind, wealth of Ormus and of, 722
India's coral strand, 395
India's coral strand, 395
Indian, like the base, threw a pearl away,
Independence be our boast, let, 603
India's coral strand, 395
Indian, like the base, threw a pearl away, 724.

10 the poor, 399
summer, mild sweet day of, 719
summer, mild sweet day of, 719
summer, mild sweet day of, 719
Indifferent in his choice to sleep or die, 310
Indignation, scarlet, 541.
Intebnate, cups that cheer but not, 810
Independence on, 100
Infacty, danced our, upon their knee, 308
Infacty, danced our, upon their knee, 308
Infact, danced our, upon their knee, 308
Infact, or got the light, 392.

crying in the might, 392
mewling and pulsing, 711
Infant's breath, equable as, 730
Infection and the hand of war, 603
Infedied ander, Jews might khas and, 128
Infinite feeling, then stirs the, 813-riches in a little room, 36.
variety, custom stale her, 712 wrath and infinite despair, 396
Infirmites, fiend's, firend should bear a, 122.
Infirmity of noble mind, that last, 812.
Infirmites, fiend's, firend should bear a, 122.
Infirmity of noble mind, that last, 812.
Infirmites, bereaves of their bad, 339.
calm inspiring, 541.
Iadies whose eyes rain, 786.
Informed by magic numbers, 809.
Inglorious arts of peace, 539.
Milton, some mute, 300
Ingrattude, inan's, 316
inore strong than trautors' arins, 876
Ingredients of our poisoned challee, 800
Inhabit this bleak world alone, 465.
Inhabitants o' the earth, look not like, 868.
Inhumanty, man's, to main, 332
Injured, forgiveness to the, does belong, 708
Iover's hell, jealousy the, 207
Injuries, sants in your, 723.
```

396. he front of, himself, 721

```
Injustice, fear is affront and jealousy, 795.
Ink of .oois, nothing blackens like the, Bri small drop of, falling like dew, 805
what sin dupped me in, 895, it's bleeds, alas the breast that, 271 touch of love, 203
un, gain the tunely, 491
worlde's sweet, 317
Innocence and health his best companions,
68.
   Innocence and health his best companions,

68 featful, our, 814
g des in modest, away, 794 mirth and, inilk and water, ro8 of love, dailies with the, 205.
Innocent nose, by round tears down his, 496
sleept, 803,
though strong, like a cordial, 800.
within, he's armed without that's, 796
Innumerable as the stars of night, 492 best, murmuring of, 493 carayan, 297
   bees, marmuring of, 493
Caravan, 397
Inspiring bold John Bartleycom, 848
In pustive attention, 870
Insect of renown, 870
Insolate archer could not one suffice, 491
Insect of renown, 870
Insolance, flown with, and wine, 558 of office, 397.
Insolan toe, of being taken by the, 145
Institute, undertr, whe alway and, 711
Inspirits man's heart, and werene, 800
Instit a wanton sweetness through the Institutes underwers, wreat feelings came like.
Institut, unawares, great feelings came like, 743
Institut, outside like great great Instructs unawares, great feelings came like, sleet of arrowy shower, 540
tears down Pluto's cheek, drew, 787 tears down Pluto's check, drew, 787
Is he not passing fair, 133
whatever, is right, 489, 91
Island, right intle tight intic, 60
Isle of beauty fare thee well, 248
this sceptred, 603
Isl of Greece, 580
turoned on her hundred, 720
Issues, awful moment joined to great, 539
time, 202.
      ssuer, awar moment joined to great, 539
fine, 797.
good or bad for human kind, 539
lethnus 'twixt two boundless seas, 793.
lit ling palm, condemned to have an, 797 litiers see us, see ourself sas, 486.
lvy gr.en, a rare old plant is the, 466
      Jack, poor, cherub that sits up aloft for, 015, shall pipe and Gill shall dance, 816,
langled, sweet bells, 808,
langled, sweet bells, 808,
law, of darkness do devour it up, 250
leabus in honor, 711
      Jeahus III honor, 711
not easily, 724
Jealousy believes what phrenzy dictates, 207
beware of, 207
defend from, all my tribe, 207.
injured lover s hell, 207
ujustice, fear is affront and, 795 ledge, on thet point you yourself may, 558.
ehovah Jove or Lord, 370
elly, helly that shook like a bowl full of, 96 lerusalem, mother dear, 358
lessamme, pale, 464
      Jersamme, pale, 494
Jessamme, pale, 494
Jessamme, pale, 494
Jessamme, pale, 494
and youthful jollity, 783
and youthful jollity, 783
life is a, and all things show it, 797.
```

```
Jest, put his whole wit into a, 998, scornful, most bitter is a, 345, lests at scart that never felt a wound, 345 etc, pansy fresked with, 494 ew. I thank thee, 804, ewel, immediate, of their souls, 811 of the just, 874, precious; in his head, 348, rich, in an Ethiop's ear, 721 rich in having such a, 215 lewels five-words long, 897 lewels five-words long, 897 lewels five-words long, 897 lewes might kiss and findels adore, 128 lingling of the guinea helps the hurt, 296 locund day stands on tiptoe, 490, loint-laborer with the day, night, 590, loint, 90, and Dulness ever loves a, 803 many a, had he, 688 loilty, Jest and youthful, 785 lonson, O rare Ben, 939 lonson's learned sock, 796. lot, bate a, of heart or hope, 735 lourneys end in lovers' meeting, 122 love, all-judgring, 812 daughter of, relentless power, 345 laughs at lover's perjurnes, 207 some christened, Peter's keys adorn, 396. the front of, himself, 721
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           Kepen wel thy tonge, 398.
Key, in a bondman's, 724
Keys, Peter's, some Christian Jove adorn,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             Keystane o' night's black arch, 848
Kick their owners over, muskets, 671
Kill him boldy but not wrathfully, 200 prinace were privileged to, 544
the time, their only labor to, 876.
Kill shimself to avoid nuisery, 200
Kiln, makes the whole world, one touch of nature, 817 more than, and less than kind, 724, nearest, to heaven, 329 Kind, bave in, and born to be a slave, 601.
hearts are more than coronets, 268, less than, more than kin and, 724 of heaven to be deuded, a, 204, to my remains, be, 128.
to, alwond, 215, wondrous, fellow-feeling makes one, 804, kindest and the happlest pair, 215, Kindles in clothes a wantonness, 713
Kindly, loved use, had we never, 233
Kindness, greetings where no, 18, 404 milk of human, 724, tak a cup 0', yet, 118 to his majesty, think it, 603, Kindred drops nungled into one, hic, 504 points o' heaven and of home, 474
Kine, beeves and home-bred, 493.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           396.
Keystane o' night's black arch. 848
          Jove's dread clamors counterfeit, 722
Joy but friendship might divide, ne'er knew,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    Kine, beeves and home-bred, 403.
King, catch the conscience of the, 804.
                                                   domestic, smooth current of, 807
                                               contestic, smooth current of, 807 cease every, to glimmer on my mund, 800 eternal, and everlasting love, 133 forever, a thing of beauty is a, 675 gleams of, intensely bright, 339
leart distrusting asks if this be, 669 heartfelt, soul's calm sunshine and the, 706 every inch a, 721
farewell, 308,
forehand and vantage of a, 559
torever, a timing of beauty is a, 675 releams of, intensely bright, 350 heart distrusting asks if this be, 660 hearfelts, sout's caim sunshine and the.
756 let, be unconfined, 511
of youthful sports, 607, promised, 486
rises in me like a summer's morn, 492 smiles of, the tears of woe, 330 sorrows remembered sweeten, 346 stern, which warriors feel, 635 unutterable, choke me with, 725
loyous the birds, 200
Joys, circling, of dear vicisitude, 559 departed, how painful the remimbrance
of, 346
of sense, 815
of other years, 416
pay his wisdom for his, 800.
society's chief, weed unfriendly to, 558 that came down shower-like, 120 too exquisite to last, 801
we dote on, how fading the, 347
Judge, aniongst fools a, 724
O wise young, 723
Judges alike of the facts and the laws, 810
all ranged, 722
hungry, 800n the sentence sign, 810
Judgment, a Daniel come to, 723 book unfold, leaves of the, 186 defend against your, 120 man's erring, 790
men's erring, 790
men's retring, 790
men's retring, 790
under the diet borutish beasts, 876.
Judgments, with our, as our watches, 790
Judgments, and the field borutish beasts, 876.
Judgments, and the field borutish beasts, 876.
Judgments, with our, as our watches, 790
Judgments, and the field borutish beasts, 876.
Judgments, with our, as our watches, 790
Judgments, mith our, as our watches, 790 Judgments, month of, 828 rose that 's newly sprung in, 234 seek ice in, roses in December, 806 what is so rare as a day in, 244 keeps his glovy in the dust, 311
men by whom impartial laws, 910
Justic, even-handed, 800
in fair round belly, 711
men by whom impartial laws, 910
Justic, even-handed, 800
in fair round belly, 711
men by whom impartial laws, 910
Justic, even-handed, 800
in fair round belly, 711
men by whom impartial laws, 910
Justic, even-handed, 800
in fair round belly, 711
men by whom impartial laws, 910
lexel continued of the 274
keeps his glovy in the dust, 311
men by whom impartial laws, 910
lexel cert benanced 600
in fair round belly, 711
men by whom impartial laws, 910
lexel cert bena
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             God save the, 603
God will be our, this day, 602 *
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         grew vain, 771.
he was a goodly, 721.
here less our sovereign lord the, 940.
himself has followed her, 940
in sleep a, but waking no such mattelong live our noble, 603.
of day, powerful, 490
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         Phillip my, 75
shake hands with a, 603
such divinity doth hedge a, 722 under which, Bezonian, 540 wash the balm from an anointed, 722 wash the balm from an anomted, 72 Kingdom, my, for a horse, 540, my large, for a little grave, 345, my minde to me a, 18, 720, state of man like to a little, 500 Kings, bid, come bow to it, 345 breath of, princes are but the, 366, can cause or cure, laws of, 807 death lays ns icy hand on, 301, death of, sad stories of the, 318 dread and fear of, 788, enthronded in the hearts of, 768, for such a tomb wish to die, 506.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    enthroned in the hearts of, 708 for such a tomb wish to die, 906. It makes gods, 800 may be blest but Tam was glornous, 848 proud setter-up and puller-flown of, 938 royal throne of, 603 the chase the sport of, 671 uncrowned, tread of, 603, war's a game, would not play at, 547 Kivs at love's beginning, 185 colder the, 441 is at love's beginning, 185 colder thy, 247 colder thy, 247 consume as they, 875 colder they, 172 consume as they, 875 consume as they 875 consumers as the 875 consumers as the
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    with, 795.
Kisses, dear as remembered, after death
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                Kisses, dear as reinembered, after death 315
315
Kitten, rather be a, and cry mew, 807.
Knaves, untaught, 506
Knee, crook the pregnant hinges of the, 111
Kneeling ne'er spoult silk stockings, 364.
Knees, bow stubborn, 395.
on parent's, a naked new-born child, 78 weakest saint upon his, 398.
Knell is ring by fairy hands, 505.
of parting day, 305
sighed at the sound of a, 738 that summons thee to heaven or hell 882 Keen discriminating sight, 806 encounter of our wits, 804 remorse with blood defiled, 809
Keep it out now keeps it in, 672.
probability in view, 802
the word of promise to our ear, 345 your powder dry, put your trust in God ainf, 602
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             that summons thee to nearch of 882 Knells call, heaven invites, 395
in that word Alone, 813, us back to a world of death, 308.
Knew thee but to love thee, none, 937, what's what, 808.
Knife, war even to the, 544.
```

```
Knight, a gentle, was pricking on the plame, Amini, a gentice, was pricking on the planne, $27, a prince can laake a beited, 344. a verray parfit gentil, 656. Knight's bones are dust, 529. http://dx.night.amorers accomplishing the, 540. http://dx.night.amorers accomplishing the, 540. http://dx.night.amorers accomplishing the, 540. http://dx.night.amorers accomplishing the, 540. http://dx.night.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorers.amorer you what before us lies, prime wisdom, 798 what we are, not what we may be, 399, yo the land where the cypress and myryt the land where the cypress and my the, 45t.
Knowing dare malitain, 599 knowledge, against his better, 899 all o.tr, is ourselves to know, 398 book of, fain, 407
her ample page did ne'er unroll, 306 price for, too high the, 911.
Knows her bible true, 997
Kos misk fell, Freedom shrieked as, 583
Knbla Khan, in Xanadu did, 834
            Labor dire it is and weary woe, 816 ease and alternate, 214.
                                                 from, health, 559
                                              grievous, won, 204
honest, wears a lovely face, 550 learn to, and to wait, 770 of an age in piled stones, 906, prohable follows the ever-running year
                                              with, 550
to kill the time, their only, 826 we delight in physics pain, 559 youth of with an age of case, 697 fors, sore, high 843
         Laborious days, live, 812
Labor, the line too 506
Lick of argument, sheathed their swords
for, 5 3
of somebody to hew and hack, 577
Law cad and lost, 801
Lackly, at liousand herfield angels, her, 796
Lackly, a thousand herfield angels, her, 796
Ladder of our vices, frame a, 399 young arithmon show liness is, 799
Laddie, every lassie has her, 169
Laddes like vanegated ulips, 723 lords and, gay, 658
sigh no more, 274
whose bright eye rain influence, 796
Ladds, golden, and girls, 301
Laddy doth protest too much, 207 here comes the, let her witness it, 145
's in the case, 133
sigh no more, 138, 271.
so richly clad as she, 721
weep no more, 138
Laddy's chamber, capers multily in a, 541
Lauss superfluous the vict in, 864
Lauss superfluous the vict in, 864
Lauss and unpotent conclusion 723
Lamely and unlashionable, 50, 938
Lamely and unlashionable, 50, 938
Lamenting, he was left, 339
Lames stone oer fair women and brav.
uen, 511
Lancastrain, turn, there, 123 for, 5 is of somebody to hew and back, 507
   Lamenting, the was tert, 339
Lamps shome oer fair women and brav.
men, 511
Lancastrian, turn, there, 123
Lances, glittering, are the loom, 541
Land, broad occan leava signing the, 632 charter of the, 562 deal damnation round the, 370 next on this delightful, 493 half (Olumbia happy, 603) ill faires the, to bastening ills a prey, 639 know y. the, 451.
my native, grood-night, 236
my own miy native, 633
narrow neck of, 793,
of brown heath and shaggy wood, 575 of drowsyhed, a pleasing, 713 of settled government, 603 of the free sum of the flood, 575 or the flood, 575 or the flood, 575 or cherry-sie, there's the, 134 post o'er, and ocean, 366 smiling, scatter plenty o'er a, 306 smiles, front sunshine to the, 303-Virtue's, Fortune's ice prefers to, 708, where surrow is unanown, 348 where the cypress and myrtle, 451
```

```
Landing on some silent thore, to die is, 300-
Landiady and Tam grew gracious, 8gr.
Landiord's laugh was ready chorus, 847.
Lands, envy of less happier, 602.
Landscape, darkened, cowls o'er the, 504
love is like a, 504.
Lang syne, days o' auld, 118.
Language, Chatham's, his mother tongue, 574.
                         Language, Chatham's, his mother tongue, $75, and the send of, 804, no, but a cry, 302 or, that those lips had, 92, quaint and olden, 494, various, she speaks a, 307.

Lap, gushing brooks on whose fresh, 494, me in delight, 814, me in soft Lydian alrs, 786 mother's, drop into thy, 320 of earth, here rests his head upon the, 307.
               me in delight, 614
me in soft Lydian alrs, 786 mother's, drop into thy, 320 of earth, here rests his head upon the, 397. of legends old, asleep in, 177
of legends old, 177 discourse, made us with such, 808 was his bounty, 397
Lark, crow doth ang sweetly as the, 496
hark the, afteaven's gate sings, 474 no, more blithe than he, 539 rise with the, 495
Lass, drink to the, 131.
penmiless, wi a lang pedigree, 200
Lasses, then she made the, 0, 192
Lassie, every, has her laddic, 189,
Lassie, legends, 189
second of 181, 171
ever to the, 200
sull lovellest, 163
second of 181, 171
ever to the, 200
sull lovellest, 164
so syllable of recorded time, 792 to lay the old saide, 800 words of Marmon, 500
Latte, beginning, long choosing and, 204 too, ye cannot enter now, 754
Laten, 301
Latte, 180
Laughter holding both his, 3des, 785
when her lovely, shows, 124
laugh at loding both his, 3des, 785
when her lovely, shows, 124
laugh at loding both his, 3des, 785
when her lovely, shows, 124
laugh at loding both his, 3des, 785
when her lovely, shows, 127
laugh as tholding both his, 3des, 785
when her lovely, shows, 127
laugh as tholding both his, 3des, 785
when her lovely, shows, 127
laugh as tholding both his, 3des, 785
when her lovely, shows, 127
laugh as tholding b
               Lawin, nor up the, nor at the wood was he, 306
rivulets hurrying through the, 403 saint in crape is twice a, in, 812
sun upon the upland, 306
Laws and learning die, let, 812.
Cato gives his little senate, 600 curse on all, but those of love, 215 for little folks are made, 810 friendship's, by this rule exprest, 121.
grind the poor, 800
household, religion breathing, 814 impartial, just men by whom 910 judges of the facts and the, 810 like cobwels in all ages 810 or kings can cause or cure, 807
Lawyers are met, 722 have more sober sense, 809
Lav, deathless, deem not the framing of a, 72
Lav, deatniess, decem in the manage of the warry bones among ye, 346 like a warrfor taking his rest, 920 me down to take my sleep, now 1, 107, on Macduff, 540.
Lav, loling gort, 744.
Lea, herd winds slowly o'er the, 305 standing on this pleasant, 403
Lead kindly Light, 364.
```

```
Leads to bewilder and dazzles to bilind, 737
Leaf, fallen into the sear the yellow, 794 has perished in the green, 399-impearis on every, and flower, 492-my days are in the yellow, 290-you as the, upon the stream, 825.
Leafless desert of the mind, 836.
Leafless desert of the mind, 837.
Lean and and prefer of the mind, 837.
Lean and fact, a hungry, villain, 722
Lean-laced, a hungry, villain, 722
Lean-laced (a hungry, villain, 723
Lean-laced (a hungry, villain, 724
Lean-laced (a hungry, villain, 839
Lean-laced (a hungry, villain, 726
Lean-laced (a hungry, villain, 736
Lean-laced
            248
Lerne, gladly wolde he, and gladly teche
        Lerne, gladly wolde, he, and gladly teche

(1)

Less, beautfully, fin, by degrees and, 7.21
happire lands, envy of, 603 pleasing when possessed, 703 than kind, more than kin and 7.24.
Lesson, cold-pansing fautions, 103.
Herote, thou hast harned, 709
Let, dearly, or let alone, 214 dogs delight to bark and lotte, 108.
the toast pass drink to the lass, 131.
us do or die, 573
Lettered pomp to teeth of time, give, 915.
Letting I dare not wait upon I would, 800
Level, sways she, in her husband's heart, 215.
Level, sways she, in her husband's heart, 215
Level, foreign, malice domestic, 311
Lexicon of youth, no such word as fail in the, 822
I ar, doubt truth to be a, 206
Libertie, elipoy delight with, 489
Libertine, chartred the air a, 723 puffed and reckless, 800
Liberty, angels alone enjoy such, 147
I must have withal, 602
's mevery blow, 573
mike way for, he end, 584, mean heense when they cry 601
Library was dukedom large enough, my, 805
License and wanton rage, 530 mean, when they cry Liberty, 601 Lick absurd pomp, let the candled tongue, ncks the dust, pride that, 910.
the hand just raised to shed his blood,
    Agó
Licour, bathed every veyne in swich, 695.
Lids, drops his blue-fringed, 395.
of Juno's eyes, 495
unsulhed with a tear, 816.
veilled, forever with thy, 294.
Lle beneath the churchyard stone, some
```

309. credit his own, 797.

```
Li. down like a tred child, 317
rectined, sighing, 816.
still and slumber, 76.
Lies to hide it, does one fault and, 305
Life a weary pligrimage, 792.
biyouac of, 770.
bight of, 396
calamity of so long, respect that makes, 327 cammy or 50 long, respect that make 297 common walk of virtuous, 309, cool sequestered vale of, 306, courses of my, do show, 812 creeping where no, is seen, 466 death and, my bane and antidote, 759, 45th and 15th a death and, my bane and antidote, 750, death of each day's, 883, dreath of each day's, 883, dreary intercourse of daily, 404, elysian, suburb of the, 272 feels its, in every flinib, 87, from the dead is in that word, 389, grunt and sweat under a weary, 897, harp of, love took up the, 355, has passed with me but roughly, 92 high characters are drawn from high, 812. Iknow not what thou art, 202
                                                                            812
I know not what thou art, 303 idea of her, shall sweetly creep, 801 ills o', victorous o'er all the, 848 intense, concentred in a, 813.
is a fort committed to my trust, 900.
is a jest and all things show it, 792 is but a means to an end, 742 is but a means to an eat, 142 is but a year, 308 is but a walking shadow, 792 is but an empty dream, 769 is in decrease, 308. is long that answers life's great end, is but an empty oreani, 709 is long that answers life's great end, 794
is love, all that, 399,
is long that answers life's great end, 794
is love, all that, 399,
is rounded with a sleep, our little, 867
is rounded with a sleep, our little, 867 is thorny youth is vain, 116 jump the, to come, 900,
love of, increased with years, 756, many-colored, the change of, 905
map of busy, 810
my May of, is fallen into the sear, 794,
new, into dull matter, 108
nor love thy, nor hate, 794
new, into dull matter, 108
nor love thy, nor hate, 794
nothing in his, became him, 399 of care, weep away the, 317, of man less than a span, 390 of mortal breath, this, 272 of the building, stole the, 900,
on the ocean wave, 630, organ of her, every lovely, 801 set my, upon a cast, 802 single, fie upon this, 272 slave of, thought 's the, 792, spice of, variety' is the every, 815 story of my, questioned the, 145 sunset of, gives me mystical lore, 574, sweether of, and solder of society, 120, tedious as a twice-told tale, 799 that dares send a challenge, 293 thin-spun, with the, 812
third of, is passed in sleep, 310.
this our, exempt from public haunt, 489, thou art a galling load, 345
time's 100, 792
unclaimed though, lamented in thy end, 724.
                                                                            unblamed though, lamented in thy end, 724, useful, 214, useful, 215, u wheels of weary, at last stood still, 65 303. which I consider, 't is all a cheat, 793.
while there is, there's hope, 794.
whole of, to live, 317
wine of, is drawn, 346.
you take my, 347
Life's coming way, travel on, 907.
dull round, 127.
feavt, chief nourisher in, 883.
fiful lever, 321.
great end, life is long that answers, 794 grimace, 320
morning march, 520.
vast ocean, chiernely we sail on, 792.
vorst illa, ill cure of, 348.
young day, the luve of, 242.
Lift her with care, 335.
Lift her with care, 335.
Lift her with care, 335.
Light as air, trifles, 807
awakes the world, 490
common as, is love, 266.
                                                                                        common as, is love, 206,
dawn's early, can you see by the, 560, 592. dim religious, 787
```

```
Light, excess of, blasted with, 939-fantastic toe, 785.
fed in, away, 399,
gates of, unbarred the, 490
glancing in the mellow, 491 glium ring taper's, hope like a, 800 great awakening, 330, 769, hail holy, 407,
heaven's own, inde themselves in, 114-infant crying for the, 392-inward, 822-lead kindly, 364,
of a dark eye in woman, 686,
of common day, fade into the, 758,
of hope, leave behind the, 800,
of love, 133
of love, purple, 205
of other days, fond Memory brings the, 318.
of setting sums.
                                                                 318.
of setting suns, 404.
                                                             of setting suns, 40,-
of smiles, 743,- of truth, 797, peerless, unveiled her, 413 put out the, 500
source of uncreated, 357,- eaking of the morning, 592 streakings of the morning, 592
swift-winged arrows of, 739, teach, to counterfeit a gloom, 787, tender, which heaven to-day teach, to counterfeit a gloom, 787, tender, which heaven to-day denies 139 that lies in woman's eyes, 203, that visits these sad eyes, 200 thy former, restore, 200 unconsuming fire of, 867
way out of hell to, 395.
will repay the wrongs of Night, 489, within his own clear breast, 796
Lighten half thy poverty, 231.
Lighting and the gale, 620
as, does the will of God, 604 in the colled night, brief as the, 250.
Lights are fied, whose, 318 heaven's, 20dfathers of, 804.
that do mislead the morn, 259
Like angels' visits, 247, 395,
figure to ourselves the thing we, 867,
1 shall not look upon his, again, 721
Liked it not and died, 312
Likeness, would, if true a, 811.
Libes of our land, ye, 747.
twisted brack of, 869
Lily, paint the, 726
Limb, feels its hife in every, 87
Limbs, cold sweat thrills down all my, 725
Limit of becoming mirth, 724
Limit of the mirth of the mirth of the mirth of the mirth of the mirth denies,
              Limit of becoming mith, 724
Limed soul, 399
Line a cable which ne'er broke, his, 672 lives along the, 496
radiant, that grits the globe, 631.
stretch out to the crack of doom, 725.
too labors, the, 806.
which dying he could wish to blot, 54.
which dying he could wish to blot, 54, 866
Lineaments of Gospell bookes, 904
Linea, it is not you're wearing out, 338
Lines and outward air, our senses taken with the, 721.
dry desert of a thousand, 807
happy, let a lord once own the, 812 slanting, dismal rain came down in, 493-where beauty lingers, 303.
Linger out a purposed overthrow, 271
Linger out a purposed overthrow, 271
Lingering and wandering on, 809.
longing look behind, 300
Linning, silver, turn forth her, 492.
Linked in one heavenly tle, 203 sweetness long drawn out, 786 with success, 812
Linnets sing, pipe but as the, 807.
Lion, beard the, in his den, 648 hind that would be mated with a, 242, rouse a, blood more silrs to, 670,
tawny, pawing to get free, 496.
Lion's, winged, marble pile, 720
Lions, two, littered in one day, 899.
Lip, coral, admires, 124 pretty redness in his, 345
reproof on her, but a sindle in her eye, 177.
Lips, closed, seem to sindle at death, 69
    reproof on her, but a sinule in her eye, 197.

Laps, closed, seem to sinule at death, 69 drew my whole soul through my, 205 from coral, such folly broke, 713 had language, O that those, 90, heart on her, 722

O you the doors of breath, 899.

of Julia, pointed to the, 174 reluctantly apart, 205, take those, away, 263, truth from his, prevailed, 688 severed, parted with sugar breath, 122, smile on her, and a tear in her eye, 176, steeped me in powerty to the very, 725, steeped on the, in misery, 345 were red and one was thin, air.

Liquefaction of her clothes, 126.
```

```
Liquid notes that close the hour of day, thy, 495.
Liquor, here 's yet some, left, 8xx
Liquors, hot and rebellious, in my blood, 546.
Lisped in numbers for the numbers came,
      Lisped in numbers for the numbers came, 197.

Listen, angels, when she speaks, 134.
Listen slike a three years' child, 854.
Litel gold in corre, 656.
Little fire is quickly trodden out, 815.
here to do or see, 495.
learning is a dangerous thing, 805.
life is rounded with a sleep, 169
love me, love me long, 141
love me, so you love me long, 207.
man wants but, nor that httle long, 794.
month, 207.
   man wants but, nor that little long, 794-man wants but, here below, 139-
month, 207
more than kin and less than kind, 724-more than little much too much, 815-nameless unremembered acts, 404-print be, although the, 107-said is soonest mended, 803 senate laws, Cato gives his, 602-senate laws, Late Cato gives his, 502-thing to give a cup of water. 770 to earn and many to keep, 622 wanton boys that swim on bladders, 322-was the best fools be, 798.

Live, all that, must die, 295-at home at ease, 632-brokenly, on, 512
in peace—adue, 870.
in pleasure when I live to thee, 794-laborious days, 872-long, our noble king, 603-not la myself, 403-one day asunder, 134-so may at thou, 100-
taught us how to, 912
thus let me, unseen unknown, 225 till to-morrow the darkest day will pass, 793-to hight another day, 540-till to-morrow the darkest day will pass, 793, to hight another day, 540, to hight another day, 540, unblemished let me, 872, well what thou liv st, 794 while you have the epicure w'd say, 794, wish to, when he should die, 900, with me and be my love, 157, with them is far less sweet, 248 without cooks, man cannot, 814, ved and loved, I have, 297, in the eye of nature, 489, to-day, to-morrow do thy worst I have, 793 793
Livelier iris changes on the burnished dove.
   Livelief iris, changes on the burnished dove, 254
Lively to severe, 911.
Liveried angels lackly her, a thousand, 796
I ivers, humble, in content, 347
Livery of the court of heaven, stole the, 797 shadowed, of the burnished sun, 722 sober, all things clad in her, 443.
Lives a penceful tenor keep, 743 along the line, 496
he most, who thinks most, 742.
human creatures, 338.
like a drunken sailor on a mast, 722,
of great men all remind in, 770.
other heights in other, 790
sublime, we can make our, 770.
Living Greece no more, 304.
of great men all remind its, 770.
other heights in other, 399
sublime, we can make over, 770.
Living Creece no more, 304,
no, with thee nor without thee, 724, plain, and high thinking, 824
Living-dead man, 722.
Living-dead man, 722.
Lothe poor Indian, 399
Load, galling, life thou art a 345 of sorrow, wring under the, 345
Loan oft loses both itself and friend, 121.
Loathe the taste of sweetness, 825,
Lobster, like a boiled, the morn from black to red, 490
Local habitation and a name, 867,
Locks, currous, so apily twined, 302, hoary, played familiar with his, 910, hyacinthine, 711.
knotted and combined, 725,
never shake thy gory, at me, 868
pluck up drowned honor by the, 670,
Lodge in some wast wilderness, 593,
thee by Chaucer or Spenser, 905, Lothy and shrill-sounding throat, 888,
and sour to them that loved him not, 722.
Lone, 17 in very, now Mary, 302
so, that God scarce seemed there, 866.
Long choosing and beginning late, 304, has it waved on high, 620 is the way out of hell to light, 395, may it waved on or short permit to Heaven, how, 794
or short permit to Heaven, how, 794
```

```
Long-drawn siale and fretted vault, 306.
Longing after immortality, 739.
lingering look, cast one, 306.
more, wavering, 325,
yet afraid to die, 345,
Look down on the, 345,
ere thou leap, see ere thou go, 324, erected, men met each other with, 735, lean and hungry, Cassius has a, 722 one longing lingering, behind, 306 sweet, that nature wars, 400 upon his like again, I shall not, 721 upon this picture and on this, 721.
Looked on better days, 347.
sighed and, and sighed again, 772
unutterable things, sighed and, 204,
Looking before and after, 808 ill prevail, will, 363
well can't move her, 263
Looks, bashful, conceal, 724, commercing with the skies, 786
despatchful, turns with, 23
her modest, the cottage might adorn, 600 puts on his pretty, 202
despatching with the stars, 32
her modest, the cottage might adorn, 650
puts on his pretty, 107
sadelong, of love, 697
through nature up to nature's God, 808.
with a threatening eye, 801.
Loom, glittering lances are the, 340 of hell prepare, 340.
Looped and windowed raggedness, 494.
Loop-holes of retreat, 810
Lord, forever with the, 380 great, of all things, 792 let a, once own the happy lines, 822 of all the workes of nature, 489 of himself, that heritage of wo., 346.
of the unerring bow, 706 of the works, 680
of the presence, 346
Lord a anomated temple, 900.
Lords and ladies gay, 653
if hell, procures to the, 397 of human kind, 603
of the visionary eye, 688
princes and, may flourish, 687.
Lore, Criste, 697.
skilled in gestue, 732
mystical, 574
skilled in legendary, 1-9
volume of lorgotten, 854.
Lose good by fearing to attempt, 800 it that do buy it with much care, 803
the name of action, 297.
this intellectual being, who would, 794.
Loss, count that dosy, 368 in the womb of uncreated might, 794-in wandering mazes, 808 loved and, better to have, 311 what though the field be, 549 woman that doliberates is, 796 laugh that spoke the vacant mind, 688 Loved by particular star, 424-a simple duty, 796
again and be again undone, 796.
als, for world and, were young, 158
all the world and, were young, 158
                                                                                    alas for, if thou art all, U earth, 321, all, is sweet, 206.
all she loves is, 796
all the world and, were young, 158
and sweet compliance, 209
beggary in, that can be reckoned, 206 begins to sicken and decay, 206 bow before thine altar, I, 203.
                                                                        begins to sucken and decay, 206 bow before thme altar, 1, 202, bord as woman's, 207,
but of suckers, 233, 242,
but only her, hatting no one, 206 can die, they sin who tell us, 206 can hope where reason w'd despair, 204 compine, bashful sincerity and, 204 compine as light its, 206.
conquer, only they that run away, 205 could teach a monarch to be wise, 397.
course of true, never did run smooth, 250, dame of Ephesus so mourned her, 204, deep as first, 315
divine all love excelling, 392
excitasy of, the very, 203.
endures no tie, 207,
everlasting, eternal joy and, 133.
expelled by other love may be, 207 feeling and at, 404
fervent not ungovernable, 206, fight for, as men may do, 795-fire of, quench with words, 203,
first invented verne, 204,
flowers and fruits of, are gone, 296, fore to, fortune an unrelenting, 205
free as air, 215,
freedom in my, 147.
```

```
Love, God is, 394.
harvest-time of, is there, 206.
hasty, or headlong ire, 670.
hatte in like extreme who, too much, 207.
he bore to learning, 682.
humble low-born thing, 217.
I could not, thee dear so much, 235.
sily burns as fire in Roman urns, 205.
in heavenly spirits for creatures base, 273
mily touch of, 203
mnocence of, dallies with the, 205 in vain the greatest pain, 204.
is a boy by poets styled, 106 is a celestial harmony, 206.
is a sickness full of woes, 136.
is a torment of the mind, 136 is blind, 203.
is flower-like, 120.
is heaven and heaven is love, 203 is indestructible, 206
is like a landscape, 204.
is not Time's fool, 208.
is the gift which God has given, 203 is to be all made of smiles and tear, 204
last not least in, 120.
levels all ranks, 203.
ife and, shall follow thee, 796 life is, all that, 399.
light of, 123
lightly, who can show all his love, 204-live with me and be my, 157 looks not with the eyes, 203 lovelest embalmed in tears, 204 make incision for your, 722 man's, 150 of man's life a thing apart, 796 we brite love me lone, 100.
                                            looks not with the eyes, 203 lovelest embalmed in tears, 204, make incision for your, 722, man's, is of man's life a thing apart, 796 me little love me long, 141 me little so you love me long, 207 might; pain to, it is, 204, missters of, 162 missed with, and sweet compliance, 795 missic be the food of, if, 808 my whole course of, 145 never doubt 1, 206 my whole course of, 145 never doubt 1, 207 none can, none can thank, 797 none knew thee but to, thee, 937 not man the less, 607 now who never loved before, 207 O, O fire! once he drew with one long kiss, 205; obedience troops of friends, 794 of God and love of man, 808 of home, poor consecrated, 601 of life increased with years, 756 of love, 807 man, love of God and 808 of home, poor consecrated, foor of hie nucreased with years, 756 of love, 807 of man, love of God and, 808 of prass howe er concealed, 810 of the turtle, 451 of women, alas! the, 203. office and affairs of, 121. old, change for new, 207, on through all ills, till they die, 203, pains of, be sweeter far, 145 pains of despised, 207 pity melts the mund to, 772 pity melts the mund to, 772 pity swells the tide of, 794 pleasant enough to, you, 204, poor likewise variable, lest thy, 207, purple light of, 205 reckons hours for months, 248 rules the court the camp the grove, 203, seals of, but sealed in vain, 263, seldom haunts the breast, 805 she never told her, 251, sidelong looks of, 687 silence in, bewrays more woe, 204 smiles of, the food, 204, 205 spirit of, 202.
                                       smiles of, the tood, soq.

sought is good, given unsought better, 205 spirit of, 492.
success in, portend, 495
such, as spirits feel, 306.
sweetest Joy, wildest woe, 204, tell me my heart if this be, 137 that tempests never shook, 264, that took an early root, 297.
thee whatever thou art, 185 thoughts of, 254.
thyself last, 322
to see her was to, her, 233, 242 took up the harp of life, 255, tunes the shepherd's reed, 202.
which alters is not love, 208 with all thy faults I, thee still, 255-woman's whole existence, 7 ts, 296, words of, then spoken, 318.
works of, or enmity, 868.
works of, or the poken, 318.
works of, or enmity, 868.
works of, or the poken, 318.
works of, or enmity, 868.
works of, that they be, 318.
                      205. younger than thyself, let thy, be, 215.
ove's devoted flame, 121.
```

```
Love's majesty, 938.

proper bue, 203.

and still loves, 311.

at home revered abread, 386.

but one, sighed to many, 134.

I not honor more, 235.

in vain, I only know we, 236.

hved and, I have, 207.

needs only to be seen to be, 398.

none without hope e'er, 204.

not wisely but too well, 124.

of me, hurts not him that lie is, 796.

sae blindly, had we never, 233.

sae kindly, had we never, 233.

three whole days together, 124.

who always, now love the more, 207.

who ever, but at first sight, 203.

who never, let those love now, 207.

Love-in-idleness, maidens call it, 836.

Loveles der etter if in death still lovely, 794.

Lovellest of lovely things are they, 309.

Loveluness in death, 303.

majesty of, 720.

needs not aid of ornament, 705.

Lovel, and a fearful thing, 203.

as a Lapland night, 311.

in death the beauteous ruin lay, 794.

in your strength, 686.

Lover, an angel appear for each, beside, 185.

fond, why so pale and wan, 263.

give repentance to her, 336.

happy as a, 329.

in the husband may be lost, 214.

lunatic the, and the poet, 806 of the good old school, he was 2, 795.

sighing like furnace, 711.

to listening maid, 404.

woman loves her, in her first passion, 796

Lover, and madmen have such seething brains, 806
    woman loves her, in her first passion, 796
Lovers and madmen have such seething brains, 866 cannot see the pretty follies, 203. love the western stat, 493. love the western stat, 493. make two, happy, 205 name to fight poor, 271 whispering, 686
Lovers' absent hours, 248 heart dots fill with fresh hope, 496 hell, jealousy the, 207. hours are long, 305 meeting, Journeys end in, 122 perjuries, Jove laughs 44, 207 www seems sweet, hour when, 491
Loves, faithfull, ferce warres and, 670 nobler, and nobler cares, 42. suspects yet strongly, 207.
Love-sick air, wantons with the, 133
Loveth, prayeth best who, best, 860.
Loving, most, mere folly, 316
Low descending sun, day whose, 398.
Lowering element sowis, 440, whose, 398.
Lowering element sowis, 440, whose, 306.
Lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea, 305.
Lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea, 305.
Lowhy born, 't is better to be, 347.
Lucent syrops tinct with cinnamon, 179.
Lucifer, falls like, never to hope again, 221.
Luck in odd numbers says Rory O'More, 107.
107.
107.
108.
Luck in odd numbers says Rory O'Mor 197
197
198
Lunalic the lover and the poet, 806.
Lungs began to crow like chandicleer, 810 receive out art, 594
Lust in man no charm can tame, 811.
of gold, ring out the narrowing, 752.
Lustre, shine with such a, 396
Lute, heart and, are all the store, 795 lascivious pleasing of a, 541.
Luve 's like a red, red rose, my, 234.
's like the melodic, my, 334.
's like the melodic, my, 334.
'I like 's young day, 242.
Luxury of doing good, learn the, 398.
thou curst by Heaven's decree, 690.
Lydian airs, lap me in soft, 786.
measures, 772.
Lyre heaven-taught, 806.
waked to exitasy the living, 306.
Lyve, how that his sheep shulded, 809.
        Mab. Queen, hath been with you, 836.
Macbeth does murder sleep, 883.
Macduff, lay on, 540.
Macedon and Artaxerxes' throne, 804.
        Mad, an undevout astronomer is, 492
Madcap Prince of Wales, numble-footed, 793.
Madden round the land, rave recite and, 805.
        Maddest merriest day, 327
Maddlest merriest day, 327
Maddleg crowd, far from the, 306, wheels of brazen charlots, 500.
Made glorious summer, winter, 541.
```

```
Madness, great wits are to, near allied, 909.
moody, laughing wild, 899.
moonstruck, 346.
that way, hea, 348.
to defer, be wase to-day 't is, 748.
which should possess a poet's brain,
          which should be brain, 116.

Madrigals, melodious birds sing, 157.

Magr. numbers and persussive sound, 809.

of a name, 810.

of the mind, 812.
Magric numbers and persuasive sound, 809.

of a name, 870.

of the mind, 872.

potent over sun and star, sway of, 203.
what mighty, 145

Magnificent and awful cause, 575

Magnificent and awful cause, 575

Magnificent star of smallest, 492.

Mald, lover to listening, 694

Musch beavenly, 773.

Musc sphere-descended, 774.

of Athens, ere we part, 294.

side-long, kiss snatcified from, 672.

sweetest garland to sweetest, 734.

that paragons description, 722.

where are you going my pretty, 958

who modestly conceals her beauties, 795.

where are you going my pretty, 958

who modestly conceals her beauties, 795.

where are you going my pretty, 958

who modestly conceals her beauties, 795.

where here were none to praise, 704.

Maid-pale peace, complexion of her, 541

Maiden herlef will steal after it soon, 205 meditation fancy free, in, 836.

of bashful fifteen, here 's to the, 321, shame, her blush of, 494.

with the mosk brown eyes, 704.

young heart of a, is stolen, 205.

Maiden, earl it Love-in-dieness, 856 fair, shepherds all and, 469, like moths are caught by glare, 225

smiles of other, 239

Malds, fairest of the fural, 170.

in modesty say No, 796.

Main, azure, 578.

Main, azure, 578.

Main, here of the fural, 190.

Main, azure, 578.

Main, her of the fural, 190.

Main, azure, 578.

Main, her of the fural, 190.

Main azure, 578.

Main, her of the fural, 190.

Main, his how whier rights and knowing dare, 599.

Majesty, attribute to awe and, 798.

clouded, moon rising in, 413 looks in boundless, abroad, 719, 10ve, 938

obscupious, 209

obscupious, 209

obscupious, 209
                     iooks in boundless, abroad, 7s, love's, 938 obsequious, 209 of loveliness, 720 rayless, night in, 491 this earth of, 603 Make assurance doubly sure, 793, the total course of the course
          Make assurance doubly sure, 793, it your cause, 794, way for Liberty he cried, 584 two lovers happy, 205 way for Liberty he cried, 584 Maken vertue of necessite, 800 Malice, deep, to conceal, 396, domestic, foreign levy, 311 nor set down sught in, 724, Manunon least erected spirit that fell, 803, wins where seraphs despair, 215, which was the seraphs despair, 215, which was the seraphs despair, 215, before your mother, 207 better spared a better, 312 breathes there the, with soul so dead, 553.
                                                                      breathe there the, with soul so de 53-
Brutus is an honorable, 875
Chuldhood shows the, 207
Chruttan is the highest style of, 390-Crossed with adversity, I am a, 345-dare do all may become a, 800-delights me not, nor woman, 346 dapason closing full in, 735 dying, to dying men, 395 extremes in, 190-child is, 432-fittest place where, can die, 602 frail a thing is, 80, 388 gently scan your brother, 784-good geasy, when he thinks, 321-good great, 739
                                                                                 good easy, when he thinks, 321. good great, 793 good great, 793 good name in, or woman, 811 goodliest, of men since born, 712 haif part of a blessèd, 322. happy, 's without a shirt, 347 happy the, and happy he alone, 793 happy the, whose wish and care, 203 he was at take him for all in all, 722. heaven had made her such at 445, her /prentice han' she tried on, 321 her or and the complete reason.
                                                                                 her prenaice han she tried on, ags hero and the, complete, 599 honest and a perfect, 793 honest, and a perfect, 793 honest, a the noblest work of God, 780 Horatio thou art e'en as just a, zz. how poor a thing is, 808 implous in a good, to be sad, 348, in the bush with God may meet, 744 in the bush with GOI may meet, 74, is but half without woman, 232, is his own star, 793, is man and master of his fate, 777, is one world and hath another, 792, 'k the gowd for a' that, 341.
```

```
Man, let no such, be trusted, 776, life of, less than a span, 320.
living-dead, 722.
love oct, the less, 607.
love of God and love of, 808.
last in, no charm can tame, 812.
made the town, God made the country,
                                         for.

makes a death nature never made, 310.

makes his own stature, 398.

marks the earth with ruin, 607

may last but never lives, 197.

may range the court camp church, 796 mind's the standard of the, 868.

nature formed but one such, 396.

nature formad but one such, 396.
                                         nature formed but one such, sec.
never is always to be blest, Sor.
not moved at what he reads, Sor.
of mettle, grasp it like a, Soo.
of mettle, grasp it like a, Soo.
of wisdom is the man of years, 794-old, eloquent, 939.
one, plays many parts, 711-only, is vile, 395-parliament of, 377
pendulum betwirt a smile and tear, 792-plain blunt, 876.
poor infirm weak despised old, 346.
press not a falling too far, 346.
proper study of mankind is, 792.
proud, drest in a little brief authority, 873.
                                     proper study or manind is, 792, proud, drest in a little brief authority, 873, race of, like leaves on trees, 792, recovered of the bite, 949, remote from 399, sadder and a wiser, 860, scene of, expatiate free o'er all this, 792, scrupilous good, 744, so various, 900, spirit of, all is divine save the, 451 size of, filts to a little kingdom, 900, size of, this is the, 321 strugging in the storms of fate, 602 that hails you Tom or Jack, 121, that hangs on princes favors, 291, that hath a tongue is no man, 123, that hath on music in humself, 776, that meddles with cold iron, 540 the hermit sighed till woman smiled, 204, their lived a, 308, to all the country dear, 683, that hath a strugging in the country dear, 683, that hath a strugging in the same of the country dear, 683, that hath a strugging in the country dear, 683, that hath a strugging in the same of t
                                         to all the country dear, 688, trust not a, 23 when the third mourns, 394, wants but little here below, 139 wants but little nor that little long, 794 ways of God to, undicate the, 807, well-bred, will not insult me, 780 where he dies for, fittest place is, 602 who much receives nothing gives, 797, who needlessly sets foot upon a worm, 782 within, lookest on the, 813 world without a sun, a, 795, worth makes the, 781, would die when the brains were out, 868, you friendless, 802 worthy, my toe, 7sa worthy, my toe, 7sa would die when the brains were out, 868. Wan's best things are nearest him, 741. cheeks, stain my, 346. erring judgment, 799. first disobedience, 395. illusion given, for, 399. ingratitude, 316. love is of man's life a thing spart, 796. mortality, eye that kept watch 0'er, 759. most dark extremity, 348 unconquerable mind, 922. wickedness, method in, 955. Mane, brinded, rampant shakes lis, 496. laid my hand upon thy, 607. Manhood better than his verse, his, 57 bright, 850.
       bright, 802.
Mankind, all, is one of these two cowards.
   gco.

all think their little set, 8 m.
proper study of, is man, 792 sum up half, 792.
surpasses or subdues, 912.
wasset brightest meanest of, 938
Maikands, all, wonder, 324.
concern is charity, 398.
   concern is charity, 398.
epitome, 900.
Manliness of grief, in all the alient, 690.
Manly foe, give me the, 191.
Manna, though his tongue dropped, 724.
Manner born, to the, 814.
Manners, catch the, living as they rise, 807.
gentle, 04, 794.
saw the, in the face, 940.
with fortunes humors turn with climes,
814.
       814.
Mantle, silver, threw, 413.
Mantled o'er with sober gray, 400
Manuscript of Heaven, read nature like the,
```

```
Many-headed monster of the pit, 804.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          Many-headed monster of the pit, 804, monster thing, 813, Map of busy life, 810.
Mar what is wall, striving to better, 80e. Marshe, and mountains look on, 50e. Marshe, dull cold, sleep in, 327.
mark the, with his name, 797.
mark the, with his name, 797.
March, et al. 198.
Marbled steep, Sunium's, 512.
March, a day's, nearer home, 369.
droghte of, 655.
Ides of, beware the, 859.
Is o'er the mountain waves, 659
Ill'e's morning, when my bosom was young, 539 life's morning, when my bosom was young, 599 stormy, has come at last, 499 stormy, has come at last, 492 take the winds of, with beauty, 495-Marches, funeral, to the grave, 770. our dreadful, 547. Mariners of England, ye, 629-Mark, could man outlook that, 274-death loves a shining, 399-miss the, they aim at, 677-the archer little meant, 809-the marble with his name, 797 Mark Antony, who lost, the world? a woman, 709-Mark Antony, who lost, the world? a woman, 795.
Marmion, last words of, 519
Marquis duke and a' that, 341.
Marriage-bell, all wont merry as a, 512.

Marriage-bell, all wont merry as a, 512.
Marriage-bell, all wont merry as a, 512.
Marry, proper time to, 22;
Mars, an eye like, to threaten and command, 721.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       Master-piece, contusion nonpoo.
poo.
pature's chief, is writing well, 806.
Masters, noble and approved good, 14;,
of their fates, mea are men and, 79;
Mate, proper, choose not alone a, 215
Matin bell knells us back, each, 308.
glow-worm shows the, to be near, 490
Matter and copy of the father, the whole Matter and copy of the father, the whom to the second of t merry mount of, 150, 480, 492 of life is fallen into the sear, 794 of youth, 141
propitious, the jolly hours lead on, 496, queen of the, I im to be, 327,
wol have no slogardie anight, 492.
Maying, life went a, 108
Maze, mighty, but not without a plan, 792 murthul, 322.
Mazes, wandering, lost in, 808
Meadow, raked the, sweet with hay, 158
Meadows, brown and sear, 466.
trim with dialize pied, 798.
trimsean, dorn blown from, 807
Meads, flowery, in May, 139,
Meal, by minutes, the hour doth steal away,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             Meal, by minutes, the hour doth steal away,
702
Mean, golden, holds fast the, 815.
Meaner beauties of the night, 124.
Meanest flower that blows, 739.
flowerst of the vale, 89
of mankind, wisest brightest, 938.
thing that feels, sorrow of the, 660-Means, all appliances and, to boot, 763.
husband my, 559.
sight of, makes ill deeds done, 815.
to an end, life is but a, 742.
whereby 1 live, when you do take the,
347.
494.

Many, aghed to, loved but one, 124.

Who depend on, rarely find a friend, 124.

Measured phrase, choice word and, 897.
```

```
Measures, delightful, 54s.

Lydian, 77s.
not men my mark, 823.
short, life may perfect be in, 729.
Ment, I cannot eat but little, 946.
mock the, it feeds on, 207 mouth and the, God sendeth both, 394-one man's poken is another's, 825.
Mechanic siaves with greasy aprons, 722.
Mechanic siaves with greasy aprons, 722.
Meddies with cold iron, man that, 540.
Mede, floures in the, of all the, 462.
Mede, floures in the, of all the, 462.
Mede, floures in the, of all the, 462.
Medeinal gum, 725.
Medicianic miserable have no, but hope, 347
Medicinal gum, 725.
Medicianic in maiden, fancy free, 836
Mediun, cold, friendship knows no, 120
Mediun, cold, friendship knows no, 120
Meck brown eyes, maiden with the, 104
mature's evening comment, 492.
Meck-eyed morn mother of dews, 490
Meeting, lovers', journeys end in, 122
Melancholy days are come, 456.
grace, 206.
grace, 206.
grace, 206.
grace, 206.
grace, 206.
grace, 206.
marked him for her own, 377.
moping, 346
most, most musical, 786
          marked him for her own, 307.
moping., 346
most, most musical, 786
sweetest, 315
westest, 315
westest, 315
westest, 316
westest, 316
westest, 317
weste, old Ucean's gray and, 307
weste, old Ucean's gray and, 307
weste, 316
wester, 324
wester, 324
wester, 325
wester, 407
thousand, unheard before, 213
wester, 407
thousand, unheard before, 213
wester, 407
wester, 407
thousand, unheard before, 213
wester, 407
wester, 407
thousand, unheard before, 213
wester, 407

     Melrose, fair, if thou wouldst view aright, 675
Melt and dispel ye spectre-doubts, 743 into sorrow, 451.
O that this too too solid deah would, 31x
Melted as breath into the wind, 868.
into thim air, 867.
Melting charity, hand open as day for, 724 mood, unwel to the, 725
Mclis the mind to love, pity, 772
Memory, blitter, of what he was, 396.
dear son of, 906
fantasies throng into my. 820
Memory, bitter, of what he was, 396, dear son of, 906 fantasies throng into my, 830 fond, brings the light, 318 graves of, where sleep the joys, 410 green, keep his, 921 holds a seal, while, 801 leaves of, 801 pluck from, a rooted sorrow, 347 silent shore of, 801 sinner of his, made such a, 797, table of my, 801 wore my heart away, 248

Men, all honorable, 875 and women merely players, 711

April when they woo, 214.

are men and masters of their fates, 793 below and saints above, 203, best of, was a sufferer, 723 oetray, find too late that, 336 busy companies of, 719 busy hum of, 780 cheefful ways of, 407 hildren of a larger growth, 107 cradled into poetry by wrong, wretched, 800 cm wid of common, death calls we to 202 cradled into poetry by wrong, wretched, 806 showd of common, death calls ye to, 308
December when they wed, 214 entirely great, rule of, 805 evil that, do lives after them, 775 fair women and brave, 521 friendless bo.lies of unburied, 405 lappy bread of, 604
have all these resources, 705 have fail they reason, 876 have all these re-ources, 706 have lost their reason, 876 hearts of oak are our, 631, just, by whom impartial laws, 910 like butterflies, 121 lives of great, all remind us, 770 look like gods, it niakes, 723 may come and men may go, 446. may rise on stelpping-stones, 399, measures not. Bit 3 may rise on the 33
must work and women must weep, 621, my brothers men the workers, 256, nobleness that lies in other, 796 not two strong, the weight could raise,
                                                                      not two strong, the weight could raise, 794, of other minds, 632, of with and social eloquence, 940, of wit, now and then your, 810, old, if you do love, 794 only disagree, 815, ordinary, above the reach of, 807, propose, why don't the, 214, pursue 28, 807, roll of common, 812, schemes of mice and, gang aft a-gley, 468 shock of, 425.
```

Men, such, are dangerous, 722. such, as live in these degenerate days, talk only to conceal the mind, 804. tasks of, so various are the, 824. think all, mortal but themselves, 748. thoughts of, are widened, 257. tide in the affairs of, 802. tongues of dying, enforce attention, 310. twelve honest, have decided the cause, ways of far from gay cutes and the, 489 ways of God to, justify the, 395, were deceivers ever, 138, 271 who their duties know, 599 whose heads grow beneath their shoulders, 145, mere deceived their shoulders, 145, office to speak patience, 't is all, 345. Mended, soonest, little said is, 803 Mends their morals, 207 Menial, pampered, drove me from the door, 340. Mentions hell to ears polite, never, 396.
Mercic, who will not, unto others show, secrice, who will not, unto others show 39.8.

Mercury, a station like the herald, 721. can rive, Venus sets ere, 805 feathered, 671.

Mercy, how can he, ever hope to have, 398.

I to others show, show to me, 370. is above this sceptred sway, 798. lovelier things have, shown, 207 of a rude stream, 237 quality of, is not strained, 798 seasons justice, 798.

shut the gates of, on mankind, 306. sweet, is nobility's true badge, 798. temper justice with, 394.

Merting, distinguished, displays, 812, heaven by making earth a hell, 396 raised to that bad eminence, by, 722 sense of your great, 181. Merit, distinguished, displays esta, heaven by making earth a hell, 356 raised to that bead eminence, by, 722 saned to your said eminence, op, 322 saned to your said eminence, opo Merit's proud pre-eminence, opo Merit's an arriage bell, 521 as the day is long, 722 month of May, 136, 480, 492 titerefore let's be. 816.

Message of despair, waft home the, 397 Message of despair, waft home ther, 785 Met, never, or never parted, 233.

Metal more attractive, here's, 133.

Sonorous, blowing martial sounds, 725 Met, never, or never parted, 233.

Metal more attractive, here's, 133.

Sonorous, blowing martial sounds, 725 Method in man's wickedness, 395 Methusalems may die in hoary youth, 794 Metre ballad-mongers, 807 Metwing and puking in the nurse's arms, 711 Mer, 134 marting and puking in the nurse's arms, 711 Mer, 134 marting and puking in the nurse's arms, 711 Midnight aur, cool cisterns of the, 416.

More and the public show, 312 dead vast and, of the night, 492.

More and the public show, 312 dead of, is the noon of thought, 432.

derary, once upon a, 852.

her woes at, rise, 495.

In his guarded tent, the Turk at, 582 mournful, hours, 348.

oil, hath toll o'er books consumed the, 804.

revels, fabry clves whose, 491 wars of, shall be dear, 103 Midwife, father's, 86. oil, hath toil o'er books consument the, 804, starts of, shall be dear, 103
Midwife, fairler, 856.
Mien, vice is a monster of so frightful, 395Might, about his, honest man 's, 341.
Mighthest in the mightnest, 't is, 798.
Mighty converse with the, 806.
Might converse with the, 806.
Might converse with the, 806.
Mis done by woman, 792 mase but not without a plan, 792 minds of old, 806.
shrine of the, can it be, 582.
Mid declavity of hill, 792.
Midness, ethereal, come gentle Spring, 492.
Milk and water, mirth and innocence, 108.
of human kindness, 724.
of Paradise, 834.

Milk-white rose, 495.
Milky baldric of the skies, 392.
Way, solar walk or, 399.
Mill, willowy brook that turns a, 225.
Miller, there was a jolly, once, 359.
Millier, there was a jolly, once, 359.
Millier, perfunded like a, 306
Millions of spirkual creatures, 888.
yet to be, thanks of, 599.
Million God grind alowly, 747.
Million, falth and morals which, held, 602.
some mute implorious, here may rest, 200.
Minch and minocrporate, 794.
Allone keeps men free, 602.
Duith his, of such a height, 808.
Conceal the, men talk only to, 804.
danger of the, 893.
diseased, minister to a, 247.
diseased of its own beauty, 867.
farewell the tranquil, 722.
fits and stirs of his, 424.
frugal, she had a, 959.
glinamer on my, cease every joy to, 802.
some starts of his, 424.
frugal, she had a, 959.
glinamer on my, cease every joy to, 802.
some starts of his, 424.
frugal, she had a, 959.
glinamer on my, cease every joy to, 802.
some starts of his, 424.
frugal, she had a, 959.
glinamer on my, cease every joy to, 802.
some stardard of the man, 808.
last infirmity of noble, 812
leafess devert of the, 876.
love losks not with the eyes but the, 203 magic of the, power of thought the, 812.
man's unconquerable, 922
Meccas of the, 917.
nobler in the, to suffer, 297.
philosophic, years that bring the, 759.
phy mells the, to love, 772 poet's, vex not thou the, 806 oquite vacant a mind distressed, 815.
shore where, survives, 794.
smooth and steadfast, 141.
spirit of a single, 812
unincorporate, 794
unturored, poor Induan whose, 399.
vacant, laugh that spoke the, 608.
writte the, matures, 799.
Minds, balm of hurt, 889.
cement of two, friendship, 120
different, to different objects, 824.
mariage of true, 208.
men of other, 629.
my high of hurt, 889.
cement of two, friendship, 120
different, to different objects, 824.
men of other, 629.
my high of hurt, 889.
cement of two, friendship, 120
different, to different objects, 824.
men of other, 629.
my high of hurt, 889.
cement of two, 120.
my 199.
Mine and yours, Providence secures both, 304. Mine and yours, Providence secures both 394.

be the breezy hill, 493.

is yours and yours is mine, what 's, 205.

twas, 't is his, 81x.

Mines to swell that boundless charity, 797.

Minister, one fair spirit for my, 205 patient must, to himself, 347

thou faming, 900.

to a mind diseased, 347.

Ministering angel, 909.

Ministery of love, 162.

Minor, brisk, pants for twenty-one, 793.

warped, holds its, 804.

Minstrel, feathered, of the sky, 210.

Taptures, 552. raptures, 563. Minutes by meal the hour doth steal away, you.

you what damned, tells he o'er, 207

Mirror, holds its warped, to a gaping age, 804, the admired, 938

thou glorious, where the Almighty's form, thou glorious, where the Aimignty 5 to 11, 607 wit's false, 911 Mirth and fun grew fast and furious, 848, and innocence, milk and water, 108, how, can into folly glide, 395. limit of becoming, 724, of its December, 108 sympathetic, 139. Mischief, Satan finds some, still for idle hands, 108. Misdated on their flattering tombs, 794. Miserable have no other medicine but hope, 247. 347.

347.

what more, than discontent, 799.
Miseries bound in shallows and in, 80e.
Misery, gave to, all he had — a tear, 207.
happiness and final, 80e.

kills himself to avoid, 900 round engirt with, 799 sharp, had worn him to the bones, 809.

Misery, steeped to the lips in, 345.
Misfortune made the throne her seat, 347.
Misfortune's book, sour, 345.
Misfortune's book, sour, 345.
Misflower, Juat enough of learning to, 804.
Miss the mark they aim at, 671.
Mist dispelled when a woman appears, 795.
mortal, 540.
Obscures, no, 491.
resembles the rain, 813.
Mistook reverse of wrong for right, 808.
Mistress of herself though China fail, 331.
Mistook reverse of wrong for right, 808.
Mistress of herself though China fail, 331.
Mistook reverse of wrong for right, 808.
Mistress of herself though China fail, 331.
Mistress of herself though China fail, 331.
Mistry mountain-tops, Jound day stands tiptoe on the, 490.
Mixed, the company is, 814
Mixture, mortal, of earth's inould, 726.
Mixtures, happy, of more happy days, 108
Moan of dove in immeniorial elims, 493.
Moat defensive to a house, 603.
Mockery of woe, bear about the, 312
unreal, hence, 808.
Mocks the tear it forced to flow, 899.
Mocket he hear it forced to flow, 899.
Model of the barren earth, small, 310
Moderate thy transports, 206.
Modern instances, wise saws and, 711.
Modes of faith, let zealots fight for, 397.
Modesty forde and sweet refluctant amorous delay, 711.
Stillness and humility, 503
Mondentay saven hammered and rolled, 802
Monnent, awful, joined to great susues, 539.
enterprises of great pfish and, 297
Monner, Mack an eternity of, 241.
make the year, 815
Monner, Mack an eternity of, 241.
make the year, 815
Monner, Mack and ternity of, 241.
make the year, 815
Monner, 111.
Modes of faith, let avalshed ears, 771.
of all I survey, I am, 7,38
of montannan, Mont Blanc, 493.
throned, in rey becomes the, 798.
Money, 821, still, 807.
so munch, as t will bring, 803
of montannan, Mont Blanc, 493
throned, in rey becomes the, 798.
Money, 821, still, 807.
so munch, as twill bring, 803
of so fightful mien, vice is a, 395
Mont Blanc is the monarch of mountains, 493 Month, a little, 207.
leafly, of June, 859 Month, a little, 207.
leafy, of June, 858
merry, of May, 136, 480, 492
Monument, patience on a, smiling at grief, without a tomb, 905
Monuments our brused arms hung up for, $41
Mood, kindly, of melancholy, 725
melang, unused to the, 725
melang, unused to the, 725
that blessed, 404, when pleasant thoughts bring sad, 492.
Mood Madness laughing wild, 899
Moon had falled her horn, 491 hunters', hangs white and calm, 719, inconstant, swear not by the, 297
's an arrant thief, 480, looks on many brooks, 491 one revolving, in the course of, 909 pale-faced, pluck honor from the, 670 resolves the, into sait tears, 489 rising in clouded majesty, 413aits arbitress, 491.
star close by the, 492.
star close by the, 492.
sweet regent of the sky, 491.
swelling tides obey the, 796 takes up the wondrous tale, 376
the ample, 867,
this fair, solemn bird and, 491.
this fair, solemn bird and, 492.
Monbeams play, above their ranks the, 491.
Moonbeams play, above their ranks the, 492.
Moonbeams play, above their ranks the, 491.
Moonbeams play, above their ranks the, 492.
Moonbeams play, above their ranks the, without a tomb, 905 Monuments our bruised arms hung up for,

More things in heaven and earth, 8.68
Morn, blushing like the, 200, breath of, when she ascends, 200, breath of, sweet is the, 490.
eyelids of the, 490.
fair laughs the, 108,
greets the dappled, 671.
her rosy steps advancing, 490. 30 incense-breathing, breezy call of, 305 joy like a summer's, 490.
lights that do mislead the, 205, meek-eyed, mother of dews, 490.
melodies of, 497,
melt into, vapors, 490.
not waking till she sings, 495.
of toll, 530. of toil, 530. sorrow returned with the dawning of, sorrow returned with the dawning of, 539
sweet approach of even or, 407, to noon he fell, from, 725, trumpet to the, the cock that is the, 868, with rosy hand unbarred, 450 Morning came forth with pilgrim steps, 490, dew, chaste as, 706, face, the day's disasters in his, 688, how pleasant in thy, Life, 708, life's, march, 520, like the spirit of a youth, 450 never, wore to evening, 345, shows the day, childhood the man as, 107 story the day, tendended to the story star, hast thou a charm to stay the, 376 Morning's beam is glancing, when, 539 Morrow, give not a windy night a rainy, 271 no part of their good, 133, 34y good-night till it be, 24x Mortal coil, shuffled off this, 297, criss to portend, with 309-frame, quit O quit this, 365-instruments, 500.

mixture of earth's mould, 726, murders, twenty, 868 mixture of earth's mould, 720.
murders, twenty, 868 raised a, to the skies, 772.
think all men, but themselves, 748
why should the spirit of, be proud, 302
Mortal's share, beyond a, 813
Mortality, eye that kept watch o'er man's, Mose, Pan to, lends his pagan horn, 396.

Mose, Pan to, lends his pagan horn, 396.

Mose docovered bucket that hung in the well, 100.

Most ignorant of what most assured, 813

muscal most melan choly, 786.

Mother, Dacian, 681.

dear Jerusalem, 328

lone, of dead empires, 720

man before your, strive to be a, 107, meets on high the babe she lost, 399,
mighty, did unveil her awful face, 939,
of arts and eloquence, 719.
of dews, meek-eyed morn, 490

so loving to my, 206.
tongue, Chatham's language his, 575who 'd give her booby for another, 329

Mother's all the, from top to toe, 107.
lap, drop into thy, 320

Mother's sons, bloody crowns of, 541

Mother wit and nature, 939.
Mother wit and nature, 939.
Mother with an enders like, caught by glare, 215.

Motton and a spirit, 404

in his, like an angel sings, 775of a hidden fire, 398.

Motous looks and eyes, a third interprets, 810 of his apirt are dull as night, 776.

Mottey fool thus moral on the time, 810.

2 the only were, 820.

Motto, thus be our, In God is our trust, 593.

Mould from the, 329, mortal mixture of earth's, 796.

Moulder foot the, 237,

Tose above the, 237,

Tose above the, 331,

muldernum, when shall ending wist the of form, 722.
rose above the, 323.
Mouldering urn, when shall spring visit the, Mouldering urn, when shall spring visit th 737.

Moulds another's weakness to its will, 822.

Mount Abora, singing of, 834.

I. I fly, 365.

Mountain, he is gone on the, 863.

height, freedom from her, 592.

land of the, and the flood, 375.

like the dew on the, 863.

small sands the, 615.

the melancholy, yawns, 790.

Mountains, all the craggy, 157.

Greenland's Ly, 395.

high, are a feeling, 493.

Mountains look on Marathon, 280, monarch of, Mont Blanc the, 493.

Mountain-tops, misty, Jocund day stands tiptoe on the, 490.

Mountain he not hate, 50.

Mountain waves, her march is o'er the, 649.

Mourn, countless thousands, 332.

for a year, grieve for an hour, 312 lacks time to, lacks time to mend, 348 without a winess, truly mourn that, 312.

Mourned the loved the lost, 271.

Mourned the loved the lost, 272.

Mournful midnight hours, 348 numbers, tell me not in, 769.

rustling in the dark, 801

Mournings for the dead, 272

Mournings for the dead, 272 Mouth and the meat, God giveth both, 394, may be dichectare, mar thou kt, I'll ram as well as thou, 804, Mouth and the meat, God giveth both, 394, may an' thou kt, I'll ram as well as thou, 804, Mouth honor breath, 794, Mouth honor breath, 794, Mouths of wisest censure, 812.

Move causets who learned to dance, 806 Moving accidents by flood and field, 145 Moving declicate, more, 801d have, 729, may be said on both sides, 803, more than little is by much too, 815. receives but nothing gives, 797, Muddy ill-seeming thick bereft of beauty, 725. Muddy ill-seeming thick bereft of Deauty, 725.

Westure of decay, 775.

Multitude of firends, happiness not in, 120
Multitudinous seas incarnadine, 883
Murder, a brother's, 900 er (er war I call it, 541.
most sacrilegious, 900.
one, made a villain millions a hero, 541.
one to destroy is, 541
thousands takes a specious name, to, 541. will speak though it have no tongue, 900 Murderers, gods fix revengeful eyes on, 900 Murders, twenty mortal, on their crowns, 868 Murmur, current that with gentle, glides, Murmur, current that with genue, gnoes, 493.

Murmuring fled, 490
of innumerable bees, 493.

Murmurs, hollow, died away in, 773.
hollow, my ears rang with, 184.
mutual, 56.

Muse, chaste, employed her heaven-taught lyre, 806
heaven-bred happy, divinest Spenser, co8 of fire that would ascend, 867.

Music arose with its voluptuous swell, be the food of love, play on if, 808 beat his, out, 397 beat his, out, 397 breathing from her face, 133
creep in our ears, 775
dwells lingering and wandering on, where, 809.
hath charms to soothe a savage, 809.
heavenly maid was young, when, 773. where, 80;
hath charms to soothe a savage, 80;
heavenly maid was young, when, 773
in its roar, 607.
man that hath no, in himself, 776 never merry when I hear sweet, 775 night shall be filled with, 816.
no, in a voice that is still the same, 271.
no, in the nightingale, 124.
of humanity, still said, 404.
passed in, out of sight, 255.
sea-maid, 836
soul of, shed through Tara's halls, 577.
soul of, shumbers in the shell, 213 sphere-descended maid, 774.
vibrates in the memory, 776.
Musical in its immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in its immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most melancholy, 786.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most, most, 727.
Musical in the immensities, 726.
most, most, 727.
most, most, 728.
most, most, 728.
most, most, 729.
mos

```
Nag, shuffling, forced gait of a, 867.

Nalad or a Graca, 721.

Nail, care adds a, to our coffin, 768.

to the mast her holy flag, 620.

Naked beauties, more admire thy, 814.

every day he clad, the, 928.

nature, 877.

new-born child, on parents' knees, 78.

though locked up in steel, 796 to mine enemus, 320.

vallany, clothe my, 326

Nakedness, not in utter, 758

Name, a local habitation and a, 867 at which the world grew pale, 909.

be George, if his, 812.

Ben Adhem', led all the rest, 350, 769.

blot on his, in battle no, 574.

cannot conceive nor, thee, 900.

fliches from me my good, 821.

frailty thy, is woman, 307 friendship b but a, like love, 121.

friendship's, speak to thee m, 121

good, in man or woman, 817.

hidcous, hell trembled at the, 370.

his tools, teach nothing but to, 804.

mconstancy is but a, 271.

in print, pleavant to see one's, 805 is great in mouths of wisest censure, thy, 811.

is Norval, my, 650

kmg s, is a tower of strength, 722 fit.

is Norval, my, 650
king S, is a tower of strength, 722
mage, of a, 810
mark the marble with his, 797, of action, less tile, 237 of Faith's defender, 602 of gentleman, grand old, 797.
O Amos Cottle, Phobus I what a, 940, proud his, 593
ravished with the whisting of a, 939, to every fixed star, give a, 804 will spelt, happy he whose, 811, what a wounded, shall live behind me, 811
what 'a wounded, shall live behind me, 811

Whispers of thy, not a wind but, 248

Mamed thee, but to praise thee, none, 937.

Nameless charms, 133

mirremembered acts, 464

Names, bright, will hallow song, 512 few minortal, not born to die, 583

new made honor doth forget men's, 832

tong as that syllable men's, 839

whom love of God had blessed, 350, 769

Nap, taken out his, in lap of Thetis, 450

Narrow neck of land, lo' on a, 793.

Nation bolts, seum that rises upmost when

the, 833

courts o' in', 935

Nation's push, each their history in a, 306

Nations, make enclines of, 594

the Niobe of, 720

world odth but two, bear, 796

Native charm, one, 689, grace sat fair-proportioned, 795

here and to the manner born, 814, hue of resolution is veckled o'er, 297, land, my own my, 55)

land good mepht, my, 286.
nue of resolution is section o er, 297,
land, my own my, 59,
land good might, my, 238,
shore fades o er the waters blue, 238
wiles impart, every good his, 603,
wood notes wild, warbled his, 796
Naturalists observe a fica has ficas, 496,
Nature, accuse not, she hath done her part,
```

land good might, my, 238.
slore fadles o'er the waters blue, 238
wits mipart, every good his, 603,
wood notes wild, warbled his, 796
atturalists observe a fica has ficas, 496.
atturalists of the firmness, 310.
binding, fast in fate, 370.
cannot mis, art may err but, 489.
compunctious visitings of, 900
course of, is the art of Cod, 489 cunning st pattern of excelling, 900.
death which, never made, 310.
debt to, 's quickly paid, 309.
destemes in, 799
eye of, lived in the, 489.
force of, could no further go, 907.
formed but one such man, 940.
formed by one such signs of woc, 899 gave a second groan, 809
in hir corages, priketh him, 695, m sience bid the world repose, 490.
is but art, all, 489
is subdued to what it works in, 722.
't is their, to, 108.
look through, up to nature's God, 808.
look through, up to nature's God, 808.
look through, up to nature's God, 808.
loot the mould, 127
made thee to temper man, 133.
mother-wit and, 939.
saked, 807.
mever did belray, 404.
never lends the smallest scruple, 797.
of an insurrection, 900.
one touch of, 812.

Nature, paint like, who can, 489.
passing through, to eternity, 295.
pitying, signs the last release, 804.
prodigality of, framed in the, 722.
sink in years, 759.
slower, art of, 299.
solid ground of, 489.
swears the lovely dears, 191.
sweet look that, wears, 490.
the young read, 494.
tone of languid, restore the, 493.
true wit is, to advantage dressed, 807 unassuming commonplace of, 495.
vicar of the almighte Lord, 489
vince of, cress e'en from the tomb, 306.
whose body, is and God the soul, 489.
yet do I fear thy, 724.
Nature's chief masterpiece is writing well,
866 Needless Alexandrine ends the song, 806.
Needy hollow-eyed sharp-looking wretch, 722
Neglect, such sweet, more taketh me, 713, Neighbor's shame, loudly publishing, 811
Neighbor's shame, loudly publishing, 812
Neighbor's shame, loudly publishing, 812
Neighbor's shame, loudly publishing, 813
Neighbor's shame, loudly publishing, 814
Neither Into nor rare, 815
Nevt, int's, ish they get that cometh to, 672.
Nettle danger, out of this, 671.
Lender-handed stroke a, 800
Never ending still beginning, 772.
loved at tree or flower, 251.
loved at never parted, 233 mind the pain, 107
nursed a dear gazelle, 251.
shake thy gory locks at me, 808.
to hope again, falls, 231
to late for delight, 205.
wedding ever wooing, 144.
Never-failing friends are they, 805
New-mont babe, soft as sinews of, 399
gawds, 817.
Newest kind of ways, oldest sins the, 395
New-made honor doth forret names, 812 395 New-made honor doth forget names, 812 New-made honor doth forget names, 812
News, a tailor's, 723.
first brunger of unwelcome, 346
New-spanyled ore, 490.
Nice admirer, 723.
conduct of a clouded cane, 799.
makes, of no vile hold, 798 sharp quillets of the law, 870.
tenets, some, 398.
Nicota dearer to the muse than grapes,

Night, amorous bird of, 209. at sunset blackest, 720.

Night, atheist half believes a God by, 491.
azure robe of, 592.
before Christmas, 't was the, 96.
check of, beauty hangs on the, 721.
colled, brief as the lightning in the, 250.
congenial with the, 492.
danger's roubled, 690.
darkens the streets, when the, 158.
dead vast and middle of the, 491.
dull as, motions of his spirit are, 776.
dun, has veiled the solemn view, 940.
empty, nor sink those stars in, 114.
empty-vaulted, 726.
endless, closed his eyes in, 939.
eternal, sung of Chaos and, 407.
fore-spent, of sorrow, 193.
give not a windy, a rainy morrow, 271.
has a thousand eyes, 135.
honeyed middle of the, 477.
how beautiful is, 492.
is the time to weep, 416.
joint-laborer with the day, 559.
lovely as a Lapland, 311
meaner beauties of the, 124.
of eloudless climes and starry skies, 130.
of the grave, day dawn on the, 737.
of waking, 130.
O pilot 't is a l'earful, 622.
peaceful, from busy day the, 559
regn of Chaos and old, 725.
sable goddess, 491.
silver immg on the, turn forth, 491.
soft stillness and the, 775.
sound of revelry by, 151.
stars of, muumerable as the, 492
stela is few hours from the, 205.
the black bat, has flown, 1324.
trailing garments of the, 416
trailing garments of the, 426
vonces of he, 373
wings of, light will repay the, 489
Night's hiack arch, keystane of, 488.
candles are burnt out, 490
Nightinglie no better a musician than the were, 495. Night, atheist half believes a God by, 49x. Nightingale no better a musician than the wren, 496 no music in the, 134 ravished, 495 that warblest at eve, 496 wakeful, 413 Nightingale's high note, 491 song in the grove, 737 Nighting pitch my moving tent, 389 to the listening earth, 370 to the listening earth, 370 to the listening earth, 370 dews of summer, 491 profit of their shiming 804 short as are the, 315 twenty watchful weary tedious, 204 Nile, worms of, outvenous all the, 812 Nimble-footed madcap Frince of Wales, 793 Nimbly and sweetly recommends itself, the air, 730 the strength of the stre Nimbly and sweetly recommends itseu, air, 720 capers, in a lady's chamber, 541.
Nobe, like, all tears, 723.
of nations, 720.
Nipping and an eager air, 491.
No, malds in modesty say, 796.
matter, Berkeley said there was, 808 more of that, 348 sorrow in thy sone no winter in more of that, 348 sorrow in thy song no winter in thy year, 472
Nobility, betwirt the wind and his, 506.
old, leave us still our, 812
Nobility's true badge, sweet mercy is, 798.
Noble and approved good masters, 144
by heritage, 142.
of nature's own creating, 812to be good, 't is only, 268.
Nobleness that hes in other men, 796.
Nobler in the mind to suffer, whether 't is,
207. loves and nobler cares, 42
Noblest passions to inspire, 806, work of God, an honest man a the, 780, Nobody cares for me, I care for nobody and

```
Noise turns up my giddy brain, $99.
Noiseless falls the foot of time, 117, foot of Time, insuffible and, 791,
tenor of their way, 306.
Noise are so desolate but something dear,
Noisome things unsignity, 400 me are so desolate but something dear, 415, but the brave deserves the fair, 771 can love some can thank, whom, 797 knew thee but to love thee, 937, so poor to do him reverence, 876 think the great unhappy, 347, unhappy but the great, 347, whom we can bless, 415, without hope e'er loved, 204, would live past years again, 793. Nook, poetic, 0 for a seat in some, 480. Nook, 500 is and read in, 693. Noon, athwart the, sailing, 395 dark amd the blaze of, 321. highest, 787, of thought, dead of midnight is the, 431. to dewy eve, a summer's day, 775, Noone, sun has not attained his, 464, Noose, trust our necks to gripe of, 793. Norman blood, simple faith is more than, 2000.
       Northern star, constant as the, 492
North-wind's breath, flowers wither at the,
  North-ward's breath, flowers wither at the, 30 Nove, assert the, upon his face his own, 724 down his maccent, in piteous chase, 460 gave his, and took't away again, 500 spectacles on, and pouch on side, 721 Noves, athwar men's, as they lie asleep, 850 Note, deed of dreadful, 500. funeral, not a, 500. nocturnal, tunes her, 407. of preparation, give dreadful, 540 of time, we take no, 747 simplest, that swells the gale, 489 Notes by distance made more sweet, 773-chel a amang ye takin', 805. deepest, of woe, 504. he quid, that close the eye of day, 456. such, as warbled to the string, 787. trills her thick-warbled, 700. Nothing, any, 807.
       Nothing, arry, 867
before but the sky and the ocean, 631
                                    before but the sky and the ocean, 631
but leaves, 370.
can touch him further, 311,
dies but something mourns, 414, either good or bad, 808.
extenuate, 724
half so sweet as love's young dream, 262.

fi not critical, I am, 723.

if not critical, I am, 723.

in his life became him, 200.

is here for tears nothing to wall, 794.

is there to come and nothing past, 793.

'tis something, 't was, Str.
long, everything by starts and, 909 of him that doth fade, 869.

signifying.
    iong, everything by starts and, 909 of him that doth fade, 860, signifying, 792. so hard but search will find, 800 to him falls early or too late, 793. true but heaven, 399 Nothingness, first dark day of, 303 pass into, 675. Noting-books, stuff, 808. Nourisher, chief, in life's feast, 883. Now, an eternal, does always last, 793. Nourisher, chief, in life's feast, 883. Now, an eternal, does always last, 793. I lay me down to take my aleep, 107. 's the day and now's the hour, 573 Nyance, smacked of, or unrest, 831 Number, heavenly blessings without, 76 Numbers, golden, add to, 550. harmonious, 407. lisped in, for the numbers came, 107. magic, and persuasive sound, 809. mourfult, tell me not in, 769. sanctified the crime, 541. there's luck in odd, says Rory O'More, 197. warlike, and heroicks sound, 208.
       197

Nurse a faute, and heroicke sound, 938.

Nurse a faute, and if you, 205, meet, for a poetic child, 575, nature's soft, gentle sleep, 762 of every virtue, 620.

Of young desire, hope, 800.

Nurse's arms, mewling and puking in the, 711.
Nursed a dear gazelle, I nover, sgr.
Nursing her wrath to keep it warm, 847.
Nymph a Nauad or a Grace, 721.
haste thee, and bring with thee, 785.
shaped by some solitary, 795.
wanton ambling, strut before a, 938.
Nympholepsy of some fond despair, 859.
            O for a lodge, 593
ak, bend a knotted, 809.
brave old, a song to the, 454-
```

```
Oak, hardest-timbered, hew down and fell, 802.

hearts of, are our ships, 631.
hollow, our palace is, 686.
undwedgeable and gnarbed, 813.
Oaks, rived the knotity, 631.
tall, branch-charmed by the stars, 494-tall, from fittle acorns grow, 107.
Oat, drip of the suspended, 682.
Oaths, fill of strange, a soldier, 711.
Obadias, young, David Josias, 371.
Obadias, young, David Josias, 371.
Obedience, if your sweet sway allow, 794.
Obet, punished most who most, so4-three realms, 872.
Obedience, if your sweet sway allow, 794.
Obedience, if your sweet sway allow, 794.
Obedience, so, that he ne'er obliged, 910.
Obliging, so, that he ne'er obliged, 910.
Observation, other here of the breach than the, 814.
Observation, crammed with, 803.
youth and, copied there, 801.
Observation, crammed with, 803.
youth and, copied there, 801.
Observations which ourselves we make, 799.
Observers, observed of all, 722.
Observations of sense and outward things, 759.
Occasion, courage mounteth with, $41.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            Old nobility, leave us still our, &rs.
oaken bucket which hung in the well,
       Oak, hardest-timbered, hew down and fell,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         Tion.
Time is still a flying, 754-wine to drink, 118.
wood to burn, 128.
Olden time, all of the, 959.
Olders sins the newest ways, commit, 395.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      Oldest sins the newest ways, commit, 395.

On Stanley, on, 530.

with the dance, 511.

ye brave who rush to glory, $13.

Once in doubt is once to be resolved, soy, more unto the breach dear friends, 503.

upon a midnight dreary, 832.

One as the sea, 608.

fell swoop, 309.

for sense and one for rhyme, 807.

loved but, sighed to many, 134.

man's poison another's meat, 815.

more unfortunate, 339.

small head could carry all he knew, 688, to, thing constant never, 138, 371.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             to, thing constant never, 138, 271 touch of nature makes the world kin, Onward and difigently slow, 632.

where right, 735.

Oase and bottom of the sea, 632

Ope the purple testament of war, 541.

Open as day for melting Charity, a hand,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            Open as day for mening Charry, a nand,

724.

Opening but to heaven conveyed, 107.

eyelids of the morn, 400.

Openings, spots of sunny, 403.

Opinion, of his own, still, 803.

Opiniona, golden, 810.

stilf in, always in the wrong, 909.

Opposed may beware of thee, bear 't the,
       Obstinate questionings of sense and outwar things, 750.
Occasion, courage mounteth with, 541.
needs but fait them, 530 to forbear, will find, 215.
Occupation, absence of, is not rest, 815
Othello's, 8 gone, 722.
Ocean, broad, leans against the land, 632 dark unfathomed caves of, 306 deep and dark blue, 607.
deep bosom of the, buried in the, 541.
dread, undulating wide, 631.
I have loved thee, 607.
life's vast, diversely we sail on, 702.
painted ship upon a painted, 855.
post o'er land and, 365.
swell, ambitious, 631.
the pent, 632.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            Opposed may beware of thee, bear 't the, $60.

Opposing end them, by, 207.
Opposition, in, sits grim death, 310.
Opposition, rumor of, and deceit, 593.
Oppressor's wrong, 297.
Oracle of God, fast by the, 399.
within an empty cask, 724.
Orator, I am no, as Brutus is, 876.
Orators, famous, repair to, 804
Orb, circling, monthly changes in her, 207 small, of one particular tear, 204.
Order in variety we see, 825.
is heaven's first law, 812.
Orders, pleased the Almighty's, to perform, post o'er ambitious, 631.

the pent, 632.

the pent, 632.

to the river of his thoughts, 765.

Ocean's gray and melancholy waste, 307.

mane, laid his hand upon the, 519.

Odd numbers, there's luck in, 397.

Odds, facing fearful, 567.

Odous, comparisons are, she and, 795.

in woollen! 't would a saint provoke, 779.

Odor of the skies, 304.

stealing and giving, 808.

sweet and wholesome, 492.

Odors blown from unseen meadows, 807.

crushed are sweeter still, 348.

fing, from the spicy shrub, 200.

stealing and giving, 495.

Off with his head, so much for Buckingham,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              Orders, pressed are Amingny s, to per 1539 Ordinary men, above the reach of, 807, Ore, new-spangled, 490 Organ of her life, every lovely, 801. speak with most miraculous, 900. Orient beams, spreads his, 490. pearl, a double row of, 122, pearl, sowed the earth with, 490 pearls at random strung, 807. Orielpal and end, 204.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            pearl; sowed the earth wit, 430 pearls at random strung, 807.
Original and end, 394
their great, proclaim, 376.
Orion, great, sloping slowly to the west, 254.
Ornus, wealth of, and of ind, 722
Ornament, a moment's, 128
foreign and of, 795;
or beauty is suspect, 722
Ornaments, hide with, want of art, 807.
Orphans, wronged, tears, 541.
Orpheus, bid the soul of, sing, 787.
Orthodox, prove their doctrine, 387.
Othello's occupation 's gone, 722.
Other heights in other lives, 399.
Oursels, see, as ithers see us, 486.
Out brief candid, 792 of tune and harsh, 808.
Outrageous fortune, slings and arrows of,
          Off with ms means, 289, 299, 20ffence, dire, from amorous causes, 815, forgave the, hugged the offender, 206, is rank it smells to heaven, 900. Offender, hugged the, forgave the offence, 200.
       Offender, hugged the, forgave the offence, 200.
Offending, head and front of my, 145 and altre. I am the most, 517.
Offering, though poor the, be, 795.
Office, all men's, to speak patience, 345. and affairs of love, 127. hath but a looling, 346 insolence of, 297.
In the but a looling, 346 insolence of, 297.
Office, in present in his great, 900.
Offices, imperfect, of prayer and praise, 399.
Offices, imperfect, of prayer and praise, 399.
Offices in the set each office, in the set of the last, 587.
In the stilly alight, 318.
In the stilly alight, 318.
In unfinight, toil o'er books consumed the,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              Outward things, questionings or sense and, 75.

Over hill over dale, 865. the hills and far away, 493

Over-canopled with lusclous woodbine, 495. Over-canopled with lusclous woodbine, 495. Over-canops by force, 817. Over-far by force, 817. Over-far of delight, 309. Over-throw, linger out a purposed, 972. Over-vivine or over-civil, 20, 200. Over-ductor or over-civil, 20, 200. Owed, dearest thing he, throw away the, 300.
            804.
Old age serene and bright, 311.
age, that which should accompany, 794.
books to read, 128.
brave days of, 568
                                           brave days of, 508
cunning stagers, 809-familiar faces, 274-friends like old sworts trusted, 121.
friends to talk, 158.
great of, silent worship of the, 681.
hugged by the, 802.
man do but die, what can an, 322.
man do but die, what can an, 322.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              Owed, dearest thing he, throw awa 300.
Owi the fatal bellman, 882.
Own sweet will, 678.
Own sweet will, 678.
Owned with a grin, 496.
Owners, muskets kick their, over, 672.
Caenford, a clerk there was of, 696.
Ozlips and the needding violet, 495.
bold, and the crown imperial, 495.
Oyster, 't was a fat, 810.
                                             man eloquent, 939.
man, poor infirm weak despised, 346.
maxim in the schools, 810.
men, if you do love, 794.
mighty minds of, 806.
```

```
Pace, creeps in this petty, 792.
Paces, two, of the rilest earth, 320.
Pagan hom, Pan to Moses lends his, 396.
suckled in a creed outworn, 403.
Page, ample, rich with the spoils of time, 306.
   suckled in a creed outworn, 403.

Juce, ample, nch with the spoils of time, 305.

Juce, carried, all but the, 793.

Payes, full of four, 810.

Pail, well, that 's, well satisfied, 802.

Pain, a stranger yet to, 108.

and angulan wring the brow, 509.

change the place but keep the, 799 dounted to in company with, 539.

find pleasure end in, 759.

mghty, to love it is, 304.

never mind the, 207.

pilysucs, labor we delight in, 559.

piessure after, sweet is, 771 smile is, frown at pleasure, 799 tiat pain to mivs, a 304.

to sigh yet feel no, 816

Painful wigh keep, penswe poets, 807.

Pains and penalties of idleness, 724 of desplaced love, 207.

of love sweeter than other pleasures, 145.

Pootte, pleasure in, 804.

Paint keep nature, who can, 489

the lily, 726

Painted sing upon a painted ocean, idle as a, 855.

Painters, poets like, unskilled to trace, 807
   the lily, 726

Painted ship upon a painted ocean, idle as a, 855.

Painted ship upon a painted ocean, idle as a, 855.

Painters, poets like, unkilled to trace, 807

Painting, more than, can express, 134.

of your fear, this is the very, 868.

Pair, kindest and the happiest, 215.

Palace and a prison on each hand, 720 hollow oak our, is, 626.

Palace, all if fair not, 721.

cast of thought, 237.

grew thy cheek and cold, 24f his uneffectual fire, 409 passion loves, places which, 316.

why so, and wan fond lover, 205.

Pale-faced moon, pluck honer from the, 670.

Pall Mall, sweet shady side of, 814.

Pall, veptred, 787.

Pallia, bust of, perched upon a, 852.

Palm, tiching, condemned to have an, 797.

Palmer's weed, sad votarist in, 830.

Palpable and familiar, clothing the, 490.

Palit of Moses lends his navan horn. 226.
       940
Pan to Moes lends his pagan horn, 396.
Pang as great as when a giant dies, 310.
each, imbues with a new color, 490 feels no biting, 599,
that rends the heart, 347
Pangs and fury of despair, 800.
intense, every sense o'erstring by, 899.
keenest, the wretched find, 816
more, and fears than wars or women,
       Panish that is for thoughts, 495
Panish that is for thoughts, 495
Pany freaked with jet, 494
Panishon, lean and shippered, 711
Panish Time to filed after him in vain, 905
Panish for twenty-one, when the brisk minor, 793
Paper, uncertain, certain portion of, 811
Paradise, blissful, of God the garden was, 719-149. Instaut, to Goot the garden 719-149. Iteawelly, is that place, 123 how beautiful beyond compare, 799 how grows in, our store, 120 milk of, 834 must I thus leave thee, 311. of our despair, the unreached, 867. only bluss of, that survived, 232.
of our despair, the unreached, 807-only bilss of, that survived, 232-opening, 489, thought would destroy their, 108 to what we fear of death, 347-
Paradises, two, are lin one, 813
Paragons description, a maid that, 722
Parallel, none but himself can be his, 812.
Paramours, sweetly sung to call forth, 492-
Parallel, none but himself can be his, 812.
Paramours, sweetly sung to call forth, 492-
Paralle, hone dilke the, 711
Pardon, ne'er, who have done the wrong, 798.
Or to bear it, 121.
Parent of good these are thy glorious works, 463
Parents, son of, passed into the skies, 93.
Parents, on, knees a naked new-born child,
78.
Parish, wyd was his, 697.
Parishement of man, 937.
Parisus boy, O't is a, 107.
Parisment of man, 937.
Parisous boy, O't is a, 107.
Parmeced for an inward bruise, 506.
Parnoon, forty-power, O for a, 809.
owned his skill, 668.
```

Part, a poor cold, o' th' blood, 899.
act well your, 781.
few shall, where many meet, 513of being, hath a, 872.
oo he plays his, 711.
Partake the gale, 911.
Parted, when we two, in silence and tears, Parthenon, Earth proudly wears the, 736. Partial, grow more, for the observer's sake, Partial grow mote, for the otherver's sace,

Particular, each, hair to stand on end. 725

Parting day, curfew tolls the knell of, 305.
day dies like the dolphin, 490.
guest, speed the, 121.
It such sweet sorrow, 241.
way he went at, 248.

Partitions, this, do their bounds divide, 500.
thin, sense from thought divide, 500.
Tarts gracious, remembers me of his, 107.
If, allure thee think how Bacon shined, 608. If, alluer thee think how Bacon shined, 938 of one stupendous whole, 489, one man plays many, 711.
pawing to get free his hinder, 496.
the well-adjusted, 493.
Parys, Frensh of, 696.
Pass by me as the idle wind, 797, mto nothingness, 675, my imperfections by, 107, native bulwarks of the, 719.
Passage, access and, to remorie, 900.
Passe, maigre thee will, or dy, 540.
Passends show, I have that within which, 295.
The was strange, 145.
It was, strange, 145.
The with forty pounds a year, 688.
It buts of a sigh, 306.
Passion, first, woman loves her lover in her, 796. 796.
haunted me like a, 404.
heaven each, sends, 799.
is the gale, reason the card, 792.
places which pale, loves, 316. places which pale, loves, 316, ruling, conquers reason, 759, ruling, strong in death, 760 shall have spent its novel force, 255 towering, 755, 755, towering 793. let the dead, bury its dead, 770 power upon the, not heaven itself has, let the dead, bury its dead, 770 power upon the, not heaven itself has, 792.

Paste and cover to our bones, 310.

Pathon set upon a little breach, 814.

Path motive guide orginal and end, 394.

of sorrow and that path alone, 396.

Pathless grow and that path alone, 346.

penury's barren, 802.

Pathless grows, 6 dallance, 802.

thiorny, of sorrow, 213.

Pathless groves, 6 ountain-hads and, 316.

Pathless and so and so and so and so of gloy lead but to the grave, 306.

Paths as unto sin decoy, such, 1966.

Paths as unto sin decoy, such, 1966.

Pathless and so and so and so and so and so of gloy lead but to the grave, 306.

Pathese, 1967.

Pathese and so and s 34t.
Pause, must give us, 297.
Pauses, hollow, of the storm, 632.
of the speech, thou fill'st the, 228.
Pavement, riches of heaven's, trodden gold, $03. Pawing to get free his hinder parts, 496. Peace and health, heaven's hest treasures, 559. arts of war and, 580. carry gentle, in thy right hand, 300

Peace, central, subsisting at the heart, 691. fruits of, 541. hath her victories no less renowned, 909. hath her victories no less renowned, implorous arts of, 539, its ten thousands slays, 539, keep, between the effect and it, 900, long, nurses dangerous humors, 539 mati-pale, complexion of her, 541, northing so becomes a man in, 503, piping time of, 938, ring in the thousand years of, 759 sent to, to garn our peace, 311 sectied, pierce his, 808, soft phrase of, 145, so of, 145 sold, Adam could find no, 238, soul of, patience 't is the, 233, source and soul of social life, 541, thrice my, was slain, 491. source and soul of social fife, 541. thrice my, was slain, 427 to be found in this world, 528 your valor won, enjoy the, 609. Peak to peak, from, 686 in Darien, silent upon a, 805. Peal upon peal redoubling all around, 493. Pearl, barbarc, and gold, 723. hang a, in every cowship 5 ear, 869. If all their sand were, twenty seas, 815, like the base Indian threw a, away, 724, orient, a double row of, 122 orient, sowed the earth with, 400. Pearls, morning, dropt in the lily's bosom, 796. 796. orient, at random strung, 807. Pendulum betwirt a smue and tear, man thou, 79
Penned it down, and so I, 803.
Penniless lass wi' a lang pedigree, 200,
Pens, quirks of blazoning, 722.
Pensioner on the bounties of an hour, 747.
Pensive poets painful vigils keep, 807, though a happy place, brought from a, though a happy place, brought from 20

Pent, here in the boay, 39

Penty and imprisonment, age ache, 347, chill, repressed their noble rage, 30

People, all sort of, 510.

Common, of the skies, 124,
that dwell up in the steeple, 144,
the sunbeams, gay motes that, 78

People's will, broad-based upon her, 63a.

Perfect whole, 406. Perched and sat and nothing more, 852 Perfect whole, 406,
woman nobly planned, 128.
Perfection, fulness of, lles in hun, 232,
true, right praise and, 496.
Perfections, with sweete, caught, 94.
Perfumed, amber scent of odorous, 621, throw a, on the violet, 726.
Perfumed like a milliner, 506.
Perflows, dim and, way, 808.
edge of battle when it raged, 540.
stuff, cleanse the stuffed bosom of that, 347 347
Perils do environ, what, 540 how many, doe enfold the righteous, how many, doe enfold the righteous 35.

Perjuries, lovers' Jove laughs at, 207.

Periuries, lovers' Jove laughs at, 207.

Permicious weed, 328.

Perperusal benediction, 736.

Perpice and dash maturest counsels, 724.

Perplexed in falth but pure in deeds, 397.

in the extreme, 724.

Personage, genteel in, 142.

Personage, genteel in, 142.

Personage, genteel in, 142.

Personage and ripened into faith, 397.

Persuasve accent, thus began with, 724.

sound, magic numbers and, 309.

Perturbed spirit, rest, 311.

Perverts the prophets, purions the psalma

397. Pesters of the populary, 506
Pestilence seals that close the, 50a.
Petard, conjugal, 215.
Peter denyed his Lord and cryed, 509.
Peter's done, hand that rounded, 77a.

```
Peter's keys some Jove adom, 396.
Petrifies the feeling, 396.
Petricoat, feet beneath her, like little mice,
  Petticoate, tempestuous, 713
Petty pace, creeps in this, 792.
Phalanx, Pyrthic, 58:
Phantasma or a hideous dream, like a, 900.
Phantom of delight, she was a, 128.
Philip and Mary on a shilling, 205,
my king, 72.
                                           211.
  rmin and Mary on a shilling, 205, my king, 75.
Phillis, neat-banded, 785
Philosopher and friend, guide, 912.
Philosophers, hot, stood banding factions, 808
Philosophers, hot, stood banding factions, 808

Sayings of, 347.

Philosophic mind, years that bring the, 759.

Philosophic mind, years that bring the, 759.

Philosophic mind, years that bring the, 759.

Philosophy all the philosophy, divine, 397

dreamt of in your, 808.

False, vain wisdom all and, 808.

proud, I ask not, 494.

sweets of sweet, 804.

Sweets of sweet, 804.

Philosophy's reverse and health's decay, 80r.

Phisk, Doctour of, ther was a, 809.

gold in, is a cordial, 809.

speke of, and of surgerye, 809.

Pheebus, bright, in his strength, 495

gins arise, 474.

what a name, O Amos Cottle, 440.

Phebus' fire scarce thaws the icicles, 722

wain, hundnost wheels of, 839

Phosphor, sweet, bring the day, 489

Phrace, measured, choice word and, 807 soft, of peace, 145.

Phrenzy dictates, jealousy believes what, 207

Physic, take, pomp, 802.
    Principy dictates, jealousy believes what, 307
Physic, take, pomp, 802.
Physics pain, the labor we delight in, 559.
Picture, look on this, and on this, 721
Pictured urn, scatters from her, 867
Pictures, my eyes make, when they are shut,
Pictured urn, scatters from her, 867
Pictures, my eyes make, when they are shut, 807
out of doors, 273
Piece of scripture, 396.
Piernan spring, drink deep or taste not, 805
Pilgrim gray, honor comes a, 563 steps, morning came forth with, 400
Pilgrimage, overtaketh in his, every sedge he, 493
Pilgrimas, rest for weary, found, 794.
Pilgrim-shrines, such graves as his are, 917
Pillow hard, sloth finds the down, 816
Pilot, careful, of my proper wee, 223.
'tis a fearful mght, 672
that weathered the storm, 632
Pin, with a little, bores through, 308
Pinch, one, a hungry lean-faced villain, 722
Pined in thought, 251
Pines, proud tops of the eastern, 719 silent sea of, 376.
the murmuring, and the hemlocks, 453-thunder-harp of, smote his, 493
Pinnons, downy, swift on his, 816 trembling, soar with, 801.
Pink of courtesy, I am the very, 724
Pinks that grow on whose tops, 863.
Pinnacle, thunder-spintered, 729
Pious acton we do sugar o'er the devil, with, 396 frauds and holy shifts, 396.
       396
frauds and holy shifts, 396.
Pipe but as the linnets sing, 807.
for fortune's finger, 112.
```

```
Place, there's no, like home, mo, ass,
Places which pale passion loves, grd.
Plague the inventor, return to, 800.
Plagues, of all, thy wrath can send, 181.
that haunt the rich, 815.
Plain as way to parah church, 803.
blunt man that love my friend, 876.
living and high thinking, 814.
loveliest village of the, sweet Auburn, 686.
lovellest village of the, sweet Auburn, 606.

606.

607.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

608.

60
   the fool, wise enough to, 798, the fool, wise enough to, 798, the woman, thou hast forced me to, 321. the woman with mine eyes, 346. to you, death to us, tho, 108. Played at bo-peep, as if they, 721, familiar with his hoary locks, 319. Player, poor, that struts and freis his hour, Player, poor, that struts and frets his nour, 202.
Players, men and women merely, 711. Players, men and women merely, 711. Players, mond the head, 781.
Plays round the head, 781.
Plead hike angels, his virtues, 900
Pleasant in thy morning, how, 108.
Thought, we meet thee like a, 495 to see one's name in print, 805 to think on, 134.
Pleave, the certainty 10, that charm, 212
Pleased to the last he crops the flowery food, 497.
      with a rattle, tickled with a straw, 107.
Pleasing dreadful thought, Eternity thou, 759 dreams and slumbers light, 816.
heaviness, 816.
lascrivous, of a lite, 541.
less, when possessed, 793.
shade, ah, 108
Pleasure after pain, sweet is, 771 at the helm, youth on the prow, 108 blend our, or our pride, 662.
end in pain, 736.
felt in home, 322.
friend of, wisdom's aid, 774.
frown at, smile in pain, 799.
heals of, grief treads upon the, 214.
in poetic pains, 806.
in the pathless woods, 607.
hittle, in the house, 243.
live in, when I live to thee, 794.
of the gaine, 730.
praise, all his, 390
reason's whole, 815.
she was bent, though on, 959.
shock of, 770.
sweetest, chords that vibrate, 204.
well-spring of, 107.
Pleasure-dame, a startely, 814.
                                            759 dreams and slumbers light, 816.
sanock of, 70.

sweetest, chords that vibrate, 204.

well-spring of, 107.

Pleasure-dome, a stately, 834

Pleasures, all the, prove, 157.

'mid, and palaces, 110, 225,

are hke poppies spread, 848.
dignified, a lonely place with, 493
doubling his, 212.
of the present day, seize the, 794-soothed his soul to, 772
these pretty, might me move, 158.

Pledge, first, of blithesome May, 495.
haint never signed no, 558

Plenty, scatter, o'er a smilling land, 306.
Plighted clouds, play 't the, 560

Plott, this blessed, 603.

Ploughman homeware plods his weary way, 305.
Ploughshare, stern ruin's, 463.
            unwilling, 495
Plover, muskets aimed at duck or, 671.
Pluck bright honor from the moon, 670 from memory a rooted sorrow, 347 the amaranthine flower of faith, 398.
      this flower safety, 671 to locks, 670.

The flower safety, 672 to locks, 670.

Plumes in the gray wind dancing, 339.

Plunged in, accourted as I was, 670.
```

```
Pluto's cheek, drew iron tears down, 787.
Poem round and perfect as a shar, 807.
Poem, sacred and soul-moving, 806.
Poet in a golden clime was born, 807.
limatic the lower and the, 806.
ascems beside the man, 57.
this is truth the, sings, 255
Poet's brain, madness which should possess rs orani, manness which should a, 938.
ear, flattery ne'er lost on, 811 eye in a fine frenzy rolling, 722, mind, vex not thou the, 806, pen turns them to shapes, 867,
salvan 9730, 040.
              sylvan grave, 940
Poetic child, meet nurse for a, 575.
fields encompass me, 807
nook, O for a seat in some, 489.
                   pains, pleasure in, 806.
Poetry, call the flowers its, 404-
cradled into, by wrong, 806
Poetry, call the flowers its, 494-cradled into, by wrong, 806
mincing, 807,
of earth is never dead, 485-tender charm of, and love, 495.
Poets like painters unskilled to trace, 807.
lose half the praise, 806.
pensive, painful vignis keep, 807.
three, in three distant ages, 907 who on earth have made us heirs, 42.
youthful, dracy when they love, 134-Point a moral or adorn a tale, 909 highest, of all my greatness, 346-his slow unmoving finger, 725-of his own fancy falls, on the, 310, on thet, you yourself may jedge, 558.
swun to yonder, 609.
Pounts, kindred, of heaven and of home,
474-
Poison, one man's, another's meat, 815
    Source of your course, roys.

Poison, one man's, another's meat, $15
sweet, of misused wine, 558.

Poisoned chalice, ingredients of our, 800.

Poisoning of a darf, like the, 795
Poke, drew a dial from his, 791.

Pole so tall to reach the, were 1, 808 to pole, beloved from, 857.
to pole, spread the truth from, 376, true as the needle to the, 796
Policy, any cause of, turn him to, 723.
Pomp, contingencies of, 867.
give lettered, to teeth of time, 915 lick absurd, let the candied tongue, 111.
of dress, beyond the, 795.
of power, 396
pride, and circumstance of war, 722
sepulchred in such, 906.
take physic, 802
sepulchred in such, 906.
take physic, 802
sepulchred in such, 906.
Tompey's status, even at the base of, 876
Pomps, leave, to those who need 'em, 602.
Ponderous wee, 312
Pools, smooth dark, of deeper thought, 228
Poor a ting is man, how, 808 but honest, my friends were, 796 cold part o' th' blood, 899
farthings to the, 803
have cried, Ca.sar hath wept when the, 875.
infirm weak and despised old man, 346.
              cold part o' th' blood, 899
farthings to the, 803
have cried, Ca-sar hath wept when the, 875.
infirm weak and despised old man, 346.
laws grind the, 809
make no new friends, 309
makes me, indeed, 811.
none so, to do him reverence, 876.
old man, sorrows of a, 340-simple annals of the, 306 though, the offering be, 795-without thee we are, 394.
Popinjay, pestered with a, 506.
Poppies, pleasures are like, spread, 848
Porcelain, precious, of human clay, 309.
Porcupine, quilis upon the frieful, 725
Porteol in their, 603
Portal we call death, whose, 372
Portance in my travels' history, 145.
Portentous sight, 395.
Portion, certain, of uncertain paper, 811.
of that around me, 1 Decome, 463.
wales a, with "additious care, 366.
Ports, commerce opens all her, 541.
Posiese, a thousand fragrant, 157.
Positive persisting fools, 798.
Possessed, first I have, 307.
less pleasing when, 793.
Possessed, first I have, 307.
Possessing, too dear for my, 239.
Possess
```

```
Pouncet-box 'twirt' Ma finger and thumb, 506.

Powerty, distrest by, no more, 802.
honest, is there for, 341
hunger and dirt, 344, 337.
lighten half thy, 391,
steeped me in, to the very lips, 725.
Powerty su nonquerable bur, 812.
Powder dry, trust God and keep your, 602.
Power, ever-during, 631.
forty-parson, O for a, 809.
God's dear, loving, 807.
of grace the magic of a name, 810.
of thought the imagic of the mind, 820.
pomp of, 306.
relentless, 345.
that sways the breast, 809.
to charm, nor witch hath, 397.
wad some, the giftle gue sa, 866.
Powers, resolved, frame of his, 808.
that be, 603.
that will work for thee, 922.
upon the past, not heaven itself has, 792 which our minds impress, 397.
Practice taught, such as, 798.
Practices taught, such as, 799.
what he preached, 809.
Practicour, verrey parsight, 809.
Practics of the pleasure, 909.
anthem swells the note of, 506.
blame love knesse tears and smiles, 128.
dann with faint, 910.
enough to fill the ambition, 575
hoarts that once beat high for, 577.
love of, howe'er conceaded, 810
mand whom there were none to, 104 named the but to, 100e, 397.
no small, to be disprassed, 811 or infamy, leave, that to fate, 803.
poets love half the, 866.
right, and true perfection, 496.
sciller's, to things of sale, 810.
sciveral praise on several parts, 221 take the strongest, on trust, 810.
Hersung makes the remembrance dear, 312.
                    the Frenchman, 120
undeserved scandal in disguise, 811
Praising makes the remembrance dear, 312, the rose that all are, 205
Prate of my whereabouts, the very stones,
             Pray, remained to, came to scoff, 688 the lord my soul to keep, 707 Prayer, agony of, by thine, 338.

all his business, 359 imperfect offices of, and praise, 359 is the soul suncere desire, 458 salent, her cyes are homes of, 359, we cars a, or two, 850 Prayeth best who love the best, 850 librached as power size to the 84 850 librached as power size to the 850 88,
                    Preached as never sure to preach again, 395
practised what he, 800
Preacheth patience, God takes a text and,
Presentent patients, you takes a text and, 364
Precodent, codcless mynad of, 810. From, to precedent, to3
Precinets, warm, of the cheerful day, 306
Precinets, warm, of the cheerful day, 306
Precine dadem stole, 817
Precine that the theory of the cheerful day, 306
Pre eminence, mert's proud, 340. Precine that he they, adds a, 203. Pre eminence, mert's proud, 340. Prent it, faith he they on man, 191. Preparation, dreadful note of, 540. Prepare for rhyme, 806. Presence, felt, of the Deity, 491
Prepare for rhyme, 806. Presence, felt, of the Deity, 491
Prepare for rhyme, 806. Presence, felt, of the Deity, 491
Prepare for rhyme, 806. Presence, felt, of the Deity, 491
Present good or ill the jny or curse, 800 in dearnes, though absent, 248. Presentence, counterfeit, 721
Presson good or little jny or curse, 800 in dearnes, though absent, 248. Presentence, counterfeit, 721
Presson good or little jny or curse, 800
Pressume not God to Scain, 292
Pretty Fanny's way, call it only, 134- in amber to observe, 815, to walk with, 134. Press, evening, expects his, 108
In of all things yet a, to all, 792
In of many a crime untold, 802. Prick for knowledge, too high the, 911. of many a crime untold, 802. Prick the sides of ny intent, 788.
Pricking on the plaine, a gentle knight was, 827.
Pride, blend our pleagure or our, 662.
                    364
Precedent, codeless invited of, 810.
      Pricking on the plaine, a gentee kings with 827,
Pride, blend our pleasure or our, 662, fame ambition to fill up his heart, 796, fell with my fortunes, 247,
high-blown, broke under me, 321,
is their port, 603,
like an eagle, 799,
modest, 712,
never-failing vice of fools, 799, of former days, 577
pomp and circumstance of was, 728,
```

Pouncet-box 'twist his finger and thumb,

```
Pride, rank, and haughtiness of soul, 799.
reasoning, our error lies in, 799.
stands in his, alone, 454 tail vampure's artificial, 652.
that apea humility, 369, 549
that licks the dust, 570.
Primal duties shine aloft like stars, 398.
eldest curse a brother's murder, 500.
Prime, vintues of a temp'rate, 794.
Primeval, forest, this is the, 453.
Primrose, a yellow, was to him, 495.
by a river's brim, 495.
path of dalliance, 809.
peeps beneath the thorn, 690.
rathe, that forsaken these, 594.
Primroses, pale, that die unmarried, 495.
Prince can make a belted kinght, 341.
duty subject owes the, 215
Princes and lords may fourths, 689.
and lords the breath of kings, 396.
death of, the heavens blaze forth the, 300.
for fow real franct women blue come.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     Proverbe, patch grief with, 318
Proves by thumping on your back, 121.
Providence, assert eternal, 395.
foreixnowledge will and late, 808.
God's, seening estranged, 335.
secures both mine and yours, 394.
their guide, 321.
Prow, youth on the, pleasure at the helm,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  Prow, youth on the, pleasure at the heim, 108.
Prudelnee, some dispense with, 798.
Prunella, leather or, 781.
Psalms, purloins the, perverts the prophets and, 397.
Publich haunt, our life exempt from, 489.
speak in, on the stage, 107
Publish right or wrong, 1 11, 806
Publishing loudly our neighbor's shame, 811.
Puca, thou luttle tricksy, 93
Pudding, added, 802.
Puflue and reckless libertine, 809.
Puking, mewiling and, in the nurse's arms, 711
Puller-down of kings, setter-up and, 998.
Purs, 1200.
Pure, grow, by being purely shined upon, 1200.
find few real frends, women like, 795-have great playthings, 541.
sweet aspect of, 321
rinces favors, man that hangs on, 321.
Princeples ofcherer changed than shirt, 347.
write hirtle, although the, 107,
pleasant to see one's name in, 805
Prison, palace and a, on each hand, 720.
stone walls do not a, make, 147.
Privon-house, secrets of my, 725
Private man, ambition of a, 575.
ends, the dog to gan his, 949 station, post of honor is a, 601.
whate, griefs they liare 1 know not, 876.
Prize not to the worth what we have, 501.
of death in battle, gree, 539.
Protability, keep, in view, 805.
Proceed at printing, and 40, 496
Pr
                                       809 find few real friends, women like, 795.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        Pure-eyed Faith, 830.
Purty of grace, 133.
Purloins the psalms, perverts the prophets,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     Purions the psams, perverts the prophets, 397
Purple all the ground with flowers, 494, and gold gleaming in, 501, light of love, 205, testament of bleeding war, 541 with love's wound, 850
Purpose, flighty, is never o'ertook, 797, infirm of, 883, one increasing, rups through the agus, 227
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     Pursue as men, conceive in boyhood and the trumph, spir.

Pursues the vast alone, 814.
Push us from our stools, 868.
Push us from our stools, 868.
Puts on his pretty looks, 107.
Puzzles the will, 397.
Pygmes are pygmine still, 398.
Pygmuy-body, fretted the, to deczy, 908.
Pyramid sare pyramids in vales, 398.
Pyrmids are pyramids in vales, 398.
Pyrrhic dance, 581.
        214.
Prologue or the posy of a ring, 207
Promethean fire, sparkle still the right, 133.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            Quaint and curious volume, 852
enamelled eyes, 494
Quality of mercy is not strained, 798, true.fixed and resting, 492
Quantum o' the wn, I waive the, 396
Quarrel, beware of entrance to a, 546 just, thrice armed that hath his, 796, sudden and quick in, 70
Quarrels, best advantages of others', 809,
Quarris rocks, and hills, 145
Quarry-slave, scourged to his dungeon, 308,
Quean, faunting extravagant, 131.
Queen, apparent, 413
Best, image of grood, 802
Mab hath been with you, 836.
o' the May, 327.
     heat, 900
Promiscuously applied, hands, 814.
Promise, broke no, served no private end, keep the word of, to our ear, 345 of celestial worth, there buds the, 398
Promised, I was, on a time, 938
Promises, fals most of where most it, 801.
Proofs of holy writ, confirmations strong as, 207.
Prop that doth sustain my house, 347
Proper study of mankind is man, 792.
stuff, O, 868
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            Be's, image of grood, 802
Mab hath been with you, 856.
o' the May, 327,
of the world and child of the skies, 588, Question, dreadful, asked that, 799, hurned, of despair, 399
that is the, to be or not to be, 297
Questionings, obstinate, of semse and outward things, 759.
Quickness, too much, ever to be taught, 804,
Questionings, obstinate, of semse and outward things, 759.
Quietus too much, ever to be taught, 804,
Quettiness, give me worship and, 541.
of thought, 797.
Quietus make with a bare bodkin, 297,
Quietus make with a bare collent purport, 755,
Quirks of blazoning pens, 722,
Quit this mortal frame, 298
Quiver's choice, devil hath not in his, 204,
Quote, grow immortal as they, 804.
        time to marry, 215.
Prophetic ray, tints to-inorrow with, 134 strain, 787
Prophets of the Future is the Past, best of, 793
Proportion, fair, curtailed of this, 938.
Proportion, fair, curtailed of this, 938.
Proportion, fair, curtailed of this, 938.
Proportions, eloquent, 736
Just beauties see in small, 729.
Propose, why don't the men, 214.
Prose or rhyme, unattempted yet in, 947.
Prose pect, every, pleases, 395.
of his soul, eye and, 637
Prospects brightening to the last, 687, distant, please us, 807.
Prospects brightening to the last, 687, distant, please us, 807.
Prosper, treased doth never, 812
Protest, lady doth, too much, 207,
Protest sings from the Sea, 403.
Prott, ever fair and never, 723.
his name, 593
                                    his name, 563
man's contumely, 297.
                                       of parts, 798.
philosophy, I ask not, 494.
science never taught his soul to stray,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               Race, a simple, 811
forget the human, 205
following Symme supplies another, 792, generous, lives to build not boast a, 822
rear my dusky, 257
Rack, leave not a, behind, 867 of a too easy chair, 724,
of this tough world, 346,
the value, 807.
Rage, impatiently doth, being stopped, 493, license and wanton, 539.
```

797. true before prove false again, 809.

Rage, no, like love to hatred turned, 207, of the vulture, 451.

strong without, 793.

Raggedness, looped and windowed, 494

Rain, a driving dashing, 493.
drops of, tell their beads in, 494, droppeth as the gentle, from heaven, 798.

in winter when the dismal, 493.
influence, ladies whose bright eyes, 786. it rainest every day, 944.
mist resembles the, 853.
patter of the, upon the roof, 97.
sunshine and, at once, 204.
sunshine follows the rain, 213.
the sweetest, 346.
the thirsty earth soaks up the, 494.
Rainbow, add another hue unto the, 726.
colors of the, live m the, 859.
to the storms of life, 134.
Raine in th' are from earth to skle, 489.
Raised a mortal to the skles, 772.
Kan, snow-white, on a grassy bank, 494.
Rampure's kill, artifical pride, 672
Random, shaft at, sent, 803.
strung at, orient pearis, 57,
word at, spoken, 803.
Raine is the gruines' stamp, 34
my offence is, it smells to heaven, 509
Raink is whe graines' as the significant of the guines' stamp, 34
my offence is, it smells to heaven, 500
Rainks and squadrons, 899
love levels all, 207.
Rain at well as thou, may an 111, 804.
Raip terraph, 394.
vool strung at 111, 804. mioonbeams play above their, 491.
Annt at well as thou, my an 1 11, 804.
Rapt veraph, 394.
out sting in thine eyes, 786
Rapture of repose, 933 ou the lonely shore, 607
to the dreary void, 810.
Raptures, no minstrel, swell for him, 503.
Rapture-smitten frame, 810.
Rare are solitary woes, woes cluster, 345.
as a dav hi June, what is 50, 424.
Beaumont, 939
Ben Jonson, 939.
Ben Jonson, 939.
neither fich nor, 815.
neither fich nor, 815.
Rathy of Christian charity, 335.
Rash, splenetic and, 723.
Rashly importunate, 335.
Rathe primiose that forsaken dies, 494.
Rattle his bones over the stones, 341 pleased with 81, 107.
war's, where iningles, 510
Rave recute and madden round the land,
855. Ravelled sleave of care, 883. Ravelled sleave of darkness, smoothing the, Raveiled Neave of care, 883.
Raveil down of darkness, smoothing the, 726 quoth the, nevermore, 853.
Ravens, he that doth the, feed, 784.
Ravens, he that doth the, feed, 787.
Ravens, he that doth the, feed, 787.
Ravshened; e.s., wheresoe'er I turn my, 807 mightingale, 495.
Ravs, binent, divine enchanting, 726.
Ray, bleauty's heavenly, 720.
beneath her steady, 491.
emits a brighter, 800
geem of purest, serene, 206 leavening, lingering star with, 288 prophetic, titus to-morrow with, 134.
temper whose unclouded, 427.
Rays, hide your dimunished, 427.
Rays, hide your dimunished, 427.
Rays, hide your dimunished, 828.
Raze out written troubles of the brain, 347.
Razor, sattre like a polished, keen, 806.
Razoros, cried, up and down, 954.
Razure of oblivion, 811.
Reach of ordmary men, above the, 807.
Read, he that runs may, 398.
in the eyes of others, 121.
to doubt or read to score, 307.
Real and apparent are the same, here, 310.
Realm, thu, this Enviand, 602. in the eyes of others, 127.

to doubt or read to scorn, 397
Real and apparent are the same, here, 310,
Realm, this, this England, 603, Realm above, constancy lives in, 316, pale, of shade, 397,
three, obey, 814,
whatever, to see, 248,
Reaper whose name is death, 376,
Rear the tender thought, 374.
Rea ward of a conquered woe, 3714.
Reason, confidence of, 797.

cool, 806,
discourse of, a beast that wants, 723,
fasat of, and flow of soul, 814, turn, the temperate will, 128, for my rhyme, 238
godilke, capability and, 808 men have lost their. 876
neither rhyme nor, 938
no other but a woman's, 723 noble and most sovereign, 808 ruling passion conquers, 799 ruling passion conquers, 799 smiles from, flow, 204.

Remembered kisses after death, dear as, 315 sorrows sweeten Joy, 346 sorrows and sweeten Joy and J Renown, examples of, all the fair, 348 Insect of, 810
Rent admits the winter's chill, 310 is sorrow and her ucome tears, 214 the envious Casca made, 876.
Repast, sweet, and calm repose, 232
Repent at lessure, married in haste, 214
Repentance, fierce, rears her snaky crest, Kepentance, fierce, rears her snaky crest, 799, to her lover, give, 336. Report me and my cause anight, 811 Repose, calm, sweet repast and, 332 hushed in grin, 108, my splitt drank, 416. rapture of, 372 Repressing ill, crowning good, 599. Reproof on her lip but a smile in her eye, 107 Reputation dies at every word, Siz.
the bubble, seeking, 721
Researches, deep, vex the brain with me. Researches, deep, vex the brain with me.

50,5
Resemblance, with those streams he no, hold, 720 me, with one, 120
Resentment glows, with one, 120
Reserve thy judgment, 615
Rendence, hidden, 720
Rendence, hidden, 720
Redge in very dust, 794

Reason the card, but passion is the gale, you why, theirs not to, 517 worse appear the better, make the, 724, would despair, love can hope where, 204. Reason's erring, splic, 489, whole pleasure, 815. Reasoned high, 808 Reasones will, Plato thou, 759 Reasons why we smile and sign, 209 Reasons why we smile and sign, 209 Receives, much, but nothing gives, 797. Recesses of a lowly spirit, 375. Reck the rede, may you better, 796. Reckless libertine, puffed and, 809. Reckonling, O weary, 248. Recken not his own rede, 809. Reclined, sighing lie, 816 Recollection, fond, presents them to view, 200 Resignation gently slopes the way, 687. Resisted, know not what 's, 784. Resistless eloquence, those ancient whose, Resistess cloquence, those ancient whose, and, and, and solder armed with, soc.
Resolved most indoor when best, age, once to be, once in doubt is, so, to ruin or rule the state, for.
Respect that makes calamity of so long life, 297. 297.

too much, upon the world, 803.
Rest, absence of occupation is not, 815 for weary polgrims found, 794. from troublous toyle, port of, 312. guit of fear disturb man's, 310. her soul, she 's dead, 399. perturbed spirit, 311. place of, where to choove their, 321. warrior taking his, lay, hie a, 900. Restive sloth finds down pillow hard, 816. Restless ecstasy, lie in, 321. Restorer, tired nature's sweet, sleep, 816. Restreine and kepen well thy tongue, 358. Rests and expaniates in a life to come, 801 Retired hill, apart sat on a, 506. lessure, add to these, 786 Retired hill, apart sat on a, 506. lessure, add to these, 786 Retirement, Plato's, 700 rural quiet friendship books, 214. short, urges sweet return, 814. Retreat, loop-holes of, 810 Retrement, Plato's, 700 rural quiet friendship books, 214. short, urges sweet return, 814. Retreats, loop-holes of, 810 Retreats, beauty dwells in deep, 206 Return, I thought that she bade inc, 241 retirement urges sweet, 814. to plague the inventor, 800. Revel, bids every passion or be still, 809 Revelly, 300 red, 810 rural ground of, by night, 511. Revels, mindight, fatry cives whose, 491 our, now are ended, 867 (Revenge, couched with, 330 feed my, 890 ranging for, Cæsar's spirit, 539 study of, 540. sweet is, especially to women, 167 Revenged sieges on murderers, gods hx, 90a. Revelude, 100, but thy good spirits, 111. Reverence, none so poor to do him, 876 Reverend signors, potent grave and, 135. Reverse of wrong mistook for right, 868 philosophy's, and health's decay, 801 Reward, though a late a sure, succeeds, 358 Rewards, fortune's buffets and, 112. Reverted, 914 mindight and 112 rure, 604 hash your city of Cologne, 934 has that write in, 807, turn o'er some idle, 817 unattempted yet in prose or, 647 Ribbon, give me but what this bound, 125 house for non one some old, 816 unattempted yet in prose or, 647 Ribbon, give me but what this bound, 125 house for no reason, neither, 936 one for, none for sense, 807 those that write in, 807, turn o'er some idle, 817 unattempted y Recollection, fond, presents them to view, 200
Record, weep to, and blush to give it in, 395. Recorded time, last syllable of, 752
Recorded time, last syllable of, 752
Recorded time, last syllable of, 752
Records a for or for ransports plast, 568 trivial fond, wipe a way all, 801
Red as a rose is she, 854.
celestial rosy, 203
making the green — one, 883.
red rose, my live's like a, 234.
Red, reck the, may you better, 756
recks not his own, 809,
ye tent it, 1, 805
Redness, pretty, in his lip, 145.
Redness, love times the shepherd's, 202.
Refines, how the style, 812
Reflection, remembrance and, how allied, 801. Refreshes in the breeze, warms in the sun Refreshes in the bases, of the second of the sky, the moon sweet, 491. Regret, wild with all, 315. Return, ancient solitary, 305. better to, in hell than serve in heaven, 799 of Chaos and old Night, 725. neither, nor rare, 815, not gaudy, 720, something, and strange, 860 tempts by making, not poor, 803 the treasure sweet the pleasure, 771. with fivity pounds a year, 688 with the spoils of time, 306 Richard, awe the soul of, 541 soul of, 568 Richer than all his tribe, 724. Riches, best, ignorance of wealth, 667 infinite, in a little room, 726 of heaven pawement, 802. neither, nor rare, 815 inninte, in a little from, 720 of heaven s pavement, 803.
Riddle of the world, glory jest and, 792.
Ride abroac, when he next doth, 962.
Rider, stead that knows his, 631
Rides in the whirtwind, 539.
upon the storm, 632.
Right by chance, fool must now and then be

```
Rights, know their, and dare maintain, 599-
Rill, sunshine broken in the, 348
Ring, bright gold, on her wand, 721-in the Christ that is to be, 752-out told shapes of foul disease, 752-out the darkness of the land, 752-out the old ring in the new, 754-out wild belis to the wild sky, 754-bow of a, 302
                              out wild bells to the wild sky, 752
poyy of a, 307
Ringlets, blowing the, from the braid, 721
Ripe and good one, a scholar and at, 733 and ripe, from hour to hour we, 791 Rise, created half to, and half to fall, 792 successive, fall successive and, 792 with the lark, 495
Rising world of waters, 407.
Rival in the wrong, cannot bear at, 799
Rived the koutty oaks, 631
River, Alph the sacred, 834.
at my garden's end, 122.
brook and, merct, 104
Dee, lived on the, 593
glideth at his own sweet will, 678 like the foam on the, 293 of his thoughts, ocean to the, 705
Khine doth wash your city of Cologne, 9554.
Kinne doth wash your city of cologies, 954.

Rivers run to seas, brooks make rivers, 493-shallow, to whose falls, 157.

Rivets, busy hammers closing, up, 540.

Rivillets dance their wayward round, 103.

Road, along a rough a weary, 45.

Fringing the dusty, with gold, 495.

Road, along a rough a weary, 45.

Fringing the dusty, with gold, 495.

Road, along a rough a weary, 45.

Fringing the dusty, with gold, 495.

Road, along a rough a weary, 45.

Fringing the dusty, with gold, 495.

Road, caseless, 037.

where 'tr', 428.

Road, caseless, 037.

Minister, 16, 072.

of waters, the, 772.

of waters, the, 772.

of waters, the, 772.

dew on his thin, 578.

of clouds, 493.

or clouds, 493.

voiled in a simple, best attire, 705.

Robes and firred gowns inde all, 8 12.

flaunting, of vin, 83.

Robin-redireast and the wren, 493.

tunes his throad, 495.

Role we of that will not enriches hun, 811.

Rock me to sleep, mother, 227.

shall fly from its firm base, 055.

Rock, desert, and ficting air, 837.

Role, or bend a knotted oak, 809.

Hirrite, of, 493.

Roll, chief is a, 780.

of empire might have swayed 26.

sylare the, and spoil the child, 108.

Role, the is a, 781.

Roll of thee, 417.

Rollin year child of thee, 417.

Rollin common land, 811.

Rollin common land, 811.

Rollin common land, 81.

Rollin common land, 875.

Rollin common land, 875.

Rollin common land, 875.

Rollin common land, 887.

Rollin common land, 875.

Rollin comm should shut and be a bud again, 179 summer's, 407
sweetest washed with dew, 204 that all are praising, 205
that lives its little hour, 309
that lives its little hour, 309
Roseate canopy, 404.
Rosebud garden of girls, 153 set with little wilful thorus, 721
Rosebuds filled with snow, 123 gather ye, while ye may, 754
Rosemary that 's for remembrance, 495.
```

```
Roses, beds of, I will make thee, 157.
full of sweet dayes and, 302.
in December, as soon seek, 806 scent of the, will hang round it still, 240 virgins are soft as the, they twine, 451.
Rosy red, celestial, 203
Rot and rot, from hour to hour we, 791.
Rotten at the heart, a goodly apple, 797.
Rough with black winds and storms, 632.
Rough-new them how we will, 793
Round and perfect as a star, 807
hoop's bewitching, 134.
the slight waist, 814.
travelled life's dull, 121
unvarnished tale, 745
           travelled life's dull, 121
unvarnished tale, 145
unwarnished tale, 145
unwarnished tale, 145
unwarnished tale, 145
unwarnished tale, 145
Romede with a sleep, our Intile life is, 867.
Rout on rout, 725
where meet a public, 231
Routed all his frost, thrue he, 771
Rub, ay there 's the, 297.
Rubes grew, asked ine where the, 134.
Rudder, rhyme the, is of verses, 807.
Rude am I in my speech, 145 forefathers of the hamlet, 305
Ruin beauteous, lay, lovely in death the, 794 man marks the earth with, 607 or to rule the state, 601.
systems into, hurled, 394 or to rule the state, 601, systems into, burled, 394 upon ruin, 725 Ruin's, stern, ploughshare, 463 Ruin's, stern, ploughshare, 463 Ruin's, stern, ploughshare, 463 Ruin's, stern, ploughshare, 463 Ruin's, stern, ploughshare, 465 ruin or to, the state, 721 of men entirely great, 805 ruin or to, the state, 670 Ruiler of the inverted year, 806 Ruines, never shows she, if she rules him, 215 Ruining by obeying nature's powers, 541 passion strong in death, 780. Ruing by obeying nature's powers, 541 passion strong in death, 780. Ruing by obeying in death, 780. Ruin should be opposed that at all I meet, 800 Ruin ruin, ea sort of, 714 Ruin, away, he who fights and, 540. he that, may read, 930 the great circuit, 810 the world away, thus, 671 Rupert of debate, 723 Ruin, 671 Ruiner of debate, 723 Ruin life, sequestered val. 61, 794 quiet friendship books, 114, sights alone but ruin sunind, 493 Ruish into the skies, 799 to glory or the grave, 513 Rushes, wanton, lay you down on the, 816 Rushing of the black, I hear the, 492. Rust, his good sword, 530 Rustic inordist, 300 Rustic inordist inord
       Sabbath appeared, smiled when a, 738, ordained the, he who, 347
Sable cloud turn forth her silver hining, 491 goddews, night, 491 weeds, no friends appear in, 312
Sabler tints of woe, 366.
Sabring fair listen where thou art sitting,
   Sabrina fair listen where thou art sitting, 85 Sacred head now wounded, 373 shade and solutide, 491 soul-moving poesy, 866, 362 Sacrifect, turn delight into a, 364 Sacrifect, our murder hath broke ope, 900 Sad as angels for the gnod mays san, 395 by fits by starts 't was wild, 773 impious in a good man to be, 348 sincertify, wrought in a, 736. vicusstudes of things, 559, when other's grief is fied, 312 words of tongue or pen, of all, 559. Sadder and a wiser man, 860. Saddest of the year, the melancholy days, 466
       56.

Sadness, feeling of, and longing, 813, with no timpleasing, mixed, 857

Safe and vould your trust is, since, 795

Safety, flower, out of nettle danger, 671.

Sage advices, how monie lengthened, 847, thought as, a felt as a man, 737.

Sages have seen in thy face, charms, 738 in all times assert, 347

of ancient time 860

Said, little, is soonest mended, 802.
       of ancient time 806
Said, hittle, is soonest mended, 803.
much may be, on both sides, 803.
much may be, on both sides, 803.
diversely we, on life's vast ocean, 792.
quiet, 1s as a noiseless wing, 685.
set every threadbare, 620
white and rustling, 626
Sailor, drunken, on a mast, 723.
           Sailor, drunken, on a mast, 722
Sails, threaden, 631.
```

```
Saint, by, by savage and by sage, 370 in crape twice a saint in lawn, 812 it, sinner it or, 805. provoke a, 712 seem a, play the devil, 396. Sainty chastity, so dear to heaven is, 796. Sainty show, falsehood under, 396. Saints above, falsehood under, 396. Saints above, men below and, 202, his soul is with the, I trust, 393. In your injuries, 720. Saints above, in your injuries, 720. Saints above, in your injuries, 720. Saintship, such, to behold, 820. Sait, things of, a seller's praise to, 810. Sait, things of, a seller's praise to, 810. Sait, things of, a seller's praise to, 810. Sait, petre, villamous, 900. Saive, 191. Sait, 191
                Sands and shores and desert widernesses, $90.
of time, footprints in the, 770, yellow, come unto these, $60.
Sans teeth sans eyes sans taste sans everything, 711
Sapphire blace, 939
Sapphires, hving, firmament glowed with,
            Sapphires, living, firmament glowed with, 433
Sappho, burning, 380
Satair exalted sat 724 finds some mischief still, 108 treinbles when he sees, 398 wiser than of yore, 804
Satthel, whining school-boy with his, 711
Sattre is my weapon, 806 let, be my song, 806 like a poished razor kein, 806 or sense can Sporus feel, 906
Satisfed, well paid that 's well, 802
Satisfed, well paid that 's well, 802
Saturday and Monday, day that comes betwirt, 198
Saucy doubts and fears, 800
Savage, musc hath charms to yoothe a, 809.
                    Savage, music hath charms to soothe a, 809.
Save me from the candid friend, 121
Savage, music hath charms to soothe a, 809.
Save me from the candid friend, 121
Saviour's tung with traitorous kiss, 795.
Saviour's birth is celebrated, 997.
Saws of books, all, 80r
wise, and nodern instances, 711
Say I did it, thou canst not, 868 not good night, 304
Say'st an undisputed thing, 485.
Sayings of philosophers, 347
Says, never, a foolish thing, 490
Scabbard, sowrd glued to 1119, 541
Scan, gently, your brother man, 784 presume not Cod to, 792.
Scandal in disgrusse, praise undeserved, 811.
Scant this breathing courtesy, 121.
Scands, immortal, fly on eagle's wings, 811.
Scant this breathing courtesy, 121.
Scant, jests at, that never felt a wound, 345.
Scatter all her spices on the stream, 632 plenty o'er a smiling land, 305
Scene, cunning of the, 804 last, of all, 711
of man, expotiate o'er all this, 792
Scenes, gay gilded, and shining prospects, 877 new, of woe, 539
of my childhood, 100
Scenes, gay graced, and siming prospects, 877
new, of woe, 539
of my childhood, 100
Scent, amber, of odorous perfunc, 631 of the roses will hang round it still, 240
the morning air, methinks I, 489, weed whose, the fair annovs, 548.
Scents the evening gale, 385
Sceptre and crown must tumble down, 301
barren, in my gripe, 345, leaden, might stretches forth her, 491 shows the force of temporal power, 798 Sceptred pall, gorgeous Tragedy in, 787 sway, mercy is above this, 798
sway, mercy is above this, 798
Scenenes, best-laid, o' mice and men, 468
Scholar, he was a, and a ripe and good one, 723.
    733.
School, creeping uswillingly to, 711
lover of the good old, 795.
School-boy whining, with his satche, 711.
with his satchel in his hand, 207.
School-boy's tale, the wonder of an hour,
School-boys tale, the wonder of an hour,
702.
School-boys, frusk away like, 108.
School-days, in my, 802
Schools, old maxim in the, 820.
Schools, old maxim in the, 820.
Science, falr, frowned not on his humble birth, 307.
glare of Islse, 737
hardest, to forget, 248
his views enlarges, 541.
Lawless, of our law, 820
proud, never taught his soul to stray, 399-star-eyed, 397.
```

```
Science, though so, fairly worth the seven, 798. Scoff, fools who came to, 688. Scodding the conjugal petard, 225. Scode of Stratford-atte-Bowe, 696. Scoops out an empire, 632. Scoops out an empire, 632.
scote or Stratiord-atte-Bowe, 696.
Scoops out an empire, 692.
Scorn delights, 812.
is bought with groans, 204.
laugh a siege to, 540.
laugh a siege to, 540.
laugh a siege to, 540.
In the siege to, 540.
In thrice in spite of, 346.
Inter of, 725.
Scorned by the world, 802.
Scornful jest, most bitter is a, 345.
Scorning base degrees, 199.
Cold-pausing Caution a lesson, 108.
Scorns of time, whips and, 297.
Scotia's, old, grandeur, 366
Scots wha hae wi' Wallace bled, 573.
Scourge, iron, and torturing hour, 345
Scraps of learning, dote on, 804.
Screw your courage to the sticking place, 802.
Scripture authentic uncorrupt by man, 489.
           Scripture authentic uncorrupt by man, 489
elder, with by God's own hand, 489, devi can cite, 797,
with a piece of, 396,
Scruple of her excellence, smallest, 797
Scrupulous good man, dubious is such a,
Scruple of her excellence, smallest, 797
Scruplous good man, dubious is such a,
227
Scuptor's soul hath seized, forms the, 867
Scun that rises when the nation boils, 813
Sea, a wet theet and a flowing, 626 full, affoat on such a, 802
furrowed, 631, glad waters of the dark blue, 626
I'm on the, 625
immortal, which brought us hither, 759, inviolate, compassed by the, 622.
'a thief, 489
loved the great, more and more, 625.
Marathon looks on the, 520.
my sterious union with its native, 631.
of glory, 321
of pines, silent, 376
of troubles, take arms against a, 297.
one as the, 668.
one foot in, and one on shore, 271.
ooze and bottom of the, 632.
our heritage the, 626.
plants his footsteps in the, 632
Proteus rising from the, 403
robs the vast, 489,
rough rude, not all the water in the, 722.
set in the silver, precious stone, 603.
slient, 855.
society by the deep, 607
           rough rude, not all the water in the, 722. set in the silver, precious stone, 603. silent, 855. society by the deep, 607 summer, unruffed as a, 635. sunless, 6wn to a, 834. the dreary, now flows between, 116. the sea the open sea, 625. voiceful, swelling of the, 822 wave o' the, I wish you a, 134. whether in, or fire, 809. wind of the western, 81. Sea-change, suffer a, 809. Seal, wind of the western, 81. Sea-change, suffer a, 809. Seal with a righteous kirs, 809. Seal with a righteous kirs, 809. Seals of love but sealed in vain, 203 that close the pestilence, 582. Sea-mad's music, 839. Sear, fallen into the, the yellow leaf, 704. Search not his bottom, survey his shore, 720 nothing so hard but, will find, 800. patient, and vigil long, 809. Seas, dangers of the, 632. gaing dry, till a' the, 234. gaing dry, till a' the, 234. gaing dry, till a' the, 234. gaing rishmus twixt two boundless, 723.
                 guard our native, 609.
narrow isthmus 'twixt two boundless, 793 rivers run to, 495
rough with black winds, 632.
the multitudinous, incarnadine, 883.
twenty, rich in such a jewel as, 215, 5200, ever 'ganst that, comes, 307.
many things by, seasoned are, 496.
Seasons, all, and their change, 206.
all, for thine own O Death, 308.
justice, when mercy, 798.
return with the year, 495.
Seat in some poetic nook, O for a, 489.
Nature from her, gave signs of woe, 899.
of Mars, this, 603.
this castle hath a pleasant, 720
what a fair, hath he, 808
Seats beneath the shade, 686.
Seats beneath the shade, 686.
Seats the shade, 686.
Sext served to 100 to 1
```

```
See her was to love her, #33, $42.

may I be there to, $62.

oursel's as there see us, $46

the right and I approve it too, 395.
Seed time and harvest, $493.
Seeing, adds a precious, to the eye, 203.
If eyes were made for, $61.
Seek in every crampy but the right, 802.
roses in December ice in June, 806 virtue first, 803.
Seem a saint, play the devil, 396
Seeming estranged, even God's providence, 336.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                Setter-up and puller-down of Kings, prous, 93.

Setting in his western skies, behold him, 49a.

I haste now to my, 346.

Seven ages, his acts being, 711.

we are, 88.

years pith, these arms of mine had, 145.

Several praise bestows on several parts, 721.

Severe, from lively to, 912.

Severe, Avon to the, 939.

Sex, spurts can either, assume, 868.

to the last, 200.

whose presence civilizes ours, 558.

Sexton toiled the bell, 954.

Shackles fall, they touch our country and their, 594.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       Setter-up and puller-down of kings, proud,
Seeming estranged, even God's provided as 335.

seeming estranged, even God's provided as 335.

evil, still educing good from, 418 otherwise, begulle thing I am by, 347.

Seems, I know not, 935.

to shake the spheres 771.

Seen better days, we have, 347.

to be loved needs only to be, 398 once have, ne'er will, again, 801.

to be hated needs but to be, 395.

Sees God in clouds, 399.

what he foresaw, 549.

with equal eye, 394.

Seehing brains, lovers have such, 806.

Self, concentred all in, the wretch, 563.

dearer than, 415.

smote the chord of, 255.

to thine own, be true, 797.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     their, 504.
Shade, boundless contiguity of, 593
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   by the quivering aspen made, checkered, dancing in the, 785
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   dear departed, 388
more welcome, 910
one solid roof of, 720, pale realms of, 307
pleasing, ah happy hills ah, 108 quivering, 672.
scats beneath the, 686
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     seats beneath the, 686 sitting in a pleasant, 480
sport with Amaryllis in the, 203 this sacred, and solitude, 491 unperceived softcunig into shade, 447
variable as the, 509
Shades and wanton winds, whispers of, 494
Etrurian, high overarched, 494
       to thine own, be true, 797
Self-approving hour whole years outweighs,
Self-approving hour whole years outweighs, one, 781
Self-slaughter, canon 'gainst, 311
Self-swithdrawn into a boundless depth, 867
Seller's praise to things of sale, 810.
Sempronius, we'll do more, 802
Senate at his heck, Cesar with a, 781.
can a Roman, long debate, 570
Cato gives his little, laws, 910.
Cato gives his little, laws, 900.
Senates, applause of listening, to command, 306.
Senators, green-robed. of michty model.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     evening, pgin overarened, 494, evening, prevail, 376 happy walks and, 321 of night were falling fast, 777, of night, with him fled the, 490 Shadow, cooling, of a stately elim, 493, feared of man, 113 hence horrible, 868 in the situ feet my engage.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                hence hormbic, 868
m the sun, see, my, 938 inte is but a walking, 792 wan and, float double, 493 Shadow, beckoming, dire, 890 come like, so depart, 808 coming events cast their, before, 574 tatal, that walk by us sult, 791 from the fiftul firelight, 273 jagged, of mossy leafless boughs, 792 lengthening as the supor rise, 490 meet of destiny, 603 not substantial things, 901 to-night have struck more terror, 868
Shady Leaves of destiny, weet, 814
Shaft at random sent, many a, 803 few three, thy, 493.
       Senators, green-robed, of mighty woods,
     Senators, green-tobed, of mighty woods, 404.
Senior's mask, shallow brain behind a, 724.
Sensations tweet felt in the blood, 603.
Sense, devoid of, and motion, 794.
echo to the, sound must seem an, 866.
from thought divide, 801.
from thought divide, 802.
grateful, of sweetness near, 807.
if all want, 364.
joys of, 815.
men of, play the fool because they re, 798.
  men of, play the fool because they re, 798 of death most in apprehension, 310 of your great merit, 121 one for, and one for rhyme, 807 o'erstrung by pang; intense, every, 809 questionings of, and outward things, 759 satire or, can Sporus feel, 509 sober, lawyers have more, 809 song charms the, 808 to fix the heart, 200 want of, want of decency is, 805. Senses, recommends itself unto our gentle, 720 flew thrice, thy, 492, that made him dic, 134
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     when I had lost one, 802
when I had lost one, 802
winged the, his own feather, 800
Shafts, thy fatal, uncerning move, 203
Shake hands with a king upon his throne,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  Shake hands with a king upon his thron 603 my fell purpose, 900 the spheres, seems to, 771 thy gory locks at me, never, 868 Shakespeare make room for Spenser, 939 sweetest, Fancy's child, 780 tongue that, spake, 602 Shaking, fruit that can fall without, 205 Shaking, fruit that can fall without, 805 spirit of judgment, 810 wit, 866
     720 steep my, in forgetfulness, 762 would have qualled, 900.
Sensibility, wanting, 782.
Sensible to feeling as to sight, 882
       Sent to my account, 310.
Sentence is for open war, my, 539
Sentunel stars set their watch in the sky, spirit of judgment, 810
wit, 866
Shallows, bound in, and in miseries, 802.
Shame, an erring sister's, 267 deed of, beneath our feet, 309 her blush of maid, 494
honor and, from no condition, 781, neighbor's, loudly publishing, 811
O, where is thy blush, 395, that startled virgins feet, 105
the devil, tell truth and, 396
Shames, a thousand mnocent, 723
Shank, shrink, 711
Shape, air and harmony of, 721 assume a pleasing, 396
no bigger than an agate-stone in, 836
Shapes, calling, and beckoning shadows, 830 of foul disease, ring out old, 752, that come not at an earthly call, 868.
Shaping fantasies, 806
Share the good man's smile, 688.
Shaping fantasies, 806
Share and sulphurous bolt, 812, misery, 809
     Semmel stars set their watch 529
Sepulchered in such pomp, 906.
Sepulchre, soldier's, 513
Sequestered stag, a poor, 496.
vale of life, cool, 306
vale of rural life, 794.
Seraph Abdiel fathful lound, 387
     Seraph Abdiel faithful found, 387
raph, 394
Seraphs, Mammon wins where, despair, 215
Seraphs wings of ecstasy, 939
Serene, gem of purest ray, 306, of heaven, breaks the, 493
Serenels, full the epicure would say, 1013
Serenes, inspirits and, man's heart, 800
Sergeant, this fell, death, 300
Sergeant, this fell, death, 300
Sermon, a verse may find him who a, flies,
       Sermon, a verse may must make and a 364
Sermons in stones, 489
Sermons inke Aaron's, 799 trail of the, is over them all, 396
Serpent; stooth, how sharper than a, 348
Servant of God well done, 395.
Serve in heaven, better to reign in hell than,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     Sharp and sulphurous boit, 813.

misery, Solarper than a serpent's tooth, how, 348.

Shatter, you may, the vase if you will, 24a.

She, that not impossible, 152,
the cruci'st, alive, 122.
unexpressive, 134.

Shears abhorred, blind fury with, 812.

Sheathed their swords for lack of arguinent, 799-
1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-1799-
1
```

503 Shed their selectest influence, 200 Sheep, how that his, shulde lyve, 800.

my teeth on edge, 807

```
Sheep, this noble ensample to his, he gaf, 697
Sheer o'er the crystal battlements, 725
Sheet, standard, forever float that, 592 wet, and a flowing sea, 6.26
Shell, convolutions of a smooth-hpped, 631
Shell, convolutions of a smooth-hpped, 631
solid of muse slumbers in the, 232
solid of muse slumbers in the, 232
star that bids the, fold, 491
Shepherd's reed, low tunes the, 202 tongue, truth in every, 158 tongue, 158
ton
              Shield, such gleams as from thy posterior, 599
Sinfts, pous frauds and holy, 396
Sinfts, pous frauds and Mary on a, 205
Sinne, thecutual, decential flow, 399
Sinnes agood deed in a manghity world, 797
Sinnes agood deed in a manghity world, 797
Sinnes and state of the state of t
       every day brings a, 746

olds as a painted, upon a painted ocean, 855

state by, of Tarsus, 631

Ships, hearts of oak are our, 631 hke, they steer their courses, 867 that bave gone down, like, 264.

Shirt, happy man's without a, 347 principles offener changed than, 347 song of the, sang the, 314, 337
Shiver, when thou'rt named, men, 310
Shoal, hank and, of thor, 322
Shoals, depths and, of honor, 322
Shoaks, depths and, of honor, 325
Shoaks that flesh is herr to, 297
Shoak bank flesh is herr to, 297
Shoak hank flesh is herr to, 297
Shoak bank flesh is herr to, 297
Shoak bank flesh is herr to, 297
Shoak shoak star, 379
Shoaks that flesh is herr to, 297
Shoak shoak star, 379
Shoak star flesh is herr to, 297
Shoak shoak star, 341
Shoet, 371
Shoet, 372
Lach the young de a how to, 214
Shooting stars attend the, 144
Shore, controls tops with the, 507 fast by the matter, 402 landing on some silent, to the 15, 399 Left the ribenty on the, 490
my hoat is on the, 490
my hoat is on the, 900
my nature, 1485 oce the waters blue, 138 of memory, silent, 801.
my notes on the 30% my nature, 1 des oct the waters blue, 38 of memory, silent, 801, rapture on the lone by, 607 the dull sunc, 625 unhappy folks on, 630 usurps lite, 632 where mud sirrives, if there be a, 794 wild and willowed, along thy 404 Shortes, undreamed, unpathed waters, 802 Short and far between, 500 and simple annals of the poor, 300 and simple annals of the poor, 300 arter ment triges sweet return, 814 Shot forth per ular graces, 303 heard round the world, int of the, 589 min, arrow of the house, 121 Shoulders the senting the house, 122 Shoulders the senting the sent them, 145 Shoures, Aprille with his, 605 Shout that fore hell's concave, 725 Shout that fore hell's concave, 725 Shoved and tongs together belongs, 200. Show flecting, this world is all a, 300 his eyes and grace to his heart, 868 midnight dances and the public, 312 simple, harbors trakon in his, 724 that within which prise th, 305 Showed, bowers, fragrance after, 200 housed, suck the, 404 sweetest, will ne'er make growagain, 138 Shows, cening comment on the, meek nature's, 401 that for oblivion take their birth, 401 Shrie, a solitary, 632 Shrie, of the mighty can it be, 581
                     Shrink, a solitary, 632
Shrink of the mighty can it be, 581
Shrink of the mighty can it be, 581
Shrink, flung odors from the spicy, 200
Shrink, flung odors from the spicy, 200
Shrink and strange contortions of his face,
              Shrifted off this mortal coil, 297
Shuffled off this mortal coil, 297
Shuffled off this mortal coil, 297
Shun, hat to, 808
Shun the gaze of other men, 205
Shut the door say 1 m sick, 805
the gates of mercy on mankind, 306.
Sick, say 1 m, 1 m dead, 805
Sicken, appetite may, and so die, 808
Sicken doer with the pale cast of thought, 207
                     Sickness, love is a full of woes, 136.
Sick exen, with his, 276.
Sick, twist south and south-west, 945
virtue's, fullings leaned to, 688
Side-long looks of love, bashful virgin's, 687.
```

Side-long maid, kiss matched from, 672.
Sides, laughter holding both his, 765 much may be said on both, 803.
of my linent, spur to prick the, 798
unied, houseless heads and, 494.
Siege, laugh a, to scorn, 540.
Sigh no more ladies, 138, 737.
passing tribute of a, 306
perhaps't twill cost a, a tear, 304 the absent claims, 801 to those who love me, 202
yet feel no pan, 816.
Sighed and looked and ughed again, 772 and looked unuterable things, 204 at the sound of a knell, 789.
for his country he, 597
for mail her caves, hell, 310 to many, loved but one, 134.
Sighing, farewell goes out, 792.
like furnace, the lover, 711.
through all her works, 899
Sighs and tears, to love entry, 112.
for harmony and grace, 814
the west-wind's summer, 719 world of, for my pams, 145.
Sight, charms strike the, 203.
entrancing, O the, 599
faints into dimness, 720 gleamed upon my, 128
keen discriminating, 806 loved at first, none loved but, 203 of means makes ill deeds done, 815 of that immortal sea, 729 of vernal bloom, 407, portentous, 305
space and space, 808
spk.ndid, to sec, 725
Sights, nor rural, alone but rural sounds, 493such, as youthful poets dream, 786
Sign of gratulation, earth gave, 309
Signet sage, pressed his, 670
Signifying inothing, 792
Signiors, most potent grave and reverend, 201. Significant and budge, 724
Signifying nothing, 792.
Signifying nothing, 793.
Indicate accompanied, 413 and eternal sleep, 311
curvous tongues, 322
expressive, 478
footr-child of, and slow Time, 718.
in love bewrays more woe, 204, parted in, and tears, 244
tenable in your, 815 was pieased, 433
where-of-er 1 go, 625
wings of, 726
Silent ingers point to heaven, 396.
in a last embrace, 255 man can prize, who the, 724
maniliness of grief, 600 prayer, her eyes are homes of, 399 sea of pines, 376
Short, of memory, 807
Short, of memory, 807
Short, of of significant for the fabric rove, 493 steal away, 816
silently as a dream the fabric rove, 493 silently as a dream the fabri darmig, — 19 pride that — 940 faunting robes of, 813
good man's, 95
I know it is 4, for me to sit and grin, 323, quantum o' the, I waive the, 350 to covet honor, fit ib e 4, 811.
what, dipped me in ink, 805 who tell us love can die, they, 206 Sincerity, bashful, and comely love, 204 wrought in a sad, 75,
Sinews bought and sold, 594
buffet it with lusty, 677 of the new-born babe, soft as, 330 slacken with the firght, 725, stiffen the, 503,
Sing because I must. I do but, 807 more safe I, with mortal voice, 348 awan-like let me, and die, 581

```
Singing forever, as they shine, 376.
Single blessedness, 495.
instances, wilderness of, 81c.
life, fie upon this, 232.
talent well employed, 395.
Sings yet does so wail, 495.
Sinking in thy last long sleep, 78.
Sinks with bubbing groan, 607.
Sinner it or saint it, 805.
of his memory, made such a, 797.
Sins, commit the oldest, the newest ways, 305.
Sins, commit the oldest, the newset ways, 395.
Sins, commit the oldest, the newset ways, 395.
Sins hill delight the more, if, 399.
Sinc hequesthed by bleeding, to son, 583 Sires, bequeathed by bleeding, to son, 583 Sires, green graves of your, 525.
Sister's print come away, 395.
Sister's, erring, shame, 297.
Sister's, erring, shame, 297.
Sit attentive to his own applause, 910.
here will we, 775.
studious let me, 806.
Sitting in a pleasant shade, 480.
Six hundred pounds a year, 121.
Sixpence, give thee, 1 will see thee damned first, 953.
Skies, child of the, 488.
commencing with the, 100ks, 786.
common people of the, 124.
milky baldric of the, 599.
oddr of the, 204.
raised a mortal to the, 772.
rush into the, 799.
odor of the, 204
raised a mortal to the, 772.
rush into the, 799.
son of parents passed into the, 93,
starry, cloudless climes and, 130.
sunny as her, 721.
watcher of the, 805
western, setting in his, 490
Skill, barb'rous, adorning but a, 795 simple truth his utnost, 736 in arguing, the parson owned his, 688.
Skilled in gestic lore, 92
Skims along the main, 806.
Skill whiter than snow, 211.
Skirt the eternal frost, flowers that, 377.
Sky, admitted to that equal, 399 banner in the, 620
blue ethercal, 376
canopied by the blue, 765 charm from the, seems to hallow it, 110, charm non any 2008.

207

did never melt into his heart, 490 fated, gives us free scope, 793 feathered minstrel of the, 210 flushing round a summer, 83r forehead of the morning, flames in the, forehead of the morning, manage of the page of the morning of the Shancer whose edge is sharper than the sword, Bit Slaughter, wade through, to a throne, 306 Slaughterous thoughts, familiar to my, 900 Slave, born to be a, 601 I would not have a, to till my ground,
    I would not have a, to till my ground, 594. of life, thought's the, 792 passion's, man that's not, 112 to no sect, 808
to thousands, has been, 811
Slavery or death, 570.
Slaves, Britons never will be, 576 cannot breathe in England, 594-mcchance, with greasy aprons, 722-that crawl where monarchs lead, 602.
Sleave, ravelled, of care, 883
Sleep, a king in, but waking no such matter, 240 ep, a king in, but waking no such mat 240
baliny, Nature's sweet restorer, 816 birth is but a, and a forgetting, 758 care-charming, 816
care-charm
                                                                   in duil cold marole, 321 is a death, strong, 857 it is a gentle thing, 857 Macbeth does murder, 883 my little one sleep my pretty one, 81. nature's soft nurse, 762 no more, methought I heard a voice cry, 800.
                                                              no more, methodgit I head 883 now I lay me down to, 107
of death, in that, 297.
perchance to dream, 297.
                                                                   rock me to, mother, 222 rounded with a, our little life is. 867.
```

```
Sleep, silence and eternal, 311.
sinking in thy last long, 78
softly he and sweetly, 794
some must, some must watch, 671.
                                 that knits up the ravelled sleave of care, 883 that knows not breaking, 530
the friend of wee, 816.
the innocent, 863
third of life is passed in, 310 wake and, difference betwirt, 876 was aery-light, 490
Sleeping spirit, one sound doth wake the.
  Steeping spirit, one sound down wake the.

79.5

Sleeple's themselves, 807.

Sleet, iron, of arrowy shower, 540.

Slepen at the nyght with open eye, 695.

Slew the slain, thrice be, 771.

Slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, 297.

Slippered pantaloon, lean and, 711.

Slippered pantaloon, lean and, 711.
Slupiers (alsely thrust upon contrary feet, 723.

Slippery pla. e, he that stands upon a, 798

Slips, greyhounds 11 the, stand like, 503

Sliss the thin-spun life, 8 a.

Slogardle, May wo have no, a-night, 402,

Sloth, restive, finds down pillow hard, 810

Slovenly unhandsome corne, 500

Slow unmoving finger, pon this 725

Slumber, I must, again, 815 lie will land, hu-h uny dear, 76

Slumber's chain has bound me, 318

Slumbering ages, wakens the, 812

Slumbers in the shell, the soul of mus C, 213 light, pleasing dreams and, 816.

Soul is dead that, 769

Smalle do noyance or unrest, 831

Small beer, chronicle, 723

Latin and less Greek, 505, of all that human hearts endure, 807 proportions, just beauties see in, 729

sands the mountain, 815, service is true veryore while it lasts, 89

though it, appear, 815.
                             though it, appear, 815.
vices do appear through tattered clothes,
  Smaller, these have, still to hite 'ein, 496.
Smaller, these have, still to hite 'ein, 496.
Smaller, these mainting many smalls, and butter, they always, 107 sweet, only the actions of the just, 301 Smells to heaven, 900
wooingly, the heaven's breath, 720
Smels, throw her sweete, al arownd, 494
Smile and be a villain, 722 from partial beauty won, 795 ghashly, death grunned horrible a, 899 in her eye, 197
in pain, frown at pleasure, 799 on her lips and a tear in her eye, 176.
pendulum betwitt a, and tear, 792 reasons why we, and sigh, 309 share the good man's, 688 social, 321
                             share the good man's, 668 social, 232 tear may be followed by a, 464 that glowed celestial rosy red, 203 that was childlike and bland, 987 to those who hate, 982 vain tribute of a, 811 vain tribute of a, sti
we would aspire to, 321
when all around thee weep, 78
Smiled when a Sabbath appeared, 78
Smiles at the drawn dagger, the soul, 759 eternal, his emptines betray, 910 from reason flow, 204, of Joy the texts of wee, 399 of other maideus, her frowns fairer than,
                               the light of, 743
the tears of boyhood s years, 318, welcome ever, 792 welcome ever, 702
welcome ever, 702
welcome ever, 702
Smiling at grief, 251
beyond the, and the weeping, 296
Sinth Stand with his hammer, 722
Sinoke, I knew by the, that 30 gracefully curled, 298
more, than fire, 553
tobacco, thus think and, 814.
Smokes along the sounding plain, 493
Sinooth and steadfast mind, 721.
as monumental alabaster, 721
at a distance rough at hand, 204 dark pools of deeper thought, 298, mins the water where the brook is deep, 724.
      174. the ice, 726
Smoothing the raven down of darkness, 726
Smooth-lipped shell, convolutions of a, 631.
Smoothness, the torrent's, ere it dash below,
```

Smote the chord of self, 255. Snall, creeping like, 711

```
Snalles, her pretty feet like, did creep, 721
Snake, like a wounded, drags, 806
Snaky crest, fierce Repentance rears her, 799.
Snapper-up of unconsidered trifles, 724
Sneer, teach the rest to, without sneering,
          Snore upon the flut, weariness can, 816 Snow, curded by the frost from purest, 49 diadem of, 493 diven, whiter than the, 708 hide those lails of, 65, kindle fire with, 203 rosebuds filled with, 123 shall be their winding-sheet, 513, wallow naked in December, 340 whiter skin of hers than, 721 Snow-falls in the river, 848 Snow-fakes, a weapon still as, fall, 604.
          Snow-fall in the river, 848
Snow-fakes, a weapon still as, fall, 604
Snow fwithin the very fame of love, 271
Snuff-box. of amber, justly vain, 799
Snug little island. 602
Soap, washing his hands with invivible, 724
Soar but never roun, wise that, 474
Sober coloring, take a, 759 sense, lawyers have more, 809, state, 704 sense, lawyers have more, 809.

sense, lawyers have more, 809.

Sobers, drinking largely, us again, 805

Society by the deep sea, 627.

Is rude to this delicous solitude, 719

solider of, sweet her of life, 120 solitude is sometimest best, 814

where none intrudes, 607

Society's chief joys, weed unfriendly to, 558

Sock, Joisson's learned, 780

Sock, Joisson's learned, 780

Soft as her clime, 727

eyes looked love, 511.

Is the strain when zephyr blows, 806

Lydian airs, lap me in, 786.

Soften rocks or bend a knotted oak, 859.

Softening into shade, shade unjerceixed,
Soften rocks or bend a knotted onk, 839.
Softening into shade, shade unjercen.cd,
437.
Softly bodied forth, 869
lie and sweetly sleep, 794
Softness and sweet stractive grace, 711 heart whose, harmonized the whole, 133
Soil, freedom's, hencath our feet, 992 inortal, plant that grows on 812
where first they trod, 587
Soiled with all ignoble use, 797
Solace of his woes, toil the, 5 9
Solar walk or milky way, far as the, 393
Solder of vociety, sweet ner of life, 120
Solder of vociety, sweet ner of life, 120
Solder of strange oathe, 711
Soldier's sepulchie, turf shall be a, 513
Soldiers bore dead boutes by, 506 substance of ten thousand, 868
Sol judge of truth, 792
Solemn fop st, inficant and budge, 724
Solitary shines, one simile that, 877 shriek, 632
wander, there, 813
way, through Eden took their, 321
Solitude, bills of, that inward eye the, 464 delicious, society is rude to this, 710 how prassing sweet is, 120 makes a, and calls it peace, 541
musing in, 867
sometimes is best society 814
       how passing sweet is, 120
makes a, and calls it peace, 541
musing in, 857
sometimes is best society 814
where are the charits, 738 where we are least alone, 813
Somebody to hew and lanck, 507
Something, a, light as air, 264 after death, dread of, 207 better than his dog, 255 dangerous, have I in mie, 723
'tis, nothing, 811.
rich and strange, 859
Sometimes counsel take sometimes tea, 814
Son, bequeathed by bleeding are to, 582 of parents passed into the skies, 93
Song bright names will hallow, 512.
burden of his, 816
hurden of my, 141
charins the sense, 808 govern thou my, Urania, 807 kt sattre he my, 866
moralize my, 670.
needless Alexandrine ends the, 866
nightingale's, in the grove, 737
no sorrow in thy, 472 of the shirt, sang the, 314, 437.
rounded fitness of his, 56.
still ali my, shall be 373.
to the brave old oak, 454,
what they teach in, 800
whose breast may lead to death, 539.
Sonne, up rose the, and Emelle, 400.
Sonnesteer, starved hackney, 812.
Sonone, up rose the, and Emelle, 400.
Sonnesteer, starved hackney, 812.
Sonones metal blowing martial sounds, 725.
Sons, mothers, bloody crowns of, 541
```

```
ons of Bellal flown with insolence, 558, of reason valor liberty and virtue, $12 of the morning, brightest and best of
of the morning, unganess.

397

Soon as the evening shades prevail, 376
Soonner lost and won, 215,
Soothe a savage breast, 800,
distraction and almost despair, 800,
distraction and almost despair, 800,
soothed his soul to pleasures, soon he, 772,
with the sound, 771.
Sore labor's bath, 893
Sorrow, anvil mito, my heart is as an, 890, bread in, ate, who me'er his, 348,
but more closely tied, 264, calls no time that 's gone, 346
crazy, 310
                                               calls no time that 's gone, 340-crary, 310
earth has no. Heaven cannot heal, 348 fade, sin could blight or, 107 fore-speat night of, 193 give, words, 312
goiden, wear a, 347,
hang, care will kill a cat, 876
leart hath scaped this, 271.
her rent is -74.
                keenest wind, 398
      keemest wind, 398
Sorrowing gneth n, 347
Sorrows come not single spices, 345,
there loud sit, 345,
of a poor old in in pity the, 346, remembered sweeten joy, 346
transient 1-8
Sort, a lazy folloing, 724
Sots, what can cunoble, 781
Soul bruised with adversity, 345 cement of the, friendship mysterious, cement of the, friending my 120 city of the, Rome, 720 condense thy, 726
crowd not on my, 668 disturbance of, through no, 797 drew my whole, through my in eloquence the (charms), 808 teloquence the (charms), 808 eye and prospect of his, 807, hery, 908 flow of, feast of reason and, 814, genial current of the, 900 grapple them to thy, 121, happy, that all the way to heaven, $46, harrow up thy, 725, had been so, 1, brith, and, 790, hides a dark, and foul thoughts, 796, is clead that slumbers, 799, is form and doth the hody make, 730, is in arms, eager for the fray, 541 is wanting there, 303, is with the saints I trust, 539, linned, 390, li is with the saints I trust, 539.

linned, 300
linned, 300
listened intensely, his very, 631, measured by my, 808,
meeting, 786
merit wins the, 203
most offending, allye, 811 of goodness in things evil, 802, of harmony, hidden, 786
of music shed, 537
of music shed, 537
of music shumbers in the shell, 213 of Orpheus, 787
of patriots, spark which fires the, 601, of peace, patience 'tis the, 723, of Richard, awe the, 541
of Richard, struck more terror to the, 868
                                                  868 of social life, peace thou, 541.
of the age, 505.
of wit, brevity is the, 803
pray the Lord my, to keep, 107 rapt, sitting in thine eyes, 766 raptured, sweet to entrance the, x06 salled on, iow slow his, 247 secured in her (xistence, 750
honore, bis.
```

```
Soul sincere, of, 120
siniles at the drawn dagger, 759
so dead, breathes there the man with, smiles at the drawn dagger, 759
so dead, breathes there the man with, 50-so dead, breathes there the man with, 50-soothed his, to pleasures, 772
8 ream which overflowed the, 801
Sweet and virtuous, 202 tell me my, can this be death, 305 that rises with us, our life's star, 758 to dare the will to do, 670
tumult of the, 265
uneasy and commed from home, 801 was like a star, thy, 907 why shrinks the, back on herself, 750 wings the, 725
within her eyes, 721
Soul's edin sunshim, and heartfelt joy, 796 dark cottage, 755
smicere desire, prayer is the, 398
Soul-moving poesy sacred and, 800
Souls, crowded with desparing, 624 harmony is in minortal, 775 have sight of that minortal w.d., 759 minediate jewl of their, 811 of fearful adversaries, 541 see further than our eyes, 248 sit closely and silently within, 203 to souls can never teach, 731 two, with but a single thought, 205 virtuous, abhor, 15
whose sudden visitations daze the world, 812
Sound, beauty born of murmuring, 103
          Sound, beauty born of murmuring, 103
doleful, hark from the tombs a, 310
                                         terry, is sweet, 493 fir d at the, my genus, 603 full d, and fury, 792 hammonous, more grateful than, 209
most melodious, citsoons they heard a, most melodious, effsoons they heard a, 8.29
most seem an eitho to the sense, 8.60 of a kinch, never sighed at the, 7.38 of a vone that by still, 315 of hammer or of saw, no, 493 of rev.lry by might 521 of the church-going bell, 7.38 persuasive mage numbers and, 8.69 pipes and whistles in his, 711 soothed with the, 771
the sleeping spirit wake, so doth one, 789. vinich in ikes as hager, 241 which in ites us hinger, 24
Sounds, by those deep, 82
concord of sweet, 776 ever after as a sulfen hell, 346 martial, voncrous metal blowing, 725 nor rural sights alone but, 494 of music or 241 into our ears, 775
Sour, lofty and, to them that loved him not,
of music cr.cp into our cars, 775
Sour, lofty and, to them that loved him not, 725, misfortine's book 345
Source and soul on social aft, place, 541 of all my blies and all my woe, 690 of uncreated light, 357
secred, of sympathetic tears, 939
South and south-west side, 'twist, 945 beaker full of the warm, 330 came o'er my ear like the sweet, 808 Sovereign, here hes our, lord the king, 940 law that state's collected will, 599 reason, noble and, 808
Sovereign's thing on earth, 500
Space, annihilate but, and time, 305
Spacous firmament on light, 376
Spacous firmament on light, 376
Spacous framment on light, 376
Spare in waching sight, visions of glory, 868 the 10 land spoil the child, 108 Spare, beauty she was exhaled and went to heaven, 100
Sparkling with a brook, 480
  heaven, 100
Sparking with a brook, 480
Sparks of fire, little eyes glow like, 134 that kindle fiery war, 539
Sparrow tall, hero perish or a, 394
providently caters for the, 394
Speak in public on the stage, 107 me talr in death, 131 of me as I am, 724
right on, 1 only, 870 something good, the worst, 364 tears that words that weep and, 804 to thee in friendship's name, 121 with most miraculous organ, 900.
                                                         heaven, 100
  to thee in friendship's name, 121 with most miraculous organ, 900. Spe iker of my hiving action, 811. Speaks, angels listen when sile, 134. Spectacles on nose and pouch on side, 711. Spectred-oloths, melt and dispel ye, 743. Speculation, no, in those eyes, 868. Speech, pauses of the, thou fill'st, 228 rude am I in my, 145.
```

```
Speech, thought could wed itself with, ere, 113, thought is deeper than all, 731. thought is, speech is truth, 108 Speed of my desire, 286 the parting guest, 221. Speece of pinals and of surgerye, 809 Spenser, divineat, heaven-bred happy muse, 98 los and 11 lower drink no, 558 Sperit, all is I never drink no, 558 Sperit, all is I never drink no, 558 Sperit, all is I never drink no, 558 Sphere, heaven's extremest, 125 quit their, all, 799. Sphere-descended mand, music, 774 Spheres, seems to shake the, 771 stars shot madly from their, 839 start from their, like stars, 724 Spice of life, variety's the very, 815 Spices, scatter all her, on the stream, 628 Spices, scatter all her, on the stream, 628 Spices, scatter all her, on the stream, 628 Spices, scatter, sorrows come not, 345 Spices, scatter, vorrows come not, 345 Spices, scatter, vorrows come not, 345
             Speech, thought could wed itself with, ere,
          Spies, single, sorrows come not, 345.
Spires, airy, and wayward whiris, 28 whose stient fingers point to heaven, whose silent fingers point to heaven, 396.

Spirit, a fairer, or more welcome shade, 910.

Cassar's, ranging for revenge, 539 clear, 82.

drank repose, 416 drew his, his great Creator, 309 ere my fainting, fell, 920 exhilarate the, 439 extravagant and erring, 868 fiercest, that fought in heaven, 348.

iii, have so fair a house, 339 least erected, that fell, Mammon, 803 motions of his, are dull as night, 776 no, dare sur abroad, 339 of a single mind, 812 of a youth, morning like the, 450 of mortal be proud, 322 of in ordal be proud, 322 of in y dream, a change came o'er the, 755 that impels all thinking things, 404, yet a woman too, 28

Spirits are not finely touched, 797, can either sex assume, 808. from the vasty deep, 1 can call, 812 good, no revenue but thy, 111. light, from toll he wins his, 559 love in heavenly, for creatures base, 373 of great events, 800 of habitual unrest, 404. rule our, from their urins, 681 such love as, feel, 205 twain have crossed with me, 202 Spiritual creatures, millions of, 806

Spite, death aums with fouler, 309 in erruig, reason's, 489 twain nave crossed with me, ap2
Spiritual creatures, millions of, 866
Spite, death aims with fouler, 309 in erring reason's, 489 learned doctors', 814 of spites, 888
the world, 347
Splendor sight to see, 725
Splenetive and rash, I am not, 723
Splendor salls on castle walls, 444
Splendors unfold, ages on ages thy, 588
Spoil the child, spare the rod and, 108
Spoils of time, rich with the, 306
treavons stratagems and, 776.
Sport an hour with beauty's chain, 816 as tedous as to work, 108 of kings, the chase, 671 of mocking fiends, 558
that wrinkled Care derides, 785.
with Amaryllis in the shade, 203.
Sports, joy of youthful, 607
no man their, must eye, 868.
Sporus, sattre or sense can, feel, 909
Spots of sunv openings, 493
Spray, bloomy, nightingale on yon, 496.
Spread the truth from pole to pole, 376
Spreads his light wings, 215
Spring another race supplies, 792 companions of the, 472
from these we, to these we tend, 304 full of sweet dayes and roses, 302.
in the, a young man's fancy, 254
listy, all dight in leaves of flower, 492.
of love gushed from my heart, 887 of love resembleth an April day, 402
Piernan, drink deep or taste not, 805, vist the mouldering urn, when shall, 375.
Springs, has steeds to water at those, 474 of Dove, bealde the, 104
Spur, fai te is the, 812.
```

```
Spur to prick the sides of my intent, 798. Spurned by the young hugged by the old, 802.
Spurns that patient merit takes, 297
Spurs the lated traveller apace, now, 491.
Squadrons, thick-plumed, 631.
Square, glimmering, casement grows a, 315.
Stabbea white a white wench's black eye,
         Stabbed with a white wench's black eye, 721

Stag, a poor sequestered, 496.

Stage, all the world's a, 711.

earth a, the world's a theatre, 79a.

frets his hour upon the, 79a.

lags the vet'ran on the, 80a.

poor degraded, 804.

speak in public on the, 107

well-trod, 786.

where every man must play a part, 804.

wonder of our, 995.

Stagers, old cunning, 80.

Stalked off reluctant, like an ill-used ghost, 366.
                  Stamp, guinea's, rank is but the, 34r.
Stamped with the image of good queen
Stamped with the image of good queen Bess, 802.

Stanch and strong a goodly vessel, 531.

Stand and walt, they also serve who, 366

Standard of the man, the mind is the, 808.

sheet, forever float that, 592

unfurled her, to the air, 592

Standing with reluctant feet, 104

Stands upon a slippery place, he that, 798

Stanley, on, on, 510.

Star, bright particular, 424 constant as the northern. 492

dropt from the zenth ilke a falling, 725, faar as a, when only one is shining, 305.

lingering, with lessening ray, 388.

lovers love the western, 491.

man is his own, 793.

morning, charm to stay the, 376.

name to every fixed, give a. 804.

of shallast magnitude, 392.

of the unconquered will, 892.

of the unconquered will, 892.

our life's, the soul that rises with us, 758.

round and perfect as a, 802.

of this this shepherf fold, 491 that ushers in the even, that full, 491.

world in hignes as a, 492.

Starrys, stupid, and loud huzzas, 781

Star-yed science, 397.

Starlight, glittering, 206

Starry Gallide with his woes, 938

Stars, all the, around her burn, 376.

beauty of a thousand, clad in, 324

farest of, 392

flow in the, blossons in the trees, 489, have lit the welkin dome, 592.

lide their diminished heads, 792

glows in the, blossons in the trees, 489, have lit the welkin dome, 592.

lide their diminished heads, 793

forget-me-nots of the angels, 492

glows in the, blossons in the trees, 489, have lit the welkin dome, 592.

lide their diminished heads, 793

of might, innunerable as the, 492 sentinel, set their watch in the sky, 5-29, shot maddy from their spheres, 886.

start, straining upon the, 593

Start, straini
    State's collected will, sovereign law that,

50

States can be saved without the sword, 541.

Statesmen, yet friend to truth, 120.

Statesmen out of place, 814

Staton like the herald Mercury, 721.

private, post of honor is the, 601

Status, base of Pompey's, 876

Statue, gows the more the marble wastes, 809.

Stature, man makes his own, 398

Steadfust coral-stenn saries, 807

Steadfust coral-stenn saries, 807

Steal a few hours from the night, 205, away your hearts, 876,

from the world, 225.
```

```
Stual, silently, away, 816.
    Stealing and giving odor, 808
Steals my purse steals trash, who, 811
      Stealth, do good by, 797
Strain, inconquered, soon shall thy arm,
                                             No sa.
    Steed, farewell the neighing, 722, in war he mounts the warrior's, 222, that knows his rider, 63; Staeds, mounting barbed, 54; to water at those springs, 474. Steel, clad in complete, she that has chastity, Steen, the an tomptee, sate that a standing, 700 for their, 655 houps of, grapple them with, 121 locked up in, naked though, 700 Steep and thorny way to heaven, 800 my senses in forgetfulness, 702 sunium's marbled, 502 sunium's marbled, 505 the spin merry, 245 Steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 Steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 Steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 Steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 Steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 Steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 Steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 Steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 steep, 100 pool; that dwell up in the, 724 more true, 721
    more true, 721
more true, 721
more true, 721
tottering, and slow, 816.
Stepping o'er the bounds of modesty, 723
Stepping stones of their dead selves, rise on, 399
Steps, brushing with hasty, the dews away,
    Step., brilling with hasty, the dews away, 36 desperate, beware of, 793 grace was in all her, 209 morn her rosy, advancing, 490.
pilgnin, morning came forth with, 490 wandering, and slow, 321.
Stern alarum, 521.
Stern alarum, 521.
and rock-bound coast, 587
joy which warriors feel, 655.
ruin's jologishare, 495.
Sterner stuff, ambition should be made of, 875
      875
Stick on conversation's burrs, 803.
Sticking place, screw your courage to the,
  Stiff no opinions always in the wrong, 909
Stiffen the ani.ws, 503
Stile, I 'm .itting on the, Mary, 992
Still achieving still pursuing, 770 beginning never caiding, 772.
harping on my daughter, 203.
sad music of humanity, 404.
the wonder grew, 688
to be neat still to be drest, 713.
stillness, deep, of a summer even, 867 modest, and humbity, 503
soft, and the night, 775.
solemn, 905
  modest, and humilty, 503 soft, and the might, 775
solemn, 305
Sting, O'd Aath where is thy, 365.
Stings of falsehood those shall try, 890.
you for your pains, 800
Stinks, well-defined and several, 954
of the great Babel, 810
the fire close the shutters, 810
Stirs fireful, improfitable, 404
of the great Babel, 810
the fire close the shutters, 810
Stirs the feeling infinite, 813
St John mingles with my friendly bowl, 814
Stockings, kneeling ne'er spoilt silk, 364
Stockings, kneeling ne'er spoilt silk, 364
Stockings, kneeling ne'er spoilt silk, 364
Stockings, norans call it, 393
Stocks, no, nor no stocks, 800.
Stolen borrowed squandered doled, 802 forth of holy writ, 396 heart of a maiden it, 305
Stome, conscious, to beauty grew, 736, not a, tell where I lie, 225 precious, set in the silver sea, 603 underneath this, dothlye, 907 violet by a mossy, 105 walls do not a prison make, 147
Stones, enamelled, makes music with the, 493
of Kome to rise in mutiny, move the.
                                    of Rome to rise in mutiny, move the,
of Rome to rise in mutiny, more 877.

Prate of my whereabouts, 882 rattle his bones over the, 341 sermons in, 459
Stood, against the world, 876
Stoods, push us from our, 688
Stoop, wasdom ofttimes nearer when we, 798.
Stoops to folly, when lovely woman, 336
Stop, wound what, she pleases, 112
Store, heaven will bless your, 340 how grows in paradise our, 120
Storied, stoop and 120 windows richly dight, 767.
Stories, tad, of the death of kings, 310
Storm, born to rule the, 614.
directs the, 539.
hollow pauses of the, 632
```

```
Storm, mldway leaves the, 688, pelting of this pittless, 494, pilot that weathered the, 692, rides upon the, 692 Storms, God of, 620. hill which lifts him to the, 603 loud, amony, 807 of fate, struggling in the, 602, of life, rambow to the, 134, of state, broken with the, 346 prepare to part, 204
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               Stuffs out his vacant garments, 207.
Stuffs noting-books, 508
Stupid starers and loud huzzas, 78t
Style of man, Christian is the highest, 399.
refines, how the, 812
Subdued to what it works in, 722.
Subject, only, owes the prince, 215 of all verse, 207.
Subjection, implied, 711
Sublime to suffer and be strong, 348.
tobacco, 814
   of state, broken with the, 346
of state, broken with the, 346
Storny winds do blow, when the, 629
Story of Cambuscan bold, 787.
of her birth, repeats the, 376 of my life, questioned me the, 145 of our days, shuts up the, 745 snowy summits old in, 449 teach him how to tell my, 145
Strain, guardian angels sung the, 576 prophetic, 787
that, again, 868.
unpremediated, poured forth his, 940
Strained, quality of mercy is not, 798
Straining upon the start, 503
Strains that might create a 5001, 831.
Strand, American, pass to the, 395
Chian, blind bard who on the, 822
foreign, wandering on a, 561
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               Sublime to suffer and be strong, 348, tobacco, 814
Submission, coy, yielded with, 711
Subsequent proceedings interested him no more, 98
Substance glorious as her own, 857 of ten thousand soldiers, 868
Suburb of the life clysian, 222
Success, catch with his surcasse, 900 gentle dawning of a bright, 800 in love portend, 496.
Inked with, 812
Successive rise, fall successive and, 792 Succes of dawns from heaven, 348 us that succor want, 373
Straming upon the start, 593
Strams that might create a soul, 831.
Strand, American, pass to the, 395
Chian, blind bard who on the, 822
foreign, wandering on a, 593
India's coral, 395
Strange but true, 805
Cozenage, 793
defeatures in my face, 799 eventful history, 711
't was passing, 145;
that a harp of a thousand strings, 794.
woudrous, 808
Stranger than fiction, truth is, 805
yet to pain, 108.
Stratford-atte-Bowe, scole of, 696
Straw, tickled with a, 107.
Strayed, careless childhood, 108
Streakings of the morning light, 592
Stream, mercy of a rude, 231 my great example, make thy 723 smooth, in moother numbers flow, 806 Streaming which overflowed the soul, 801 to the wind, the imperal ensign, 725.
Streams, large, from little fountains flow, 107 more pellucid, 399
shallow, run dimpling, 910 that lucid flow forever, 794
Streets, night darkens the, 585
Strength, castle's, might laugh a siege to score, 549 gant's, excellent to have a, 813 lovely in your, 686
of nerve or sinew, mightier than, 203 of some diffusive thought, 603 tower of, the king's name, a, 722
Stretched forefinger of all time, 807
Strife, double, single thraldom or, 320 hero in the, be a, 770 madding crowd's ignoble, 306
no, to heal, 206
for the green graves of your sire, 582
Strings, such notes as warbled to the, 787
Strings, harp of a thousand, 794,
Striving to better we mar what a well, 802
Stroke, a ratile tender-handed, 800
distressful, 145,
feel the friendly, 390
Strokes, many, though with a little axe, 802
Stroke, stablishes the, restores the weak, 794 without rage, 723
Stronger by wackness, wiser men become,
Strucken deer go weep, let the, 671
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       Succor oft dawns from heaven, 348 us that succor want, 373 such and so various the tastes of men, 814. Suck the sweets of sweet philosophy, 648. Suckle fools and chromole small beer, 723. Sudden and queck in quarrel, 711. visitations daze the world, 812 suffer and be strong, sublime to, 348 a sea change, 869 at sea change, 869 wet daimation to run through em, 558. Sufferance, coprord, 312.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       wer dammation for fun through ein, 55
Sufferance, corporal, 310 is the badge of all our tribe, 346.
Sufferer, the best of men was a, 723
Suffering, child of, 347 learn in, what they teach in song, 806 learn in, what they teach in song, 806 sad humanity, 345 soothing thoughts that spring out of, 759 Sufficiency, an elegant, content, 245 Sugar o'er the devil himself, 305 Suts, customary, of solemn black, 305, of woe, trappings and the, 205 Sulky sulken dame, where sits our, 847 Sullen bell, knolling a departed friend, 346 Sulphurous bolt, sharp and, 815 Sulminer day, pastime of a drowsy, 70 eternal, gilds them yet, 580 eternal, gilds them yet, 580 eternal, must not fade, 134, even, deep sullness of a, 867 eves by hautted stream, 786 first was leafy, since, 271 friends, like, 123 friends, like, 123 friends, like, 123 friends, like, 125 friends, like, 125 friends, like, 126 friends, like, 126 friends, like, 126 friends, like, 126 friends, like, 127 friends, like, 127 friends, like, 127 friends, like, 128 friends, like, last rose of, 405
made glorious, by this sun of York, 541 sea, calm and unruffled as a, 631 sea, calm and unrufficd as 4, 631 sweet as, 723
thun came the jolly, 462
thun came the jolly, 462
thun thun the way to heaven, 546 fantaxir, heat, 346
morn, joy like a, 462
noontide arr, 462
ripening breath, bud of, 492
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              rose, 407
Summer blooms, more dear than prouder,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          Summers, this many, in a sea of glory, 321
Summers, this many, in a sea of glory, 321
Summin, showy, old in story, 449
Summin up remembrance of things past,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   Summon up remembrance of things past, up the blood, 503 summons there to heaven or to hell, a knell that, 882 upon a fearful, 868
when thy, comes, 307
Sums, what, that generous hand supply, 797
Sun, a weary of the, I 'gm to be, 346.
all-beholding, shall see no more, 307
all except their, is set, 580 and the sand and the wild uproar, 406.
burnshed, livery of the, 722 clouds that gather round the setting, 759 common, the air the 8kito, 489 dew-drops which the, in pearls, 492
dial to the, 706.
early-rising, has not attained his moone,
Stronger by weakness wiser men users. 755
Struck eagle stretched upon the plain, 800
Strucken deer go weep, let the, 671
Struckres, earth's chief, 726
Strucygling in the storms of fate, 602
Struck eagle stretched upon the poor player, 792
Stubble-land at harvest-home, 500
Studded in his death, 300.
Studdous let me sit, 806 walks and shades, 720.
Study, his, with what authors stored, 805 of inagination, creep into his, 801 of revenge, 502 proper, of mankind is man, 792 what you most affect, 804.
Stuff, O proper, 868.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             carly-fising, has not attained mis moone, 464.

fed fast thro', and shade, 721 garsh, pay no worship to the, 234 ghimnering tapers to the, hold their, 865 glorious, in heaven, 395 grow din with age, 759 in the lap of Thetis, 490 loss of the, tears of the sky for, 491 low descending, day whose, 398 meet the, upon the upland lawn, 306 meridian, klesed them into heat, 706 midday, beinghted walks under the, 796 of York, made glorious summer by, 548 pleasant the, 490 protects the dewdrop from the, 89 see my shadow in the, 938 what you most affect, too4.
Stuff, O proper, 85%,
perfilous, cleanse the bosom of that, 347
sterner, ambition should be made of, 875 such, as dreams are made on, 867, youth 's a, will not endure, 122.
Stuffed bosom, cleanse the, 347.
```

```
Sweet, nothing half so, in life, 262. oblivious antidote, 347. Phosphor, bring the day, 483. reluctant amorous delay, 731 repast and calm repose, 22 shadr sude of Pall Mail, 814. silent thought, sessions of, 115. so coldit, 302.
                 Sun shine sweetly on my grave, 493 snatches her pale hre from the, 489 take all the rest the, goes round, 125 upon an haster-day, 211
warms in the, refreshes in the breeze, so coldly, 303
south, came o'er my ear like the, 808
     Sunday, divide, from the week, 559-
Sunflower turns to her god when she sets, 174-
Sung to call forth paramours, 492-
Sunnua's marbled steep, 585-
Sunkes land, from sunshine to the, 309-sea, down to a, 834-
Sunhight drinketh the dew, 205-
Sunneshine, fles of extate and, 121-
Sunny as her skeep, 721-
Suns, light of setting, 404-
Jarocess of the, 357-
Sunset, blackest might at, 720-of his gives in einystical lore, 574-Sunshine and rain at once, 204 broken in the rill, 488 eternal, settles on its head, 688-follows the rain, 244
in the shady place, 828 makes eem all sweet securited, 493-of an April day, 271-of the breast, 763-soul's calm, and heartfelt joy, 796-to the sunless land, from, 309
Superflows lags the vet'rain on the stage, 804
Supernov siden is supernor blass, 798
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    Swan of Avon, 905
sweet home, 110, 225
the moonlight sleeps upon this bank, will, river glideth at his own, 678
Sweet-and-twenty, come and kiss me, 122
Sweether joy, sorrows remembered, 346
Sweether of hie and solder of society, 120.
Sweeter for thee despairing, 134
pains of love be, than other pleasures,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     Sweeter for thee despairing, 429
pains of love be, than other pleasures, 245
Sweetest garland to the sweetest maid, 134
Sweetly she bade me adicu, 50, 241.
Sweetly she hade me adicu, 50, 241.
Sweetless, linkèd, long drawn out, 786 loathe the tasts, of, 815, wanton, instil a, 837
waste its, on the desert air, 306
Sweets, balmy, diffuse around, 348 compacted he, box where, 302 lost in the, fly that sips treacle is, 205.
of Burn-mill meadow, 493
of forgetfuliness, 737.
of sweet philosophy, 804,
to the sweet, 311
Swell-to sented sunshine makes 'em all, 493
Swell, voliptuous, music with its, 512
Swelling and limitless billows, 631 of the voiceful sea, 822
Swift Camilla cours the plain, 806, on his downy pinions, 826 con fire voiceful arous of light, 739
                                                               804
        Superior wisdom is superior blass, 798
Supriicly stay in idle wishes, fools, 798
Supped full with horrors, 900
Surcease, catch with his, success, 900
Surceand firm-set earth, 882 too, arrives as tardy as too slow, 815 true hope is, 800
Swift-wingled arrows of light, 739
Swint to yonder point, 670.
Swift-wingled arrows of light, 739
Swint to yonder point, 670.
Swinting, troug, in his agony, 632
Swoop, at one fell, 909
Sword, edge is sharper than the, slander whose, 8tr
famous by my, 150.
glued to my scabbard, 541
his good, rist, 539 pen is mightier than the, 805 take away the, 541
Swords, old frends like, trusted best, 121
sheatlied their, for lack of argument, 593 make assurance doubly, 793
Surge, hquid, resolves the moon into tears,
     Surge, adjust, resources in: moon mice tears, 48.

Surges, loud, lash the sounding shore, 8.6.

Survey, I am monarch of all I, 738 our empire and behold our home, 6.6.

Suspect your tale intrue, 805

Suspects yet strongly loves, 207.

Suspended our, light drip of the, 085

Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind, 724
     Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind, 725 Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind, 725 Swaliow, daffodis that come before the, 495 Swaliow, wings, hope fites with, 820 Swan and shadow, float double, 493 of Aton, weet, 905 on still 5t Mary's Lake, 493 Swan like ket me sing and die, 58t Swarin, the djimin' wild-streaming, 868 Swashing and a martial outside, 722 Sway, improus men bear, 627 Sway, improus men bear, 627 of magic potent over sun and star, 203 required with gentle, 721 secuptred, merky is above this, 798 sweeping whiths md s, 128 sweet, allow olkelieute, 794 trittle prevailed with double, 688 Sways she level in her husband's heart, 215 sheathed their, for lack of argument, 503 sydne, 25 showers of sweet discourse, 193 Sydne, 25 shear Pembroke's mother, 907 Syllable men's names, any tongues that, 830 of recorded time, to the last, 792 Sympathetic tear, the social simile, 232 tears, sacred source of, 939 Sympathy, secret, 203 Symptom, first, of a mind in health, 232, Syrops knear, timet with cumanion, 170 Systems, atoms or, into ruin hurled, 394
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              Table of my memory, 801
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     Tackle trum, 63
Lail and mane used instead of rein, 671
dragon s, hook batted with a, 672
Tailor's news, swall owing a, 722.
Taint of earth, 204.
Taint of earth, 204.
Tainted wether of the flock, 348.
Take a bond of Fatt, 793
away the sword, 541.
each man's censure, 815
her up tenderly, 335,
him for all m all, 721
no note of time but from its loss, 747
O boatman thrice thy fee, 292
physic pomp, 802
the current when it serves, 802 the good the gods provide, 772
those lips away, 265, ye each a shell, 810
Takes opens swallow, 810
Takin ones, a chiel's amang ye, 805
Taking-off, deep damnation of his, 900
Takin, ones, a chiel's amang ye, 805
Taking-off, deep damnation of his, 900
Taking-off, 900
Taking-off, 900
Taking-off, 900
Taking-off, 900
Taking-off,
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           Tackle trim, 63r
Lail and mane used instead of rein, 671
215
Swear not by the inconstant moon, 207.
Swears a prayer or two, 836
if he, he 'll certainly deceive thee, 232 with 30 much gract, 204
Sweat, cold, thrills down my limbs, 725
grunt and, under a weary life, 297
Sweeping whirlwind's way, 108
Sweet, all love 1s, 206
all that's, was inade but to be lost, 793 and bitter fancy, chewing the cud of, 813 and cunning hand, nature's own, 222 and low, wind of the western sea, 85 and vertious soul, 322 and wholesome odor, 492 are the uses of adversity, 248
as English air could make her, 722, as sunnier, 723
as the primitive prace, 590 attractive grace, 711 attractive kinde of grace, 904
Auburn loveliest village of the plain, 686, bells landled out of time 8x8
        Swear not by the inconstant moon, 207,
                                     686, bells jangled out of tune, 808 childish days, 108 day so cool so calm so bright, 307 dayes and roses, 5pring full of, 302 discourse more, 808 disorder in the dress, 713 is pleasure after pain, 771 is revenge especially to women, x67, is solitude, how passing, 120 is the breath of morn, 400, little cherub that sits up aloft, 675 mercy is noblity a true badge, 798 naught in this life, 315 neglect more taketh me, 713.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        792 suspect your, untrue, 805.
tell his, untrewe, 697
that I relate, 215.
thereby hangs a, 791.
told by an idiot, 792
told his soft, 804.
two-t-old, tedious as a, 799.
wondrous, moon takes up the, 376.
Talent, single, well employed, 395.
Tales, bubbling, the wave still tells its, 780.
```

```
Tales of sorrow done, 688.

play truant at his, aged ears, 723

Talks, spent an hour's, withal, 724 to conceal the nund, 804 who never think, 803
witty to, with, 124

Talking age and whispering lovers, 686

Tall oaks from little acorns grow, 207
the wise the reverend head, 308
Tam, landlady and, grew gracious, 847 was glorious, 848.

Tamer of the human breast, 345

Tangris play, like a glmm'ring, 800

Taper's high, like a glmm'ring, 800

Taper's high, like a glmm'ring, 800

Taper's, hold their glimmering, to the sun, 805
                                805
Tara's halls, harp that once through, 577.
Tarsus, stately ship of, 632
Task, delightful, to rear the tender thought,
                         Task, deligning, to rear the tender thought 24.
Taskmaster's, great, eye, 395.
Taste, mortal, forbidden tree whose, 395.
never, who always drink, 803
not the Pieran spring, 805.
of fear, forget the, 900 of sweetness, loathe the, 815 of sweetness, loathe the, Big
Sans, 71.
Tastes of men, so various are the, 814.
Tattered enisgn down, tear her, 620.
Taught us how to die, 911 us how to live, 911
Taughte but first he folwed it hym selve,
                         Taughte but first the tollwed it 11/11 of 697

Tawny hon pawing to get free, 496.

Tea, sometimes counsel sometimes, 814

Teach me to feel another's woe, 370
                   Tea, sometimes counsel sometimes, 814.
Teach me to feel another's wee, 370 souls to souls can never, 731 the rest to sneer, 910 the rustic moralist to die, 306, the young idea how to shoot, 214.
Teaches such beauty as a woman's eye, 795. Teachings, list to Nature's, 397. Teachings, list to Nature's, 397. Team, heavenly-harnessed, 816 of little atomics, 836.
Tear each other's eyes, 108 every woe can claim a, 267 for pity, he hath a, 724 forgot as 500n as shed, 763, gave to misery all he had a, 307, her tattered ensign down, 600. I did not think to shed a, 321. in her eye, smle on her lips and a, 176 lids unsulfied with a, 810 mocks the, it forced to flow, 899 pendulum betwixt a smile and a, 794-small orb of one particular, 204 sympathetic, 222 that is wiped with a little address, 464, the groan tile knell the pall, 582 though in secret it rolls, 921.
Tears, all, like Niobe, 723 beguile her of her, 145 beyond this vale of, 399 big round, coursed one another, 496 crimson, will follow yet, 602, drop, as fast as the Arabian trees, 725, fattered to, 176 fountain of sweet, a heart the, 931, 150 did tears, 315, 339 dile tears, 315, 350 fatters from the depth of some divine departs from the depth of some divine departs 35, 350 idle tears, 315, 350 id you have, prepare to shed them now, 876 iron, down Pluto's cheek, 787 love is lovehest embalmed in, 204, my, must stop for every drop, 338, nothing is here for, 794, of boyhood's years, 328 of the sky for loss of the sun, 491 of woe, the smiles of Joy the, 359, resolves the moon into salt, 439, so obstruct my words, 725, some natural, they dropt, 321 such as angels weep, 346, sympathetic, sacred source of, 939, that speak, words that weep and, 804, thoughts that lie too deep for, 759, wet with unseen, 446.

Teche, gladly lerne and gladly, 637. Techis, gladly lerne and gladly, 637. Techis contains a twice-fold tale, 799. Techis can a twice-fold tale, 799. Teching earth, 239. Teching marker despays his, 558. of time, give lettered pomp to, 915, on edge, set my, 807, sans, 712. white, struggling into sight, 105 on edge, set my, 807.
sans, 711.
sans, 711.
Tell a tale after a man, 657
his tale untrewe, 657
me my soul can this be death, 365, me not in mournful numbers, 765, think one thing and another, 797.
truth and shame the devil, 398.
Temper, blessed with, whose unclouded ray, 238.
```

```
Temper justice with mercy, 394 man, nature made thee to, 133.
Temperance, heath consists with, 815.
Temperate will, the, 128.
Temperate will, the, 128.
Temperate will, the, 128.
Temperate steel lags behind, 739 of debate, one eternal, 215
Temperate is breath prevail, 631
Tempers, glasses itself in, 607
Tempessuous petiticoat, 713.
Temple, Dans, hangs on, 493.
Temple, Dans, hangs on, 493.
Temple, Dans, hangs oil in such a, 133.
the i.ord's anointed, hath broke ope,
norming lit can dwen in such a, 13;
the Lord's anointed, hath broke ope,
goo.

Temples, God's first, the groves were, 452.
of his gods, 567,
solemn, 867

Tempt its new-fledged offspring to the skles,
6.28

Tempted her with word too large, 204, tempts by making rich not poor, 803,
temable in your silence, 815,
Tend, to thee we, from thee we syring, 394-
Tend, to thee we, from thee we syring, 394-
Tend, to thee we, from thee we syring, 394-
Tend, to thee we, from thee we syring, 394-
Tendris, take her up, 335
Tendrils strong as fiesh and blood, 805,
Tenement of clay, 0 erinformed the, 908 Tenest, some nice, 398
with books, 824.
Tenor, noiseless, of their way, 366 of his way, guileless held the, 794 whose lives a peaceful, keep, 743 Tent, guarded, at midnight in his, 582.
it, 1 rede ye, 805,
moving, nightly pitch my, 389.
Tented field, action in the, 145,
Tents, fold their, like the Arabs, 816
Terror, no, in your threats, 979
shadows have struck more, 868
             Terror, no, in your threats, 797
shadows have struck more, 868
Testament, purple, of bleeding war, 541.
Testyinent, go no furder than my, for that,
             Text, God takes a, and preacheth pa-ti-ence
         Text, Cod takes a, and preacheth pa-ti-ence, 364, many a holy, around she strews, 306
Thanks, no aliaying, 147
Thank, whom none can, none can love, 797 thanke down, 804
Thanked enough when I'm not, at all, 797
Thankless child, to have a, 348
Thanks and use, both, 797 of millions yet to be, 589, untraced to lips unknown, 807
That is the question, 297
no more of, 348.
Thaw and resolve tuelf into a dew, 311.
Theatre, the world's a, the earth a stage,
    The momore of, 348.

Thaw and resolve itself into a dew, 311.
Theatre, the world 's a, the earth a stage, 72
There so reloops line, 787
There so to do and die, 517 not to reason why, 517.
Thene, fools are my, 806.
Themes, transcends our wonted, 274
There's the rub, 997
Thereby hangs a tale, 791.
There is the rub, 997
Thereby hangs a tale, 791.
These are thy glorious works Parent of good, 369.
These are thy glorious works Parent of good, 369.
These are thy glorious works Parent of good, 369.
These are thy glorious works Parent of good, 369.
These are thy glorious works Parent of good, 369.
The doth fear each bush an officer, 7-5 each thing's a, 489 an either eye, 146
moon's an arrant, 489
of time, procrastination is the, 748 sea 's a, 489.
Sun's a, 489.
Thievery, example you with, 1 'll, 489
Thieves, beauty provoketh, 133.
Thing, acting of a dreadful, 900.
deares think one, another tell, 797.
deares, he owed, 399.
guilty, tremble like a, 368
guilty, tremble like a, 599.
meanest, that feels, 662 never says a foolish, 940 of beauty is a joy forever, 675.
play's the, 864.
to one, constant never, 272.
undisputed, thou say's tan, 485.
done at the Mermaid, 939.
deram of, that were, 792
inammate have moved, 809.
par's best, are nearest him, 742 more, in heaven and earth, 806.
mute linesnate, 203.
of sale, a seller's praise to, 800.
sunday's seller's praise to, 800.
```

Things, unutterable, sighed and looked, 204.
without all remedy, 792.
Think and ne'er disclose her mind, 723.
him so because I think him so, 723.
naught a trific, 815.
never, they always talk who, 803.
of it dissolute man, 335.
one thing and another tell, 797.
pieasant to, on, 134.
those that, govern those that toll, 812.
thus, and smoke tobacco, 814.
Thinking, high, plan living and, 814.
is but an idle waste of thought, 808.
makes it so, nothing good or bad but, 208. 208 of the days that are no more, 315, 350 things, spirit that impels all, 404, too much to have thought, 804.
Thinks most feels the noblest acts the best, of the days that are no more, 315, 350 things, spirit that impels all, 404 thinks most feels the noblest acts the hest, 742 too much, he, 722.

Third, a sweetly unobtrusive, 228 of hie is passed in sleep, 330 Thirty, man suspects himself a fool at, 748 Thora, milk-white, beneath the, 365, primrose peeps beneath the, 365, primrose peeps beneath the, 456 Thoras, little wilful, rosebud set with, 721. that is the bosom lodge, 395. which I have reaped, 800.

Thoray path of sorrow, 223, 250 Thoray, and the sorrow, 233, steep and, way to heaven, 250 Thought, a beautiful, and softly hodied forth, 869 all objects of all, 404 armor is his honest, 736 as a sage, felt as a man, 737 could wed itself with apeech, 803 diffusive, strength of some, 603 drop of ink falling upon a, 805 evil is wrought by want of, 798 flung forward is the prophecy, 602 he, I thought he thought I slept, 186 hushed be every, 348. not one immoral one corrupted, 806 is deeper than all speech, 731 is falser fair, the, 207 is speech, speech is truth, 108 is the slaw of life, 793 is tried of wandering, 867 leapt out to wed with, 750 moet these the a pleasant, 495, noon of dad of midnight is the, 431 of our past years, 726 now was the respondent of the midnight is the, 431 of our past years, 726 now was the respondent of the midnight is the, 431 of the same from, divide & 1, 257, pleasing, fed like a, 309 place ast of, sacklied or with the, 297 passing, fed like a, 309 placed in, 231. Pleasing dreadful, etermity thou, 759 power of, the magic of the mind, 812 quietness of, 297, rear the tender, delightful task, 214, sense from, divide, 617 samooth dark pools of deeper, 228 so once and now I know it, 793 savent sillent, sessions of, 115, the demon, 396. thinking is an idle waste of, 808 two souls with but a lingle, 200 unmeaning thing they call a, 806 wish was father to that, 800 would destroy their paradise, 108 flowed as so once and now I know it single, 200 unmeaning thing they call a, 806 wish was father to that, 800 would destroy their paradise, 108 fr more clevate, 8c8.
of love, 254.
of men are widened, 257.
pansles that's for, 457.
pleasant, bring sad, mood when, 452.
river of his, ocean to the, 765
slunghterous, 500.
soothing, that spring out of suffering,
750. more elevate, 808.

```
Thraidom, single, or double strife, 320.
Thread, feels at each, 496
Threatening eye, looks upon them with a,
Threats, no terror in your, 797.

Threats, no terror in your, 797.

Three in one, 394.

poets in three distant ages, 907.

realms obey, 814.

Threavore, burden of, 824.

Threavore, burden of, 824.

Threevore, burden of, 824.

Threevore, burden of, 827.

Thrice, ere, you moon filled her horn, 491.

The assayed, 346.

The routed all his foes, 771.

It is slew the slain, 771.

It is slew the slain, 771.

It is slew the slain, 791.

In spine of scorn, 346.

In yeace was slain, 491.

presented him a kingly crown, 876.

thy fee, take O boatman, 392.

Thrift may follow fawning, 811.

Thirfty goldess, like a, 797.

Thrill, glory 8, is o'er, 577.

Thrive at Westminster on fools, 810.

Throat, Amen stuck in my, 884.

Throat, Amen stuck in my, 884.

Throne, bear no brother near the, 910.

here is my, bid king coune how, 145.

nisfortune nuade the, her scal, 147.

my high from her ebon, 491.

of rocks, a robe of clouds, 403.

of royal state, 722.

royal, of kings, 603.

the living, 930.

wade through slaughter to a, 306.

Throned monarch, mery becomes the, 798.

on her hundred slees, 720.

Through thick and thin, 677.

Throw away the dearest thing he owed, 309.

Thunder, harp of pines, snote his, 409.

Thunder, leaps the live, 686.

use his heaven for, 813.

Thunder-harp of pines, snote his, 409.

Thunders breaking at her feet, 602.

Thysell, know then, presume not God to Scan, 792.

Tick de with a straw, 107.

Tide in the affairs of men, 802.
       Threats, no terror in your, 797.

Three in one, 394.

poets in three distant ages, 907.
   wild, and the gadding vine, 495
Thyself, know then, presume unt food to $\( \xi_1 \), 792
Tickled with straw, 107.
Tide in the affairs of men, 802
of love, pity swells the, 794
Tides, swelling, obey the moon, 796.
Tidings, authentic, of invisible things, 631.
confirm the, as they roll, 376 dismal, when he frowned, 688
Tie, linked in one heavenly, 203.
love endures 10, 207.
In yet he knocker, say I'm sick, 805.
Ties, friendship above all, doth bind, 120.
Tiger, action of the, mitate the, 503.
rouse the, for the fallow deer 724
Tight little Island, 622
Tills at all I meet, run amuck and, 806.
Timber like seasoned, never gives, 302
Time, all of the olden, 550 and the hour runs through the roughest
day, 793.
                                                   and the hour runs through the roug
day, 791
annihilate but space and, 205-bank and shoal of, 900
beyond the flight of, 114
bid, return, 792.
chinks that, has made, 755-chronicle of wasted, 122.
count, by heart-throbs, 742.
eating, clock worn out with, 65, 309
e'en such is, 745.
faming bounds of place and, 939-flies, 395-
                                               faming bounds of place and, 939-fliets, 395-flieth and never claps her wings, 791 foot of, noiseless fails the, 117-for all, not of an age but, 905-forefinger of all, stretched, 807-foremost files of, 328.
forget all, with thee conversing 1, 206.
freedom furest of daughters of, 604-has land his hand upon my heart, 794-hath a wallet at his back, 792.
I was promised on 8, 938.
inaudible and noiseless foot of, 792.
is fleeting, 7700.
                                                   inaudible and noiseless foot of, 792. is fike a fashlonable host, 792. is like a fashlonable host, 792. keeping, to a sort of Runic rhyme, 714. kill the, their only labor to, 826. last syllable of recurded, 792. moral on the motley foot thus, 810. noiseless foot of, inaudible and, 792.
                                                      of scorn, 725.
```

```
Fine, old, is still a flying, 754-old, makes these decay, 141.
panting, tolled after him in an, 905.
piping, of peace, 938
procrastination is the thefe of, 748 proper, to marry, 225.
rolls his ceaseless course, 791
sands of, footprints in the, 770.
sent before my, 938
shall throw a darr at thee, 907 slow, foster-child of silence and, 718.
so hallowed and gracious is the, 397 sorrow calls no, that 5 gone, 346 spoils of, ruh with the, 90 take no note of, but from its loss, 747 teeth of, gwe lettered point to, 915 that bears no fruit deserves no name, 794.
                                          that bears no fruit deserves no name, 794 to mend, lacks, 348 to mourn, he that lacks, 348 tooth of, forted residence "gainst, 811 transported with eury, 215 turn backward O, in your flight, 222 whips and scorns of, 297 witten, of night, 431 writes no wrinkles on thine azure brow, 207
   write no wrinkles on thine azure brow, to the control of the contr
   1400c, jocund day stands, on mountain 1605, 437 religion tands on, in our land, 395 religion dature s we et restore, sleep, 816 life, g in da, lo, lost no fre, fich, di 20 life, g in da, lo, lost no fre, fich, di 20 life, g in da pei, 503 power and peif, 503 lo be or not to be, 237 load, ugly and venomous, 348 load, ugly and venomous, 348 load, lo be significant to the lass 131 lobacco, subling, 814 thus think and sinoke, 814 lo day, be wise, 't is madin's to defer, 748 has own, he who can call, 793 I have lived, to morrow do thy worst, 793
      793 to-morrow already walks in, 800 inhappy day too late, 702
Toe, light fantastic, 785 top to, 107

Loll and roubl , war is, 77

becam, the solate of his wo s. 579 govern those that tam , 812 morn of, 535

of gathering on rgies, 807
o er books consumed the midnight oil,
      oer books consumed the midnight oil, 804
Acres weetens, 559
winding ipi days with, 559, with spirits light from 559
loiled all forgot for which his, 549, loiles all, are sweet with thee, 260 loiled hit for in midital breast, 265 loils with to he midital breast, 265 loils with tale, 264
loiled retays the trem hant blade, 567 foll for the brave, 507
foll min that haily you, or Jack, 121
loile, beauty minortal awakes from the,
732
                                                 737 cradles rock us nearer to the, 308 kings for such a, wish to die, 906 inonument without a, 905 three-fold four-fold, 939 voice of nature cries from the, 306.
Tombs, flattering, how misdated on their, 791

791

To morrow, defer not till, to be wise, 793

do thy worst for I have lived to-day, 793

in to day diready walks, 800.

15 faiser than the former day, 793.

live till, the darkest day will pass, 793 make, cheerful as to-day, 293.

tints, with prophetic ray, 134

will be dying, 794

To-morrow s sin to thee may never rise, 793

Tone, ditties of no, 728

Tone, ditties of no, 728

Tonge, kepen wel thy, 393

Tonge, shovel and, together belongs, 200

Tongue, accents of that unknown, 777

desited him with unholy, not she, 795 dropped manna, though his, 724

in overy discharge of cessar, 877.

let the candled, lick abbuird pounp, 111

man that listle 4, 133
                                                 hark from the, a doleful sound, 310
```

```
Tongue, murder though it have no, will speak, 900.
music's golden, 176
nor heart cannot conceive nor name
                                                     thee, 900.
of fire and heart of steel, 724.
   of fire and heart of steel, 724
of so perplexed a, 809 or pen, of all sad words of, 139.
outvenoms all the words of Nile, 811.
play the braggart with my, 326 sounds as a sallen bell, 346 that shakespeare spake, 602 truth in every shepherd's, 158.
Tully's golden, 938.
understanding but no, 815.
win a woman with his, 133 would that my, could utter, 315.
Tongues, airy, that syllable men's names, 830 in trees, finds, 480 839
in trees, finds, 489
of dying men enforce attention, 310 silence envious, 322
whispering, can poison truth, 116
Too atb before to kill, 795 late I stayed, forgive the crimic, 117 late ye cannot enter now, 754
many yet how few, 271
wifft tardy as too slow, 815 too solid flesh would melt, 311
Tools, name his, teach nothing but to, 804 of working out salvation, 336
Tooth of une, 811
         Tooth of time, 811
sharper than a serpent's, 348.
      sharper than a series 1-9, 5000. Tops to too, from, 107.
Tops, proud, of the eastern pines, 719
slender, were close against the 5k3, 93
Torment of the mind, love 1s a, 130 torrent, loud, and the windwind's mar, 603 naught but the, 15 heard on the luli, 737
Torrent's smoothness ere it dash below, 404.
      Torrent's smoothness ere it dash below, 494.
Torrents, motionless, 377
Torture, boil in endless, 720 of the nind, 327
Torse limit on your of the nind, 327
Torse limit to my breast, weariness may, 795
Total of their hojes and fears, 791
Total of their hojes and fears, 791
Total of their hojes and fears, 791
Total of their hojes and fears, 792
Total of their hojes and fears, 793
Total of their hojes and fears, 793
Total of their hojes and fears, 190
deel the tenderest, 203
mly, of love, 203
mly, of love, 203
mly, of love, 203
nd v amshad hand 315
one, of nature makes the world kin, 811 soft, hath saved her boy 795 the spider's, how exquisitely fine, 496 would with a, that's sacrely field, 766
Touched by her har tendance gladier grew, 203 the spider's, how exquisitely fine, 496 wound with a, that searcely, 611, 606
Touched by her tarriendance gladiler grew, 205
Jouchs of Sweet harmony, 775
Jouchstone, man's true, calainty 18, 348
Jouchy Jesty pleasant fellow, 724
Jower of strength, the king's haine 18 a 7 22.
Towers along the steep, 529 and battlements it sees, 785
Cloud-capped, 897
Jown, and on the steep, 529
and battlements it sees, 785
Cloud-capped, 897
Jown, in in made the, 792
Joy, a foolsh thing was but a, 494
Joyle, troublous, 311
Jract of Inland ground, 631
Jract, dreadful, gathers samphire, 445
Tragedy, gorgeous, in seeptred pall, 787
Jrail of the serpent is over them all, 396
Trailing clouds of glory do we come from God, 758
Trailing clouds of glory do we come from God, 758
Trailing clouds of glory do we come from God, 758
Trains of imagery, fair, 897.
Trainson of undustrate, 800
Traintors arms, imgratitude more strong than, 896.
Trammel up the consequence, 900
Trample on my, whose light doth, 274
Transmutes bereaves of bad influence, 537
Transmoters on women of themes, 274
Transmutes bereaves of bad influence, 537
Transmutes here so is 508
Transmotes and the suits of woe. 295
Transmotes here, 308
Transmotes and 508
Transmotes and 508
Transmotes and 508
Transmotes and 508
Transmotes and 5
             rray manen and Sweetheart, 346.
Treacle, fly that sips, is lost, 205
I read each other's heel, wees, 34s of uncrowned kings, 603 on classic ground, 807
```

```
Treason bloody, flourished over us, 876.
can but peep, 722
doth never prosper, 822.
liarbors, in his simple show, 724-has done his worst, 321
here lurks no, 311
none dare call it, if it prosper, 812
Treasons stratagems and spolfs, fit for, 776.
Treasure of his eyesight lost, precious,
246
     Treasure of his eyesight lost, precious, 346
346
71
Treasures, always, always friends, 739, fetched my sea-born, home, 406, heaven's best, peace and health, 559, three, love light calm thoughts, 739
410 a wrong, 899
Treasures, sunless, 632
Treatures, unless, 632
Treature, dismail, my fell of hair rouse at a, 000
  Treatise, dismal, my fell of hair rouse at a, 900
Treble, childish, 721
Tree, forbidden, irant of that, 395
hale green 454.
inclined just as the twig Is bent, 804.
neath you crimson, 494.
never loved a, or flower, 251 of deepest root, 756
thorns of the, I planted, 800.
woodman spare that 101.
Zaccheus he did climb the, 397
Trees, Arabian, drop tears as last as the, 725.
Zaccheus he did climb the, 397
Irees, Arabana, drop tears as last as the, 725, at spring do yield forth bud, 802 blossoms in the, 489 brotherhood of venerable, 494 finds tongues in 489
just hid with, 489
tufted, bosonier lingh in, 785
Ireiable like a guilty thing surprised, 759 slave to, when I wake, 594
Ireinbling bedoing the same of the tree of 83
Treinbling pinions, soar with, 801
Treinchard blade Tolichot trusty, 597
Tribe, badge of all our, sufferance the, 346 may his, increase 768
racher than all his, 724
Tribute, passing, of a sigh, 306 vain, of a smile, 811
Trick of his frown, 107
Tricks, fantastic, plays such, 813 his b. ams, 490
in pla in and smiple faith, 306 that are vain ways that are dark and, 987
Tride, without consent bin only, 222
     Tride, without consent bin only 232
Tried each art reproved each dull delay,
Tried each art reproved each dull de 68
to hve without him, 312
Triff, carel..sv, as 't were a, 309 think haught a, 815
friffers, important 558
Friffers, important 558
Frifters, important 558
Tried, homest, win us with, 306 light a air, 207
time, April dressed in all his, 452
Trip, it as you go, come and 785
Tripping, catch him, if you can, 724
Triton Blow his wreathed hom, 403
Tritingh advances, chief who in, 519 pursue the, 511
Triumph advances, ch of who in, 519 pursue the, 911 stare-spangled banner in, shall wave, 593 friumphal arch that fill's the sky, 494 frivial fond records, wipe away 4ll, 8st. nighty contexts from, things, 815 frod the water, 672 froop, farewell the plumbed, 7-27 froops of friends, honor love obedicines, 200
Troops of trends, honor love obethence, 794
Troppe out there flew a, 804
Trophies, memory o'er their tomb no, raise, 306
Trouble, a joyful 539
our days begin with, here, 308 war is toil and, 772
Iroubles, sea o', take arms against a, 207.
written, of the brain, 347
Troubling, wicked cease, from, 330
Iroy divine, tale of, 787
hred another, like another Helen, 772 Truant, aged ears play, at his tales, 723 husband should return, 215
True as the needle to the pole the dial to the sun, 796
love, the course of, 250
to imagined right, 603
love, the course of, 250
to imagned right, 603
to thine own self be, 797
True-fixed and resting quality. 492
Trumpt, speaking, of future fame, 940
the shrill, farewell, 722
Trumpet, the shrill, sounds, 541.
to the morn, cock that is the, 808
Trumpet-tongued, plead file angels, 900
Trust in God and keep your powder dry, 672 602 in God Is our, 593 not a man, 232
Life and sound your, 795
```

1096 Trust, such with a silerty, 802.

unfaltering, soothed by an, 308.

Trusted, let no such man be, 776.

Trusts humself to woman or to waves, 872.

Truth and love and meckness, 795
banush all compliments but, 334.
beauty 18, truth beauty, 789.
breathe, that breathe their words in pain, 330.

crushed to earth shall rise again, 534.
demes all eloqueace to woe, 348.
doctrine sanchfied by, 939.
doubt, to be a lair, 305.
from his lips prevailed, 688 has such a face and mien, 398.
hear then the, 799
hers of, and pure delight, 42.
highest thing man may keep, 398.
I held it, with him who sings, 399.
in every shepherd's tongue, 158.
know then this, 308.
light of, let me live in the, 797.
makes free, he is the freeman whom the,
6000.

Output the freeman whom the,
60000.

Trusted, 1870. Uncoffined unknelled and unknown, 607.
Unconquered steam, soon shall thy arm, 802.
Will, star of the, 802.
Unconsidered trifles, a snapper-up of, 724.
Unconsuming fire of light, 807.
Under the hawthorn in the dale, 785.
the yaller-pines I house, 493.
which king Bezonian, 540.
Underlings, that we are, 793.
Underneath this sable hearse, 907.
this stone doth lye, 907.
Understanding, give it, but no tongue, 815.
Undesvoit astronamer is mad, 492.
Undiscovered country from whose bourn, Undisputed thing thou say'st an, 48, Undone, love again and be again, 756 widow sits upon mine arm, some, 541. Undreamed shores, unpathed waters, 800 Uneasy lies the head that wears a crow 763 Uneffectual fire, 'gins to pale his, 490.
Unerring bow, lord of the, 726.
Unexpected, by how much, 541 Unexpressive she, the fair the chaste the, ingir oi, iet in the in the system akes free, he is the freeman whom the 600, open, quenched the, 570 out of thy honest, 324, simple, his utmost skill, 736, simple, mixealled simplicity, 398 sole judge of, 792 speech is, thought is speech as 5 spread the, from pole to pole, 376 statesman yet friend to, 120 stranger than fiction, 805 tell, and shame the devil, 398, the poet ungs, this is, 355 well known to most, 802, whispering (ongues can poison, 116, Truth's majestic march, 602 mixes from the system of 187 speech 187 spee Unengressive sine, the fair the chaste the, Unengressive sine, the fair the chaste the, Unengressive sine, the fair the chaste the, Unfortunate, one more, 335 Ungalled, he hart, play, '97 Ungracious pastors, 809. Unhappy, none, but the great, 347-none think the great, 347-none the great the gr green be the, above thee, 937.
green grassy, 493.
That wraps their clay, 953.
Turk, bear like the, no brother, 910
Turmoyle, w.arisome, paine and, 311
Turm and fight another day, 540
our some idle rhyme, 810
the wnallest worm will, 798
Turtle, love of the, 451
Turoress of arts and sciences, 108.
Twelve, his apostles, Cristès lore and, 697 honest men have decided, 810.
Twenty mortal murders on their crowns, 868 Twenty mortal murders on their cross 868.

Twenty one, brisk minor pants for, 793. Twee blessed, it is, 798.

Twee-told tale, tedious as a, 799. Twig is bent the tree's inclined, 804. Twilght gray, 413.

Two etermities, the past the future, 793. hands upon the breast, 295. hearts that beat as one, 295. loos littered in one day, 895. lovers happy, make, 205. paces of the vilest earth, 310 pale feet crossed in rest, 295. paradises are in one, 823. souls with but a single thought, 205. voices are there, 49.

Tyrannous to use it like a giant, 813. Tyrant custom, 599. fantastic, of the amorous heart, 204. little, of his fields withstood, 395. Tyrant's plean, necessity the, 603. Tyrant's plean, necessity the, 603. Tyrant's lin every foe, 573. Untravelled, my neart, 1011-12, 248.
Untrodden ways, she dwelt among the, 104.
Untutored mund, poor Indian whose, 399.
Unused to the melting mood, 725.
Unutterable things, sighed and fooked, 204.
Unvelled her peerless light, apparent queen,
472. Umbrage, leafy, 867. Unadorned, adorned the most when, 795. Unaneled, unhouseled disappointed, 310. Unassuming commonplace of nature, 495. Unattempted in prose or rhyme, things, Unvelled her peeriess iignt, apparein.

433.
Unwashed artificer, a lean, 722.
Unwashed and gnarled oak, 813.
Unwedge ble and gnarled oak, 813.
Unwelle ploughshare, 495.
Up and doing, let us then be, 770.
rose the sonne and Emeire, 490.
Upmost round, attains he, 790.
Upon this hint I spake, 245.

947.

947.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047.

1047

Uprosr, sun and sand and the wild, 406.
Urania govern thou my song, 807
Urges sweet return, retirement, 814
Urn, bubbling and loud-hissing, 810.
moulering, when shall apring visit the, mouldering, when shall spring vi 737 y 197 Vacant mind, loud laugh that spoke the, 688. Vacation, conscience have, why should not, Value to the stream of the str nic.

meanest floweret of the, 489of death, beyond this, 114of tears, beyond this, 114of tears, beyond this, 114of tears, beyond this, 399sequestered, of rural life, 794 swells from the, 688.
Valierla, dear, 493
Valierla, dear, 493
Vales, Dielphian, 917
pyramids in, pyramids arc, 398
Valhait inan and free, 752 not, that dares die, 590 taste of death but once, 310
Valley, not in this wide world a, so sweet,
116 Valley, not in this wide world a, so sweet, 116
10 death, 517
Vallombrosa, strow the brooks in, 494-thick as leaves in, 494
Valor, bastard, 500.

by angel hands to, given, 592
for contemplation and, formed, 712.
Value, rack the, 807
Van, in the battle's, 602
Van, in the battle's, 602
Vanished hand, O for the touch of a, 315
Vanishers, funing, of earth, 491
Vanishers, funing, of earth, 491
Vanity, man's heart by, drawn in, 799of worldly stuff, 814
Vanquished, e'en though, he could argue still, 688.
Vaniage, cougne of, 720 still, 688.

Vantage, coyne of, 700
forchand and, of a king, 559
Vapors mell into morn, 490 shadows lengthening as the, rise, 490.
Vapory god, court the, 815.
Variable as the shade, 500
Variable as the shade, 500
Variable as the shade, 500
Varied God, these are but the, 417.
Variety, infinite, custom stale her, 712.
's the very spice of life, 815
order in, we see, 815
Various language, she speaks a, 307.
Vase, you may break you may shatter the, 246 Vase, you may break you may shatter the,

240

Vast concerns, fluctuations and its, 820 dead, and middle of the might, 491.
pursues the, alone, 821.

Vastiness which grows to harmonize, 726.

Vasity deep, spirits from the, 822

Vault, freited, 396
mere lees left this, to brag of, 346

Vaulting ambition which o'erleaps itself, 788

Vehemence, fiery, of youth, 670

Venerate humself a man, learns to, 603

Venerate to God alone belongs, 890

Venice, I stood in, on the bridge of sighs, 720. vents in mangled forms, 803 Venture life and limb, 602. Venure life and limb, 602.
Venus sets ere Mercury can rise, 805.
Venus sets ere Mercury can rise, 805.
Venus sets ere Mercury can rise, 805.
Venus heaven, down from the, 502 of the churchyard mould, 802.
Vernal bloom, sight of, 497
60wers, purple the ground with, 494.
Vernay partit gentil knyght, 569
Verne, accompliahment of, wanting the, 766.
cursed be the, 782
ends of, cheered up with, 347.
his manhood better than his, 57
hoarse rough, 806.
love first invented, 604.
make the one, for the other's sake, 805.

```
Verse, married to immortal, Lydian sirs, 766.
married to immortal, wisdom. 8c6.
more, than 6c7.
verses, rhyme the rudder is of, 8c7.
very ectsay of love, 9c7.
very ectsay of love, 9c7.
versell, sgentle, side, 6c9.
versell, storme-bett, sately ryde, 311.
vesture, muddy, of decay, 7c5.
of creation, th' essential, 722.
veteran superfluous lags, 8c4.
vex not his ghost, 346.
not the poet's mind, 8c6
vex ing the dull ear of a drowsy man, 799.
verne, bathed every, in swich licour, 6c5.
vibrate, chords that, sweetest pleasure, 9c4.
vibrates in the memory, music, 7c6.
vica of the almighte lord, nature, 489.
vice is a monster of so frightful mlen, 395.
of fools, pride the never-failing, 799.
prevails, when, 6c7
vicalsatude, circling joys of dear, 559.
vicalsatude, circling joys of dear, 559.
   Niclastude, circling joys of dear, 559.
Victories, foiled after a thousand, 540.
peace hath her, 509.
Victories of all the ills of life, 848
Victory, O grave where is thy, 365.
t was a famous, 538.
View, distance lends en
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      enchantment to the.
           ne with a critic's eye, don't, 107 outward, she is not fair to, 129
Viewed his own feather on the fatal dart,
   Viewed his own teather on the same was 800
Views, science his, enlarges, 541
Vigil, patient vearch and, long, 800,
Vigils, pensive poets painful, keep, 807.
Vigir, cheer of, born, 793,
Vigir, call him, that was your garland, 813, dust from whence he spring, 563, guns, a soldier but for these, 500, in durance, 346
only man is, 305
gun's, a soldier but for these, 500. in durance, 346 only man is, 395 Village Hampden, some, 306. lovelest, of the plain, 686. Villan, hungry lean-faced, 722. one murder inade a, 541. simle and be a, 722 with a smiling cheek, 797. Villanous saltpetre, 506. Villany, clothe my naked, 306. Villany, clothe my naked, 306. Villany, clothe my naked, 306. Vindicate the ways of God to man, 807 Vindence, affiction's, 348. Violent delights have violente ends, 815. Violet bestrewn, here and there a, 493. by a mossy stone half Indden, 705. glowing, 404. nodding, 495. of his native land, 317. throw a perfume on the, 706. Violets, breathes upon a bank of, 808. dum but sweeter than Juno's eyes, 495. odors when sweet, sicken, 776. plucked, 138, 346. server forms have face fleeth, att.
   unit out sweeter than Juno seyes, 495 odors when sweet, stcken, 776. plucked, 138, 346 spring from her fair flesh, 311. Virgil's verse and Tully's truth do say, 791. Virgin thorn, withering on the, 495. Virgin's, bashful, sidelong looks of love, 687. Virgins are soft as the roses they twine, 451. shame that startled, feel, 105. Virtue alone is happiness below, 398. alone outbuilds the pyramids, 398. assume a, if you have it not, 396 filled the space between, 797 in her shape how lovely, saw, 398. is to gold as gold to silver, 803 make ambitton, big wars that, 722. no man's, nor sufficiency, 345. nurse of every, 500 only makes our bluss below, 398, possession would not show us, 801. progressive, and approving heaven, 214.
   possession would not show us, 80z. progressive, and approving heaven, 814. seek, first, 803. she finds too painful an endeavor, 232. she finds too painful an endeavor, 232. she mind matures, 794. Virtue's governess, whipping, 108. land, Fortune's ice prefers to, 798. side, e'en his fallings leaned to, 688. Virtues did not go forth of us, if our, 797. nearest to heaven of all the, 723. of a temp'rate prime, 794. we dare conceive in boyhood, 867. will plead like angels, 900. Virtuous achoas are but born and die, 8xz.
```

```
Virtuous souls abhor, 150
Visage, devotion's, and plous action, 356 on his bold, middle age, 670.
Vision and the faculty divine, 766.
baseless fabric of this, 867.
beatific, 803
fatery, I took it for a, 869.
fatal, sensible to feeling as to sight, 822
Visionary and lorde of the 868.
          fatal, sensible to feeling as to sight, 882. Visionary eye, lords of the, 868. Visionary eye, lords of the, 868. Visions of glory spare my aching sight, 868. Visit, annual, o'er the globe, 472. her face too roughly, 806. It by the pale moonlight, 675. Visitations, sudden, daze the world, 812 Visitatings, compunctions, of nature, 900. Visits, like angle's, 906. Vital spark of heavenly fame, 305. I heard oft in worst extremes, 540 I hear a, you cannot hear, 311. in my dreaming ear, 500. Iow and gentle, woman's chuefest charm, 705. I mustic in a, that is but one, 227.
     no music in a, that is but one, 271
no music in a, that is but one, 271
no dolorous pitch, 314, 337 of God, Duty stem daughter of the, 797 of nature tristern daughter of the, 797 of nature cries e in from the tomb, 306 of the sluggard, 815
sing with mortal, more safe I, 348, sound of a, that is still, 325 wandering, 472.
was ever soft, her, 723
was ever soft, her, 723
was ever soft, her, 723
voc, are there cach a mighty voice, 493.
Voices, ancestral, prophesying war, 834.
of the night, 273
two, are there cach a mighty voice, 493.
Void, dreary, rapture to the, 816
Voluble, sweet and, his discourse, 723
Voliupe, book and, of my brain, 801.
brief unto as large a, 207.
of forgotten lore, 862.
within that awful, lies, 397.
Voliuptious swell, misse with its, 511
Volaress, imperial, 836
Votarss, like a sad, in palmer's weed, 830
Vote, kinglest act of freedom is the, 603
Vows, lovers', seem sweet, 491.
much in our, luttle in our love, 251.
with so much passon, 204.
wreck of sober, 558.
Voyage of their life, all the, 802 remainder biscuit after a, dry as, 803.
Vulture, rage of the, 451.
                                                                                       795.
no music in a, that is but one, 272
Vulgar, be familiar but by no means, 121
Vulture, 122 of the, 451
Wad some power the giftic gie us, 486
Wade through slaughter to a throne, 306
Wade through slaughter to a throne, 306
Waft me from distraction, 685, thy name beyond the sky, 298.
Wag without a fee, could not, 809.
Wagers, fools for arguments use, 803.
Wags, how the world, 701.
Wail, sings yet does so, 495.
Wailing winds and naked woods, 466
Wain, Phoebus', hindmost wheels of, 830.
Waist, round the slight, 814.
Wait, learn to labor and to, 770 disperse who only stand and, 366
Wake and call me early, 327.
die before I, if I should, 107.
difference betwixt, and sleep, 816.
my heart to notes of fame, 202.
Waked me too soon, you have, 815
Wakeful nightingale, 413
Waken lords and ladies gay, 628.
Wakes the bitter memory, 396.
Waking, night of, 530.
no such matter, 240
Waking, night of, 530.
no such matter, 240
Walks by moon or glittering strilght, 206.
common, privileged beyond the, 399.
$\text{set as the solar, or milky way, 399.}
$\text{period with fudicious care, 386.}
Walk by moon or glittering strilght, 206.
common, privileged beyond the, 399.
$\text{set as the solar, or milky way, 399.}
$\text{period with fudicious care, 396.}
Walks by moon or glittering strilght, 206.
common, privileged beyond the, 399.
$\text{set as the solar, or milky way, 399.}
$\text{period with fudicious care, 396.}
Walks abroad, whenever it take my, 398 $\text{benighted, under the mindday sun, 796.}
happy, and shades, 392.
$\text{she she with our English dead, 593.}
$\text{she the tree of the office of a, 603.}
$\text{the she with world of a, 603.} $\text{the she serves it in the office of a, 603.
the whitewashed, 689.
Wallace, Scots wha hae wi', bled, 570-
```

```
Wallet, Time hath a, at his back, 792.
Wallow naked in December snow, 346.
Walls, banners on the outward, 540.
castle, splendor falls on, 449.
stone, do not a prison make, 147.
Walnuts and the wine, 824.
Wand, a bright gold ring on her, 721.
Wander alone by the wind-beaten hill, 578.
Wanderer lone by the wind-beaten hill, 578.
Wanderers o'er Eternity, 397.
Wandering mazes, lost in, 808.
on a foreign strand, 563.
on a lost hto die, 809.
steps and slow, 322.
voice, call thee bird or but a, 478.
Want, much I, that most would have, 729.
of art, hide with ornaments, 807.
of sense, want of sense, 805.
of fighting, grown rusty for, 507.
of sense, want of decency is, 805.
of hought, evil wrought by, 796.
of wealth, nch from very, 559.
Wantung sensibility, 782.
Wanton ambling nymph, strut before a, 938.
rushes, lay you down on the, 816.
sweetness through the breast, unstil a, 832.
wiles, quips and cranks and, 785 sweetness through the breast, anst $91.
Wales, quips and cranks and, 785.
Wantoned with thy breakers, 607.
Wantonness, kindles in clothes a, 713.
Wants, all thy, are well supplied, 76.
that pinch the poor, 815.
War, ancestral voices prophesying, 834.
arts of, and peace, 580.
blast of, 502.
chiefs out of, 814.
circumstance of glorious, 722.
delays are dangerous in, 539.
                                                                               cniets out of, 824, circumstance of glorious, 722, delays are dangerous in, 539, dogs of, let slip the, 539, even to the knife, 541 ez fer, I call it murder, 541 finity and steel couch of, 559, grim-visaged, 541 hand of, infection and the, 603, he sung is toll and trouble, 772 image of, without its guilt, 671. '3 a game kings would not play at, 541. is thousand slays, 539, my sentence is for open, 539, my occur is still for, 570 of elements, 759 purple textament of bleeding, 541 right form of, 890 sparks that kindle fiery, 530, tigg of, then was the, 541 unsuccessful, 593 at's glorious art, 541.
                     unsuccessful or successful, 593
War's glorous art, 541 rattle, where mingles, 570.
red techstone, 539.
Warble his native wood-notes wild, 786.
Warbled to the string, such notes as, 787
Warm worted home, 310.
Warmest welcome at an inn, 121
               Warmest welcome at an mn, 121
Warms in the sun refreshes in the breeze,

489.
Warmth, dear as the vital, 200.
of its July, 108
Warn comfort and command, 128
Warning, school-boys at th'expected, 108,
Warped murror to a gaping age, 804
Warres, ferce, and faithful loves, 670
Warrior, painful, famoused for fight, 540.
taking his rest, lay like a, 920
Warrior's steed, in war he mounts the, 202
Warrior's steed, in war he mounts the, 202
Warrior's steed, on war he mounts the, 202
Warrior's steed, in war he mounts the, 202
Warrior's steed, on war he mounts the, 202
Warrior's steed, in war he mounts the, 202
Warrior's steed and the steed an the big, 722
Warwick, impudent and shameless, peace, 938.
Wash er guilt away, what art can, 336
Washed with morning dew, rose sweetest,
Wash her guit away, what art can, 339
Washed with morning dew, rose sweetes'
204
Washing his hands with invisible soap, 724
Waste its sweetness on the desert air, 366.
Occan's gray and melancholy, 397 of feeings unemployed, 816 of thought, thinking an idle, 808
Wasteful and ridiculous excess, 796.
Waster and wilds of man, 808
Wasting in despair, shall 1, 393 some must, some must sleep, 677 that wants both hands, an idler, 724 with more advised by 187
Waster of the skeep, 687
Waster of the skeep, 688
Watcher of the skeep, 688
Watcher of the skeep, 688
Watcher, with our judgments as our, 799 Watchful might, 309
wearly tedious nights, 204
Water, a little, clears us of this deed, 883.
bright, for me, $45.
```

```
Water everywhere nor any drop to drink.
                                     355 superceptible, washing his hands in, 724, mither rough rude sea, not all the, 722, little thing to give a cup of, 770.

nectar and rocks pure gold, 215, smooth runs the, where the brook is deep of the control of the received and the rocks pure gold, 215, smooth runs the, where the brook is deep 275.
                                           d ep, 724.
he conscious, saw its God and blushed,
  he conscious, saw its tood and blushed, 162.
Water-drops, women's weapons, 346.
Water-drops, women's weapons, 346.
Waters, constant as gilding, roll, 796.
enrobe the roaring, with my silks, 632 tades of the, blue, 138.
glad, of the dark blue sea, 630 gurgle longnigly, 631.
out e more upon the, 631 rising world of, 497.
the roar of, 745.
the roar of, 745.
the whelming, passed, 632 mi, athed, undreamed shores, 802 vale in whose bosom the bright, meet, ILL.
                                        wild went o er his child, 339.
wild went o er his child, 339.

Wave, a winnin ; deserving note, 713.
and whirlwind wrestle, with, 631
fountain's nurmuring, 493 glasy cool translucent, 869 long may it, 593.
ocean, a life on the 650
of the sea. I wish you a, 134.
still 1-lists hubbling tales, 720 sweetest, of most living crystal, 720 weetest, of most living crystal, 720
weet her his hand, 235.
Waves, bound beneath me as a steed, 63:
braking, dashed high, 587
Britainia rule the, 576
com as the, come, 518.
mountain, ser hurch is o er the, 629,
the wild, whist, 89
with white creats chincing, 631
Way, alorns an I cheers the, 800.
all the, to heaven, 540 dances such 1, 211
dan mid peri ons, 805, cod moves in a inysterious, 634
he went at 3 arting, 248
his aven's wile pathless, 787.
                                        he went at 1 arting, 248
licaven's wide pathless, 787, into clear sunshine, 807.
  ine went all atting, 329.
In aven's wide pathless, 787,
into clear sunstine, 807,
infe's common, 907
long is the, out of hell to light, 395 intky, 301at walk or, 395
pio is 'ii. weary, 305 pretty Fanny's, call to only, 134 resignation gently slipes the, 697 solhary, through Eden took their, 321 steep and thorny, to heaven, 801 tenor of their, noiseless, 306 that I was yoing, inarshaf'st me the, 892 that inach, solles, 348 to disty death, lighted fools the, 792 to heaven, same who taught the, 910 to parrish church, plann 48, 803 which, shall I fly, 306, winding, I see them on their, 491,
wiston finds a, be there a will, 798
Wiss, appear 15, other, than words, 121, best of all to lengthen our day, 305,
cheerful, of men, 407,
newest kind of, old, st sins the, 395 of glory, once trod the, 322 of God to man, instalt the, 807
of God to man, instalt the, 807
of God to man, instalt the, 807
of men, 392 cities and the, 489
she dwelt among the untrodden, 104, that are dark and tricks that tre vain, 497
Wisk, delicately, fine by defect and, 723
        sne dwert among the untroducen, 104.

that are dark and tricks that ure vain,

267

W.ak, delicately, fine by defect and, 723 have remedies the wise have Joys, 798.

Weakness, another's, moulds, 812.

It my, have an end, 77.

of our apprehension, 599
stronger by, 755.

Weakn accumulates and men decay, 687 boundless his, as wish can claim, 563.

by any means yet, 803
jknorance of, his best riches, 687 loss of, is loss of dirt, 347 of Ornus and of Ind, 722 partake but never waste thy, 291 rich from very want of, 550.

that sinews bought have earned, 594.

W.ation, sattre a my, 806

s.ill as snow-fakes fall, 604.

Weaknow, women's, water-drops, 346
              Weapons, women's, water-drops, 346
Wear a golden sorrow, 347 him in my heart's core, 112-motley's the only, 810-worse for, a hat not much the, 961
```

```
Weariness can snore upon the filnt, 816.

may toss him to my breast, 395.

Wears so, she to him, 315.

yet a precious jewel in his head, 348.

Weary and old with service, 321.

are at rest, 330.

art thou, art thou languid, 364.

of breath, 335.

of conjectures, 739.

reckoning, 248.

stale flat and unprofitable, 346.

woe, 816.
       stale flat and unprofitable, 346.
wee, 816.
Weather, through pleasant and through cloudy, 304.
Weathered the storm, pllot that, 632.
Web from their own entralls spin, 203,
like the stalend, that whitens, 120.
of our life is of a mingled yarn, 792.
Wed, December when they, 214.
itself with speech, ere thought could, 113.
nsen with speech, ere thought could, 113. Wedded pair, harmony to behold in, 200 Wedding, never, ever wooling, 244. Wedlock oft compared to public feasts, 231 Weed Mine Winkie, 83 Weed Mine from the rock, 641 palmer, sad votarts in, 837 peracious, 558 Weeds of glorious feature, 487 sable, no friends appear in, 312 Week, divide Sunday from the, 559 Weep away the life of care, 317 calm for those who, there is a, 794 death a thing that makes men, 330 make the angels, plays such tricks as, 813 813 might is the time to, 416.
                                                 no more lady, 138
no more nor sigh nor groan, 346, smile while all around thee, 78 smile while all around three, 78 to record, blush to give it in, 95, who would not, if Atticus were he, 910 words that, and tears that speak, 804.
Weeping hermat, 90;
when all around thee smuled, 78
Weight of all this unmethigible world, 404.
Welcome, deep-mouthed, 106 ever smiles, 792 peaceful evening In, 810
pure-eyed Faulti, 830 shade, fairer sjant or more, 910
the committy greet, 121.
   shade, fairer spirit or more, 910
the coming gnest, 121, 10 our house, y 'u are very, 121,
when it comes say, friend, 193
Welkin dome, thy stars have lit the, 592
Well done, evreunt of (50d, 3)5 last drop in the, 920 loved not wisely but too, 724 mar what 's, striving to better, 802 of English undefyled, 998, old oaken bucket which hung in the, 100 paid that's well satisfied, 802
Well-bred man will not insult me, 780
Well-spring of pleasure, a babe in a house,
   Well-spring of pleasure, a babe in a house, 100 Mell-trod stage, then to the, 786 Weltering in his blood, 771.
Weitch's, white, black eye, 721 Wepto's, white, black eye, 721 Weyer's, where his wounds, 688 Western flower, a little, 836 sea, wind of the, 82 shees, behold him settling in his, 400 star, lovers love the, 402 Westimister, thrive at, on fools, 810. Westward the course of empire takes its way, 587
Westmanster, thrive at, on fools, 8to.
Westward the course of empire takes its way, $67

West-wind, baskin', purr contented, 493
West-wind's summer sighs, 729.
West-wind's summer sighs, 729.
What sight si
```

```
Wheels hindmost, of Phœbus' wain, 830.
madding, of brazen chariota, 500.
of weary life at last stood still, 300
When we two parted in silence and tears
    241.
Whene'er I take my walks abroad, 398.
Where none admire, 'tis useless to excel,
    the bee sucks there suck I, 869
Whereabouts, the very stones prate of my,
  Where a Dotter is the sachet, 711.

Where is the Collecum — Rome, 682 there is life there is hope, 704. Whining school-boy with his satchet, 711.

Whipped the offending Adam out of him,
  Whipped the offending Adam out of him, 395.
Whipping that's virtue's governess, ro8 Whips and scorns of time, 297.
Whirl, turns the giddy, around, 559
Whirls, wayward, airy spire and, 228.
Whirlwind, rides in the, 539.
Whirlwind; roar, loud torrent and the, 603 sweeping, sway, ro8
Whisper, busy, circling round, 688.
hark they, 365.
Whisper in to the woods, 200
Whispering humbleness, bated breath and, 744.
Whispering humbleness, 'Dated breath and, 744.

I will ne'er consent, cousented, 205 lovers, talking age and, 686 tongues can poison truth, 116 wind, bayed the, 688 with white lips the foe, 512
Whispers of shades and wanton winds, 404-the o'er-fraught heart, 312.
Whist, the wild waves, 859.
Whistle and I'll coine to you, 136
Whistles in his vound, pipes and, 711.
Whistling of a name ravished with the, 939, to keep his courage up 107
White a moment, then mells forever, 848, nor white so very, black is not black, 866 806 pure celestial, 592.
wench's black eye, 721.
White-handed Hope, 830
White-handed Hope, 859
Whiteness, in angel, 723.
Whiter than the driven snow, 708
Whiter than the driven snow, 708
White-washed wall, 689
Who breaks a butterfly upon a wheel, 609 builds a church to God, 797 dares do more is none, 800
dares greatly does greatly, 671.
love too much inte in like extreme, 207 shall decide when doctors disagree, 803, steals my pure steals trash, 811.
would not weep if Atteus were he, 910.
Whoe'er she be that not impossible she 192.
Whoe'er she be that not impossible she 192.
Whoe'er she be that not impossible she 192.
Whoe harmonious, 417
of life to live, not the, 311.
one stupendous, parts of, 489
perfect, 406
  of life to five, not the, 311,
one stupendous, parts of, 489
perfect, 406
world kin, makes the, 811
Whom the gods love the young, 107,
Why don't the men propose, 214,
should the spirit of mortal be proud, 302,
so pale and wan fond lover, 203
the, 15, plain as way to church, 803
Wick within the very fame of love, 271.
Wicked cease from troubling, 330
Wickliffe's dust shall spread abroad, 930
Wickliffe's dust shall spread abroad, 930
Widkliffe's dust shall spread abroad, 930
Widd, wife is a, what's the world when his,
942
Wide dearer than the bride, how much, 215 directed by a, 232, is a widdy, what's the world when his,
942
Wide the was a fewer such wight were 942
Wight, she was a, if ever such wight were, 723.
Wild and willowed shore, 494.
    Wild and willowed shore, 494.
by starts, t was, 793.
in their attire, 868.
thyme blows, bank where the, 495.
with all regret, 315.
Wilderness, bird of the, 473.
lodge in some vast, 593.
of building, 867.
of single instances, 810.
Wildernesses, desert, 870.
Wilds, native, impart every good, 603.
Wildswood, deep-tangled, 100.
Wiles more unexpert I hoast not, of, 539.
simple, 128.
wanton, 785.
      wanton, 785.

Will, be there a, wisdom finds a way, 798.

broad-based upon his people's, 622.

compiles against his, he that, 803.

free, fixed fate, 808.
                                 his own sweet, 678.
human, left free the, 370.
```

```
Will, if she, do 't she will, 795.

puzzies the, 297.

sarreth not another 's, 726

stare's collected, sovereign law that, 599

the temperate, 126, 540.

to do the soul to dare, 670

unconquered, star of the, 802.

willing to wound yet afraid to strike, 910.

Willing to stay, 913.

us to our harm, 326

us with lonest trifles, 936

Wind, as large a charter as the, 602.

and the rain, hey ho the, 494.

bayed the whispering, 688

betwart the, and his nobility, 500 blow, tome warks, 541.

be athing of the common, 922 but whispers of thy name, not 4, 248

constancy in, hope, 806

hollow murnuring, 810

alle, pass by me as the, 797 ill, turns none to good, 802

mysile and treeping, 632 melted as breath into the, 808 of the western vea, 81.

of vanity or malice, 808 or weather, naught cared this body for, 108

sorrow's keenest, 398 108 sorrow's keenest, 398 stands as never it stood, 802 standing to the, shone like a increor, stands as never it stood, 802 straining to the, shone like a incteor, 374 stood, 802 straining to the, shone like a incteor, 475 the follows fast, 69 the follows fast, 69 the follows fast, 69 the fast grand old harper, 403 Winding shout many at, 786 way, I we them on their, 60 way, I we them on their, 60 windowed raggedness, looped and, 494 Windows, storied, richly dight, 787 Winds and choinds and changing skies, 492 ask of the, 674 blow, and crack your cheeks, 494 come as the, come, 318 courted by all the, 632 hdppy, inpon her physical, 721 lord of the come, 500 courted by all the, 632 hdppy, inpon her physical, 721 lord of the come, 500 courted by all the, 632 hdpy, inpon her physical, 680 courted by all the, 632 stood four square to all the, 940 take the, of March with beauty, 405 waling, and naked woods, 466 wanton, whispers of shades and, 494 when the stormy, do blow, 650 wine, 1 Il not look for, 125 of life is drawn, 346 old, to dr nk, 134 swallow down intoxicating, 558 sweet poison of inswelf, 658 to the trenulous debauchee, 545 walnuts and the, 844.
    Wing, noiseless, to waft me from distraction, 085; wingked hours of biles, 447. The shift, his own feather, 850 Wings, claps her, at heaven's gate she, 495 girt with golden, angel, 85 noise fires with swallow's, 850 lend your, I mount I fly, 365, of mghit, derkness falls from the, 490, of silence, float upon the, 736 philosophy will clip an angel's, 808, sating on obscene, 395 scandals fly on eagles, 811. spreads his light, 475 the voil and points her to the skies, 725, whets and claps its silver, 719 wile will ying, on 802
```

```
Wisdom, superior, is superior bliss, 798
  Within that awful volume hes, 397 that, which passeth show, 295
Wits, great, to madness near allied, 909 keen encounter of our, 804.
Witty to talk with, 124
Wizard hand hes cold, 940
  Wizard hand hes cold, 940

We cannot severest, 890

monther s, teach me to feel, 370

hewrays more, silence in love, 304

day of, 300

eleepest notes of, 304

every, a tear can claim, 367

hentage of, 10rd of himself that, 346

mockery of, 312.

new scenes of, 539

one, doth tread upon another's heel, 345

ponderous, 312
                 one, doth tread upon another's her ponderous, 21 proper, careful pilot of my, 223, rearward of a conquered, 271,
sabler tints of, 346
signs of, Nature gave, 399, sleep the friend of, 816
source of all my, 650
tears of, the siniles of joy the, 399, truth demes all eloquence to, 348
voiceless, 220
           voiceless, 720
weary, 816
wildest, 15 love, 204
/oes at midnight rise, 495
  Woes at midmight rive, 495 cluster, 345
rare are solutary, 345 shall serve for sweet discourses, 241 sleep thou caser of all, 816 the starry Galileo in his, 938
toli the soluce of his, 559-
Wofful likeness if true, 811.
Wolsey that once trod the ways of glory,
222.
  322.

Woman, a perfect, nobly planned, 128.
a spirit yet a, too, 128
an excellent thing in, soft voice, 723 at best a contradiction still, 795.
```

```
man, believe a, or an epitaph, 806 dark eye in, light of a, 686, destructive deceitful dammable, 795, die because a, 8 alu, 193
frailty thy name a, 507,
frailty thy name a, 507,
if will take some savage, 55,
in our hours of case, 590,
in this humor won, was ever, 796,
lovely woman, 133,
loves her lover in her first passion, 796,
man is but haif without, 232,
man sighed till, smilled, 304, mist is dispelled when a, appears, 795 moved is like a fountain troubled, 725, more that was a, 309
                          moved is like a fountain troubled, 725, one that was a, 300 perfected, earth's noblest thing, 723, niay the, forced me to, 321. play the, with mine eyes, 346. scorned, no fury like a, 200, she's a, therefore to be won, 705. still be a, for you, 185 stoops to folly, when lovely, 336. take an elder, let the, 215 that deliberaters is 10st, 736 triusts himself to, or waves, 271. what mighty ills done by, 795 will or won't, depend on 1, 795. will a, with his tongue, 133

Woman's chiefest charm, low and gentle voice, 795
                   Woman's chiefest charm, low and gentle work of the chiefest charm, low and gentle work of the chiefest charm, low and gentle work of the chiefest charm, 203 gentle brain, 795 looks, my only books were, 204 love, brief as, 207 love; paths to, 204 mood, fautastic as a, 813 reason, no other out a, 233 whole existence, its, 796.

Womanhood and chidhood fieet, 104 Womb of uncreated mght, lost in, 794 Women are frail too, aye as the glasses, 323
Womb of uncreaments of the work of the wor of an nour, a school-boy's take, 792 of our stage, 905
Wonderful is cleath, how, 714
Wonders, his, 10 perform, 692.
Wondrous kind, fellow-feeling makes one,
Wondrous kind, fellow-feeing makes one, 844
Soft work of the strange, 808
Wonted fires, in our ashes live their, 306.
Woo, April when the 3, 214
tell my story and that would, her, 145, were not made to, 795
Wood, deep and gloony, 404.
inipulse from a vernal, 494
old, to burn, 118
Woodbine, over-canopied with luscious, 495
well-attired, 494
Wood-index wild, warble his native, 786
Woods agreins a storing sky, 587 green-robed tenators of mighty, 494-naked, 466
pathless, there is a pleasure in the, 607 whispered it to the 209
Wood and not unsought the won, he, 206-beautiful and therefore to be, she's beautiful and therefore to be, an 79 we should be, 705 wo should be should
```

Word, life from the dead is in that, 389, no men relies on, whose, 940, no such, as fail, 802, of Cæsar might have stood, 876, of promise to our ear, keep the, 345-reputation dies at every, 812, tale whose hightest, would harrow up, tale whose agracest, would narrow up

725, teaching me that, I thank thee for, 804,
that must be, Farewell a, a4.
too large, tempted her with, 304, unkind or wrongly taken, 364,
too large, tempted he with, 304, which are not book, 304,
Words agraced book, 307,
which are though the server agraph and gracous, 23,
are like leaves, 803,
are things, 805,
give sorrow, 312 are things, 80.5 give borrow, 312 initiodest, admit of no defence, 805 libit, of Marrimon, 520. inove slow, line labors and the, 800. inove slow, line labors and the, 800. of learned length, 683. of love then spoken, 318, duent the fare feshons, 800. seldom spent in vain when scarce, 310. so nimble and full of subtle flame, 939-tears so obstruct my. 232. tears so obstruct my, 725. 671.

in close design, 825.
honest man 8 the noblest, of God, 780.
sport as tedious as to, 108
Workers, men the, 256.
Working out salvation, tools of, 396.
Working nutre's, to me expunged, 407.
of admiration, 348
of love or enmity, 868 signing through all her, 899
these are thy glorious, 363
World, Academes that nourish all the, 133. a theatre the earth a stage, 792. a theatre the earth a stage, 792 amphibous, 632 annwhere out of the, 335 annwhere out of the, 335 blows and buffets of the, 247 brought death into the, 395 contagion to this, 431 daffed the, aside, 793 daze the, sudden visitations, 812, dissolves, when all the, 396 doth but two nations bear, 796 deepins books are each a, 805 ere his, be past his heaven comm 687. 687. falls when Rome falls, 682. ians when Rome rains, ogs. federation of the, 257 fever of the, 404 give the, assurance of a man, 721. globy jest and riddle of the, 792. God hath made this, so fair, 399 good-by proud, 1 m going home, 744-hold the, but as the world, 804. how the, wags, 791 humanized a, 800 I have not loved the, nor the world me, I have not loved the. nor the world me, if all the, and love were young, 178, mhabit this bleak, alone, 465. 's a bubble, 320. 's a bubble, 320. 's a bubble, 320. 's a tage, 711. is all a ficeting show, 399 is too much with us, 403 kin, makes the whole, 811. leaves the, to darkness and to me, 305 let the, sink, 398. light awakes the, 490 man is one, and hath another, 702 naughty, so shines a good deed in a, 797. naine at which the, grew pale, 909. now a bubble burst and now a, 394 of death, knells us back to a, 308. of aighs for my pains, 225. of waters, rising, 407, peace to be found in this, s28, queen of the, and child of the skies, 588. rack of this tough, 246.
shall be in love with night, 134.
shall be in love with night, 134.
shor heard round the, 559.
spin forever, let the great, 258.
spite the, 347.
steal from the, 225.
stood against the, word of Cæsar, 876.
hat new, which is the old, 174.
this benk-note, 677,
this breathing, sent before my time into, or38 938
this little, 603.
thus pendent, in bigness as a star, 492.

Wrong, always in the, 900, buther we are both in the, 121. can't be, whose life is in the right, 201, condemn the, and yet pursue, 395 cradled into poerty by, 806. as are pardon who have done the, 798. once, will need be always so, 796, reverse of, mistook for right, 808, rival in the, cannot bear a, 799, the oppressor's, 897, treasures up a, him who, 899 Wrongs of night, light will repay the, 489, Wroth with one we love, 116. Wrought in a sad sincerity, 736. Wrought in a sad sincerity, 736. Wy was his parisshe, 697. World, thus runs the, away, 671. touch of nature makes the whole, kin, 811.
unintelligible, weight of this, 404.
uses of this, all the, 346.
vain pomp and glory of this, 321.
was all before them, 321.
was sad the garden was a wild, 204.
will disagree in faith and hope, 398.
witch the, with noble horsemanship, 8rz. 67z. within our arms, our, 206. without a sun, man a, 795. work-day, everydayness of this, 215. World's broad field of battle, 770. World's broad need of battle, 775 tired demizen, 415.
Worldly, be wisely, 798.
stuff, vanity of, 814.
wise, be not, 798.
World's, allured to brighter, 688. Xanadu, in, did Kubla Khan, 834. Xerxes did die and so must I, 307. Worlds, allured to brighter, 688.
conquer twenty, 308.
crush of, 759.
exhausted, and then imagined new, 905.
not realized, 759.
Worm I' the bud, concealment like a, 251.
is in the bud of youth, 308.
needlessly sets foot upon a, 781.
the canker and the grief are mine alone, Yailer-pines, under the, I house, 493.
Yarn, web of our life is of a mingled, 792.
Yarn, heard thy everlasting, contess, 724
Yarn, heard the verlasting, 593.
heaven; eternal, is thine, 311 moments make the, 815.
no where in the, 425. in the book of yours, as, 782, the canker and the grief are mine alone, will turn, the smallest, 798.

Worms and epitaphs, let's talk of, 310, of Nile, outvenoms all the, 811.

Worse, change for, 207, for wear, a hat not much the, 961, future views of better or of, 800, make the, appear the better reason, 724.

Worship, freedom to, God, 587, of the great of old, 681, to the gardsh sun, pay no, 134.

Worship, freedom to, God, 587, of the great of old, 681, to the gardsh sun, pay no, 134.

Worshippers, dies among his, 534.

Worst speak something good, 334, this is the, 347.

Worth a thousand men, one blast were, 511 conscience of her, 200 departed, sad rehe of, 581, prize not to the, what we have, 802, promise of celevial, 398.

Worthy of their steel, formen, 655, of your love, love him ere he beem, 205 wot not what they are, 804.

Wound, earth felt the, 800 love's, purple with, 836, never felt a, he jests at scars that, 345, of Cassar, put a tongue in every, 877, shoe has power to, 134 willing to, 910.

Worth of what they are, 804.

Wound to of the gast as scars that, 345, of Cassar, put a tongue in every, 877, shoe has power to, 134 willing to, 910.

Worth of their chapt turf that, 503.

Wrack, blow wind come, 541.

Ways, their clay, turf that, 503.

Wrack, blow wind come, 541.

Value, and infinite despoar, 206. noments make the, 525, no winter in thy, 472 rolling, is full of thee, 417 ruler of the inverted, winter, 492 saddest of the, inclancholy days the seasons return with the, 407.
Years, eternal, of God, 504.
Hears, 506.
Hears, 506. seasons return with the. 876. Yesterday's sneer and yesterday's frown, Yesterdays, have lighted fools, and all our 792 look backward with a smile, 792. look backward with a sinile, 792. Yielded with coy submission, 711
Yoke, how hard thy, 204
York, this sun of, made summer by, 541. You meaner beauties of the night, 124. Young and so fair, 33 barbarnans all at play, 681 both were, one was beautiful, 764. dc. sire, bloom of, 205 desire, bloom of, 205 desire, hope thou muse of, 800. die, whont the gods love, 107 Fancy's rays the hills adorning, 108, 1dea how to shoot, teach the, 214. man's fancy highly turns to love, 254. Obadias Dawid Josans, 397 read nature, the, 494. Yaun, anger no nigner than may sweeten, 141.
heaven so merciful in, 550,
infinite, and infinite despair, 356,
nursing her, to keep it warm, 647,
Wreathêd smiles, nods and becks and, 785,
Wreaths, brows bound with victorious, read nature, the, 404.
spurned by the, hugged by the old, read indured. Int., 404.

spurned by the, hugged by the old, very leaven to be, 400.

when my bosom was, 500

Young-eyed cherubins, quiring to the, 775.

Yours, what's mine is, and yours is mine, 2005

Youth and I lived in 't together, 108.

and observation copied there, 80x. bud of, a worm is in the, 308.

dear amiable, adieu, 796.

fiery vehemence of, 670.

hoary, Methusalems may die in, 794.

inmortal, flourish in, 759

in, it sheltered me, 10x.

's a stuff will not endure, 122.

Is vain, 116.

lexicon of, 802

my May of, 120.

sy and 110.

lexicon of, 802

my May of, 100.

sy and Wreaths, brows bound with victor 541.

541.

Wreat endure affliction's shower, 398.
Wreck, fierce o'er the, 632.
of sober vows, 568.
sunken, and sunless treasuries, 632.
Wrecks of matter, 759.
Wren will fight against the owl, 238.
Wrenched with an unlineal hand, 345.
Wretch concentred all in self, 563.
condemned with life to part, 347. condemned with life to part, 347error's, 3 794. Time writes no, on thine asure brow, Time writes no, on thine asure brow, 607.
Writ by God's own hand, scripture, 489.
holy, strong as proofs of, 807.
holy, stol'n forth of, 396.
Write in rhyme, those that, 807.
Writing, ease in, from art not chance, 806.
well, nature's chief masterpiace is, 806.
Wroghte, first he, afterward he taughte,
697. 735.
wisdom mounts her, with the stars, 43z.
Zephyr gently blows, soft the strain when,
800.
Zones though more and more remote, 396.